{9:32} For even I would not answer a man who were like myself, nor one who could be heard with me equally in judgment. {9:33} There is no one who could both prevail in argument and in placing his hand between the two.
{9:34} Let him take his staff away from me, and let not the fear of him terrify me. {9:35} I will speak and I will not fear him, for in fearfulness I am not able to respond.

[Job 10] {10:1} My soul is weary of my life. I will release my words against myself. I will speak in the bitterness of my soul.
{10:2} I will say to God: Do not be willing to condemn me.
Reveal to me why you judge me this way. {10:3} Does it seem good to you, if you find fault with me and oppress me, the work of your own hands, and assist the counsel of the impious? {10:4} Do you have bodily eyes? Or, just as man sees, will you see? {10:5} Are your days just like the days of man, and are your years as the times of humans, {10:6} so that you would inquire about my iniquity and examine my sin? {10:7} And you know that I have done nothing impious, yet there is no one who can deliver from your hand.
{10:8} Your hands have made me and formed me all around,
and, in this way, do you suddenly throw me away?
{10:9} Remember, I ask you, that you have fashioned me like clay, and you will reduce me to dust. {10:10} Have you not extracted me like milk and curdled me like cheese?
{10:11} You have clothed me with skin and flesh. You have put me together with bones and nerves. {10:12} You have assigned to me life and mercy, and your visitation has preserved my spirit. {10:13} Though you may conceal this in your heart, yet I know that you remember everything.
{10:14} If I have sinned, and you have spared me for an hour, why do you not endure me to be clean from my iniquity?
{10:15} And if I should be impious, woe to me, and if I should be just, I will not lift up my head, being drenched with affliction and misery. {10:16} And because of pride, you will seize me like a lioness, and having returned, you torment me to an extraordinary degree. {10:17} You renew your testimony against me, and you multiply your wrath against me, and these punishments make war within me.
{10:18} Why did you lead me out of the womb? If only I had been consumed, so that no eye would ever see me! {10:19} I should have been as if I had not been: transferred from the womb to the tomb. {10:20} Will not my few days be completed soon? Release me, therefore, so that I may lament my sorrows a little, {10:21} before I depart and return no more to a land that is dark and covered with the fog of death, {10:22} a land of misery and darkness, where the shadow of death, and nothing else but everlasting horror, dwells.

[Job 11] {11:1} But Zophar the Naamathite, responding, said:
{11:2} Will he who speaks much, not also listen? Or will a talkative man be justified? {11:3} Will men be silent only for you? And when you have mocked others, will no one refute you? {11:4} For you said: "My word is pure, and I am clean in your sight." {11:5} Yet I wish that God would speak with you, and would open his lips to you, {11:6} so that he might reveal to you the secrets of wisdom, and how intricate his law is, and that you would understand how much less he requires of you than your iniquity deserves. {11:7} By chance, will you comprehend the footsteps of God and reach all the way to the perfection of the Almighty? {11:8} He is higher than heaven, and what will you do? He is deeper than hell, but how will you know? {11:9} His measure is longer than the earth and wider than the sea. {11:10} If he overturns all things, or packs them together, who will contradict him? {11:11} For he knows the vanity of men, and when he sees iniquity, does he not evaluate it? {11:12} A vain man is lifted up in arrogance, and he thinks that he is born free like a wild ass’s colt. {11:13} But you have fortified your heart and extended your hands to him. {11:14} If you would send away injustice remain in your tabernacle, then you would from you the iniquity that is in your hand, and not let extended your hands to him. {11:15} Then you would be able to lift up your face without blemish, and you would be steadfast and unafraid. {11:16} Misery, likewise, you would forget, or would remember only like waters that have passed by. {11:17} And brightness, like that of midday, will rise upon you until evening, and when you would think yourself consumed, you will rise up like the morning star.

And, when hope has been set before you, you will have faith, and, when buried, you will sleep secure. {11:19} You will rest, and there will be nothing to make you afraid, and many will make requests before your face. {11:20} But the eyes of the impious will fade away, and the path to escape will perish before them, for the abomination of the soul is their hope.

[Job 12] {12:1} Then Job, answering, said: {12:2} Are you, therefore, alone among men, and will wisdom die with you? {12:3} And I have a heart just as you also do, and I am not inferior to you. For who is ignorant of these things, which you know? {12:4} He who is mocked by his friends as I am, will call upon God, and he will listen to him because it is the sincerity of the just that is being mocked. {12:5} The lamp that is despised in the thoughts of the rich is ready for the appointed time. {12:6} The tabernacles of robbers are numerous, and they provoke God boldly; whereas, it is he who has given all things into their hands. {12:7} In truth, ask the mules, and they will teach you, and the birds of the sky, and they will reveal to you. {12:8} Speak with the earth, and it will respond to you, and the fish of the sea will explain. {12:9} Who is ignorant that the hand of the Lord has made all these things? {12:10} In his hand is the soul of all the living and the spirit of all the flesh of mankind. {12:11} Does not the ear perceive words, and the palate, when eating, perceive flavor? {12:12} In old age is wisdom, and in length of days is prudence. {12:13} With him is wisdom and strength, he has counsel and understanding. {12:14} If he tears down, there is no one who can build up; if he encloses a man, there is no one who can open. {12:15} If he restrains the waters, everything will dry up; and if he sends them forth, they will subdue the land. {12:16} With him is strength and wisdom; he knows both the deceiver and he who is deceived; {12:17} He leads advisors to a foolish end and judges to stupidity. {12:18} He removes the belt of kings and encircles their waist with a rope. {12:19} He leads away priests in dishonor and displaces nobles, {12:20} altering the lips of those who speak the truth and sweeping away the teaching of the aged. {12:21} He pours distain upon the leaders, relieving those who had been oppressed. {12:22} He reveals the depths of the darkness, and he brings the shadow of death into the light. {12:23} He multiplies peoples, and destroys them, and, having been overthrown, he restores them anew. {12:24} He transforms the heart of the leaders of the people on earth, and misleads those who in vain advance upon the inviolable. {12:25} They will grope as in the darkness, not the light, and he will make them stagger like drunkards.

[Job 13] {13:1} Behold, my eye has seen all these things, and my ear has heard, and I have understood each one. {13:2} In conformity with your knowledge, I also know. I am not inferior to you. {13:3} Yet I speak this way to the Almighty, and I desire to argue with God, {13:4} having first shown that you fabricate lies and cultivate perverse teachings. {13:5} And I wish that you would remain silent, so that you would be counted among the wise. {13:6} Therefore, listen to my correction, and pay attention to the judgment of my lips. {13:7} Does God require your lie, so that you would speak deceitfully for him? {13:8} Have you taken his place, and do you struggle to give judgment in favor of God? {13:9} Or, will it please him, from whom nothing can be concealed? Or, will he be deceived, like a man, by your deceitfulness? {13:10} He will accuse you because in secret you have preempted his presence. {13:11} As soon as he moves himself, he will disturb you, and his dread will fall over you. {13:12} Your remembrance will be compared to ashes, and your necks will be reduced to clay. {13:13} Be silent for a little while, so that I may speak whatever my mind suggests to me. {13:14} Why do I wound my flesh with my teeth, and carry my soul in my hands? {13:15} And now, if he would kill me, I will hope in him; in this, truly, I will correct my ways in his sight. {13:16} And he will be my savior, for no hypocrite at all will approach in his sight. {13:17} Listen to my words, and perceive an enigma with your ears. {13:18} If I will be judged, I know that I will be found to be just. {13:19} Who is it that will go to judgment with me? Let him approach. Why should I be consumed in silence? {13:20} Do not do such things to me twice, and then I will not hide from your face. {13:21} Take your hand far away from me, and do not let your dread terrify me. {13:22} Call me, and I will answer you, or else I will speak, and you can answer me. {13:23} How many iniquities and sins do I have? Reveal my crimes and offenses to me. {13:24} Why do you conceal your face and consider me to be your enemy? {13:25} Against a leaf, which is carried away by the wind, you reveal your power, and you pursue dry straw. {13:26} For you write bitter things against me, and you want to consume me for the sins of my youth. {13:27} You have put my feet on a tether, and you have observed all my paths, and you have considered the steps of my feet. {13:28} I will be left to decay like something rotten and like a garment that is being eaten by moths.

[Job 14] {14:1} Man, born of woman, living for a short time, is filled with many miseries. {14:2} He comes forth like a flower, and is crushed, and he flees, as if a shadow, and never remains in the same state. {14:3} And do you consider it fitting to look down with your eyes on someone in this way and to lead him into judgment with you? {14:4} Who can make him clean who is conceived of unclean seed? Are you not the only one who can? {14:5} The days of man are short, and the number of his months is with you; you have determined his limits, which cannot be surpassed. {14:6} Withdraw a little from him, so that he may rest, until his awaited day arrives, like that of the hired hand. {14:7} A tree has hope: if it has been cut, it turns green again, and its branches spring forth. {14:8} If its roots grow old in the earth, and its trunk passes into dust, {14:9} at the scent of water, it will sprout and bring forth leaves, as when it had first been planted. {14:10} Truly, when a man dies, and has been left unprotected, and has decayed, I ask you where is he? {14:11} It is as if the waters had receded from the sea and an empty river had dried up; {14:12} just so, when a man is fallen asleep, he will not rise again, until the heavens are worn away; he will not awaken, nor rise from his sleep. {14:13} Who will grant this to me, that you will protect me in the underworld, and hide me until your fury passes by, and establish a time for me, in which you will remember me? {14:14} Do you suppose that a dead man will live again? On each of the days in which I now battle, I wait until my transformation occurs. {14:15} You will call me and I will answer you; to the work of your hands, you will extend your right hand. {14:16} Indeed, you have numbered my steps, but you have been lenient with my sins. {14:17} You have sealed up my offenses, as if in a purse, but you have cured my iniquity. {14:18} A falling mountain flows away, and a stone is transferred from its place. {14:19} Waters wear away stones, and with a flood the land is reduced little by little; and similarly, you will destroy man. {14:20} You have strengthened him for a little while, so that he may cross over into eternity. You will change his face and send him forth. {14:21} Whether his sons have been noble or ignoble, he will not understand. {14:22} And in this way his body, while he yet lives, will have grief, and his soul will mourn over himself. {15:1} But Eliphaz the Themanite, answering, said: Will a wise man answer as if he were speaking wind, and will he fill his stomach with fire? {15:3} You rebuke with words he who is not equal to you, and you speak what is not expedient for you, {15:4} to such an extent that, within yourself, you have expelled reverence and have taken away prayers from the presence of God. {15:5} For your iniquity has mislead your mouth, and you imitate the tongue of blasphemers. {15:6} Your own mouth will condemn you, not I; and your own lips will answer you. {15:7} Are you the first man who was born, or were you formed before the hills? {15:8} Have you heard the intentions of God, and will his wisdom be inferior to you? {15:9} What do you know, about which we are ignorant? What do you understand that we do not know? {15:10} There are with us both aged and ancient men, even more senior than your fathers. {15:11} Is it so important that God should console you? But your own depraved words prevent this. {15:12} Why does your heart exalt you, and why do you gaze with your eyes, as if thinking great things? {15:13} Why does your spirit stir against God, so as to utter such speeches from your mouth? {15:14} What is man that he should be immaculate, and that he should appear just, having been born of woman? {15:15} Behold, among his holy ones not one is immutable, and even the heavens are not pure in his sight. {15:16} How much more abominable and useless is the man who drinks as if from the heavens are not pure in his sight. {15:17} I will reveal to you, so listen to me; and I will explain to you what I have seen. {15:18} The wise acknowledge, and they do not leave behind, their fathers, {15:19} to whom alone the earth has been given, and no stranger passed among them. {15:20} The impious is arrogant for all his days, and the number of the years of his tyranny is uncertain. {15:21} The sound of terror is always in his ears; and when there is peace, he always suspects treason. {15:22} He does not believe that it is possible for him to be turned from darkness into the light, for he sees around him the sword on every side. {15:23} When he moves himself to seek bread, he knows that the day of darkness has been prepared for his hand. {15:24} Tribulation will terrify him, and anguish will prevail over him, like a king who is being prepared to go to battle. {15:25} For he has extended his hand against God, and he has strengthened himself against the Almighty. {15:26} He has rushed against him with his throat exposed, and he has been armed with a fat neck. {15:27} Thickness has covered his face, and lard hangs down from his sides. {15:28} He has lived in desolate cities and deserted houses, which have been turned into tombs. {15:29} He will not be enriched, nor will his basic necessities endure, nor will he establish his root in the earth. {15:30} He will not withdraw from the darkness; the flame will burn up his branches, and he will be defeated by the breath of his own mouth. {15:31} He will not believe, being vainly deceived by error, that he could be redeemed at any price. {15:32} Before his time is completed, he will pass into ruin and his hands will wither away. {15:33} He will be wounded like a grapevine, when its cluster is in first flower, and like an olive tree that casts off its flower. {15:34} For the congregation of the hypocrites is fruitless, and fire will devour the tabernacles of those who love to accept money. {15:35} He has conceived sorrow, and he has brought forth iniquity, and his womb prepares deceit.
do not conceal my blood, nor let my outcry find a hiding place in you. {16:20} For behold, my witness is in heaven, and my confidante is on high. {16:21} My friends are full of words; my eye rains tears upon God. {16:22} And I wish that a man might be so judged before God, just as the son of man is judged with his assistant! {16:23} For behold, a few years pass by, and I am walking a path by which I will not return.

[Job 17] {17:1} My spirit will be wasted, my days will be shortened, and only the grave will left for me. {17:2} I have not sinned, yet my eye remains in bitterness. {17:3} Free me, O Lord, and set me beside you, and let the hand of anyone not sinned, yet my eye remains in bitterness. {17:4} You have set their heart far from discipline; therefore, they will not be praised. {17:5} He promises prey to his companions, but the eyes of his sons will grow faint. {17:6} He has posted me like a proverb to the people, and I am an example in their presence. {17:7} My eyesight has been clouded by indignation, and my limbs have been reduced, as if to nothing. {17:8} The just will be astounded over this, and the innocent will be stirred up against the hypocrite. {17:9} And the just will cling to his way, and clean hands will increase strength. {17:10} Therefore, be converted, all of you, and approach, for I do not find in you any wisdom. {17:11} My days have passed away; my thoughts have been scattered, tormenting my heart. {17:12} They have turned night into day, and I hope for light again after the darkness. {17:13} If I should wait, the underworld is my house, and in darkness I have spread out my bed. {17:14} I have said to decay and to worms: “You are my father, my mother, and my sister.” {17:15} Therefore, where is my expectation now, and who is it that considers my patience? {17:16} Everything of mine will descend into the deepest underworld; do you think that, in that place at least, there will be rest for me?

[Job 18] {18:1} But Baldad the Suhite responded by saying: {18:2} How long will you throw around words? Understand first, and then let us speak. {18:3} Why have we been treated like mules, as if we were unworthy before you? {18:4} You, who ruins your own soul in your fury, will the earth be forsaken because of you, and will the cliffs be moved from their place? {18:5} Will not the light of the impious be put out, and the flame of his fire refuse to shine? {18:6} Light will become darkness in his tabernacle, and the lamp that is over him will be extinguished. {18:7} His strong steps will be constrained, and his own counsel will cast him down uncontrollably. {18:8} For he has caused his own feet to go into a net, and he has walked into its web. {18:9} His heel will be held in a snare, and thirst will rage against him. {18:10} A trap has been hidden for him in the earth, and a decoy, along his path. {18:11} Horrifying things will terrify him everywhere and will entangle his feet. {18:12} Let his strength be diminished by famine, and let starvation invade his ribs. {18:13} Let it devour the beauty of his skin; let the ancient death consume his arms. {18:14} Let his confidence be torn away from his tabernacle, and let ruin trample over him like a king. {18:15} Let the companions of he who is not, dwell in his tabernacle; let brimstone rain down upon his tabernacle. {18:16} Let his roots be dried up from beneath him, and his harvest be crushed from above. {18:17} Let the memory of him perish from the earth, and let not his name be celebrated in the streets. {18:18} He will expel him from light into darkness, and he will remove him from the world. {18:19} Neither his offspring, nor his descendents, will exist among his people, nor will there be any remnants in his country. {18:20} The last will be astonished at his day, and the first will be overcome with horror. {18:21} And so, these are the tabernacles of the sinful, and this the place of he who does not know God.

[Job 19] {19:1} But Job answered by saying: {19:2} How long will you afflict my soul and wear me down with words? {19:3} So, ten times you confound me and are not ashamed to oppress me. {19:4} Now, of course, if I have been ignorant, my ignorance will be with me. {19:5} But you have risen up against me, and you accuse me to my disgrace. {19:6} At least now you should understand that God has not afflicted me with a balanced judgment, though he has encompassed me with his scourges. {19:7} Behold, I will cry out, enduring violence, and no one will hear. I will announce loudly, but there is no one who may judge. {19:8} He has hemmed in my path, and I cannot pass; he has added darkness to my difficult path. {19:9} He has plundered me of my glory, and he has stolen the crown from my head. {19:10} He has destroyed me on every side, and I am lost, and, like an uprooted tree, he has taken away my hope. {19:11} His fury has raged against me, and in this way he has treated me like his enemy. {19:12} His troops have gathered together, and they have made their way to me, and they have besieged my tabernacle all around. {19:13} He has put my brothers far from me, and my friends have withdrawn from me like strangers. {19:14} My kinsmen have forsaken me, and those who knew me, have forgotten me. {19:15} The inhabitants of my house and my maidservants treat me just as if I were a stranger, and I have been like an sojourner in their eyes. {19:16} I called my servant, and he did not respond; I pleaded with him with my own mouth. {19:17} My wife has shuddered at my breath, and I have begged the sons of my loins. {19:18} Even the foolish have looked down on me, and, when I withdrew from them, they spoke ill of me. {19:19} Those who were sometime my counselors, treat me like an abomination; and he whom I valued the most has turned against me. {19:20} Since my flesh has been consumed, my bone adheres to my skin, and only my lips have been left around my teeth. {19:21} Have mercy on me, have compassion on me, at least you my friends, because the hand of the Lord has touched me. {19:22} Why do you pursue me just as God does, and satiate yourselves with my flesh? {19:23} Who will grant to me that my words may be written down? Who will grant to me that they may be inscribed in a book, with an iron pen and a plate of lead, or else be carved in stone? {19:25} For I know that my Redeemer lives, and on the last day I will rise out of the earth. {19:26} And I will be enveloped again with my skin, and in my flesh I will see my God. {19:27} It is he whom I myself will see, and he whom my eyes will behold, and no other. This, my hope, has taken rest in my bosom. {19:28} Why then do you now say: “Let us pursue him, and let us find a basis to speak against him?” {19:29} So then, flee from the face of the sword, for the sword is the avenger of iniquities; but know this: there is to be a judgment.

another in me, and my mind moves quickly through different ideas. {20:3} The teaching you use to admonish me, I will hear, and the spirit of my understanding will respond for me. {20:4} This, I know, is from the beginning, from the time that man was set over the earth: {20:5} that the praise of the impious shall be short, and the joy of the hypocrite lasts only a moment. {20:6} If his pride ascends even towards the heavens, and his head touches the clouds, {20:7} in the end, he will be destroyed like a trash heap, and those who had seen him will say: "Where is he?" {20:8} Like a dream that flies away, he will not be found; he will pass away like a nightmare. {20:9} The eyes that had seen him, will not see him; no longer will his own place admire him. {20:10} His sons will be worn away by poverty, and his own hands will deliver his grief to him. {20:11} His bones will be filled with the vices of his youth, and they will sleep with him in the dust. {20:12} For, when evil will be sweet in his mouth, he will hide it under his tongue. {20:13} He will permit it, and not abandon it, and he will conceal it in his throat. {20:14} His bread in his belly will be turned into the venom of snakes within him. {20:15} The riches that he devours, he will vomit up, and from his stomach God will draw them out. {20:16} He will suck the head of snakes, and the tongue of the viper will kill him. {20:17} (May he never see the streams of the river, the torrents of honey and butter.) {20:18} He will be repaid for all he has done, yet he will not be consumed; according to the multitude of his schemes, so also will he suffer. {20:19} For, having broken in, he stripped the poor. He has quickly stolen away a house he did not build. {20:20} And yet his stomach will not be satisfied, and when he has the things he desires, he will not be able to possess them. {20:21} Nothing remained of his portion, and, because of this, nothing will continue of his kind. {20:22} When he will be satisfied, he will be constrained; he will see, and all anguish will fall upon him. {20:23} May his stomach be filled, so that God may send forth the fury of his wrath to him and may rain down his battle upon him. {20:24} He will flee from weapons of iron, and he will fall in an arc of brass, {20:25} which had been drawn and had issued forth from its sheath, glittering in its bitterness: the horrible ones will go forth and approach over him. {20:26} All darkness has been hidden in his secrecy. A fire that has not been set will devour him; he will be thrown down and forsaken in his tabernacle. {20:27} The heavens will reveal his sinfulness, and the earth will rise up against him. {20:28} The offspring of his house will be exposed; he will be pulled down in the day of God's wrath. {20:29} This is the portion of a wicked man from God, and the inheritance of his words from the Lord.

[Job 21] {21:1} Then Job responded by saying: {21:2} I beseech you to hear my words and to do penance. {21:3} Permit me, and I will speak, and afterwards, if you see fit, you can laugh at my words. {21:4} Is my dispute against man, so that I would have no reason to be discouraged? {21:5} Listen to me and be astonished, and place a finger over your mouth. {21:6} As for me, when I think it over, I am afraid, and trembling convulses my body. {21:7} Why then do the impious live, having been lifted up and strengthened with riches? {21:8} They see their offspring continue before them: a commotion of close relatives and of children's children in their sight. {21:9} Their houses have been secure and peaceable, and there is no staff of God over them. {21:10} Their cattle have conceived and have not miscarried; their cow has given birth and is not deprived of her newborn. {21:11} Their little ones go out like a flock, and their children jump around playfully. {21:12} They take up the timbrel and the lyre, and they rejoice at the sound of the organ. {21:13} Their days are prolonged in wealth, yet, in an instant, they descend into hell. {21:14} Who has said to God, “Depart from us, for we do not want the knowledge of your ways. {21:15} Who is the Almighty that we should serve him? And how is it helpful to us if we pray to him?" {21:16} It is true that their good things are not in their power. May the counsel of the impious be far from me! {21:17} How often will the lamp of the wicked be extinguished, and a deluge overtake them, and how often will he distribute the afflictions of his wrath? {21:18} They will be like chaff before the face of the wind, and like ashes that the whirlwind scatters. {21:19} God will preserve the grief of the father for his sons, and, when he repays, then he will understand. {21:20} His eyes will see his own destruction, and he will drink from the wrath of the Almighty. {21:21} For what does he care what happens to his house after him, or if the number of its months are reduced by half? {21:22} Can anyone teach holy knowledge to God, who judges the exalted? {21:23} This one dies strong and healthy, rich and happy. {21:24} His gut is full of fat and his bones are moistened with marrow. {21:25} In truth, another dies in bitterness of soul, without any resources. {21:26} And yet they will sleep together in the dust, and worms will cover them. {21:27} Surely, I know your thoughts and your sinful judgments against me. {21:28} For you say, "Where is the house of the ruler, and where are the tabernacles of the impious?" {21:29} Ask any passerby whom you wish, and you will realize that he understands these same things: {21:30} that the evil-doer is reserved for the day of destruction, and he will be led to the day of wrath. {21:31} Who will reprove his way to his face, and who will repay him for what he has done? {21:32} He will be led to the tomb, and he will remain awake in the chaos of the dead. {21:33} He has been found acceptable to the banks of the River of Lamentation, and he will draw any man towards him, and there are countless before him. {21:34} Therefore, how long will you console me in vain, when your answer is shown to be repugnant to truth?

[Job 22] {22:1} Then Eliphaz the Themanite responded by saying: {22:2} Can man be compared with God, even if he were perfect in knowledge? {22:3} What advantage is it to God, if you were just? Or what do you provide for him, if your way should be immaculate? {22:4} Will he reprove you and take you to judgment for being afraid, {22:5} and not because of your many evil deeds and your infinite unfairness? {22:6} For you have taken away the collateral of your brothers without cause, and stripped them naked of their clothing. {22:7} You have not given water to the weary; you have taken bread away from the hungry. {22:8} By the strength of your arm, you took possession of the land, and you retain it by being the strongest. {22:9} You have sent widows away empty, and you have crushed the shoulders of orphans. {22:10} Because of this, you are surrounded by traps, and unexpected fears will disturb you. {22:11} And did you think that you would not see darkness and that you were not to be overwhelmed by the on-rush of overflowing waters? {22:12} Have you not considered that God is higher than the Job 23:1 Then Job answered by saying:

23:2 Now again my conversation is in bitterness, and the force of my scourging weighs more heavily on me because of my mourning.

23:3 Who will grant me that I might know and find him, and that I may approach even to his throne?

23:4 I would place judgment before his eye, and my mouth would fill with criticism,

23:5 so that I may know the words that he will answer me and understand what he will say to me.

23:6 I do not want him to contend with me with much strength, nor to overwhelm me with the bulk of his greatness.

23:7 Let him show fairness in response to me, and let my judgment reach to victory.

23:8 If I go to the east, he does not appear; if I go to the west, I will not understand him.

23:9 If I turn to the left, what can I do? I will not take hold of him. If I turn myself to the right, I will not see him.

23:10 Truly, he knows my way and has tested me like gold that passes through fire.

23:11 My feet have been following his footsteps; I have kept to his way and have not strayed from it.

23:12 I have not withdrawn from the commands of his lips, and the words of his mouth I have hidden in my sinews.

23:13 For he is alone, and no one is able to disturb his intention; and whatever his spirit wills, that he accomplishes.

23:14 And when he fulfills his will in me, many other similar ones will also be present with him.

23:15 And, for this reason, I have been troubled at his presence, and, when I consider him, I am approached by fear.

23:16 God has weakened my heart, and the Almighty has confused me.

23:17 Yet I have not perished because of the threatening darkness, nor has gloom covered my face.
[Job 26]  {26:1} Then Job responded by saying:  {26:2} Whose assistant are you? Is he weak-minded? And do you sustain the arm of him that is not strong?  {26:3} To whom have you given advice? Perhaps it is to him that has no wisdom or prudence that you have revealed your many ideas.  {26:4} Who is it that you wanted to teach? Was it not him that created the breath of life?  {26:5} Behold, giant things groan under the waters, and they dwell with them.  {26:6} The underworld is naked before him, and there is no covering for perdition.  {26:7} He stretched out the North over emptiness, and he suspended the land over nothing.  {26:8} He secures the waters in his clouds, so that they do not burst forth downward all at once.  {26:9} He holds back the face of his throne, and he stretches his cloud over it.  {26:10} He has set limits around the waters, until light and darkness shall reach their limit.  {26:11} The pillars of heaven tremble and are frightened at his nod.  {26:12} By his strength, the seas suddenly gather together, and his foresight has struck the arrogant.  {26:13} His spirit has adorned the heavens, and his birthing hand has brought forth the winding serpent.  {26:14} Behold, these things have been said about his ways in part, and, since we barely have heard a small drop of his word, who will be able to gaze upon the thunder of his greatness?

[Job 27]  {27:1} Job also added to this, using figures of speech, and he said:  {27:2} As God lives, who has taken away my judgment, and the Almighty, who has led my soul to bitterness,  {27:3} as long as my breath remains in me and the breath of God remains in my nostrils,  {27:4} my lips will not speak iniquity, nor will my tongue devise lies.  {27:5} Far be it from me that I should judge you to be right, for, until I expire, I will not withdraw from my innocence.  {27:6} I will not forsake my justification, which I have just begun to grasp, for my heart does not find blame for me in my whole life.  {27:7} Let the impious be as my enemy, and the sinful, as my adversary.  {27:8} For what hope is there for the hypocrite, if he greedily plunders and God does not free his soul?  {27:9} Will God pay attention to his cry, when anguish overcomes him?  {27:10} Or will he take delight in the Almighty and call upon God at all times?  {27:11} I will teach you through the hand of God, what the Almighty holds, and I will not conceal it.  {27:12} Behold, you know all this, and so why do you speak vain things without a reason?  {27:13} This is the portion of the impious man with God, and the inheritance of the violent, which they will receive from the Almighty.  {27:14} If his sons should happen to increase, they will be for the sword, and his grandsons will not be satisfied with bread.  {27:15} Whatever will remain of him will be buried in the ruins, and his widows will not weep.  {27:16} If he will amass silver as if it were dirt and fabricate garments as if they were clay,  {27:17} then yes, he will gather, but the just will be clothed with it and the innocent will divide the silver.  {27:18} He has built his house like a moth, and he has made a makeshift shelter like a sentry.  {27:19} When he falls asleep, the rich man will leave him with nothing; he will open his eyes and find nothing.  {27:20} Destitution will surround him like water; a storm will overwhelm him in the night.  {27:21} A burning wind will pick him up and carry him away, and, like a whirlwind, it will rush him from his place.  {27:22} And it will hurl over him and will not spare him; fleeing from its power, he will go into exile.  {27:23} He will clasp his hands over himself, and he will hiss at himself, while considering his situation.

[Job 28]  {28:1} Silver has its fissures where it is first found, and gold has a place where it is melted.  {28:2} Iron is taken from the earth, and ore, unbound by heat, is turned into brass.  {28:3} He has established a time for darkness, and he has settled on an end for all things, as well as for the stone that is in the gloom and shadow of death.  {28:4} The burning separates a pilgrim people from those who have been forgotten by the feet of the destitute man and from the unapproachable.  {28:5} The land, where bread appeared in its place, has been destroyed by fire.  {28:6} Its stones are embedded with sapphires, and its soil, with gold.  {28:7} The bird does not know its path, nor has the eye of the vulture beheld it.  {28:8} The sons of merchants have not walked there, nor has the lioness traveled through it.  {28:9} He has stretched out his hand to the rocks; he has overthrown the foundations of the mountains.  {28:10} He has cut rivers through the rocks, and his eye has seen all precious things.  {28:11} The depths of rivers he has also examined, and he has brought hidden things into the light.  {28:12} But, in truth, where is wisdom to be found, and where is the place of understanding?  {28:13} Man does not know its price, nor is it found in the land of those who live in sweetness.  {28:14} The abyss declares, “It is not in me.” And the sea says, “It is not with me.”  {28:15} The finest gold will not be paid for it, nor will silver be weighed in exchange for it.  {28:16} It will not be compared with the dyed colors of India, nor with the very costly stone sardonyx, nor with the sapphire.  {28:17} Neither gold nor crystal will be its equal; neither will vessels of gold be fitted for it.  {28:18} The exalted and the eminent will not be remembered in comparison with it. Yet wisdom is drawn out of concealment.  {28:19} The topos of Ethiopia will not be equal to it, nor will it be compared to the purest dyes.  {28:20} So then, where does wisdom begin, and where is the place of understanding?  {28:21} It has been hidden from the eyes of all living things, just as the birds of the heavens escape notice.  {28:22} Perdition and death have said, “With our ears, we have heard its fame.”  {28:23} God understands its way, and he knows its location.  {28:24} For he beholds the limits of the world, and he looks upon all things that are under heaven.  {28:25} He created a counterweight for the winds, and he suspended the waters to measure them.  {28:26} At that time, he gave a law to the rain and a path to the resounding storms.  {28:27} Then he saw and explained it, and he made ready and examined it.  {28:28} And he said to man, “Behold the fear of the Lord. Such is wisdom. And to withdraw from evil, this is understanding.”

[Job 29]  {29:1} Job also added to this, using figures of speech, and he said:  {29:2} Who will grant to me that I might be as I was in former months, according to the days when God kept watch over me?  {29:3} At that time, his lamp shined over my head, and by his light, I walked through the darkness.  {29:4} I was then just as in the days of my youth, when God was privately in my tabernacle.  {29:5} At that time, the Almighty was with me and my children surrounded me.  {29:6} Then, I washed my feet with butter, and a boulder poured out rivers of oil for me.  {29:7} When I went to the gate of the city, or to the main street, they prepared a chair for me.  {29:8} The youths saw me and hid themselves, and the elders, rising up, remained standing. [29:9] The leaders stopped talking, and they placed a finder over their mouth. [29:10] The commanders subdued their voice, and their tongue adhered to their throat. [29:11] The ear that heard me, blessed me, and the eye that saw me, gave testimony for me. [29:12] This was because I had freed the poor, who cried out, and the orphan, who had no helper. [29:13] The blessing of him who would have been destroyed came upon me, and I consoled the heart of the widow. [29:14] I put on justice, and I clothed myself with my judgment, like a robe and a diadem. [29:15] I was an eye for the blind and a foot for the lame. [29:16] I was the father of the poor; and if I lacked knowledge about any case, I investigated very diligently. [29:17] I crushed the jaws of the impious, and I took away prey from his teeth. [29:18] And I said, "I will die in my little nest, and like a palm tree, I will multiply my days. [29:19] My root has been spread beside the waters, and the dew will remain with my harvest. [29:20] My glory will always be restored, and my bow will be restored to my hand." [29:21] Those who heard me, expected vindication, and they listened closely in silence to my counsel. [29:22] To my words, they dared to add nothing, and my eloquence poured over them. [29:23] They waited for me as for rain, and they opened their mouth as for belated rains. [29:24] If I had ever laughed at them, they would not have believed it, and the light of my face was not cast down towards the ground. [29:25] If I wished to go to them, I sat down first, and, though I sat like a king surrounded by an army, yet I was a comforter to whose who mourned.

[Job 30] [30:1] But now, those younger in years scorn me, whose fathers I would not have seen fit to place with the dogs of my flock, [30:2] the strength of whose hands was nothing to me, and they were considered unworthy of life itself. [30:3] They were barren from poverty and hunger; they gnawed in solitude, layered with misfortune and misery. [30:4] And they chewed grass and the bark from trees, and the root of junipers was their food. [30:5] They took these things from the steep valleys, and when they discovered one of these things, they rushed to the others with a cry. [30:6] They lived in the parched desert and in caves underground or above the rocks. [30:7] They rejoiced among these kinds of things, and they considered it delightful to be under thorns. [30:8] These are the sons of foolish and base men, not even paying any attention to the land. [30:9] Now I become their song, and I have been made into their proverb. [30:10] They loathe me, and so they flee far from me, and they are not reluctant to spit in my face. [30:11] For he who has opened his quiver and has afflicted me, and he has placed a bridle in my mouth. [30:12] Immediately, upon rising, my calamities rise up to the right. They have overturned my feet and have pressed me down along their way like waves. [30:13] They have diverted my journeys; they have waited to ambush me, and they have prevailed, and there was no one who might bring help. [30:14] They have rushed upon me, as when a wall is broken or a gate opened, and they have been pulled down into my miseries. [30:15] I have been reduced to nothing. You have taken away my desire like a wind, and my health has passed by like a cloud. [30:16] But now my soul withers within myself, and the days of affliction take hold of me. [30:17] At night, my bone is pierced with sorrows, and those who feed on me, do not sleep. [30:18] By the sheer number of them my clothing is worn away, and they have closed in on me like the collar of my coat. [30:19] I have been treated like dirt, and I have been turned into embers and ashes. [30:20] I cry to you, and you do not heed me. I stand up, and you do not look back at me. [30:21] You have changed me into hardness, and, with the hardness of your hand, you oppose me. [30:22] You have lifted me up, and, placing me as if on the wind, you have thrown me down powerfully. [30:23] I know that you will hand me over to death, where a home has been established for all the living. [30:24] Truly, then, you do not extend your hand in order to consume them, and if they fall down, you will save them. [30:25] Once, I wept over him who was afflicted, and my soul had compassion on the poor. [30:26] I expected good things, but evil things have come to me. I stood ready for light, yet darkness burst forth. [30:27] My insides have seethed, without any rest, for the days of affliction have prevented it. [30:28] I went forth mourning, without anger, and rising up, I cried out in confusion. [30:29] I was the brother of snakes, and the companion of ostriches. [30:30] My skin has become blackened over me, and my bones have dried up because of the heat. [30:31] My harp has been turned into mourning, and my pipes have been turned into a voice of weeping.

[Job 31] [31:1] I reached an agreement with my eyes, that I would not so much as think about a virgin. [31:2] For what portion should God from above hold for me, and what inheritance should the Almighty from on high keep? [31:3] Is not destruction held for the wicked and repudiation kept for those who work injustice? [31:4] Does he not examine my ways and number all my steps? [31:5] If I have walked in vanity, or if my foot has hurried towards deceitfulness, [31:6] let him weigh me in a just balance, and let God know my simplicity. [31:7] If my steps have turned aside from the way, or if my heart has followed my eyes, or if a blemish has clung to my hands, [31:8] then may I sow, and let another consume, and let my offspring be eradicated. [31:9] If my heart has been deceived over a woman, or if I have waited in ambush at my friend's door, [31:10] then let my wife be the harlot of another, and let other men lean over her. [31:11] For this is a crime and a very great injustice. [31:12] It is a fire devouring all the way to perdition, and it roots out all that springs forth. [31:13] If I have despised being subject to judgment with my servant or my maid, when they had any complaint against me, [31:14] then what will I do when God rises to judge, and, when he inquires, how will I respond to him? [31:15] Is not he who created me in the womb, also he who labored to make him? And did not one and the same form me in the womb? [31:16] If I have denied the poor what they wanted and have made the eyes of the widow wait; [31:17] if I have eaten my morsel of food alone, while orphans have not eaten from it; [31:18] (for from my infancy mercy grew with me, and it came out with me from my mother's womb) [31:19] if I have looked down on him who was perishing because he had no clothing and the poor without any covering, [31:20] if his sides have not blessed me, and if he were not warmed with the fleece of my sheep; [31:21] if I have lifted up my hand over an orphan, even when it might seem to me that I the advantage over him at the gate; [31:22] then may my shoulder fall from its joint, and may my arm, with all its bones, be broken. [31:23] For I have always feared God, like waves flowing over me, whose weight I was unable to bear. {31:24} If I have considered gold to be my strength, or if I have called purified gold 'my Trust;' {31:25} if I have rejoiced over my great success, and over the many things my hand has obtained; {31:26} if I gazed upon the sun when it shined and the moon advancing brightly, {31:27} so that my heart rejoiced in secret and I kissed my hand with my mouth, {31:28} which is a very great iniquity and a denial against the most high God; {31:29} if I have been glad at the ruin of him who hated me and have exulted that evil found him, {31:30} for I have not been given my throat to sin by asking for a curse on his soul; {31:31} if the men around my tabernacle have not said: “He might give us some of his food, so that we will be filled,” {31:32} for the foreigner did not remain at the door, my door was open to the traveler; {31:33} if, as man does, I have hidden my sin and have concealed my iniquity in my bosom; {31:34} if I became frightened by an excessive crowd, and the disrespect of close relatives alarmed me, so that I would much rather have remained silent or have gone out the door; {31:35} then, would he grant me a hearing, so that the Almighty would listen to my desire, and he who judges would himself write a book. {31:36} Which I would then carry on my shoulder and wrap around me like a crown? {31:37} With each of my steps, I would pronounce and offer it, as if to a prince. {31:38} So, if my land cries out against me, and if its furrows weep with it, {31:39} if I have used its fruits for nothing but money and have afflicted the souls of its tillers, {31:40} then, may thistles spring forth for me instead of grain, and thorns instead of barley. (This ended the words of Job.)

{Job 32} {32:1} But these three men ceased to answer Job, because he considered himself justified. {32:2} And Eliu the son of Barachel the Buzite, of the kindred of Ram, was angry and indignant. But he was angry against Job because he described himself to be just in the presence of God. {32:3} Moreover, he was indignant with his friends because they had not found a reasonable response, except in so far as they condemned Job. {32:4} Therefore, Eliu waited while Job was talking, for these were his elders that were speaking. {32:5} But when he saw that these three were not able to respond, he was extremely angry. {32:6} And so Eliu the son of Barachel the Buzite responded by saying: I am younger in years, and you are more ancient; therefore, I kept my head low, for I was afraid to reveal to you my opinion. {32:7} For I had hoped that greater age would speak, and that a multitude of years would teach wisdom. {32:8} But I see now that there is only breath in men, and that it is the inspiration of the Almighty that gives understanding. {32:9} The wise are not the aged, nor do the elders understand judgment. {32:10} Therefore, I will speak. Listen to me, and so I will show you my wisdom. {32:11} For I have endured your words; I have paid attention to your deliberations, while you were being argumentative with words. {32:12} And as long as I supposed that you were saying something, I considered; but now I see that there is none of you that is able to argue with Job and to respond to his words. {32:13} So that you will not say, “We have found wisdom,” God has thrown him down, not man. {32:14} He has said nothing to me, and I will not respond to him according to your words. {32:15} Then they were filled with dread, and so they no longer responded, and they withdrew from their speechmaking. {32:16} Therefore, because I have waited and they have not been speaking, for they stood firm and did not respond at all, {32:17} I also will answer in my turn, and I will reveal my knowledge. {32:18} For I am full of words, and the feeling in my gut inspires me. {32:19} Yes, my stomach is like fermenting wine without a vent, which bursts the new containers. {32:20} I should speak, but I will also breathe a little; I will open my lips, and I will answer. {32:21} I will not esteem the reputation of a man, and I will not equate God with man. {32:22} For I do not know how long I will continue, and whether, after a while, my Maker might take me away.

{Job 33} {33:1} Therefore, hear my speeches, Job, and listen to all my words. {33:2} Behold, I have opened my mouth; let my tongue speak along with my throat. {33:3} My words are from my simple heart, and my lips will speak a pure judgment. {33:4} The Spirit of God made me, and the breath of the Almighty gave me life. {33:5} If you can, answer me, and oppose me to my face. {33:6} Behold, God has made me, just as he also has made you, and I, likewise, have been formed of the same clay. {33:7} So, truly, do not let my wonders terrify you, and do not let my eloquence be burdensome to you. {33:8} For you have spoken in my hearing, and I have heard the voice of your words, saying: {33:9} “I am clean and without sin; I am immaculate, and there is no iniquity in me. {33:10} Yet he has discovered blame in me, and so he has treated me like his enemy. {33:11} He has put my feet in fetters; he has kept watch over me. {33:12} Therefore, it is for this reason that you have not been justified. For I tell you that God is greater than man. {33:13} Do you contend against him because he has not responded to all of your words? {33:14} God speaks once, and he does not repeat the same thing a second time. {33:15} Through a dream in a vision of the night, when a deep sleep falls over men, and they are sleeping in their beds, {33:16} then, he opens the ears of men, and, educating them, he teaches discipline, {33:17} so that he may divert a man from the things that he is doing, and may free him from pride, {33:18} rescuing his soul from corruption and his life from passing away by the sword. {33:19} Likewise, he rebukes by sorrow in bed, and he causes all of his bones to become weak. {33:20} Bread becomes abominable to him in his life, and, to his soul, the meat which before he desired. {33:21} His body will waste away, and his bones, which had been covered, will be revealed. {33:22} His soul has approached corruption, and his life has drawn near to what is deadly. {33:23} If there were an angel speaking for him, one among thousands, to declare the fairness of the man, {33:24} he will have mercy on him, and he will say, “Free him, so that he will not descend to destruction. I have found a reason to be favorable to him. {33:25} His body is consumed by suffering. Let him return to the days of his youth.” {33:26} He will beg pardon from God, and he will be soothing to him; and he will look upon his face in jubilation, and he will restore his justice to him. {33:27} He will consider mankind, and he will say: “I have sinned and truly I have offended, yet I was not treated as I deserved.” {33:28} He has freed his soul from continuing into destruction, so that, in living, it may see the light. {33:29} Behold, all these things God works three times within each one, {33:30} so that he may revive their souls.
from corruption and enlighten them with the light of life. {33:31} Pay attention Job, and listen to me; and remain silent, while I speak. {33:32} Yet, if you have anything to say, answer me and speak, for I want you to be treated justly. {33:33} But if you do not have anything to say, then listen to me. Be quiet and I will teach you wisdom.

[Job 34] {34:1} After proclaiming these things, Eliu now had this to say: {34:2} May the wise hear my words, and may the educated listen to me. {34:3} For the ear examines words, and the mouth discerns foods by the taste. {34:4} Let us choose judgment for ourselves, and let us consider among ourselves what is best. {34:5} For Job has said: “I am just, yet God has subverted my judgment.” {34:6} For, within my judgment, there is a lie: my vehement barbs are without any sin.” {34:7} What man is there that is like Job, who drinks up derision as if it were water, {34:8} who accommodates those who work iniquity, and who walks with impious men? {34:9} For he has said, “Man will not please God, even if he should travel with him.” {34:10} Therefore, prudent men, hear me: impiety is far from God, and iniquity is far from the Almighty. {34:11} For he will restore to man his works, and according to the ways of each, he will repay them. {34:12} For truly, God will not condemn in vain, nor will the Almighty repudiate judgment. {34:13} What other is established over the earth? Or whom has he placed over the Almighty repudiate judgment. {34:14} What other is far from God, and iniquity is far from the Almighty. {34:15} For he will restore to man his works, and according to the ways of each, he will repay them. {34:16} For truly, God will not condemn in vain, nor will the Almighty repudiate judgment.

[Job 35] {35:1} After this, Eliu again spoke in this way: {35:2} Does it seem right to you in your thoughts, that you should say, “I am more just than God?” {35:3} For you said, “Having done what is right does not please you,” and, “How will it benefit you, if I sin?” {35:4} And so, I will respond to your words, and to your friends who are with you. {35:5} Look up towards heaven and consider; also, think about the sky, which is higher than you. {35:6} If you sin, how will it hurt him? And if your iniquities are multiplied, what will you do against him? {35:7} Furthermore, if you act justly, what will you give him, or what will he receive from your hand? {35:8} Your impiety may hurt a man who is like you, though your justice may help the son of the man. {35:9} Because of the multitude of false accusers, they will cry out; and they will lament because of the strong arm of the tyrants. {35:10} Yet he has not said: “Where is God, who made me, who has given songs in the night, {35:11} who teaches us in addition to the beasts of the earth, and who teaches us along with the birds of the air?” {35:12} There they will cry, and he will not heed them, because of the arrogance of the wicked. {35:13} Therefore, God does not hear in vain, and the Almighty will look into each and every case. {35:14} And so, when you say, “He does not examine,” be judged before him, but wait for him. {35:15} For, at the present time, he does not bring forth his fury, nor does he punish sin exceedingly. {35:16} Therefore, Job has opened his mouth in vain and has multiplied words without knowledge.

[Job 36] {36:1} Continuing in a similar manner, Eliu had this to say: {36:2} Bear with me for a little while and I will show you; for I have still more to say in favor of God. {36:3} I will review my knowledge from the beginning, and I will prove my Maker to be just. {36:4} For truly my words are without any falsehood and perfect knowledge will be proven to you. {36:5} God does not abandon the powerful, for he himself is also powerful. {36:6} But he does not save the impious, though he grants judgment to the poor. {36:7} He will not take his eyes away from the just, and he continually establishes kings on their throne, and they are exalted. {36:8} And, if they are in captivity, or are bound with the chains of poverty, {36:9} he will reveal to them their works, as well as their sinfulness, in that they were violent. {36:10} Likewise, he will open their ears to his correction, and he will speak to them, so that they may return from iniquity. {36:11} If they listen and obey, they will fill their days with goodness and complete their years in glory. {36:12} But if they will not listen, they will pass away by the sword and will be consumed by foolishness. {36:13} The false and the crafty provoke the wrath of God, yet they do not cry out to him when they are chained. {36:14} Their soul will die in a storm, and their life, among the unmanly. {36:15} He will rescue the poor from his anguish, and he will open his ear during tribulation. {36:16} Therefore, he will save you from the narrow mouth very widely, even though it has no foundation under it. Moreover, your respite at table will be full of fatness. {36:17} Your case has been judged like that of the impious; you will withdraw your plea and your judgment. {36:18} Therefore, do not let anger overwhelm you so that you oppress another; neither should you allow a multitude of gifts to influence you. {36:19} Lay down your greatness without distress, and put aside all of your power with courage. {36:20} Do not prolong the night, even if people rise on their behalf. {36:21} Be careful that you do not turn to iniquity; for, after your misery, you have begun to follow this. {36:22} Behold, God is exalted in his strength, and there is no one like him among the law-givers. {36:23} Who is able to investigate his ways? And who can say, “You have done iniquity,” to him? {36:24} Remember that you are ignorant of his work, yet men have sung its praises. {36:25} All men consider him; and each one ponders from a distance. {36:26} Behold, God is great, defeating our knowledge; the number of his years is inestimable. {36:27} He carries away the drops of rain, and he sends forth showers like a raging whirlpool; {36:28} they flow from the clouds that are woven above everything. {36:29} If he wills it, he extends the clouds as his tent {36:30} and shines with his light from above; likewise, he covers the oceans within his tent. {36:31} For he judges the people by these things, and he gives food to a multitude of mortals. {36:32} Within his hands, he hides the foundation under it. Moreover, your respite at table will be thickened suddenly into clouds, and the wind, passing by, will drive them away. {36:21} Riches arrive from the north, and fearful praise reaches out to God. {36:23} We are not worthy to be able to find him. Great in strength, great in judgment, great in justice: he is indescribable. {36:24} Therefore, men will fear him, and all those who seem to themselves to be wise, will not dare to contemplate him.

Job 37

{37:1} At this, my heart became frightened, and it has been moved from its place. {37:2} Pay close attention to the alarm of his voice and to the sound that proceeds from his mouth. {37:3} He beholds everything under the heavens, and his light reaches beyond the ends of the earth. {37:4} After this, a noise will sound; he will thunder with the voice of his greatness, and it will not be tracked down, yet his voice will be obeyed. {37:5} God will thunder with his voice miraculously, for he performs great and unsearchable things. {37:6} He commands the snow to descend on earth, and the winter rains, and the shower of his strength. {37:7} He signs the hand of all men, so that each one may know his works. {37:8} The beast will enter his hiding-place, and he will remain in his cave. {37:9} From the interior, a storm will come forth, and a cold winter from the north. {37:10} As God breathes out, frost forms, and the waters are poured forth very widely again. {37:11} Crops desire clouds, and the clouds scatter their light. {37:12} It shines all around, wherever the will of him that governs them will lead, to anywhere he will command, over the whole face of the earth, {37:13} whether in one tribe, or in his own region, or in whatever place of his mercy that he will order them to be found. {37:14} Listen to these things, Job. Stand up and consider the wonders of God. {37:15} Do you know when God ordered the rains, so as to show the light of his clouds? {37:16} Do you know the great paths of the clouds, and the perfect sciences? {37:17} Are not your garments hot, when the south wind blows across the land? {37:18} Perhaps you have made the heavens with him, which are very solid, as if they had been cast from brass. {37:19} Reveal to us what we should say to him, for, of course, we are wrapped in darkness. {37:20} Who will explain to him the things that I am saying? Even while a man is still speaking, he will be devoured. {37:21} Although they do not see the light, the air will be thickened suddenly into clouds, and the wind, passing by, will drive them away. {37:22} Riches arrive from the north, and fearful praise reaches out to God. {37:23} We are not worthy to be able to find him. Great in strength, great in judgment, great in justice: he is indescribable. {37:24} Therefore, men will fear him, and all those who seem to themselves to be wise, will not dare to contemplate him.

{38:1} But the Lord, responding to Job from a whirlwind, said: {38:2} Who is this that wraps sentences in unskilled words? {38:3} Gird your waist like a man. I will question you, and you must answer me. {38:4} Where were you, when I set the foundations of the earth? Tell me, if you have understanding. {38:5} Who set its measurements, if you know, or who stretched a line over it? {38:6} Upon what have its bases been grounded, and who set forth its cornerstone, {38:7} when the morning stars praised me together, and all the sons of God made a joyful noise? {38:8} Who enclosed the sea with doors, when it broke forth as if issuing from the womb, {38:9} when I stationed a cloud as its garment and wrapped it in a mist as if swaddling an infant? {38:10} I encircled it with my limits, and I positioned its bars and doors. {38:11} And I said: “This far you will approach, and you will proceeded no further, and here you will break your swelling waves.” {38:12} Did you, after your birth, command the birth of the sun and show the sunrise its place? {38:13} And did you hold the extremities of the earth, shaking them, and have you shaken the impious out of it? {38:14} The seal will be restored like clay, and it will remain in place like a garment. {38:15} From the impious, the light will be taken away, and the exalted arm will be broken. {38:16} Have you entered the depths of the sea, and have you taken a walk in the uttermost parts of the abyss? {38:17} Have the gates of death been opened to you, and have you seen the doors of darkness? {38:18} Have you considered the breadth of the earth? If you know all things, reveal them to me. {38:19} Which is the way that holds the light, and which is the place of darkness? {38:20} In this way, you might lead each thing to its final place, and understand the paths of its house. {38:21} So then, did you know when you were to be born? And did you know the number of your days? {38:22} Have you been admitted into the storehouses of the snows, and have you gazed upon the stockpile of the brimstone, {38:23} which I have prepared for the time of the enemy, for the day of the battle and the war? {38:24} In what way is the light scattered, and the heat distributed, over the earth? {38:25} Who gave a course to the rainstorms, and a path to the resounding thunder, {38:26} so that it would rain on the earth far from man, in the wilderness where no mortal lingers, {38:27} so that it would fill impassable and desolate places, and would bring forth green plants? {38:28} Who is the father of rain, or who conceived the drops of dew? {38:29} From whose womb did the ice proceed, and who created the frost from the air? {38:30} The waters are hardened to become like stone, and the surface of the abyss freezes over. {38:31} Will you have the strength to join together the sparkling stars of the Pleiades, or are you able to disperse the circling of Arcturus? {38:32} Can you bring forth the morning star, in its time, and make the evening star rise over the sons of the earth? [38:33] Do you know the order of heaven, and can you explain its rules here on the earth? [38:34] Can you lift up your voice to the clouds, so that an onslaught of waters will cover you? [38:35] Can you send forth lightning bolts, and will they go, and on returning, say to you: “Here we are?” [38:36] Who placed discernment in the guts of man, or who gave the rooster intelligence? [38:37] Who can describe the rules of the heavens, or who can put to rest the harmony of heaven? [38:38] When was the dust cast to become the earth, and when were its clods fastened together? [38:39] Will you seize prey for the lioness, and will you sustain the lives of her young, [38:40] as they rest in their dens or lie in wait in pits? [38:41] Who provides the raven with its meal, when her chicks cry out to God, as they wander around because they have no food?

[Job 39] [39:1] Do you know at what time the wild goats have given birth among the rocks, or do you observe the deer when they go into labor? [39:2] Have you numbered the months since their conception, and do you know at what time they gave birth? [39:3] They bend themselves for their offspring, and they give birth, and they emit roars. [39:4] Their young are weaned and go out to feed; they depart and do not return to them. [39:5] Who has set the wild ass free, and who has released his bonds? [39:6] I have given a house in solitude to him, and his tabernacle is in the salted land. [39:7] He despises the crowded city; he does not pay attention to the bellow of the tax collector. [39:8] He looks around the mountains of his pasture, and he searches everywhere for green plants. [39:9] Will the rhinoceros be willing to serve you, and will he remain in your stall? [39:10] Can you detain the rhinoceros with your harness to plough for you, and will he loosen the soil of the furrows behind you? [39:11] Will you put your faith in his great strength, and delegate your labors to him? [39:12] Will you trust him to return to you the seed, and to gather it on your drying floor? [39:13] The wing of the ostrich is like the wings of the heron, and of the hawk. [39:14] When she leaves eggs behind in the earth, will you perhaps warm them in the dust? [39:15] She forgets that feet may trample them, or that the beasts of the field may shatter them. [39:16] She is hardened against her young, as if they were not hers; she has labored in vain, with no fear compelling her. [39:17] For God has deprived her of wisdom; neither has he given her understanding. [39:18] Yet, when the time is right, she raises her wings on high; she ridicules the horse and his rider. [39:19] Will you supply strength to the horse, or envelope his throat with neighing? [39:20] Will you alarm him as the locusts do? His panic is revealed by the display of his nostrils. [39:21] He digs at the earth with his hoof; he jumps around boldly; he advances to meet armed men. [39:22] He despises fear; he does not turn away from the sword. [39:23] Above him, the quiver rattles, the spear and the shield shake. [39:24] Seething and raging, he drinks up the earth; neither does he pause when the blast of the trumpet sounds. [39:25] When he hears the bugle, he says, “Ha!” He smells the battle from a distance, the exhoration of the officers, and the battle cry of the soldiers. [39:26] Does the hawk grow feathers by means of your wisdom, spreading her wings towards the south? [39:27] Will the eagle lift herself up at your command and make her nest in steep places? [39:28] She dwells among the rocks, and she lingers among broken boulders and inaccessible cliffs. [39:29] From there, she looks for food, and her eyes catch sight of it from far away. [39:30] Her young will drink blood, and wherever the carcass will be, she is there immediately. [39:31] And the Lord continued, and he said to Job: [39:32] Will he who contends with God be so easily silenced? Certainly, he who argues with God must also respond to him. [39:33] Then Job answered the Lord, saying: [39:34] What could I possibly answer, since I have been speaking thoughtlessly? I will place my hand over my mouth. [39:35] One thing I have spoken, which I wish I had not said; and another, to which I will add no more.

[Job 40] [40:1] But the Lord, answering Job out of the whirlwind, said: [40:2] Gird your waist like a man. I will question you, and you must answer me. [40:3] Will you make my judgment null and void; and will you condemn me so that you may be justified? [40:4] And do you have an arm like God, or a voice like thunder? [40:5] Envelop yourself with splendor, and raise yourself up on high, and be glorious, and put on splendid garments. [40:6] Scatter the arrogant with your wrath, and, when you see all the arrogant, humble them. [40:7] Look down upon each of the arrogant and confound them, and crush the impious in their place. [40:8] Hide them in the dust together and plunge their faces into the pit. [40:9] Then I will confess that your right hand is able to save you. [40:10] Behold, the behemoth, whom I created along with you, eats hay like an ox. [40:11] His strength is in his lower back, and his power is in the center of his abdomen. [40:12] He draws up his tail like a cedar; the sinews of his thighs have been drawn together. [40:13] His bones are like pipes of brass; his cartilage is like plates of iron. [40:14] He is the beginning of the ways of God, who made him; he will use him as his sword. [40:15] The mountains bring forth grass for him; all the beasts of the field will play there. [40:16] He sleeps in the shadows, under the cover of branches, and in moist places. [40:17] The shadows cover his shadow; the willows of the brook will encircle him. [40:18] Behold, he will drink a river and not be amazed, and he has confidence that the Jordan could flow into his mouth. [40:19] He will seize him through his eyes, as if with a hook, and he will bore through his nostrils, as if with stakes. [40:20] Can you draw out the leviathan with a hook, and can you bind his tongue with a cord? [40:21] Can you place a ring in his nose, or bore through his jaw with an arm band? [40:22] Will he offer many prayers to you, or speak to you quietly? [40:23] Will he form a covenant with you, and will you accept him as a servant forever? [40:24] Will you play with him as with a bird, or tether him for your handmaids? [40:25] Will your friends cut him into pieces, will dealers distribute him? [40:26] Will you fill up bags with his hide, and let his head be used as a home for fishes? [40:27] Place your hand upon him; remember the battle and speak no more. [40:28] Behold, his hope will fail him, and in the sight of all, he will be thrown down.

[Job 41] [41:1] I will not rouse him, as the cruel would do, for who is able to withstand my countenance? [41:2] Who has given to me beforehand, so that I should repay him? All things that are under heaven are mine. [41:3] I will not spare him, nor his powerful words and counterfeit attempts at supplication. {41:4} Who can reveal the beauty of his garment? And who can enter the middle of his mouth? {41:5} Who can open the doors of his face? I gave fear to the circle of his teeth. {41:6} His body is like shields fused together, like dense scales pressed over one another. {41:7} One is joined to another, and not even air can pass between them. {41:8} They adhere to one another, and they hold themselves in place and will not be separated. {41:9} His sneezing has the brilliance of fire, and his eyes are like the eyelids of the morning. {41:10} Lamps proceed from his mouth, like torches of fire burning brightly. {41:11} Smoke passes out of his nostrils, like a pot that is heated and boiling. {41:12} His breath causes coal to burn, and a flame comes forth from his mouth. {41:13} Strength dwells in his neck, and destitution goes before his presence. {41:14} The parts of his body work in harmony together. He will send lightning bolts against him, and they will not be carried to another place. {41:15} His heart will be as hard as a stone and as dense as a blacksmith's anvil. {41:16} When he will be raised up, the angels will be afraid, and, because they are terrified, they will purify themselves. {41:17} When a sword catches up with him, it will not be able to settle in, nor a spear, nor a breastplate. {41:18} For he will consider iron as if it were chaff, and brass as if it were rotten wood. {41:19} The archer will not cause him to flee; the stones of the sling have been turned into stubble for him. {41:20} He will treat the hammer as if it were stubble, and he will ridicule those who brandish the spear. {41:21} The beams of the sun will be under him, and he will dispense gold to them as if it were clay. {41:22} He will make the depths of the sea boil like a pot, and he will set it to bubble just as ointments do. {41:23} A path will shine after him; he will esteem the abyss as if it were weakening with age. {41:24} There is no power on the earth that is being compared to him, who has been made so that he fears no one. {41:25} He sees every son of arrogance, who has been speaking foolishly, about things whose measure is hidden from you. {42:1} So, who is it that has remained in the way of the just, and has not prevailed in the council of pestilence? {42:2} I know that you are able to do all things, and that no thoughts are hidden from you. {42:3} Therefore, I have been speaking foolishly, about things whose measure exceeds my knowledge. {42:4} Listen, and I will speak. I will question you, and you may answer me. {42:5} By paying attention with the ear, I have heard you, but now my eye sees you. {42:6} Therefore, I find myself reprehensible, and I will do penance in embers and ashes. {42:7} But after the Lord had finished speaking these words to Job, he said to Eliphaz the Themanite: My wrath has been kindled against you, and against your two friends, because you have not been speaking correctly in my eyes, as my servant Job has done. {42:8} Therefore, there have been seven bulls and seven rams brought to you, and go to my servant Job, and offer these as a holocaust for yourselves. But also, my servant Job will pray for you; I will accept his face, so that foolishness will not be imputed to you. For you have not been speaking correctly about me, as my servant Job has done. {42:9} So Eliphaz the Themanite, and Baldad the Suhite, and Zophar the Naamathite departed, and they did just as the Lord had spoken to them, and the Lord accepted the face of Job. {42:10} Likewise, the Lord was moved by the repentance of Job, when he prayed for his friends. And the Lord gave to Job twice as much as he had before. {42:11} Yet all his brethren came to him, and all his sisters, and everyone who had known him before, and they ate bread with him in his house. They also shook their heads over him and comforted him, because of all the bad things that God had inflicted on him. And each one of them gave him one female sheep, and one earring of gold. {42:12} And the Lord blessed the latter end of Job even more than his beginning. And he had fourteen thousand sheep, and six thousand camels, and a thousand pairs of oxen, and a thousand she-donkeys. {42:13} And he had seven sons and three daughters. {42:14} And he called the name of one, Daylight, and the name of the second, Cinnamon, and the name of the third, Horn of Cosmetics. {42:15} And, in the whole world, there were not found women so beautiful as the daughters of Job. And so their father gave them an inheritance along with their brothers. {42:16} But Job lived long after these events, for a hundred and forty years, and he saw his children, and his children's children, all the way to the fourth generation, and he died an old man and full of days.

 The Book of Psalms **

[Psalms 1] {1:1} Blessed is the man who has not followed the counsel of the impious, and has not remained in the way of sinners, and has not sat in the chair of pestilence. {1:2} But his will is with the law of the Lord, and he will meditate on his law, day and night. {1:3} And he will be like a tree that has been planted beside running waters, which will provide its fruit in its time, and its leaf will not fall away, and all things whatsoever that he does will prosper. {1:4} Not so the impious, not so. For they are like the dust that the wind casts along the face of the earth. {1:5} Therefore, the impious will not prevail again in judgment, nor sinners in the council of the just. {1:6} For the Lord knows the way of the just. And the path of the impious will pass away.

[Psalms 2] {2:1} Why have the Gentiles been seething, and why have the people been pondering nonsense? {2:2} The kings of the earth have stood up, and the leaders have joined together as one, against the Lord and against his Christ: {2:3} “Let us shatter their chains and cast their yoke away from us.” {2:4} He who dwells in heaven will ridicule them, and the Lord will mock them. {2:5} Then will he speak to them in his anger and trouble them with his fury. {2:6} Yet I have been appointed king by him over Zion, his holy mountain, preaching his precepts. {2:7} The Lord has said to me: You are my son, this day have I begotten you. {2:8} Ask of me and I will give to you: the Gentiles for your inheritance, and the ends of the earth for your possession. {2:9} You will rule them with an iron rod, and you will shatter them like a potter's vessel. {2:10} And now, O kings, understand. Receive instruction, you who judge the earth. {2:11} Serve the Lord in fear, and exult in him with trembling. {2:12} Embrace discipline, lest at any time the Lord might become angry, and you would perish from the way of the just. {2:13} Though his wrath can flare up in a short time, blessed are all those who trust in him.

trouble me been multiplied? Many rise up against me.
{3:3} Many say to my soul, “There is no salvation for him in his God.” {3:4} But you, Lord, are my supporter, my glory, and the one who raises up my head. {3:5} I have cried out to the Lord with my voice, and he has heard me from his holy mountain. {3:6} I have slept, and I have been stupefied. But I awakened because the Lord has taken me up. {3:7} I will not fear the thousands of people surrounding me. Rise up, Lord. Save me, my God.
{3:8} For you have struck all those who oppose me without cause. You have broken the teeth of sinners. {3:9} Salvation is of the Lord, and your blessing is upon your people.

[Psalm 4] {4:1} In parts according to verses. A Psalm of David. {4:2} When I called upon him, the God of my justice heeded me. In tribulation, you have enlarged me. Have mercy on me, and heed my prayer. {4:3} Sons of men, how long will you be dull in heart, so that whatever you love is in vain, and whatever you seek is false? {4:4} And know this: the Lord has made wondrous his holy one. The Lord will heed me when I cry out to him. {4:5} Be angry, and do not be willing to sin. The things that you say in your hearts: be sorry for them on your beds. {4:6} Offer the sacrifice of justice, and hope in the Lord. Many say, “Who reveals to us what is good?” {4:7} The light of your countenance, Lord, has been sealed upon us. You have given joy to my heart. {4:8} By the fruit of their grain, wine, and oil, they have been multiplied. {4:9} In peace itself, I will sleep and I will rest. {4:10} For you, O Lord, have established me singularly in hope.

[Psalm 5] {5:1} Unto the end. For her who pursues the inheritance. A Psalm of David. {5:2} O Lord, listen closely to my words. Understand my outcry. {5:3} Attend to the voice of my prayer, my King and my God. {5:4} For to you, I will pray. In the morning, Lord, you will hear my voice. {5:5} In the morning, I will stand before you, and I will see. For you are not a God who wills iniquity. {5:6} And the malicious will not dwell close to you, nor will the unjust endure before your eyes. {5:7} You hate all who work iniquity. You will destroy all who speak a lie. The bloody and deceitful man, the Lord will abominate. {5:8} But I am in the multitude of your mercy. I will enter your house. I will show adoration toward your holy temple, in your fear. {5:9} Lord, lead me in your justice. Because of my enemies, direct my way in your sight. {5:10} For there is no truth in their mouth: their heart is vain. {5:11} Their throat is an open sepulcher. They have acted deceitfully with their tongues. Judge them, O God. Let them fall by their own intentions: according to the multitude of their impiety, expel them. For they have provoked you, O Lord. {5:12} But let all those who hope in you rejoice. They will exult in eternity, and you will dwell in them. And all those who love your name will glory in you. {5:13} For you will bless the just. You have crowned us, O Lord, as if with a shield of your good will.

[Psalm 6] {6:1} In parts according to verses. A Psalm of David. For the octave. {6:2} O Lord, do not rebuke me in your fury, nor chastise me in your anger. {6:3} Have mercy on me, Lord, for I am weak. Heal me, Lord, for my bones have become disturbed, {6:4} and my soul has been very troubled. But as for you, Lord, when? {6:5} Turn to me, Lord, and rescue my soul. Save me because of your mercy. {6:6} For there is no one in death who would be mindful of you. And who will confess to you in Hell? {6:7} I have labored in my groaning. Every night, with my tears, I will wash my bed and drench my blanket. {6:8} My eye has been troubled by rage. I have grown old among all my enemies. {6:9} Scatter before me, all you who work iniquity, for the Lord has heard the voice of my weeping. {6:10} The Lord has heard my supplication. The Lord has accepted my prayer. {6:11} Let all my enemies be ashamed and together be greatly troubled. May they be converted and become ashamed very quickly.

[Psalm 7] {7:1} A Psalm of David, which he sang to the Lord because of the words of Cush, the son of Jemini. {7:2} O Lord, my God, in you I have hoped. Save me from all those who persecute me, and free me: {7:3} lest at any time, like a lion, he might seize my soul, while there is no one to redeem me, nor any who can save. {7:4} O Lord, my God, if there is iniquity in my hands, if I have done this: {7:5} if I have repaid those who rendered evils to me, may I deservedly fall away empty before my enemies: {7:6} let the enemy pursue my soul, and take hold of it, and trample my life into the earth, and drag down my glory into the dust. {7:7} Rise up, Lord, in your anger. And be exalted to the borders of my enemies. And rise up, O Lord my God, according to the precept that you commanded, {7:8} and a congregation of people will surround you. And, because of this, return on high. {7:9} The Lord judges the people. Judge me, O Lord, according to my justice and according to my innocence within me. {7:10} The wickedness of sinners will be consumed, and you will direct the just: the examiner of hearts and temperaments is God. {7:11} Just is my help from the Lord, who saves the upright of heart. {7:12} God is a just judge, strong and patient. How could he be angry throughout every day? {7:13} Unless you will be converted, he will brandish his sword. He has extended his bow and made it ready. {7:14} And with it, he has prepared instruments of death. He has produced his arrows for those on fire. {7:15} Behold him who has given birth to injustice: he has conceived sorrow and has begotten iniquity. {7:16} He has opened a pit and enlarged it. And he has fallen into the hole that he made. {7:17} His sorrow will be turned upon his own head, and his iniquity will descend upon his highest point. {7:18} I will confess to the Lord according to his justice, and I will sing a psalm to the name of the Lord Most High.

[Psalm 8] {8:1} Unto the end. For the oil and wine presses. A Psalm of David. {8:2} O Lord, our Lord, how admirable is your name throughout all the earth! For your magnificence is elevated above the heavens. {8:3} Out of the mouths of babes and infants, you have perfected praise, because of your enemies, so that you may destroy the enemy and the revenger. {8:4} For I will behold your heavens, the works of your fingers: the moon and the stars, which you have founded. {8:5} What is man, that you are mindful of him, or the son of man, that you visit him? {8:6} You reduced him to a little less than the Angels; you have crowned him with glory and honor, {8:7} and you have set him over the works of your hands. {8:8} You have subjected all things under his feet, all sheep and oxen, and in addition: the beasts of the field, {8:9} the birds of the air, and the fish of the sea, which pass through the paths of the sea. {8:10} O Lord, our Lord, how admirable is your name throughout all the earth!

[Psalm 9] (Psalm 9 - 10) {9:1} Unto the end. For the secrets of the Son. A Psalm of David. {9:2} I will confess to you, Lord, with my whole heart. I will recount all your wonders. {9:3} I will rejoice and exult in you. I will sing a psalm to your name, O Most High. {9:4} For my enemy will be turned back. They will be weakened and perish before your face. {9:5} For you have accomplished my judgment and my cause. You have sat upon the throne that judges justice. {9:6} You have rebuked the Gentiles, and the impious one has perished. You have deleted their name in eternity and for all generations. {9:7} The spears of the enemy have failed in the end, and their cities, you have destroyed. Their memory has perished with a loud noise. {9:8} But the Lord remains in eternity. He has prepared his throne in judgment. {9:9} And he will judge the whole world in equity. He will judge the people in justice. {9:10} And the Lord has become a refuge for the poor, a helper in opportunity, in tribulation. {9:11} And may they hope in you, who know your name. For you have not abandoned those seeking you, Lord. {9:12} Sing a psalm to the Lord, who dwells in Zion. Announce his study among the Gentiles. {9:13} Because of those who yearned for their blood, he has remembered them. He has not forgotten the cry of the poor. {9:14} Have mercy on me, Lord. See my humiliation from my enemies. {9:15} You lift me up from the gates of death, so that I may announce all your praises at the gates of the daughter of Zion. {9:16} I will exult in your salvation. The Gentiles have become trapped in the ruin that they made. Their foot has been caught in the same snare that they themselves had hidden. {9:17} The Lord will be recognized when making judgments. The sinner has been caught in the works of his own hands. {9:18} The sinners will be turned into Hell: all the Gentiles who have forgotten God. {9:19} For the poor will not be forgotten in the end. The patience of the poor will not perish in the end. {9:20} Rise up, Lord: do not let man be strengthened. Let the Gentiles be judged in your sight. {9:21} O Lord, establish a lawgiver over them, so that the Gentiles may know that they are only men.

{9:22} So then, why, O Lord, have you withdrawn far away? Why have you overlooked us in opportunity, in tribulation? {9:23} While the impious is arrogant, the poor is enflamed. They are held by the counsels that they devise. {9:24} For the sinner is praised by the desires of his soul, and the iniquitous is blessed. {9:25} The sinner has provoked the Lord; according to the multitude of his wrath, he will not seek him. {9:26} God is not before his sight. His ways are stained at all times. Your judgments are removed from his face. He will be master of all his enemies. {9:27} For he has said in his heart, “I will not be disturbed: from generation to generation without evil.” {9:28} His mouth is full of curses, and bitterness, and deceit. Under his tongue are hardship and sorrow. {9:29} He sits in ambush, with resources in hidden places, so that he may execute the innocent. {9:30} His eyes catch sight of the poor. He lies in ambush, in hiding like a lion in his den. He lies in ambush, so that he may seize the poor, to seize the poor as he draws him in. {9:31} With his snare, he will bring him down. He will crouch down and pounce, when he has power over the poor. {9:32} For he has said in his heart, “God has forgotten, he has turned away his face, lest he see to the end.” {9:33} O Lord God, rise up. Let your hand be exalted. Do not forget the poor. {9:34} How has the impious one provoked God? For he has said in his heart, “He will not inquire.” {9:35} You do see, for you examine hardship and sorrow, so that you may deliver them into your hands. The poor one has been abandoned to you. You will be a helper to the orphan. {9:36} Break the arm of the sinner and the malicious. His sin will be sought, and it will not be found. {9:37} The Lord shall reign in eternity, even forever and ever. You will perish the Gentiles from his land. {9:38} The Lord has heeded the desire of the poor. Your ear has listened to the preparation of their heart, {9:39} so as to judge for the orphan and the humble, so that man may no longer presume to magnify himself upon the earth.

[Psalm 10] (Psalm 11) {10:1} Unto the end. A Psalm of David. {10:2} I trust in the Lord. How can you say to my soul, “Sojourn to the mountain, like a sparrow.” {10:3} For behold, the sinners have bent their bow. They have prepared their arrows in the quiver, so as to shoot arrows in the dark at the upright of heart. {10:4} For they have destroyed the things that you have completed. But what has the just one done? {10:5} The Lord is in his holy temple. The Lord’s throne is in heaven. His eyes look upon the poor. His eyelids countenance has beheld equity.

[Psalm 11] (Psalm 12) {11:1} Unto the end. For the octave. A Psalm of David. {11:2} Save me, O Lord, because holiness has passed away, because truths have been diminished, before the sons of men. {11:3} They have been speaking emptiness, each one to his neighbor; they have been speaking with deceitful lips and a duplicitious heart. {11:4} May the Lord scatter all deceitful lips, along with the tongue that speaks malice. {11:5} They have said: “We will magnify our tongue; our lips belong to us. What is Lord to us?” {11:6} Because of the misery of the destitute and the groaning of the poor, now I will arise, says the Lord. I will place him in safety. I will act faithfully toward him. {11:7} The eloquence of the Lord is pure eloquence, silver tested by fire, purged from the earth, refined seven times. {11:8} You, O Lord, will preserve us, and you will guard us from this generation into eternity. {11:9} The impious wander aimlessly. According to your loftiness, you have multiplied the sons of men.

[Psalm 12] (Psalm 13) {12:1} Unto the end. A Psalm of David. How long, O Lord? Will you forget me until the end? How long will you turn your face away from me? {12:2} How long can I take counsel in my soul, sorrowing in my heart throughout the day? {12:3} How long will my enemy be exalted over me? {12:4} Look upon me and listen to me, O Lord my God. Enlighten my eyes, lest I fall asleep forever in death, {12:5} lest at any time my enemy may say, “I have prevailed against him.” Those who trouble me will exult, if I have been disturbed. {12:6} But I have hoped in your mercy. My heart will exult in your salvation. I will sing to the Lord, who assigns good things to me. And I will sing psalms to the name of the Lord Most High.

[Psalm 13] (Psalm 14) \{13:1\} Unto the end. A Psalm of David. The fool has said in his heart, “There is no God.” They were corrupted, and they have become abominable in their studies. There is no one who does good; there is not even one. \{13:2\} The Lord has looked down from heaven upon the sons of men, to see if there were any who were considering or seeking God. \{13:3\} They have all gone astray; together they have become useless. There is no one who does good; there is not even one. \{13:4\} Their throat is an open sepulcher. With their tongues, they have been acting deceitfully; the venom of asps is under their lips. Their mouth is full of curses and bitterness. \{13:5\} Their feet are swift to shed blood. Grief and unhappiness are in their ways; and the way of peace, they have not known. \{13:6\} There is no fear of God before their eyes. \{13:7\} Will they never learn: all those who work iniquity, who devour my people like a meal of bread? \{13:8\} They have not called upon the Lord. There, they have trembled in fear, where there was no fear. \{13:9\} For the Lord is with the just generation. You have confounded the counsel of the needy because the Lord is his hope. \{13:10\} Who will grant the salvation of Israel from Zion? When the Lord turns away the captivity of his people, Jacob will exult, and Israel will rejoice.

[Psalm 14] (Psalm 15) \{14:1\} A Psalm of David. O Lord, who will dwell in your tabernacle? Or who will rest on your holy mountain? \{14:2\} He who walks without blemish and who works justice. \{14:3\} He who speaks the truth in his heart, who has not acted deceitfully with his tongue, and has not done evil to his neighbor, and has not taken up a reproach against his neighbors. \{14:4\} In his sight, the malicious one has been reduced to nothing, but he glorifies those who fear the Lord. He who swears to his neighbor and does not deceive. \{14:5\} He who has not given his money in usury, nor accepted bribes against the innocent. He who does these things will be undisturbed for eternity.

[Psalm 15] (Psalm 16) \{15:1\} The inscription of a title: of David himself. Preserve me, O Lord, because I have hoped in you. \{15:2\} I have said to the Lord: “You are my God, so you have no need of my goodness.” \{15:3\} As for the saints, who are in his land: he has made all my desires wonderful in them. \{15:4\} Their infirmities have been multiplied; after this, they acted more quickly. I will not gather for their convolutions of blood, nor will I remember their names with my lips. \{15:5\} The Lord is the portion of my inheritance and my cup. It is you who will restore my inheritance to me. \{15:6\} The lots have fallen upon me with clarity. And, indeed, my inheritance has been very clear to me. \{15:7\} I will bless the Lord, who has bestowed understanding upon me. Moreover, my temperament has also corrected me, even through the night. \{15:8\} I have made provision for the Lord always in my sight. For he is at my right hand, so that I may not be disturbed. \{15:9\} Because of this, my heart has been joyful, and my tongue has exulted. Moreover, even my body will rest in hope. \{15:10\} For you will not abandon my soul to Hell, nor will you allow your holy one to see corruption. \{15:11\} You have made known to me the ways of life; you will fill me with joy by your countenance. At your right hand are delights, even to the end.

[Psalm 16] (Psalm 17) \{16:1\} A Prayer of David. Lord, listen to my justice, attend to my supplication. Pay attention to my prayer, which is not from deceitful lips. \{16:2\} Let my judgment proceed from your presence. Let your eyes behold fairness. \{16:3\} You have tested my heart and visited it by night. You have examined me by fire, and iniquity has not been found in me. \{16:4\} Therefore, may my mouth not speak the works of men. I have kept to difficult ways because of the words of your lips. \{16:5\} Perfect my steps in your paths, so that my footsteps may not be disturbed. \{16:6\} I have cried out because you, O God, have listened to me. Incline your ear to me and heed my words. \{16:7\} Make your mercies wonderful, for you save those who hope in you. \{16:8\} From those who resist your right hand, preserve me like the pupil of your eye. Protect me under the shadow of your wings, \{16:9\} from the face of the impious who have afflicted me. My enemies have surrounded my soul. \{16:10\} They have conceived their fatness; their mouth has been speaking arrogantly. \{16:11\} They have cast me out, and now they have surrounded me. They have cast their eyes down to the earth. \{16:12\} They have taken me, like a lion ready for the prey, and like a young lion dwelling in hiding. \{16:13\} Rise up, O Lord, arrive before him and displace him. Deliver my soul from the impious one: your spear from the enemies of your hand. \{16:14\} Lord, divide them from the few of the earth in their life. Their gut has been filled from your hidden stores. They have been filled with sons, and they have bequeathed to their little ones the remainder. \{16:15\} But as for me, I will appear before your sight in justice. I will be satisfied when your glory appears.

[Psalm 17] (Psalm 18) \{17:1\} Unto the end. For David, the servant of the Lord, who spoke the words of this canticle to the Lord, in the day that the Lord delivered him from the hand of all his enemies and from the hand of Saul. And he said: \{17:2\} I will love you, O Lord my strength. \{17:3\} The Lord is my firmament, my refuge, and my liberator. My God is my helper, and I hope in him: my protector, and the horn of my salvation, and my support. \{17:4\} Praising, I will call upon the Lord. And I will be saved from my enemies. \{17:5\} The sorrows of death surrounded me, and the torrents of iniquity dismayed me. \{17:6\} The sorrows of Hell encompassed me, and the snares of death intercepted me. \{17:7\} In my tribulation, I called upon the Lord, and I cried out to my God. And he listened to my voice from his holy temple. And my cry in his presence entered into his ears. \{17:8\} The earth was shaken, and it trembled. The foundations of the mountains were disturbed, and they were shaken, because he was angry with them. \{17:9\} A smoke ascended by his wrath, and a fire flared up from his face: coals were kindled by it. \{17:10\} He bent the heavens, and a fire flared up from his face: coals were kindled by it. \{17:11\} He bent the heavens, and a fire flared up from his face: coals were kindled by it. \{17:12\} He bent the heavens, and he ascended upon the cherubim, and he flew: he flew upon the feathers of the winds. \{17:13\} And he set darkness as his hiding place, with his tabernacle all around him: dark waters in the clouds of the air. \{17:14\} At the brightness that was before his sight, the clouds crossed by, with hail and coals of fire. \{17:14\} And the Lord thundered from heaven, and the Most High uttered his voice: hail and and may the God of my salvation be exalted: {17:48} O God, their paths. {17:47} The Lord lives, and blessed is my God, have grown weak with time, and they have wavered from their ears heard, they were obedient to me. {17:46} The sons of foreigners have been deceitful to me, the sons of foreigners have given the back of my enemies to me, and you have subdued under me. {17:41} And you have given me the arms like a bow of brass. {17:36} And you have given the feet of deer, and who stations me upon the heights. {17:34} It is he who has perfected my feet, like immaculate. {17:32} For who is God, except our God? {17:30} For in you, I will be delivered from temptation; and with my God, I will climb over a wall. {17:31} As for my God, his way is undefiled. The eloquence of the Lord has been examined by fire. He is the protector of all who hope in him. {17:29} For you illuminate my lamp, O Lord. My God, enlighten my meditation of my heart, in your sight, forever, O Lord, my meditation. {17:28} For you will save the humble people, but you will bring down the eyes of the arrogant. {17:27} And the Lord will reward me according to my justice, and he will repay me according to the purity of my hands. {17:22} For I have preserved the ways of the Lord, and I have not behaved impiously before my God. {17:21} And the Lord will reward me according to my justice and according to the purity of my hands before his eyes. {17:20} With the holy, you will be holy, and with the innocent, you will be innocent, and with the elect, you will be elect, and with the perverse, you will be perverse. {17:18} He rescued me from my strongest enemies, and from those who hated me. For they had been too strong for me. {17:19} They intercepted me in the day of my affliction, and the Lord became my protector. {17:20} And he led me out, into a wide place. He accomplished my salvation, because he willed me.

[Psalm 18] (Psalm 19) {18:1} Unto the end. A Psalm of David. {18:2} The heavens describe the glory of God, and the firmament announces the work of his hands. {18:3} Day proclaims the word to day, and night to night imparts knowledge. {18:4} There are no speeches or conversations, where their voices are not being heard. {18:5} Their sound has gone forth through all the earth, and their words to the ends of the world. {18:6} He has placed his tabernacle in the sun, and he is like a bridegroom coming out of his bedroom. He has exulted like a giant running along the way; {18:7} his departure is from the summit of heaven. And his course reaches all the way to its summit. Neither is there anyone who can hide himself from his heat. {18:8} The law of the Lord is immaculate, converting souls. The testimony of the Lord is faithful, providing wisdom to little ones. {18:9} The justice of the Lord is right, rejoicing hearts. The precepts of the Lord are brilliant, enlightening the eyes. {18:10} The fear of the Lord is holy, enduring for all generations. The judgments of the Lord are true, justified in themselves: {18:11} desirable beyond gold and many precious stones, and sweeter than honey and the honeycomb. {18:12} For, indeed, your servant keeps them, and in keeping them, there are many rewards. {18:13} Who can understand transgression? From my hidden faults, cleanse me, O Lord, {18:14} and from those of others, spare your servant. If they will have no dominion over me, then I will be immaculate, and I will be cleansed from the greatest transgression. {18:15} And the eloquence of my mouth will be so as to please, along with the meditation of my heart, in your sight, forever, O Lord, my helper and my redeemer.
ahead of him with blessings of sweetness. You have placed a crown of precious stones on his head. {20:5} He petitioned you for life, and you have granted him length of days, in the present time, and forever and ever. {20:6} Great is his glory in your salvation. Glory and great adornment, you will lay upon him. {20:7} For you will give him as a blessing forever and ever. You will make him like an oven of fire, in the time of your presence. The Lord will stir them up with his wrath, and fire will devour them. {20:11} You will destroy their fruit from the earth and their offspring from the sons of men. {20:12} For they have turned evils upon you; they have devised plans, which they have not been able to accomplish. {20:13} For you will make them turn their back; with your remnants, you will prepare their countenance. {20:14} Be exalted, Lord, by your own power. We will play music and sing psalms to your virtues.

[Psalm 21] (Psalm 22) {21:1} Unto the end. For the tasks of early morning. A Psalm of David. {21:2} O God, my God, look upon me. Why have you forsaken me? Far from my salvation are the words of my offenses. {21:3} My God, I will cry out by day, and you will not heed, and by night, and it will not be foolishness for me. {21:4} But you dwell in holiness, O Praise of Israel. {21:5} In you, our fathers have hoped. They hoped, and you freed them. {21:6} They cried out by day, and you will not heed, and by night, and it will not be foolishness for me. {21:7} But you, O Lord, do not take your help far from me; be attentive to my defense. {21:8} Because the king hopes in the Lord, and in the mercy of the Most High, he will not be disturbed. {21:9} May your hand be found by all your enemies. May your right hand discover all those who hate you. {21:10} You will make them like an oven of fire, in the time of your presence. The Lord will stir them up with his wrath, and fire will devour them. {21:11} You will destroy their fruit from the earth and their offspring from the sons of men. {21:12} For they have turned evils upon you; they have devised plans, which they have not been able to accomplish. {21:13} For you will make them turn their back; with your remnants, you will prepare their countenance.

[Psalm 22] (Psalm 23) {22:1} A Psalm of David. The Lord directs me, and nothing will be lacking to me. {22:2} He has settled me here, in a place of pasture. He has led me out to the water of refreshment. {22:3} He has converted my soul. He has led me away on the paths of justice, for the sake of his name. {22:4} For, even if I should walk in the midst of the shadow of death, I will fear no evils. For you are with me. Your rod and your staff, they have given me consolation. {22:5} You have prepared a table in my sight, opposite those who trouble me. You have anointed my head with oil, and my cup, which inebriates me, how brilliant it is! {22:6} And your mercy will follow me all the days of my life, and so may I dwell in the house of the Lord for length of days.

[Psalm 23] (Psalm 24) {23:1} For the First Sabbath. A Psalm of David. The earth and all its fullness belong to the Lord: the whole world and all that dwells in it. {23:2} For he has founded it upon the seas, and he has prepared it upon the rivers. {23:3} Who will ascend to the mountain of the Lord? And who will stand in his holy place? He has neither spurned nor despised the pleas of Jacob, glorify him. {23:5} May all the offspring of Israel fear him. For he has neither spurned nor despised the pleas of the poor. Neither has he turned his face away from me. And when I cried out to him, he heeded me. {23:6} My praise is with you, within a great church. I will pay my vows in the sight of those who fear him. {23:7} The poor will eat and be satisfied, and those who yearn for the Lord will praise him. Their hearts will live forever and ever. {23:8} All the ends of the earth will remember, and they will be converted to the Lord. And all the families of the Gentiles will adore in his sight. {23:9} For the kingdom belongs to the Lord, and he will have dominion over the Gentiles. {23:10} All the fat of the earth have gnashed their teeth, and they have adored. In his sight, they will fall down, all those who descend to the ground. {23:11} And my soul will live for him, and my offspring will serve him. {23:12} There will be announced for the Lord a future generation, and the heavens will announce his justice to a people who will be born, whom the Lord has made.
shall I be afraid? {26:2} Meanwhile, the guilty draw near to me. {26:3} Do not remember the offenses of my youth and my ignorances. Remember me according to your mercy, because of your goodness, O Lord. {26:4} The Lord is sweet and righteous. Because of this, he will grant a law to those who fall short in the way. {26:5} He will direct the mild in judgment. He will teach the meek his ways. {26:10} All the ways of the Lord are mercy and truth, to those who yearn for his covenant and his testimonies. {26:11} Because of your name, O Lord, you will pardon my sin, for it is great. {26:12} Which is the man who fears the Lord? He has established a law for him, on the way that he has chosen. {26:13} His soul will dwell upon good things, and his offspring will inherit the earth. {26:14} The Lord is a firmament to those who fear him, and his covenant will be made manifest to them. {26:15} My eyes are ever toward the Lord, for he will pull my feet from the snare. {26:16} Look upon me and have mercy on me; for I am alone and poor. {26:17} The troubles of my heart have been multiplied. Deliver me from my needfulness. {26:18} See my lowliness and my hardship, and release all my offenses. {26:19} Consider my enemies, for they have been multiplied, and they have hated me with an unjust hatred. {26:20} Preserve my soul and rescue me. I will not be ashamed, for I have hoped in you. {26:21} The innocent and the righteous have adhered to me, because I have remained with you. {26:22} Free Israel, O God, from all his tribulations.

[Psalm 25] (Psalm 26) {25:1} Unto the end. A Psalm of David. Judge me, Lord, for I have been walking in my innocence, and by hoping in the Lord, I will not be weakened. {25:2} Examine me, Lord, and test me: enkindle my temperament and my heart. {25:3} For your mercy is before my eyes, and I am serene in your truth. {25:4} I have not sat with the council of emptiness, and I will not enter with those who carry out injustice. {25:5} I have hated the assembly of the malicious; and I will not sit with the impious. {25:6} I will wash my hands among the innocent, and I will surround your altar, O Lord, {25:7} so that I may hear the voice of your praise and describe all your wonders. {25:8} O Lord, I have loved the beauty of your house and the dwelling place of your glory. {25:9} O God, do not let my soul perish with the impious, nor my life with the men of blood; {25:10} in whose hands are iniquities: their right hand has been filled by bribes. {25:11} But as for me, I have been walking in my innocence. Redeem me, and have mercy on me. {25:12} My foot has stood firm in the straight path. In the churches, I will bless you, O Lord.

[Psalm 26] (Psalm 27) {26:1} A Psalm of David, before he was sealed. The Lord is my light and my salvation, whom shall I fear? The Lord is the protector of my life, of whom shall I be afraid? {26:2} Meanwhile, the guilty draw near to me, so as to eat my flesh. Those who trouble me, my enemies, have themselves been weakened and have fallen. {26:3} If entrenched armies were to stand together against me, my heart would not fear. If a battle were to rise up against me, I would have hope in this. {26:4} One thing I have asked of the Lord, this I will seek: that I may dwell in the house of the Lord all the days of my life, so that I may behold the delight of the Lord, and may visit his temple. {26:5} For he has hidden me in his tabernacle. In the day of evils, he has protected me in the hidden place of his tabernacle. {26:6} He has exalted me upon the rock, and now he has exalted my head above my enemies. I have circled around and offered a sacrifice of loud exclamation in his tabernacle. I will sing, and I will compose a psalm, to the Lord. [Psalm 27] {26:7} Hear my voice, O Lord, with which I have cried out to you. Have mercy on me, and hear me. {26:8} My heart has spoken to you; my face has sought you. I yearn for your face, O Lord. {26:9} Do not turn your face away from me. In your wrath, do not turn aside from your servant. Be my helper. Do not abandon me, and do not despise me, O God, my Saviour. {26:10} For my father and my mother have left me behind, but the Lord has taken me up. {26:11} O Lord, establish a law for me in your way, and direct me in the right path, because of my enemies. {26:12} Do not surrender me to the souls of those who trouble me. For unjust witnesses have risen up against me, and iniquity has lied to itself. {26:13} I believe that I shall see the good things of the Lord in the land of the living. {26:14} Wait for the Lord, act manfully; and let your heart be strengthened, and remain with the Lord.

[Psalm 27] (Psalm 28) {27:1} A Psalm of David himself. To you, Lord, I will cry out. My God, do not be silent toward me. For if you remain silent toward me, I will become like those who descend into the pit. {27:2} Hear, O Lord, the voice of my supplication, when I pray to you, when I lift up my hands toward your holy temple. {27:3} Do not draw me away together with sinners; and let me not perish with those who work iniquity, who speak peacefully to their neighbor, yet evils are in their hearts. {27:4} Give to them according to their works and according to the wickedness of their inventions. Assign to them according to the works of their hands. Repay them with their own retribution. {27:5} Since they have not understood the works of the Lord and the works of his hands, you will destroy them, and you will not build them up. {27:6} Blessed is the Lord, for he has heard the voice of my supplication. {27:7} The Lord is my helper and my protector. In him, my heart has hoped and I have been helped. And my flesh has flourished again. And from my will, I shall confess to him. {27:8} The Lord is the strength of his people and the protector of the salvation of his Christ. {27:9} O Lord, save your people and bless your inheritance, and reign over them and exalt them, even unto eternity.

[Psalm 28] (Psalm 29) {28:1} A Psalm of David, at the completion of the tabernacle. Bring to the Lord, O sons of God, bring to the Lord the sons of rams. {28:2} Bring to the Lord, glory and honor. Bring to the Lord, glory for his name. Adore the Lord in his holy court. {28:3} The voice of the Lord is over many waters. {28:4} The voice of the Lord is in magnificence. The Lord is in virtue. The voice of the Lord is in magnificence. {28:5} The voice of the Lord shatters the cedars. And the Lord will shatter the cedars of Lebanon. {28:6} And it will break them into pieces, like a calf of Lebanon, and in the same way as the beloved son of the single-horned beast. {28:7} The voice of the Lord cuts through the flame of fire. {28:8} The voice of the Lord shakes the desert. And the Lord will quake the desert of Kadesh. {28:9} The voice of the Lord is preparing the stags, and he will reveal the dense woods.
And in his temple, all will speak his glory.

(Psalms 29-30)
{29:1} A Canticle Psalm. In dedication to the house of David.
{29:2} I will extol you, Lord, for you have sustained me, and you have not allowed my enemies to delight over me.
{29:3} O Lord my God, I have cried out to you, and you have healed me.
{29:4} Lord, you led my soul away from Hell. You have saved me from those who descend into the pit.
{29:5} Sing a psalm to the Lord, you his saints, and confess with remembrance of his holiness.
{29:6} For wrath is in his indignation, and life is in his will. Toward evening, weeping will linger, and toward morning, gladness.
{29:7} But I have said in my abundance: “I will never be disturbed.”
{29:8} O Lord, in your will, you made virtue preferable to beauty for me. You turned your face away from me, and I became disturbed.
{29:9} To you, Lord, I will cry out. And I will make supplication to your God.
{29:10} What use would there be in my blood, if I descend into corruption? Will dust confess to you or announce your truth?
{29:11} The Lord has heard, and he has been merciful to me. The Lord has become my helper.
{29:12} You have turned my mourning into gladness for me. You have cut off my sackcloth, and you have surrounded me with joy.
{29:13} So then, may my glory sing to you, and may I not regret it. O Lord, my God, I will confess to you for eternity.

(Psalms 30-31)
{30:1} Unto the end. A Psalm of David according to an ecstasy.
{30:2} In you, Lord, I have hoped; let me never be confounded. In your justice, deliver me.
{30:3} Incline your ear to me. Hasten to rescue me. Be for me a protector God and a house of refuge, so as to accomplish my salvation.
{30:4} For you are my strength and my refuge; and for the sake of your name, you will lead me and nourish me.
{30:5} You will lead me out of this snare, which they have hidden for me. For you are my protector.
{30:6} Into your hands, I commend my spirit. You have redeemed me, O Lord, God of truth.
{30:7} You have hated those who practice emptiness to no purpose. But I have hoped in the Lord.
{30:8} I will exult and rejoice in your mercy. For you have looked upon my humility; you have saved my soul from needfulness.
{30:9} And you have not enclosed me in the hands of the enemy. You have set my feet in a spacious place.
{30:10} Have mercy on me, Lord, for I am troubled. My eye has been disturbed by wrath, along with my soul and my gut.
{30:11} For my life has fallen into sorrow, and my years into sighing. My virtue has been weakened in poverty, and my bones have been disturbed.
{30:12} I have become a disgrace among all my enemies, and even more so to my neighbors, and a dread to my acquaintances. Those who catch sight of me, flee away from me.
{30:13} I have become forgotten, like one dead to the heart. I have become like a damaged utensil.
{30:14} For I have heard the harsh criticism of many who linger in the area. While assembled together against me in that place, they deliberated on how to take away my life.
{30:15} But I have hoped in you, O Lord. I said, “You are my God.”
{30:16} My fate is in your hands. Rescue me from the hand of my enemies and from those who are persecuting me.
{30:17} Shine your face upon your servant. Save me in your mercy.
{30:18} Do not let me be confounded, Lord, for I have called upon you. Let the impious be ashamed and be drawn down into Hell.
{30:19} May deceitful lips be silenced: those that speak iniquity against the just, in arrogance and in abusiveness.
{30:20} How great is the multitude of your sweetness, O Lord, which you keep hidden for those who fear you, which you have perfected for those who hope in you, in the sight of the sons of men.
{30:21} You hide them in the concealment of your face, from the disturbance of men. You protect them in your tabernacle, from the contradiction of tongues.
{30:22} Blessed is the Lord. For he has shown his wonderful mercy to me, in a fortified city.
{30:23} But I said in the excess of my mind: “I have been cast away from the glance of your eyes.” And so, you heeded the voice of my prayer, while I was still crying out to you.
{30:24} Love the Lord, all you his saints. For the Lord will require truth, and he will abundantly repay those who act with arrogance.
{30:25} Act manfully, and let your heart be strengthened, all you who hope in the Lord.

(Psalms 31-32)
{31:1} The understanding of David himself. Blessed are they whose iniquities have been forgiven and whose sins have been covered.
{31:2} Blessed is the man to whom the Lord has not imputed sin, and in whose spirit there is no deceit.
{31:3} Because I was silent, my bones grew old, while still I cried out all day long.
{31:4} For, day and night, your hand was heavy upon me. I have been converted in my anguish, while still the thorn is piercing.
{31:5} I have acknowledged my offense to you, and I have not concealed my injustice. I said, “I will confess against myself, my injustice to the Lord, and you forgave the impiety of my sin.”
{31:6} For this, everyone who is holy will pray to you in due time. Yet truly, in a flood of many waters, they will not draw near to him.
{31:7} You are my refuge from the tribulation that has surrounded me. You are my exultation: rescue me from those who are surrounding me.
{31:8} I will give you understanding, and I will instruct you in this way, in which you will walk. I will fix my eyes upon you.
{31:9} Do not become like the horse and the mule, which have no understanding. Their jaws are constrained with bit and bridle, so as not to draw near to you.
{31:10} Many are the scourges of the sinner, but mercy will surround him that hopes in the Lord.
{31:11} Rejoice in the Lord and exult, you just ones, and glory, all you upright of heart.

(Psalms 33-34)
{32:1} A Psalm of David. Exult in the Lord, you just ones; together praise the upright.
{32:2} Confess to the Lord with stringed instruments; sing psalms to him with the psalteries, the instrument of ten strings.
{32:3} Sing to him a new song. Sing psalms to him skillfully, with loud exclamation.
{32:4} For the word of the Lord is upright, and all his works are in faith.
{32:5} He loves mercy and judgment. The earth is full of the mercy of the Lord.
{32:6} By the word of the Lord, the heavens were established, and all their power, by the Spirit of his mouth:
{32:7} gathering together the waters of the sea, as if in a container, placing the depths in storage.
{32:8} Let all the earth fear the Lord, and may all the inhabitants of the world quake before him.
{32:9} For he spoke, and they became.
{32:10} The Lord scatters the counsels of the nations. Moreover, he reproves the thoughts of the people, and he rejects the counsels of the leaders. {32:11} But the counsel of the Lord remains for eternity, the thoughts of his heart from generation to generation. {32:12} Blessed is the nation whose God is the Lord, the people whom he has chosen as his inheritance. {32:13} The Lord has looked down from heaven. He has seen all the sons of men. {32:14} From his well-prepared dwelling place, he has gazed upon all who dwell on the earth. {32:15} He has formed the hearts of each one of them; he understands all their works. {32:16} The king is not saved by great power, nor will the giant be saved by his many powers. {32:17} The horse is false safety; for he will not be saved by the abundance of his powers. {32:18} Behold, the eyes of the Lord are on those who fear him and on those who hope in his mercy, {32:19} so as to rescue their souls from death and to feed them during famine. {32:20} Our soul remains with the Lord. For he is our helper and protector. {32:21} For in him, our heart will rejoice, and in his holy name, we have hoped. {32:22} Let your mercy be upon us, O Lord, just as we have hoped in you.

[Psalm 33] (Psalm 34) {33:1} To David, when he changed his appearance in the sight of Abimelech, and so he dismissed him, and he went away. {33:2} I will bless the Lord at all times. His praise will be ever in my mouth. {33:3} In the Lord, my soul will be praised. May the meek listen and rejoice. {33:4} Magnify the Lord with me, and let us extol his name in itself. {33:5} I sought the Lord, and he heeded me, and he carried me away from all my tribulations. {33:6} Approach him and be enlightened, and your faces will not be confounded. {33:7} This poor one cried out, and the Lord heeded him, and he saved him from all his tribulations. {33:8} The Angel of the Lord will encamp around those who fear him, and he will rescue them. {33:9} Taste and see that the Lord is sweet. Blessed is the man who hopes in him. {33:10} Fear the Lord, all you his saints. For there is no destitution for those who fear him. {33:11} The rich have been needy and hungry, but those who seek the Lord will not be deprived of any good thing. {33:12} Come forward, sons. Listen to me. I will teach you the fear of the Lord. {33:13} Which is the man who wills life, who chooses to see good days? {33:14} Prohibit your tongue from evil and your lips from speaking deceit. {33:15} Turn away from evil, and do good. Inquire about peace, and pursue it. {33:16} The eyes of the Lord are on the just, and his ears are with their prayers. {33:17} But the countenance of the Lord is upon those who do evil, to perish the remembrance of them from the earth. {33:18} The just cried out, and the Lord heard them, and he freed them from all their tribulations. {33:19} The Lord is near to those who are troubled in heart, and he will save the humble in spirit. {33:20} Many are the afflictions of the just, but from them all the Lord will free them. {33:21} The Lord preserves all of their bones, not one of them shall be broken. {33:22} The death of a sinner is very harmful, and those who hate the just will fare badly. {33:23} The Lord will redeem the souls of his servants, and none of those who hope in him will fare badly.

[Psalm 34] (Psalm 35) {34:1} Of David himself. O Lord, judge those who harm me; assail those who attack me. {34:2} Take hold of weapons and a shield, and rise up in assistance to me. {34:3} Bring forth the spear, and close in on those who persecute me. Say to my soul, “I am your salvation.” {34:4} Let them be confounded and in awe, who pursue my soul. Let them be turned back and be confounded, who think up evil against me. {34:5} May they become like dust before the face of the wind, and let the Angel of the Lord hem them in. {34:6} May their way become dark and slippery, and may the Angel of the Lord pursue them. {34:7} For, without cause, they have concealed their snare for me unto destruction. Over nothing, they have rebuked my soul. {34:8} Let the snare, of which he is ignorant, come upon him, and let the deception, which he has hidden, take hold of him: and may he fall into that very snare. {34:9} But my soul will exult in the Lord and delight over his salvation. {34:10} All my bones will say, “Lord, who is like you?” He rescues the needy from the hand of the stronger one, the indigent and the poor from those who plunder him. {34:11} Unfair witnesses have risen up, interrogating me about things of which I am ignorant. {34:12} They repaid me evil for good, to the deprivation of my soul. {34:13} But as for me, when they were harassing me, I was clothed with haircloth. I humbled my soul with fasting, and my prayer will become my sinews. {34:14} Like a neighbor, and like our brother, so did I please; like one mourning and contrite, so was I humbled. {34:15} And they have been joyful against me, and they joined together. Scourges have been gathered over me, and I was ignorant of it. {34:16} They have been scattered, yet they were unremorseful. They have tested me. They scoffed at me with scorn. They gnashed their teeth over me. {34:17} Lord, when will you look down upon me? Restore my soul from before their malice, my only one from before the lions. {34:18} I will confess to you in a great Church. I will praise you among a weighty people. {34:19} May those who are my unjust adversaries not be glad over me: those who have hated me without cause, and who nod agreement with their eyes. {34:20} For indeed, they spoke peacefully to me; and speaking with passion to the earth, they intended deceit. {34:21} And they opened their mouth wide over me. They said, “Well, well, our eyes have seen.” {34:22} You have seen, O Lord, do not be silent. Lord, do not depart from me. {34:23} Rise up and be attentive to my judgment, to my cause, my God and my Lord. {34:24} Judge me according to your justice, O Lord, my God, and do not let them be glad over me. {34:25} Do not let them say in their hearts, “Well, well, to our soul.” Neither let them say, “We have devised him.” {34:26} Let them blush and be in awe together, those who congratulate at my misfortunes. Let them be clothed with confusion and awe, who speak great things against me. {34:27} Let them exult and rejoice, who wish my justice, and let them ever say, “The Lord be magnified,” who will the peace of his servant. {34:28} And so my tongue will express your justice: your praise all day long.

[Psalm 35] (Psalm 36) {35:1} Unto the end. To the servant of the Lord, David himself. {35:2} The unjust one has said within himself that he would commit offenses. There is no fear of God before his eyes. {35:3} For he has acted deceitfully in his sight, such that his iniquity will be found to be hatred. {35:4} The words of his mouth are iniquity and deceit. He is unwilling to understand, so that he may act well. {35:5} He has been considering iniquity on his bed. He has set himself on every way that is not good; moreover, he has not hated evil. {35:6} Lord, your mercy is in heaven, and your truth is even to the clouds. {35:7} Your justice is like the mountains of God. Your judgments are a great abyss. Men and beasts, you will save, O Lord. {35:8} How you have multiplied your mercy, O God! And so the sons of men will hope under the cover of your wings. {35:9} They will be inebriated with the fruitfulness of your house, and you will give them to drink from the torrent of your enjoyment. {35:10} For with you is the fountain of life; and within your light, we will see the light. {35:11} Extend your mercy before those who know you, and your justice to these, who are upright in heart. {35:12} May arrogant feet not approach me, and may the hand of the sinner not disturb me. {35:13} In that place, those who work iniquity have fallen. They have been expelled; they were not able to stand.

[Psalm 36] (Psalm 37) {36:1} A Psalm of David himself. Do not choose to imitate the malicious; neither should you envy those who work iniquity. {36:2} For they will quickly wither away like dry grass, and in like manner to kitchen herbs, they will soon droop. {36:3} Hope in the Lord and do good, and dwell in the land, and so you shall be pastured with its riches. {36:4} Delight in the Lord, and he will grant to you the petitions of your heart. {36:5} Reveal your way to the Lord, and hope in him, and he will accomplish it. {36:6} And he will bring forth your justice like the light, and your judgment like the midday. {36:7} Be subject to the Lord and pray to him. Do not choose to compete with him who prospers in his way, with the man who does injustice. {36:8} Cease from wrath and leave behind rage. Do not choose to imitate the malicious. {36:9} For those who are malicious will be exterminated. But those who remain with the Lord, these will inherit the land. {36:10} Yet still a little while, and the sinner will not be. And you will search his place and find nothing. {36:11} But the meek shall inherit the earth, and they will delight in the multitude of peace. {36:12} The sinner will observe the just, and he will gnash his teeth over him. {36:13} But the Lord will laugh at him: for he knows in advance that his day will come. {36:14} The sinners have drawn the sword, they have bent their bow, so as to cast down the poor and the needy, so as to massacre the upright of heart. {36:15} Let their sword enter into their own hearts, and let their bow be broken. {36:16} A little is better to the just than the many riches of sinners. {36:17} For the arms of sinners will be crushed, but the Lord confirms the just. {36:18} The Lord knows the days of the immaculate, and their inheritance will be in eternity. {36:19} They will not be confounded in an evil time; and in days of famine, they will be satisfied: {36:20} For sinners will perish. Truly, the adversaries of the Lord, soon after they have been honored and exalted, will fade away, in the same way that smoke fades away. {36:21} The sinner will lend and not release, but the just one shows compassion and donates. {36:22} For those who bless him will inherit the earth, but those who curse him will perish. {36:23} The steps of a man will be directed by the Lord, and he will choose his way. {36:24} When he falls, he will not be harmed, because the Lord places his hand under him. {36:25} I have been young, and now I am old; and I have not seen the just forsaken, nor his offspring seeking bread. {36:26} He shows compassion and lends, all day long, and his offspring will be in blessing. {36:27} Turn away from evil and do good, and dwell forever and ever. {36:28} For the Lord loves judgment, and he will not abandon his saints. They will be kept safe in eternity. The unjust will be punished, and the offspring of the impious will perish. {36:29} But the just will inherit the earth, and they will dwell upon it forever and ever. {36:30} The mouth of the just one will express wisdom, and his tongue will speak judgment. {36:31} The law of his God is in his heart, and his steps shall not be supplanted. {36:32} The sinner considers the just one and seeks to put him to death. {36:33} But the Lord will not abandon him into his hands, nor condemn him, when he will be judged. {36:34} Wait for the Lord, and keep to his way. And he will exalt you, so as to inherit the land that you may seize. When the sinners will have passed away, then you shall see. {36:35} I have seen the impious over-exalted, and lifted up like the cedars of Lebanon. {36:36} And I passed by, and behold, he was not. And I sought him, and his place was not found. {36:37} Keep to innocence, and gaze upon fairness: because there are allotments for the peaceful man. {36:38} But the unjust will be destroyed together: the allotments of the impious will pass away. {36:39} But the salvation of the just is from the Lord, and he is their protector in time of tribulation. {36:40} And the Lord will help them and free them. And he will rescue them from sinners and save them, because they have hoped in him.

[Psalm 37] (Psalm 38) {37:1} A Psalm of David, in commemoration of the Sabbath. {37:2} O Lord, do not rebuke me in your fury, nor chastise me in your wrath. {37:3} For your arrows have been driven into me, and your hand has been confirmed over me. {37:4} There is no health in my flesh before the face of your wrath. There is no peace for my bones before the face of my sins. {37:5} For my iniquities have walked over my head, and they have been like a heavy burden weighing upon me. {37:6} My sores have putrefied and been corrupted before the face of my foolishness. {37:7} I have become miserable, and I have been bent down, even to the end. I have walked with contrition all day long. {37:8} For my loins have been filled with illusions, and there is no health in my flesh. {37:9} I have been afflicted and greatly humbled. I bellowed from the groaning of my heart. {37:10} O Lord, all my desire is before you, and my groaning before you has not been hidden. {37:11} My heart has been disturbed. My strength has abandoned me, and the light of my eyes has abandoned me, and it is not with me. {37:12} My friends and my neighbors have drawn near and stood against me. And those who were next to me stood far apart. And those who sought my soul used violence. {37:13} And those who sought evil accusations against me were speaking emptiness. And they practiced deceitfulness all day long. {37:14} But, like someone deaf, I did not hear. And I was like someone mute, not opening his mouth. {37:15} And I became like a man who does not hear, and who has no reproofs in his mouth. {37:16} For in you, Lord, I have hoped. You will listen to me, O Lord my God. {37:17} For I said, “Lest at any time, my enemies might rejoice over me,” and, “While my feet are being shaken, they have spoken great things against me.” {37:18} For I have been prepared for scourges, and my sorrow is ever before me. {37:19} For I will announce my iniquity, and I will think about my sin. {37:20} But my enemies live, and they have been stronger than me. And those who have wrongfully hated me have been multiplied. {37:21} Those who render evil for good have dragged me down, because I followed goodness. [37:22] Do not forsake me, O Lord my God. Do not depart from me. [37:23] Be attentive to my help, O Lord, the God of my salvation.

[Psalm 38] (Psalm 39) [38:1] Unto the end. For Jeduthun himself. A Canticle of David. [38:2] I said, “I will keep to my ways, so that I will not offend with my tongue.” I posted a guard at my mouth, when a sinner took up a position against me. [38:3] I was silenced and humbled, and I was quiet before good things, and my sorrow was renewed. [38:4] My heart grew hot within me, and, during my meditation, a fire would flare up. [38:5] I spoke with my tongue, “O Lord, make me know my end, and what the number of my days will be, so that I may know what is lacking to me.” [38:6] Behold, you have made my days measurable, and, before you, my substance is as nothing. Yet truly, all things are vanity: every living man. [38:7] So then, truly man passes by like an image; even so, he is disquieted in vain. He stores up, and he knows not for whom he will gather these things. [38:8] And now, what is it that awaits me? Is it not the Lord? And my substance is with you. [38:9] Rescue me from all my iniquities. You have handed me over as reproach to the foolish. [38:10] I was silenced, and I did not open my mouth, because it was you who acted. [38:11] Remove your scourges from me. [38:12] I fall short at corrections from the strength of your hand. For you have chastised man for iniquity. And you have made his soul shrink away like a spider. Nevertheless, it is in vain that any man be disquieted. [38:13] O Lord, heed my prayer and my supplication. Pay attention to my tears. Do not be silent. For I am a newcomer with you, and a sojourner, just as all my fathers were. [38:14] Forgive me, so that I may be refreshed, before I will go forth and be no more.

[Psalm 39] (Psalm 40) [39:1] Unto the end. A Psalm of David himself. [39:2] I have waited expectantly for the Lord, and he was attentive to me. [39:3] And he heard my prayers and he led me out of the pit of misery and the quagmire. And he stationed my feet upon a rock, and he directed my steps. [39:4] And he sent a new canticle into my mouth, a song to our God. Many will see, and they will fear; and they will hope in the Lord. [39:5] Blessed is the man whose hope is in the Lord. Many will see, and they will be afraid. [39:6] You have accomplished your justice, and you have confirmed me in your sight in eternity. [39:7] Sacrifice and oblation, you did not want. But you have perfected ears for me. Holocaust and sin offering, you did not require. [39:8] Then I said, “Behold, I draw near.” At the head of the book, it has been written of me: [39:9] that I should do your will. My God, I have willed it. And your law is in the midst of my heart. [39:10] I have announced your justice in a great Church: behold, I will not restrain my lips. O Lord, you have known it. [39:11] I have not concealed your justice within my heart. I have spoken your truth and your salvation. I have not concealed your mercy and your truth from a great assembly. [39:12] O Lord, do not take your tender mercies far from me. Your mercy and your truth ever sustain me. [39:13] For evils without number have surrounded me. My iniquities have taken hold of me, and I was not able to see. They have been multiplied beyond the hairs of my head. And my heart has forsaken me. [39:14] Be pleased, O Lord, to rescue me. Look down, O Lord, to help me. [39:15] Let them together be confounded and ashamed, who seek after my soul to steal it away. Let them be turned back and be in awe, who wish evils upon me. [39:16] Let them bear their confusion all at once, who say to me, “Well, well.” [39:17] Let all who seek you exult and rejoice over you. And let those who love your salvation always say, “May the Lord be magnified.” [39:18] But I am a beggar and poor. The Lord has been concerned about me. You are my helper and my protector. My God, do not delay.

[Psalm 40] (Psalm 41) [40:1] Unto the end. A Psalm of David himself. [40:2] Blessed is he who shows understanding toward the needy and the poor. The Lord will deliver him in the evil day. [40:3] May the Lord preserve him and give him life, and make him blessed upon the earth. And may he not hand him over to the will of his adversaries. [40:4] May the Lord bring him help on his bed of sorrow. In his infirmity, you have changed his entire covering. [40:5] I said, “O Lord, be merciful to me. Heal my soul, because I have sinned against you.” [40:6] My enemies have spoken evils against me. When will he die and his name perish? [40:7] And when he came in to see me, he was speaking emptyness. His heart gathered iniquity to itself. He went outside, and he was speaking in the same way. [40:8] All my enemies were whispering against me. They were thinking up evils against me. [40:9] They established an unjust word against me. Will he that sleeps no longer rise again? [40:10] For even the man of my peace, in whom I hoped, who ate my bread, has greatly supplanted me. [40:11] But you, O Lord, have mercy on me, and raise me up again. And I will requite them. [40:12] By this, I knew that you preferred me: because my adversary will not rejoice over me. [40:13] But you have sustained me, because of my innocence, and you have confirmed me in your sight in eternity. [40:14] Blessed is the Lord God of Israel, for all generations and even forever. Amen. Amen.
I walk in mourning, while my adversary afflicts me?"
{41:11} While my bones are being broken, my enemies, who trouble me, have reproached me. Meanwhile, they say to me every single day, "Where is your God?" {41:12} My soul, why are you saddened? And why do you disquiet me? Hope in God, for I will still confess to him: the salvation of my countenance and my God.

[Psalm 42] (Psalm 43) {42:1} A Psalm of David. Judge me, O God, and discern my cause from that of a nation not holy; rescue me from a man unjust and deceitful. {42:2} For you are God, my strength. Why have you rejected me? And why do I walk in sadness, while the adversary afflicts me?
{42:3} Send forth your light and your truth. They have guided me and led me, to your holy mountain and into your tabernacles. {42:4} And I will enter, up to the altar of God, to God who enlivens my youthfulness. To you, O God, my God, I will confess upon a stringed instrument. {42:5} Why are you sad, my soul? And why do you disquiet me? Hope in God, for I will still give praise to him: the salvation of my countenance and my God.

[Psalm 43] (Psalm 44) {43:1} Unto the end. To the sons of Korah, toward understanding. {43:2} We have heard, O God, with our own ears. Our fathers have announced to us the work that you wrought in their days and in the days of antiquity. {43:3} Your hand dispersed the Gentiles, and you transplanted them. You afflicted a people, and you expelled them. {43:4} For they did not take possession of the land by their sword, and their own arm did not save them. But your right hand and your arm, and the light of your countenance did so, because you were pleased with them. {43:5} You yourself are my king and my God, who commands the salvation of Jacob. {43:6} With you, we will brandish a horn before our enemies; and in your name, we will spur those rising up against us. {43:7} For I will not hope in my bow, and my sword will not save me. {43:8} For you have saved us from those who afflict us, and you have bewildered those who hate us. {43:9} In God, we will give praise all day long; and in your name, we will confess forever. {43:10} But now, you have rejected and bewildered us, and you will not go forth with our armies, O God. {43:11} You have turned our back to our enemies, and those who hated us have plundered for themselves. {43:12} You have given us over like sheep for food. You have scattered us among the Gentiles. {43:13} You have sold your people without a price, and no great number was exchanged for them. {43:14} You have set us as a disgrace to our neighbors, a scoff and a derision to those who are around us. {43:15} You have set us as a parable among the Gentiles, a shaking of the head among the peoples. {43:16} All day long my shame is before me, and the confusion of my face has covered me, {43:17} before the voice of the reproacher and the commentator, before the face of the adversary and the pursuer. {43:18} All these things have come upon us, yet we have not forgotten you, and we have not acted unjustly in your covenant. {43:19} And our heart has not turned back. And you have not diverted our steps from your way. {43:20} For you humbled us in a place of affliction, and the shadow of death has covered us. {43:21} If we have forgotten the name of our God, and if we have extended our hands to a foreign god, {43:22} will not God find this out? For he knows the secrets of the heart. For, because of you, we are being killed all day long. We are considered as sheep for the slaughter. {43:23} Rise up. Why do you fall asleep, O Lord? Rise up, and do not reject us in the end. {43:24} Why do you turn your face away, and why do you forget our needfulness and our tribulation? {43:25} For our soul has been humbled into the dust. Our belly has been bound to the earth. {43:26} Rise up, O Lord. Help us and redeem us, because of your name.

[Psalm 44] (Psalm 45) {44:1} Unto the end. For those who will be changed. To the sons of Korah, toward understanding. A Canticle for the Beloved. {44:2} My heart has uttered a good word. I speak of my works to the king. My tongue is like the pen of a scribe who writes quickly. {44:3} You are a brilliant form before the sons of men. Grace has been poured freely into your lips. Because of this, God has blessed you in eternity. {44:4} Fasten your sword to your thigh, O most powerful one. {44:5} With your splendor and your excellence extended, proceed prosperously, and reign for the sake of truth and meekness and justice, and so will your right hand lead you wondrously. {44:6} Your arrows are sharp; the people will fall under you, with the hearts of the enemies of the king. {44:7} Your throne, O God, is forever and ever. The scepter of your kingdom is a scepter of true aim. {44:8} You have loved justice and hated iniquity. Because of this, God, your God, has anointed you, before your co-heirs, with the oil of gladness. {44:9} Myrrh and balsam and cinnamon perfume your garments, from the houses of ivory. From these, they have delighted you: {44:10} the daughters of kings in your honor. The queen assisted at your right hand, in clothing of gold, encircled with diversity. {44:11} Listen, daughter, and see, and incline your ear. And forget your people and your father's house. {44:12} And the king will desire your beauty. For he is the Lord your God, and they will adore him. {44:13} And the daughters of Tyre will entreat your countenance with gifts: all the rich men of the people. {44:14} All the glory of the daughter of its king is inside, in golden fringes. {44:15} clothed all around with diversities. After her, virgins will be led to the king. Her neighbors will be brought to you. {44:16} They will be brought with gladness and exultation. They will be led into the temple of the king. {44:17} For your fathers, sons have been born to you. You will establish them as leaders over all the earth. {44:18} They will remember your name always, for generation after generation. Because of this, people will confess to you in eternity, even forever and ever.

[Psalm 45] (Psalm 46) {45:1} Unto the end. To the sons of Korah, for confidants. A Psalm. {45:2} Our God is our refuge and strength, a helper in the tribulations that have greatly overwhelmed us. {45:3} Because of this, we will not be afraid when the earth will be turbulent and the mountains will be transferred into the heart of the sea. {45:4} They thundered, and the waters were stirred up among them; the mountains have been disturbed by his strength. {45:5} The frenzy of the river rejoices the city of God. The Most High has sanctified his tabernacle. {45:6} God is in its midst; it will not be shaken. God will assist it in the early morning. {45:7} The peoples have been disturbed, and the kingdoms have been bowed down. He uttered his voice: the earth has been moved. {45:8} The Lord of hosts is with us. The God of Jacob is our supporter. {45:9} Draw near and behold the works of the Lord: what portents he has set upon the earth, {45:10} carrying away wars even to the end of the earth. He will crush the bow and break the weapons, and he will burn the shield with fire. {45:11} Be empty, and see that I am God.
I will be exalted among the peoples, and I will be exalted upon the earth. {45:12} The Lord of hosts is with us. The God of Jacob is our supporter.

[Psalm 46] (Psalm 47) {46:1} Unto the end. A Psalm for the sons of Korah. {46:2} All nations, clap your hands. Shout joyfully to God with a voice of exultation. {46:3} For the Lord is exalted and terrible: a great King over all the earth.
{46:4} He has subjected the peoples to us and subdued the nations under our feet. {46:5} He has chosen us for his inheritance: the splendor of Jacob, whom he has loved.
{46:6} God ascends with jubilation, and the Lord with the voice of the trumpet. {46:7} Sing psalms to our God, sing psalms. Sing psalms to our King, sing psalms. {46:8} For God is the King of all the earth. Sing psalms wisely.
{46:9} God will reign over the peoples. God sits upon his holy throne. {46:10} The leaders of the peoples have been gathered together by the God of Abraham. For the strong gods of the earth have been exceedingly exalted.

[Psalm 47] (Psalm 48) {47:1} A Canticle Psalm. To the sons of Korah, on the second Sabbath. {47:2} The Lord is great and exceedingly praiseworthy, in the city of our God, on his holy mountain. {47:3} Mount Zion is being founded with the exultation of the whole earth, on the north side, the city of the great king. {47:4} In her houses, God will be known, since he will support her. {47:5} For behold, the kings of the earth have been gathered together; they have convened as one.
{47:6} Such did they see, and they were astonished: they were disturbed, they were moved. {47:7} Trembling took hold of them. In that place, their pains were that of a woman in labor. {47:8} With a vehement spirit, you will crush the ships of Tarshish. {47:9} As we have heard, so we have seen, in the city of the Lord of hosts, in the city of our God. God has founded it in eternity. {47:10} We have received your mercy, O God, in the midst of your temple.
{47:11} According to your name, O God, so does your praise reach to the ends of the earth. Your right hand is full of justice. {47:12} Let mount Zion rejoice, and let the daughters of Judah exult, because of your judgments, O Lord.
{47:13} Encircle Zion and embrace her. Discourse in her towers. {47:14} Set your hearts on her virtue. And distribute her houses, so that you may discourse of it in another generation. {47:15} For this is God, our God, in eternity and forever and ever. He will rule us forever.

[Psalm 48] (Psalm 49) {48:1} Unto the end. A Psalm to the sons of Korah. {48:2} Hear these things, all nations. Pay attention, all inhabitants of the world: {48:3} whoever is earth-born, you sons of men, together as one, the rich and the poor. {48:4} My mouth will speak wisdom, and the meditation of my heart will speak prudence. {48:5} I will incline my ear to a parable. I will open my case with the psaltery. {48:6} Why should I fear in the evil day? The iniquity at my heel will surround me. {48:7} Those who trust in their own strength and who glory in the multitude of their riches, {48:8} no brother redeems, nor will man buy back. He will not give to God his appeasement, {48:9} nor the price for the redemption of his soul. And he will labor continuously, {48:10} and he will still live, until the end. {48:11} He will not see death, when he sees the wise dying: the foolish and the senseless will perish together. And they will leave their riches to strangers. {48:12} And their sepulchers will be their houses forever, their tabernacles from generation to generation. They have called their names in their own lands.
{48:13} And man, when he was held in honor, did not understand. He has been compared to the senseless beasts, and he has become like them. {48:14} This way of theirs is a scandal to them. And afterwards, they will delight in their mouth. {48:15} They have been placed in Hell like sheep.
Death will feed on them. And the just will have dominion over them in the morning. And their help will grow old in Hell for their glory. {48:16} Even so, truly God will redeem my soul from the hand of Hell, when he will receive me.
{48:17} Do not be afraid, when a man will have been made rich, and when the glory of his house will have been multiplied. {48:18} For when he dies, he will take nothing away, and his glory will not descend with him. {48:19} For his soul will be blessed in his lifetime, and he will admit to you when you do good to him. {48:20} He will even enter with the progeny of his fathers, but, even in eternity, he will not see the light. {48:21} Man, when he was in honor, did not understand. He has been compared to the senseless beasts, and he has become like them.
{49:22} Understand these things, you who forget God; lest at any time, he might quickly take you away, and there would be no one to rescue you. {49:23} The sacrifice of praise will honor me. And in that place is the journey by which I will reveal to him the salvation of God.

[Psalm 50]  (Psalm 51)  {50:1} Unto the end. A Psalm of David, {50:2} when Nathan the prophet came to him, after he went to Bathsheba. {50:3} Be merciful to me, O God, according to your great mercy. And, according to the plentitude of your compassion, wipe out my iniquity. {50:4} Wash me once again from my iniquity, and cleanse me from my sin. {50:5} For I know my iniquity, and my sin is ever before me. {50:6} Against you only have I sinned, and I have done evil before your eyes. And so, you are justified in your words, and you will prevail when you give judgment. {50:7} For behold, I was conceived in iniquities, and in sinfulness did my mother conceive me. {50:8} For behold, you have loved truth. The obscure and hidden things of your wisdom, you have manifested to me. {50:9} You will sprinkle me with hyssop, and I will be cleansed. You will wash me, and I will be made whiter than snow. {50:10} In my hearing, you will grant gladness and rejoicing. And the bones that have been humble will exult. {50:11} Turn your face away from my sins, and erase all my iniquities. {50:12} Create a clean heart in me, O God. And renew an upright spirit within my inmost being. {50:13} Do not cast me away from your face; and do not take your Holy Spirit from me. {50:14} Restore to me the joy of your salvation, and confirm me with an unsurpassed spirit. {50:15} I will teach the unjust your ways, and the impious will be converted to you. {50:16} Free me from blood, O God, the God of my salvation, and my tongue will extol your justice. {50:17} O Lord, you will open my lips, and my mouth will announce your praise. {50:18} For if you had despaired sacrifice, I would certainly have given it, but with holocausts, you will not be delighted. {50:19} A crushed spirit is a sacrifice to God. A contrite and humbled heart, O God, you will not spurn. {50:20} Act kindly, Lord, in your good will toward Zion, so that the walls of Jerusalem may be built up. {50:21} Then you will accept the sacrifice of justice, oblations, and holocausts. Then they will lay calves upon your altar.

[Psalm 51]  (Psalm 52)  {51:1} Unto the end. The understanding of David. {51:2} When Doeg the Edomite came and reported to Saul, David went to the house of Ahimelech. {51:3} Why do you glory in malice, you who are powerful in iniquity? {51:4} All day long your tongue thinks up injustice. Like a sharp razor, you have wrought deceit. {51:5} You have loved malice above goodness, and iniquity more than speaking righteousness. {51:6} You have loved all precipitous words, you deceitful tongue. {51:7} Because of this, God will destroy you in the end. He will pull you up, and he will remove you from your tabernacle and your root from the land of the living. {51:8} The just will see and be afraid, and they will laugh over him, and say: {51:9} “Behold the man who did not set God as his helper. But he hoped in the multitude of his riches, and so he prevailed in his emptiness.” {51:10} But I, like a fruitful olive tree in the house of God, have hoped in the mercy of God unto eternity, and forever and ever. {51:11} I will confess to you forever, because you have accomplished it. And I will wait on your name, for it is good in the sight of your saints.

[Psalm 52]  (Psalm 53)  {52:1} Unto the end. For Mahalath: the thoughts of David. The fool has said in his heart, “There is no God.” {52:2} They were corrupted, and they became abominable with iniquities. There is no one who does good. {52:3} God gazed down from heaven on the sons of men, to see if there were any who were considering or seeking God. {52:4} All have gone astray; together they have become useless. There is no one who does good; there is not even one. {52:5} Will they never learn: all those who work iniquity, who devour my people like a meal of bread? {52:6} They have not called upon God. In that place, they have trembled in fear, where there was no fear. For God has scattered the bones of those who please men. They have been confounded, because God has spurned them. {52:7} Who will grant from Zion the salvation of Israel? Jacob will exult, when God will convert the captivity of his people; and Israel will rejoice.

[Psalm 53]  (Psalm 54)  {53:1} Unto the end. In verses, the understanding of David, {53:2} when the Ziphites had arrived and they said to Saul, “Has not David been hidden with us?” {53:3} Save me, O God, by your name, and judge me in your virtue. {53:4} O God, listen to my prayer. Pay attention to the words of my mouth. {53:5} For strangers have risen up against me, and the strong have sought my soul. And they have not set God before their eyes. {53:6} For behold, God is my helper, and the Lord is the protector of my soul. {53:7} Turn back the evils upon my adversaries, and ruin them by your truth. {53:8} I will freely sacrifice to you, and I will confess your name, O God, because it is good. {53:9} For you have quickly rescued me from all tribulation, and my eye has looked down upon my enemies.

[Psalm 54]  (Psalm 55)  {54:1} Unto the end. In verses, the understanding of David. {54:2} Listen to my prayer, O God, and despise not my supplication. {54:3} Be attentive to me, and heed me. I have been beholding in my training, and I have been disturbed at the voice of the adversary and at the tribulation of the sinner. For they have diverted iniquities toward me, and they have been harassing me with rage. {54:5} My heart has become disturbed within me, and the dread of death has fallen over me. {54:6} Fear and trembling have overwhelmed me, and darkness has buried me. {54:7} And I said, “Who will give me wings like the dove, so that I may fly away and take rest?” {54:8} Behold, I have fled far away, and I linger in solitude. {54:9} I waited for him who saved me from a weak-minded spirit and from a tempest. {54:10} Cast them down, O Lord, and divide their tongues. For I have seen iniquity and contradiction in the city. {54:11} Day and night, iniquity will surround it upon its walls, and hardship is in its midst, {54:12} with injustice. And usury and deceit have not fallen away from its streets. {54:13} For if my enemy had spoken evil about me, certainly, I would have sustained it. And if he who hated me had been speaking great things against me, I would perhaps have hidden myself from him. {54:14} Truly, you are a man of one mind: my leader and my acquaintance, {54:15} who took sweet food together with me. In the house of God, we walked side-by-side. {54:16} Let death come upon them, and let them descend alive into Hellfire. For there is wickedness in their dwellings, in their midst. {54:17} But I have cried out to God, and the Lord will save me. {54:18} Evening and morning and midday, I will discourse and announce, and he will heed my voice. {54:19} He will redeem my soul in peace from those who draw near to me. For, among the many, they were with me. {54:20} God will hear, and He who is before time will humble them. For there is no change with them, and they have not feared God. {54:21} He has stretched forth his hand in retribution. They have contaminated his covenant. {54:22} They were divided by the wrath of his countenance, and his heart has drawn near. His words are smoother than oil, and they are arrows. {54:23} Cast your cares upon the Lord, and he will nurture you. He will not allow the just to be tossed about forever. {54:24} Truly, O God, you will lead them away into the well of death. Bloody and deceitful men will not divide their days in half. But I will hope in you, O Lord.

[Psalm 55] (Psalm 56) {55:1} Unto the end. For the people who have become far removed from the Sacred. Of David, with the inscription of a title, when the Philistines held him in Gath. {55:2} Have mercy on me, O God, because man has trampled over me. All day long, he has afflicted me by fighting against me. {55:3} My enemies have trampled over me all day long. For those who make war against me are many. {55:4} From the height of the day, I will be afraid. But truly, I will hope in you. {55:5} In God, I will praise my words. In God, I have put my trust. I will not fear what flesh can do to me. {55:6} All day long, they curse my words. All day, they curse my words. Their intentions are for evil against me. {55:7} They will dwell and hide themselves. They will watch my heel, just as they waited for my soul; {55:8} because of this, nothing will save them. In your anger, you will crush the people. {55:9} O God, I have announced my life to you. You have placed my tears in your sight, and even in your promise. {55:10} Then my enemies will be turned back. On whatever day that I call upon you, behold, I know that you are my God. {55:11} In God, I will praise the word. In the Lord, I will praise his speech. In God, I have hoped. I will not fear what man can do to me. {55:12} My vows to you, O God, are in me. I will repay them. Praises be to you. {55:13} For you have rescued my soul from death and my feet from slipping, so that I may be pleasing in the sight of God, in the light of the living.

[Psalm 56] (Psalm 57) {56:1} Unto the end. May you not destroy. Of David, with the inscription of a title, when Saul sent and watched his house, in order to execute him. {56:2} He sent from heaven and freed me. He has surrendered into disgrace those who trampled me. God has sent his mercy and his truth. {56:3} I will cry out to God Most High, to God who has been kind to me. {56:4} He sent from heaven and freed me. He has surrendered into disgrace those who trampled me. God has sent his mercy and his truth. {56:5} And he has rescued my soul from the midst of the young lions. I slept troubled. The sons of men: their teeth are weapons and arrows, and their tongue is a sharp sword. {56:6} He will exalt above the heavens, O God, and your glory above all the earth. {56:7} They prepared a snare for my feet, and they bowed down my soul. They dug a pit before my face, yet they have fallen into it. {56:8} My heart is prepared, O God, my heart is prepared. I will sing, and I will compose a psalm. {56:9} Rise up, my glory. Rise up, psaltery and harp. I will arise in early morning. {56:10} I will confess to you, O Lord, among the peoples. I will compose a psalm to you among the nations. {56:11} For your mercy has been magnified, even to the heavens, and your truth, even to the clouds. {56:12} Be exalted above the heavens, O God, and your glory above all the earth.

[Psalm 57] (Psalm 58) {57:1} Unto the end. May you not destroy. Of David, with the inscription of a title. {57:2} If, truly and certainly, you speak justice, then judge what is right, you sons of men. {57:3} For, even in your heart, you work iniquity. Your hands construct injustice on the earth. {57:4} Sinners have become foreigners from the womb; they have gone astray from conception. They have been speaking falsehoods. {57:5} Their fury is similar to that of a serpent; it is like a deaf asp, who even blocks her ears, {57:6} who will not listen to the voice of charmers, nor even to the enchanters who chant wisely. {57:7} God will crush their teeth within their own mouth. The Lord will break the molars of the lions. {57:8} They will come to nothing, like water flowing away. He has aimed his bow, while they are being weakened. {57:9} Like wax that flows, they will be carried away. Fire has fallen upon them, and they will not see the sun. {57:10} Before your thorns could know the brier, he consumes them alive, as if in rage. {57:11} The just one will rejoice when he sees vindication. He will wash his hands in the blood of the sinner. {57:12} And man will say, “If the just one is fruitful, then, truly, there is a God judging them on earth.”
(Psalm 59) (Psalm 60) {59:1} Unto the end. For those who will be changed, with the inscription of a title, of David himself, for instruction: {59:2} when he set fire to Mesopotamia of Syria and Sobal, and Joab turned back and struck Idumea, in the valley of the salt pits, twelve thousand men. {59:3} O God, you have rejected us, and you have ruined us. You became angry, and yet you have been merciful to us. {59:4} You have moved the earth, and you have disturbed it. Heal its breaches, for it has been moved. {59:5} You have revealed to your people difficulties. You have made us drink the wine of remorse. {59:6} You have given a warning sign to those who fear you, so that they may flee from before the face of the bow, so that your beloved may be delivered. {59:7} Save me with your right hand, and hear me. {59:8} God has spoken in his holy place: I will rejoice, and I will divide Shechem, and I will measure the steep valley of the tabernacles. {59:9} Gilead is mine, and Manasseh is mine. And Ephraim is the strength of my head. Judah is my king. {59:10} Moab is the cooking pot of my hope. Into Idumea, I will extend my shoe. To me, the foreigners have been made subject. {59:11} Who will lead me into the fortified city? Who will lead me all the way to Idumea? {59:12} Will not you, O God, who has rejected us? And will not you, O God, go out with our armies? {59:13} Grant us help from tribulation. For salvation from man is empty. {59:14} In God, we will act virtuously. And those who trouble us, he will lead to nothing.

(Psalm 60) (Psalm 61) {60:1} Unto the end. With hymns, of David. {60:2} O God, pay attention to my supplication. Be attentive to my prayer. {60:3} I cried out to you from the ends of the earth. When my heart was in anguish, you exalted me on a rock. You have led me, {60:4} for you have been my hope, a tower of strength before the face of the enemy. {60:5} I will dwell in your tabernacle forever. I will be protected under the cover of your wings. {60:6} For you, my God, have listened to my prayer. You have granted an inheritance to those who fear your name. {60:7} You will add days to the days of the king, to his years, even to the time of generation after generation. {60:8} He remains in eternity, in the sight of God. Who will long for his mercy and truth? {60:9} So I will compose a psalm to your name, forever and ever, so that I may repay my vows from day to day.

(Psalm 61) (Psalm 62) {61:1} Unto the end. For Jeduthun. A Psalm of David. {61:2} Will my soul not be subject to God? For from him is my salvation. {61:3} Yes, he himself is my God and my salvation. He is my supporter; I will be moved no more. {61:4} How is it that you rush against a man? Every one of you puts to death, as if you were pulling down a ruined wall, leaning over and falling apart. {61:5} So, truly, they intended to reject my price. I ran in thirst. They blessed with their mouth and cursed with their heart. {61:6} Yet, truly, my soul will be subject to God. For from him is my patience. {61:7} For he is my God and my Savior. He is my helper; I will not be expelled. {61:8} In God is my salvation and my glory. He is the God of my help, and my hope is in God. {61:9} All peoples gathered together: trust in him. Pour out your hearts in his sight. God is our helper for eternity. {61:10} So, truly, the sons of men are untrustworthy. The sons of men are liars in the scales, so that, by emptiness, they may deceive among themselves. {61:11} Do not trust in iniquity, and do not desire plunder. If riches flow toward you, do not be willing to set your heart on them. {61:12} God has spoken once. I have heard two things: that power belongs to God, {61:13} and that mercy belongs to you, O Lord. For you will repay each one according to his works.

(Psalm 62) (Psalm 63) {62:1} A Psalm of David, when he was in the desert of Idumea. {62:2} O God, my God: to you, I keep vigil until first light. For you, my soul has thirsted, to you my body, in so many ways. {62:3} By a deserted land, both inaccessible and waterless, so have I appeared in the sanctuary before you, in order to behold your virtue and your glory. {62:4} For your mercy is better than life itself. It is you my lips will praise. {62:5} So will I bless you in my life, and I will lift up my hands in your name. {62:6} Let my soul be filled, as if with narrow and fatness; and my mouth will give praise with exultant lips. {62:7} When I have remembered you on my bed in the morning, I will meditate on you. {62:8} For you have been my helper. And I will exult under the cover of your wings. {62:9} My soul has clung close to you. Your right hand has supported me. {62:10} Truly, these ones have sought my soul in vain. They will enter into the lower parts of the earth. {62:11} They will be delivered into the hand of the sword. They will be the portions of foxes. {62:12} Truly, the king will rejoice in God: all those who swear by him will be praised, because the mouth of those who speak iniquity has been blocked.

(Psalm 63) (Psalm 64) {63:1} Unto the end. A Psalm of David. {63:2} Hear, O God, my prayer of supplication. Rescue my soul from the fear of the enemy. {63:3} You have protected me from the assembly of the malignant, from a multitude of workers of iniquity. {63:4} For they have sharpened their tongues like a sword; they have formed their bow into a bitter thing, {63:5} so that they may shoot arrows from hiding at the immaculate. {63:6} They will suddenly shoot arrows at him, and they will not be afraid. They are resolute in their wicked talk. They have discussed hidden snares. They have said, “Who will see them?” {63:7} They have been searching carefully for iniquities. Their exhaustive search has failed. Man will approach with a deep heart, {63:8} and God will be exalted. The arrows of the little ones have become their wounds, {63:9} and their tongues have been weakened against them. All those who saw them have been troubled; {63:10} and every man was afraid. And they announced the works of God, and they understood his acts. {63:11} The just will rejoice in the Lord, and they will hope in him. And all the uprighf of heart will be praised.

(Psalm 64) (Psalm 65) {64:1} Unto the end. A Psalm of David. A Canticle of Jeremiah and Ezekiel to the people of the captivity, when they began to go into exile. {64:2} O God, a hymn adorns you in Zion, and a vow will be repaid to you in Jerusalem. {64:3} Hear my prayer: all flesh will come to you. {64:4} Words of iniquity have prevailed over us. And you will pardon our impieties. {64:5} Blessed is he whom you have chosen and taken up. He will dwell in your courts. We will be filled with the good things of your house. Holy is your temple: {64:6} wonderful in equity. Hear us, O God our Savior, the hope of all the ends of the earth and of a sea far away. {64:7} You prepare the mountains in your virtue, wrapped with power. {64:8} You stir up the depths of the sea, the noise of its waves. The nations will be troubled, {64:9} and those who dwell at the limits will be afraid, before your signs. You will make the passing of morning and evening enjoyable. {64:10} You have visited the earth, and you have saturated it. You have enriched it in so many ways. The river of God has been filled with water. You have prepared their food. For thus is its preparation. {64:11} Drench its streams, multiply its fruits; it will spring up and rejoice in its showers. {64:12} You will bless the crown of the year with your kindness, and your fields will be filled with abundance. {64:13} The beauty of the desert will fatten, and the hills will be wrapped with exultation. {64:14} The rams of the sheep have been clothed, and the valleys will abound with grain. They will cry out; yes, they will even utter a hymn.

[Psalm 65] (Psalm 66) {65:1} Unto the end. A Canticle Psalm of the Resurrection. Shout joyfully to God, all the earth. {65:2} Proclaim a psalm to his name. Give glory to his praise. {65:3} Exclaim to God, “How terrible are your works, O Lord!” According to the fullness of your virtue, your enemies will speak lies about you. {65:4} Let all the earth adore you and sing psalms to you. May it sing a psalm to your name. {65:5} Draw near and see the works of God, who is terrible in his counsels over the sons of men. {65:6} He converts the sea into dry land. They will cross the river on foot. There, we will rejoice in him. {65:7} He rules by his virtue for eternity. His eyes gaze upon the nations. May those who exasperate him, not be exalted in themselves. {65:8} Bless our God, you Gentiles, and make the voice of his praise be heard. {65:9} He has set my soul toward life, and he has granted that my feet may not be shaken. {65:10} For you, O God, have tested us. You have examined and he has granted that my feet may not be shaken. {65:11} Drench its streams, multiply its fruits; it will spring up and rejoice in its showers. {65:12} You will bless the crown of the year with your kindness, and your fields will be filled with abundance. {65:13} The beauty of the desert will fatten, and the hills will be wrapped with exultation. {65:14} The rams of the sheep have been clothed, and the valleys will abound with grain. They will cry out; yes, they will even utter a hymn.

[Psalm 66] (Psalm 67) {66:1} Unto the end. With hymns, a Canticle Psalm of David. {66:2} May God have mercy on us and bless us. May he shine upon our salvation among all nations. {66:3} So may we know your way upon the earth, your salvation among all nations. {66:4} Let the peoples confess to you, O God. Let all the peoples confess to you. {66:5} May the nations rejoice and exult. For you judge the peoples with equity, and you direct the nations on earth. {66:6} Let the peoples confess to you, O God. Let all the peoples confess to you. {66:7} The earth has provided her fruit. May God, our God, bless us. {66:8} May God bless us, and may all the ends of the earth fear him.

[Psalm 67] (Psalm 68) {67:1} Unto the end. A Canticle Psalm of David himself. {67:2} May God rise up, and may his enemies be scattered, and may those who hate him flee from before his face. {67:3} Just as smoke vanishes, so may they vanish. Just as wax flows away before the face of fire, so may sinners pass away before the face of God. {67:4} And so, let the just feast, and let them exult in the sight of God and be delighted in gladness. {67:5} Sing to God, sing a psalm to his name. Make a path for him, who ascends over the west. The Lord is his name. Exult in his sight; they will be stirred up before his face, {67:6} the father of orphans and the judge of widows. God is in his holy place. {67:7} It is God who makes men dwell in a house under one custom. He leads out those who are strongly bound, and similarly, those who exasperate, who dwell in sepulchers. {67:8} O God, when you departed in the sight of your people, when you passed through the desert, {67:9} the earth was moved, for the heavens rained down before the face of the God of Sinai, before the face of the God of Israel. {67:10} You will set aside for your inheritance, O God, a willing rain. And though it was weak, truly, you have made it perfect. {67:11} Your animals will dwell in it. O God, in your sweetness, you have provided for the poor. {67:12} The Lord will give the word to evangelizers, along with great virtue. {67:13} The King of virtue is beloved among the beloved. And the beauty of the house will divide spoils. {67:14} If you take your rest in the midst of the clergy, you will be like a dove whose wings are covered with fine silver and edged with pale gold. {67:15} When heaven discerns kings to be over her, they will be whitened with the snows of Zalmon. {67:16} The mountain of God is a fat mountain, a dense mountain, a thick mountain. {67:17} So then, why are you distrustful of dense mountains? The mountain on which God is well pleased to dwell, even there, the Lord will dwell until the end. {67:18} The chariot of God is ten thousand fold: thousands rejoice. The Lord is with them in Sinai, in the holy place. {67:19} You have ascended on high; you have taken captivity captive. You have accepted gifts among men. For even those who do not believe dwell with the Lord God. {67:20} Blessed is the Lord, day after day. The God of our salvation will make our journey prosper for us. {67:21} Our God is the God who will bring about our salvation, and our Lord is the Lord who has brought an end to death. {67:22} So then, truly, God will break the heads of his enemies, the hairy skull of those who wander around in their offenses. {67:23} The Lord said: I will turn them away from Bashan, I will turn them into the depths of the sea, {67:24} so that your feet may be soaked in the blood of your enemies, so that the tongue of your dogs may be soaked with the same. {67:25} O God, they have seen your arrival, the arrival of my God, of my king who is in a holy place. {67:26} The leaders went ahead, united with the singers of psalms, in the midst of girls playing on timbrels. {67:27} In the churches, bless the Lord God from the fountains of Israel. {67:28} In that place, Benjamin is a youth in ecstasy of mind. The leaders of Judah are their governors: the leaders of Zebulun, the leaders of Naphtali. {67:29} Command by your virtue, O God. Confirm in this place, O God, what you have wrought in us. {67:30} Before your temple in Jerusalem, kings will offer gifts to you. {67:31} Rebuke the wild beasts of the reeds, a congregation of bulls with the cows of the people, for they seek to exclude those who have been tested like silver. Scatter the nations that are pleased by wars. {67:32} Ambassadors will come out of Egypt. Ethiopia will offer in advance her hands to God. {67:33} Sing to God, O kingdoms of the earth. Sing psalms to the Lord. Sing psalms to God. {67:34} He ascends, up to the heavens of the heavens, toward the east. Behold, he will utter his voice, the voice of virtue. {67:35} Give glory to God beyond Israel. His magnificence and his virtue is in the clouds. {67:36} God is wonderful in his saints. The God of Israel himself will give virtue and strength to his people. Blessed is God.

[Psalm 68] (Psalm 69) {68:1} Unto the end. For those who will be changed: of David. {68:2} Save me, O God, for the waters have entered, even to my soul. {68:3} I have become stuck in a deep quagmire, and there is no firm footing. I have arrived at the height of the sea, and a tempest has overwhelmed me. {68:4} I have endured hardships, while crying out. My jaws have become hoarse; my eyes have failed. Meanwhile, I hope in my God. {68:5} Those who hate me without cause have been multiplied beyond the hairs of my head. My enemies, who persecuted me unjustly, have been strengthened. Then I was required to pay for what I did not take. {68:6} O God, you know my foolishness, and my offenses have not been hidden from you. {68:7} Let those who wait for you, O Lord, the Lord of hosts, not be ashamed in me. Let those who seek you, O God of Israel, not be confounded over me. {68:8} For because of you, I have endured reproach; confusion has covered my face. {68:9} I have become a stranger to my brothers and a sojourner to the sons of my mother. {68:10} For zeal for your house has consumed me, and the reproaches of those who reproached you have fallen upon me. {68:11} And I covered my soul with fasting, and it has become a reproach to me. {68:12} And I put on a haircloth as my garment, and I became a parable to them. {68:13} Those who sat at the gate spoke against me, and those who drank wine made me their song. {68:14} But as for me, truly, my prayer is to you, O Lord. This time has pleased you well, O God. In the multitude of your mercy, in the truth of your salvation, hear me. {68:15} Rescue me from the quagmire, so that I may not become trapped. Free me from those who hate me and from deep waters. {68:16} Do not allow the tempest of water to submerge me, nor the deep to absorb me. And do not allow the well to close in on me. {68:17} Hear me, O Lord, for your mercy is kind. Look upon me, according to the fullness of your compassion. {68:18} And do not turn your face away from your servant, for I am in trouble: heed me quickly. {68:19} Attend to my soul, and free it. Rescue me, because of my enemies. {68:20} You know my reproach, and my confusion, and my reverence. {68:21} All those who trouble me are in your sight; my heart has anticipated reproach and misery. And I sought for one who might grieve together with me, but there was no one, and for one who might console me, and I found no one. {68:22} And they gave me gall for my food. And in my thirst, they gave me vinegar to drink. {68:23} Let their table be a snare before them, and a retribution, and a scandal. {68:24} Let their eyes be darkened, so that they may not see, and may their back always be crooked. {68:25} Pour out your indignation upon them, and may the fury of your anger take hold of them. {68:26} May their dwelling place be deserted, and may there be no one who dwells in their tabernacles. {68:27} For they persecuted whomever you struck. And they have added to the grief of my wounds. {68:28} Assign an iniquity upon their iniquity, and may they not enter into your justice. {68:29} Delete them from the Book of the Living, and let them not be written down with the just. {68:30} I am poor and sorrowful, but your salvation, O God, has taken me up. {68:31} I will praise the name of God with a canticle, and I will magnify him with praise. {68:32} And it will please God more than a new calf producing horns and hoofs. {68:33} Let the poor see and rejoice. Seek God, and your soul will live. {68:34} For the Lord has heard the poor, and he has not despised his prisoners. {68:35} Let the heavens and the earth praise him: the sea, and everything that crawls in it. {68:36} For God will save Zion, and the cities of Judah will be built up. And they will dwell there, and they will acquire it by inheritance. {68:37} And the offspring of his servants will possess it; and those who love his name will dwell in it.
fail, who drag down my soul. Let them be covered with confusion and shame, who seek evils for me. {70:14} But I will always have hope. And I will add more to all your praise. {70:15} My mouth will announce your justice, your salvation all day long. For I have not known letters. {70:16} I will enter into the powers of the Lord. I will be mindful of your justice alone, O Lord. {70:17} You have taught me from my youth, O God. And so I will declare your wonders continuously, {70:18} even in old age and with grey hairs. Do not abandon me, O God, while I announce your arm to every future generation: your power {70:19} and your justice, O God, even to the highest great things that you have done. O God, who is like you? {70:20} How great is the tribulation that you have revealed to me: very great and evil. And so, turning back, you have brought me to life, and you have led me back again from the abyss of the earth. {70:21} You have multiplied your magnificence. And so, turning back to me, you have consoled me. {70:22} Therefore, I will confess your truth to you, with the instruments of the Psalter. O God, I will sing psalms to you with stringed instruments, O Holy One of Israel. {70:23} My lips will exult, when I sing to you, and also my soul, which you have redeemed. {70:24} And even my tongue will meditate on your justice all day long, when those who seek evils for me have been confounded and set in awe.

[Psalm 71] (Psalm 72) {71:1} A Psalm according to Solomon. {71:2} Give your judgment, O God, to the king, and your justice to the king's son, to judge your people with justice and your poor with judgment. {71:3} Let the mountains take up peace for the people, and the hills, justice. {71:4} He will judge the poor of the people, and he will bring salvation to the sons of the poor. And he will humble the false accuser. {71:5} And he will remain, with the sun and before the moon, from generation to generation. {71:6} He will descend like rain upon fleece, and like showers showering upon the earth. {71:7} In his days, justice will rise like the sun, with abundance of peace, until the moon is taken away. {71:8} And he will rule from sea to sea and from the river to the limits of the whole world. {71:9} In his sight, the Ethiopians will fall prostrate, and his enemies will lick the ground. {71:10} The kings of Tarshish and the islands will offer gifts. The kings of Arabia and of Seba will bring gifts. {71:11} And all the kings of the earth shall adore him. All nations will serve him. {71:12} For he will free the poor from the powerful, and the poor one who has no helper. {71:13} He will spare the poor and the indigent, and he will bring salvation to the souls of the poor. {71:14} He will redeem their souls from usuries and from iniquity, and their names shall be honorable in his sight. {71:15} And he will live, and to him will be given from the gold of Arabia, and by him they will always adore. They will bless him all day long. {71:16} And there will be a firmament on earth, at the summits of mountains: its fruits will be extolled above Lebanon, and those of the city will flourish like the grass of the earth. {71:17} May his name be blessed forever; may his name remain before the sun. And all the tribes of the earth will be blessed in him. All nations will magnify him. {71:18} Blessed is the Lord, God of Israel, who alone does wondrous things. {71:19} And blessed is the name of his majesty in eternity. And all the earth will be filled with his majesty. Amen. Amen. {71:20} The praises of David, the son of Jesse, have reached an end.

[Psalm 72] (Psalm 73) {72:1} A Psalm of Asaph. How good is God to Israel, to those who are upright in heart. {72:2} But my feet were nearly moved; my steps had nearly slipped. {72:3} For I was zealous over the iniquitous, seeing the peacefulness of sinners. {72:4} For they have no respect for their death, nor do they have support in their wounds. {72:5} They are not with the hardships of men, nor will they be scourged with men. {72:6} Therefore, arrogance has held on to them. They have been covered with their iniquity and impiety. {72:7} Their iniquity has proceeded, as if from fat. They have parted from the affection of the heart. {72:8} They have thought and spoken wickedness. They have spoken iniquity in high places. {72:9} They have set their mouth against heaven, and their tongue has traversed the earth. {72:10} Therefore, my people will be converted here, and fullness of days will be found in them. {72:11} And they said, "How would God know?" and, "Isn't there knowledge in high places?" {72:12} Behold, these are sinners, and, abounding in this age, they have obtained riches. {72:13} And I said: So then, it is without purpose that I have justified my heart and washed my hands among the innocent. {72:14} And I have been scourged all day long, and I have received my chastisement in the mornings. {72:15} If I were to say that I would explain this: Behold, I would condemn this nation of your sons. {72:16} I considered, so that I might know this. It is a hardship before me, {72:17} until I may enter into the Sanctuary of God, and understand it to its last part. {72:18} So, because of deceitfulness, truly, you have placed it before them. While they were being lifted up, you were casting them down. {72:19} How have they been brought to desolation? They have suddenly failed. They have perished because of their iniquity. {72:20} As a dream is to those who awaken, O Lord, so will you reduce their image to nothing in your city. {72:21} For my heart has been inflamed, and my temperament has been changed. {72:22} And so, I have been reduced to nothing, and I did not know it. {72:23} I have become like a beast of burden to you, and I am always with you. {72:24} You have held my right hand. And in your will, you have conducted me, and with your glory, you have taken me up. {72:25} For what is there for me in heaven? And what do I wish for on earth before you? {72:26} My body has failed, and my heart: O God of my heart, and God my portion, into eternity. {72:27} For behold, those who put themselves far from you will perish. You have perished all those who fornicate away from you. {72:28} But it is good for me to adhere to God, to put my hope in the Lord God, so that I may announce all your prophecies, at the gates of the daughter of Zion.

[Psalm 73] (Psalm 74) {73:1} The understanding of Asaph. O God, why have you rejected us to the end. Why has your fury become enraged over the sheep of your pasture? {73:2} Be mindful of your congregation, which you have possessed from the beginning. You redeemed the scepter of your inheritance, mount Zion, in which you have dwelt. {73:3} Lift up your hands against their arrogance in the end. How great the malice of the enemy has been in the sanctuary! {73:4} And those who hate you have been glorified, in the midst of your solemnity. They have set up their own signs as a proof, {73:5} as if it had been issued from on high; yet they did not understand. As in a forest of chopped wood, {73:6} they have cut down the entrances themselves. With axe and hatchet, they have brought it down. {73:7} They have set fire to your Sanctuary. They have polluted the tabernacle of your name on earth. {73:8} They have said in their heart, the whole group of them together: “Let us cause all the feast days of God to cease from the land.” {73:9} We have not seen our roof; there is now no prophet. And he will no longer know us.” {73:10} How long, O God, will the enemy place blame? Is the adversary to provoke your name until the end? {73:11} Why do you turn your hand away, even your right hand, from the midst of your sinews, until the end? {73:12} But God is our king before all ages. He has wrought salvation in the midst of the earth. {73:13} In your virtue, you confirmed the sea. You crushed the heads of the serpents in the waters. {73:14} You have broken the heads of the serpent. You have given him as food for the people of the Ethiopians. {73:15} You have disrupted the fountains and the torrents. You have dried up the rivers of Ethan. {73:16} Yours is the day, and yours is the night. You have made the morning light and the sun. {73:17} You have made all the limits of the earth. The summer and the spring were formed by you. {73:18} Be mindful of this: the enemy placed blame against the Lord, and a foolish people has incited against your name. {73:19} Do not hand over to beasts the souls that confess to you, and do not forget the souls of your poor until the end. {73:20} Consider your covenant. For those who have been darkened upon the earth have been filled by the iniquity of the houses. {73:21} Do not allow the humble to be turned away in confusion. The poor and the needy will praise your name. {73:22} Rise up, O God, judge your own case. Call to mind the accusations against you, which are made by the foolish all day long. {73:23} Do not forget the voices of your adversaries. The arrogance of those who hate you rises up continually.

[Psalm 74] (Psalm 75) {74:1} Unto the end. May you not be corrupted. A Canticle Psalm of Asaph. {74:2} We will confess to you, O God. We will confess, and we will call upon your name. We will describe your wonders. {74:3} While I have time, I will judge justices. {74:4} The earth has been dissolved, with all who dwell in it. I have confirmed its pillars. {74:5} I said to the iniquitous: “Do not act unjustly,” and to the offenders: “Do not exalt the horn.” {74:6} Do not exalt your horn on high. Do not speak iniquity against God. {74:7} For it is neither from the east, nor from the west, nor before the desert mountains. {74:8} For God is judge. This one he humbles and that one he exalts. {74:9} For, in the hand of the Lord, there is a cup of undiluted wine, full of consternation. And he has tipped it from here to there. So, truly, its dregs have not been emptied. All the sinners of the earth will drink. {74:10} But I will announce it in every age. I will sing to the God of Jacob. {74:11} And I will break all the horns of sinners. And the horns of the just will be exalted.

[Psalm 75] (Psalm 76) {75:1} Unto the end. With Praises. A Psalm of Asaph. A Canticle to the Assyrians. {75:2} In Judea, God is known. In Israel, his name is great. {75:3} And his place has been formed with peace. And his dwelling place is in Zion. {75:4} In that place, he has broken the powers of the bows, the shield, the sword, and the battle. {75:5} You illuminate wondrously from the mountains of eternity. {75:6} All the foolish of heart have been disturbed. They have slept their sleep, and all the men of riches have found nothing in their hands. {75:7} At your rebuke, O God of Jacob, those who were mounted on horseback have fallen asleep. {75:8} You are terrible, and so, who can withstand you? From thence is your wrath. {75:9} You have caused judgment to be heard from heaven. The earth trembled and was quieted, {75:10} when God rose up in judgment in order to bring salvation to all the meek of the earth. {75:11} For the thinking of man will confess to you, and the legacy of his thinking will keep a feast day to you. {75:12} Make vows and pay them to the Lord, your God. All you who surround him bring gifts: to him who is terrible, {75:13} even to him who takes away the spirit of leaders, to him who is terrible with the kings of the earth.

[Psalm 76] (Psalm 77) {76:1} Unto the end. For Jeduthun. A Psalm of Asaph. {76:2} I cried out to the Lord with my voice, to God with my voice, and he attended to me. {76:3} In the days of my tribulation, I sought God, with my hands opposite him in the night, and I was not deceived. My soul refused to be consoled. {76:4} I was mindful of God, and I was delighted, and I was distressed, and my spirit fell away. {76:5} My eyes anticipated the vigils. I was disturbed, and I did not speak. {76:6} I considered the days of antiquity, and I held the years of eternity in my mind. {76:7} And I meditated in the night with my heart, and I was distressed, and I examined my spirit. {76:8} So then, will God reject for eternity? Will he not continue to allow himself to show favor? {76:9} Or, will he cut off his mercy in the end, from generation to generation? {76:10} And would God ever forget to be merciful? Or, would he, in his wrath, restrict his mercies? {76:11} And I said, “Now I have begun. This change is from the right hand of the Most High.” {76:12} I was mindful of the works of the Lord. For I will be mindful from the beginning of your wonders, {76:13} and I will meditate on all your works. And I will take part in your intentions. {76:14} Your way, O God, is in what is holy. Which God is great like our God? {76:15} You are the God who performs miracles. You have made your virtue known among the peoples. {76:16} With your arm, you have redeemed your people, the sons of Jacob and of Joseph. {76:17} The waters saw you, O God, the waters saw you, and they were afraid, and the depths were stirred up. {76:18} Great was the sound of the waters. The clouds uttered a voice. For your arrows also pass by. {76:19} The voice of your thunder is like a wheel. Your flashes have illuminated the whole world. The earth has quaked and trembled. {76:20} Your way is through the sea, and your paths are through many waters. And your traces will not be known. {76:21} You have conducted your people like sheep, by the hand of Moses and Aaron.
praises of the Lord, and his virtues, and the wonders that he has done. (77:5) And he has received testimony with Jacob, and he has set a law within Israel. Such great things, he has commanded our fathers, so as to make these things known to their sons, (77:6) so that another generation might know them, and so that the sons, who will be born and who will grow up, shall describe them to their sons. (77:7) So then, may they put their hope in God, and may they not forget the works of God, and may they seek his commandments.

(77:8) May they not become like their fathers, a perverse and exasperating generation: a generation that does not straighten their heart and whose spirit is not trustworthy with God. (77:9) The sons of Ephraim, who bend and shoot the bow, have been turned back in the day of battle. (77:10) They have not kept the covenant of God. And they were not willing to walk in his law. (77:11) And they have been forgetful of his benefits, and of his miracle, which he revealed to them. (77:12) He performed miracles in the sight of their fathers, in the land of Egypt, in the field of Tanis. (77:13) He broke the sea and he led them through. And he stationed the waters, as if in a vessel. (77:14) And he led them with a cloud by day, and with illumination by fire throughout the night. (77:15) He broke through the rock in the wasteland, and he gave them to drink, as if from the great abyss. (77:16) He brought forth water from the rock, and he conducted the waters, as if they were rivers. (77:17) And yet, they continued to sin against him. In a waterless place, they provoked the Most High with resentment. (77:18) And they tempted God in their hearts, by asking for food according to their desires. (77:19) And they spoke badly about God. They said, “Would God be able to prepare a table in the desert? (77:20) He struck the rock, and so waters flowed and the torrents flooded, but would even he be able to provide bread, or provide a table, for his people?” (77:21) Therefore, the Lord heard, and he was dismayed, and a fire was kindled within Jacob, and an anger ascended into Israel. (77:22) For they neither put their trust in God, nor did they hope in his salvation. (77:23) And he commanded the clouds from above, and he opened the doors of heaven. (77:24) And he rained down manna upon them to eat, and he gave them the bread of heaven. (77:25) Man ate the bread of Angels. He sent them provisions in abundance. (77:26) He transferred the south wind from heaven, and, in his virtue, he brought in the Southwest wind. (77:27) And he rained down flesh upon them, as if it were dust, and feathered birds, as if they were the sand of the sea. (77:28) And they fell down in the midst of their camp, encircling their tabernacles. (77:29) And they ate until they were greatly satisfied, and he brought them according to their desires. (77:30) They were not cheated out of what they wanted. Their food was still in their mouth, (77:31) and then the wrath of God came upon them. And he slew the fat ones among them, and he impeded the elect of Israel. (77:32) In all these things, they continued to sin, and they were not trustworthy with his miracles. (77:33) And their days faded away into vanity, and their years with haste. (77:34) When he slew them, then they sought him. And they returned, and they drew near to him in the early morning. (77:35) And they were mindful that God is their helper and that the Most High God is their redeemer. (77:36) And they chose him with their mouth, and then they lied to him with their tongue. (77:37) For their heart was not upright with him, nor have they been living faithfully in his covenant.

(77:38) Yet he is merciful, and he will pardon their sins. And he will not destroy them. And he has abundantly turned aside his own wrath. And he did not enflame his wrath entirely. (77:39) And he remembered that they are flesh: with a spirit that goes forth and does not return. (77:40) How often did they provoke him in the desert and stir him to wrath in a waterless place? (77:41) And they turned back and tempted God, and they exasperated the Holy One of Israel. (77:42) They did not remember his hand, in the day that he redeemed them from the hand of the one troubling them. (77:43) Thus, he positioned his signs in Egypt and his wonders in the field of Tanis. (77:44) And he turned their rivers into blood, along with their rain showers, so that they could not drink. (77:45) He sent among them the common fly, and it devourcd them, and the frog, and it scattered them. (77:46) And he gave up their fruits to mold and their labors to the locust. (77:47) And he slew their vineyards with hail and their mulberry trees with severe frost. (77:48) And he delivered their cattle to the hail and their possessions to fire. (77:49) And he sent the wrath of his indignation among them: indignation and wrath and tribulation, sent forth by evil angels. (77:50) He made way for the path of his anger. He did not spare their souls from death. And he enclosed their beasts of burden in death. (77:51) And he struck all the first-born in the land of Egypt: the first-fruits of all their labor in the tabernacles of Ham. (77:52) And he took away his own people like sheep, and he led them through the wilderness like a flock. (77:53) And he led them out in hope, and they did not fear. And the sea covered their enemies. (77:54) And he led them to the mountain of his sanctification: the mountain that his right hand had acquired. And he cast out the Gentiles before their face. And he divided their land by lot to them, with a line of distribution. (77:55) And he caused the tribes of Israel to dwell in their tabernacles. (77:56) Yet they tempted and aggravated God Most High, and they did not keep his testaments. (77:57) And they turned themselves aside, and they did not serve the covenant. In the same manner as their fathers, they were turned backwards, like a crooked bow. (77:58) They impelled him to anger on their hills, and they provoked him to rivalry with their graven images. (77:59) God listened, and he spurned them, and he reduced Israel greatly, almost to nothing. (77:60) And he rejected the tabernacle of Shiloh, his tabernacle where he had dwelt among men. (77:61) And he delivered their virtue into captivity, and their beauty into the hands of the enemy. (77:62) And he enclosed his people with the sword, and he spurred his inheritance. (77:63) Fire consumed their young men, and their virgins were not lamented. (77:64) Their priests fell by the sword, and their widows did not weep. (77:65) And the Lord was awakened, as if out of sleep, and like a powerful man impaired by wine. (77:66) And he struck his enemies on the back. He gave them over to everlasting disgrace. (77:67) And he rejected the tabernacle of Joseph, and he did not choose the tribe of Ephraim. (77:68) But he chose the tribe of Judah: mount Zion, which he loved. (77:69) And he built up his sanctuary, like a single-horned beast, in the land that he founded for all ages. (77:70) And he chose his servant David, and he took him from the flocks of the sheep: he received him from following the ewes with their young, (77:71) in order to pasture Jacob his servant and Israel his inheritance.
{79:7} And he fed them with the innocence of his heart. And he led them with the understanding of his hands.

[Psalm 78] (Psalm 79) {78:1} A Psalm of Asaph. O God, the Gentiles have entered into your inheritance; they have polluted your holy temple. They have set Jerusalem as a place to tend fruit trees. {78:2} They have placed the dead bodies of your servants as food for the birds of the sky, the flesh of your saints for the beasts of the earth. {78:3} They have poured out their blood like water all around Jerusalem, and there was no one who would bury them. {78:4} We have become a disgrace to our neighbors, an object of ridicule and mockery to those who are around us. {78:5} How long, O Lord? Will you be angry until the end? Will your zeal be kindled like a fire? {78:6} Pour out your wrath among the Gentiles, who have not known you, and upon the kingdoms that have not invoked your name. {78:7} For they have devoured Jacob, and they have desolated his place. {78:8} Do not remember our iniquities of the past. May your mercies quickly intercept us, for we have become exceedingly poor. {78:9} Help us, O God, our Savior. And free us, Lord, for the glory of your name. And forgive us our sins for the sake of your name. {78:10} Let them not say among the Gentiles, “Where is their God?” And may your name become known among the nations before our eyes. For the retribution of your servants’ blood, which has been poured out: {78:11} may the groans of the shackled enter before you. According to the greatness of your arm, take possession of the sons of those who have been killed. {78:12} And repay the sons of those who have been killed. {78:13} But we are your people and the sheep of your pasture: we will give thanks to you in all ages. From generation to generation, we will announce your praise.

[Psalm 79] (Psalm 80) {79:1} Unto the end. For those who will be changed. The testimony of Asaph. A Psalm. {79:2} The One who reigns over Israel: Be attentive. For you lead Joseph like a sheep. The One who sits upon the cherubim: Shine forth {79:3} in the presence of Ephraim, Benjamin, and Manasseh. Awaken your power and draw cherubim: Shine forth {79:4} in the presence of Ephraim, lead Joseph like a sheep. The One who sits upon the throne of the same ones who brought reproach against you, O Lord. {79:5} For you will inherit the nations. The One who reigns over Israel: Be attentive. For you will inherit the nations. {79:6} You called upon me in tribulation, and I freed you. I heard you within the hidden tempest. I tested you with waters of contradiction. {79:7} But we are your people and the sheep of your pasture: we will give thanks to you in all ages. From generation to generation, we will announce your praise.

[Psalm 80] (Psalm 81) {80:1} Unto the end. For the wine and oil presses. A Psalm of Asaph himself. {80:2} Exult before God our helper. Sing joyfully to the God of Jacob. {80:3} Take up a psalm, and bring forth the timbrel: a pleasing Psalter with stringed instruments. {80:4} Sound the trumpet at the new moon, on the noteworthy day of your solemnity, {80:5} for it is a precept in Israel and a judgment for the God of Jacob. {80:6} He set it as a testimony with Joseph, when he went out of the land of Egypt. He heard a tongue that he did not know. {80:7} He turned the burdens away from his back. His hands had been a slave to baskets. {80:8} You called upon me in tribulation, and I freed you. I heard you within the hidden tempest. I tested you with waters of contradiction. {80:9} My people, listen and I will call you to testify. If, O Israel, you will pay heed to me, {80:10} then there will be no new god among you, nor will you adore a foreign god. {80:11} For I am the Lord your God, who led you out of the land of Egypt. Widen your mouth, and I will fill it. {80:12} But my people did not hear my voice, and Israel was not attentive to me. {80:13} And so, I sent them away, according to the desires of their heart. They will go forth according to their own inventions. {80:14} If my people had heard me, if Israel had walked in my ways, {80:15} I would have humbled their enemies, as if it were nothing, and I would have sent my hand upon those who troubled them. {80:16} The enemies of the Lord have lied to him, and their time will come, in every age. {80:17} And he fed them from the fat of the grain, and he saturated them with honey from the rock.
unanimously. Joined together against you, they ordained a covenant: {82:7} the tabernacle of Edomites and Ishmaelites, and Moab and the Hagarites, {82:8} and Gebal, and Ammon, and Amalek, the foreigners among the inhabitants of Tyre.
{82:9} For even Assur comes with them. They have become the helpers of the sons of Lot. {82:10} Do to them as you did to Midian and Sisera, just as to Jabin at the torrent of Kishon.
{82:11} They perished at Endor, and they became like the dung of the earth. {82:12} Set their leaders to be like Oreb {82:13} and Zeeb, and Zebah and Zalmunna: all their leaders

[Psalm 83] (Psalm 84) {83:1} Unto the end. For the wine and oil presses. A Psalm to the sons of Korah. {83:2} How beloved are your tabernacles, O Lord of hosts! {83:3} My soul longs and faints for the courts of the Lord. My heart and my flesh have exulted in the living God. {83:4} For even the sparrow has found a home for himself, and the turtle-dove a nest for herself, where she may lay her young: your altars, O Lord of hosts, my king and my God. {83:5} Blessed are those who dwell in your house, O Lord. They will praise you from age to age. {83:6} Blessed is the man whose help is from you.
In his heart, he is disposed to ascend {83:7} from the valley of tears, from the place which he has determined. {83:8} For even the lawgiver will provide a blessing: they will go from virtue to virtue. The God of gods will be seen in Zion.
{83:9} O Lord, God of hosts, hear my prayer. Pay attention, O God of Jacob. {83:10} O Lord, gazed upon our protector, and look upon the face of your Christ. {83:11} For one day in your courts is better than thousands elsewhere. I have chosen to be lowly in the house of my God, rather than to dwell in the tabernacles of sinners. {83:12} For God loves mercy and truth. The Lord will give grace and glory. {83:13} He will not withhold good things from those who walk in innocence. O Lord of hosts, blessed is the man who hopes in you.

[Psalm 84] (Psalm 85) {84:1} Unto the end. A Psalm to the sons of Korah. {84:2} O Lord, you have blessed your land.
You have turned aside the captivity of Jacob. {84:3} You have released the iniquity of your people. You have covered all their sins. {84:4} You have mitigated all your wrath. You have turned aside from the wrath of your indignation.
{84:5} Convert us, O God, our Savior, and turn your anger away from us. {84:6} Will you be angry with us forever? And will you extend your wrath from generation to generation?
{84:7} O God, you will turn back and revive us. And your people will rejoice in you. {84:8} O Lord, reveal to us your mercy, and grant to us your salvation. {84:9} I will listen to what the Lord God may be saying to me. For he will speak peace to his people, and to his saints, and to those who are being converted to the heart. {84:10} So then, truly his salvation is near to those who fear him, so that glory may inhabit our land. {84:11} Mercy and truth have met each other. Justice and peace have kissed. {84:12} Truth has risen from the earth, and justice has gazed down from heaven.
{84:13} For so will the Lord give goodness, and our earth will give her fruit. {84:14} Justice will walk before him, and he will set his steps upon the way.

[Psalm 85] (Psalm 86) {85:1} A Prayer of David himself.
Incline your ear, O Lord, and hear me. For I am needy and poor. {85:2} Preserve my soul, for I am holy. My God, bring salvation to your servant who hopes in you. {85:3} O Lord, be merciful to me, for I have cried out to you all day long.
{85:4} Give joy to the soul of your servant, for I have lifted up my soul to you, Lord. {85:5} For you are sweet and mild, Lord, and plentiful in mercy to all who call upon you.
{85:6} Pay attention, Lord, to my prayer, and attend to the voice of my supplication. {85:7} In the day of my tribulation, I cried out to you, because you heeded me. {85:8} There is no one like you among the gods, O Lord, and there is no one like you in your works. {85:9} All the nations, which you have made, will draw near and adore in your presence, O Lord. And they will glorify your name. {85:10} For you are great, and you perform wonders. You alone are God.
{85:11} Lead me, O Lord, in your way, and I will walk in your truth. May my heart rejoice, so that it will fear your name. {85:12} I will confess to you, O Lord my God, with my whole heart. And I will glorify your name in eternity.
{85:13} For your mercy toward me is great, and you have rescued my soul from the lower part of Hell. {85:14} O God, the iniquitous have risen up against me, and the synagogue of the powerful have sought my soul, and they have not placed you in their sight. {85:15} And you, Lord God, are compassionate and merciful, being patient and full of mercy and truthfulness. {85:16} Look down upon me and have mercy on me. Grant your authority to your servant, and bring salvation to the son of your handmaid. {85:17} Make me a sign of what is good, so that those who hate me, may look and be confounded. For you, O Lord, have helped me and consoled me.

[Psalm 86] (Psalm 87) {86:1} A Canticle Psalm to the sons of Korah. Its foundations are in the holy mountains: {86:2} the Lord loves the gates of Zion above all the tabernacles of Jacob. {86:3} Glorious things are being said of you, O City of God. {86:4} I will be mindful of Rahab and of Babylon knowing me. Behold, the foreigners, and Tyre, and the people of the Ethiopians: these have been there. {86:5} Will not Zion say that this man and that man were born in her?
And the Most High himself has founded her. {86:6} The Lord will explain, in the writings of peoples and of leaders, about those who have been in her. {86:7} For so the dwelling place within you is with all rejoicing.

[Psalm 87] (Psalm 88) {87:1} A Canticle Psalm to the sons of Korah. Unto the end. For Mahalah, to answer the understanding of Heman the Ezrahite. {87:2} O Lord, God of my salvation: I have cried out, day and night, in your presence. {87:3} Let my prayer enter in your sight. Incline your ear to my petition. {87:4} For my soul has been filled with evils, and my life has drawn near to Hell. {87:5} I am considered to be among those who will descend into the pit.
I have become like a man without assistance, {87:6} idle among the dead. I am like the wounded sleeping in sepulchers, whom you no longer remember, and who have been repelled by your hand. [87:7] They have lain me in the lower pit: in dark places and in the shadow of death. [87:8] Your fury has been confirmed over me. And you have brought all your waves upon me. [87:9] You have sent my acquaintances far from me. They have set me as an abomination to themselves. I was handed over, yet I did not depart. [87:10] My eyes languished before destitution. All day long, I cried out to you, O Lord. I stretched out my hands to you. [87:11] Will you perform wonders for the dead? Or will physicians raise to life, and so confess to you? [87:12] Could anyone declare your mercy in the sepulcher, or your truth from within perdition? [87:13] Will your wonders be known in the darkness, or your justice in the land of oblivion? [87:14] And I have cried out to you, O Lord, and in early morning, my prayer will come before you. [87:15] Lord, why do you reject my prayer? Why do you turn your face away from me? [87:16] I am poor, and I have been amid hardships from my youth. And, though I have been exalted, I am humbled and disturbed. [87:17] Your wrath has crossed into me, and your terrors have disturbed me. [87:18] They have surrounded me like water, all day long. They have surrounded me, all at once. [87:19] Friend and neighbor, and my acquaintances, you have sent far away from me, away from misery.

[Psalm 88] (Psalm 89) [88:1] The understanding of Ethan the Ezrahite. [88:2] I will sing the mercies of the Lord in generation to generation. [88:3] For you have said: Mercy will be built in the heavens, unto eternity. Your truth will be prepared there. [88:4] I have set up a covenant with my elect. I have sworn to David my servant: [88:5] I will prepare your offspring, even in eternity. And I will build up your throne, from generation to generation. [88:6] The heavens will confess your miracles, Lord, and also your truth, in the Church of the saints. [88:7] For who among the clouds is equal to the Lord? Who among the sons of God is like God? [88:8] God is glorified by the counsel of the saints. He is great and terrible above all those who are around him. [88:9] O Lord, God of hosts, who is like you? You are powerful, Lord, and your truth is all around you. [88:10] You rule over the power of the sea, and you even mitigate the movement of its waves. [88:11] You have humbled the arrogant one, like one who has been wounded. You have scattered your enemies with the arm of your strength. [88:12] Yours are the heavens, and yours is the earth. You founded the whole world in all its fullness. [88:13] You created the north and the sea. Tabor and Hermon will exult in your name. [88:14] Your arm acts with power. Let your hand be strengthened, and let your right hand be exalted. [88:15] Justice and judgment are the preparation of your throne. Mercy and truth will precede your face. [88:16] Blessed is the people that knows jubilation. They will walk in the light of your countenance, O Lord, and they will exult in your name all day long, and they will be exalted in your justice. [88:18] For you are the glory of their virtue, and in your goodness, our horn will be exalted. [88:19] For our assumption is of the Lord, and it is of our king, the holy one of Israel. [88:20] Then you spoke in a vision to your holy ones, and you said: I have stationed help with the powerful one, and I have exalted the elect one from my people. [88:21] I have found my servant David. I have anointed him with my holy oil. [88:22] For my hand will assist him, and my arm will fortify him. [88:23] The enemy will have no advantage over him, nor will the son of iniquity be positioned to harm him. [88:24] And I will cut down his enemies before his face. And those who hate him, I will turn to flight. [88:25] And my truth and my mercy will be with him. And his horn will be exalted in my name. [88:26] And I will place his hand on the sea and his right hand on the rivers. [88:27] He will invoke me: “You are my father, my God, and the support of my salvation.” [88:28] And I will make him the first-born, preeminent before the kings of the earth. [88:29] I will preserve my mercy for him eternally, and my covenant for him faithfully. [88:30] And I will set his offspring from generation to generation, and his throne like the days of heaven. [88:31] But if his sons abandon my law, and if they do not walk in my judgments, [88:32] if they profane my justices, and if they do not keep my commandments: [88:33] I will visit their iniquities with a rod, and their sins with a beating. [88:34] But I will not scatter my mercy from him, and I will not do harm to my truth. [88:35] And I will not profane my covenant, and I will not make void that which proceeds from my lips. [88:36] I have sworn by my holiness one time: I will not lie to David, [88:37] his offspring will remain for eternity. And his throne will be like the sun in my sight, [88:38] and, like the moon, it is perfected in eternity, and it is a faithful witness in heaven. [88:39] Yet, truly, you have rejected and despised, you have pushed away, my Christ. [88:40] You have overthrown the covenant of your servant. You have profaned his sanctuary on earth. [88:41] You have destroyed all his fences. You have made his territory dreadful. [88:42] All who pass by the way have plundered him. He has become a disgrace to his neighbors. [88:43] You have exalted the right hand of those who oppress him. You have brought joy to all his enemies. [88:44] You have diverted the help of his sword, and you have not assisted him in battle. [88:45] You have torn him away from cleansing, and you have smashed his throne down to the ground. [88:46] You have reduced the days of his time. You have flooded him with confusion. [88:47] How long, O Lord? Will you turn away unto the end? Will your wrath flare up like a fire? [88:48] Remember what my substance is. For could you really have appointed all the sons of men in vain? [88:49] Who is the man that will live, and yet not see death? Who will rescue his own soul from the hand of the underworld? [88:50] O Lord, where are your mercies of antiquity, just as you swore to David in your truth? [88:51] Be mindful, O Lord, of the disgrace of your servants (which I have sustained in my sinews) among many nations. [88:52] With these, your enemies have reproached you, O Lord; with these, they have reproached the commutation of your Christ. [88:53] Blessed is the Lord for all eternity. Amen. Amen.

[Psalm 89] (Psalm 90) [89:1] A prayer of Moses, the man of God. O Lord, you have been our refuge from generation to generation. [89:2] Before the mountains became, or the land was formed along with the world: from ages past, even to all ages, you are God. [89:3] And, lest man be turned aside in humiliation, you have said: Be converted, O sons of men.
{89:4} For a thousand years before your eyes are like the days of yesterday, which have passed by, and they are like a watch of the night, {89:5} which was held for nothing: so their years shall be. {89:6} In the morning, he may pass away like grass; in the morning, he may flower and pass away. In the evening, he will fall, and harden, and become dry. {89:7} For, at your wrath, we have withered away, and we have been disturbed by your fury. {89:8} You have placed our iniquities in your sight, our age in the illumination of your countenance. {89:9} For all our days have faded away, and at your wrath, we have fainted. Our years will be considered to be like a spider’s web. {89:10} The days of our years in them are seventy years. But in the powerful, they are eighty years, and more of these are with hardship and sorrow. For mildness has overwhelmed us, and we shall be corrected. {89:11} Who knows the power of your wrath? And, before fear, can your wrath {89:12} be numbered? So make known your right hand, along with men learned in heart, in wisdom. {89:13} Return, O Lord, how long? And may you be persuaded on behalf of your servants. {89:14} We were filled in the morning with your mercy, and we exulted and delighted all our days. {89:15} We have been rejoicing, because of the days in which you humbled us, because of the years in which we saw evils. {89:16} Look down upon your servants and upon their works, and direct their sons. {89:17} And may the splendor of the Lord our God be upon us. And so, direct the works of our hands over us; direct even the work of our hands.

{Psalm 90} {90:1} The Praise of a Canticle, of David. Whoever dwells with the assistance of the Most High will abide in the protection of the God of heaven. {90:2} He will say to the Lord, “You are my supporter and my refuge.” My God, I will hope in him. {90:3} For he has freed me from the snare of those who go hunting, and from the harsh word. {90:4} He will overshadow you with his shoulders, and you will hope under his wings. {90:5} His truth will surround you. {90:6} How great are your works, O Lord! Your thoughts have been made exceedingly deep. {90:7} A foolish man will not know these things, and a senseless one will not understand: {90:8} when sinners will have risen up like grass, and when all those who work iniquity will have appeared, that they shall pass away, age after age. {90:9} But you, O Lord, are the Most High for all eternity. {90:10} For behold your enemies, O Lord, for behold your enemies will perish, and all those who work iniquity will be dispersed. {90:11} And my horn will be exalted like that of the single-horned beast, and my old age will be exalted in fruitful mercy. {90:12} My eye has looked down upon my enemies, and my ear will hear of the malignant rising up against me. {90:13} The just one will flourish like the palm tree. He will be multiplied like the cedar of Lebanon. {90:14} Those planted in the house of the Lord will flourish in the courts of the house of our God. {90:15} They will still be multiplied in a fruitful old age, and they will endure well, {90:16} so that they may announce that the Lord our God is righteous and that there is no iniquity in him.

{Psalm 92} {92:1} The Praise of a Canticle, of David himself. In the time before the Sabbath, when the earth was founded. {92:2} The Lord has reigned. He has been clothed with beauty. {92:3} The Lord has been clothed with strength, and he has girded himself. Yet he has also confirmed the world, which will not be moved. {92:4} My throne is prepared from of old. You are from everlasting. {92:5} The floods have lifted up, O Lord, the floods have lifted up their voice. The floods have lifted up their waves, {92:6} before the noise of many waters. Wondrous are the surges of the sea; wondrous is the Lord on high. {92:7} Your testimonies have been made exceedingly trustworthy. Sanctity befits your house, O Lord, with length of days.

{Psalm 93} {93:1} A Psalm of David himself. The Fourth Sabbath. The Lord is the God of retribution. The God of retribution acts in order to deliver. {93:2} Lift yourself up, for you judge the earth. Repay the arrogant with retribution. {93:3} How long will sinners, O Lord, how long will sinners glory? {93:4} How long will they utter and speak iniquity? How long will all who work injustice speak out? {93:5} They have humiliated your people, O Lord, and they have harassed your inheritance. {93:6} They have executed the widow and the new arrival, and they have slaughtered the orphan. {93:7} And they have said, “The Lord will not see, nor will the God of Jacob understand.” {93:8} Understand, you senseless ones among the people. And be wise at last, you foolish ones. {93:9} He who formed the ear, will he not hear? And he who forged the eye, does he not look closely? {93:10} He who chastises nations, he who teaches man knowledge, will he not rebuke? {93:11} The Lord knows the thoughts of men: that these are in vain. {93:12} Blessed is the man whom you will instruct, O Lord. And you will teach him from your law. {93:13} So may you soothe him from the evil days, until a pit may be dug for sinners. {93:14} For the Lord will not drive away his people, and he will not abandon his inheritance, {93:15} even until the time when justice is being converted into judgment, and when those who are close to justice are all those who are upright of heart. [93:16] Who will rise up with me against the malignant? Or who will stand with me against the workers of iniquity? [93:17] Except that the Lord assisted me, my soul almost would have dwelt in Hell. [93:18] If ever I said, “My foot is slipping,” then your mercy, O Lord, assisted me. [93:19] According to the multitude of my sorrows in my heart, your consolations have given joy to my soul. [93:20] Does the seat of iniquity adhere to you, you who contrive hardship within a commandment? [93:21] They will hunt down the soul of the just, and they will condemn innocent blood. [93:22] And the Lord has been made into a refuge for me, and my God into the assistance of my hope. [93:23] And he will repay them their iniquity, and he will destroy them in their malice. The Lord our God will utterly destroy them.

[Psalm 94] (Psalm 95) [94:1] The Praise of a Canticle, of David himself. Come, let us exult in the Lord. Let us shout joyfully to God, our Savior. [94:2] Let us anticipate his presence with confession, and let us sing joyfully to him with psalms. [94:3] For the Lord is a great God and a great King over all gods. [94:4] For in his hand are all the limits of the earth, and the heights of the mountains are his. [94:5] For the sea is his, and he made it, and his hands formed the dry land. [94:6] Come, let us adore and fall prostrate, and let us weep before the Lord who made us. [94:7] For he is the Lord our God, and we are the people of his pasture and the sheep of his hand. [94:8] If today you hear his voice, hatreden not your hearts: [94:9] as in the provocation, according to the day of temptation in the wilderness, where your fathers tempted me; they tested me, though they had seen my works. [94:10] For forty years, I was offended by that generation, and I said: These have always stayed in heart. [94:11] And these have not known my ways. So I swore in my wrath: They shall not enter into my rest.

[Psalm 95] (Psalm 96) [95:1] A Canticle of David himself, when the house was built after the captivity. Sing to the Lord a new song, for he has performed wonders. [95:2] Sing to the Lord, all the earth. Serve the Lord with gladness; come, let us joyfully praise the name of the Lord. [95:3] Announce his glory among the Gentiles, his miracles among all peoples. [95:4] For the Lord is great and greatly to be praised. He is terrible, beyond all gods. [95:5] For all the gods of the Gentiles are demons, but the Lord made the heavens. [95:6] Confession and beauty are in his presence with confession, and let us sing joyfully to him with psalms. [95:7] Bring to the Lord, you natives of the nations, bring to the Lord glory and honor. [95:8] Bring to the Lord glory for his name. Lift up sacrifices, and enter into his courts. [95:9] Adore the Lord in his holy court. Let the entire earth be shaken before his face. [95:10] Say among the Gentiles: The Lord has reigned. For he has even corrected the whole world, which will not be shaken. He will judge the peoples with fairness. [95:11] Let the heavens rejoice, and let the earth exult; let the sea and all its fullness be moved. [95:12] The fields and all the things that are in them will be glad. Then all the trees of the forest will rejoice [95:13] before the face of the Lord: for he arrives. For he arrives to judge the earth. He will judge the whole world with fairness and the peoples with his truth.

[Psalm 96] (Psalm 97) [96:1] This is to David, when his land was restored to him. The Lord has reigned, let the earth exult. Let the many islands rejoice. [96:2] Clouds and mist are all around him. Justice and judgment are corrections from his throne. [96:3] A fire will precede him, and it will enflame his enemies all around. [96:4] His lightnings have enlightened the whole world. The earth saw, and it was shaken. [96:5] The mountains flowed like wax before the face of the Lord, before the face of the Lord of all the earth. [96:6] The heavens announced his justice, and all peoples saw his glory. [96:7] May all those who adore graven images be confounded, along with those who glory in their false images. All you his Angels: Adore him. [96:8] Zion heard, and was glad. And the daughters of Judah exulted because of your judgments, O Lord. [96:9] For you are the Most High Lord over all the earth. You are greatly exalted above all gods. [96:10] You who love the Lord: hate evil. The Lord watches over the souls of his holy ones. He will free them from the hand of the sinner. [96:11] The light has risen for the just, and joy for the upright of heart. [96:12] Rejoice in the Lord, you just ones, and confess to the memory of his sanctuary.

[Psalm 97] (Psalm 98) [97:1] A Psalm of David himself. Sing to the Lord a new song, for he has performed wonders. His right hand has accomplished salvation for him, with his holy arm. [97:2] The Lord has made known his salvation. He has revealed his justice in the sight of the nations. [97:3] He has remembered his mercy and his truth toward the house of Israel. All the ends of the earth have seen the salvation of our God. [97:4] Sing joyfully to God, all the earth. Sing and exult, and sing psalms. [97:5] Sing psalms to the Lord with stringed instruments, with strings and the voice of a psalmist, [97:6] with subtle wind instruments and the voice of woodwinds. Make a joyful noise before the Lord our king. [97:7] Let the sea be moved and all its fullness, the whole world and all who dwell in it. [97:8] The rivers will clap their hands, the mountains will exult together, [97:9] before the presence of the Lord. For he comes to judge the earth. He will judge the whole world with justice, and the peoples with fairness.

[Psalm 98] (Psalm 99) [98:1] A Psalm of David himself. The Lord has reigned: let the peoples be angry. He sits upon the cherubim: let the earth be moved. [98:2] The Lord is great in Zion, and he is high above all peoples. [98:3] May they confess to your great name, for it is terrible and holy. [98:4] And the honor of the king loves judgment. You have prepared guidance. You have accomplished judgment and justice in Jacob. [98:5] Exalt the Lord our God, and adore the footstool of his feet, for it is holy. [98:6] Moses and Aaron are among his priests, and Samuel is among those who call upon his name. They called upon the Lord, and he heeded them. [98:7] He spoke to them in the pillar of the cloud. They kept his testimonies and the precept that he gave them. [98:8] You heeded them, O Lord our God. You were a forgiving God to them, though taking vengeance on all their inventions. [98:9] Exalt the Lord our God, and adore on his holy mountain. For the Lord our God is holy.

[Psalm 99] (Psalm 100) [99:1] A Psalm of Confession. [99:2] Shout joyfully to God, all the earth. Serve the Lord with rejoicing. Enter into his sight in exultation.

Psalm 100

A Psalm of David himself. I will sing mercy and judgment to you, O Lord. I will sing psalms. (Psalm 100:2) And I will have understanding within the immaculate way, when you will draw near to me. I wandered about in the innocence of my heart, in the midst of my house. (Psalm 100:3) I will not display any unjust thing before my eyes. I have hated those carrying out betrayals. (Psalm 100:4) The perverse heart did not adhere to me. And the malignant, who turned away before me, I would not recognize. (Psalm 100:5) The one who secretly detracted his neighbor, this one I pursued. The one with an arrogant eye and an insatiable heart, with that one I would not eat. (Psalm 100:6) My eyes looked toward the faithful of the earth, to sit with me. The one walking in the immaculate way, this one ministered to me. (Psalm 100:7) He who has acted arrogantly will not dwell in the midst of my house. He who has spoken iniquity was not guided with the sight of my eyes. (Psalm 100:8) In the morning, I executed all the sinners of the earth, so that I might scatter all the workers of iniquity from the city of the Lord.

The prayer of the pauper, from the city of the Lord. (Psalm 101:1) The prayer of the pauper, from the city of the Lord. (Psalm 101:2) O Lord, hear my prayer, and let my outcry reach you. (Psalm 101:3) Do not turn your face away from me. In whatever day that I am in trouble, incline your ear to me. In whatever day that I will call upon you, heed me quickly. (Psalm 101:4) For my days have faded away like smoke, and my bones have dried out like firewood. (Psalm 101:5) I have been cut down like hay, and my heart has withered, for I had rejoiced. Enter into his sight in exultation. (Psalm 101:6) Before the voice of my groaning, my bone has adhered to my flesh. (Psalm 101:7) I have become like a pelican in solitude. I have become like a night raven in a house. (Psalm 101:8) I have kept vigil, and I have become like a solitary sparrow on a roof. (Psalm 101:9) All day long my enemies reproached me, and those who praised me swore oaths against me. (Psalm 101:10) For I was chewed on ashes like bread, and I mixed weeping into my drink. (Psalm 101:11) By the face of your anger and indignation, you lifted me up and threw me down. (Psalm 101:12) My days have declined like a shadow, and I have dried out like hay. (Psalm 101:13) But you, O Lord, endure for eternity, and your memorial is from generation to generation. (Psalm 101:14) You will rise up and take pity on Zion, for it is time for its mercy, for the time has come. (Psalm 101:15) For its stones have pleased your servants, and they will take pity on its land. (Psalm 101:16) And the Gentiles will fear your name, O Lord, and all the kings of the earth your glory. (Psalm 101:17) For the Lord has built up Zion, and he will be seen in his glory. (Psalm 101:18) He has noticed of the prayer of the humble, and he has not despised their petition. (Psalm 101:19) Let these things be written in another generation, and the people who will be created will praise the Lord. (Psalm 101:20) For he has gazed from his high sanctuary. From heaven, the Lord has beheld the earth. (Psalm 101:21) So may he hear the groans of those in shackles, in order that he may release the sons of the slain. (Psalm 101:22) So may they announce the name of the Lord in Zion and his praise in Jerusalem: while the people convene, along with kings, in order that they may serve the Lord. (Psalm 101:23) While the people convene, along with kings, in order that they may serve the Lord. (Psalm 101:24) He responded to him in the way of his virtue: Declare to me the brevity of my days. (Psalm 101:25) Do not call me back in the middle of my days: your years are from generation to generation. (Psalm 101:26) In the beginning, O Lord, you founded the earth. And the heavens are the work of your hands. (Psalm 101:27) They will perish, but you remain. And all will grow old like a garment. And, like a blanket, you will change them, and they will be changed. (Psalm 101:28) Yet you are ever yourself, and your years will not decline. (Psalm 101:29) The sons of your servants will live, and their offspring will be guided aright in every age.

Psalm 102

A Psalm of David himself. I will sing mercy and judgment to you, O Lord. I will sing psalms. (Psalm 102:1) I have kept vigil, and I have become like a pelican in solitude. I have become like a night raven in a house. (Psalm 102:2) I have kept vigil, and I have become like a solitary sparrow on a roof. (Psalm 102:3) All day long my enemies reproached me, and those who praised me swore oaths against me. (Psalm 102:4) For I was chewed on ashes like bread, and I mixed weeping into my drink. (Psalm 102:5) By the face of your anger and indignation, you lifted me up and threw me down. (Psalm 102:6) My days have declined like a shadow, and I have dried out like hay. (Psalm 102:7) But you, O Lord, endure for eternity, and your memorial is from generation to generation. (Psalm 102:8) You will rise up and take pity on Zion, for it is time for its mercy, for the time has come. (Psalm 102:9) For its stones have pleased your servants, and they will take pity on its land. (Psalm 102:10) And the Gentiles will fear your name, O Lord, and all the kings of the earth your glory. (Psalm 102:11) For the Lord has built up Zion, and he will be seen in his glory. (Psalm 102:12) He has noticed of the prayer of the humble, and he has not despised their petition. (Psalm 102:13) Let these things be written in another generation, and the people who will be created will praise the Lord. (Psalm 102:14) For he has gazed from his high sanctuary. From heaven, the Lord has beheld the earth. (Psalm 102:15) So may he hear the groans of those in shackles, in order that he may release the sons of the slain. (Psalm 102:16) So may they announce the name of the Lord in Zion and his praise in Jerusalem: while the people convene, along with kings, in order that they may serve the Lord. (Psalm 102:17) He responded to him in the way of his virtue: Declare to me the brevity of my days. (Psalm 102:18) Do not call me back in the middle of my days: your years are from generation to generation. (Psalm 102:19) In the beginning, O Lord, you founded the earth. And the heavens are the work of your hands. (Psalm 102:20) They will perish, but you remain. And all will grow old like a garment. And, like a blanket, you will change them, and they will be changed. (Psalm 102:21) Yet you are ever yourself, and your years will not decline. (Psalm 102:22) The sons of your servants will live, and their offspring will be guided aright in every age.
offspring of Abraham his servant, you sons of Jacob his elect.

{104:4} Seek the Lord, and be confirmed. Seek his face among the nations. {104:2} Sing to him, and sing psalms to him. (Psalm 105) {104:1} Alleluia. Confess to the Lord, and praise his name.

{103:7} At your rebuke, they will flee. At the voice of your thunder, they will dread. {103:8} The mountains ascend, and the plains descend, to the place which you have founded for them. {103:9} You have set a limit that they will not cross. And they will not return to cover the earth. {103:10} You spring forth fountains in steep valleys. The waters will cross through the midst of the mountains. {103:11} All the wild beasts of the field will drink. The wild donkeys will anticipate in their thirst. {103:12} Above them, the flying things of the air will dwell. From the midst of the rocks, they will utter voices. {103:13} You irrigate the mountains from your heights. The earth will be sated from the fruit of your works, {103:14} producing grass for cattle and herbs for the service of men. So may you draw bread from the earth, {103:15} and wine, in order to cheer the heart of man. Then he may gladden his face with oil, and bread will confirm the heart of man. {103:16} The trees of the field will be saturated, along with the cedars of Lebanon, which he planted. {103:17} There, the sparrows will make their nests. The leader of them is the house of the heron. {103:18} The heights of the hills are for the deer; the rock is a refuge for the hedgehog. {103:19} He has made the moon for seasons; the sun knows its setting. {103:20} You appointed darkness, and it has become night; all the beasts of the forest will cross through it. {103:21} The young lions will roar, while searching for and seizing their meal from God. {103:22} The sun arose, and they were gathered together; and in their dens, they will lie down together. {103:23} Man will go forth to his work and to his activities, until the evening. {103:24} How great are your works, O Lord! You have made all things in wisdom. The earth has been filled with your possessions. {103:25} This sea is great and its hands are spacious. There are creeping things without number: the small animals with the great. {103:26} There, the ships will pass by this sea serpent that you have formed to mock them. {103:27} All these expect you to give them food in due time. {103:28} What you give to them, they will gather. When you open your hand, they will all be filled with goodness. {103:29} But if you turn your face away, they will be disturbed. You will take away their breath, and they will fail, and they will return to their dust. {103:30} You will send forth your Spirit, and they will be created. And you will renew the face of the earth. {103:31} May the glory of the Lord be for all ages. The Lord will rejoice in his works. {103:32} He considers the earth, and he makes it tremble. He touches the mountains, and they smoke. {103:33} I will sing to the Lord with my life. I will sing psalms to my God, as long as I am. {103:34} May my speech be pleasing to him. Truly, I will take delight in the Lord. {103:35} Let sinners fade away from the earth, along with the unjust, so that they may not be. Bless the Lord, O my soul.

[Psalm 104] (Psalm 105) {104:1} Alleluia. Confess to the Lord, and invoke his name. Announce his works among the nations. {104:2} Sing to him, and sing psalms to him. Describe all his wonders. {104:3} Be praised in his holy name. Let the heart of those who seek the Lord rejoice. {104:4} Seek the Lord, and be confirmed. Seek his face always. {104:5} Remember his miracles, which he has done, his portents and the judgments of his mouth: {104:6} you offspring of Abraham his servant, you sons of Jacob his elect. {104:7} He is the Lord our God. His judgments are throughout the entire earth. {104:8} He has remembered his covenant for all ages: the word that he entrusted to a thousand generations, {104:9} which he assigned to Abraham, and his oath to Isaac. {104:10} And he stationed the same for Jacob with a precept, and for Israel with an eternal testament, {104:11} saying: To you, I will give the land of Canaan, the allotment of your inheritance. {104:12} Though they may have been but a small number, very few and foreigners there, {104:13} and though they passed from nation to nation, and from one kingdom to another people, {104:14} he allowed no man to harm them, and he reproved kings on their behalf. {104:15} Do not be willing to touch my Christ, and do not be willing to malign my prophets. {104:16} And he called a famine upon the land, and he cursed every foundation of the bread. {104:17} He sent a man before them: Joseph, who had been sold as a slave. {104:18} They humbled his feet in shackles; the iron pierced his soul, {104:19} until his word arrived. The eloquence of the Lord inflamed him. {104:20} The king sent and released him; he was the ruler of the people, and he dismissed him. {104:21} He established him as master of his house and ruler of all his possessions, {104:22} so that he might instruct his princes as himself, and teach his elders prudence. {104:23} And Israel entered into Egypt, and Jacob became a sojourner in the land of Ham. {104:24} And he helped his people greatly, and he strengthened them over their enemies. {104:25} He turned their heart to hate his people, and to deal deceitfully with his servants. {104:26} He sent Moses, his servant, and Aaron, the one whom he chose. {104:27} He placed with them signs of his word, and portents in the land of Ham. {104:28} He sent darkness and made it conceal, and he did not afflict them with his speech. {104:29} He turned their waters into blood, and he slaughtered their fish. {104:30} Their land brought forth frogs, even in the inner chambers of their kings. {104:31} He spoke, and there came forth common flies and gnats, in every region. {104:32} He gave them a shower of hail and a burning fire, in the same land. {104:33} And he struck their vineyards and their fig trees, and he crushed the trees of their region. {104:34} He spoke, and the locust came forth, and the caterpillar, of which there was no number. {104:35} And it devoured all the grass in their land, and it consumed all the fruit of their land. {104:36} And he struck all the first-born in their land, the first-fruits of all their labor. {104:37} And he led them out with silver and gold, and there was not an infirm one among their tribes. {104:38} Egypt was joyful at their departure, for the fear of them lay heavy upon them. {104:39} He spread a cloud for their protection, and a fire, to give them light through the night. {104:40} They petitioned, and the quail came; and he satisfied them with the bread of heaven. {104:41} He ruptured the rock and the waters flowed: rivers gushed in the dry land. {104:42} For he had called to mind his holy word, which he kept near to his servant Abraham. {104:43} And he led forth his people in exultation, and his elect in rejoicing. {104:44} And he gave them the regions of the Gentiles, and they possessed the labors of the peoples, {104:45} so that they might observe his justifications, and inquire about his law.

{105:2} Who will declare the powers of the Lord? Who make a hearing for all his praises? {105:3} Blessed are those who keep judgment and who do justice at all times. {105:4} Remember us, O Lord, with good will for your people. Visit us with your salvation, {105:5} so that we may see the goodness of your elect, so that we may rejoice in the joy of your nation, so that you may be praised along with your inheritance. {105:6} We have sinned, as have our fathers. We have acted unjustly; we have wrought iniquity.

{105:7} Our fathers did not understand your miracles in Egypt. They did not remember the multitude of your mercies. And they provoked you, while going up to the sea, even the Red Sea. {105:8} And he saved them for the sake of his name, so that he might make known his power. {105:9} And he rebuked the Red Sea, and it dried up. And he led them into the abyss, as if into a desert. {105:10} And he saved them from the hand of those who hated them. And he redeemed them from the hand of the enemy. {105:11} And the water covered those who troubled them. Not one of them remained. {105:12} And they believed his words, and they sang his praises. {105:13} As soon as they had finished, they forgot his works, and they would not endure his counsel. {105:14} And they coveted their desire in the desert, and they tempted God in a waterless place. {105:15} And he granted to them their request, and he sent abundance into their souls. {105:16} And they provoked Moses in the camp, and Aaron, the holy one of the Lord. {105:17} The earth opened and swallowed Dathan, and it covered the congregation of Abiram. {105:18} And a fire broke out in their congregation. A flame burned up the sinners. {105:19} And they fashioned a calf at Horeb, and they adored a graven image. {105:20} And they exchanged their glory for the likeness of a calf that eats hay. {105:21} They forgot God, who saved them, who did great things in Egypt: {105:22} miracles in the land of Ham, terrible things at the Red Sea. {105:23} And he said that he would destroy them, yet Moses, his elect, stood firm before him in the breach, in order to avert his wrath, lest he destroy them. {105:24} And they held the desirable land to be nothing. They did not trust in his word. {105:25} And they murmured in their tabernacles. They did not heed the voice of the Lord. {105:26} And he lifted up his hand over them, in order to prostrate them in the desert, {105:27} and in order to cast their offspring among the nations, and to scatter them among the regions. {105:28} And they were initiated into Baal of Peor, and they ate the sacrifices of the dead. {105:29} And they provoked him with their inventions, and ruination was multiplied in them. {105:30} Then Phineas stood up and placated him: and so the violent disturbance ceased. {105:31} And it was reputed to him unto justice, from generation to generation, even forever. {105:32} And they provoked him at the Waters of Contradiction, and Moses was afflicted because of them, {105:33} for they exasperated his spirit. And so he divided them with his lips. {105:34} They did not destroy the nations, about which the Lord had spoken to them. {105:35} And they were mixed among the Gentiles. And they learned their works, {105:36} and they served their graven images, and it became a scandal to them. {105:37} And they sacrificed their sons and their daughters to demons. {105:38} And they shed innocent blood: the blood of their sons and of their daughters, which they sacrificed to the graven images of Canaan. And the land was infected with bloodshed, {105:39} and was contaminated with their works. And they fornicated according to their own inventions. {105:40} And the Lord became furiously angry with his people, and he abhorred his inheritance. {105:41} And he delivered them into the hands of the nations. And those who hated them became rulers over them. {105:42} And their enemies afflicted them, and they were humbled under their hands. {105:43} Many times, he delivered them. Yet they provoked him with their counsel, and they were brought low by their iniquities. {105:44} And he saw that they were in tribulation, and he heard their prayer. {105:45} And he was mindful of his covenant, and he repented according to the multitude of his mercies. {105:46} And he provided for them with mercies, in the sight of all those who had seized them. {105:47} Save us, O Lord our God, and gather us from the nations, so that we may confess your holy name and glory in your praise. {105:48} Blessed is the Lord God of Israel, from ages past, even to all ages. And let all the people say: Amen. Amen.

[Psalm 106] (Psalm 107) {106:1} Alleluia. Confess to the Lord, for he is good, for his mercy is with every generation. {106:2} Let those who have been redeemed by the Lord say so: those whom he redeemed from the hand of the enemy and gathered from the regions, {106:3} from the rising of the sun and its setting, from the north and from the sea. {106:4} They wandered into solitude in a waterless place. They did not find the way of the city to be their dwelling place. {106:5} They were hungry, and they were thirsty. Their soul fainted within them. {106:6} And they cried out to the Lord in their tribulation, and he rescued them in their necessity. {106:7} And he led them in the right way, so that they might go forth to a city of habitation. {106:8} Let his mercies confess to the Lord, and let his miracles confess to the sons of men. {106:9} For he has satisfied the empty soul, and he has satisfied the hungry soul with good things: {106:10} those sitting in darkness and in the shadow of death, shackled by extreme poverty and by iron. {106:11} For they exasperated the eloquence of God, and they irritated the deliberation of the Most High. {106:12} And their heart was brought low with hardships. They were weakened, and there was no one to help them. {106:13} And they cried out to the Lord in their tribulation, and he freed them from their distress. {106:14} And he led them out of darkness and the shadow of death, and he broke apart their chains. {106:15} Let his mercies confess to the Lord, and let his miracles confess to the sons of men. {106:16} For he has crushed the gates of brass and broken the iron bars. {106:17} He has taken them up, from the way of their iniquity. For they were brought low, because of their injustices. {106:18} Their soul abhorred all food, and they drew near even to the gates of death. {106:19} And they cried out to the Lord in their tribulation, and he delivered them in their necessity. {106:20} He sent his word, and he healed them, and he rescued them from their utter destruction. {106:21} Let his mercies confess to the Lord, and let his miracles confess to the sons of men. {106:22} And let them offer sacrifice with the sacrifice of praise, and let them announce his works in exultation. {106:23} Those who descend to the sea in ships, making their livelihood in the great waters: {106:24} these have seen the works of the Lord and his wonders in the deep. {106:25} He spoke: and a windstorm stood up, and its waves were exalted. {106:26} They ascend even to the heavens, and they descend even to the abyss. Their soul will waste away in distress.

{106:27} They were troubled, and they moved like a drunkard, and all their wisdom was consumed. {106:28} And they cried out to the Lord in their tribulation, and he led them out of their distress. {106:29} And he replaced the storm with a breeze, and its waves were stilled. {106:30} And they were joyful that it was stilled, and he led them into the haven that they desired. {106:31} Let his mercies confess to the Lord, and let his miracles confess to the sons of men. {106:32} And let them exalt him in the Church of the people, and praise him in the chair of the elders.

{106:33} He has placed rivers in the desert and sources of water in dry places, {106:34} a fruit-bearing land in the midst of brine, before the malice of those who dwell in it. {106:35} He has placed a desert in the midst of pools of waters, and a land without water in the midst of sources of water. {106:36} And he has gathered the hungry together there, and they constructed a city of habitation.

{106:37} And they sowed fields and planted vineyards, and they produced the fruit of nativity. {106:38} And he blessed them, and they were multiplied exceedingly. And he did not diminish their beasts of burden.

{106:39} And they became few, and they were afflicted by the tribulation of evils and of sorrow. {106:40} Contempt was poured over their leaders, and he caused them to wander in an impassable place, and not on the way. {106:41} And he helped the poor out of destitution, and he stationed families like sheep.

{106:42} The upright will see, and they will rejoice. And every iniquity will block its mouth.

{106:43} Who is wise and will keep these things? And who will understand the mercies of the Lord?

[Psalm 107] (Psalm 108) {107:1} A Canticle Psalm, of David himself. {107:2} My heart is prepared, O God, my heart is prepared. I will sing songs, and I will sing psalms in my glory. {107:3} Rise up, my glory. Rise up, Psalter and harp. I will arise in early morning. {107:4} I will confess to you, O Lord, how greatly you have delivered me from those who detracted me. But I gave myself to prayer. {108:5} And they set evil against me, instead of good, and hatred, in return for my love.

{108:6} Establish the sinner over him, and let the devil stand at his right hand. {108:7} When he is judged, may he go forth in condemnation, and may his prayer be counted as sin. {108:8} May his days be few, and let another take his episcopate.

{108:9} May his sons be orphans, and his wife a widow. {108:10} May his sons be carried by those who walk unsteadily, and may they go begging. And may they be cast out of their dwelling places.

{108:11} May the money lenders scrutinize all his belongings, and let foreigners plunder his labors. {108:12} May there be no one to assist him, nor anyone to be compassionate to his orphaned children.

{108:13} May his posterity be in utter ruin. In one generation, may his name be wiped away. {108:14} May the iniquity of his fathers return in memory before the sight of the Lord, and do not let the sin of his mother be wiped away.

{108:15} May these be opposite the Lord always, but let their memory perish from the earth.

{108:16} For certain things are not remembered about them, in order to be merciful.

{108:17} And so the destitute man was pursued, with the beggar and the remorseful in heart, so as to be put to death.

{108:18} And he loved a curse, and it came to him. And he was unwilling to have a blessing, and it went far from him.

And he clothed himself with curses like a garment, and it entered his inner self like water, and it entered his bones like oil.

{108:19} May it be to him like a garment that covers him, and like a belt that always cinches him.

{108:20} This is the work of those who detract me with the Lord and who speak evils against my soul.

{108:21} But as for you, Lord, O Lord: act on my behalf for your name’s sake. For your mercy is sweet.

{108:22} Free me, for I am destitute and poor, and my heart has been disquieted within me.

{108:23} I have been taken away like a shadow when it declines, and I have been shaken off like locusts.

{108:24} My knees have been weakened by fasting, and my flesh has been replaced by oil.

{108:25} And I have become a disgrace to them. They saw me, and they shook their heads.

{108:26} Help me, O Lord, my God. Save me according to your mercy.

{108:27} And let them know that this is your hand, and that you, O Lord, have done this.

{108:28} They will curse, and you will bless. May those who rise up against me be confounded. But your servant will rejoice.

{108:30} I will confess exceedingly to the Lord with my mouth. And I will praise him in the midst of the multitude.

{108:31} For he stands at the right hand of the poor, in order to save my soul from persecutors.

[Psalm 109] (Psalm 110) {109:1} A Psalm of David. The Lord said to my Lord, “Sit at my right hand, until I make your enemies your footstool.”

{109:2} The Lord will send forth the scepter of your virtue from Zion. Rule in the midst of your enemies.

{109:3} It is with you from the beginning, in the day of your virtue, in the splendor of the saints. From conception, before the light-bearer, I begot you.

{109:4} The Lord has sworn, and he will not repent: “You are a priest forever, according to the order of Melchizedek.”

{109:5} The Lord is at your right hand. He has broken kings in the day of his wrath.

{109:6} He will judge between the nations; he will fill up ruination. He will shatter heads in the land of the many. {109:7} He will drink from the torrent on the way. Because of this, he will exalt the head.

[Psalm 110] (Psalm 111) {110:1} Alleluia. I will confess to you, O Lord, with my whole heart, in the council of the just and in the congregation. {110:2} Great are the works of the Lord, exquisite in all his intentions. {110:3} Confession and magnificence are his work. And his justice remains from age to age. {110:4} He has created a memorial to his wonders; he is a merciful and compassionate Lord. {110:5} He has given food to those who fear him. He will be mindful of his covenant in every age. {110:6} He will announce the virtue of his works to his people, {110:7} so that he may give them the inheritance of the nations. The works of his hands are truth and judgment. {110:8} All his commands are faithful: confirmed from age to age, created in truth and fairness. {110:9} He has sent redemption upon his people. He has commanded his covenant for all eternity. Holy and terrible is his name. {110:10} The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. A good understanding is for all who do it. His praise remains from age to age.

[Psalm 111] (Psalm 112) {111:1} Alleluia. Of the return of Haggai and Zachariah. Blessed is the man who fears the Lord. He will prefer his commandments exceedingly. {111:2} His offspring will be powerful on the earth. The generation of the upright will be blessed. {111:3} Glory and wealth will be in his house, and his justice shall remain from age to age. {111:4} For the upright, a light has risen up in the darkness. He is merciful and compassionate and just. {111:5} Pleasing is the man who shows mercy and lends. He will order his words with judgment. {111:6} For he will not be disturbed in eternity. {111:7} The just one will be an everlasting memorial. He will not fear a report of disasters. His heart is prepared to hope in the Lord. {111:8} His heart has been confirmed. He will not be disturbed, until he looks down upon his enemies. {111:9} He has distributed, he has given to the poor. His justice shall remain from age to age. His horn shall be exalted in glory. {111:10} The sinner will see and become angry. He will gnash his teeth and waste away. The desire of sinners will perish.

[Psalm 112] (Psalm 113) {112:1} Alleluia. Praise the Lord, children. Praise the name of the Lord. {112:2} Blessed is the name of the Lord, from this time forward and even forever. {112:3} From the rising of the sun, even to its setting, praiseworthy is the name of the Lord. {112:4} The Lord is high above all nations, and his glory is high above the heavens. {112:5} Who is like the Lord, our God, who dwells on high, {112:6} and who gazes upon the humble things in heaven and on earth? {112:7} He lifts up the needy from the ground, and he urges the poor away from filth, {112:8} so that he may place him with the leaders, with the leaders of his people. {112:9} He causes a barren woman to live in a house, as the joyful mother of sons.

[Psalm 113] (Psalm 114-115) {113:1} Alleluia. At the departure of Israel from Egypt, the house of Jacob from a barbarous people: {113:2} Judea was made his sanctuary; Israel was made his power. {113:3} The sea looked, and it fled. The Jordan was turned back again. {113:4} The mountains exulted like rams, and the hills like lambs among the sheep. {113:5} What happened to you, O sea, so that you fled, and to you, O Jordan, so that you were turned back again? {113:6} What happened to you, O mountains, so that you exulted like rams, and to you, O hills, so that you exulted like lambs among the sheep? {113:7} Before the face of the Lord, the earth was moved, before the face of the God of Jacob. {113:8} He converted the rock into pools of water, and the cliff into fountains of waters.

[113:9] Not to us, O Lord, not to us, but to your name give glory. {113:10} Give glory to your mercy and your truth, lest the Gentiles should say, “Where is their God?” {113:11} But our God is in heaven. All things whatsoever that he has willed, he has done. {113:12} The idols of the nations are silver and gold, the works of the hands of men. {113:13} They have mouths, and do not speak; they have eyes, and do not see. {113:14} They have ears, and do not hear; they have noses, and do not smell. {113:15} They have hands, and do not feel; they have feet, and do not walk. Neither will they cry out with their throat. {113:16} Let those who make them become like them, along with all who trust in them. {113:17} The house of Israel has hoped in the Lord. He is their helper and their protector. {113:18} The house of Aaron has hoped in the Lord. He is their helper and their protector. {113:19} Those who fear the Lord have hoped in the Lord. He is their helper and their protector. {113:20} The Lord has been mindful of us, and he has blessed us. He has blessed the house of Israel. He has blessed the house of Aaron. {113:21} He has blessed all who fear the Lord, the small with the great. {113:22} May the Lord add blessings upon you: upon you, and upon your sons. {113:23} Blessed are you by the Lord, who made heaven and earth. {113:24} The heaven of heaven is for the Lord, but the earth he has given to the sons of men. {113:25} The dead will not praise you, Lord, and neither will all those who descend into Hell. {113:26} But we who live will bless the Lord, from this time forward, and even forever.

[Psalm 114] (Psalm 116A) {114:1} Alleluia. I have loved: therefore, the Lord will heed the voice of my prayer. {114:2} For he has inclined his ear to me. And in my days, I will call upon him. {114:3} The sorrows of death have surrounded me, and the perils of Hell have found me. I have found tribulation and sorrow. {114:4} And so, I called upon the name of the Lord. O Lord, free my soul. {114:5} Merciful is the Lord, and just. And our God is compassionate. {114:6} The Lord is the keeper of little ones. I was humbled, and he freed me. {114:7} Turn again, my soul, to your rest. For the Lord has done good to you. {114:8} For he has rescued my soul from death, my eyes from tears, my feet from slipping. {114:9} I will please the Lord in the land of the living.

[Psalm 115] (Psalm 116B) {115:1} Alleluia. I had confidence, because of what I was saying, but then I was greatly humbled. {115:2} I said in my excess, “Every man is a liar.” {115:3} What shall I repay to the Lord, for all the things that he has repaid to me? {115:4} I will take up the cup of salvation, and I will call upon the name of the Lord. {115:5} I will repay my vows to the Lord, in the sight of all his people. {115:6} Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his holy ones. {115:7} O Lord, because I am your servant, your servant and the son of your handmaid, you have broken my bonds. {115:8} I will sacrifice to you the sacrifice of praise, and I will invoke the name of the Lord. {115:9} I will repay my vows to the Lord in the sight of all his people, {115:10} in the courts of the house of the Lord, in your midst, O Jerusalem.

[Psalm 116] (Psalm 117) {116:1} Alleluia. All nations, praise the Lord. All peoples, praise him. {116:2} For his mercy has been confirmed over us. And the truth of the Lord remains for all eternity.

[Psalm 117] (Psalm 118) {117:1} Alleluia. Confess to the Lord, for he is good, for his mercy is forever. {117:2} Let Israel now say: For he is good, for his mercy is forever. {117:3} Let the house of Aaron now say: For his mercy is forever. {117:4} Let those who fear the Lord now say: For his mercy is forever. {117:5} In my tribulation, I called upon the Lord. And the Lord heeded me with generosity. {117:6} The Lord is my helper. I will not fear what man can do to me. {117:7} The Lord is my helper. And I will look down upon my enemies. {117:8} It is good to trust in the Lord, rather than to trust in man. {117:9} It is good to hope in the Lord, rather than to hope in leaders. {117:10} All the nations have surrounded me. And, in the name of the Lord, I have been avenged over them. {117:11} Surrounding me, they closed in on me. And, in the name of the Lord, I have been avenged over them. {117:12} They surrounded me like a swarm, and they burned like fire among the thorns. And, in the name of the Lord, I have been avenged over them. {117:13} Having been pushed, I was overturned so as to fall. But the Lord took me up. {117:14} The Lord is my strength and my praise. And he has become my salvation. {117:15} A voice of exultation and salvation is in the tabernacles of the just. {117:16} The right hand of the Lord has wrought virtue. The right hand of the Lord has exalted me. The right hand of the Lord has wrought virtue. {117:17} I will not die, but I will live. And I will declare the works of the Lord. {117:18} When chastising, the Lord chastised me. But he has not delivered me over to death. {117:19} Open the gates of justice to me. I will enter them, and I will confess to the Lord. {117:20} This is the gate of the Lord. The just will enter by it. {117:21} I will confess to you because you have heard me. And you have become my salvation. {117:22} The stone which the builders have rejected, this has become the head of the corner. {117:23} By the Lord has this been done, and it is a wonder before our eyes. {117:24} This is the day that the Lord has made. Let us exult and rejoice in it. {117:25} O Lord, grant salvation to me. O Lord, grant good prosperity. {117:26} Blessed is he who arrives in the name of the Lord. We have blessed you from the house of the Lord. {117:27} The Lord is God, and he has enlightened us. Establish a solemn day amid a dense crowd, even to the horn of the altar. {117:28} You are my God, and I will confess to you. You are my God, and I will exalt you. I will confess to you, for you have heeded me. And you have become my salvation. {117:29} Confess to the Lord, for he is good, for his mercy is forever.

[Psalm 118] (Psalm 119) {118:1} Alleluia. ALEPH. Blessed are the immaculate in the way, who walk in the law of the Lord. {118:2} Blessed are those who examine his testimonies. They seek him with their whole heart. {118:3} For those who work iniquity have not walked in his ways. {118:4} You have ordered your commandments to be kept most diligently. {118:5} I wish that my ways may be directed so as to keep your justifications. {118:6} Then I will not be confounded, when I will look into all your commandments. {118:7} I will confess to you with honesty of heart. In this way, I have learned the judgments of your justice. {118:8} I will keep your justifications. Do not utterly abandon me. {118:9} BETH. By what does an adolescent correct his way? By keeping to your words. {118:10} With my whole heart, I have sought you. Do not let me be driven away from your commandments. {118:11} I have hidden your eloquence in my heart, so that I may not sin against you. {118:12} Blessed are you, O Lord. Teach me your justifications. {118:13} With my lips, I have pronounced all the judgments of your mouth. {118:14} I have been delighted in the way of your testimonies, as if in all riches. {118:15} I will be trained in your commandments, and I will consider your ways. {118:16} I will meditate on your justifications. I will not forget your words. {118:17} GHIMEL. Repay your servant, revive me; and I will keep your words. {118:18} Reveal to my eyes, and I will consider the wonders of your law. {118:19} I am a sojourner on the earth. Do not hide your commandments from me. {118:20} My soul has longed to desire your justifications at all times. {118:21} You have rebuked the arrogant. Those who decline from your commandments are accursed. {118:22} Take me away from disgrace and contempt, for I have sought your testimonies. {118:23} For even the leaders sat and spoke against me. But your servant has been trained in your justifications. {118:24} For your testimonies are also my meditation, and your justifications are my counsel. {118:25} DALETH. My soul has adhered to the pavement. Revive me according to your word. {118:26} I have declared my ways, and you have heeded me. Teach me your justifications. {118:27} Instruct me in the way of your justifications, and I will be trained in your wonders. {118:28} My soul has slumbered because of weariness. Confirm me in your words. {118:29} Remove the way of iniquity from me, and have mercy on me by your law. {118:30} I have chosen the way of truth. I have not forgotten your judgments. {118:31} I have adhered to your testimonies, O Lord. Do not be willing to confound me. {118:32} I have run by way of your commandments, when you enlarged my heart. {118:33} HE. O Lord, place the law before me, the way of your justifications, and I will always inquire into it. {118:34} Give me understanding, and I will examine your law. And I will keep it with my whole heart. {118:35} Lead me according to the path of your commandments, for I have desired this. {118:36} Bend my heart with your testimonies, and not with avarice. {118:37} Turn my eyes away, lest they see what is vain. Revive me in your way. {118:38} Station your eloquence with your servant, along with your fear. {118:39} Cut off my disgrace, which I have taken up, for your judgments are delightful. {118:40} Behold, I have longed for your commandments. Revive me in your fairness. {118:41} VAU. And let your mercy overwhelm me, O Lord: your salvation according to your eloquence. {118:42} And I will respond to those who reproach me by word, for I have hoped in your words. {118:43} And do not utterly take away the word of truth from my mouth. For in your judgments, I have hoped beyond hope. {118:44} And I will always keep... your law, in this age and forever and ever. {118:45} And I have wandered far and wide, because I was seeking your commandments. {118:46} And I spoke of your testimonies in the sight of kings, and I was not confounded. {118:47} And I meditated on your commandments, which I loved. {118:48} And I lifted up my hands to your commandments, which I loved. And I was trained in your justifications. {118:49} ZAIN. Be mindful of your word to your servant, by which you have given me hope. {118:50} This has consoled me in my humiliation, for your word has revived me. {118:51} The arrogant act altogether iniquitously, but I have not turned aside from your law. {118:52} I called to mind your judgments of antiquity, O Lord, and I was consoled. {118:53} Faintness has taken hold of me, because of the sinners, those who abandon your law. {118:54} Your justifications were the subject of my worthy singing, in the place of my pilgrimage. {118:55} During the night, I remembered your name, O Lord, and I kept your law. {118:56} This has happened to me because I sought your justifications. {118:57} HETH. O Lord, my portion, I have said that I would keep your law. {118:58} I have beseeched your face with my whole heart. Be merciful to me according to your word. {118:59} I have considered my ways, and I have turned my feet toward your testimonies. {118:60} I have been prepared, and I have not been disturbed, so that I may keep your commandments. {118:61} The ropes of the impious have encircled me, and I have not forgotten your law. {118:62} I arose in the middle of the night to confess to you, over the judgments of your justifications. {118:63} I am a partaker with all those who fear you and who keep your commandments. {118:64} The earth, O Lord, is full of your mercy. Teach me your justifications. {118:65} TETH. You have done well with your servant, O Lord, according to your word. {118:66} Teach me goodness and discipline and knowledge, for I have trusted your commandments. {118:67} Before I was humbled, I committed offenses; because of this, I have kept to your word. {118:68} You are good, so in your goodness teach me your justifications. {118:69} The iniquity of the arrogant has been multiplied over me. Yet I will examine your commandments with all my heart. {118:70} Their heart has been curled like milk. Truly, I have meditated on your law. {118:71} It is good for me that you humbled me, so that I may learn your justifications. {118:72} The law of your mouth is good for me, beyond thousands of gold and silver pieces. {118:73} IOD. Your hands have created me and formed me. Give me understanding, and I will learn your commandments. {118:74} Those who fear you will see me, and they will rejoice. For I have greatly hoped in your words. {118:75} I know, O Lord, that your judgments are fairness. And in your truth, you have humbled me. {118:76} Let it be your mercy that consoles me, according to your eloquence to your servant. {118:77} Let your compassion draw near to me, and I will live. For your law is my meditation. {118:78} Let the arrogant be confounded, for unjustly they have done iniquity to me. But I will be trained in your commandments. {118:79} Let those who fear you turn to me, along with those who know your testimonies. {118:80} Let my heart be immaculate in your justifications, so that I may not be confounded. {118:81} CAPH. My soul has faltered in your salvation, yet in your word, I have hoped beyond hope. {118:82} My eyes have failed in your eloquence, saying, “When will you console me?” {118:83} For I have become like a wineskin in the frost. I have not forgotten your justifications. {118:84} How many are the days of your servant? When will you bring judgment against those who persecute me? {118:85} The iniquitous have spoken fables to me. But these are unlike your law. {118:86} All your commandments are truth. They have been persecuting me unjustly: assist me. {118:87} They have nearly consumed me on earth. Yet I have not forsaken your commandments. {118:88} Revive me according to your mercy. And I will keep the testimonies of your mouth. {118:89} LAMED. O Lord, your word remains firm in heaven, for all eternity. {118:90} Your truth is from generation to generation. You have founded the earth, and it remains firm. {118:91} By your ordinance, the day perseveres. For all things are in service to you. {118:92} If your law had not been my meditation, then perhaps I would have perished in my humiliation. {118:93} I will not forget your justifications, for eternity. For by them, you have enlivened me. {118:94} I am yours. Accomplish my salvation. For I have inquired into your justifications. {118:95} The sinners have waited for me, in order to destroy me. I have understood your testimonies. {118:96} I have seen the end of the consummation of all things. Your commandment is exceedingly broad. {118:97} MEM. How have I loved your law, O Lord? It is my meditation all day long. {118:98} By your commandment, you have made me able to see far, beyond my enemies. For it is with me for eternity. {118:99} I have understood beyond all my teachers. For your testimonies are my meditation. {118:100} I have understood beyond the elders. For I have searched your commandments. {118:101} I have prohibited my feet from every evil way, so that I may keep your words. {118:102} I have not declined from your judgments, because you have stationed a law for me. {118:103} How sweet is your eloquence to my palate, more so than honey to my mouth! {118:104} I obtained understanding by your commandments. Because of this, I have hated every way of iniquity. {118:105} NUN. Your word is a lamp to my feet and a light to my paths. {118:106} I have sworn it, and so I am determined to keep the judgments of your justice. {118:107} I have been altogether humbled, Lord. Revive me according to your word. {118:108} Make the willing offerings of my mouth well pleasing, Lord, and teach me your judgments. {118:109} My soul is always in my hands, and I have not forgotten your law. {118:110} Sinners have set a snare for me, yet I have not strayed from your commandments. {118:111} I have acquired your testimonies as an inheritance unto eternity, because they are the exultation of my heart. {118:112} I have inclined my heart to do your justifications for eternity, as a recompense. {118:113} SAMECH. I have hated the iniquitous, and I have loved your law. {118:114} You are my helper and my supporter. And in your word, I have greatly hoped. {118:115} Turn away from me, you malignant ones. And I will examine the commandments of my God. {118:116} Uphold me according to your eloquence, and I will live. And let me not be confounded in my expectation. {118:117} Help me, and I will be saved. And I will meditate always on your justifications. {118:118} You have despised all those who fell away from your judgments. For their intention is unjust. {118:119} I have considered all the sinners of the earth to be transgressors. Therefore, I have loved your testimonies. {118:120} Pierce my flesh with your fear, for I am afraid of your judgments. {118:121} AIN. I have accomplished judgment and justice. Do not hand me over to those who slander me. {118:122} Uphold your servant in what is good. And do not allow the arrogant to slander me. {118:123} My eyes have failed in your salvation and in the eloquence of your justice. {118:124} Deal with your servant according to your mercy, and teach me your justifications. {118:125} I am your servant. Give me understanding, so that I may know your testimonies. {118:126} It is time to act, O Lord. They have dissipated your law. {118:127} Therefore, I have loved your commandments beyond gold and topaz. {118:128} Because of this, I was directed toward all your commandments. I held hatred for every iniquitous way. {118:129} PHE. Your testimonies are wonderful. Therefore, my soul has been examined by them. {118:130} The declaration of your words illuminates, and it gives understanding to little ones. {118:131} I opened my mouth and drew breath, for I desired your commandments. {118:132} Gaze upon me and be merciful to me, according to the judgment of those who love your name. {118:133} Direct my steps according to your eloquence, and let no injustice rule over me. {118:134} Redeem me from the slanders of men, so that I may keep your commandments. {118:135} Make your face shine upon your servant, and teach me your justifications. {118:136} My eyes have gushed like springs of water, because they have not kept your law. {118:137} SADE. You are just, O Lord, and your judgment is right. {118:138} You have commanded justice: your testimonies and your truth are just, O Lord, and your judgment is right. {118:139} You have accomplished judgment and justice. Do not hand me over to those who slander me. {118:140} Your eloquence has been greatly enflamed, and your servant has loved it. {118:141} I am young and treated with contempt. But I have not forgotten your justifications. {118:142} Your justice is justice for all eternity, and your law is truth. {118:143} Tribulation and anguish have found me. Your commandments are my meditation. {118:144} Your testimonies are fairness unto eternity. Give me understanding, and I will live. {118:145} COPH. I cried out with my whole heart. Heed me, O Lord. I will ask for your justifications. {118:146} I cried out to you. Save me, so that I may keep your commandments. {118:147} I arrived first in maturity, and so I cried out. For in your words, I have hoped beyond hope. {118:148} My eyes preceded the dawn for you, so that I might meditate on your eloquence. {118:149} Hear my voice according to your mercy, O Lord. And revive me according to your judgment. {118:150} Those who persecute me have drawn near to iniquity, but they have been brought far from your law. {118:151} You are near, O Lord, and all your ways are truth. {118:152} I have known from the beginning about your testimonies. For you founded them in eternity. {118:153} RES. See my humiliation and rescue me, for I have not forgotten your law. {118:154} Judge my judgment and redeem me. Revive me because of your eloquence. {118:155} Salvation is far from sinners, because they have not inquired about your justifications. {118:156} Many are your mercies, O Lord. Enliven me according to your judgment. {118:157} Many are those who persecute me and who trouble me. I have not turned away from your testimonies. {118:158} I saw the prevaricators, and I pine away. For they have not kept your word. {118:159} O Lord, see how I have loved your commandments. Revive me in your mercy. {118:160} The beginning of your words is truth. All the judgments of your justice are for eternity. {118:161} SIN. The leaders have persecuted me without cause. And my heart has been awed by your words. {118:162} I will rejoice over your eloquence, like one who has found many spoils. {118:163} I have held hatred for iniquity, and I have abhorred it. Yet I have loved your law. {118:164} Seven times a day, I uttered praise to you about the judgments of your justice. {118:165} Those who love your law have great peace, and there is no scandal for them. {118:166} I have waited for your salvation, O Lord. And I have loved your commandments. {118:167} My soul has kept to your testimonies and has loved them exceedingly. {118:168} I have served your commandments and your testimonies. For all my ways are before your sight. {118:169} TAU. O Lord, let my supplication draw near in your sight. Grant understanding to me according to your eloquence. {118:170} Let my petition enter before you. Rescue me according to your word. {118:171} A hymn will burst forth from my lips, when you will teach me your justifications. {118:172} My tongue will pronounce your eloquence. For all your commandments are fairness. {118:173} Let it be your hand that saves me. For I have chosen your commandments. {118:174} O Lord, I have longed for your salvation, and your law is my meditation. {118:175} My soul will live and will praise you, and your judgments will assist me. {118:176} I have gone astray like a sheep that is lost. Seek out your servant, for I have not forgotten your commandments.

[Psalm 119] (Psalm 120) {119:1} A Canticle in steps. When troubled, I cried out to the Lord, and he heard me. {119:2} O Lord, free my soul from lips of iniquity and from the deceitful tongue. {119:3} What will be given to you, or what will be added to you, for a deceitful tongue?: {119:4} the sharp arrows of the powerful, along with the burning coals of desolation. {119:5} Woe to me, for my sojourning has been prolonged. I have lived with the inhabitants of Kedar. {119:6} My soul has long been a sojourner. {119:7} With those who hated peace, I was peaceful. When I spoke to them, they fought against me without cause. {119:8} Behold, he who guards Israel will neither sleep, nor slumber. {119:9} The Lord is your keeper, the Lord is your protection, above your right hand. {119:10} The sun will not burn you by day, nor the moon by night. {119:11} The Lord guards you from all evil. May the Lord guard your soul. {119:12} May the Lord guard your entrance and your exit, from this time forward and even forever.

[Psalm 120] (Psalm 121) {120:1} A Canticle in steps. I have lifted up my eyes to the mountains; from thence help will come to me. {120:2} My help is from the Lord, who made heaven and earth. {120:3} May he not allow your foot to be moved, and may he not slumber, who guards you. {120:4} Behold, he who guards Israel will neither sleep, nor slumber. {120:5} The Lord is your keeper, the Lord is your protection, above your right hand. {120:6} The sun will not burn you by day, nor the moon by night. {120:7} The Lord guards you from all evil. May the Lord guard your soul. {120:8} May the Lord guard your entrance and your exit, from this time forward and even forever.
testimony of Israel, to confess to the name of the Lord. {121:5} For in that place, seats have sat down in judgment, seats above the house of David. {121:6} Petition for the things that are for the peace of Jerusalem, and for abundance for those who love you. {121:7} Let peace be in your virtue, and abundance in your towers. {121:8} For the sake of my brothers and my neighbors, I spoke peace about you. {121:9} For the sake of the house of the Lord our God, I sought good things for you.

[Psalm 122] (Psalm 123) {122:1} A Canticle in steps. I have lifted up my eyes to you, who dwells in the heavens. {122:2} Behold, as the eyes of the servants are on the hands of their masters, as the eyes of the handmaid are on the hands of her mistress, so our eyes are upon the Lord our God, until he may be merciful to us. {122:3} Have mercy on us, O Lord, have mercy on us. For we have been filled with utter disdain. {122:4} For our soul has been greatly filled. We are the disgrace of those who have abundance and the disdain of the arrogant.

[Psalm 123] (Psalm 124) {123:1} A Canticle in steps. If the Lord had not been with us, let Israel now say it: {123:2} if the Lord had not been with us, when men rose up against us, {123:3} perhaps they would have swallowed us alive. When their fury was enraged against us, {123:4} perhaps the waters would have engulfed us. {123:5} Our soul has passed through a torrent. Perhaps, our soul had even passed through intolerable water. {123:6} Blessed is the Lord, who has not given us into the harm of their teeth. {123:7} Our soul has been snatched away like a sparrow from the snare of the hunters. The snare has been broken, and we have been freed. {123:8} Our help is in the name of the Lord, who made heaven and earth.

[Psalm 124] (Psalm 125) {124:1} A Canticle in steps. Those who trust in the Lord will be like the mountain of Zion. He will not be disturbed for eternity, who dwells {124:2} in Jerusalem. Mountains surround it. And the Lord surrounds his people, from this time forward and even forever. {124:3} For the Lord will not allow the rod of sinners to remain over the lot of the just, so that the just may not extend their hands toward iniquity. {124:4} Do good, O Lord, to the good and to the upright of heart. {124:5} But those who turn away into obligation, the Lord will lead away with the workers of iniquity. Peace be upon Israel.

[Psalm 125] (Psalm 126) {125:1} A Canticle in steps. When the Lord turned back the captivity of Zion, we became like those who are consoled. {125:2} Then our mouth was filled with gladness and our tongue with exultation. Then they will say among the nations: “The Lord has done great things for them.” {125:3} The Lord has done great things for us. We have become joyful. {125:4} Convert our captivity, O Lord, like a torrent in the south. {125:5} Those who sOW in tears shall reap in exultation. {125:6} When departing, they went forth and wept, sowing their seeds. {125:7} But when returning, they will arrive with exultation, carrying their sheaves.

[Psalm 126] (Psalm 127) {126:1} A Canticle in steps: of Solomon. Unless the Lord has built the house, those who build it have labored in vain. Unless the Lord has guarded the city, he who guards it watches in vain. {126:2} It is in vain that you rise before daylight, that you rise up after you have sat down, you who chew the bread of sorrow. Whereas, to his beloved, he will give sleep. {126:3} Behold, the inheritance of the Lord is sons, the reward is the fruit of the womb. {126:4} Like arrows in the hand of the powerful, so are the sons of those who have been cast out. {126:5} Blessed is the man who has filled his desire from these things. He will not be confounded when he speaks to his enemies at the gate.

[Psalm 127] (Psalm 128) {127:1} A Canticle in steps. Blessed are all those who fear the Lord, who walk in his ways. {127:2} For you will eat by the labors of your hands. Blessed are you, and it will be well with you. {127:3} Your wife is like an abundant vine on the sides of your house. Your sons are like young olive trees surrounding your table. {127:4} Behold, so will the man be blessed who fears the Lord. {127:5} May the Lord bless you from Zion, and may you see the good things of Jerusalem, all the days of your life. {127:6} And may you see the sons of your sons. Peace be upon Israel.

[Psalm 128] (Psalm 129) {128:1} A Canticle in steps. They have often fought against me from my youth, let Israel now say: {128:2} they have often fought against me from my youth, yet they could not prevail over me. {128:3} The sinners have made fabrications behind my back. They have prolonged their iniquity. {128:4} The just Lord will cut the necks of sinners. {128:5} Let all those who hate Zion be confounded and turned backwards. {128:6} Let them be like grass on the rooftops, which withers before it can be pulled up: {128:7} with it, he who reaps does not fill his hand and he who gathers sheaves does not fill his bosom. {128:8} And those who were passing by have not said to them: “The blessing of the Lord be upon you. We have blessed you in the name of the Lord.”

[Psalm 129] (Psalm 130) {129:1} A Canticle in steps. From the depths, I have cried out to you, O Lord. {129:2} O Lord, hear my voice. Let your ears be attentive to the voice of my supplication. {129:3} If you, O Lord, were to heed iniquities, who, O Lord, could persevere? {129:4} For with you, there is forgiveness, and because of your law, I persevered with you, Lord. My soul has persevered in his word. {129:5} My soul has hoped in the Lord. {129:6} From the morning watch, even until night, let Israel hope in the Lord. {129:7} For with the Lord there is mercy, and with him there is bountiful redemption. {129:8} And he will redeem Israel from all his iniquities.

[Psalm 130] (Psalm 131) {130:1} A Canticle in steps: of David. O Lord, my heart has not been exalted, and my eyes have not been raised up. Neither have I walked in greatness, nor in wonders beyond me. {130:2} When I was not humble in thought, then I lifted up my soul. Like one who has been weaned from his mother, so was I recompensed in my soul. {130:3} Let Israel hope in the Lord, from this time forward and even forever.

[Psalm 131] (Psalm 132) {131:1} A Canticle in steps. O Lord, remember David and all his meekness, {131:2} how he swore to the Lord, how he made a vow to the God of Jacob: {131:3} I shall not enter into the tabernacle of my house, nor climb into the bed where I lie down; {131:4} I shall not give sleep to my eyes, nor slumber to my eyelids {131:5} and rest to my temples, until I find a place for the Lord, a tabernacle for the God of Jacob. {131:6} Behold, we heard of it in Ephrathah. We discovered it in the fields of the forest. {131:7} We will enter into his tabernacle. We will adore in the place where his feet stood. {131:8} Rise up, O Lord, into your resting place. You and the ark of your sanctification. {131:9} Let your priests be clothed with justice, and let your saints exult. {131:10} For the sake of your servant David, do not turn away the face of your Christ. {131:11} The Lord has sworn the truth to David, and he will not disappoint: I will set upon your throne from the fruit of your lineage. {131:12} If your sons will keep my covenant and these, my testimonies, which I will teach to them, then their sons will sit upon your throne even forever. {131:13} For the Lord has chosen Zion. He has chosen it as his dwelling place. {131:14} This is my resting place, forever and ever. Here I will dwell, for I have chosen it. {131:15} When blessing, I will bless her widow. I will satisfy her poor with bread. {131:16} I will clothe her priests with salvation, and her saints will rejoice with great joy. {131:17} There, I will produce a horn to David. There, I have prepared a lamp for my Christ. {131:18} I will clothe his enemies with confusion. But my sanctification will flourish over him.

[Psalm 132] (Psalm 133) {132:1} A Canticle in steps: of David. Behold, how good and how pleasing it is for brothers to dwell in unity. {132:2} It is like the ointment on the head that descended to the beard, the beard of Aaron, which descended from mount Zion. For in that place, the Lord has commanded a blessing, and life, even unto eternity.

[Psalm 133] (Psalm 134) {133:1} A Canticle in steps. Behold, bless the Lord now, all you servants of the Lord, who stand in the house of the Lord, in the courts of the house of our God. {133:2} In the nights, lift up your hands in sanctity, and bless the Lord. {133:3} May the Lord, who made heaven and earth, bless you from Zion.

[Psalm 134] (Psalm 135) {134:1} Alleluia. Praise the name of the Lord. You servants, praise the Lord. {134:2} You who stand in the house of the Lord, in the courts of the house of our God: {134:3} praise the Lord, for the Lord is good. Sing psalms to his name, for it is sweet. {134:4} For the Lord has chosen Jacob for himself, Israel for his own possession. {134:5} For I have known that the Lord is great, and our God is before all gods. {134:6} All things whatsoever that he willed, the Lord did: in heaven, on earth, in the sea, and in all the deep places. {134:7} He leads clouds from the ends of the earth. He has created lightnings in the rain. He has produced winds from his storehouses. {134:8} He struck the first-born of Egypt, from man even to cattle. {134:9} He sent signs and wonders into your midst, O Egypt: upon Pharaoh and upon all his servants. {134:10} He has struck many nations, and he has slaughtered strong kings: {134:11} Sihon, king of the Amorites, and Og, king of Bashan, and all the kingsoms of Canaan. {134:12} And he gave their land as an inheritance, as an inheritance for his people Israel. {134:13} Your name, O Lord, is in eternity. Your memorial, O Lord, is from generation to generation. {134:14} For the Lord will judge his people, and he will be petitioned by his servants. {134:15} The idols of the Gentiles are silver and gold, the works of the hands of men. {134:16} They have a mouth, and do not speak. They have eyes, and do not see. {134:17} They have ears, and do not hear. For neither is there any breath in their mouths. {134:18} Let those who make them become like them, along with all who trust in them. {134:19} Bless the Lord, O house of Israel. Bless the Lord, O house of Aaron. {134:20} Bless the Lord, O house of Levi. You who fear the Lord, bless the Lord. {134:21} The Lord is blessed from Zion, by those who dwell in Jerusalem.

[Psalm 135] (Psalm 136) {135:1} Alleluia. Confess to the Lord, for he is good: for his mercy is eternal. {135:2} Confess to the God of gods, for his mercy is eternal. {135:3} Confess to the Lord of lords, for his mercy is eternal. {135:4} He alone performs great miracles, for his mercy is eternal. {135:5} He made the heavens with understanding, for his mercy is eternal. {135:6} He established the earth above the waters, for his mercy is eternal. {135:7} He made the great lights, for his mercy is eternal: {135:8} the sun to rule the day, for his mercy is eternal: {135:9} the moon and the stars to rule the night, for his mercy is eternal. {135:10} He struck Egypt along with their first-born, for his mercy is eternal. {135:11} He led Israel away from their midst, for his mercy is eternal: {135:12} with a powerful hand and an outstretched arm, for his mercy is eternal. {135:13} He divided the Red Sea into separate parts, for his mercy is eternal. {135:14} And he led out Israel through the middle of it, for his mercy is eternal. {135:15} And he shook off Pharaoh and his army in the Red Sea, for his mercy is eternal. {135:16} He led his people through the desert, for his mercy is eternal. {135:17} He has struck great kings, for his mercy is eternal. {135:18} And he has slaughtered strong kings, for his mercy is eternal: {135:19} Sihon, king of the Amorites, for his mercy is eternal: {135:20} and Og, king of Bashan, for his mercy is eternal. {135:21} And he granted their land as an inheritance, for his mercy is eternal: {135:22} as an inheritance for his servant Israel, for his mercy is eternal. {135:23} For he was mindful of us in our humiliation, for his mercy is eternal. {135:24} And he redeemed us from our enemies, for his mercy is eternal. {135:25} He gives food to all flesh, for his mercy is eternal. {135:26} Confess to the God of heaven, for his mercy is eternal. {135:27} Confess to the Lord of lords, for his mercy is eternal.

[Psalm 136] (Psalm 137) {136:1} A Psalm of David: to Jeremiah. Above the rivers of Babylon, there we sat and wept, while we remembered Zion. {136:2} By the willow trees, in their midst, we hung up our instruments. {136:3} For, in that place, those who led us into captivity questioned us about the words of the songs. And those who carried us away said: “Sing us a hymn from the songs of Zion.” {136:4} How can we sing a song of the Lord in a foreign land? {136:5} If I ever forget you, Jerusalem, let my right hand be forgotten. {136:6} May my tongue adhere to my jaws, if I do not remember you, if I do not set Jerusalem first, as the beginning of my joy. {136:7} O Lord, call to mind the sons of Edom, in the day of Jerusalem, who say: “Despoil it, despoil it, even to its foundation.” {136:8} O daughter of Babylon, have pity. Blessed is he who will repay you with your payment, which you have paid to us. {136:9} Blessed is he who will take hold of your little ones and dash them against the rock.

[Psalm 137] (Psalm 138) {137:1} Of David himself. O Lord, I will confess to you with my whole heart, for you have heard the words of my mouth. I will sing psalms to you in the sight of the Angels. {137:2} I will adore before your holy temple, and I will confess your name: it is above your mercy and your truth. For you have magnified your holy name above all. {137:3} On whatever day that I will call upon you: hear me. You will multiply virtue in my soul. {137:4} May all the kings of the earth confess to you, O Lord. For they have heard all the words of your mouth. {137:5} And let them sing in accordance with the ways of the Lord. For great is the glory of the Lord. {137:6} For the Lord is exalted, and he looks with favor on the humble. But the lofty he knows from a distance. {137:7} If I wander into the midst of tribulation, you will revive me. For you extended your hand against the wrath of my enemies. And your right hand has accomplished my salvation. {137:8} The Lord will provide retribution on my behalf. O Lord, your mercy is forever. Do not disdain the works of your hands.

[Psalm 138] (Psalm 139) {138:1} Unto the end. A Psalm of David. O Lord, you have examined me, and you have known me. {138:2} You have known my sitting down and my rising up again. {138:3} You have understood my thoughts from afar. My path and my fate, you have investigated. {138:4} And you have foreseen all my ways. For there is no word in my tongue. {138:5} Behold, O Lord, you have known all things: the newest and the very old. You have formed me, and you have placed your hand over me. {138:6} Your knowledge has become a wonder to me. It has been reinforced, and I am not able to prevail against it. {138:7} Where will I go from your Spirit? And where will I flee from your face? {138:8} If I ascend into heaven, you are there. If I descend into Hell, you are near. {138:9} If I assume my feathers in early morning, and dwell in the utmost parts of the sea, {138:10} even there, your hand will lead me forth, and your right hand will hold me. {138:11} And I said: Perhaps darkness will overwhelm me, and the night will be my illumination, to my delight. {138:12} But darkness will not be impenetrable to you, and night will illuminate like the day: for just as its darkness is, so also is its light. {138:13} For you have possessed my temperament. You have supported me from the womb of my mother. {138:14} I will confess to you, for you have been magnified terribly. Your works are miraculous, as my soul knows exceedingly well. {138:15} My bone, which you have made in secret, has not been hidden from you, and my substance is in accord with the lower parts of the earth. {138:16} Your eyes saw my imperfection, and all this shall be written in your book. Days will be formed, and no one shall be in them. {138:17} But to me, O God, your friends have been greatly honored. Their first ruler has been exceedingly strengthened. {138:18} I will number them, and they will be more numerous than the sand. I rose up, and I am still with you. {138:19} O God, if only you would cut down sinners. You men of blood: depart from me. {138:20} For you say in thought: They will accept your cities in vain. {138:21} Have I not hated those who hated you, Lord, and wasted away because of your enemies? {138:22} I have hated them with a perfect hatred, and they have become enemies to me. {138:23} Examine me, O God, and know my heart. Question me, and know my paths. {138:24} And see if there might be in me the way of iniquity, and lead me in the way of eternity.

[Psalm 139] (Psalm 140) {139:1} Unto the end. A Psalm of David. {139:2} Rescue me, O Lord, from the evil man. Rescue me from the iniquitous leader. {139:3} Those who have devised iniquities in their hearts: all day long they constructed conflicts. {139:4} They have sharpened their tongues like a serpent. The venom of asps is under their lips. {139:5} Preserve me, O Lord, from the hand of the sinner, and rescue me from men of iniquity. They have decided to supplant my steps. {139:6} The arrogant have hidden a snare for me. And they have stretched out cords for a snare. They have placed a stumbling block for me near the road. {139:7} I said to the Lord: You are my God. O Lord, heed the voice of my supplication. {139:8} Lord, O Lord, the strength of my salvation: you have overshadowed my head in the day of war. {139:9} O Lord, do not hand me over to the sinner by my desire. They have plotted against me. Do not abandon me, lest they should triumph. {139:10} The head of those who encompass me, the labor of their lips, will overwhelm them. {139:11} Burning coals will fall upon them. You will cast them down into the fire, into miseries that they will not be able to withstand. {139:12} A talkative man will not be guided aright upon the earth. Evils will drag the unjust man unto utter ruin. {139:13} I know that the Lord will accomplish justice for the needy and vindication for the poor. {139:14} So then, truly, the just will confess your name, and the upright will dwell with your countenance.

[Psalm 140] (Psalm 141) {140:1} A Psalm of David. O Lord, I have cried out to you, hear me. Attend to my voice, when I cry out to you. {140:2} Let my prayer be guided like incense in your sight: the lifting up of my hands, like the evening sacrifice. {140:3} O Lord, station a guard over my mouth and before him, I declare my tribulation. {140:4} Do not turn aside my heart to words of malice, to making excuses for sins, with men who work iniquity; and I will not communicate, even with the best of them. {140:5} The just one will correct me with mercy, and he will rebuke me. But do not allow the oil of the sinner to fatten my head. For my prayer will still be toward their good will. {140:6} Their judges have been engulfed, joined to the rocks. They will hear my words, which have prevailed, {140:7} as when the lava of the earth has erupted above ground. Our bones have been scattered beside Hell. {140:8} For Lord, O Lord, my eyes look to you. In you, I have hoped. Do not take away my soul. {140:9} Protect me from the snare that they have set up for me and from the scandals of those who work iniquity. {140:10} The sinners will fall into his net. I am alone, until I pass over.

[Psalm 141] (Psalm 142) {141:1} The understanding of David. A prayer, when he was in the cave. {141:2} With my voice, I cried out to the Lord. With my voice, I made supplication to the Lord. {141:3} In his sight, I pour out my prayer, and before him, I declare my tribulation. {141:4} Though my spirit may become faint within me, even then, you have known my paths. Along this way, which I have been walking, they have hidden a snare for me. 141:5 I considered toward the right, and I looked, but there was no one who would know me. Flight has perished before me, and there is no one who has concern for my soul.

141:6 I cried out to you, O Lord. I said: You are my hope, my portion in the land of the living. 141:7 Attend to my supplication. For I have been humbled exceedingly. Free me from my persecutors, for they have been fortified against me.

141:8 Lead my soul out of confinement in order to confess your name. The just are waiting for me, until you repay me.

[Psalm 142] (Psalm 143) 142:1 A Psalm of David, when his son Absalom was pursuing him. O Lord, hear my prayer. Incline your ear to my supplication in your truth. Heed me according to your justice. 142:2 And do not enter into judgment with your servant. For all the living will not be justified in your sight. 142:3 For the enemy has pursued my soul. He has lowered my life to the earth. He has stationed me in darkness, like the dead of ages past. 142:4 And my spirit has been in anguish over me. My heart within me has been disturbed. 142:5 I have called to mind the days of antiquity. I have been meditating on all your works. I have meditated on the workings of your hands. 142:6 I have extended my hands to you. My soul is like a land without water before you. 142:7 O Lord, heed me quickly. My spirit has grown faint. Do not turn your face away from me, lest I become like those who descend into the pit. 142:8 Make me hear your mercy in the morning. For I have hoped in you. Make known to me the way that I should walk. For I have lifted up my soul to you. 142:9 O Lord, rescue me from my enemies. I have fled to you. 142:10 Teach me to do your will. For you are my God. Your good Spirit will lead me into the righteous land. 142:11 For the sake of your name, O Lord, you will revive me in your fairness. You will lead my soul out of tribulation. 142:12 And you will scatter my enemies in your mercy. And you will destroy all those who afflict my soul. For I am your servant.

[Psalm 143] (Psalm 144) 143:1 A Psalm of David versus Goliath. Blessed is the Lord, my God, who trains my hands. 143:2 My mercy and my refuge, my supporter and my deliverer, my protector and him in whom I have hoped: he subdued my people under me. 143:3 O Lord, what is man that you have become known to him? Or the son of man that you consider him? 143:4 Man has been made similar to vanity. His days pass by like a shadow. 143:5 O Lord, incline your heavens and descend. Touch the mountains, and they will smoke. 143:6 Send a flash of lightning, and you will scatter them. Shoot your arrows, and you will set them in disarray.

143:7 Send forth your hand from on high: rescue me, and free me from many waters, from the hand of the sons of foreigners. 143:8 Their mouth has been speaking vain things, and their right hand is the right hand of iniquity. 143:9 To you, O God, I will sing a new song. On the psaltery, with an instrument of ten strings, I will sing psalms to you. 143:10 He gives salvation to kings. He has redeemed your servant David from the malignant sword. 143:11 Rescue me, and deliver me from the hand of the sons of foreigners. Their mouth has been speaking vain things, and their right hand is the right hand of iniquity.

[Psalm 144] (Psalm 145) 144:1 The Praise of David himself. I will extol you, O God, my king. And I will bless your name, in this time and forever and ever. 144:2 Throughout every single day, I will bless you. And I will praise your name, in this time and forever and ever. 144:3 The Lord is great and exceedingly praiseworthy. And there is no end to his greatness. 144:4 Generation after generation will praise your works, and they will declare your power. 144:5 They will tell of the magnificent glory of your sanctity. And they will discourse of your wonders. 144:6 And they will talk about the virtue of your terrible acts. And they will describe your greatness. 144:7 They will shout about the memory of your abundant sweetness. And they will exult in your justice. 144:8 The Lord is compassionate and merciful, patient and full of mercy. 144:9 The Lord is sweet to all things, and his compassion is upon all his works. 144:10 O Lord, may all your works confess to you, and let your holy ones bless you.

144:11 They will speak of the glory of your kingdom, and they will declare your power, 144:12 so as to make known to the sons of men your power and the glory of your magnificent kingdom. 144:13 Your kingdom is a kingdom for all ages, and your dominion is with all, from generation to generation. The Lord is faithful in all his words and holy in all his works. 144:14 The Lord lifts up all who have fallen down, and he sets upright all who have been thrown down. 144:15 O Lord, all eyes hope in you, and you provide their food in due time. 144:16 You open your hand, and you fill every kind of animal with a blessing. 144:17 The Lord is just in all his ways and holy in all his works. 144:18 The Lord is near to all who call upon him, to all who call upon him in truth. 144:19 He will do the will of those who fear him, and he will heed their supplication and accomplish their salvation. 144:20 The Lord watches over all who love him. And he will destroy all sinners. 144:21 My mouth will speak the praise of the Lord, and may all flesh bless his holy name, in this time and forever and ever.
He will support the orphan and the widow. And he will destroy the ways of sinners. {145:10} The Lord shall reign forever: your God, O Zion, from generation to generation.

[Psalm 146] {146:1} Alleluia. Praise the Lord, because the psalm is good. Delightful and beautiful praise shall be for our God. {146:2} The Lord builds up Jerusalem. He will gather together the dispersed of Israel. {146:3} He heals the contrite of heart, and he binds up their sorrows. {146:4} He numbers the multitude of the stars, and he calls them all by their names. {146:5} Great is our Lord, and great is his virtue. And of his wisdom, there is no number. {146:6} The Lord lifts up the meek, but he brings down the sinner, even to the ground. {146:7} Sing before the Lord with confession. Play psalms to our God on a stringed instrument. {146:8} He covers heaven with clouds, and he prepares rain for the earth. He produces grass on the mountains and herbs for the service of men. {146:9} He gives their food to beasts of burden and to young ravens that call upon him. {146:10} He will not have good will for the strength of the horse, nor will he be well pleased with the legs of a man. {146:11} The Lord is well pleased with those who fear him and with those who hope in his mercy.

[Psalm 147] {147:1} Alleluia. Praise the Lord, O Jerusalem. Praise your God, O Zion. {147:2} For he has reinforced the bars of your gates. He has blessed your sons within you. {147:3} He has stationed peace at your borders, and he has satisfied you with the fat of the grain. {147:4} He sends forth his eloquence to the earth. His word runs swiftly. {147:5} He provides snow like wool. He strews clouds like ashes. {147:6} He sends his ice crystals like morsels. Who can stand firm before the face of his cold? {147:7} He will send forth his word, and it will melt them. His Spirit will breathe out, and the waters will flow. {147:8} He announces his word to Jacob, his justices and his judgments to Israel. {147:9} He has not done so much for every nation, and he has not made his judgments manifest to them. Alleluia.

[Psalm 148] {148:1} Alleluia. Praise the Lord from the heavens. Praise him on the heights. {148:2} Praise him, all his Angels. Praise him, all his hosts. {148:3} Praise him, sun and moon. Praise him, all stars and light. {148:4} Praise him, heavens of the heavens. And let all the waters that are above the heavens {148:5} praise the name of the Lord. For he spoke, and they became. He commanded, and they were created. {148:6} He has stationed them in eternity, and for age after age. He has established a precept, and it will not pass away. {148:7} Praise the Lord from the earth: you dragons and all deep places, {148:8} fire, hail, snow, ice, windstorms, which do his word, {148:9} mountains and all hills, fruitful trees and all cedars, {148:10} wild beasts and all cattle, serpents and feathered flying things, {148:11} kings of the earth and all peoples, leaders and all judges of the earth, {148:12} young men and virgins. Let the older men with the younger men, praise the name of the Lord. {148:13} For his name alone is exalted. {148:14} Confession of him is beyond heaven and earth, and he has exalted the horn of his people. A hymn to all his holy ones, to the sons of Israel, to a people close to him. Alleluia.

[Psalm 149] {149:1} Alleluia. Sing to the Lord a new song. His praise is in the Church of the saints. {149:2} Let Israel rejoice in him who made them, and let the sons of Zion exult in their king. {149:3} Let them praise his name in chorus. Let them sing psalms to him with the timbrel and the psaltery. {149:4} For the Lord is well pleased with his people, and he will exalt the meek unto salvation. {149:5} The saints will exult in glory. They will rejoice upon their couches. {149:6} The exultations of God will be in their throat, and two-edged swords will be in their hands: {149:7} to obtain vindication among the nations, chastisements among the peoples, {149:8} to bind their kings with shackles and their nobles with manacles of iron, {149:9} to obtain judgment over them, as it has been written. This is glory for all his saints. Alleluia.

 The Book of Proverbs **

[Proverbs 1] {1:1} The parables of Solomon, son of David, king of Israel, {1:2} in order to know wisdom and discipline, {1:3} to understand words of prudence, and to accept the instruction of doctrine, justice and judgment, and equity, {1:4} so as to give discernment to little ones, knowledge and understanding to adolescents. {1:5} By listening, the wise shall become wiser and the intelligent shall possess governments. {1:6} He shall turn his soul to a parable and to its interpretation, to the words of the wise and their enigmas. {1:7} The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom. The foolish despise wisdom as well as doctrine. {1:8} Listen, my son, to the discipline of your father, and forsake not the law of your mother, {1:9} so that grace may be added to your head and a collar to your neck. {1:10} My son, if sinners should entice you, do not consent to them. {1:11} If they should say: “Come with us. We will lie in wait for blood. We will lay traps against the innocent, without cause. {1:12} Let us swallow him alive, like Hell, and whole, like one{1:13} We will discover every precious substance. We will fill our houses with spoils.

{1:14} Cast your lot with us. One purse will be for us all.” {1:15} My son, do not walk with them. Preclude your feet from their paths. {1:16} For their feet rush to evil, and they hurry to shed blood. {1:17} But a net is thrown in vain before the eyes of those who have wings. {1:18} Likewise, they lie in ambush against their own blood, and they undertake deceits against their own souls. {1:19} Thus, the ways of all those who are greedy seize the souls of those who possess. {1:20} Wisdom forewarns far and wide; she bestows her voice in the streets. {1:21} She cries out at the head of crowds; at the entrance of the gates of the city, she offers her words, saying: {1:22} “Little ones, how long will you choose to be childish, and how long will the foolish desire what is harmful to themselves, and how long will the imprudent hate knowledge? {1:23} Be converted by my correction. Lo, I will offer my spirit to you, and I will reveal my words to you. {1:24} For I called, and you refused. I extended my hand, and there was no one who watched. {1:25} You have despised all my counsels, and you have neglected my rebukes. {1:26} Similarly, I will ridicule you at your demise, and I will mock you, when that which you feared shall overcome you. {1:27} When sudden calamity rushes upon you, and your demise advances like a tempest, when tribulation and anguish overcome you, {1:28} then they will call to me, and I will not heed, they will arise in the morning, and not find me. {1:29} For they held hatred for discipline, and they would not accept the fear of the Lord; {1:30} they would not consent to my counsel, but they detracted from all of my corrections. {1:31} Therefore, they shall eat the fruit of their way, and they shall have their fill of their own counsels. {1:32} The loathing of the little ones shall destroy them, and the prosperity of the foolish shall perish them. {1:33} But whoever will listen to me shall rest without terror, and shall have full enjoyment of abundance, without fear of evils."

[Proverbs 2] {2:1} My son, if you would accept my words, and conceal my commandments within you, {2:2} so that your ears may listen to wisdom, then bend your heart in order to know prudence. {2:3} For if you would call upon wisdom and bend your heart to prudence, {2:4} if you will seek her like money, and dig for her as if for treasure, {2:5} then you will understand the fear of the Lord, and you will discover the knowledge of God. {2:6} For the Lord bestows wisdom, and out of his mouth, prudence and knowledge. {2:7} He will preserve the salvation of the righteous, and he will protect those who walk in simplicity: {2:8} serving the paths of justice, and guarding the ways of sanctity. {2:9} Then you shall understand justice and judgment, and equity, and every good path. {2:10} If wisdom is to enter into your heart, and if knowledge is to become pleasing to your soul, {2:11} then counsel must guard you, and prudence must serve you, {2:12} so that you may be rescued from the evil way, and from the man who speaks perversities, {2:13} from those who leave the straight path to walk in dark ways, {2:14} who rejoice when they have done evil, and who exult in the most wicked things. {2:15} Their ways are perverse, and their steps are infamous. {2:16} So may you be rescued from the foreign woman, and from the outsider, who softens her speech, {2:17} and who leaves behind the Guide of her youth, {2:18} and who has forgotten the covenant of her God. For her household inclines toward death, and her paths toward Hell. {2:19} All those who enter to her will not return again, nor will they take hold of the paths of life. {2:20} So may you walk in the good way, and keep to the difficult paths of the just. {2:21} For those who are upright shall live upon the earth, and the simple shall continue upon it. {2:22} Yet truly, the impious shall perish from the earth, and those who act unjustly shall be taken away from it.

[Proverbs 3] {3:1} My son, do not forget my law, but let your heart guard my precepts. {3:2} For they shall set before you length of days, and years of life, and peace. {3:3} Let not mercy and truth abandon you: encircle them around your throat, and inscribe them on the tablets of your heart. {3:4} And so shall you discover grace and good discipline, in the sight of God and men. {3:5} Have confidence in the Lord with all your heart, and do not depend upon your own prudence. {3:6} In all your ways, consider him, and he himself will direct your steps. {3:7} Do not seem wise to yourself. Fear God, and withdraw from evil. {3:8} Certainly, it shall be health to your navel, and refreshment to your bones. {3:9} Honor the Lord with your substance, and give to him from the first of all your fruits, {3:10} and then your storehouses will be filled with abundance, and your presses shall overflow with wine. {3:11} My son, do not discard the discipline of the Lord, and do not fall away when you are corrected by him. {3:12} For whomever the Lord loves, he corrects, and just as a father does with a son, he wins him over. {3:13} Blessed is the man who finds wisdom and who advances to prudence. {3:14} Her acquisition is better than trading in silver, and her fruit is better than the first and purest gold. {3:15} She is more precious than all riches, and all that can be desired cannot prevail in comparison to her. {3:16} Length of days is at her right hand, and at her left hand is wealth and glory. {3:17} Her ways are beautiful ways, and all her paths are peaceful. {3:18} She is a tree of life to those who overtake her, and he who shall take hold of her is blessed. {3:19} The Lord founded the earth on wisdom. He secured the heavens with prudence. {3:20} By his wisdom, the abyss erupted and the clouds increased with dew. {3:21} My son, let not these things move away from your eyes. Preserve law as well as counsel. {3:22} And so shall there be life in your soul and grace in your voice. {3:23} Then you shall walk confidently in your way, and your feet will not stumble. {3:24} When you slumber, you shall not fear. When you rest, your sleep also will be sweet. {3:25} Do not fear unexpected terror, nor the power of the impious falling upon you. {3:26} For the Lord will be at your side, and he will guard your feet, so that you may not be seized. {3:27} Do not prevent him who is able from doing good. When you are able, do good yourself too. {3:28} Do not say to your friend: “Go away, and then return. Tomorrow I will give to you.” When you are able to do so, give in the present. {3:29} Do not undertake evil against your friend, even though he has trust in you. {3:30} Do not contend against a man without cause, even though he has done no evil to you. {3:31} Do not rival an unjust man, and do not imitate his ways. {3:32} For everyone who ridicules is an abomination to the Lord, and his communication is for the simple. {3:33} Destitution in the house of the impious is from the Lord. But the habitations of the just shall be blessed. {3:34} He will ridicule those who ridicule, but he will bestow grace upon the mild. {3:35} The wise will possess glory. The exaltation of the foolish is disgraceful.

[Proverbs 4] {4:1} Listen, sons, to the discipline of a father, and pay attention, so that you may know prudence. {4:2} I will bestow upon you a good gift. Do not relinquish my law. {4:3} For I, too, was the son of my father, tender and an only son in the sight of my mother. {4:4} And he taught me, and he also said: “Let your heart accept my words. Keep my precepts, and you shall live. {4:5} Obtain wisdom, obtain prudence. May you neither forget, nor turn away from, the words of my mouth. {4:6} Do not send her away, and she will guard you. Love her, and she will preserve you. {4:7} The beginning of wisdom is to obtain wisdom, and, with all that you possess, to acquire prudence. {4:8} Grasp her, and she will exalt you. You will be glorified by her, when you have embraced her. {4:9} She will bestow upon your head an increase in graces, and she will protect you with a noble crown. {4:10} Listen, my son, and accept my words, so that years of life may be multiplied for you. {4:11} I will demonstrate to you the way of wisdom. I will lead you along the paths of equity. {4:12} When you have entered by these, your steps will not be constrained, and when running, you will have no obstacle. {4:13} Take hold of discipline. Do not dismiss it. Guard it, for it is your life. {4:14} Do not delight in the paths of the impious, nor permit the way of evil-doers to please you. {4:15} Take flight from it. Do not pass close to it. Turn away and abandon it. {4:16} For they do not sleep, unless they have done evil. And their sleep is quickly taken away from them, unless they have overthrown. {4:17} They eat the bread of iniquity, and they drink the wine of iniquity. {4:18} But the path of the just is like a shining light: it advances and increases, even to the day of completion. {4:19} The way of the impious is darkened. They do not know where they may fall. {4:20} My son, pay attention to my sermons, and incline your ear to my eloquent words. {4:21} Let them not recede from your eyes. Keep them in the midst of your heart. {4:22} For they are life to those who find them and health to all that is flesh. {4:23} Preserve your heart with all watchfulness, for life proceeds from this. {4:24} Remove from yourself a corrupt mouth, and let detracting lips be far from you. {4:25} Let your eyes look straight ahead, and let your eyelids precede your steps. {4:26} Direct the path of your feet, and all your ways shall be secure. {4:27} Turn aside, neither to the right, nor to the left; yet turn your foot away from evil. For the Lord knows the ways that are on the right, and truly, those that are on the left are perverse. But he himself will make your courses straight. Then your journey will advance in peace.

[Proverbs 5] {5:1} My son, pay attention to my wisdom, and incline your ear to my prudence, {5:2} so that you may guard your thinking, and so that your lips may preserve discipline. Do not pay attention to the deceit of a woman. {5:3} For the lips of a loose woman are like a dripping honeycomb, and her voice is smoother than oil. {5:4} But in the end, she is as bitter as wormwood, and as sharp as a two-edged sword. {5:5} Her feet descend into death, and her steps reach even to Hell. {5:6} They do not walk along the path of life; her steps are wandering and untraceable. {5:7} Therefore, my son, listen to me now, and do not withdraw from the words of my mouth. {5:8} Make your way at a distance from her, and do not approach the doors of her house. {5:9} Do not give your honor to foreigners, and your years to the cruel. {5:10} Otherwise, outsiders may be filled with your strength, and your labors may be in a foreign house, {5:11} and you may mourn in the end, when you will have consumed your flesh and your body. And so you may say: {5:12} "Why have I detested discipline, and why has my heart not been quieted by correction? {5:13} And why have I not listened to the voice of those who guided me? And why has my ear not inclined to my teachers? {5:14} I have almost been with all evil in the midst of the church and of the assembly." {5:15} Drink water from your own cistern and from the springs of your own well. {5:16} Let your fountains be diverted far and wide, and divide your waters in the streets. {5:17} Hold them for yourself alone, and do not let strangers be partakers with you. {5:18} Let your spring be blessed, and rejoice with the wife of your youth: {5:19} a beloved doe and most pleasing fawn. Let her breasts inebriate you at all times. Be delighted continually by her love. {5:20} Why are you seduced, my son, by a strange woman, and why are you kept warm by the bosom of another? {5:21} The Lord beholds the ways of man, and he considers all his steps. {5:22} His own iniquities take hold of the impious, and he is bound by the cords of his own sins. {5:23} He shall die, for he has not held to discipline. And by the multitude of his foolishness, he shall be deceived.

[Proverbs 6] {6:1} My son, if you have taken a pledge on behalf of your friend, then you have bound your hand to an outsider. {6:2} Then you are ensnared by the words of your own mouth, and taken captive by your own words. {6:3} Therefore, my son, do what I say, and free yourself, for you have fallen into the hand of your neighbor. Run, hurry, awaken your friend. {6:4} Do not grant sleep to your eyes, nor let your eyelids slumber. {6:5} Rescue yourself like a gazelle from the hand, and like a bird from the hand of the fowler. {6:6} Go to the ant, you lazy one, and consider her ways, and so learn wisdom. {6:7} For though she has no ruler, nor instructor, nor leader, {6:8} she provides meals for herself in the summer, and she gathers at the harvest what she may eat. {6:9} How long will you slumber, you lazy one? When will you rise up from your sleep? {6:10} You will sleep a little, you will slumber a little, you will fold your hands a little to sleep, {6:11} and then destitution will meet with you, like a traveler, and poverty, like an armed man. Yet truly, if you would be diligent, then your harvest will arrive like a fountain, and destitution will flee far from you. {6:12} An apostate man, a harmful man, walks with a perverse mouth; {6:13} he winks with the eyes, touches with the foot, speaks with the finger. {6:14} With a depraved heart he devises evil, and at all times he sows conflict. {6:15} To this one, his perdition will arrive promptly, and he shall be crushed suddenly: he will no longer have any remedy. {6:16} Six things there are that the Lord hates, and the seventh, his soul detests: {6:17} haughty eyes, a lying tongue, hands that shed innocent blood, {6:18} a heart that devises the most wicked thoughts, feet running swiftly unto evil, {6:19} a deceitful witness bringing forth lies, and he who sows discord among brothers. {6:20} My son, preserve the precepts of your father, and do not dismiss the law of your mother. {6:21} Bind them to your heart unceasingly, and encircle them around your throat. {6:22} When you walk, let them keep step with you. When you sleep, let them guard you. And when you keep watch, speak with them. {6:23} For commandment is a lamp, and law is a light, and the reproofs of discipline are the way of life. {6:24} So may they guard you from an evil woman, and from the flattering tongue of the outsider. {6:25} Let not your heart desire her beauty; do not be captivated by her winks. {6:26} For the price of a prostitute is only one loaf. Yet the woman seizes the precious soul of a man. {6:27} Would a man be able to conceal fire in his bosom, so that his garments would not burn? {6:28} Or could he walk over burning coals, so that his feet would not be burned? {6:29} So also, he who enters to the wife of his neighbor shall not be clean when he touches her. {6:30} Not so great is the fault when someone has stolen. For he steals so as to satisfy a
My son, guard my words and conceal my precepts within you. Son, preserve my commandments, and you shall live. And keep my law as the pupil of your eye.

Bind it with your fingers; write it on the tablets of your heart. Say to wisdom, “You are my sister,” and call prudence your friend. So may she guard you from the woman who is an outsider, and from the stranger who sweetens her words. For I gaze from the window of my house, through the lattice, and I see little ones. I consider a frenzied youth, who crosses the street at the corner and close to the way of that house. He steps into shadows, as day becomes evening, into the darkness and gloom of the night.

And behold, a woman meets him, dressed like a harlot, prepared to captivate souls: chattering and rambling, unwilling to bear silence, unable to keep her feet at home, now outside, in the streets, now lying in ambush near the corners.

And overtaking the youth, she kisses him, and with a provocative face, she flatters him, saying: "I vowed sacrifices for well-being. Today I have repaid my vows. Because of this, I have gone out to meet you, desiring to see you, and I have found you. I have woven my bed with cords. I have strewn it with embroidered tapestries from Egypt. I have sprinkled my bed with myrrh, aloe, and cinnamon.

Come, let us be inebriated in abundance, and let us delight in the embraces of desire, until the day begins to dawn. For my husband is not in his house. He has gone out to meet you, desiring to see you, and I have found you. Today I have repaid my vows. And he does not know that his actions endanger his own soul. All who hate me love death.

Blessed is the man who listens to me, and who stands at my gates everyday, and who observes at the posts of my doors. Do not let your mind be pulled into her ways. And do not be deceived by her paths. For she has tossed aside many wounded, and some of those who were very strong have been slain by her.
A wise son gladdens the father. Yet truly, a foolish son is the grief of his mother. {10:2} Treasures of impiety will profit nothing. Truly, justice shall liberate from death. {10:3} The Lord will not afflict with famine the soul of the just, and he will overthrow the treacheries of the impious. {10:4} The neglectful hand has wrought destitution. But the hand of the steadfast prepares riches. He who advances by lies, this one feeds on the wind. For he is the same as one who runs after flying birds. {10:5} He who gathers the harvest is a wise son. But he who snores in warm weather is a son of confusion. {10:6} The blessing of the Lord is on the head of the just. But iniquity covers the mouth of the impious. {10:7} The remembrance of the just is with praises. And the name of the impious shall decay. {10:8} The wise of heart accept precepts. The foolish are cut down by the lips. {10:9} He who walks in simplicity walks in confidence. But he who corrupts his ways shall be discovered. {10:10} He who winks with the eye gives sorrow. And the foolish in lips shall be beaten. {10:11} The mouth of the just is a vein of life. And the mouth of the impious covers iniquity. {10:12} Hatred rises up from disputes. And charity covers all offenses. {10:13} In the lips of the wise, wisdom is discovered. And a rod is for the back of one who lacks heart. {10:14} The wise store away knowledge. But the mouth of the foolish is a neighbor to confusion. {10:15} The substance of the rich is the city of his strength. The fear of the poor is their destitution. {10:16} The work of the just is unto life. But the fruit of the impious is unto sin. {10:17} The way of life is for those who observe discipline. But whoever abandons correction wanders astray. {10:18} Lying lips conceal hatred; whoever brings forth contempt is unwise. {10:19} In a multitude of speaking, sin will not be lacking. But whoever tempers his lips is most prudent. {10:20} The tongue of the just is choice silver. But the heart of the impious is exchanged for nothing. {10:21} The lips of the just instruct many. But those who are unlearned shall die in destitution of heart. {10:22} The blessing of the Lord causes riches. Affliction will not be a companion to them. {10:23} The foolish work wickedness as if in jest. But wisdom is prudence to a man. {10:24} What the impious fear will overwhelm them. The just shall be given their desire. {10:25} Like a passing tempest, so the impious one will be no more. But the just one is like an everlasting foundation. {10:26} Like vinegar to the teeth, and smoke to the eyes, so is a lazy one to those who sent him. {10:27} The fear of the Lord adds days. And the years of the impious will be shortened. {10:28} The expectation of the just is rejoicing. But the hope of the impious will perish. {10:29} The strength of the simple is the way of the Lord, and it is fear to those who work evil. {10:30} The just in eternity shall not be moved. But the impious will not live upon the earth. {10:31} The mouth of the just shall bring forth wisdom. The tongue of the depraved will perish. {10:32} The lips of the just consider what is acceptable. And the mouth of the impious considers perversities.

{11:1} A deceitful scale is an abomination with the Lord, and a fair weighing is his will. {11:2} Wherever arrogance may be, there too is insult. But wherever humility is, there too is wisdom. {11:3} The simplicity of the just shall direct them, and the rebellion of the perverse will devastate them. {11:4} Wealth will not profit in the day of vengeance. But justice shall liberate from death. {11:5} The justice of the simple shall direct his way. And the impious will fall in his impiety. {11:6} The justice of the upright shall free them. And the iniquitous will be seized by their own treachery. {11:7} When the impious man is dead, there will no longer be any hope. And the expectation of the anxious will perish. {11:8} The just one is freed from anguish. And the impious one will be handed over instead of him. {11:9} The pretender deceives his friend by mouth. But the just shall be freed by knowledge. {11:10} In the good of the just, the city shall exult. And in the perdition of the impious, there shall be praise. {11:11} By the blessing of the just, the city shall be exalted. And by the mouth of the impious, it will be subverted. {11:12} Whoever despoils his friend is destitute in heart. But the prudent man will remain silent. {11:13} Whoever walks dishonestly reveals secrets. But whoever is of a faithful soul conceals what is confided by a friend. {11:14} Where there is no governor, the people shall fall. But where there is much counsel, well-being shall be. {11:15} He will be afflicted with evil, who provides a guarantee for an outsider. But whoever is wary of traps shall be secure. {11:16} A gracious woman shall discover glory. And the robust will have wealth. {11:17} A merciful man benefits his own soul. But whoever is cruel casts out even his close relatives. {11:18} The impious does work with inconstancy. But for the sower of justice, there is the reward of faithfulness. {11:19} Clemency prepares life. And the pursuit of evils prepares death. {11:20} A depraved heart is abominable to the Lord. And his will is with those who walk in simplicity. {11:21} Hand in hand, the evil shall not be innocent. But the offspring of the just shall be saved. {11:22} A beautiful and senseless woman is like a gold ring in the snout of a swine. {11:23} The desire of the just is entirely good. The anticipation of the impious is fury. {11:24} Some distribute their own goods, and they become wealthier. Others seize what is not their own, and they are always in need. {11:25} The soul that blesses shall be made fat. And whoever inebriates will likewise be inebriated himself. {11:26} Whoever hides away grain shall be cursed among the people. But a blessing is upon the head of those who sell it. {11:27} He does well to rise early, who seeks what is good. But whoever is a seeker of evils shall be oppressed by them. {11:28} Whoever trusts in his riches will fall. But the just shall spring up like a green leaf. {11:29} Whoever troubles his own house will possess the winds. And whoever is foolish will serve the wise. {11:30} The fruit of the just one is the tree of life. And whoever receives souls is wise. {11:31} If the just are repaid upon the earth, how much more the impious and the sinner!

[Proverbs 12] {12:1} Whoever loves discipline loves knowledge. But whoever hates correction is unwise. {12:2} Whoever is good shall draw grace from the Lord. But whoever trusts in his own thoughts acts impiously. {12:3} Man will not be made strong from impiety. And the root of the just shall not be moved. {12:4} A diligent woman is a crown to her husband. And she who acts with confusion as to which things are worthy is decay to his bones. {12:5} The thoughts of the just are judgments. And the counsels of the impious are dishonest. {12:6} The words of the impious lie in wait for blood. The mouth of the just shall free them. {12:7} Turn from the impious, and they will not be. But the house of the just shall stand firm. {12:8} A man will be known by his doctrine. But whoever is vain and heartless will suffer contempt. {12:9} Better is a pauper who has what he needs, than someone glorious and in need of bread. {12:10} The just one knows the lives of his beasts. But the inner most parts of the impious are cruel. {12:11} Whoever works his land shall be satisfied with bread. But whoever continually pursues leisure is most foolish. Whoever is soothed by lingering over wine leaves behind contempt in his strongholds. {12:12} The desire of the impious is the fortification of what is most wicked. But the root of the just shall prosper. {12:13} For the sins of the lips draw ruin to the evil. But the just shall escape from distress. {12:14} By the fruit of his own mouth, each one shall be filled with good things, and according to the works of his own hands, it will be distributed to him. {12:15} The way of the foolish is right in his own eyes. But whoever is wise listens to counsels. {12:16} The senseless immediately reveals his anger. But whoever ignores injuries is clever. {12:17} He is a sign of justice, who speaks what he knows. But whoever deceives is a dishonest witness. {12:18} He who makes promises is also jabbed, as if with a sword, in conscience. But the tongue of the wise is reasonable. {12:19} The lips of truth shall be steadfast forever. But a hasty witness readiness a lying tongue. {12:20} Deceit is in the heart of those who devise evils. But gladness follows those who take up counsels of peace. {12:21} Whatever may befal the just, it will not discourage him. But the impious will be filled with disasters. {12:22} Lying lips are an abomination to the Lord. But whoever acts faithfully pleases him. {12:23} A resourceful man conceals knowledge. And the heart of the unwise provokes foolishness. {12:24} The hand of the strong will rule. But anyone who is neglectful will pay tribute. {12:25} Grief in the heart of a man humbles him. And with a good word he shall be made glad. {12:26} He who ignores a loss for the sake of a friend is just. But the way of the impious will deceive them. {12:27} The dishonest will not discover gain. But the substance of a man will be like precious gold. {12:28} In the path of justice, there is life. But the devious way leads to death.

[Proverbs 13] {13:1} A wise son is the doctrine of his father. But he who ridicules does not listen when he is reproved. {13:2} From the fruit of his own mouth, a man shall be satisfied with good things. But the soul of betrayers is iniquity. {13:3} Whoever guards his mouth guards his soul. But whoever gives no consideration to his speech shall experience misfortunes. {13:4} The lazy one is willing and then not willing. But the soul of he who labors shall be made fat. {13:5} The just shall detest a lying word. But the impious confound and will be confounded. {13:6} Justice guards the way of the innocent. But impiety undermines the sinner. {13:7} One is like the rich, though he has nothing. And another is like the poor, though he has many riches. {13:8} The redemption of a man’s life is his riches. But he who is poor cannot tolerate correction. {13:9} The light of the just enriches. But the lamp of the impious will be extinguished. {13:10} Among the arrogant, there are always conflicts. But those who do everything with counsel are ruled by wisdom. {13:11} Substance obtained in haste will be diminished. But what is collected by hand, little by little, shall be multiplied. {13:12} Hope, when it is delayed, afflicts the soul. The arrival of the desired is a tree of life. {13:13} Whoever denounces something obligates himself for the future. But whoever fears a lesson shall turn away in peace. Deceitful souls wander into sins. The just are merciful and compassionate. {13:14} The law of the wise is a fountain of life, so that he may turn aside from the ruin of death. {13:15} Good doctrine bestows grace. In the way of the contemptuous, there is a chasm. {13:16} The discerning do everything with counsel. But whoever is senseless discloses his stupidity. {13:17} The messenger of the impious will fall into evil. But a faithful ambassador shall prosper. {13:18} Destitution and disgrace are for those who abandon discipline. But whoever agrees with a reproof shall be glorified. {13:19} The desired, when perfected, shall delight the soul. The foolish detest those who flee from evils. {13:20} Whoever keeps step with the wise shall be wise. A friend of the foolish will become like them. {13:21} Evil pursues sinners. And good things shall be distributed to the just. {13:22} The good leave behind heirs: children and grandchildren. And the substance of the sinner is preserved for the just. {13:23} Much nourishment is in the fallow land of the fathers. But for others, it is gathered without judgment. {13:24} He who spares the rod hates his son. But he who loves him urgently instructs him. {13:25} The just eats and fills his soul. But the belly of the impious is never satisfied.

[Proverbs 14] {14:1} A wise woman builds up her household. But a foolish one will pull down with her own hands what has been built up. {14:2} One who walks on a virtuous journey, and who fears God, is despised by him who advances along a disreputable way. {14:3} In the mouth of the foolish, there is a rod of arrogance. But the lips of the wise guard them. {14:4} Where there are no oxen, the feeding trough is empty. But where there are many crops, there the strength of the ox is manifest. {14:5} A faithful witness will not lie. But a deceitful witness offers a lie. {14:6} A mocker seeks wisdom and does not find it. The doctrine of the prudent is accessible. {14:7} Go against a foolish man, and he does not acknowledge lips of prudence. {14:8} The wisdom of a discerning man is to understand his way. And the imprudence of the foolish is to be wandering astray. {14:9} The foolish will speak mockingly of sin. But grace lingers among the just. {14:10} The heart that knows the bitterness of its own soul, in its gladness the outsider shall not meddle. {14:11} The house of the impious will be wiped away. Yet truly, the tabernacles of the just shall spring forth. {14:12} There is a way which seems just to a man, but its conclusion leads to death. {14:13} Laughter shall be mingled with sorrow, and mourning occupies the limits of joy. {14:14} The foolish will be filled up by his own ways. And the good man shall be above him. {14:15} The innocent trust every word. The astute one considers his own steps. Nothing good will be for the deceitful son. But the wise servant shall act prosperously and his way will be set in order. {14:16} The wise fear, and so turn away from evil. The foolish leap ahead with confidence. {14:17} The impatient will work foolishness. And a resourceful man is hated. {14:18} The childhild will possess foolishness, and the discerning will anticipate knowledge. {14:19} The evil will fall down before the good. And the impious will fall down before the gates of the just. {14:20} The pauper will be hated, even by his own neighbor. Yet truly, the friends of the wealthy are many. {14:21} Whoever despises his neighbor, sins. But whoever pities the poor shall be blessed. Whoever trusts in the Lord loves mercy. {14:22} They wander astray who work evil. But mercy and truth prepare good things. {14:23} In every work, there shall be abundance. But where there are many words, there is often need. {14:24} The crown of the wise is their wealth. The senselessness of the foolish is imprudence. {14:25} A faithful witness frees souls. And the chameleon utters lies. {14:26} In the fear of the Lord is the faithfulness of strength, and there shall be hope for his sons. {14:27} The fear of the Lord is a fountain of life, so as to turn aside from the ruin of death. {14:28} In a multitude of people, there is dignity for the king. And in a paucity of people, there is disgrace for the prince. {14:29} Whoever is patient is governed by much prudence. But whoever is impatient exalts his foolishness. {14:30} The well-being of the heart is life for the flesh. But envy is decay for the bones. {14:31} Whoever slanders the indigent argues against his Maker. But he who has compassion on the poor honors his Maker. {14:32} The impious will be expelled in his malice. But the just finds hope even in his own death. {14:33} In the heart of the prudent, wisdom finds rest. And so shall he instruct all the uneducated. {14:34} Justice elevates a nation. But sin makes the peoples miserable. {14:35} An intelligent minister is acceptable to the king. Whoever is useless shall bear his wrath.

[Proverbs 15] {15:1} A mild response shatters anger. But a harsh word stirs up fury. {15:2} The tongue of the wise adorns knowledge. But the mouth of the senseless gushes with foolishness. {15:3} In every place, the eyes of the Lord consider good and evil. {15:4} A peaceful tongue is a tree of life. But that which is immoderate will crush the spirit. {15:5} A fool laughs at the discipline of his father. But whoever preserves rebukes will become astute. In abundant justice, there is very great virtue. But the intentions of the impious will be eradicated. {15:6} The house of the just has very great strength. And in the fruits of the impious, there is disorder. {15:7} The lips of the wise shall disseminate knowledge. The heart of the foolish will be dissimilar. {15:8} The sacrifices of the impious are abominable to the Lord. The vows of the just are appeasing. {15:9} The way of the impious is an abomination to the Lord. Whoever pursues justice is loved by him. {15:10} Doctrine is evil to those who abandon the way of life. Whoever hates correction shall die. {15:11} Hell and perdition are in the sight of the Lord. How much more the hearts of the sons of men! {15:12} He who corrupts himself does not love the one who afflicts him, nor will he step toward the wise. {15:13} A rejoicing heart gladdens the face. But by the grief of the soul, the spirit is cast down. {15:14} The heart of the wise seeks doctrine. And the mouth of the foolish feeds on ignorance. {15:15} All the days of the poor are evil. A secure mind is like a continual feast. {15:16} Better is a little with the fear of the Lord, than great treasures and dissatisfaction. {15:17} It is better to be called to vegetables with charity, than to a fatted calf with hatred. {15:18} A short-tempered man provokes conflicts. Whoever is patient tempers those who are stirred up. {15:19} The way of the slothful is like a hedge of thorns. The way of the just is without offense. {15:20} A wise son gladdens the father. But the foolish man despises his mother. {15:21} Folly is gladness to the foolish. And the prudent man sets his own steps in order. {15:22} Intentions dissipate where there is no counsel. Yet truly, they are confirmed where there are many counselors. {15:23} A man rejoices in the verdict of his own mouth. And a word at the right time is best. {15:24} The path of life is for the wise above, so that he may turn away from the end of Hell. {15:25} The Lord will demolish the house of the arrogant. And He will make firm the borders of the widow. {15:26} Evil intentions are an abomination to the Lord. And pure conversation, most beautiful, shall be confirmed by him. {15:27} Whoever pursues avarice disturbs his own house. But whoever hates bribes shall live. Through mercy and faith, sins are purged. But through the fear of the Lord, each one turns aside from evil. {15:28} The mind of the just meditates on obedience. The mouth of the impious overflows with evils. {15:29} The Lord is distant from the impious. And he will heed the prayers of the just. {15:30} The light of the eyes rejoices the soul. A good reputation fattens the bones. {15:31} The ear that listens to instruction will be heeded. The mouth of the foolish feeds on ignorance. {15:32} Whatever a man sows, that shall he reap. He who toils shall eat of the abundance. But he who loves ease shall die of hunger. {15:33} The just is beloved in his own country. He is sought of kings, and何况 of princes. {15:34} The fearful of the Lord shall eat the fruit of his labor. He who pursues correction shall dwell in plenty. But he who pursues the words of the foolish shall come to poverty. {15:35} A confident man dooms himself. He who, whilst he has joy, believes he has no need, he shall cast into the mouth of the Lord.
king is a herald of death. And the wise man will appease it. {16:15} In the cheerfulness of the king’s countenance, there is life. And his clemency is like belated rain. {16:16} Possess wisdom, for it is better than gold. And acquire prudence, for it is more precious than silver. {16:17} The path of the just turns away from evils. He who guards his soul preserves his way. {16:18} Arrogance precedes destruction. And the spirit is exalted before a fall. {16:19} It is better to be humbled with the meek, than to divide spoils with the arrogant. {16:20} The learned in word shall find good things. And whoever hopes in the Lord is blessed. {16:21} Whoever is wise in heart shall be called prudent. And whoever is sweet in eloquence shall attain to what is greater. {16:22} Learning is a fountain of life to one who possesses it. The doctrine of the foolish is senseless. {16:23} The heart of the wise shall instruct his mouth and add grace to his lips. {16:24} Careful words are a honeycomb: sweet to the soul and healthful to the bones. {16:25} There is a way which seems right to a man, and its end result leads to death. {16:26} The soul of the laborer labors for himself, because his mouth has driven him to it. {16:27} The impious man digs up evil, and in his lips is the head of the conflict. And just before he suffers disaster, he abandons judgment. {16:28} A perverse man stirs up lawsuits. And one who is verbose divides leaders. {16:29} A man of iniquity entices his friend, and he leads him along a way that is not good. {16:30} Whoever, with astonished eyes, thinks up deprivations, biting his lips, accomplishes evil. {16:31} Old age is a crown of dignity, when it is found in the ways of justice. {16:32} A patient man is better than a strong one. And whoever rules his soul is better than one who assaults cities. {16:33} Lots are cast into the lap, but they are tempered by the Lord.

[Proverbs 17] {17:1} A dry morsel with gladness is better than a house full of sacrifices along with conflict. {17:2} A wise servant shall rule over foolish sons, and he will divide the inheritance among brothers. {17:3} Just as silver is tested by fire, and gold is tested in the furnace, so also does the Lord test hearts. {17:4} The evil obey an unjust tongue. And the false are submissive to lying lips. {17:5} Whoever despises the poor rebukes his Maker. And whoever rejoices in the ruin of another will not go unpunished. {17:6} Sons of sons are the crown of old age. And the glory of sons is their fathers. {17:7} Well-chosen words are not fitting for the foolish, nor are lying lips fitting for a leader. {17:8} The expectation of those who stand ready is a most pleasing jewel. Whichever way he turns himself, he understands prudently. {17:9} Whoever conceals an offense seeks friendships. Whoever repeats the words of another separates allies. {17:10} A correction benefits more with a wise man, than a hundred stripes with a fool. {17:11} The evil one continually seeks conflicts. But a cruel Angel shall be sent against him. {17:12} It is more expedient to meet a bear robbed of her young, than the foolish trusting in his own folly. {17:13} Whoever repays evil for good, evil shall not withdraw from his house. {17:14} Whoever releases the water is the head of the conflict. And just before he suffers contempt, he abandons judgment. {17:15} Those who justify the impious, and those who condemn the just, both are abominable with God. {17:16} What does it profit the foolish to have riches, when he is not able to buy wisdom? Whoever makes his house high seeks ruin. And whoever shuns learning shall fall into evils. {17:17} Whoever is a friend loves at all times. And a brother is proved by distress. {17:18} A foolish man will clap his hands, when he makes a pledge for his friend. {17:19} Whoever dwells on discord loves disputes. And whoever exalts his door seeks ruin. {17:20} Whoever is of a perverse heart shall not find good. And whoever turns his tongue shall fall into evil. {17:21} A foolish one is born into his own disgrace. But his father will not rejoice in one who is senseless. {17:22} A joyful soul makes a lifetime flourish. A gloomy spirit dries out the bones. {17:23} The impious receives gifts from the bosom, so that he may pervert the paths of judgment. {17:24} Prudence shines from the face of the wise. The eyes of the foolish are on the ends of the earth. {17:25} A foolish son is the anger of the father and the grief of the mother who conceived him. {17:26} It is not good to inflict damage on the just, nor to strike the leader who judges uprightly. {17:27} Whoever moderates his words is learned and prudent. And a man of learning has a precious spirit. {17:28} If he would remain silent, even the foolish would be considered wise, and if he closes his lips, intelligent.

[Proverbs 18] {18:1} Whoever has a will to withdraw from a friend, seeks occasions; he shall be reproached at all times. {18:2} The foolish do not accept words of prudence, unless you say what is already turning in his heart. {18:3} The impious, when he has arrived within the depths of sin, thinks little of it. But ill repute and disgrace follow him. {18:4} Words from the mouth of a man are deep waters. And the fountain of wisdom is a torrent overflowing. {18:5} It is not good to accept the character of the impious, so as to turn away from true judgment. {18:6} The lips of the foolish meddle in disputes. And his mouth provokes conflicts. {18:7} The mouth of the foolish is his destruction, and his own lips are the ruin of his soul. {18:8} The words of the double-tongued seem simple. And they reach even to the interior of the gut. Fear casts down the lazy, but the souls of the effeminate shall go hungry. {18:9} Whoever is dissolute and slack in his work is the brother of him who wastes his own works. {18:10} The name of the Lord is very strong tower. The just one rushes to it, and he shall be exalted. {18:11} The substance of the wealthy is the city of his strength, and it is like a strong wall encircling him. {18:12} The heart of a man is exalted before it is crushed and humbled before it is glorified. {18:13} Whoever responds before he listens, demonstrates himself to be foolish and deserving of confusion. {18:14} The spirit of a man sustains his weakness. Yet who can sustain a spirit that is easily angered? {18:15} A prudent heart shall possess knowledge. And the ear of the wise seeks doctrine. {18:16} A man’s gift expands his way and makes space for him before leaders. {18:17} The just is the first accuser of himself; his friend arrives and shall investigate him. {18:18} Casting a lot suppresses contentions and passes judgment, even among the powerful. {18:19} A brother who is helped by a brother is like a reinforced city, and judgments are like the bars of cities. {18:20} From the fruit of a man’s mouth shall his belly be filled. And the harvest of his own lips shall satisfy him. {18:21} Death and life are in the power of the tongue. Whoever values it shall eat from its fruits. {18:22} He who has found a good wife has found goodness, and he shall draw contentment from the Lord. He who expels a good wife expels goodness. But he who holds on to an adulteress is
The poor will speak with supplications. And the rich will express themselves roughly. (18:24) A man amiable to society shall be more friendly than a brother.

[Proverbs 19] (19:1) Better is the poor who walks in his simplicity, than the rich who twists his lips and is unwise. (19:2) Where there is no knowledge of the soul, there is no good. And whoever hurries with his feet will stumble. (19:3) The foolishness of a man undermines his steps. And then he seethes in his soul against God. (19:4) Riches adds many friends. But from the pauper, even those whom he had become separated. (19:5) A false witness shall not go unpunished. And whoever speaks lies will not escape. (19:6) Many honor the character of one who is powerful, and there are friends for a giver of gifts. (19:7) The brothers of the poor man hate him. Moreover, even his friends have withdrawn far from him. Whoever pursues only words shall have nothing. (19:8) But whoever possesses reason loves his own soul. And one who guards prudence shall discover good things. (19:9) A false witness shall not go unpunished. And whoever speaks lies will perish. (19:10) Fine things are not fitting for the foolish, nor is it fitting for a servant to rule over princes. (19:11) The doctrine of a man is known through patience. And his glory is to pass beyond iniquities. (19:12) Like the roaring of a lion, so also is the wrath of a king. And his cheerfulness is like the dew upon the grass. (19:13) A foolish son is the grief of his father. And an argumentative wife is like a roof that is continually leaking. (19:14) A house and its riches are given by parents. But a prudent wife is particularly from the Lord. (19:15) Laziness sends one into a deep sleep, and a dissolute soul will go hungry. (19:16) Whoever guards a commandment guards his own soul. But whoever neglects his own way will die. (19:17) Whoever is merciful to the poor lends to the Lord. And he will repay him for his efforts. (19:18) Teach your son; do not despair. But do not set your soul toward putting him to death. (19:19) Whoever is impatient will sustain damage. And when it has been taken away, he will set up another. (19:20) Listen to counsel and take up discipline, so that you may be wise in your latter days. (19:21) There are many intentions in the heart of a man. But the will of the Lord shall stand firm. (19:22) An indigent man is merciful. And a pauper is better than a deceitful man. (19:23) The fear of the Lord is unto life. And he shall linger in plentitude, without being visited by disaster. (19:24) The lazy conceals his hand under his arm, and he will not so much as bring it to his mouth. (19:25) When the pestilent are scourged, the foolish will become wiser. But if you chastise the wise, he will understand discipline. (19:26) Whoever afflicts his father and flees from his mother is disreputable and unhappy. (19:27) Son, do not cease listening to doctrine, and do not be ignorant of the sermons of knowledge. (19:28) An unjust witness ridicules judgment. And the mouth of the impious devours iniquity. (19:29) Judgments are prepared for those who ridicule. And striking hammers are prepared for the bodies of the foolish.

[Proverbs 20] (20:1) It is a luxurious thing, wine, and inebriation is tumultuous. Anyone who is delighted by this will not be wise. (20:2) Just like the roaring of a lion, so also is the dread of a king. Whoever provokes him sins in his own soul. (20:3) Honor is for the man who separates himself from contentions. But all the foolish meddle in altercations. (20:4) Because of the cold, the lazy one was not willing to plough. Therefore, in the summer, he will beg, and it will not be given to him. (20:5) Counsel in the heart of a man is like deep waters. But a wise man will draw it out. (20:6) Many men are called merciful. But who will find a faithful man? (20:7) The just who walks in his simplicity shall leave behind him blessed sons. (20:8) The king who sits on the throne of judgment scatters all evil with his gaze. (20:9) Who is able to say: “My heart is clean. I am pure from sin?” (20:10) Diverse weights, diverse measures: both are abominable with God. (20:11) A child may be understood by his interests: whether his works may be clean and upright. (20:12) The hearing ear and the seeing eye: the Lord has made them both. (20:13) Do not love sleep, lest deprivation oppress you. Open your eyes and be satisfied with bread. (20:14) “It is bad, it is bad,” says every buyer; and when he has withdrawn, then he will boast. (20:15) There is gold, and there are a multitude of jewels. But lips of knowledge are a precious vessel. (20:16) Take away the vestments of him who stands up to vouch for a stranger, and take a pledge from him instead of from outsiders. (20:17) The bread of lies is sweet to a man. But afterwards, his mouth will be filled with pebbles. (20:18) Plans are strengthened by counsels. And wars are to be handled by governments. (20:19) Do not become involved with him who reveals mysteries, and who walks deceitfully, and who enlarges his lips. (20:20) Whoever curses his father and mother, his lamp will be extinguished in the midst of darkness. (20:21) When an inheritance is obtained hastily in the beginning, in the end it will be without a blessing. (20:22) Do not say, “I will repay evil.” Wait for the Lord, and he will free you. (20:23) Diverse weights are an abomination with the Lord. A deceitful balance is not good. (20:24) The steps of men are directed by the Lord. But who is the man able to understand his own way? (20:25) It is ruin for a man to devour what is holy, or, after making vows, to retract them. (20:26) A wise king scatters the impious and bends an archway over them. (20:27) The spirit of a man is a lamp to the Lord, which investigates all the secrets of the inner self. (20:28) Mercy and truth guard the king, and his throne is strengthened by clemency. (20:29) The joy of youths is their strength. And the dignity of old men is their grey hairs. (20:30) The bruise of a wound, as well as scourges, shall wipe away evils in the more secret places of the inner self.

[Proverbs 21] (21:1) Just as with the dividing of the waters, so also is the heart of the king in the hand of the Lord. He shall bend it whichever way he wills. (21:2) Every way of a man seems right to himself. But the Lord weighs hearts. (21:3) To do mercy and judgment is more pleasing to the Lord than sacrifices. (21:4) To lift up the eyes is to enlarge the heart. The lamp of the impious is sin. (21:5) The intentions of the robust continually bring forth abundance. But all the lazy are continually in need. (21:6) Whoever gathers treasures by a lying tongue is vain and heartless. And he will stumble into the snares of death. (21:7) The robberies of the impious will drag them down, because they were not willing to do judgment. (21:8) The perverse way of a man is foreign. But whoever is pure: his work is upright. (21:9) It is better to sit in a corner of the attic, than with a contentious woman and in a shared house. 21:10 The soul of the impious desires evil; he will not take pity on his neighbor. 21:11 When the pestilent is punished, a little one will become wiser. And if he pursues what is wise, he will receive knowledge. 21:12 The just thinks carefully about the house of the impious, so that he may draw the impious away from evil. 21:13 Whoever blocks his ears to the outcry of the poor shall also cry out himself, and he will not be heeded. 21:14 A surprise gift extinguishes anger. And a gift concealed in the bosom extinguishes the greatest indignation. 21:15 It is gladness for the just to do judgment; and it is dread for those who work iniquity. 21:16 A man who wanders astra from the way of doctrine will linger in the company of the giants. 21:17 Whoever loves a feast will be in deprivation. Whoever loves wine and fatness will not be enriched. 21:18 The impious is given over instead of the just, and the iniquitous is given over in place of the upright. 21:19 It is better to live in a deserted land, than with a quarrelsome and emotional woman. 21:20 There is desirable treasure, as well as oil, in the habitations of the just. And the imprudent man will waste it. 21:21 Whoever follows justice and mercy shall discover life, justice, and glory. 21:22 The wise has ascended the city of the strong, and he has torn down the bulwark of its confidence. 21:23 Whoever guards his mouth and his tongue guards his soul from anguish. 21:24 A proud and arrogant one is also called ignorant, if he, in anger, acts according to pride. 21:25 Desires kill the lazy, for his hands are not willing to work at all. 21:26 He covets and desires all day long. But whoever is just shall distribute and shall not cease. 21:27 The sacrifices of the impious are abominable, because they are offered out of wickedness. 21:28 A lying witness will perish. An obstinate man shall speak of victory. 21:29 The impious man insolently hardens his face. But whoever is upright corrects his own way. 21:30 There is no wisdom, there is no prudence, there is no counsel, which is against the Lord. 21:31 The horse is prepared for the day of battle. But the Lord bestows salvation.

[Proverbs 22] 22:1 A good name is better than many riches. And good esteem is above silver and gold. 22:2 The rich and poor have met one another. The Lord is the maker of And good esteem is above silver and gold. 22:3 The clever saw evil and hid himself. The innocent continued on and was afflicted with damage. 22:4 The end of moderation is the fear of the Lord, riches and glory and life. 22:5 Weapons and swords are on the way of the perverse. But he who guards his own soul withdraws far from them. 22:6 The proverb is: A youth is close to his way; even when he is old, he will not withdraw from it. 22:7 The rich rule over the poor. And the borrower is servant to the lender. 22:8 Whoever sows iniquity will reap evils, and by the rod of his own wrath he will be consumed. 22:9 Whoever is inclined to mercy shall be blessed, for from his bread he has given to the poor. Whoever gives gifts will acquire victory and honor. But he carries away the soul of the receiver. 22:10 Cast out the one who ridicules, and conflict will go out with him, and accusations and insults will cease. 22:11 Whoever loves clearness of heart, because of the grace of his lips, will have the king as his friend. 22:12 The eyes of the Lord watch over knowledge. And the words of the iniquitous are supplanted. 22:13 The lazy one says: “There is a lion outside. I might be slain in the midst of the streets.” 22:14 The mouth of a foreign woman is a deep pit; the Lord was angry with him who will fall into it. 22:15 Foolishness has been bound to the heart of a child, and a rod of discipline shall cause it to flee. 22:16 Whoever slanders the poor, so as to augment his own riches, will give it away to one who is richer, and will be in need. 22:17 Incline your ear, and listen to the words of the wise. Then apply your heart to my doctrine. 22:18 It shall be beautiful to you, if you preserve it in your inner self, and it shall overflow from your lips, so that your confidence may be in the Lord. Therefore, I also have revealed it to you this day. 22:20 Behold, I have written it for you in three ways, and with meditations and knowledge, so that I might reveal to you, firmly and with words of truth, in order to respond about these things to those who sent you. 22:22 Do not act with violence toward the pauper because he is poor. And do not weary the needy at the gate. 22:23 For the Lord will judge his case, and he will pierce those who have pierced his soul. 22:24 Do not be willing to be a friend to an angry man, and do not walk with a furious man, lest perhaps you learn his ways, and take up a stumbling block to your soul. 22:26 Do not be willing to be with those who certify with their hands, and who offer themselves as a guarantee against debts. 22:27 For if you do not have the means to restore, what reason should there be for him to take the covering from your bed? 22:28 Do not cross beyond the ancient limits that your fathers have set. 22:29 Have you seen a man swift in his work? He shall stand in the sight of kings, and not before those who are disreputable.

[Proverbs 23] 23:1 When you sit down to eat with a leader, pay close attention to what has been set before your face, and put a knife to your throat, if, in such a way, you could hold your soul in your own power. 23:2 Do not desire his foods, in which is the bread of deceit. 23:3 Do not desire his foods, in which is the bread of deceit. But do not be willing to labor so that you may be enriched. But set limits by your prudence. 23:5 Do not raise your eyes toward wealth that you are not able to have. For they will make themselves wings, like those of an eagle, and they will fly in the sky. 23:6 Do not eat with an envious man, and do not desire his foods. 23:7 For, like a seer and an interpreter of dreams, he presumes what he does not know. “Eat and drink,” he will say to you; and his mind is not with you. 23:8 The foods that you had eaten, you will vomit up. And you will lose the beauty in your words. 23:9 Do not speak into the ears of the unwise. They will despise the doctrine of your eloquence. 23:10 Do not touch the boundaries of little ones, and do not enter into the field of the fatherless. 23:11 For their close relative is strong, and he will judge their case against you. 23:12 Let your heart enter into doctrine, and let your ears enter into words of knowledge. 23:13 Do not be willing to take away discipline from a child. For if you strike him with the rod, he will not die. 23:14 You will strike him with the rod, and so shall you deliver his soul from Hell. 23:15 My son, if your soul will become wise, my heart will be glad with you. 23:16 And my temperament will exult, when your lips have spoken what is upright. 23:17 Let not your heart compete with sinners. But be in the fear of the Lord all day long. 23:18 For you will have hope in the end, and your expectation will not be taken away.
and be wise, and direct your soul along the way. {23:20} Do not be willing to be in the feasts of great drinkers, nor in the carousings of those who gather to feed on flesh. {23:21} For those who waste time drinking, and who surrender themselves to symbols, will be consumed. And those who sleep will be clothed in rags. {23:22} Listen to your father, who conceived you. And do not despise your mother, when she is old. {23:23} Purchase truth, and do not sell wisdom, or doctrine, or understanding. {23:24} The father of the just exults in gladness; he who has conceived the wise will rejoice in him. {23:25} Let your father and your mother be joyful, and may she who conceived you exult. {23:26} My son, offer in him. {23:25} Let your father and your mother be joyful, and may she who conceived you exult. {23:26} My son, offer in him. {23:27} For a loose woman is a deep pit, and a foreign enemy will fall, do not be glad, and do not let your heart be diminished. {24:11} Rescue those who are led away to a violent death. {24:12} If you would say: "I have woe? Who has woe? Whose father has woe? Who has wounds without cause? Who has watery eyes? {23:30} Is it not those who linger over wine, and who strive to be drinking from their cups? {23:31} Do not gaze into the wine when it turns gold, when its color shines in the glass. It enters pleasantly, {23:32} but in the end, it will bite like a snake, and it will spread poison like a king of snakes. {23:33} Your eyes will see women who are outsiders, and your heart will utter perversities. {23:34} And you will be like someone sleeping in the middle of the sea, and like a pilot, fast asleep, who has lost his hold on the helm. {23:35} And you will say: "They have beaten me, but I did not feel pain. They have dragged me, and I did not realize it. When will I awaken and find more wine?" [Proverbs 24] {24:1} Do not imitate evil men, nor desire to be among them. {24:2} For their mind meditates on robberies, and their lips speak deceptions. {24:3} By wisdom shall a house be built, and by prudence shall it be strengthened. {24:4} By doctrine, the storerooms shall be filled with every substance that is precious and most beautiful. {24:5} A wise man is strong, and a well-taught man is robust and valiant. {24:6} For war is undertaken in an orderly manner, and safety shall be where there are many counsels. {24:7} Wisdom is beyond the foolish; at the gate he will not open his mouth. {24:8} Whoever intends to do evil shall be called foolish. {24:9} The intention of the foolish is sin. And the detractor is an abomination among men. {24:10} If you despair, being weary in the day of anguish, your strength will be diminished. {24:11} Rescue those who are led away to death. And do not cease from delivering those who are dragged away to a violent death. {24:12} If you would say: "I do not have sufficient strength." He who inspects the heart, the same one understands, and nothing slips past the one who preserves your soul. And he shall repay a man according to his works. {24:13} My son, eat honey, because it is good, and the honeycomb, because it is so sweet to your throat. {24:14} So, too, is the doctrine of wisdom to your soul. When you have found it, you will have hope in the end, and your hope shall not perish. {24:15} Do not lie in wait, and do not seek impiety in the house of the just, nor spoil his rest. {24:16} For the just one will fall seven times, and he shall rise again. But the impious will fall into evil. {24:17} When your enemy will fall, do not be glad, and do not let your heart exult in his ruin, {24:18} lest perhaps the Lord see, and it displease him, and he may take away his wrath from him. {24:19} Do not contend with the most wicked, and do not be a rival to the impious. {24:20} For the evil hold no hope in the future, and the lamp of the impious will be extinguished. {24:21} My son, fear the Lord, as well as the king. And do not mingle with detractors. {24:22} For their perdition shall up rise suddenly. And who knows what ruin will be for each of them? {24:23} Likewise, these things are for the wise. It is not good to base judgment on knowledge of character. {24:24} Those who say to the impious, “You are just,” shall be cursed by the people, and the tribes shall detest them. {24:25} Those who argue against the impious shall be praised, and a blessing shall come upon them. {24:26} He shall kiss the lips, who responds with upright words. {24:27} Prepare your outdoor work, and diligently cultivate your field, so that afterward, you may build your house. {24:28} Do not be a witness without cause against your neighbor. And do not mislead anyone with your lips. {24:29} Do not say, “I will do to him as he has done to me.” I will repay each one according to his work. {24:30} I passed by the field of a lazy man, and by the vineyard of a foolish man, {24:31} and behold, it was entirely filled with nettles, and thorns had covered its surface, and the stonewall was destroyed. {24:32} When I had seen this, I laid it up in my heart, and by this example, I received discipline. {24:33} You will sleep a little,” I said. “You will slumber briefly. You will fold your hands a little, so as to rest. {24:34} And destitution will overtake you like a runner, and begging will overtake you like an armed man.” [Proverbs 25] {25:1} These, too, are parables of Solomon, which the men of Hezekiah, king of Judah, transferred. {25:2} It is to the glory of God to conceal a word, and it is to the glory of kings to investigate speech. {25:3} Heaven above, and earth below, and the heart of kings are each unsearchable. {25:4} Take away the tarnish from silver, and a most pure vessel will go forth. {25:5} Take away impiety from the face of the king, and his throne shall be made firm by justice. {25:6} Do not appear glorious before the king, and do not stand in the place of the great. {25:7} For it is better that it should be said to you, “Ascend to here,” than that you should be humbled before the prince. {25:8} The things that your eyes have seen, do not offer hastily in a quarrel, lest afterward you may not be able to make amends, when you have dishonored your friend. {25:9} Argue your case with your friend, and do not reveal the secret to an outsider, {25:10} lest perhaps he may insult you, when he has heard it, and he might not cease to reproach you. Grace and friendship free a man; preserve these for yourself, lest you fall under reproach. {25:11} Whoever speaks a word at an opportune time is like apples of gold on beds of silver. {25:12} Whoever reproves the wise and obedient ear is like an earring of gold with a shining pearl. {25:13} Just like the cold of snow in a time of harvest, so also is a faithful messenger to him who sent him: he causes his soul to rest. {25:14} A man who boasts and does not fulfill his promises is like clouds and wind, when rain does not follow. {25:15} By patience, a leader shall be appeased, and a soft tongue shall break hardness. {25:16} You have discovered honey; eat what is sufficient for you, lest perhaps, being filled up, you may vomit it. {25:17} Withdraw your feet from the house of your neighbor, lest, when he has had his fill, he may hate you.
A man who speaks false testimony against his neighbor is like a dart and a sword and a sharp arrow.
Whoever sets his hopes on the unfaithful in a day of anguish is like a rotten tooth and weary foot, and like one who loosens his garment in cold weather. Whoever sings verses to a wicked heart is like vinegar on baking soda. Just like a moth to a garment, and a worm to wood, so too does the sadness of a man do harm to the heart. If your enemy is hungry, feed him. If he is thirsty, give him water to drink. For you will gather hot coals upon his head, and the Lord will repay you. The north wind brings forth the rain, and a sorrowful face brings forth a detracting tongue. It is better to sit in a corner of the attic, than with an argumentative woman and in a shared house. Like cold water to a thirsty soul, so too are good words to a man who has beautiful legs to no purpose, so also is a parable unfit for the mouth of the foolish. Just like a city lying in the open and without security, so also is a corrupted spring. Just as whoever eats too much honey, it is not good for him, so also whoever is an investigator of what is majestic will be overwhelmed by glory. Like cold water to a thirsty soul, so too are good words to a man who has beautiful legs to no purpose, so also is a parable unfit for the mouth of the foolish. A just falling down before the impious is like a fountain stirred up by feet and like a corrupted spring. Just as whoever eats too much honey, it is not good for him, so also whoever is an investigator of what is majestic will be overwhelmed by glory. Just like a city lying in the open and without surrounding walls, so also is a man who is unable to restrain his own spirit in speaking. In the manner of snow in the summer, and rain at the harvest, so also is glory unfit for the foolish. Like a bird flying away to another place, and like a sparrow that hurries away freely, so also a curse uttered against someone without cause will pass away. The just falling down before the impious is like a fountain stirred up by feet and like a corrupted spring. Just as whoever eats too much honey, it is not good for him, so also whoever is an investigator of what is majestic will be overwhelmed by glory. Just like a city lying in the open and without surrounding walls, so also is a man who is unable to restrain his own spirit in speaking.

26:1 In the manner of snow in the summer, and rain at the harvest, so also is glory unfit for the foolish.
26:2 Like a bird flying away to another place, and like a sparrow that hurries away freely, so also is a curse uttered against someone without cause will pass away.
26:3 A whip is for a horse, and a muzzle is for donkey, and a rod is for the back of the imprudent.
26:4 Do not respond to the foolish according to his folly, lest you become like him.
26:5 Respond to the foolish according to his folly, lest he imagine himself to be wise.
26:6 Whoever sends words by a foolish messenger has lame feet and drinks iniquity.
26:7 In the manner of a lame man who has beautiful legs to no purpose, so also is a parable unfit for the mouth of the foolish.
26:8 Just like one who casts a stone into the pile of Mercury, so also is he who gives honor to the foolish.
26:9 In the manner of a thorn, if it were to spring up from the hand of a drunkard, so also is a parable in the mouth of the foolish.
26:10 Judgment determines cases. And whoever imposes silence on the foolish mitigates anger.
26:11 Like a dog that returns to his vomit, so also is the imprudent who repeats his foolishness.
26:12 Have you seen a man who seems wise to himself? There will be greater hope held for the unwise than for him.
26:13 The lazy one says, “There is a lion along the way, and a lioness in the roads.” Just as a door turns upon its hinges, so also does the lazy one turn upon his bed.
26:14 Just as a door turns upon its hinges, so also does the lazy one turn upon his bed.
26:15 The lazy one conceals his hand under his arms, and it is a labor for him to move it to his mouth.
26:16 The lazy one seems wiser to himself than seven men speaking judgments.
26:17 Just like one who takes hold of a dog by the ears, so also is he who crosses impatiently and meddles in the quarrels of another.
26:18 Just as he is guilty who lets loose the arrows and the lances unto death, so also is the man who harms his friend by deceitfulness. And when he has been apprehended, he says, “I did it jokingly.” When the wood fails, the fire will be extinguished. And when the gossiper is taken away, conflicts will be quelled.
26:21 Just as charcoals are to burning coals, and wood is to fire, so also is an angry man who stirs up quarrels.
26:22 The words of a whisperer seem simple, but they penetrate to the innermost parts of the self.
26:23 In the same manner as an earthen vessel, if it were adorned with impure silver, conceited lips are allied with a wicked heart.
26:24 An enemy is known by his lips, though it is from his heart that he draws out deceit.
26:25 When he will have lowered his voice, do not believe him, for there are seven vices in his heart.
26:26 Whoever covers hatred with deceit, his malice shall be revealed in the assembly.
26:27 Whoever digs a pit will fall into it. And whoever rolls a stone, it will roll back to him.
26:28 A false tongue does not love truth. And a slippery mouth works ruin.

27:1 Do not boast about tomorrow, for you do not know what the future day may bring.
27:2 Let another praise you, and not your own mouth: an outsider, and not your own lips.
27:3 A stone is weighty, and sand is burdensome; but the wrath of the foolish is heavier than both.
27:4 Anger holds no mercy, nor does fury when it erupts. And who can bear the assault of one who has been provoked?
27:5 An open rebuke is better than hidden love.
27:6 The wounds of a loved one are better than the deceitful kisses of a hateful one.
27:7 A sated soul will trample the honeycomb. And a hungry soul will accept even bitter in place of sweet.
27:8 Just like a bird migrating from her nest, so also is a man who abandons his place.
27:9 Ointment and various perfumes delight the heart. And the good advice of a friend is sweet to the soul.
27:10 Do not dismiss your friend or your father's friend. And do not enter your brother's house in the day of your affliction. A close neighbor is better than a distant brother.
27:11 My son, study wisdom, and rejoice my heart, for you will not perceive the Dakkar, nor can you know what the future day may bring.
27:12 The discerning man, seeing evil, hides himself. The little ones, continuing on, sustain losses.
27:13 Take away the garment of him who has vouched for another praise you, and not your own mouth: an outsider, and take a pledge from him on behalf of foreigners.
27:14 Whoever blesses his neighbor with a grand voice, rising in the night, shall be like one who curses.
27:15 A roof leaking on a cold day, and an argumentative woman, are comparable.
27:16 He who would restrain her, he is like one who would grasp the wind, or who would gather together oil with his right hand.
27:17 Iron sharpens iron, and a man sharpens the countenance of his friend.
27:18 Whoever maintains the fig tree shall eat its fruit. And whoever is the keeper of his master shall be glorified.
27:19 In the manner of faces looking into shining water, so are the hearts of men made manifest to the prudent.
27:20 Hell and perdition are never filled; similarly the eyes of men are insatiable.
27:21 In the manner of silver being tested in the refinery, and gold in the furnace, so also is a man tested by the mouth of one who praises. The heart of the iniquitous inquires after evils, but the heart of the righteous inquires after knowledge.
27:22 Even if you were to crush the foolish with a mortar, as when a pestle strikes over pearled barley, his foolishness would not be taken from him.
27:23 Be diligent to know the countenance of your cattle, and consider your own flocks, for you will not always hold this power. But a crown shall be awarded from the Lord for your clothing, and goats are for the price of a field.
27:24 For you will not always hold this power. But a crown shall be awarded from the Lord for your clothing, and goats are for the price of a field.
milk of goats be sufficient for your food, and for the necessities of your household, and for the provisions of your handmaids.

[Proverbs 28] 28:1] The impious flees, though no one pursues. But the just, like a confident lion, shall be without dread. 28:2] Because of the sins of the land, it has many princes. And because of the wisdom of a man, and the knowledge of those things that are said, the life of the leader shall be prolonged. 28:3] A poor man slandering the poor is like a violent rainstorm in advance of a famine. 28:4] Those who abandon the law praise the impious. Those who guard it are inflamed against him. 28:5] Evil men do not intend judgment. But those who inquire after the Lord turn their souls toward all things. 28:6] Better is the pauper walking in his simplicity, than the rich walking in ways of depravity. 28:7] Whoever keeps the law is a wise son. But whoever feeds gluttons brings shame to his father. 28:8] Whoever piles up riches by usury and profit gathers them for him who will give freely to the poor. 28:9] Whoever turns away his ears from listening to the law: his prayer will be detestable. 28:10] Whoever deceives the just in a malicious way will fall into his own perdition. And the simple shall possess his goods. 28:11] The rich one seems wise to himself. But the poor one, being prudent, shall evaluate him. 28:12] In the exultation of the just, there is great glory. When the impious reign, men are brought to ruin. 28:13] Whoever hides his crimes will not be guided. But whoever will have confessed and abandoned them shall overtake mercy. 28:14] Blessed is the man who is ever fearful. Yet truly, whoever is hardened in mind will fall into evil. 28:15] An impious leader over a poor people is like a roaring lion and a hungry bear. 28:16] A leader destitute of prudence will oppress many through false accusations. But whoever hates avarice shall prolong his days. 28:17] A man who slaughters the blood of a life, even if he flees to the pit, no one will tolerate him. 28:18] Whoever walks simply shall be saved. Whoever is perverse in his steps will fall all at once. 28:19] Whoever works his land shall be satisfied with bread. But whoever pursues leisure will be filled with need. 28:20] A faithful man shall be greatly praised. But whoever rushes to become rich will not be innocent. 28:21] Whoever shows favoritism in judgment does not do well; even if it is for a morsel of bread, he forsakes the truth. 28:22] A man who hurries to become rich, and who envies others, does not know that destitution will overwhelm him. 28:23] Whoever corrects a man, afterward he shall find favor with him, more so than he who deceives him with a flattering tongue. 28:24] Whoever takes away anything from his father or mother, and who says, “This is not a sin,” is the associate of a murderer. 28:25] Whoever boasts and enlarges himself stirs up conflicts. Yet truly, whoever trusts in the Lord will be healed. 28:26] Whoever trusts in his own heart is a fool. But whoever treads wisely, the same shall be saved. 28:27] Whoever gives to the poor shall not be in need. Whoever despises his petition will suffer scarcity. 28:28] When the impious rise up, men will hide themselves. When they perish, the just shall be multiplied.

[Proverbs 29] 29:1] The man who, with a stiff neck, treats the one who corrects him with contempt will be suddenly overwhelmed to his own destruction, and reason shall not follow him. 29:2] When just men are multiplied, the common people shall rejoice. When the impious take up the leadership, the people shall mourn. 29:3] The man who loves wisdom rejoices his father. But whoever nurtures promiscuous women will lose his substance. 29:4] A just king guides the land. A man of avarice will destroy it. 29:5] A man who speaks to his friend with flattering and feigned words spreads a net for his own feet. 29:6] A snare will entangle the iniquitous when he sins. And the just shall praise and be glad. 29:7] The just knows the case of the poor. The impious is ignorant of knowledge. 29:8] Pestilent men squander a city. Yet truly, the wise avert fury. 29:9] A wise man, if he were to contend with the foolish, whether in anger or in laughter, would find no rest. 29:10] Bloodthirsty men hate the simple one; but the just seek out his soul. 29:11] A foolish one offers everything on his mind. A wise one reserves and defers until later. 29:12] A leader who freely listens to lying words has only impious servants. 29:13] The pauper and the creditor have met one another. The Lord is the illuminator of them both. 29:14] The king who judges the poor in truth, his throne shall be secured in eternity. 29:15] The rod and its correction distribute wisdom. But the child who is left to his own will brings shame to his mother. 29:16] When the impious are multiplied, crimes will be multiplied. But the just shall see their ruin. 29:17] Teach your son, and he will refresh you, and he will give delight to your soul. 29:18] When prophecy fails, the people will be scattered. Yet truly, whoever guards the law is blessed. 29:19] A servant cannot be taught by words, because he understands what you say, but he disdains to respond. 29:20] Have you seen a man rushing to speak? Foolishness has more hope than his correction. 29:21] Whoever nurtures his servant delicately from childhood, afterwards will find him defiant. 29:22] A short-tempered man nurtures his servant delicately from childhood, afterwards will find him defiant. 29:23] A short-tempered man participates with a thief hates his own soul; for he listens to his oath and does not denounce him. 29:25] Whoever fears man will quickly fall. Whoever hopes in the Lord shall be lifted up. 29:26] Many demand the face of the leader. But the judgment of each one proceeds from the Lord. 29:27] The just abhor an impious man. And the impious abhor those who are on the right way. By keeping the word, the son shall be free from perdition.

[Proverbs 30] 30:1] The words of the Gatherer, the son of the Vomiter. The vision that the man spoke. God is with him, and he, being strengthened by God and abiding with him, said: 30:2] “I am the most foolish among men, and the wisdom of men is not with me. 30:3] I have not learned wisdom, and I have not known the knowledge of sanctity. 30:4] Who has ascended to heaven and also descended? Who has grasped the wind in his hands? Who has tied the waters together, as with a garment? Who has raised all the limits of the earth? What is his name, and what is the name of his son, if you know? 30:5] Every word of God is fire-tested. He is a bronze shield to those who hope in him. 30:6] Do not add anything to his words, lest you be reproved and be discovered to be a liar. 30:7] Two things I have asked of you; do not deny them to me before I die. 30:8] Remove, far from me, vanity and lying words. Give me neither begging, nor wealth. Apportion to me only the necessities of my life. {30:9} lest perhaps, being filled, I might be enticed into denial, and say: 'Who is the Lord?' Or, being compelled by destitution, I might steal, and then perjure myself in the name of my God. {30:10} Do not accuse a servant to his lord, lest he curse you, and you fall. {30:11} There is a generation which curses his father, and which does not bless their mother. {30:12} There is a generation, whose eyes have been elevated, and their eyelids are lifted on high. {30:13} There is a generation which has swords in place of teeth, and which commands their molas to devour the indigent from the earth and the poor from among men. {30:15} The leech has two daughters, who say, 'Bring, bring.' Three things are insatiable, and a fourth never says 'Enough': {30:16} Hell, and the mouth of the womb, and a land that is not filled with water. And truly, fire never says, 'Enough.' {30:17} The eye of one who mocks his father and who despises the childbearing of his mother, let the ravens of the torrent tear it out, and let the sons of the eagles consume it. {30:18} Three things are difficult for me, and about a fourth, I am nearly ignorant: {30:19} the way of an eagle in the sky, the way of a serpent on a rock, the way of a ship in the middle of the sea, and the way of a man in adolescence. {30:20} Such is the way also of an adulterous woman, who eats, and wiping her mouth, says: "I have done no evil." {30:21} By three things, the earth is moved, and a fourth it is not able to sustain: {30:22} by a slave when he reigns, by the foolish when he has been filled with food, {30:23} by a hateful woman when she has been taken in matrimony, and by a handmaid when she has been heir to her mistress. {30:24} Four things are least upon the earth, and they are wiser than the wise: {30:25} the ants, an infirm people who provide food for themselves at the harvest, {30:26} the rabbit, a sickened people who make their bed upon the rock. {30:27} The locust has no king, but they all depart by their troops. {30:28} The lizard supports itself on hands and dwells in the buildings of kings. {30:29} There are three things that advance well, and a fourth that marches happily on: {30:30} a lion, the strongest of beasts, who fears nothing that he meets, {30:31} a rooster prepared at the loins, likewise a ram, and a king, whom none can resist. {30:32} There is one who has appeared foolish, after he was lifted up on high; for if he had understood, he would have placed his hand over his mouth. {30:33} But whoever strongly squeezes theudder to bring out the milk, presses out butter. And whoever violently blows his nose, brings out blood. And whoever provokes wrath, brings forth discord."

The Words of Ecclesiastes

[Ecclesiastes 1] {1:1} The words of Ecclesiastes, the son of David, the king of Jerusalem. {1:2} Ecclesiastes said: Vanity of vanities! Vanity of vanities, and all is vanity! {1:3} What more does a man have from all his labor, as he labors under the sun? {1:4} A generation passes away, and a generation arises. But the earth stands forever. {1:5} The sun rises and sets; it returns to its place, and from there, being born again, {1:6} it circles through the south, and arcs toward the north. The spirit continues on, illuminating everything in its circuit, and turning again in its cycle. {1:7} All rivers enter into the sea, and the sea does not overflow. To the place from which the rivers go out, they return, so that they may flow again. {1:8} Such things are difficult; man is not able to explain them with words. The eye is not satisfied by seeing, nor is the ear fulfilled by hearing. {1:9} What is it that has existed? The same shall exist in the future. What is it that has been done? The same shall continue to be done. {1:10} There is nothing new under the sun. Neither is anyone able to say: "Behold, this is new!" For it has already been brought forth in the ages that were before us. {1:11} There is no remembrance of the former things. Indeed, neither shall there be any record of past things in the future, for those who will exist at the very end. {1:12} I, Ecclesiastes, was king of Israel at Jerusalem. {1:13} And I was determined in my mind to seek and to investigate wisely, concerning all that is done under the sun. God has given this very difficult task to the sons of men, so that they may be occupied by it. {1:14} I have seen all that is done under the sun, and behold: all is emptiness and an affliction of the spirit. {1:15} The perverse are unwilling to be corrected, and the number of the foolish is boundless. {1:16} I have spoken in my heart, saying: “Behold, I have achieved greatness, and I have surpassed all the wise who were before me in Jerusalem.” And my mind has contemplated many things wisely, and I have learned. {1:17} And I have dedicated my heart, so that I may know prudence and doctrine, and also error and foolishness. Yet I recognize that, in these things also, there is hardship, and affliction of the spirit. {1:18} Because of this, with much wisdom there is also much anger. And whoever adds knowledge, also adds hardship.

[Ecclesiastes 2] {2:1} I said in my heart: “I will go forth and overflow with delights, and I will enjoy good things.” And I saw that this, too, is emptiness. {2:2} Laughter, I considered an error. And to rejoicing, I said: “Why are you being deceived, to no purpose?” {2:3} I decided in my heart to withdraw my flesh from wine, so that I might bring my mind to wisdom, and turn away from foolishness, until I see what is useful for the sons of men, and what they ought to do under the sun, during the number of the days of their life. {2:4} I magnified my works. I built houses for myself, and I planted vineyards. {2:5} I made gardens and orchards. And I planted them with trees of every kind. {2:6} And I dug out fishponds of water, so that I might irrigate the forest of growing trees. {2:7} I obtained men and women servants, and I had a great family, as well as herds of cattle and great flocks of sheep, beyond all who were before me in Jerusalem. {2:8} I amassed for myself silver and gold, and the wealth of kings and governors. I chose men and women singers, and the delights of the sons of men, bowls and pitchers for the purpose of pouring wine. {2:9} And I surpassed in opulence all who were before me in Jerusalem. My wisdom also persevered with me. {2:10} And all that my eyes desired, I did not refuse them. Neither did I prohibit my heart from enjoying every pleasure, and from amusing itself in the things that I had prepared. And I regarded this as my share, as if I were making use of my own labors.

{2:11} But when I turned myself toward all the works that my hands had made, and to the labors in which I had perspired to no purpose, I saw emptiness and affliction of the soul in all things, and that nothing is permanent under the sun. {2:12} I continued on, so as to contemplate wisdom, as well as error and foolishness. “What is man,” I said, “that he would be able to follow his Maker, the King?” {2:13} And I saw that wisdom surpasses foolishness, so much so that they differ as much as light from darkness. {2:14} The eyes of a wise man are in his head. A foolish man walks in darkness. Yet I learned that one would pass away like the other. {2:15} And I said in my heart: “If the death of both the foolish and myself will be one, how does it benefit me, if I have given myself more thoroughly to the work of wisdom?” And as I was speaking within my own mind, I perceived that this, too, is emptiness. {2:16} For there will not be a remembrance in perpetuity of the wise, nor of the foolish. And the future times will cover everything together, with oblivion. The learned die in a manner similar to the unlearned. {2:17} And, because of this, my life wearied me, since I saw that everything under the sun is evil, and everything is empty and an affliction of the spirit. {2:18} Again, I detested all my efforts, by which I had earnestly labored under the sun, to be taken up by an heir after me, {2:19} though I know not whether he will be wise or foolish. And yet he will have power over my labors, in which I have toiled and been anxious. And is there anything else so empty? {2:20} Therefore, I ceased, and my heart renounced further laboring under the sun. {2:21} For when someone labors in wisdom, and doctrine, and prudence, he leaves behind what he has obtained to one who is idle. So this, too, is emptiness and a great burden. {2:22} For how can a man benefit from all his labor and affliction of spirit, by which he has been tormented under the sun? {2:23} All his days have been filled with sorrows and hardships; neither does he rest his mind, even in the night. And is this not emptiness? {2:24} Is it not better to eat and drink, and to show his soul the good things of his labors? And this is from the hand of God. {2:25} So who will feast and overflow with delights as much as I have? {2:26} God has given, to the man who is good in his sight, wisdom, and knowledge, and rejoicing. But to the sinner, he has given affliction and needless worrying, so as to add, and to gather, and to deliver, to him who has pleased God. But this, too, is emptiness and a hollow worrying of the mind.

[Ecclesiastes 3] {3:1} All things have their time, and all things under heaven continue during their interval. {3:2} A time to be born, and a time to die. A time to plant, and a time to pull up what was planted. {3:3} A time to kill, and a time to heal. A time to tear down, and a time to build up. {3:4} A time to weep, and a time to laugh. A time to mourn, and a time to dance. {3:5} A time to scatter stones, and a time to gather. A time to embrace, and a time to be far from embraces. {3:6} A time to gain, and a time to lose. A time to keep, and a time to cast away. {3:7} A time to rend, and a time to sew. A time to be silent, and a time to speak. {3:8} A time of love, and a time of hatred. A time of war, and a time of peace. {3:9} What more does a man have from his labor? {3:10} I have seen the affliction that God has given to the sons of men, in order that they may be occupied by it. {3:11} He has made all things good in their time, and he has handed over the world to their disputes, so that man may not discover the work which God made from the beginning, even until the end. {3:12} And I realize that there is nothing better than to rejoice, and to do well in this life. {3:13} For this is a gift from God: when each man eats and drinks, and sees the good results of his labor. {3:14} I have learned that all the works which God has made continue on, in perpetuity. We are not able to add anything, nor to take anything away, from those things which God has made in order that he may be feared. {3:15} What has been made, the same continues. What is in the future, has already existed. And God restores what has passed away. {3:16} I saw under the sun: instead of judgment, impiety, and instead of justice, iniquity. {3:17} And I said in my heart: “God will judge the just and the impious, and then the time for each matter shall be.”
{3:18} I said in my heart, about the sons of men, that God would test them, and reveal them to be like wild animals. {3:19} For this reason, the passing away of man and of beasts is one, and the condition of both is equal. For as a man dies, so also do they die. All things breathe similarly, and man has nothing more than beast; for all these are subject to vanity. {3:20} And all things continue on to one place; for from the earth they were made, and unto the earth they shall return. {3:21} Who knows if the spirit of the sons of Adam ascend upward, and if the spirit of the beasts descend downward? {3:22} And I have discovered nothing to be better than for a man to rejoice in his work: for this is his portion. And who shall add to him, so that he may know the things that will occur after him?

[Ecclesiastes 4] {4:1} I turned myself to other things, and I saw the false accusations which are carried out under the sun, and the tears of the innocent, and that there was no one to console them; and that they were not able to withstand their violence, being destitute of all help. {4:2} And so, I praised the dead more than the living. {4:3} And happier than both of these, I judged him to be, who has not yet been born, and who has not yet seen the evils which are done under the sun. {4:4} Again, I was contemplating all the labors of men. And I took notice that their endeavors are open to the envy of their neighbor. And so, in this, too, there is emptiness and superfluous anxiety. {4:5} The foolish man folds his hands together, and he consumes his own flesh, saying: {4:6} “A handful with rest is better than both hands filled with labors and with affliction of the soul.” {4:7} While considering this, I also discovered another vanity under the sun. {4:8} He is one, and he does not have a second: no son, no brother. And yet he does not cease to labor, nor are his eyes satisfied with wealth, nor does he reflect, saying: “For whom do I labor and cheat my soul of good things?” In this, too, is emptiness and a most burdensome affliction. {4:9} Therefore, it is better for two to be together, than for one to be alone. For they have the advantage of their companionship. {4:10} If one falls, he shall be supported by the other. Woe to one who is alone. For when he falls, he has no one to lift him up. {4:11} And if two are sleeping, they warm one another. How can one person alone be warmed? {4:12} And if a man can prevail against one, two may withstand him, and a threefold cord is broken with difficulty. {4:13} Better is a boy, poor and wise, than a king, old and foolish, who does not know to look ahead for the sake of posterity. {4:14} For sometimes, one goes forth from prison and chains, to a kingdom, while another, born to kingly power, is consumed by need. {4:15} I saw all the living who are walking under the sun, and I saw the next generation, who shall rise up in their places. {4:16} The number of people, out of all who existed before these, is boundless. And those who will exist afterwards shall not rejoice in them. But this, too, is emptiness and an affliction of the spirit. {4:17} Guard your foot, when you step into the house of God, and draw near, so that you may listen. For obedience is much better than the sacrifices of the foolish, who do not know the evil that they are doing.

[Ecclesiastes 5] {5:1} You should not speak anything rashly, nor should your heart be hasty to present a word before God. For God is in heaven, and you are on earth. For this reason, let your words be few. {5:2} Dreams follow many worries, and in many words foolishness will be found. {5:3} If you have vowed anything to God, you should not delay to repay it. And whatever you have vowed, render it. But an unfaithful and foolish promise displeases him. {5:4} And it is much better not to make a vow, than, after a vow, not to fulfill what was promised. {5:5} You should not use your mouth so as to cause your flesh to sin. And you should not say, in the sight of an Angel, “There is no Providence.” For God, being angry at your words, may scatter all the works of your hands. {5:6} Where there are many dreams, there are many vanities and innumerable words. Yet truly, you must fear God. {5:7} If you see false accusations against the indigent, and violent judgments, and subverted justice in the government, do not be surprised over this situation. For those in high places have others who are higher, and there are still others, more eminent, over these. {5:8} But finally, there is the King who rules over the entire earth, which is subject to him. {5:9} A greedy man will not be satisfied by money. And whoever loves wealth will reap no fruit from it. Therefore, this, too, is emptiness. {5:10} Where there are many riches, there will also be many to consume these things. And how does it benefit the one who possesses, except that he discerns the wealth with his own eyes? {5:11} Sleep is sweet to one who works, whether he consumes little or much. But the satiation of a wealthy man will not permit him to sleep. {5:12} There is even another most burdensome infirmity, which I have seen under the sun: wealth kept to the harm of the owner. {5:13} For they are lost in a most grievous affliction. He has produced a son, who will be in the utmost destitution. {5:14} Just as he went forth naked from his mother's womb, so shall he return, and he shall take nothing with him from his labors. {5:15} It is an utterly miserable infirmity that, in the same manner as he has arrived, so shall he return. How then does it benefit him, since he has labored for the wind? {5:16} All the days of his life he consumes: in darkness, and with many worries, and in distress as well as sadness. {5:17} And so, this has seemed good to me: that a person should eat and drink, and should enjoy the fruits of his labor, in which he has toiled under the sun, for the number of the days of his life that God has given him. For this is his portion. {5:18} And this is a gift from God: that every man to whom God has given wealth and resources, and to whom he has granted the ability to consume these, may enjoy his portion, and may find joy in his labors. {5:19} And then he will not fully remember the days of his life, because God occupies his heart with delights.

[Ecclesiastes 6] {6:1} There is also another evil, which I have seen under the sun, and, indeed, it is frequent among men. {6:2} It is a man to whom God has given wealth, and resources, and honor; and out of all that he desires, nothing is lacking to his life; yet God does not grant him the ability to consume these things, but instead a man who is a stranger will devour them. This is emptiness and a great misfortune. {6:3} If a man were to produce one hundred children, and to live for many years, and to attain to an age of many days, and if his soul were to make no use of the goods of his resources, and if he were lacking even a burial: concerning such a man, I declare that a miscarried child is better than he. {6:4} For he arrives without a purpose and he continues on into darkness, and his name shall be wiped away, into oblivion. {6:5} He has not seen the sun, nor recognized the difference between good and evil. {6:6} Even if he were to live for two thousand years, and yet not thoroughly enjoy what is good, does not each one hurry on to the same place? {6:7} Every labor of man is for his mouth, but his soul will not be filled. {6:8} What do the wise have which is more than the foolish? And what does the pauper have, except to continue on to that place, where there is life? {6:9} It is better to see what you desire, than to desire what you cannot know. But this, too, is emptiness and a presumption of spirit. {6:10} Whoever shall be in the future, his name has already been called. And it is known that he is a man and that he is not able to contend in judgment against one who is stronger than himself. {6:11} There are many words, and many of these, in disputes, hold much emptiness.

Ecclesiastes 7 {7:1} Why is it necessary for a man to seek things that are greater than himself, when he does not know what is advantageous for himself in his life, during the number of the days of his sojourn, and while time passes by like a shadow? Or who will be able to tell him what will be in the future after him under the sun? {7:2} A good name is better than precious ointments, and a day of death is better than a day of birth. {7:3} It is better to go to a house of mourning, than to a house of feasting. For in the former, we are admonished about the end of all things, so that the living consider what may be in the future. {7:4} Anger is better than laughter. For through the sadness of the countenance, the soul of one who offends may be corrected. {7:5} The heart of the wise is a place of mourning, and the heart of the foolish is a place of rejoicing. {7:6} It is better to be corrected by a wise man, than to be deceived by the false praise of the foolish. {7:7} For, like the crackling of thorns burning under a pot, so is the laughter of the foolish. But this, too, is emptiness. {7:8} A false accusation troubles the wise man and saps the strength of his heart. {7:9} The end of a speech is better than the beginning. Patience is better than arrogance. {7:10} Do not be quickly moved to anger. For anger resides in the sinews of the foolish. {7:11} You should not say: “What do you think is the reason that the former times were better than they are now?” For this type of question is foolish. {7:12} Wisdom with riches is more useful and more advantageous, for those who see the sun. {7:13} For as wisdom protects, so also does money protect. But learning and wisdom have this much more: that they grant life to one who possesses them. {7:14} Consider the works of God, that no one is able to correct whomever he has despised. {7:15} In good times, enjoy good things, but beware of an evil time. For just as God has established the one, so also the other, in order that man may not find any just complaint against him. {7:16} I also saw this, in the days of my vanity: a just man perishing in his justice, and an impious man living a long time in his malice. {7:17} Do not try to be overly just, and do not try to be more wise than is necessary, lest you become stupid. {7:18} Do not act with great impiety, and do not choose to be foolish, lest you die before your time. {7:19} It is good for you to support a just man. Furthermore, you should not withdraw your hand from him, for whoever fears God, neglects nothing. {7:20} Wisdom has strengthened the wise more than ten princes of a city. {7:21} But there is no just man on earth, who does good and does not sin. {7:22} So then, do not attach your heart to every word that is spoken, lest perhaps you may hear your servant speaking ill of you. {7:23} For your conscience knows that you, too, have repeatedly spoken evil of others. {7:24} I have tested everything in wisdom. I have said: “I will be wise.” And wisdom withdrew farther from me, {7:25} so much more than it was before. Wisdom is very profound, so who shall reveal her? {7:26} I have examined all things in my soul, so that I may know, and consider, and seek out wisdom and reason, and so that I may recognize the impiety of the foolish, and the error of the imprudent. {7:27} And I have discovered a woman more bitter than death: she who is like the snare of a hunter, and whose heart is like a net, and whose hands are like chains. Whoever pleases God shall flee from her. But whoever is a sinner shall be seized by her. {7:28} Behold, Ecclesiastes said, I have discovered these things, one after another, in order that I might discover the explanation {7:29} which my soul still seeks and has not found. One man among a thousand, I have found; a woman among them all, I have not found. {7:30} This alone have I discovered: that God made man righteous, and yet he has adulterated himself with innumerable questions. Who is so great as the wise? And who has understood the meaning of the word?

Ecclesiastes 8 {8:1} The wisdom of a man shines in his countenance, and even the expression of a most powerful man will change. {8:2} I heeded the mouth of the king, and the commandment of an oath to God. {8:3} You should not hastily withdraw from his presence, nor should you remain in an evil work. For all that pleases him, he will do. {8:4} And his word is filled with authority. Neither is anyone able to say to him: “Why are you acting this way?” {8:5} Whoever keeps the commandment will not experience evil. The heart of a wise man understands the time to respond. {8:6} For every matter, there is a time and an opportunity, as well as many difficulties, for man. {8:7} For he is ignorant of the past, and he is able to know nothing of the future by means of a messenger. {8:8} It is not in the power of a man to prohibit the spirit, nor does he have authority over the day of death, nor is he permitted to rest when war breaks out, and neither will impiety save the impious. {8:9} I have considered all these things, and I have applied my heart to all the works which are being done under the sun. Sometimes one man rules over another to his own harm. {8:10} I have seen the impious buried. These same, while they were still living, were in the holy place, and they were praised in the city as workers of justice. But this, too, is emptiness. {8:11} For the sons of men perpetrate evils without any fear, because judgment is not pronounced quickly against the evil. {8:12} But although a sinner may do evil of himself one hundred times, and by patience still endure, I realize that it will be well with those who fear God, who revere his face. {8:13} So, may it not go well with the impious, and may his days not be prolonged. And let those who do not fear the face of the Lord pass away like a shadow. {8:14} There is also another vanity, which is done upon the earth. There are the just, to whom evils happen, as though they had done the works of the impious. And there are the impious, who are very secure, as though they possess the deeds of the just. But this, too, I judge to be a very great vanity. {8:15} And so, I praised rejoicing, because there was no good for a man under the sun, except to eat and drink, and to be cheerful, and because he may take nothing with him from his labor in the days of his life, which God has given to him under the sun. {8:16} And I applied my heart, so that I might know wisdom, and so that I might understand a disturbance that turns upon the earth: it is a man, who takes no sleep with his eyes, day and night. {8:17} And I understood that man is able to find no explanation for all those works of God which are done under the sun. And so, the more that he labors to seek, so much the less does he find. Yes, even if a wise man were to claim that he knows, he would not be able to discover it.

[Ecclesiastes 9] {9:1} I have drawn all these things through my heart, so that I might carefully understand. There are just men as well as wise men, and their works are in the hand of God. And yet a man does not know so much as whether he is worthy of love or of hatred. {9:2} But all things in the future remain uncertain, because all things happen equally to the just and to the impious, to the good and to the bad, to the pure and to the impure, to those who offer sacrifices and to those who despise sacrifices. As the good are, so also are sinners. As those who commit perjury are, so also are those who swear to the truth. {9:3} This is a very great burden among all things that are done under the sun: that the same things happen to everyone. And when the hearts of the sons of men are filled with malice and contempt in their lives, afterwards they shall be dragged down to hell. {9:4} There is no one who lives forever, or who even has confidence in this regard. A living dog is better than a dead lion. {9:5} For the living know that they themselves will die, yet truly the dead know nothing anymore, nor do they have any recompense. For the memory of them is forgotten. {9:6} Likewise, love and hatred and envy have all perished together, nor have they any place in this age and in the work which is done under the sun. {9:7} So then, go and eat your bread with rejoicing, and drink your wine with gladness. For your works are pleasing to God. {9:8} Let your garments be white at all times, and let not oil be absent from your head. {9:9} Enjoy life with the wife whom you love, all the days of your uncertain life which have been given to you under the sun, during all the time of your vanity. For this is your portion in life and in your labor, with which you labor under the sun. {9:10} Whatever your hand is able to do, do it earnestly. For neither work, nor reason, nor wisdom, nor knowledge will exist in death, toward which you are hurrying. {9:11} I turned myself toward another thing, and I saw that under the sun, the race is not to the swift, nor the battle to the strong, nor bread to the wise, nor wealth to the learned, nor grace to the skilful: but there is a time and an end for all these things. {9:12} Man does not know his own end. But, just as fish are caught with a hook, and birds are captured with a snare, so are men seized in the evil time, when it will suddenly overwhelm them. {9:13} This wisdom, likewise, I have seen under the sun, and I have examined it intensely. {9:14} There was a small city, with a few men in it. There came against it a great king, who surrounded it, and built fortifications all around it, and the blockade was completed. {9:15} And there was found within it, a poor and wise man, and he freed the city through his wisdom, and nothing was recorded afterward of that poor man. {9:16} And so, I declared that wisdom is better than strength. But how is it, then, that the wisdom of the poor man is treated with contempt, and his words are not heeded? {9:17} The words of the wise are heard in silence, more so than the outcry of a prince among the foolish.

[9:18] Wisdom is better than weapons of war. And whoever offends in one thing, shall lose many good things.

[Ecclesiastes 10] {10:1} Dying flies ruin the sweetness of the ointment. Wisdom and glory is more precious than a brief and limited foolishness. {10:2} The heart of a wise man is in his right hand, and the heart of a foolish man is in his left hand. {10:3} Moreover, as a foolish man is walking along the way, even though he himself is unwise, he considers everyone to be foolish. {10:4} If the spirit of one who holds authority rises over you, do not leave your place, because attentiveness will cause the greatest sins to cease. {10:5} There is an evil which I have seen under the sun, proceeding from the presence of a prince, as if by mistake: {10:6} a foolish man appointed to a high dignity, and the rich sitting beneath him. {10:7} I have seen servants on horses, and princes walking on the ground like servants. {10:8} Whoever digs a pit will fall into it. And whoever tears apart a hedge, a snake will bite him. {10:9} Whoever carries away stones will be harmed by them. And whoever cuts down trees will be wounded by them. {10:10} If the iron is dull, and if it was not that way before, but has been made dull by much labor, then it will be sharpened. And wisdom will follow after diligence. {10:11} Whoever slanders in secret is nothing less than a snake that bites silently. {10:12} Words from the mouth of a wise man are graceful, but the lips of a foolish man will throw him down with violence. {10:13} At the beginning of his words is foolishness, and at the end of his talk is a most grievous error. {10:14} The fool multiplies his words. A man does not know what has been before him, and who is able to reveal to him what will be in the future after him? {10:15} The hardship of the foolish will afflict those who do not know to go into the city. {10:16} Woe to you, the land whose king is a boy, and whose princes consume in the evening. {10:17} Blessed is the land whose king is noble, and whose princes eat at the proper time, for refreshment and not for self-indulgence. {10:18} By laziness, a framework shall be brought down, and by the weakness of hands, a house shall collapse through. {10:19} While laughing, they make bread and wine, so that the living may feast. And all things are obedient to money. {10:20} You should not slander the king, even in your thoughts, and you should not speak evil of a wealthy man, even in your private chamber. For even the birds of the air will carry your voice, and whatever has wings will announce your opinion.

[Ecclesiastes 11] {11:1} Cast your bread over running waters. For, after a long time, you shall find it again. {11:2} Give a portion to seven, and indeed even to eight. For you do not know what evil may be upon the earth in the future. {11:3} If the clouds have been filled, they will pour forth rain upon the earth. If a tree falls to the south, or to the north, or to whatever direction it may fall, there it shall remain. {11:4} Whoever heeds the wind will not sow. And whoever considers the clouds will never reap. {11:5} In the same manner that you do not know the way of the spirit, nor the way that bones are joined together in the womb of a pregnant woman, so you do not know the works of God, who is the Maker of all. {11:6} In the morning, sow your seed, and in the evening, do not let your hand cease. For you do not know which of these may rise up, the one or the other. But if both rise up together, so much the better. {11:7} Light is pleasant, and it is delightful for the eyes to see the sun. {11:8} If a man lives for many years, and if he has rejoiced in all of these, he must remember the many days of the dark times, which, when they will have arrived, will accuse the past of vanity. {11:9} So then, rejoice, O young man, in your youth, and let your heart remain in what is good during the days of your youth. And walk in the ways of your heart, and with the perception of your eyes. And know that, concerning all these things, God will bring you to judgment. {11:10} Remove anger from your heart, and set aside evil from your flesh. For youth and pleasure are empty.

Ecclesiastes 12 {12:1} Remember your Creator in the days of your youth, before the time of affliction arrives and the years draw near, about which you will say, “These do not please me.” {12:2} Before the sun, and the light, and the moon, and the stars are darkened and the clouds return after the rain, {12:3} when the guardians of the house will tremble, and the strongest men will waver, and those who grind grain will be idle, except for a small number, and those who look through the keyholes will be darkened. {12:4} And they will close the doors to the street, when the voice of him who grinds the grain will be humbled, and they will be disturbed at the sound of a flying thing, and all the daughters of song shall become deaf. {12:5} Likewise, they will fear the things above them, and they will dread the way. The almond tree will flourish; the locust will be fattened; and the caper plant will scattered, because man shall go into the house of his eternity, and the mourners shall wander around in the street. {12:6} Before the silver cord is broken, and the golden band pulls away, and the pitcher is crushed over the fountain, and the wheel is broken above the cistern, {12:7} and the dust returns to its earth, from which it was, and the spirit returns to God, who granted it. {12:8} Vanity of vanities, said Ecclesiastes, and all is vanity! {12:9} And since Ecclesiastes was very wise, he taught the people, and he described what he had accomplished. And while searching, he composed many parables. {12:10} He sought useful words, and he wrote most righteous words, which were full of truth. {12:11} The words of the wise are like a goad, and like nails deeply fastened, which, through the counsel of teachers, are set forth by one pastor. {12:12} You should require no more than this, my son. For there is no end to the making of many books. And excessive study is an affliction to the flesh. {12:13} Let us all listen together to the end of the discourse. Fear God, and observe his commandments. This is everything for man. {12:14} And so, for all that is done and for each error, God will bring judgment: whether it was good or evil.

The Song of Songs of Solomon

Song of Songs 1 {1:1} Bride: May he kiss me with the kiss of his mouth. {1:2} Groom to Bride: So much better than wine are your breasts, fragranced with the finest perfumes. {1:3} Bride to Groom: Your name is oil that has been poured out; therefore, the maidens have loved you. Draw me forward. {1:4} Chorus to Bride: We will run after you in the odor of your perfumes. {1:5} Bride to Chorus: The king has led me into his storerooms. {1:6} Chorus to Bride: We will exult and rejoice in you, remembering your breasts above wine. {1:7} Groom to Bride: The righteous love you. {1:8} Bride to Chorus: O daughters of Jerusalem: I am black, but shapely, like the tabernacles of Kedar, like the tents of Solomon. {1:9} Do not be concerned that I am dark, for the sun has changed my color. {1:10} The sons of my mother have fought against me. They have made me the keeper of the vineyards. My own vineyard I have not kept. {1:11} Bride to Groom: Reveal to me, you whom my soul loves, where you pasture, where you recline at midday, lest I begin to wander after the flocks of your companions. {1:12} Groom to Bride: If you yourself do not know, O most beautiful among women, then go out and follow after the steps of the flocks, and pasture your young goats beside the tabernacles of the shepherds. {1:13} O my love, I have compared you to my company of horsemen against the chariots of Pharaoh. {1:14} Your cheeks are beautiful, like those of a turtledove. Your neck is like a bejeweled collar. {1:15} Chorus to Bride: We will fashion for you chains of gold, accented with reddened silver. {1:16} Bride to Chorus: While the king was taking his rest, my aromatic ointment sent forth its odor. {1:17} My beloved is a bundle of myrrh to me. He shall abide between my breasts. {1:18} My beloved is a cluster of Cyprus grapes to me, in the vineyards of Engaddi. {1:19} Groom to Bride: Behold, you are beautiful, O my love. Behold, you are beautiful. Your eyes are those of a dove. {1:20} Bride to Groom: Behold, you are handsome, O my beloved, and graceful. Our bed is flourishing. {1:21} Groom to Bride: The timbers of our houses are of cedar; our ceilings are of cypress.

Song of Songs 2 {2:1} Bride: I am a flower of the open field and a lily of the steep valleys. {2:2} Groom: Like a lily among the thorns, so is my loved one among the daughters. {2:3} Bride to Chorus: Like an apple tree among the trees of the forest, so is my beloved among the sons. I sat beneath the shadow of the one whom I desired, and his fruit was sweet to my palate. {2:4} He brought me into the storeroom of wine. He set charity in order within me. {2:5} Prop me up with flowers. Close me in with apples. For I languish through love. {2:6} His left hand is under my head, and his right hand shall embrace me. {2:7} Groom to Chorus: I bind you by oath, O daughters of Jerusalem, by the does and the stags of the open field, not to disturb or awaken the beloved, even for as long as she wills. {2:8} Bride to Chorus: The voice of my beloved! Behold, he arrives leaping along the mountains, jumping across the hills. {2:9} My beloved is like a doe and like a young stag. {2:10} Lo, he stands beyond our wall, gazing through the windows, watching through the lattices. {2:11} Lo, my beloved speaks to me: {2:12} Groom to Bride: Rise up, quickly, my love, my dove, my shapely one, and advance. {2:13} For winter has now past; the rain has decreased and gone away. {2:14} The flowers have appeared in our land; the time for pruning has arrived. The voice of the turtledove has been heard in our land. {2:15} The fig tree has brought forth its green figs; the flowering vines bestow their odor. Rise up, my love, my brilliant one, and advance. {2:16} My dove in the clefts of the rock, in the hollows of the wall, reveal to me your face. Let your voice sound in my ears. For your voice is sweet, and your face is graceful. {2:17} Chorus to Groom and Bride: Capture for us the little foxes, which are tearing down the vines; for our vineyard has flourished. {2:18} Bride to Chorus: My beloved is for me, and I am for him. He pastures among the lilies, until the day rises and the shadows decline. {2:19} Bride to Groom: Return, O my beloved. Be like a doe and like a young stag upon the mountains of Bether.

[Song of Songs 3] {3:1} Bride: On my bed, throughout the night, I sought him whom my soul loves. I sought him, and did not find him. {3:2} I will rise up, and I will circle through the city. Through the side streets and thoroughfares, I will seek him whom my soul loves. I sought him, and did not find him. {3:3} The watchers who guard the city found me: “Have you seen him whom my soul loves?” {3:4} When I had passed by them a little, I found him whom my soul loves. I held him, and would not release him, until I would bring him into my mother’s house, and into the chamber of her who bore me. {3:5} Groom to Chorus: I bind you by oath, O daughters of Jerusalem, by the does and the stags of the open field, not to disturb or awaken the beloved, until she wills. {3:6} Chorus to Groom: Who is she, who ascends through the desert, like a staff of smoke from the aromatics of myrrh, and frankincense, and every powder of the perfumer? {3:7} Chorus to Bride: Lo, sixty strong ones, out of all the strongest in Israel, stand watch at the bed of Solomon, {3:8} all holding swords and well-trained in warfare, each one’s weapon upon his thigh, because of fears in the night. {3:9} Bride to Chorus: King Solomon made himself a portable throne from the wood of Lebanon. {3:10} He made its columns of silver, the reclining place of gold, the ascent of purple; the middle he covered well, out of charity for the daughters of Jerusalem. {3:11} O daughters of Zion, go forth and see king Solomon with the diadem with which his mother crowned him, on the day of his espousal, on the day of the rejoicing of his heart.

[Song of Songs 4] {4:1} Groom to Bride: How beautiful you are, my love, how beautiful you are! Your eyes are those of a dove, except for what is hidden within. Your hair is like flocks of goats, which ascend along the mountain of Gilead. {4:2} Your teeth are like flocks of shorn sheep, which ascend from the washing, each one with its identical twin, and not one among them is barren. {4:3} Your lips are like a scarlet ribbon, and your eloquence is sweetness. Like a piece of pomegranate, so are your cheeks, except for what is hidden within. {4:4} Your neck is like the tower of David, which was built with ramparts: a thousand shields are hanging from it, all the armor of the strong. {4:5} Your two breasts are like two young does, twins that pasture among the lilies. {4:6} Until the day rises and the shadows decline, I will go to the mountain of myrrh and to the hill of frankincense. {4:7} You are totally beautiful, my love, and there is no blemish in you. {4:8} Advance from Lebanon, my spouse, advance from Lebanon, advance. You shall be crowned at the head of Amana, near the summit of Senir and Hermon, by the dens of lions, by the mountains of leopards. {4:9} You have wounded my heart, my sister, my spouse. You have wounded my heart with one look of your eyes, and with one lock of hair on your neck. {4:10} How beautiful are your breasts, my sister, my spouse! Your breasts are more beautiful than wine, and the fragrance of your ointments is above all aromatic oils. {4:11} Your lips, my spouse, are a dripping honeycomb; honey and milk are under your tongue. And the fragrance of your garments is like the odor of frankincense. {4:12} An enclosed garden is my sister, my spouse: an enclosed garden, a sealed fountain. {4:13} You send forth a paradise of pomegranates along with the fruits of the orchard: Cypress grapes, with aromatic oil; {4:14} aromatic oil and saffron; sweet cane and cinnamon, with all the trees of Lebanon; myrrh and aloe, with all the best ointments. {4:15} The fountain of the gardens is a well of living waters, which flow forcefully from Lebanon. {4:16} Rise up, north wind, and advance, south wind. Send a breeze through my garden, and carry its aromatic scents.

[Song of Songs 5] {5:1} Bride: May my beloved enter into his garden, and eat the fruit of his apple trees. {5:2} Groom to Bride: I have arrived in my garden, O my sister, my spouse. I have harvested my myrrh, with my aromatic oils. I have eaten the honeycomb with my honey. I have drunk my wine with my milk. Eat, O friends, and drink, and be inebriated, O most beloved. {5:3} Bride: I sleep, yet my heart watches. The voice of my beloved knocking: {5:4} Groom to Bride: Open to me, my sister, my love, my dove, my immaculate one. For my head is full of dew, and the locks of my hair are full of the drops of the night. {5:5} Bride: I have taken off my tunic; how shall I be clothed in it? I have washed my feet; how shall I spoil them? {5:6} My beloved put his hand through the window, and my inner self was moved by his touch. {5:7} I rose up in order to open to my beloved. My hands dripped with myrrh, and my fingers were full of the finest myrrh. {5:8} I opened the bolt of my door to my beloved. But he had turned aside and had gone away. My soul melted when he spoke. I sought him, and did not find him. I called, and he did not answer me. {5:9} The keepers who circulate through the city found me. They struck me, and wounded me. The keepers of the walls took my veil away from me. {5:10} I bind you by oath, O daughters of Jerusalem, if you find my beloved, announce to him that I languish through love. {5:11} Chorus to Bride: What kind of beloved is your beloved, O most beautiful among women? What kind of beloved is your beloved, so that you would bind us by oath? {5:12} Bride: My beloved is white and ruddy, elect among thousands. {5:13} His head is like the finest gold. His locks are like the heights of palm trees, and as black as a raven. {5:14} His eyes are like doves, which have been washed with milk over rivulets of waters, and which reside near plentiful streams. {5:15} His cheeks are like a courtyard of aromatic plants, sown by perfume. His lips are like lilies, dripping with the best myrrh. {5:16} His hands are smooth gold, full of hyacinths. His abdomen is ivory, accented with sapphires. {5:17} His legs are columns of marble, which have been established over bases of gold. His appearance is like that of Lebanon, elect like the cedars. {5:18} His throat is most sweet, and he is entirely desirable. Such is my beloved, and he is my friend, O daughters of Jerusalem. {5:19} Chorus to Bride: Where has your beloved gone, O most beautiful among women? To where has your beloved turned aside, so that we may seek him with you?
me fly away. Your hair is like a flock of goats, which have appeared out of Gilead. {6:5} Your teeth are like a flock of sheep, which have ascended from the washing, each one with its identical twin, and not one among them is barren. {6:6} Like the skin of a pomegranate, so are your cheeks, except for your hiddenss. {6:7} There are sixty queens, and eighty concubines, and maidens without number. {6:8} One is my dove, my perfect one. One is her mother; elect is she who bore her. The daughters saw her, and they proclaimed her most blessed. The queens and concubines saw her, and they praised her. {6:9} Chorus to Groom: Who is she, who advances like the rising dawn, as beautiful as the moon, as elect as the sun, as terrible as an army in battle array? {6:10} Bride: I descended to the garden of nuts, in order to see the fruits of the steep valleys, and to examine whether the vineyard had flourished and the pomegranates had produced buds. {6:11} I did not understand. My soul was stirred up within me because of the chariots of Amminadab. {6:12} Chorus to Bride: Return, return, O Sulamitess. Return, return, so that we may consider you.

The Wisdom of Solomon

[Wisdom 1] {1:1} Love justice, you who judge the land. Think of the Lord in goodness and seek him in simplicity of heart. {1:2} For he is found by those who do not test him, yet he reveals himself to those who have faith in him. {1:3} For perverse thoughts separate from God. But his virtue, when it is tested, corrects the foolish. {1:4} For wisdom will not enter into a malicious soul, nor dwell in a body subdued by sin. {1:5} For the holy spirit of instruction will flee from perverted thoughts separate from God. But his virtue, when it is tested, corrects the foolish. {1:6} For the spirit of wisdom is benevolent, and will not release the evil speaker from his talk, because God is a witness of his temperament, and a true examiner of his heart, and an auditor of his words. {1:7} For wisdom will not enter into a malicious soul, nor dwell in a body subdued by sin. {1:8} Therefore, he who speaks unjust things cannot escape notice, nor will the chastising judgment pass him by. {1:9} For inquiry will be made into the thoughts of the impious, his conversation also will reach the hearing of God, to the chastising of his iniquities. {1:10} For the zealous ear hears all things, and the disturbance of complaining will not be hidden. {1:11} Therefore, keep yourselves from complaining, which benefits nothing, and refrain your tongue from slander, because secret conversation will not pass into nothingness, and the mouth that deceives kills the soul. {1:12} Do not court death by the error of your life, nor procure your destruction by the works of your hands, {1:13} because God did not make death, nor does he rejoice in the loss of the living. {1:14} For he created all things that they might exist, and he made the nations of the world curable, and there is no medicine of extermination in them.

[Song of Songs 7] {7:1} Chorus to Groom: What will you see in the Sulamitess, other than choruses of encampments? {7:2} Chorus to Bride: How beautiful are your footsteps in shoes, O daughter of a ruler! The joints of your thighs are like jewels, which have been fabricated by the hand of an artist. Your abdomen is like a bundle of wheat, surrounded with lilies. {7:3} Your navel is a round bowl, never lacking in curvature. Your two breasts are like two young twin does. {7:4} Your neck is like a tower of ivory. Your eyes like the fish ponds at Heshbon, which are at the entrance to the daughter of the multitude. Your nose is like the tower of Lebanon, which looks out toward Damascus. {7:6} Your head is like Carmel, and the hairs of your head are like the purple of the king, bound into pleats. {7:7} Most beloved one, how beautiful you are, and how graceful in delights! {7:8} Your stature is comparable to the palm tree, and your breasts to clusters of grapes. {7:9} Groom: I said, I will ascend to the palm tree, and take hold of its fruit. And your breasts will be like clusters of grapes on the vine. And the fragrance of your mouth will be like apples. {7:10} Bride: Your throat is like the finest wine: wine worthy for my beloved to drink, and for his lips and teeth to contemplate. {7:11} I am for my beloved, and his turning is to me. {7:12} Approach, my beloved. Let us go out into the field; let us linger in the villages. {7:13} Let us go up in the morning to the vineyards; let us see if the vineyard has flourished, if the flowers are ready to bear fruit, if the pomegranates have flourished. There I will give my breasts to you. {7:14} The mandrakes yield their fragrance. At our gates is every fruit. The new and the old, my beloved, I have kept for you.

[Song of Songs 8] {8:1} Bride to Groom: Who will give you to me as my brother, feeding from the breasts of my mother, so that I may discover you outside, and may kiss you, and so that now no one may despise me? {8:2} I will take hold of you and lead you into my mother’s house. There you will teach me, and I will give you a cup of spiced wine, and of new wine from my pomegranates. {8:3} His left hand is under my head, and his right hand shall embrace me. {8:4} Groom to Chorus: I bind you by oath, O daughters of Jerusalem, not to disturb or awaken the beloved, until she wills. {8:5} Chorus to Groom: Who is she, who ascends from the desert, flowing with delights, leaning upon her beloved? {8:6} Groom to Bride: Under the apple tree, I awakened you. There your mother was corrupted. There she who bore you was violated. {8:7} Set me like a seal upon your heart, like a seal upon your arm. For love is strong, like death, and envy is enduring, like hell: their lamps are made of fire and flames. {8:8} A multitude of waters cannot extinguish love, nor can a river overwhelm it. If a man were to give all the substance of his house in exchange for love, he would despire it as nothing. {8:9} Chorus: Our sister is little and has no breasts. What shall we do for our sister on the day when she is called upon? {8:10} If she is a wall, let us build a rampart of silver upon it. If she is a door, let us join it together with boards of cedar. {8:11} Bride to Chorus: I am a wall, and my breasts are like towers, since, in his presence, I have become like one who has discovered peace. {8:12} The peaceful one had a vineyard, in that which held the peoples. He handed it on to the caretakers; a man brought, in exchange for its fruit, a thousand pieces of silver. {8:13} Groom: My vineyard is before me. The thousand is for your peacefulness, and two hundred is for those who care for its fruit. {8:14} Bride to Groom: Your friends are attentive to those who have been dwelling in the gardens. Cause me to heed your voice. {8:15} Flee away, my beloved, and become like the doe and the young stag upon the mountains of aromatic plants.
nor a kingdom of hell upon the earth. {1:15} For justice is perpetual and immortal. {1:16} But the impious, with hands and words, have called death to them, and, esteeming it a friend, they have fallen away and have made a covenant with death, because they desired to take part in it.

[Wisdom 2] {2:1} For they have said, reasoning with themselves incorrectly: “Our lifetime is brief and tedious, and there is no relief within the limits of man, and no one is acknowledged to have returned from the dead. {2:2} For we are born from nothing, and after this we will be as if we had not been, because the breath in our nostrils is like smoke, and conversation sends out sparks from the stirring of our heart; {2:3} therefore, when it is extinguished, our body will be ashes, and our spirit will be diffused like a soft breeze, and our life will pass away like the wisps of a cloud, just as a mist is dissolved when it is driven away by the rays of the sun and overpowered by its heat. {2:4} And in time our name will surrender to oblivion, and no one will have remembrance of our works. {2:5} For our time is like the passing of a shadow, and nothing can reverse our end, for it is signed and sealed, and cannot be returned. {2:6} Therefore, hurry, let us enjoy the good things of the present time, and let us quickly use up passing things, just as in youth. {2:7} Let us indulge ourselves with costly wine and ointments, and let no flower of youth pass us by. {2:8} Let us surround ourselves with rosebuds before they wither; let no meadow be left untouched by our indulgence. {2:9} Let no one among us be exempt from our indulgence. Let us leave behind tokens of enjoyment everywhere, for this is our portion, and this is fate. {2:10} Let us oppress the poor just man, and not spare the widow, nor respect the aged grey hairs of elders. {2:11} But let our strength be the law of justice, for what is weak is found to be useless. {2:12} Therefore, let us encircle the just, because he is useless to us, and he is against our works, and he reproaches us with our legal offenses, and makes known to us the sins of our way of life. {2:13} He promises that he has the knowledge of God and he calls himself the son of God. {2:14} He was made among us to expose our very thoughts. {2:15} He is grieved for us even to behold, for his life is unlike other men’s lives, and immutable are his ways. {2:16} It is as if we are considered by him to be insignificant, and he abjures from our ways as from filth; he prefers the newly justified, and he glories that he has God for his father. {2:17} Let us see, then, if his words are true, and let us test what will happen to him, and then we will know what his end will be. {2:18} For if he is the true son of God, he will receive him and deliver him from the hands of his adversaries. {2:19} Let us examine him with insult and torture, that we may know his reverence and try his patience. {2:20} Let us condemn him to a most shameful death, for, according to his own words, God will care for him.” {2:21} These things they thought, and they were mistaken, for their own malice blinded them. {2:22} And they were ignorant of the mysteries of God; they neither hoped for the reward of justice, nor judged the value of holy souls. {2:23} For God created man to be immortal, and he made him in the image of his own likeness. {2:24} But by the envy of the devil, death entered the world, {2:25} yet they imitate him, who are from his side.

[Wisdom 3] {3:1} But the souls of the just are in the hand of God and no torment of death will touch them. {3:2} In the eyes of the foolish, they seemed to die, and their departure was considered an affliction, {3:3} and their going away from us, a banishment. Yet they are in peace. {3:4} And though, in the sight of men, they suffered torments, their hope is full of immortality. {3:5} Troubled in few things, in many things they will be well compensated, because God has tested them and found them worthy of himself. {3:6} Like gold in the furnace, he has proved them, and as a holocaust victim, he has received them, and in the time of their visitation {3:7} they will shine, and they will dash about like sparks among stubble. {3:8} They will judge the nations and they will rule over the people, and their Lord will reign forever. {3:9} Those who trust in him, will understand the truth, and those who are faithful in love will rest in him, because grace and peace is for his elect. {3:10} But the impious will be chastised according to their thoughts, for they have neglected the just and have retreated from the Lord. {3:11} For whoever abandons wisdom and instruction is unhappy, and their hope is empty, and their labors without fruit, and their works useless. {3:12} Their wives are foolish and their sons are wicked; the things that serve them are accursed. {3:13} Therefore, fertile is the barren and undefiled, who has not known transgressions in bed; she will bear fruit by caring for holy souls. {3:14} And fertile is the celibate, who has not wrought iniquity with his hands, nor thought wickedness against God; for to him will be given a special gift of faith and a very welcome place in the temple of the Lord. {3:15} For the fruit of good labors is glorious and the root of wisdom shall never perish. {3:16} But the sons of adulterers will not reach completion, and the offspring of a sinful bed will be banished. {3:17} And if they live long, they will be counted as nothing, and their last years of old-age will be without honor. {3:18} And if they die quickly, they will have no hope, nor words of comfort on the day of reckoning. {3:19} For the inequities of the people have a dreadful result.

[Wisdom 4] {4:1} O how beautiful is the chaste fruit of purity! For its remembrance is immortal, because it is observed both with God and with men. {4:2} When it is present, they imitate it, and they desire it when it has withdrawn itself, and it triumphs crowned forever, winning the reward of undefiled conflicts. {4:3} But the great number of the many different kinds of the impious will not be to their advantage, and spurious seedlings will not be given deep roots, nor will they establish any firm foundation. {4:4} And if they spring forth with branches for a time, yet, being set infirmly, they will be shaken by the wind, and, by the superabundance of the winds, they will be eradicated. {4:5} For the incomplete branches will be broken, and their fruits will be useless, and bitter to eat, and fit for nothing. {4:6} For all the sons born from iniquity are witnesses of wickedness against their parents at their interrogation. {4:7} But the just, if death seizes him beforehand, will be refreshed. {4:8} For old age is made venerable, neither by lasting long, nor by counting the number of years; yet understanding is the gray hair of wisdom for men, {4:9} and an immaculate life is a generation of sages. {4:10} Pleading to God, having been made beloved, and living among sinners, he was transformed. {4:11} He was quickly taken away, for malice could not alter his understanding, nor could deceit beguile his soul. {4:12} For fascination with entertainment obscures good things, and the unfaithfulness of desire subverts the mind without malice. {4:13} Completed in a short time, he fulfilled many times. {4:14} Truly his soul was pleasing to God. Because of this, he hastened to bring him out of the midst of iniquities, but the people see this and do not understand, nor do they place such things in their hearts: {4:15} that the grace and mercy of God is with his holy ones, and he watches over his elect. {4:16} But the just dead will condemn the impious living, and youth hastily completed results in a long unjust life. {4:17} For they will see the end of the wise, and will neither understand, nor imagine, that he is of God, and that therefore the Lord has safeguarded him. {4:18} For they will see and despise him, but the Lord will ridicule them. {4:19} And after this, they will fall without honor and with contempt among the dead forever. Seeing that they are puffed up and speechless, he will shatter them and will shake them from the foundations all the way to the top, to their utter desolation, and they will grieve and their remembrance will perish. {4:20} They will hurry with fear at the understanding of their sins, and their iniquities will bear witness against them.

[Wisdom 5] {5:1} Then the just will stand with great steadfastness against those who have oppressed them and have taken away their labors. {5:2} Seeing this, they will be troubled with terrible fear, and they will be amazed at the suddenness of unexpected salvation. {5:3} Driven toward regret, and through the anguish of their groaning spirit, they will say within themselves: “These are the ones whom we held for some time in derision and in mocking reproach. {5:4} We foolish considered their life to be madness, and their end to be without honor. {5:5} How is it that they are counted among the sons of God, and their place is among the holy? {5:6} Therefore, we have strayed from the way of truth, and the light of justice has not shined on us, and the sun of understanding has not risen on us. {5:7} We extinguished ourselves in the way of iniquity and perdition, and have walked a difficult way, while ignoring the way of the Lord. {5:8} How has arrogance benefited us? Or what has exalting in riches brought us? {5:9} All those things have passed away like a shadow, and like a messenger traveling quickly by; {5:10} and like a ship passing over the waves of water, when it has gone by, its trace cannot be found, nor can the pathway of its keel in the waves; {5:11} or, like a bird flying through the air, there is no evidence of her journey to be found, but there is hardly a sound as the beating of her wings lifts up the air and, by the force of her journey, divides the air she has flown across, which was disturbed by her wings, and afterwards there is no sign of her journey to be found; {5:12} or, like an arrow shot at a selected mark, the air continues to be divided and to be brought together again, so that its passing is unknown. {5:13} And in like manner we, having been born, continuously cease to exist, and indeed, we depart without sign of virtue to show, but we are consumed in our malice.” {5:14} Such things those who sinned said in hell. {5:15} For the hope of the impious is like feathers, which are blown away by the wind, and like a thin foam, which is dispersed by a storm, and like smoke, which is scattered by the wind, and like the memory of a guest who passes by one day. {5:16} But the just will live forever, and their reward is with the Lord, and the thought of them is with the Most High. {5:17} Therefore, they will receive a beautiful kingdom and a crown of splendor from the hand of the Lord, for with his right hand he will cover them, and with his holy arm he will defend them. {5:18} And his zeal will take up arms, and he will equip his servants for retribution on their enemies. {5:19} He will put on justice as a breastplate, and he will grasp sure judgment as a helmet. {5:20} He will select fairness as an invincible shield. {5:21} Yet he will sharpen his severe wrath into a spear, and he will fight with those of the world against the irrational. {5:22} Shafts of lightning will hurl forth accurately, and, as if from a well-curved bow of clouds, they will be expelled and will fly to the determined mark. {5:23} And hail will be cast like stones full of anger, and the water of the sea will rise up against them, and the rivers will charge forth harshly. {5:24} The spirit of virtue will stand firm against them and like a whirlwind will divide them, and he will lead all the world of iniquity into a wasteland, and malice will overthrow the seats of power.

[Wisdom 6] {6:1} Wisdom is better than power, and a prudent man is better than a powerful one. {6:2} Therefore, hear, O kings, and understand; learn, you judges of the ends of the earth. {6:3} Listen closely, you who hold the attention of the crowds, and who please yourselves by disturbing the nations. {6:4} For power has been given to you from the Lord and strength from the Most High, who will examine your works and scrutinize your thoughts. {6:5} For, when you were ministers of his kingdom, you did not judge correctly, nor keep the law of justice, nor walk according to the will of God. {6:6} Horribly and quickly he will appear to you, because he will make a severe judgment for those who are in charge. {6:7} For, to the little, great mercy is granted, but the powerful will endure powerful torment. {6:8} For the Lord will not exempt anyone’s character, nor will he stand in awe of anyone’s greatness, because he himself made the little and the great, and he is equally concerned for everyone. {6:9} But a powerful torture pursues the powerful. {6:10} Therefore, O kings, these, my words, are for you, so that you may learn wisdom and not perish. {6:11} For those who have justly preserved justice will be justified, and those who have learned these things will find what to answer. {6:12} Therefore, desire my words, love them, and you will have instruction. {6:13} Wisdom is pure and never fades away, and is easily seen by those who love her and found by those who seek her. {6:14} She anticipates those who desire her, so that she first reveals herself to them. {6:15} Whoever awakens early to seek her, will not labor, for he will find her sitting at his door. {6:16} Therefore, by thinking about her, understanding is perfected, and whoever remains watchful for her, will quickly be secure. {6:17} For she goes about seeking such as are worthy of her, and she reveals herself to them cheerfully in the ways, and meets them with all foresight. {6:18} For the very true beginning of her is the desire for instruction. {6:19} Therefore, the zeal for instruction is love, and love is the keeping of her laws, and the keeping of her laws is the perfection of incorruptibility, {6:20} while incorruptibility makes us near to God. {6:21} And so, the desire for wisdom leads to an everlasting kingdom. {6:22} If, therefore, your delight is in thrones and scepters, O kings of the people, love wisdom, so that you may reign forever; {6:23} love the light of wisdom, all you who lead the peoples. {6:24} But what wisdom is, and how she was made, I will report, and I will not hide the mysteries of God from you, but I will investigate her from the beginning of her birth, and I will place the knowledge of her in the light, and will not pass over the truth. {6:25} Neither will I hold to the path that dwindles away with envy, because such a man will not partake in wisdom. {6:26} For the proliferation of the wise is sanity for the world, and a wise king is the mainstay of the people. {6:27} Therefore, receive instruction by my words, and it will benefit you.

[Wisdom 7] {7:1} Certainly, I myself am also a mortal man, like everyone, and the offspring of this earth, which was made beforehand; and in my mother’s womb I was fashioned with care, {7:2} within the time of ten months, made of blood, from the seed of man and the delight of sleeping together. {7:3} And when I was born, I drew in the common air, and in similar fashion, I fell upon the earth, and the first voice I uttered, like everyone, was crying. {7:4} I was nursed in swaddling clothes and with great care. {7:5} For none of the kings had any other beginning of birth. {7:6} Therefore, there is only one entrance for everyone into life, and the same in leaving. {7:7} Because of this, I chose, and understanding was given to me; and I prayed, and the spirit of wisdom came to me; {7:8} and I placed her before kingdoms and thrones, and I considered riches nothing in comparison with her. {7:9} Neither did I compare to her a precious stone, for all gold in comparison with her is like a little sand, and silver, in view of her, will be valued as if dirt. {7:10} I loved her above health and beauty, and I placed having her before light, for her light is unfailing. {7:11} Yet all good things came to me together with her, and innumerable honors by her hand; {7:12} and I rejoiced in all these, because this wisdom went before me, although I did not know that she is the mother of them all. {7:13} This I have learned without falsehood and communicate without envy, and her integrity I do not hide. {7:14} Indeed, she is an infinite treasure chest for men, and those who make use of it, become partakers in the friendship of God, because they are recommended by the gifts of instruction. {7:15} Yet God has given to me to speak my mind, and to conceive thoughts worthy of those things that are given to me, because he is the leader of wisdom and the repairer of understanding. {7:16} For in his hand are both we, and our words, and all wisdom, and the works of science, and instruction. {7:17} For he has given me true knowledge of these things which exist: so as to know the orderly arrangement of the world, and the powers of the elements, {7:18} the beginning and the end and the midpoint of the seasons, the characteristics of changing things, and the divisions of time, {7:19} the courses of the years, and the orderly arrangement of the stars, {7:20} the natures of animals, and the rage of wild beasts, the force of winds, and the reasonings of men, the diversities of plants, and the benefits of roots, {7:21} and all such things as are hidden and unexpected, I have learned; for wisdom, the artisan of all, taught me. {7:22} For in her is the spirit of understanding: holy, singular, manifold, subtle, perceptive, lively, chaste, reliable, gracious, loving, good, astute, who forbids nothing beneficial, {7:23} humane, kind, steadfast, trustworthy, secure, having all virtue, watching for all things and grasping all things with a pure and most delicate understanding of spirit. {7:24} For wisdom is more active than all active things, yet she reaches everywhere because of her purity. {7:25} For she is a breath of the virtue of God and a genuine emanation from the purity of the almighty God, and therefore nothing unclean can invade her. {7:26} Indeed, she is the brightness of eternal light, and the unspotted mirror of the majesty of God, and the image of his goodness. {7:27} And though she is one, she can do all things; and, unchanging in herself, she renews all things, and throughout the nations she conveys herself to holy souls, establishing them as friends and prophets of God. {7:28} For God loves none but those who dwell with wisdom. {7:29} For she is more spectacular than the sun, and above the array of all the stars; compared with the light, she is found to be before it. {7:30} Indeed, after her comes night, but wisdom will not be overcome by malice.

[Wisdom 8] {8:1} Thus, she reaches mightily from one end all the way to the other, and she orders all things sweetly. {8:2} I have loved her and searched for her from my youth, and have asked to take her to me as my spouse, and I became a lover of her form. {8:3} She glorifies her lineage by having companionship with God; yes and of all things, the Lord loves her. {8:4} For she teaches the teaching of God and is the chooser of his works. {8:5} And if riches are longed for in life, what is richer than wisdom, which is being served in all things? {8:6} But if the mind is to be served, who, of all that exists, is a greater artisan than she? {8:7} And if anyone loves justice, her labors hold great virtues; for she teaches temperance and prudence, justice and virtue, and nothing is more useful in human life. {8:8} And if one desires a multitude of knowledge, she knows the past and forecasts the future; she knows the subtleties of conversation and the response to arguments; she understands the signs and portents, before the events take place, events both of the present time and of future ages. {8:9} Therefore, I resolved to take her to me to live together, knowing that she will be a good counselor and will console my thoughts and my weariness. {8:10} Because of her, I have clarity in the midst of confusion, and honor among the elders in my youth; {8:11} and I will be found to be astute in judgment, and will be admired in the sight of the mighty, and the faces of leaders will wonder at me. {8:12} When I am silent, they will wait for me; when I speak, they will respect me; and when I talk for too long, they will put their hands on their mouths. {8:13} Thus, by means of her, I will have immortality, and I will bequeath an everlasting memorial to those who come after me. {8:14} I will set the peoples in order, and nations will be subject to me. {8:15} Hearing me, terrible kings will be afraid; to the multitude, I will be seen as good and valiant in war. {8:16} When I go into my house, I will repose myself with her, for her conversation has no bitterness, nor her company any tediousness, but only joy and gladness. {8:17} Thinking these things within myself, and recalling in my heart that immortality is the intention of wisdom, {8:18} and that in her friendship is good enjoyment, and in the works of her hands are honors without flaw, and in debate with her is understanding, and glory in sharing conversation with her; I went about seeking, so that I might take her to myself. {8:19} For I was an ingenious boy and had been dealt a good soul. {8:20} Even more so, being good, I came to have an undefiled body. {8:21} And since I know that it is not possible to be chaste except as a gift from God, and that it is a point of wisdom to know whose gift it is, I approached the Lord, and I besought him, and I said with my whole heart:
Wisdom 9} [9:1] “God of my fathers and Lord of mercy, who has made all things with your word, [9:2] and by your wisdom has established man to have dominion over the creatures which have been made by you, [9:3] so that he would order the world in equity and justice, and execute judgment with an upright heart, [9:4] give me wisdom, the handmaid at your throne, and be unwilling to reject me from among your children, [9:5] because I am your servant, and the son of your handmaid, a weak man, and short-lived, with limited understanding of judgment and laws. [9:6] And if someone were perfect among the sons of men, yet if your wisdom was taken away from him, he would be counted as nothing. [9:7] You have chosen me to be a king of your people, and a judge of your sons and daughters. [9:8] And you called me to construct a temple on your holy mount, and, in the city of your dwelling, an altar in the likeness of your holy tabernacle, which you have prepared from the beginning. [9:9] And with you is wisdom, who is familiar with your works, and who was nearby when you made the world, and who knows what is pleasing to your eyes, and who is guided by your teachings. [9:10] Send her out of your holy heavens and from the throne of your majesty, so that she is with me and labors with me, and I will know what is acceptable with you. [9:11] For she knows and understands all things, and will lead me soberly in my works, and will guard me by her power. [9:12] And my works will be acceptable, and I will govern your people justly, and I will be worthy of the throne of my father. [9:13] For who among men can know the counsel of God? Or who can imagine the will of God? [9:14] For the thoughts of mortals are timid, and our foresight is uncertain. [9:15] For the corruptible body weighs down the soul, and this earthly dwelling presses many thoughts upon the mind. [9:16] And we assess with difficulty the things that are of earth, and we discover with labor the things that are within our view. So who will search out the things that are in heaven? [9:17] Moreover, who will know your mind, unless you give wisdom and send your holy spirit from on high? [9:18] And in this way, those who are on earth are corrected in their path, and men learn the things that are pleasing to you. [9:19] For by wisdom they are saved, who have pleased you, O Lord, from the beginning.”

Wisdom 10} [10:1] This is he, who was formed first by God, the father of the world, who was alone when created; she preserved him, [10:2] and led him out of his offense, and gave him the power to maintain all things. [10:3] After this, when the unjust man withdrew from her in his anger, he perished through anger by the murder of his brother. [10:4] Because of this, when water destroyed the earth, wisdom healed it again, guiding the just by means of contemptible wood. [10:5] Moreover, when the nations had conspired together to consent to wickedness, she knew the just, and preserved him without blame before God, and preserved his strength out of mercy for his sons. [10:6] She freed this just man from the destruction of the impious, fleeing descending fire in the Five Cities, [10:7] which, as a testimony to their wickedness, is a constantly smoking desolate land, and the trees bear fruit at uncertain times, and a figure of salt stands as a monument to an unbelieving soul. [10:8] For, in disregarding wisdom, they are fallen, not so much in this, that they were ignorant of good, but that they bequeathed to men a memorial of their foolishness, so that, in the things in which they sinned, they were unable to escape notice. [10:9] Yet wisdom has freed from sorrow those who are self-observant. [10:10] She led the just man, this fugitive of his brother’s wrath, by the right ways, and revealed to him the kingdom of God, and gave him the knowledge of holiness, honored him in his labors, and completed his labors. [10:11] In the midst of encircling deceit, she flowed around him and made him honest. [10:12] She guarded him from his enemies, and she defended him from seducers, and she gave him a strong conflict so that he might overcome and might know that the power of all things is wisdom. [10:13] She did not abandon the just man when he was sold, but freed him from sinners; she went down with him into the pit, [10:14] and she did not abandon him in chains, while she brought him the scepter of the kingdom and power against those who oppressed him, and revealed them to be liars who had dishonored him, and gave him everlasting glory. [10:15] She freed this just people and the blameless offspring, from the nations that had oppressed them. [10:16] She entered the soul of the servant of God and stood against dreadful kings in the midst of portents and signs, [10:17] and she rendered to the just the wages of their labors, and led them along a wondrous way; and she was to them, like a cover by day, and like the light of the stars by night. [10:18] She carried them through the Red Sea, and led them across a great water. [10:19] But their enemies, she submerged in the sea, and from the furthest depths, she drew them up. Therefore, the just carried off the spoils of the impious. [10:20] And they chanted to your holy name, Lord, and they together praised your victorious hand, [10:21] because wisdom opened the mouth of the mute, and made the speech of infants eloquent.

Wisdom 11} [11:1] She directed their works in the hands of the holy prophet. [11:2] They made a path through desolate areas, which were uninhabited, and set up their homes in remote places. [11:3] They stood firm against the enemy, and vindicated themselves from their adversaries. [11:4] They thirsted, and they called upon you, and water was given them out of the deepest rock, and respite from thirst out of the hard stone. [11:5] For through water, their enemies had been punished, by the corruption of their drinking water; and so, among them, when the sons of Israel lacked the abundance they would have had, their enemies rejoiced; [11:6] yet though water, when they were in need, it turned out well for them. [11:7] For instead of a fountain, even everlasting in flow, you gave human blood to the unjust, [11:8] and while they would be crushed into disgrace because of the murdering of infants, you unexpectedly gave your own abundant water, [11:9] revealing through the thirst, which occurred at that time, how you would exalt your own and would kill their adversaries. [11:10] For when they were being tested, and even when receiving merciful correction, they knew in what way, when your wrath judged the impious, they would suffer torments. [11:11] For these, advising like a father, you approved; but the others, interrogating like a severe king, you condemned. [11:12] For whether absent or present, they were tortured alike. [11:13] For they had received double: weariness and groaning in the remembrance of things past. [11:14] For when they paid attention to their punishments, to attend to their own benefit, they called to unfair men? Or who will accuse you, if the nations perish, for your judgment? Or who will come before you as a defender of your favor to their sins. {12:12} For who will say to you, accursed from the beginning. Neither did you, fearing anyone, give wicked, and their malice is inherent, and that their thinking them a place of repentance, not unaware that their nation is once, {12:10} but, in judging by degrees, you were giving their cruelty, or with a harsh word to exterminate them at one breath, or with a cruel beast, or with a harsh word to exterminate them at extent, which created the world from unknown material, to send forth upon them a multitude of bears, or fierce lions, {11:19} or, in anger, beasts of a new kind, massive and strange, either breathing out a fiery vapor, or sending forth an odoriferous smoke, or shooting horrible sparks from their eyes; {11:20} whereby, not only wounds would be able to destroy them, but also the very sight would kill them through fear. {11:21} Yet, even without these, they could have been killed with one breath, suffering persecution of their own making and being scattered by your spirit of virtue; but you have ordered all things in size and count number and weight. {11:22} Though many are strong, you alone always overcome. And who will withstand the strength of your arm? {11:23} For, like a tiny grain on a scale, just so is the world before you, and like a drop daw before dawn, which descends upon the earth. {11:24} But you are merciful to all, because you can do all, and you dismiss the sins of man because of repentance. {11:25} For you love all things that are, and you hate nothing of the things you have made;
for you would not have created or established anything that you hated. {11:26} For how could anything endure, except by your will? Or what, having been called by you not to exist, would be preserved? {11:27} Yet you spare all things, because they are yours, O Lord, who loves souls.

[Wisdom 12] {12:1} O how good and gracious, Lord, is your spirit in all things! {12:2} Therefore, those who wander afield, you correct, and, as to those who sin, you counsel them and admonish them, so that, having abandoned malice, they may believe in you, O Lord. {12:3} For those ancient inhabitants of your holy land, who you abhorred, {12:4} because they were doing works hateful to you, through unjust medicines and sacrifices, {12:5} and the merciless murderers of their own sons, and the eaters of human entrails, and the devourers of blood apart from your community sacrament, {12:6} and the sellers performing the ceremonies of helpless souls, you willed to destroy by the hands of our parents, {12:7} so that they might worthily secure the sojourn of the children of God, in the land which is most beloved by you.
{12:8} Yet, so that you were lenient even to these men, you sent wasps, forerunners of your army, so that you might destroy them little by little, {12:9} not because you were unable to subdue the impious under the just by war or by cruel beasts, or with a harsh word to exterminate them at once, {12:10} but, in judging by degrees, you were giving them a place of repentance, not unaware that their nation is wicked, and their malice is inherent, and that their thinking could never be changed. {12:11} For this offspring was accursed from the beginning. Neither did you, fearing anyone, give favor to their sins. {12:12} For who will say to you, “What have you done?” Or who will stand against your judgment? Or who will come before you as a defender of unfair men? Or who will accuse you, if the nations perish, which you have made? {12:13} For neither is there any other God but you, who has care of all, to whom you would show that you did not give judgment unjustly. {12:14} Neither will king or tyrant inquire before you about those whom you destroyed. {12:15} Therefore, since you are just, you order all things justly, considering it foreign to your virtue to condemn him who does not deserve to be punished. {12:16} For your power is the beginning of justice, and, because you are Lord of all, you make yourself to be lenient to all. {12:17} For you reveal power to those who do not believe you to be perfect in power, and you expose the arrogance of those who do not know you. {12:18} Yet, you are the master of power, since you judge with tranquility, and since you administer us with great reverence; for it is close to you to be used whenever you will. {12:19} But you have taught your people, through such works, that they must be just and humane, and you have made your sons to be of good hope, because in judging you provide a place for repentance from sins. {12:20} For even if the enemies of your servants were deserving of death, you afflicted them with great attentiveness, providing a time and a place whereby they would be able to be changed from malice; {12:21} with what diligence, then, have you judged your sons, whose parents you have given oaths and covenants in good faith! {12:22} Therefore, while you give us discipline, you give our enemies a multiplicity of scourges, so that in judging we may think on your goodness, and when we are judged, we may hope for mercy. {12:23} Therefore, also to these, who have lived their lives irrationally and unjustly, through these things that they worshiped, you gave the greatest torments. {12:24} And, indeed, they wandered for a long time in the way of error, valuing those things as gods, which are worthless even among animals, living in foolish irrational behavior. {12:25} Because of this, you have given a judgment in derision, as if from foolish children. {12:26} But those who have not been corrected by mockery and chiding, have experienced a judgment worthy of God. {12:27} For among those who were indignant at their sufferings, which came through those things that they reputed to be gods, when they saw that they would be destroyed by these same things, those who formerly refused knowledge of him, now acknowledged the true God, and, because of this, the end of their condemnation came upon them.

[Wisdom 13] {13:1} But all men are vain, who are not under the knowledge of God, and who, from these good things that are seen, were not able to understand he who is, nor, by paying attention to the works, did they acknowledge he who was the artisan. {13:2} Instead, they had considered either the fire, or the air, or the atmosphere, or the circle of stars, or the great sea, or the sun and moon, to be the gods that rule the world. {13:3} If they, being delighted by such sights, supposed them to be gods, let them know how great the Lord of them is in splendor. For he who created all things is the author of beauty. {13:4} Or, if they wondered at their power and their effects, let them understand by these things, that he who created them is mightier than they are. {13:5} For, by the greatness of the creation and its beauty, the creator of these will be able to be seen discernibly. {13:6} Yet, up to this point, the complaint about this is lesser. For perhaps they made a mistake in this, while desiring and seeking to find God. {13:7} And, indeed, having some familiarity with him through his works, they search, and they are persuaded, because the things that they are seeing are good. {13:8} But, then again, neither can their debt be ignored. {13:9} For, if they were able to know enough so that they could value the universe, how is it they did not easily discover the Lord of it? {13:10} Yet they are unhappy, and their hope is among the dead, for they have called 'gods' the works of the hands of men, gold and silver, the inventions of skill, and the likeness of animals, or a useless stone, the work of an ancient hand. {13:11} Or, it is as if a craftsman, a workman of the forest, had cut straight wood, and, with his expertise, shaved off all of its bark, and, with his skill, diligently fashioned a vessel, practical for use in life, {13:12} and even the remains of his work were exhausted in the preparation of food; {13:13} and, from the remainder of this, which has become useless for nothing, a curved piece of wood and full of knots, he diligently carves it in his spare time, and, through the knowledge of his art, forms it and makes it in the image of a man, {13:14} or something comparable to an animal, thoroughly rubbing it with red ochre, to make it red with the color of the pigment, and to cover every imperfection which is in it; {13:15} and it is as if he made a fitting resting place for it, even setting it in a wall and fastening it with iron, {13:16} providing for it, lest it should fall, knowing that it is unable to help itself, for it is an image and it is in need of help. {13:17} And then, making an offering, he inquires about his wealth, and about his sons, and about marriage. And he is not ashamed to talk to that which has no soul. {13:18} And for health, indeed, something unhealthy is being prayed to, and for life, he petitions what is dead, and for help, he calls upon something helpless, {13:19} and for a good journey, he entreats that which is unable to walk, and for acquiring, and for working, and for success in all things, he entreats that which is useless in all things.

[Wisdom 14] {14:1} Again, another, thinking to sail, and beginning to make his voyage through the raging waves, calls upon a piece of wood more fragile than the wood that carries him. {14:2} For this is what desire has contrived to be acquired, and the craftsman has formed its understanding. {14:3} But your providence, O Father, governs, because you have provided for both a way in the sea and a very reliable path among the waves, {14:4} revealing that you are able to save out of all things, even if someone were to go to sea without skill. {14:5} But, so that the works of your wisdom might not be empty, therefore, men trust their souls even to a little piece of wood, and, crossing over the sea by raft, they are set free. {14:6} But, from the beginning, when the proud giants were perishing, the hope of the world, fleeing by boat, gave back to future ages a seed of birth, which was governed by your hand. {14:7} For blessed is the wood through which justice is made. {14:8} But, through the hand that makes the idol, both it, and he who made it, is accused: he, indeed, because it has been served by him, and it, because, though it is fragile, it is called 'god.' {14:9} But the impious and his impiety are similarly offensive to God. {14:10} For that which is made, together with him who made it, will suffer torments. {14:11} Because of this, and according to the idolatries of the nations, there will be no refuge, for the things created by God have been made into hatred, and into a temptation to the souls of men, and into a snare for the feet of the foolish. {14:12} For the beginning of fornication is the search for idols, and from their invention comes corruption of life. {14:13} For they neither existed from the beginning, nor will they exist forever. {14:14} For by the great emptiness of men they came into the world, and therefore their end is soon discovered. {14:15} For a father, embittered with the suffering of grief, made an image of his son, who had been suddenly taken away from him, and then, he who had died as a man, now begins to be worshiped as if a god, and so rites and sacrifices are established among his servants. {14:16} Then, in the course of time, iniquity gains strength within this erroneous custom, so that this error has been observed as if it were a law, and this figment has been worshiped at the command of tyrants. {14:17} And those, whom men could not openly honor because they were far off, a likeness of them was carried from far off, and from it they made a similar image of the king that they wanted to honor, so that, by their solicitude, they might worship he who was absent, just as if he were present. {14:18} Yet, it passes into their care, and those whom they did not know, they love because of the excellence of the artist. {14:19} For he, wishing to please the one who hired him, embellished his art, so as to fashion a better likeness. {14:20} But the multitude of men, brought together by the beauty of the work, now considered him to be a god, whom they had formerly honored as a man. {14:21} And this was the deception of human life: that men, serving either their own inclination or their kings, assigned the unutterable name to stones and wood. {14:22} And it was not enough for them to go astray concerning the knowledge of God, but also, while living in a great war of ignorance, they call so many and such great evils 'peace.' {14:23} For either they sacrifice their own sons, or they make dark sacrifices, or they hold vigils full of madness, {14:24} so that now they neither protect life, nor preserve a clean marriage, but one kills another through envy, or grieves him by adultery. {14:25} And all things are mixed together: blood, murder, theft and fraud, corruption and infidelity, disturbances and perjury, disorder within good things, {14:26} forgetfulness of God, pollution of souls, alteration of procreation, inconstancy of marriage, unnatural adultery and homosexuality. {14:27} For the worship of unspeakable idols is the cause, and the beginning and the end, of all evil. {14:28} For they either act with madness while happy, or they insistently speak wild lies, or they live unjustly, or they are quick to commit perjury. {14:29} For, while they trust in idols, which are without a soul, vowing evil, they hope not to be harmed themselves. {14:30} Therefore, from both sides it will fittingly happen, because they have thought evil of God, paying attention to idols, and because they have sworn unjustly, in guile despising justice. {14:31} For swearing is not virtue, but sinning always comes around to a punishment according to the transgression of the unjust.

[Wisdom 15] {15:1} But you, our God, are gracious and true, patient, and in mercy ordering all things. {15:2} And, indeed, if we sin, we are yours, knowing your greatness; and, if we do not sin, we know that we are counted with you. {15:3} For to have known you is perfect justice, and to know justice and your virtue is the root of immortality. {15:4} For the skillful planning of evil men has not led us into error, nor the shadow of a picture, a fruitless labor, an image having been sculpted through the use of diverse colors, {15:5} the sight of which gives desire to the foolish, and he loves the likeness of a lifeless image without a soul. {15:6} Deserving are the lovers of evil, those who hope in such things, and those who make them, and those who love them, and those who promote them. {15:7} But even the potter, pressing laboriously, molds the soft earth into vessels, each one for our use. And from the same clay he molds vessels, those which are for clean use, and similarly, those which are for the opposite. But, as to what is the use of a vessel, the potter is the judge. {15:8} And with effort he molds an empty god of the same clay, he who a little before had been made from the earth, and, after brief time, he himself returns from whence he came, to be claimed by he who holds the debt of his soul. {15:9} Yet his concern is, not what his work will be, nor that his life is short, but that he is being contested by those who work with gold and silver, yet he also does the same to those who work with copper, and he glories that he makes worthless things. {15:10} For his heart is ashes, and his hope is worthless dirt, and his life is more common than clay, {15:11} because he ignores the One who molded him, and who instilled in him a working soul, and who breathed into him a living spirit. {15:12} Yet they even considered our life to be a plaything, and the usefulness of life to be the accumulation of wealth, and that we must be acquiring things in every possible way, even from evil. {15:13} For, above all else, he knows himself to be lacking, who, from fragile material of the earth forms vessels and graven images. {15:14} For all the foolish and unhappy, in charge of the way of the arrogant soul, are enemies of your people and rule over them, {15:15} because they have esteemed all the idols of the nations as gods, which neither have the use of eyes to see, nor noses to draw breath, nor ears to hear, nor the fingers of hands to grasp, and even their feet are slow to walk. {15:16} For man made them, and he who borrowed his own breath, formed them. For no man will be able to form God in the likeness of himself. {15:17} For, being mortal, he forms a dead thing with his unjust hands. Yet, he is better than those things that he worships, because he indeed has lived, though he is mortal, but they never have. {15:18} Moreover, they worship the most miserable animals, for, to make a foolish comparison, these others are worse. {15:19} But not even from their appearance can anyone discern anything good in these animals. Yet they have fled from the praise of God, and from his blessing.

[Wisdom 16] {16:1} Because of this, and by means of things similar to these, they were allowed to endure fittings torturers, and they were exterminated by a multitude of beasts. {16:2} Instead of these torments, you administered your people kindly, giving them a desire for a new taste from your delights, and preparing quails for their food, {16:3} so that, even those desiring food, because of those things which were sent and revealed to them, were now turned away from a necessary desire. Yet these, after a brief time, having become weak, tasted a new food. {16:4} For it was necessary, though they are without excuse, for them to unexpectedly come upon the ruin of exercising tyranny, yet this was as if to show them how their enemies were being exterminated. {16:5} And so, when fierce beasts overcame them in anger, they were exterminated by the bites of perverse snakes. {16:6} But your anger did not continue forever, though they were troubled for a short time for their correction, they have a sign of salvation as a remembrance of the commandment of your law. {16:7} For he who turned to it was not healed by what he saw, but by you, the Savior of all. {16:8} Yet in this you revealed to our enemies that you are he who delivers from all evil. {16:9} For they were killed by the biting of locusts and flies, and there was found no remedy for their life, because they deserved to be destroyed by such things. {16:10} But not even the teeth of venomous serpents conquered your sons, for your mercy came to them and healed them. {16:11} For, in remembrance of your words, they were examined and were quickly saved, for forgetfulness is not engraved into your altar so that they would be unable to obtain your help. {16:12} And, indeed, neither an herb, nor a poultice, healed them, but your word, O Lord, which heals all. {16:13} For it is you, O Lord, who holds the power of life and death; you both lead to the threshold of death and you restore. {16:14} Yet man, indeed, kills his own soul through malice, and when his spirit goes forth, it will not be returned, nor will he call back his soul when it has been received. {16:15} But it is impossible to escape your hand. {16:16} For the impious, having refused to know you, have been scourged by the strength of your arm, enduring persecution by unusual waters, and by hailstorms, and by rain storms, and being consumed by fire. {16:17} For there was something extraordinary in water, which extinguishes all things; it has prevailed more than fire; for the world is the defender of the just. {16:18} Indeed, at a certain time, the fire was subdued, so as not to burn away the animals, which were sent against the impious; and so that, in seeing this, they might know that they are suffering persecution by the judgment of God. {16:19} And, at another time, fire burned, beyond its own power, in the midst of water, and it flared up from all around, so as to destroy the nations of an unjust land. {16:20} Instead of these things, you nourished your people with the food of angels, and, having prepared bread from heaven, you served them without labor that which holds within itself every delight and the sweetness of every flavor. {16:21} For your nature showed your sweetness, which you hold within your angels, and, having prepared bread from heaven, you served them without labor that which holds within itself every delight and the sweetness of every flavor. {16:22} But snow and ice held back the strength of fire, and did not melt, so that they might know that fire, burning in the hail and flashing in the rain, destroyed the fruits of the enemies. {16:23} Yet it was also the case, so that the just might be nourished, that fire had even been deprived of its own power. {16:24} For the creature serving you, the Creator, grows red hot in the midst of the conflict against the unjust, and yet it subsides for the benefit of those who trust in you. {16:25} Because of this, and that at time, having been transfigured in all things, your grace was diligently serving as the nursemaid of all things, according to the will of those who long for you. {16:26} So that your sons, whom you loved, O Lord, might know that it is not the fruits of nature which feed men, but your word, which preserves those who believe in you. {16:27} For that which could not be destroyed by fire, was immediately melted when warmed by a few rays of the sun, {16:28} so that it might be clear to all that it is right to come before the sun to bless you, and to adore you at the dawning of the light. {16:29} For the hope of the ungrateful will melt away like the winter’s ice and will disperse like overflowing water.

[Wisdom 17] {17:1} For your judgments, O Lord, are great, and your words are indescribable. Therefore, undisciplined souls have wandered astray. {17:2} For, while they managed to convince the unjust, so as to obtain dominion over the holy nation, they themselves were fettered with chains of darkness and of endless night, enclosed in their houses, fugitives of everlasting providence, lying in ruins. {17:3} And, while they thought to escape notice in their secret sins, they were scattered under a dark veil of oblivion, being horribly afraid, and having been disturbed with great astonishment.
{17:4} For neither did the cage which enclosed them preserve them from fear, because descending noises disturbed them, and the sorrowful persons appearing to them intensified their fear. {17:5} And, indeed, even fire had no strength to provide them light, nor could the clear flames of the stars illuminate that horrible night. {17:6} Yet there appeared to them a sudden fire, filled with fear; and, having been struck with the fear of that face which is unseen, they considered those things which they did see to be worse, {17:7} and, having been ridiculed, the illusions were removed from their arts along with their contemptuous rebuke of glorious wisdom.
{17:8} Indeed, those who promised to drive away fears and disturbances from a languishing soul, though they were filled with derision, were themselves languishing in fear.
{17:9} And, even if nothing unnatural disturbed them, yet being agitated by the passing of animals and the hissing of snakes, they died of fear, denying what they themselves saw even in the air, which no one thinks to be able to escape.
{17:10} For, while there may be apprehension with wickedness, it gives testimony to condemnation, for a troubled conscience always forecasts harshness. {17:11} For fear is nothing else but unfaithfulness to thinking helpful things. {17:12} And, while expectation is driven from within, the cause of this is supposing that one is great in knowledge, and as a result, conflict excels. {17:13} Yet those who were truly powerless that night, being overcome by both the vilest and the deepest hell, were sleeping the same sleep, {17:14} sometimes stirred up by the fear of unnatural things, other times sinking down in disgrace of soul, for a sudden and unexpected fear overcame them. {17:15} Then, if any among them had fallen away, he was kept in a prison without bars which had been left open. {17:16} For if a farmer, or a shepherd, or a worker in a field of labor were suddenly overcome, he endured an inescapable necessity. {17:17} For they were all bound together with one chain of darkness. Or if there were a whistling wind, or the sweet sound of birds among the thick tree branches, or the force of water rushing excessively, {17:18} or the strong noise of rocks crashing down, or the scattering of playful animals having been seen, or the strong voice of bellowing beasts, or the resounding of the highest mountain echo, these things made them sink down because of fear. {17:19} For the whole world was enlightened with a clear light, and none were being hindered in their labors. {17:20} But then, the heavy night was placed over the sun for them, an image of that darkness which was about to overcome them. Yet they were more grievous to themselves than was the darkness.

[Wisdom 18] {18:1} But your saints were your greatest light, and they heard your voice, but did not see your form. And because they themselves did not also suffer the same things, they praised you greatly. {18:2} And those who were wounded before, gave thanks, because they were no longer being wounded, and because they had petitioned for this gift, that there would be this difference. {18:3} Because of this,
they had a burning column of fire as a guide on the unknown way, and you displayed a harmless sun of a good hospitality.
{18:4} The others, indeed, deserved to be deprived of the light and to endure a prison of darkness, who watched for an opportunity to imprison your sons, by whom the incorruptible light of the law was beginning to be given to future generations. {18:5} When they thought to kill the babes of the just, one son having been exposed and set free, to their disgrace, you took away a multitude of their sons and destroyed them all together in a mighty water. {18:6} For that night was known beforehand by our fathers, so that, knowing the truth of the oaths in which they had trusted, they might be more peaceful in their souls. {18:7} Yet your people received not only the salvation of the just, but also the destruction of the unjust. {18:8} For just as you wounded our adversaries, so also did you greatly esteem calling us forth.
{18:9} For the just children of goodness were secretly offering sacrifice, and in agreement they administered the law of justice, so that both good and bad would be able to receive justice, and so that you might now approve of their chanting to the father. {18:10} On the other hand, a dissimilar voice was resounding from the enemies, and a lamentable wailing was heard for the children who were being cried over.
{18:11} But the same punishment afflicted the servant with the master, and the common man endured the same as the king. {18:12} Therefore, all were the same, with one name for death, and the dead were innumerable. For neither were the living sufficient to bury the dead, because, with a single effort, their most illustrious nation was exterminated.
{18:13} For they would not believe anything because of the drugs; then truly, at the beginning, when the extermination of the firstborn happened, they pledged the people to belong to God. {18:14} For, when a quiet silence surrounded all things, and when the course of the night was passing the middle of its journey, {18:15} your almighty word from heaven leapt down from your royal throne, as a fierce warrior in the midst of the land of extermination, {18:16} as a sharp sword carrying your unfeigned authority, and standing, filled all things with death, and, standing on the earth, reached all the way up to touch heaven. {18:17} Then, incessant visions of nightmares disturbed them, and unexpected fears overcame them. {18:18} And another was thrown down elsewhere half-alive; and so, by means of that which was dying, the cause of death was revealed. {18:19} For the visions that disturbed them had forewarned of these things, lest they should perish and not know why they suffered these evils. {18:20} Yet, at that time, the trial of death touched even the just, and there was a disturbance of the multitude in the wilderness, but your wrath did not continue for long. {18:21} For a blameless man, prospering, is to be entreated for your people, bringing forth the shield of your service, through prayer and incense, making prayerful supplication, he withstands anger, and so establishes an end to the necessary difficulty, revealing that he is your servant. {18:22} Yet he outlasted the disturbance, not by virtue of the body, nor by force of arms, but, with a word, he subdued those who were troubling him, commemorating the oaths and covenant of the parents.
{18:23} For when they were now fallen down dead by heaps one upon another, he stood between them and cut off their attack, and he divided those who controlled the path to the living. {18:24} For, within the garment of shame which he held, the world was all together, and the great deeds of the parents were engraved on four orders of stones, and your majesty was engraved on the crown of his head. {18:25} Yet he who was exterminating yielded even to those he frightened. For one trial of wrath was sufficient.

[Wisdom 19] {19:1} But the impious, all the way to the very end, were overcome by anger without mercy. Indeed, he knew beforehand even their future. {19:2} Yet, seeing that they might have repented, so that they would be led by him and be sent forth with great concern, the just sought the impious, while regretting their deeds. {19:3} For, while the just were still holding grief in their hands and weeping at the tombs of the dead, these others took upon themselves another senseless thought, and they cast out the legislators and pursued them as if they were fugitives. {19:4} For a fitting necessity was leading them to this end, and they were losing the remembrance of those things which had happened, so that what was lacking in the sufferings of the conflict might be completed by the punishment, {19:5} and so that your people, indeed, might wonderfully pass through, but these others might find a new death. {19:6} For every creature according to its kind was fashioned again as from the beginning, diligently serving your teachings, so that your children would be preserved unharmed. {19:7} For a cloud overshadowed their camp, and where water was before, dry land appeared, and in the Red Sea, a way without hindrance, and out of the great deep, a level field sprung up, {19:8} through which the whole nation passed, protected by your hand, seeing your miracles and wonders. {19:9} For they consumed food like horses, and they leapt about like lambs, praising you, O Lord, who had freed them. {19:10} For they were still mindful of those things which had happened during the time of their sojourn, how, instead cattle, the earth brought forth flies, and instead of fish, the river cast up a multitude of frogs. {19:11} And, lastly, they saw a new kind of bird, when, being led by their desire, they demanded a feast of meat. {19:12} For, to console their loss, the quail came up to them from the sea, and yet troubles overcame the sinners, though they were not without the evidence of what had happened before by the power of lightning, for they suffered justly according to their own wickedness. {19:13} And indeed, they set up a more detestable inhospitality. Certainly, some have refused to receive unknown foreigners, but these others were drafting good guests into servitude, {19:14} and not only foreigners, but also those who had been under their care, because they were reluctantly sheltering the outsiders. {19:15} Yet whoever had sheltered them with gladness, by making use of the very same justice, they afflicted with the most severe sorrow. {19:16} Yet they were struck with blindness, like someone brought before the gates of justice, so that they were suddenly covered with darkness, and each one was left searching for the threshold of his front door. {19:17} For the elements in themselves are in the process of being changed, just as when the sound of a musical instrument is being altered in quality, yet each one keeps its own sound, from where it is considered to be and according to its fixed appearance. {19:18} For the countryside was transformed by water, and things which were swimming, crossed over the land. {19:19} Fire prevailed in the midst of water, beyond its own power, and the water forgot its quenching nature. {19:20} On the other hand, the flames did not trouble the bodies of the mortal animals walking around, nor did they melt that good food, which is as easily melted as ice. For in all things, O Lord, you magnified your people, and honored them, and did not despise them, but at every time and in every place, you assisted them.

The Book of Ecclesiasticus

The Wisdom of Jesus, the son of Sirach

[Sirach Prologue] {P:1} The wisdom of many great things has been revealed to us through the law and the prophets, and the other books that followed these. Concerning these things, Israel ought to be praised, because of doctrine and wisdom. For it is necessary, not only for those who are speaking, but even for outsiders, to be skillful, both in speaking and in writing, so as to become very learned. {P:2} My grandfather Jesus, after he gave himself fully to a diligent reading of the law, and the prophets, and the other books that were handed down to us by our ancestors, also wanted to write something himself, about the things that pertain to doctrine and wisdom, so that those who desire to learn and to become skillful in these things would be more and more attentive in mind, and would be strengthened to live according to the law. {P:3} And so, I exhort you to approach with benevolence, and to perform the reading with attentive study, and to be forbearing in these things when we may seem, while pursuing the image of wisdom, to fall short in the composition of words. {P:4} For the Hebrew words are deficient when they have been translated into another language. {P:5} And not only these words, but also the law itself, and the prophets, and the remainder of the books, have no small difference from when they have been spoken in their own language. {P:6} For in the time of king Ptolemy Euergetes, in the thirty-eighth year after I had arrived in Egypt, after I had been there for a long time, I found, left behind there, books with a doctrine neither small nor contemptible. {P:7} And so I considered it to be both good and necessary for me to apply some significant diligence and labor in order to translate this book. {P:8} Then, after much attentiveness to doctrine over a length of time, I brought to a close the things being considered, so as to offer this book for those who are willing to apply their mind and to learn how they ought to conduct their way of life, {P:9} for those who have decided to form their life in accord with the law of the Lord.

[Sirach 1] {1:1} All wisdom is from the Lord God, and has always been with him, and is before all time. {1:2} Who has numbered the sand of the sea, and the drops of the rain, and the days of the world? Who has measured the height of heaven, and the breadth of the earth, and the depth of the abyss? {1:3} Who has examined the wisdom of God, which precedes all things? {1:4} Wisdom was created before all things, and the understanding of prudence is before all time. {1:5} The Word of God on high is the source of wisdom, whose steps are eternal commandments. {1:6} To whom has the root of wisdom been revealed, and who has recognized her astuteness? {1:7} To whom has the discipline of wisdom been revealed and made manifest? And who has understood the multiplicity of her steps? {1:8} The most high omnipotent Creator is One, and he is the mighty King, and he is exceedingly to be feared, sitting upon his throne, and he is the sovereign God. {1:9} He created wisdom through the Holy Spirit, and he saw her, and numbered her, and measured her. {1:10} And he poured her over all his works, and over all flesh, to the extent of his favor, and he has offered her to those who love him. {1:11} The fear of the Lord is glory, and honor, and rejoicing, and a crown of exultation. {1:12} The fear of the Lord will delight the heart, and will give joy and gladness and length of days. {1:13} It will be well, in the very end, for him who fears the Lord, and on the day that he passes away, he will be blessed. {1:14} The love of God is honorable wisdom. {1:15} And those to whom she will appear for their consideration love her because of what they see and know of her great works. {1:16} The fear of the Lord is the beginning of wisdom, and was created with the faithful in the womb, and walks with elect women, and is known by the just and the faithful. {1:17} The fear of the Lord is the sanctity of knowledge. {1:18} Sanctity will guard and justify the heart, and will bestow happiness and joy. {1:19} It will be well with him who fears the Lord, and at the consummation of his days, he will be blessed. {1:20} To fear God is the fullness of wisdom, and it is a fullness from its fruits. {1:21} She will fill her entire house from her offspring, and storehouses from her treasures. {1:22} The fear of the Lord is the crown of wisdom, the completion of peace, and the fruit of salvation. {1:23} And the fear of the Lord has seen and numbered wisdom; but both are gifts of God. {1:24} Wisdom will distribute knowledge and an understanding of prudence; and she lifts up the glory of those who hold to her. {1:25} The root of wisdom is to fear the Lord, and its branches are long-lived. {1:26} In the treasures of wisdom is understanding and the sanctity of knowledge. But to sinners, wisdom is an abomination. {1:27} The fear of the Lord expels sin. {1:28} For he who is without fear is not able to be justified. For the disposition of his spirit is his undoing. {1:29} Those who are patient will suffer for a brief time, and afterwards, happiness will return. {1:30} A noble mind will hide his words for a brief time, and then the lips of many will declare his understanding. {1:31} Among the treasures of wisdom is the outward sign of discipline. {1:32} But to those who sin, the worship of God is an abomination. {1:33} Son, if you desire wisdom, observe justice, and then God will offer her to you. {1:34} For the fear of the Lord is wisdom and discipline. {1:35} And what pleases him is faith and meekness. And so shall he complete his treasures. {1:36} You should not be incredulous to the fear of the Lord. And you should not draw close to him with a duplicitous heart. {1:37} You should not be a hypocrite in the sight of men. And you should not scandalize with your lips. {1:38} Attend to these things, otherwise you may fall and bring dishonor to your soul. {1:39} And then God may uncover your secrets, and he may cast you down forcefully in the midst of the congregation. {1:40} For you drew near to the Lord wickedly, and your heart was filled with deceit and falseness. [Sirach 2] {2:1} Son, when you apply yourself to the service of God, stand in justice and in fear, and prepare your soul for temptation. {2:2} Humble your heart, and persevere. Incline your ear, and accept words of understanding. And you should not hurry away in the time of distress. {2:3} Endure steadfastly for God. Join yourself to God, and persevere, so that your life may increase in the very end. {2:4} Accept everything that will happened to you, and persevere in your sorrow, and have patience in your humiliation. {2:5} For [Sirach 3] {3:1} The sons of wisdom are the Church of the just: and their generation is obedience and love. {3:2} Sons, listen to the judgment of your father, and act accordingly, so that you may be saved. {3:3} For God has honored the father in the sons, and, when seeking the judgment of the mother, he has confirmed it in the children. {3:4} He who loves God will plead with him on behalf of sins, and will keep himself away from sin, and will be heeded in the prayers of his days. {3:5} And, like one who stores up treasure, so also is he who honors his mother. {3:6} He who honors his father will find happiness in his own children, and he will be heeded in the day of his prayer. {3:7} He who honors his father will live a long life. And he who obeys his father will be a refreshment to his mother. {3:8} He who fears the Lord honors his parents, and he will serve them as masters, for it is they who conceived him. {3:9} In word and deed, and in all things, honor your father with patience, {3:10} so that a blessing may come to you from him, and so that his blessing may remain to the very end. {3:11} The blessing of the father strengthens the houses of the sons; but the curse of the mother uproots even its foundation. {3:12} Do not boast in the disgrace of your father; for his shame is not your glory. {3:13} For the glory of a man is from the honor of his father, and a father without honor is a discredit to the son. {3:14} Son, support your father in his old age, and do not

1 Son, you should not cheat the poor out of alms, nor should you avert your eyes from a poor man.
2 You should not despise the hungry soul, and you should not aggravate a poor man in his need.
3 You should not afflic the heart of the needy, and you should not delay an offer to someone in anguish.
4 You should not make requests of one who is greatly troubled, and you should not avert your face from the indigent.
5 You should not avert your eyes from the needy out of anger. And you should not abandon those who seek help from you, so that they speak curses behind your back.
6 For the pleadings of him who speaks curses of you, in the bitterness of his soul, will be heeded. For the One who made him will heed him.
7 Make yourself a friend to the congregation of the poor, and humble your soul before an elder, and humble your head before the great.
8 Turn your ear without sadness toward the poor, and repay your debt, and respond to him peacefully in meekness.
9 Free him who suffers injury at the hand of the arrogant, and do not carry animosity in your soul.
10 In judging, be merciful to the orphan, like a father, and be merciful to their mother, like a husband.
11 And then you shall be like an obedient son of the Most High, and he will take pity on you more than a mother would.
12 Wisdom breathes life into her sons, and she lifts up those who are seeking her, and she will precede them in the way of justice.
13 And he who loves her loves life. And those who watch for her shall embrace her delights.
14 Those who hold to her will inherit life. And whatever place she enters, God will bless.
15 Those who serve her will yield to what is holy. And God loves those who love wisdom.
16 He who listens to her shall judge the nations. And he who gazes upon her will remain secure.
17 If he believes in her, he will inherit her, and whatever arises from him will be confirmed.
18 For she walks with him through temptation, and she chooses him from the beginning.
19 She will lead fear and dread and trials over him, and she will crucify him with the tribulation of her doctrine, until she has testified him in his thoughts and she can trust in his soul.
20 And then she will strengthen him, and lead him along a straight path, and rejoice in him.
21 And she will disclose her secrets to him, and she will store up treasure, of the knowledge and understanding of justice, in him.
22 But if he has wandered astray, she will leave him behind, and she will deliver him into the hands of his enemy.
23 Son, be continually observant, and keep away from evil.
24 For the sake of your soul, you should not be ashamed to speak the truth.
25 For there is a shame that brings sin, and there is a shame that brings glory and grace.
26 You should not accept a face contrary to your own face, nor should you accept a lie contrary to your own soul.
27 You should not enjoy the fall of your neighbor.
28 Neither should you withhold words at an opportunity for salvation. You should not conceal your wisdom in her beauty.
29 For wisdom is discerned within speech. And understanding and knowledge and doctrine are discerned in the words of those who understand and by their steadfastness in the works of justice.
30 You should not contradict a word of truth in any way. Otherwise, by a falsehood born of ignorance, you will be confounded.
31 You should not be ashamed to confess your sins, but do not subject yourself to any man because of sin.
32 Do not choose to stand against the face of the powerful, for you should not strive against the current of the river.
33 Suffer for justice, on behalf of your soul, and struggle, even unto death, on behalf of justice, and God will fight against your enemies on your behalf.
34 Do not choose to be quick with your words, but choose to be like a lion in your house, distressing those of your household, and oppressing those who are subject to you.
35 Do not let your hand be open when receiving, but closed when giving.

Sirach 5

1 Do not choose to seek iniquitous possessions, and you should not say: “I have all I need in life.” For it will be of no benefit to you in the time of retribution and darkness.
2 You should not pursue, in your strength, the desires of your heart.
3 And you should not say: “How powerful am I?” or, “Who will cast me down because of my deeds?” For God will vindicate with vengeance.
4 You should not say, “I sinned, and what grief has befallen me?” For the Most High is a patient recompenser.
5 Do not be willing to be without fear concerning a forgiven sin, and you should not add sin upon sin. {5:6} And you should not say: “The compassion of the Lord is great; he will take pity on the multitude of my sins.” {5:7} For both mercy and wrath go forth quickly from him, and his wrath sets its gaze upon sinners. {5:8} You should not delay being converted to the Lord, and you should not set it aside from day to day. {5:9} For his wrath will approach suddenly, and in the time of vindication, he will destroy you. {5:10} Do not choose to be anxious for unjust wealth. For these things will not benefit you in the day of darkness and retribution. {5:11} You should not winnow in every wind, and you should not go forth into every path. For so is every sinner proven by his duplicitous tongue. {5:12} Be steadfast in the way of the Lord and in the truth of your understanding and knowledge, and let words of peace and justice overtake you. {5:13} Be meek when listening to a word, so that you may understand. And offer a true response in wisdom. {5:14} If you understand, then answer your neighbor. But if you do not, then let your hand be over your mouth, so that you are not caught by an inapt word, and then confounded. {5:15} Honor and glory are in the words of those who understand, yet truly, the tongue of the imprudent man is his undoing. {5:16} You should not be called a whisperer, and you should not be caught by your own tongue, and then confounded. {5:17} For confusion and remorse is upon a thief, and a wicked mark is upon the double-tongued; but for the whisperer, there is hatred and animosity and disgrace. {5:18} Justify the small and the great similarly.

[Sirach 6] {6:1} Do not be willing to become an enemy instead of a friend to your neighbor. For an evil man will inherit reproach and disgrace, as will every sinner who is envious and double-tongued. {6:2} You should not extol yourself, like a bull, in the thoughts of your soul, lest perhaps your strength may be cast down through foolishness, {6:3} which would consume your leaves, and destroy your fruit, and leave you behind like a dry tree in the desert. {6:4} For a wicked soul will destroy the one who has it. For it gladly provides enemies to him, and it will lead him to the fate of the impious. {6:5} A sweet word multiplies friends and mitigates enemies. And thankful words abound in a good man. {6:6} Allow many to be at peace with you, but allow one out of a thousand to be your counselor. {6:7} If you would obtain a friend, test him before you accept him, and do not trust him readily. {6:8} For there is a friend according to his own time, but he will not remain in the day of tribulation. {6:9} And there is a friend who can be turned to animosity. And there is a friend who will reveal hatred and ridicule and insults. {6:10} And there is a friend who is a companion at table, but he will not remain in a day of need. {6:11} A friend, if he remains steadfast, will be to you as you are to yourself, and he will act with faithfulness among those of your household. {6:12} If he humbles himself before you and hides himself from your face, you shall have a noble and harmonious friendship. {6:13} Distance yourself from your enemies, and pay attention to your friends. {6:14} A faithful friend is a strong shelter, and whoever has found one has found a treasure. {6:15} Nothing is comparable to a faithful friend, and no weight of silver or gold is worth more than the goodness of his fidelity. {6:16} A faithful friend is a medicine for life and immortality; and those who fear the Lord will find one. {6:17} He who fears God will have a similar good friendship, because his friend will be like him. {6:18} Son, from your youth receive instruction, and then you will find wisdom, even to your grey hairs. {6:19} Approach wisdom like one who plows and sows, and then wait for her good fruits. {6:20} For in doing her work, you will labor a little, but you will soon eat from her produce. {6:21} How exceedingly harsh is wisdom to unlearned men! And so, the witless will not remain with her. {6:22} She will be to them like a great stone of trial, and they will cast her away from them without delay. {6:23} For the wisdom of doctrine is in accord with her name, and she is not manifest to many. But she continues with those by whom she is recognized, even in the sight of God. {6:24} Listen, son, and accept an understanding counsel, for you should not discard my advice. {6:25} Set your feet in her fetters and your neck in her chains. {6:26} Incline your shoulder, and carry her, for you will not be grieved by her bindings. {6:27} Approach her with all your soul, and serve her ways with all your strength. {6:28} Examine her, and she will be revealed to you, and when you have obtained her, you should not abandon her. {6:29} For, in the very end, you will find rest in her, and she will turn into your delight. {6:30} Then her fetters will be a strong protection and a firm foundation for you, and her chains will be a robe of glory. {6:31} For in her is the beauty of life, and her bindings are a healing bandage. {6:32} You will be clothed with her as with a robe of glory, and you will set her upon your head like a crown of rejoicing. {6:33} Son, if you heed me, you will learn. And if you adapt your mind, you will be wise. {6:34} If you incline your ear, you will receive doctrine. And if you love to listen, you will be wise. {6:35} Stand among the multitude of prudent elders, and join yourself to their wisdom from the heart, so that you may be able to hear every discourse about God, and so that the proverbs of praise may not flee from you. {6:36} And if you see a man of understanding, stand watch for him, and let your feet wear down the steps of his doors. {6:37} Set your thoughts on the precepts of God, and be entirely constant in his commandments. And he himself will give a heart to you, and the desire of wisdom will be given to you.

[Sirach 7] {7:1} Do not choose to do evil, and evil will not take hold of you. {7:2} Withdraw from the iniquitous, and evil will withdraw from you. {7:3} Son, do not sow evil in the furrows of injustice, and you will not reap them sevenfold. {7:4} Do not seek a role of leadership from the Lord, and do not seek a seat of honor from the king. {7:5} You should not justify yourself before God, for he is the Knower of hearts. And by no means should you wish to seem wise before the king. {7:6} Do not seek to become a judge, unless you have sufficient strength to shatter iniquities. Otherwise, you might fear the face of the powerful, and so establish a scandal within your integrity. {7:7} You should not sin against the multitude of a city, nor should you cast yourself against the people. {7:8} And you should not bind two sins together. For even in one sin, you will not go unpunished. {7:9} Do not be cowardly in your soul. {7:10} You should not be unwilling to beg, nor to give alms. {7:11} You should not say: “God will look with favor on the multitude of my gifts, and when I make an offering to the most high God, he will accept my gift.” {7:12} You should not ridicule a man in bitterness of soul. For there is One who humbles and who exalts: the all-seeing God. {7:13} Do not love a lie against your brother, nor should you act the same toward your friend. {7:14} Do not be willing to devise a lie of any kind. For the practice of lying is not good. {7:15} Do not choose to be verbose among a multitude of elders, and you should not repeat the words of your prayers. {7:16} You should not hate laborious works, nor the rustic life created by the Most High. {7:17} You should not consider yourself to be among the multitude of the undisciplined. {7:18} Remember wrath. For it will not be delayed. {7:19} Humble your spirit greatly. For the retribution against the flesh of the impious is with fire and worms. {7:20} Do not betray your friend for the sake of money, and you should not spurn your dearest brother for the sake of gold. {7:21} Do not choose to depart from a good and understanding wife, whom you have been allotted in the fear of the Lord. For the grace of her modesty is above gold. {7:22} You should not harm the servant whose works are honest, nor the hired hand who entrusts his life to you. {7:23} Let an understanding servant be loved by you like your own soul. You should not cheat him out of freedom, nor abandon him to destitution. {7:24} Are cattle yours? Tend to them. And if they are useful, let them remain with you. {7:25} Are sons yours? Instruct them, and bow them down from their childhood. {7:26} Are daughters yours? Watch over their bodies. And you should not display a light-hearted attitude toward them. {7:27} Give your daughter in marriage, and give her to an understanding man, and you will be doing a great work. {7:28} If a wife in accord with your soul is yours, you should not reject her. But do not entrust yourself to her who is hateful. {7:29} With your whole heart, honor your father. And you should not forget the complaints of your mother. {7:30} Remember that you would not have been born except through them. And so, give back to them as they also have done for you. {7:31} With all your soul, fear the Lord, and consider his priests to be holy. {7:32} With all your strength, love him who made you, and you should not abandon his ministers. {7:33} Honor God from your whole soul, and confer honor on the priests, and continue to purify yourself with your strength. {7:34} Give them their portion, just as it has been commanded of you, from the first-fruits and from the purifications. And for your ignorant offenses, purify yourself with a smaller offering. {7:35} You should offer to the Lord the gift of your strength, and the sacrifice of sanctification, and the first-fruits of what is holy. {7:36} And reach out your hand to the poor, so that your atonement and your blessing may be perfected. {7:37} A gift has grace in the sight of all the living, but you should not prohibit grace for the dead. {7:38} You should not fail to console those who are weeping, nor to walk with those who are mourning. {7:39} Do not let yourself be slow to visit the sick. For in this way, you will be confirmed in love. {7:40} In all your works, remember your very end, and so you will not sin, unto eternity.

[Sirach 8] [8:1] You should not quarrel with a powerful man, lest perhaps you may fall into his hands. [8:2] You should not contend with a wealthy man, lest perhaps he may bring an action against you. [8:3] For gold and silver have destroyed many, and have reached and corrupted even the hearts of kings. [8:4] You should not quarrel with a man who is full of words, for you should not cast wood upon his fire. [8:5] You should not confide in an ignorant man, lest he speak evil about your family. [8:6] You should not despise a man who turns himself away from sin, nor reproach him with it. Remember that we are all subject to correction. [8:7] You should not spurn a man in his old age. For we are all subject to growing old. [8:8] Do not be willing to rejoice at the death of your enemy, knowing that we all die, and that we do not want others rejoice over us. [8:9] You should not despise the discourse of those who are old and wise; instead, ponder their proverbs. [8:10] For from them, you will learn wisdom and intelligent doctrine, so as to serve great men without blame. [8:11] Do not allow the discourse of your elders to pass you by. For they have learned from their fathers. [8:12] And from them, you will learn understanding, and you will learn what response to give in a time of necessity. [8:13] You should not kindle the coals of sinners by arguing with them. For you might be scorched by the flame from the fire of their sins. [8:14] You should not stand against the face of a contemptuous person, otherwise he may sit down as if waiting in ambush against your words. [8:15] You should not lend to a man who is stronger than you. But if you do lend, consider it lost. [8:16] You should not promise beyond your ability. But if you do promise, consider how to fulfill it. [8:17] You should not judge against a judge. For he judges according to what is just. [8:18] You should not go forth on the way with an audacious man, lest perhaps he may burden you with his evils. For he goes forth according to his own will, and you will perish with him in his folly. [8:19] You should not start a conflict with an angry man, and you should not go into the desert with an audacious man. For shedding blood is nothing to him, and in a place where there is no help for you, he will overthrow you. [8:20] You should not hold counsel with the foolish. For they are not able to love anything except what pleases them. [8:21] You should not take counsel in the sight of an outsider. For you do not know what he will do next. [8:22] You should not reveal your heart to every man, lest perhaps he may offer a false kindness to you, and then speak reproachfully about you.
toppled into perdition. {9:14} You should not abandon a old friend. For a new one will not be similar to him. {9:15} A new friend is like new wine. It will grow old, and then you will enjoy drinking it. {9:16} You should not envy the glory and wealth of a sinner. For you do not know what may be his undoing in the future. {9:17} The injury of the unjusht should not please you, knowing that, until they are in hell, the impious will not please. {9:18} Keep yourself far from a man having the power to kill, and then you will not have the fear of death suspended over you. {9:19} But if you do approach him, do nothing to offend, lest perhaps he may take away your life. {9:20} Know that this is a communion with death. For you would be entering the midst of snares, and walking upon the arms of the grieving. {9:21} According to your ability, be cautious of your neighbor, and treat him as the wise and prudent would. {9:22} Let just men be your companions, and let your glory be in the fear of God. {9:23} And let the thought of God be in your mind, and let all your discourse be on the precepts of the Most High. {9:24} Works will be praised for the hands of the artists, and a leader of the people will be praised for the wisdom of his words, yet truly, the word of the elders will be praised for its understanding. {9:25} A man full of words is a dread to his city, but one who speaks rashly will be hated for his word.

[Sirach 10] {10:1} A wise judge will judge his people, and the leadership of an understanding man will be steadfast. {10:2} As the judge of the people is, so also are his assistants. And whatever kind of man the ruler of a city is, of such a kind also are those who live in it. {10:3} A foolish king will be the ruin of his people. For cities will be inhabited through the understanding of those with power. {10:4} Power over the earth is in the hand of God, and, in due time, he will raise up a helpful leader over the earth. {10:5} The prosperity of a man is in the hand of God, and he will place his honor above the face of the scribe. {10:6} You should forget all injury done to you by your neighbor, and you should do nothing among the works of injury. {10:7} Arrogance is hateful in the sight of God and of men. And all iniquity among the nations is abominable. {10:8} A kingdom is transferred from one people to another because of injustices, and injuries, and contempt, and every kind of deceit. {10:9} But nothing is more wicked than a greedy man. Why should that which is earth and ashes be arrogant? {10:10} There is nothing more iniquitous than to love money. For such a one has sold even his own soul. For in his life, he casts aside his innermost being. {10:11} All power is of short life. A prolonged sickness is of grave concern to a physician. {10:12} A physician causes a sickness to be shortened. So also, a king is here today, and tomorrow he will die. {10:13} For when a man dies, he will inherit serpents, and wild beasts, and worms. {10:14} The beginning of the arroganance of man is apostasy from God. {10:15} For his heart has withdrawn from the One who made him. For arrogance is the beginning of all sin. Whoever holds to it, will be filled with evil words, and it will overthrow him in the end. {10:16} Because of this, the Lord has dishonored the gatherings of the evil, and he has destroyed them, even unto the end. {10:17} God has destroyed the seats of arrogant leaders, and he has caused the meek to be seated in their place. {10:18} The roots of arrogant nations, God has dried up, and the humble among these nations, he has planted. {10:19} The Lord has and he has lifted him up from his humiliation, and he has exalted his head. And many have wondered at him, and they have honored God. {11:14} Good things and misfortune, life and death, poverty and wealth, are from God. {11:15} Wisdom, and discipline, and knowledge of the law are with God. Love and the ways of good things are with him. {11:16} Error and darkness have been created by sinners. And those who exult in evil, grow old in evil. {11:17} The gift of God remains with the just man, and his advancement will have success unto eternity. {11:18} There is one who is enriched by spending sparingly, and this is the extent of his reward. {11:19} About this, he says: “I have found rest for myself, and now I alone will eat from my goods.” {11:20} But he does not know how much time will pass before death approaches, and then he must leave everything behind to others and die. {11:21} Stand fast in your covenant, and become familiar with it, and grow old in the work of your commandments. {11:22} You should not spend time in the works of sinners. Instead, trust in God and remain in your own place. {11:23} For it is easy, in the eyes of God, to make a pauper suddenly rich. {11:24} The blessing of God hurries to reward the just man, and in a fleeting hour his advancement bears fruit. {11:25} You should not say: “What do I need?” or, “What good will there be for me in this?” {11:26} You should not say: “I have enough for myself,” or, “What could be worse than this?” {11:27} In a day of good things, you should not be forgetful of misfortunes. And in a day of misfortunes, you should not be forgetful of good things. {11:28} For it is easy, in the sight of God, on the day of one’s passing, to repay each one according to his ways. {11:29} The affliction of an hour causes one to forget great delights, and in the end of a man is the uncovering of his works. {11:30} You should not praise any man before death. For a man is known by his children. {11:31} You should not bring every man into your house. For many are the snares of the deceitful. {11:32} For as a stomach with a bad smell vomits, and as a partridge is led into a cage, and like a deer led into a snare, so also is the heart of the arrogant. And it is like a bystander watching his neighbor fall. {11:33} For it lies in ambush, and then turns good into evil, and it will place the blame on the elect. {11:34} From one spark, a great fire grows; and from one deceitful man, much blood flows. But a very sinful man lies in ambush for blood. {11:35} Pay close attention to yourself before a harmful man, for he fabricates evils. Otherwise, he may lead over you a whispered reproach unceasingly. {11:36} Receive a stranger to yourself, and he will overthrow you with a whirlwind, and he will alienate you from what is your very own.

[Sirach 12] {12:1} If you do good, know to whom you do it, and there will be many thanks for your good deeds. {12:2} Do good to the just, and you will find great recompense, and if not from him, certainly from the Lord. {12:3} For there is no good for someone who is always occupied in evil, or who does not give alms. For the Most High holds hatred for sinners, but he takes pity on the repentant. {12:4} Give to the merciful, and you should not assist the sinner. For the impious and the sinner will be repaid with the vengeance being held for them on the day of retribution. {12:5} Give to the good, but you should not receive from a sinner. {12:6} Do good to the humble, but you should not give to the impious; withhold your bread, do not give it to him, otherwise he may overpower you with it. {12:7} For you will find twice the evil for all the good you will have done to him. For the Most High also holds hatred for sinners, and he will repay vengeance to the impious. {12:8} A friend will not be known in good times, and an enemy will not be hidden in adversity. {12:9} By the good fortune of a man, his enemies are grieved; and by his misfortune, a friend is revealed. {12:10} You should never trust your enemy. For his wickedness rusts like a brass pot. {12:11} And if he humbles himself and goes about bowed down, increase your alertness and guard yourself from him. {12:12} You should not sit down anywhere near him, nor should you allow him to sit at your right hand, lest perhaps he may turn toward your place, and seek your seat, and then, in the very end, you would understand my words and be stung by my sermon. {12:13} Who will take pity on an enchanter struck by a serpent, or on someone who draws near to wild beasts? And so it is with one who keeps company with an iniquitous man and is involved in his sins. {12:14} For one hour, he will abide with you. But if you begin to turn aside, he will not permit it. {12:15} An enemy speaks sweetly with his lips, but in his heart, he waits in ambush, so that he may throw you into a pit. {12:16} An enemy has tears in his eyes. But if he finds an opportunity, he will not be satisfied with blood. {12:17} And if misfortunes happen upon you, you will find him there first. {12:18} An enemy has tears in his eyes, but while pretending to help you, he will dig under your feet. {12:19} He will shake his head, and clap his hands, and whisper much, and change his expression.

[Sirach 13] {13:1} Whoever touches pitch will be contaminated by it. And whoever associates with the arrogant will be clothed by arrogance. {13:2} Whoever associates with those more honorable than himself sets a burden on himself. And so, you should have no fellowship with someone who is wealthier than you. {13:3} What will the cooking pot have in common with the earthen vessel? And when they collide with one another, one will be broken. {13:4} The rich man has suffered no injustice, and yet he fumes. But the poor man, though he has been wounded, will remain silent. {13:5} If you are generous, he will take you up; and when you have nothing, he will cast you aside. {13:6} If you possess, he will feast with you, and he will empty you, and he will not grieve over you. {13:7} If he has need of you, he will deceive you; and while smiling, he will give you hope. He will converse with you pleasantly, and he will say: “What is it that you need?” {13:8} And he will impress you with his expression.

[Sirach 12] {12:1} If you do good, know to whom you do it, and there will be many thanks for your good deeds. {12:2} Do good to the just, and you will find great recompense, and if not from him, certainly from the Lord. {12:3} For there is no good for someone who is always occupied in evil, or who does not give alms. For the Most High holds hatred for sinners, but he takes pity on the repentant. {12:4} Give to the merciful, and you should not assist the sinner. For the impious and the sinner will be repaid with the vengeance being held for them on the day of retribution. {12:5} Give to the good, but you should not receive from a sinner. {12:6} Do good to the humble, but you should not give to the impious; withhold your bread, do not talking, he will probe you, and while smiling, he will question you about your secrets. {13:15} His cruel mind will store up your words; and he will not spare you from affliction, nor from prison. {13:16} Be cautious of yourself, and attend diligently to what you are hearing. For you are walking toward your own destruction. {13:17} Yet truly, while listening to these things, consider it as if it were a dream, and you will awaken. {13:18} Love God for your entire life, and call upon him for your salvation. {13:19} Every animal loves its own kind; so also every man loves those closest to himself. {13:20} All flesh will join with whatever is similar to itself, and every man will associate with whomever is similar to himself. {13:21} If a wolf would at any time have fellowship with a lamb, so also would a sinner have fellowship with the just. {13:22} What fellowship does a holy man have with a dog? Or what portion do the wealthy have with the poor? {13:23} In the desert, the wild donkey is the prey of the lion. So also are the poor the pasture of the rich. {13:24} And just as humility is an abomination to the arrogant, so also does the rich man abhor the poor man. {13:25} When a wealthy man has been shaken, he is strengthened by his friends. But when a lowly man has fallen, he is expelled even by those who know him well. {13:26} When a rich man has been deceived, many will help him recover; he has spoken arrogantly, and yet they justify him. {13:27} When a poor man has been deceived, in addition he is rebuked; he has spoken with understanding, and no place is given to him. {13:28} The rich man has spoken, and all remain silent, and they repeat his words, even to the clouds. {13:29} The poor man has spoken, and they say: “Who is this?” And if he stumbles, they will overthrow him. {13:30} Substance is good for him who has no sin on his conscience. And poverty is called very wicked by the mouth of the impious. {13:31} The heart of a man changes his face, either for better or for worse. {13:32} You will find, with difficulty and much labor, the sign of a good heart and a good face.

[Sirach 14] {14:1} Blessed is the man who has not slipped because of a word from his mouth, and who has not been stung by grief because of an offense. {14:2} Happy is he who does not have sadness in his mind, and who has not fallen away from his hope. {14:3} Substance is senseless for a greedy and stingy man. And what would a spiteful man do with gold? {14:4} Whoever acquires unjustly, according to his own mind, gathers for others. For another will spend his goods lavishly. {14:5} Whoever is wicked to himself, to whom will he be good? For he will not take enjoyment in his own goods. {14:6} Whoever has ill will toward himself, nothing is more worthless than he is. But such is the reward of his wickedness. {14:7} And if he does good, he does it ignorantly and unwillingly. And in the very end, he realizes his own malice. {14:8} The eye of the spiteful man is wicked, and he averts his face and despises his own soul. {14:9} The eye of the greedy man is insatiable in his portion of iniquity. He will not be satisfied until he has consumed his own soul, withering it away. {14:10} An evil eye is directed at evil things. And he will not be satisfied by bread; instead, he will be needy and grieving at his own table. {14:11} Son, if you have anything, do good to yourself, and offer worthy oblations to God. {14:12} Remember that death has not been delayed, and that the covenant of the grave has been revealed to you. For the covenant of this world will pass away in death. {14:13} Do good to your friend before you die. And according to your ability, extend your hand and give to the poor. {14:14} Do not cheat yourself out of a good day, and do not let the smallest good gift pass you by. {14:15} Should you not leave it to others to divide your sorrows and labors by lot? {14:16} Give, and receive, and justify your soul. {14:17} Before your passing, accomplish justice. For in death, there is no food to be found. {14:18} All flesh grows old like the grass, and like the foliage that springs forth from a green tree. {14:19} Some spring up, and others fall away. Such is the generation of flesh and blood. One is finished, and another is born. {14:20} Every corruptible work will fail in the end. And its worker will go with it. {14:21} But every excellent work will be justified. And whoever worked it will be honored by it. {14:22} Blessed is the man who will abide in wisdom, and who will meditate on her righteousness, and who, in his mind, will consider the circumspection of God. {14:23} He considers her ways in his heart, and he finds understanding in her secrets. He goes after her like an investigator, and he is constant in her ways. {14:24} He gazes through her windows, and he listens at her door. {14:25} He rests next to her house, and, fastening a peg in her walls, he sets up his cottage by her hands. And so, good things will find rest in his cottage as time passes. {14:26} He will station his sons under her covering, and he will abide under her branches. {14:27} He will be protected by her covering from the heat, and he will rest in her glory.

[Sirach 15] {15:1} Whoever fears God will do good. And whoever holds to justice will obtain it. {15:2} And like an honorable mother, she will meet him, and like a virgin bride, she will receive him. {15:3} She will feed him with the bread of life and understanding. And she give him to drink from the water of salvific wisdom. And she will be confirmed in him, and he will not waver. {15:4} And she will hold to him, and he will not be confounded. And she will exalt him, along with those closest to him. {15:5} And in the midst of the Church, she will open his mouth, and she will fill him with the spirit of wisdom and understanding, and she will clothe him with a robe of glory. {15:6} She will store up in him a treasure of rejoicing and exultation, and she will cause him to shine like the sun in the midst of her. {15:7} But foolish men will not take hold of her. And though understanding men will meet her, foolish men will not catch sight of her. For she is far from arrogance and deceit. {15:8} Lying men will be wary of her. But men who speak the truth will be found with her, and they will have success, even when examined by God. {15:9} Praise is not beautiful in the mouth of a sinner. {15:10} For wisdom was sent from God. And praise will stand before the wisdom of God, and praise will abound in the mouths of the faithful, and the sovereign Lord will give praise to wisdom. {15:11} You should not say: “It is because of God that wisdom is absent.” For you should not do what he detests. {15:12} You should not say: “He has led me astray.” For the impious are of no use to him. {15:13} The Lord hates all abominable error, and those who fear him will not love such things. {15:14} God established man from the beginning, and he left him in the hand of his own counsel. {15:15} He added his commandments and precepts. {15:16} If you choose to keep the commandments, and if, having chosen them, you fulfill them with perpetual fidelity, they will preserve you. {15:17} He has set water and fire before you. Extend your hand to whichever one you would choose. {15:18} Before man is life and death, good and evil. Whichever one he chooses will be given to him. {15:19} For the wisdom of God is manifold. And he is strong in power, seeing all things without ceasing. {15:20} The eyes of the Lord are upon those who fear him, and he knows each one of the works of man. {15:21} He has commanded no one to act impiously, and he has given no one permission to sin. {15:22} For he does not desire a multitude of unfaithful and useless sons.

[Sirach 16] {16:1} You should not rejoice in impious children, if they are successful; nor should you take delight in them, if the fear of God is not in them. {16:2} You should not approve of their life, nor should you look with favor on their labors. {16:3} For one child who fears God is better than one thousand impious children. {16:4} And it is better to die without children, than to leave behind impious children. {16:5} By means one person with understanding, a country will be inhabited. The tribe of the impious will be destroyed. {16:6} Many such things my eyes have seen, and greater things than these my ear has heard. {16:7} In the synagogue of sinners, a fire will blaze forth; and amid an unbelieving people, wrath will flare up. {16:8} The giants of antiquity did not obtain pardon for their sins; they were destroyed by trusting in their own abilities. {16:9} And he did not spare the place of Lot’s sojourn, and he abhorred them because of the arrogance of their words. {16:10} He did not take pity on them, destroying an entire people, who even extolled themselves concerning their sins. {16:11} And this was so with six hundred thousand men, who were gathered together in the hardness of their hearts. And if even a single obstinate person had escaped unpunished, it would be a wonder. {16:12} For mercy and wrath are with him. He is powerful in forgiveness, and he pours forth wrath. {16:13} As is his mercy, so also is his correction; he judges a man according to his works. {16:14} The sinner, in his violations, will not escape; but the patience of the One who shows mercy will not be diminished. {16:15} Every mercy will make a place for each man, according to the merit of his works, and according to the understanding of his sojourn. {16:16} You should not say: “I am hidden from God,” or, “Who, from on high, will take note of me?” {16:17} or, “Among a great number of people, I will not be noticed. For what is my soul amid such an immense creation?” {16:18} Behold: the heavens, and the heaven of the heavens, the abyss, and the entire earth, and the things that are within these, will be shaken by his gaze, {16:19} together with mountains and hills, and the foundations of the earth. When God casts his gaze upon them, they will be struck with trembling. {16:20} And concerning all these things, the heart is without understanding; but every heart is understood by him. {16:21} And who will understand his ways, or the tempest, which no eye of man will see? {16:22} For many of his works are concealed. But who will announce the works of his justice? Or who will endure them? For the testament is far from some persons, and the examination of each thing is in its end. {16:23} Whoever diminishes the heart, thinks empty thoughts. For the imprudent and erring man thinks up foolishness. {16:24} Listen to me, son, and learn the discipline of understanding, and attend to my words in your heart. {16:25} And I will speak with equity about discipline, and I will strive to announce wisdom. So attend to my words in your heart, and I will speak with equity of spirit, about the virtues that God has set within his works from the beginning, and I will announce his knowledge in truth. {16:26} With the judgment of God, his works have been done from the beginning; and from their institution, he himself distinguished their parts and set their beginnings, in their kinds. {16:27} He has beautified their works unto eternity. They have neither hungered, nor labored, and they have not ceased from their works. {16:28} Neither will any one of them cause anguish to his neighbor, forever. {16:29} You should not be incredulous at his word. {16:30} Afterward, God looked with favor upon the earth, and he filled it with his goodness. {16:31} The soul of every living thing brought word from before his face, and their return again is to him.

[Sirach 17] {17:1} God created man from the earth, and he made him according to his own image. {17:2} And he returned him again to it, and he clothed him with virtue according to himself. {17:3} He gave him the number and time of his days, and he gave him authority over all the things that are upon the earth. {17:4} He placed the fear of him over all flesh, and he had dominion over wild beasts and flying things. {17:5} He created from him a helper, similar to himself. He gave them counsel, and language, and sight, and hearing, and a heart, in order to think. And he filled them with the discipline of understanding. {17:6} He created within them the knowledge of the spirit. He filled their heart with understanding, and he showed them both good and evil. {17:7} He set his eye upon their hearts, to reveal to them the greatness of his works. {17:8} so that they might highly praise the name of sanctification, and give glory to his wonders, so that they might declare the greatness of his works. {17:9} In addition, he gave them discipline and the law of life, as their heritage. {17:10} He established an eternal covenant with them, and he revealed to them his justice and judgments. {17:11} And their eye saw the greatness of his honor, and their ears heard the honor of his voice, and he said to them: “Beware of all iniquity.” {17:12} And he commanded each one concerning his neighbor. {17:13} Their ways are always in his sight; they are not hidden from his eyes. {17:14} Over each and every people, he has appointed a ruler. {17:15} And Israel was made to be the manifest portion of God. {17:16} And in the sight of God, all their works are like the sun. And his eyes, without ceasing, inspect their ways. {17:17} The covenants are not hidden by their iniquity, and all their iniquities are in the sight of God. {17:18} The almsgiving of a man is like a seal upon him, which will guard the grace of a man like the pupil of an eye. {17:19} And afterward, it will rise up and repay them their reward, each one upon his head, and it will return to the hidden places of the earth. {17:20} Now, to the repentant, he has given the way of justice, and he has strengthened those lacking in patience, and he has fastened them to a destiny of truth. {17:21} Convert to the Lord, and relinquish your sins. {17:22} Make supplication before the face of the Lord, and diminish your offenses. {17:23} Return to the Lord, and turn away from your injustice, and have immense hatred for abomination. {17:24} And acknowledge the justices and judgments of God, and stand firm in the circumstances set before you and in prayer to the most high God. {17:25} Go to the side of the holy generation, to those who live in order... to give praise to God. {17:26} You should not linger in the error of the impious; confess before death. Confession perishes from the dead as if it were nothing. {17:27} Confess while living; you should give thanks while you are still alive and healthy. And you should praise God and glory in his compassion. {17:28} How great is the mercy of the Lord, and his forgiveness, for those who convert to him! {17:29} For not all things can be in men, because the son of man is not immortal, and because they are pleased by the emptiness of malice. {17:30} What is brighter than the sun? Yet this will fail. Or what is more wicked than that which flesh and blood has invented? And this will be reproved. {17:31} He beholds the power of the heights of heaven. And all men are earth and ashes.

[Sirach 18] {18:1} The One who dwells in eternity created all things together. God alone will be justified, and he remains an invincible King for eternity. {18:2} Who is able to declare his works? {18:3} For who can examine his greatness? {18:4} And who will announce the power of his magnitude? Or who would be able to describe his mercy? {18:5} There is no diminishing, and no increasing, and there is no discovering, the greatness of God. {18:6} When man has reached the end, then he will begin. And when he ceases, he will be in need. {18:7} What is man, and what is his grace? And what is his good, or what is his evil? {18:8} The number of the days of men are as many as one hundred years. Like a drop of water in the ocean, so they are considered to be. And like a grain of sand on the shore, so do these few years compare to the days of all time. {18:9} For this reason, God is patient with them, and he pours forth his mercy upon them. {18:10} He has seen that the presumption of their heart is evil, and he knows that their rebelliousness is wicked. {18:11} Therefore, he has bestowed his forgiveness on them, and he has revealed to them the way of equity. {18:12} The compassion of man is toward those closest to him. But the mercy of God is upon all flesh. {18:13} He is merciful, and he teaches and corrects, like a shepherd with his flock. {18:14} He takes pity on those who accept the doctrine of compassion, and he applies his judgments promptly. {18:15} Son, in your good works, you should not complain, and in giving anything, you should not cause grief with evil words. {18:16} Is heat not refreshed by the dew? So also is a word in the heart of a foolish man. {18:17} Behold, is a word not greater than a gift? But both are with a justified man. {18:18} The foolish place blame sharply. And a gift from the undisciplined causes the eyes to fail. {18:19} Before you judge, put justice in order within yourself, and before you speak, learn. {18:20} Before you become sick, obtain medicine. And before you judge, examine yourself. And then you will find forgiveness in the sight of God. {18:21} Before you become weak, humble yourself; and in a time of infirmity, show your way of life. {18:22} Let nothing impede you from praying always. And then you will not dread to be justified, even unto death. For the reward of God dwells in eternity. {18:23} Before you pray, prepare your soul. And do not choose to be like a man who tempts God. {18:24} Remember the wrath that will be on the day of consummation, and remember the time of retribution, when he will turn away his face. {18:25} Remember poverty in a time of abundance, and remember the deficiency of poverty in a day of riches. {18:26} From morning until evening, the time will be changed, and all these are swift in the eyes of God. {18:27} A wise man will be cautious in all things, and during a time of many offenses, he will be attentive against inaction. {18:28} Anyone who is astute recognizes wisdom, and he will acknowledge anyone who finds it. {18:29} Those who show understanding with words also have acted wisely themselves, and they have understood truth and justice, and they have fulfilled proverbs and judgments. {18:30} You should not go after your desires; instead, turn away from your own will. {18:31} If you offer your desires to your soul, this will cause you to become a joy to your enemies. {18:32} Take no delight in disorderly gatherings, whether large or small. For their commission of offenses is unceasing. {18:33} You should not be reduced by the contention of borrowing, even if there is nothing in your purse. For you would be contending against your own life.

[Sirach 19] {19:1} An inebriated worker will not be wealthy. And whoever despises littleness will fall a little at a time. {19:2} Wine and women cause wise men to fall away, and then they will complain against those who understand. {19:3} And whoever joins himself to fornicators will become wicked. Decay and worms will inherit him, and he will be denounced as the greater example, and his soul will be deducted from the number. {19:4} Whoever is quick to believe has a trivial heart and will be diminished. And whoever offends against his own soul will have even less. {19:5} Whoever rejoices in iniquity will be condemned. And whoever hates correction will have less in life. But whoever hates excessive talk extinguishes evil. {19:6} Whoever sins against his own soul will be punished. And whoever rejoices in malice will be condemned. {19:7} You should not repeat a wicked and harsh word, and then you will not be diminished. {19:8} Do not reveal your mind to friend or foe. And if there is a sin within you, do not disclose it. {19:9} For he will listen to you and watch you, and while pretending to defend your sin, he will despise you, and so he will be whenever he is with you. {19:10} Have you heard a word against your neighbor? Let it die within you, trusting that it will not burst forth from you. {19:11} Before the face of a word, a foolish man labors, like a woman groaning as she gives birth to a child. {19:12} Like an arrow fixed in the flesh of the thigh, so is a word in the heart of a foolish man. {19:13} Correct a friend, though perhaps there was a misunderstanding, and he may say, “I did not do it.” Or, if he did do it, correct him, so that he may not do it again. {19:14} Correct your neighbor, for perhaps he did not say it. But if he did say it, correct him, so that he may not say it again. {19:15} Correct your friend. For often a fault has been committed. {19:16} And do not believe every word. There is one who slips with his word, but not with his heart. {19:17} For who is there who has not offended with his words? Correct your neighbor before you reprimand him. {19:18} And make a place for the fear of the Most High. For all wisdom is fear of God, and it is wise to fear God, and in all wisdom is the orderly disposition of the law. {19:19} But the discipline of wickedness is not wisdom. And there is no prudence in the thoughts of sinners. {19:20} There is a wickedness, and in it there is abomination. And there is a foolish man who has been diminished in wisdom. {19:21} Better is a man who has been diminished in wisdom because his mind is failing, but with the fear of God, than he who abounds in intelligence, but with transgression against the law of the Most High. {19:22} There is a certain cleverness, and it is unjust. {19:23} And there is one who utters a careful word, explaining away the truth. There is one who humbles himself wickedly, for his interior is filled with deceit. {19:24} And there is one who lowers himself excessively with a great debasement. And there is one who inclines his face downward, and pretends as if he did not see what has not been made known. {19:25} And if he is prevented from sinning by a lack of ability, and then finds an opportunity for evildoing, he will do evil. {19:26} A man is recognized by his appearances. But when you meet an understanding man, he is recognized by his face. {19:27} The clothing of the body, and the laughter of the teeth, and the walk of a man, give a report about him. {19:28} There is a lying correction in the anger of a contumacious man. And there is a judgment which does not prove to be good. But there is one who is silent, and the same is prudent.

[Sirach 20] {20:1} How much better is it to reprove, than to become angry, so as not to hinder him who may confess in prayer. {20:2} The lust of an eunuch will deflower a young maiden; {20:3} similar is he who by violence gives an iniquitous judgment. {20:4} How good it is, when you are corrected, to show contrition! For in this way, you will escape deliberate sin. {20:5} There is one who, by remaining silent, is found to be wise. And there is another who is hateful and who provokes by speaking out. {20:6} There is one who, not having the understanding to speak, remains silent. And there is another who remains silent, knowing the proper time. {20:7} A wise man will remain silent until the proper time. But an unrestrained and imprudent person will not heed the times. {20:8} Whoever uses many words will wound his own soul. And whoever unjustly takes authority upon himself will be hated. {20:9} There is advancement in evil for an undisciplined man, and there is a plan which turns to his detriment. {20:10} There is a gift which is not helpful, and there is a gift, the repayment for which is double. {20:11} There is a loss for the sake of boasting, and there is one who will lift up his head from lowliness. {20:12} There is one who buys much for a small price, and who pays it back sevenfold. {20:13} Anyone wise in words makes himself loved. But the graces of the foolish will be poured away. {20:14} A gift from the unwise will not benefit you. For his gaze is divided, sevenfold. {20:15} He will give little, and reproach much. And the opening of his mouth is like a burning flame. {20:16} There is one who lends today and demands repayment tomorrow. A man such as this is hateful. {20:17} A foolish man will not have a friend, and there will be no thanks for his good deeds. {20:18} For those who eat a false tongue is like someone who falls upon pavement. Such a fall for the wicked will arrive quickly. {20:19} A disagreeable man is like a pointless fable; it will be continually in the mouth of the undisciplined. {20:20} A parable from the mouth of a fool will be rejected. For he does not speak it at the proper time. {20:21} There is one who is prevented from sinning by poverty, and in his rest, he will be vexed. {20:22} There is one who will lose his own soul because of pretense, and he will lose it by an example of imprudence. For by seeking the approval of another, he will destroy himself. {20:23} There is one who, for the sake of what other's think, makes a promise to a friend, and so he gains him as an enemy for no reason. {20:24} A thief is a wicked disgrace to a man, and yet lies will be continually in the mouths of those without discipline. {20:25} A thief is better than a man who constantly lies. But both of them will inherit perdition. {20:26} The habits of lying men are without honor. And their shame is with them without ceasing. {20:27} A wise man will benefit himself by his own words, and a prudent man will please the powerful. {20:28} Whoever works his land will raise high a stockpile of grain. And whoever works justice will himself be raised high. Yet truly, whoever pleases the powerful will escape unfair treatment. {20:31} Presents and gifts blind the eyes of judges, and silence their mouths, turning them aside from their task of correction. {20:32} Wisdom hidden, and treasure unseen: of what use is either of these? {20:33} He who hides his foolishness is better than a man who conceals his wisdom.

[Sirach 21] {21:1} Son, have you sinned? You should not add further sins. Then too, for your former sins, pray so that they may be forgiven you. {21:2} Flee from sins, as if from the face of a serpent. For if you approach them, they will take hold of you. {21:3} Their teeth are like the teeth of a lion, bringing death to the souls of men. {21:4} All iniquity is like a two-edged spear; there is no healing in its wound. {21:5} Reproach and injury will make resources useless. And a house that is exceedingly wealthy will become powerless through pride. In this way, the resources of the arrogant will be eradicated. {21:6} Supplications from the mouth of the pauper will reach all the way to the ears of God, and judgment will come to him quickly. {21:7} Whoever hates correction is walking in the steps of a sinner. But whoever fears God will convert within his heart. {21:8} He who has power by means of a bold tongue will be known from far away. But an understanding man knows to slip past him. {21:9} Whoever builds his house, paid for by another, is like one who gathers his building stones in winter. {21:10} The synagogue of sinners is like stubble piled up; for the end of them both is a burning fire. {21:11} The way of sinners is paved and level, and at their end is hell and darkness and punishments. {21:12} Whoever observes justice will obtain an understanding of it. {21:13} The consummation of the fear of God is wisdom and understanding. {21:14} One who is not wise in goodness will not accept instruction. {21:15} Now there is a wisdom which abounds in evil. But there is no understanding where there is bitterness. {21:16} The knowledge of the wise will increase like a flood, and his counsel will continue like a fountain of life. {21:17} The heart of the foolish is like a broken vessel, for it will not hold any wisdom. {21:18} A knowledgeable man will praise any wise word he hears, and he will apply it to himself. The self-indulgent man has heard it, and it displeases him, and so he casts it behind his back. {21:19} The talk of the foolish is like a burden on a journey. But in the lips of the understanding, grace will be found. {21:20} The mouth of the prudent is sought in the Church, and they will consider his words in their hearts. {21:21} Like a house which has been demolished, so is wisdom to the foolish. And the knowledge of the unwise is like meaningless words. {21:22} Doctrine to the senseless is like fetters on the feet, and like chains on the... right hand. {21:23} A foolish man lifts up his voice in laughter. But a wise man will not even laugh quietly to himself. {21:24} Doctrine is to the prudent like a gold ornament, and like an armbract on the right arm. {21:25} The feet of the foolish step easily into his neighbor’s house. But an experienced man will be apprehensive in the presence of the powerful. {21:26} A senseless man will gaze through a window into the house. But a man who has been well-taught will stand outside. {21:27} It is foolish for a man to listen through the door. And a prudent man will be grieved at this disgrace. {21:28} The lips of the impudent will describe senseless things. But the words of the prudent will be weighed on a balance. {21:29} The hearts of the foolish are in their mouths. But the mouths of the wise are with their hearts. {21:30} Whenever the impious curse the devil, they curse their own soul. {21:31} Those who whisper accusations defile their own souls, and they will be hated by all. And whoever abides with them will be hateful. The silent and understanding man will be honored.

[Sirach 22] {22:1} The lazy man is pelted with a dirty stone, and all will speak about his rejection. {22:2} The lazy man is pelted with the dung of oxen, and all who touch him will brush off their hands. {22:3} An undisciplined son is the shame of his father, but an undisciplined daughter will be to his degradation. {22:4} A prudent daughter brings an inheritance to her husband. But she who causes shame will be a disgrace to him who conceived her. {22:5} She who is bold shames her father and her husband, and she will not be less offensive to the impious. For she will be held in dishonor by both. {22:6} An untimely explanation is like music in a time of mourning. But the sharp correction and doctrine of wisdom are ever timely. {22:7} Whoever teaches the foolish is like someone who closes a broken pot. {22:8} Whoever explains a word to one who is not listening is like someone who suddenly awakens a sleeping person from a deep sleep. {22:9} Whoever explains wisdom to the senseless is like one speaking to a sleeping person. And at the end of the explanation, he says: “Who is this?” {22:10} Weep over the dead, for his light has failed. And weep over the foolish, for his understanding has failed. {22:11} Weep only a little over the dead, for he is at rest. {22:12} But the wicked life of a wicked fool is worse than death. {22:13} The mourning for the dead is seven days; but for the foolish and the impious, it is all the days of their life. {22:14} You should not talk at length with the foolish, and you should not go with the senseless. {22:15} Keep yourself from him, so that you may not have problems, and so that you will not be polluted by his sin. {22:16} Turn away from him, and you will find rest, and you will not be discouraged by his foolishness. {22:17} What is heavier than lead? And what else can he be called but foolish? {22:18} Sand, and salt, and an iron weight are each easier to bear than an imprudent man, who is both foolish and impious. {22:19} A bundle of wood strapped together in the foundation of a building will not be loosened. And similar is the heart that has been strengthened by thoughtful counsel. {22:20} The thoughts of one who is understanding will not be corrupted by fear in any situation. {22:21} Just as chaff in a high place, or a wall made of mortar without stones set within, will not continue against the face of the wind, {22:22} so also a timid heart, and the thoughts of the senseless, will not withstand the forcefulness of fear. {22:23} Despite a cowardly heart, the thoughts of the foolish will not fear any situation; yet neither will one who continues always in the precepts of God. {22:24} He who jabs an eye produces tears. And he who jabs the heart produces understanding. {22:25} He who throws a stone at birds will drive them away. So also, he who accuses his friend dissolves the friendship. {22:26} But if you have drawn a sword against a friend, you should not despair; for there may be a way back. {22:27} If you have opened a harsh mouth against a friend, you should not fear; for there may be a reconciliation. However, if there are accusations, or abuse, or arrogance, or the revealing of secrets, or a wound from deceitfulness, in all these cases, a friend will flee away. {22:28} Hold to faithfulness with a friend in his poverty, so that you may also rejoice in his prosperity. {22:29} In the time of his tribulation, remain faithful to him, so that you may also be an heir with him in his inheritance. {22:30} Just as the steam from an oven, or the smoke from a fire, rises up before a flame, so also do curses and insults and threats rise up before bloodshed. {22:31} I shall not be ashamed to greet a friend, nor shall I hide myself from his face. And if misfortunes befall me because of him, I will endure. {22:32} Anyone who hears of this will be wary around him. {22:33} Who will provide a keeper for my mouth, and a reliable seal over my lips, so that I may not fall because of them, and so that my tongue does not destroy me?

[Sirach 23] {23:1} Lord, Father and Ruler of my life: may you not allow your mouth to become arrogant and those who speak evil will be scandalized by these things. {23:2} They would impose scourges over my thoughts and over the discipline of wisdom in my heart. And they would not spare me from their ignorances, nor would they allow their own offenses to become apparent. {23:3} And they intend that my ignorances would increase, and my offenses be multiplied, and my sins abound. And so I would fall in the sight of my adversaries, and be rejoiced over by my enemy. {23:4} Lord, Father and God of my life: may you not abandon me to their plans. {23:5} Do not leave me with the haughtiness of my eyes. And avert all desire from me. {23:6} Take the desire of the body from me, and do not allow sexual desire to take hold of me, and do not permit an irreverent and senseless mind within me. {23:7} O sons: listen to the doctrine of my mouth. For those who observe it will not perish by the lips, nor be scandalized into wicked works. {23:8} A sinner is held by his own emptiness. And the arrogant and those who speak evil will be scandalized by these things. {23:9} Do not allow your mouth to become accustomed to swearing oaths. For in this, there are many pitfalls. {23:10} Truly, do not allow the naming of God to be continually in your mouth, and do not treat as if common the names of the holy ones. For you will not escape punishment by them. {23:11} Just as a servant, continually interrogated, will not be without a bruise, so everyone who swears oaths and takes God’s name will not be entirely free from sin. {23:12} A man who swears many oaths will be filled with iniquity, and scourges will not depart from his house. {23:13} And if he fails to fulfill it, his offense will be over him, and if he pretends he fulfilled it, he offends doubly. {23:14} And if he swears an oath insincerely, he will not be justified. For his house will be filled with retribution for him. {23:15} There is yet another kind of talk which faces death; let it not be found in the inheritance of Jacob. {23:16} For all these things will be taken away from the merciful, and they shall not wallow in offenses. {23:17} Do not allow your mouth to become accustomed to undisciplined speech. For in this, there is the sin of words. {23:18} When you sit in the midst of great men, remember your father and mother. {23:19} Otherwise, God may forget you, when you are in their sight, and then you would be repeatedly ridiculed and would suffer disgrace, and you might wish that you had never been born, and you might curse the day of your nativity. {23:20} The man who is accustomed to disgraceful words will not accept instruction, all the days of his life. {23:21} Two kinds of persons abound in sins, and a third adds wrath and perdition. {23:22} A desirous soul is like a burning fire, it will not be quenched, until it devours something. {23:23} And a man who is wicked in the desires of his flesh will not desist until he has kindled a fire. {23:24} To a man of fornication, all bread is sweet; he will not tire of transgression, to the very end. {23:25} Every man who transgresses his own bed has contempt for his own soul. And so he says: “Who can see me?” {23:26} Darkness surrounds me, and the walls enclose me, and no one catches sight of me. Whom should I fear? The Most High will not remember my offenses.” {23:27} And he does not understand that God’s eye sees all things. For fear within a man such as this drives away from him both the fear of God and the eyes of those men who fear God. {23:28} And he does not acknowledge that the eyes of the Lord are much brighter than the sun, keeping watch over all the ways of men, even to the depths of the abyss, and gazing into the hearts of men, even to the most hidden parts. {23:29} For all things, before they were created, were known to the Lord God. And even after their completion, he beholds all things. {23:30} This man will be punished in the streets of the city, and he will be chased like a young horse. And in a place that he does not suspect, he will be captured. {23:31} And because he did not understand the fear of the Lord, he will be in disgrace before all men, {23:32} as will be every woman, too, who abandons her husband and establishes an inheritance by marriage to another man. {23:33} For first, she was unbelieving of the law of the Most High. Second, she offended against her husband. Third, she fornicated by adultery, and so established her children by another man. {23:34} This woman will be led into the assembly, and she will be stared at by her children. {23:35} Her children will not take root, and her branches will not produce fruit. {23:36} She will leave behind her memory as a curse, and her infamy will not be wiped away. {23:37} And those who are left behind will acknowledge that there is nothing better than the fear of God, and that there is nothing sweeter than to have respect for the commandments of the Lord. {23:38} It is a great glory to follow the Lord. For length of days will be received from him. [Sirach 24] {24:1} Wisdom will praise her own mind, and she will be honored by God, and she will be glorified in the midst of her people. {24:2} And she will open her mouth in the churches of the Most High, and she will be glorified in the sight of his virtue. {24:3} And in the midst of her own people, she will be exalted. And she will be admired by the holy assembly. {24:4} And she will have praise within the multitude of the elect. And she will be blessed among the blessed. And she will say: {24:5} “I went forth from the mouth of the Most High, as the first-born before all creatures, [24:6] I caused an unfailing light to arise in the heavens. And I covered all the earth like a cloud. {24:7} I lived in the highest places, and my throne is in the pillar of a cloud. {24:8} I alone have encompassed the circuit of heaven, and have penetrated to the depths of the abyss, and have walked upon the waves of the sea, {24:9} and have stood upon the whole earth. And among every people, {24:10} and in every nation, I have held primacy. {24:11} And by virtue, I have tread upon the hearts of all, the great and the lowly. And I have sought my rest in all of them. And I will continue, as the inheritance of the Lord. {24:12} Then the Creator of all things instructed and spoke with me. And the One who created me rested in my tabernacle. {24:13} And he said to me: ‘Let your dwelling place be with Jacob, and let your inheritance be in Israel, for you shall take root among my elect.’ ” {24:14} From the beginning, and before the world, I was created. And even unto the future world, I will not cease to exist. For I have ministered before him in the holy habitation. {24:15} And in this way, I was established in Zion. And likewise, in the holy city, I found rest. And my authority was in Jerusalem. {24:16} And I took root among an honorable people, within the portion of my God, within his inheritance. And so my abode is in the full assembly of the saints. {24:17} I was exalted like a cedar in Lebanon and like a cypress on Mount Zion. {24:18} I was exalted like a palm tree in Kadesh and like a rose bush in Jericho. {24:19} I was exalted like a beautiful olive tree in the plains, and like a sycamore tree beside the waters along a wide road. {24:20} I gave off an aromatic fragrance like cinnamon or balsam. I produced a sweet odor like the best myrrh. {24:21} And I perfumed my dwelling place with sweet gum, and aromatic resin, and flower petals, and aloe, as well as the finest cedar from Lebanon. And my fragrance is like undiluted balsam. {24:22} I have extended my branches like a terebinth tree, and my branches are of honor and grace. {24:23} Like the vine, I have born the fruit of a sweet fragrance. And my flowers are the fruit of honor and integrity. {24:24} I am the mother of the beauty of love, and of fear, and of knowledge, and of holy hope. {24:25} All grace of the way and of the truth is in me. All hope of life and of virtue is in me. {24:26} Journey toward me, all you who desire me, and be filled by my harvest. {24:27} For my spirit is sweeter than honey, and my inheritance is better than honey and the honeycomb. {24:28} My memory is for the generations of all ages. {24:29} Whoever consumes me will hunger still. And whoever drinks me will thirst still. {24:30} Whoever listens to me will not be confounded. And whoever acts in me will not sin. {24:31} Whoever elucidates me will have eternal life.” {24:32} All this is a book of life, and a covenant of the Most High, and an acknowledgement of truth. [24:33] Moses commanded the law by the precepts of justice, and an inheritance to the house of Jacob, and the promises to Israel. {24:34} God appointed David as his servant, in order to raise up from him a most mighty King, who would sit upon the throne of honor forever. {24:35} It is he who fulfills wisdom, like the Phison river and the Tigris river in the first days. {24:36} It is he who fulfills understanding, like the river Euphrates. It is he who multiplies understanding, like the river Jordan in the time of the harvest. {24:37} He sends forth discipline like the light, and he stands forth like the river Gehon in the time of the vintage. {24:38} He first had perfect knowledge of her, for a weaker one would not search for her.
(24:39) For her thoughts abound like the sea, and her counsels abound like the great abyss. (24:40) “I, wisdom, have poured forth rivers. (24:41) I am like a brook leading to a river of immense waters. I am like a channel flowing from a river. And I went forth from Paradise like an aqueduct. (24:42) I said: I will irrigate my garden of plantings, and I will thoroughly water the fruits of my field. (24:43) And behold, my brook became overflowing, and my river drew near to the sea. (24:44) For I illuminate doctrine to all, like the first light. And I will announce doctrine, even to those who are far away. (24:45) I will reach to all the lower parts of the earth, and I will gaze upon all who sleep, and I will illuminate all who hope in the Lord. (24:46) Even now, I pour forth doctrine like prophecy. And even now, I bequeath doctrine to those who seek wisdom. And I will not cease from their progeny, even unto the holy time. (24:47) See how I have not labored for myself alone, but for all who are seeking truth!”

[Sirach 25] (25:1) My spirit is pleased with three things; these are approved in the sight of God and men: (25:2) the harmony of brothers, and the love of neighbors, and a husband and wife agreeing well together. (25:3) My soul hates three kinds of things; and I am greatly distressed over their souls: (25:4) an arrogant pauper, a wealthy liar, a foolish and senseless elder. (25:5) The things that you have not obtained in your youth, how will you find them in your old age? (25:6) How beautiful it is for a grey head to have judgment, and for elders to know counsel! (25:7) How beautiful it is for those who are aged to have wisdom, and for those who are honored to have understanding and counsel! (25:8) Great experience is the crown of the aged, and the fear of God is their glory. (25:9) I have magnified nine things, overlooked by the heart; and a tenth, I will declare to men with my tongue: (25:10) a man who finds joy in his children, and one who lives to see the undoing of his enemies. (25:11) Blessed is he who lives with a wise wife, and he who has not slipped with his tongue, and he who has not served those unworthy of himself. (25:12) Blessed is he who finds a true friend, and he who describes justice to an attentive ear. (25:13) How great is he who finds wisdom and knowledge! But there is no one above him who fears the Lord. (25:14) The fear of God has set itself above all things. (25:15) Blessed is the man to whom it has been given to have the fear of God. He who holds to it, to whom can he be compared? (25:16) The fear of God is the beginning of his love; and the beginning of faith has been joined closely to the same. (25:17) The sadness of the heart is every wound. And the wickedness of a wife is every malice. (25:18) And a man who will choose any wound, but the wound of the heart, (25:19) and any wickedness, but the wickedness of a wife, (25:20) and any obstacle, but the obstacle of those who hate him, (25:21) and any vindication, but the vindication of his enemies. (25:22) There is no head worse than the head of a serpent, (25:23) and there is no anger above the anger of a wife. It would be more agreeable to abide with a lion or a dragon, than to live with a wicked wife. (25:24) A wicked wife changes her face. And she darkens her countenance like a bear. And she displays it like sackcloth. In the midst of her neighbors, (25:25) her husband groans, and hearing of this, he sighs a little. (25:26) All malice is brief compared to the malice of a wife. Let the fate of sinners fall upon her! (25:27) As climbing over sand is to the feet of the aged, so is a talkative wife to a quiet man. (25:28) You should not favor a woman’s beauty, and you should not desire a wife for her beauty. (25:29) The anger and disrespect and shame from a wife can be great. (25:30) The wife, if she has primacy, is set against her husband. (25:31) A wicked wife debases the heart, and saddens the face, and wounds the heart. (25:32) A wife who does not make her husband happy enfeebles the hands and weakens the knees. (25:33) The beginning of sin came from a woman; and through her, we all die. (25:34) You should not provide an exit to your water, not even a little; nor should you give permission for a wicked wife to exceed the limit. (25:35) If she will not walk at your hand, she will confound you in the sight of your enemies. (25:36) Tear her away from your body, lest she abuse you continually.

[Sirach 26] (26:1) Blessed is the husband of a good wife. For the number of his years is doubled. (26:2) A good wife delights her husband, and she will fill up the years of his life with peace. (26:3) A good wife is a good portion. She will be given the portion of those who fear God, like a man who has done good deeds. (26:4) But, rich or poor, with a good heart, his countenance will be cheerful at all times. (26:5) Of three things, my heart has been afraid, and at a fourth, my face has shown dread: (26:6) an accusation made by a city, and the gathering of a mob, (26:7) and a deceitful false accusation. All these are more grievous than death. (26:8) A jealous wife is a grief and a mourning to the heart. (26:9) In a jealous wife, there is a scourage of the tongue, which communicates with everyone. (26:10) Like a yoke of oxen being provoked, so also is a wicked wife. He who has hold of her is like one who has taken hold of a scorpion. (26:11) An inebriated wife is a great wrath. And her disgrace and indecency will not be covered. (26:12) The fornication of a wife will become known by the haughtiness of her eyes and by her eyelids. (26:13) So that her daughter will not also turn away, keep a strict watch; otherwise, having found an opportunity, she may enjoy herself. (26:14) Be wary of the irreverence of her eyes, and you should not wonder if she might disregard you. (26:15) Like a thirsty traveler, she will open her mouth to the fountain, and she will drink from every water nearby, and she will sit down beside every fencepost, and she will open her quiver to every arrow, until she becomes weary. (26:16) The grace of an attentive wife will delight her husband, and will fatten his bones. (26:17) Her discipline is a gift from God. (26:18) Such is an understanding and quiet wife. For there is no substitution for a well-instructed soul. (26:19) A holy and contrite wife is grace upon grace. (26:20) And no amount of money is equal to the value of a soul with self-restraint. (26:21) Like the sun rising over the world in the high places of God, so the beauty of a good wife is the adornment of her house. (26:22) Like a lamp shining atop a holy lampstand, so is the beauty of a face in the mature stage of life. (26:23) Like golden pillars upon bases of silver, so are the firm feet of a mature wife upon the soles of her feet. (26:24) Like everlasting foundations upon a solid rock, so are the commandments of God in the heart of a holy wife. (26:25) By two things, my heart is greatly saddened, and at a third, anger overwhelms me: (26:26) a man of war failing because of dire need, and an understanding man treated with contempt, (26:27) and anyone who crosses over from justice to sin. God has prepared such a one for the spear.
[Sirach 27] {27:1} Because of need, many have sinned. And whoever seeks to be enriched, averts his eye. {27:2} Like a post fixed in the middle of adjoining stones, so also will sin become wedged between selling and buying. {27:3} Sin will be crushed with the one who sins. {27:4} If you do not hold yourself steadfastly to the fear of the Lord, your house will be quickly overthrown. {27:5} Just as the dust remains when one shakes a sieve, so will the doubt of a man remain in his thoughts. {27:6} The furnace tests the potter’s vessels, and the trial of the tribulation tests just men. {27:7} As the pruning of a tree reveals its fruit, so does a word reveal the thoughts in the heart of a man. {27:8} You should not praise a man before he speaks; for such is the testing of men. {27:9} If you pursue justice, you will obtain it. And you will be clothed with justice, as with a long robe of honor. And you will live with justice. And justice will protect you continually. And on the day of reckoning, you will find a strong foundation.

{27:10} Birds flock to their own kind. And truth will return to those who practice it. {27:11} The lion lies in wait for its prey continually. So also do sins lie in wait for those who work iniquity. {27:12} A holy man persists in wisdom like the sun. But a senseless man changes like the moon. {27:13} In the midst of the senseless, retain a word for the proper time. But be continually in the midst those who are thoughtful. {27:14} The discussions of sinners are hateful, and their laughter is a delight in sin. {27:15} The speech that swears many oaths will cause the hair of the head to stand upright; and its irreverence will cause the ears to be blocked. {27:16} The shedding of blood is in the quarrels of the arrogant; and their evil talk is grievous to hear. {27:17} Whoever discloses the secret of a friend breaks faith; and he will not find a friend for his soul. {27:18} Love your neighbor, and be united with him faithfully. {27:19} But if you disclose his secrets, you should not continue to follow after him. {27:20} For like a man who destroys his friend, so also is he who destroys the friendship of his neighbor. {27:21} And like someone releasing a bird from his hand, so have you abandoned your neighbor, and you will not obtain him again. {27:22} You should no longer seek him, for he is now far away; he has fled like a roe-deer from a snare. For his soul has been wounded. {27:23} You will no longer be able to bind his wound. For there may be a reconciliation from cursing. {27:24} But to disclose the secrets of a friend is the hopeless act of an unhappy soul. {27:25} One who winks with the eye fabricates iniquity, and no one will cast him aside. {27:26} In the sight of your eyes, he will sweeten his mouth, and he will admire your talk. But at the very end, he will pervert his mouth, and he will offer a scandal from your own words. {27:27} I have hated many things, but I have not done as he has done, and the Lord will hate him. {27:28} Whoever throws a stone straight up will find that it falls on his own head. And a deceitful wound will return to wound the deceitful. {27:29} And whoever digs a pit will fall into it. And whoever positions a stone against his neighbor will stumble over it. And whoever lays a trap for another will perish by it. {27:30} Whoever sets in motion a wicked plan will find that it rolls back over him, and he will not know from which direction it will arrive. {27:31} Mockery and derision are of the arrogant, and vengeance will lie in wait for them, like a lion. {27:32} Whoever enjoys the fall of the just will perish in a snare, and grief will consume them before they die. {27:33} Anger and fury are both abominable, and the sinful man will be held by them.

[Sirach 28] {28:1} Whoever wishes for vengeance will find vengeance from the Lord, and he will surely be attentive to his sins. {28:2} Forgive your neighbor, if he has harmed you, and then your sins will be forgiven you when you pray. {28:3} A man holds on to anger against another man, and does he then seek a remedy from God? {28:4} He has no mercy on a man like himself, and does he then entreat for his own sins? {28:5} He who is but flesh holds on to anger, and does he then request forgiveness from God? Who can obtain pardon for his sins in this way? {28:6} Remember your very end, and let animosities cease. {28:7} For corruption and death are suspended over his commandments. {28:8} Remember the fear of God, and do not be angry with your neighbor. {28:9} Remember the covenant of the Most High, and overlook the ignorant offenses of your neighbor. {28:10} Refrain from strife, and you will diminish your sins. {28:11} For an ill-tempered man enflames conflict, and a sinful man troubles his friends, and he casts hostility into the midst of those who have peace. {28:12} For the fire burns according to the wood of the forest. And the anger of a man burns according to the strength of the man. And according to his resources, he will exalt his anger. {28:13} A hasty contention kindles a fire. And a hasty quarrel sheds blood. And an accusatory tongue brings death. {28:14} If you blow on a spark, it will increase to a fire. But if you spit on it, it will be extinguished. Both of these proceed from the mouth. {28:15} The double-tongued whisperer is accursed. For he has disturbed many who had peace. {28:16} A third tongue has stirred up many, and has scattered them from nation to nation. {28:17} It has destroyed the walled cities of the wealthy, and has undermined the houses of the great. {28:18} It has cut down the virtues of the peoples, and has broken strong nations. {28:19} A third tongue has cast down virtuous women, and has deprived them of their labors. {28:20} Whoever favors it will not have rest, nor will he have a friend in whom he may find peace. {28:21} The wound of a whip causes a bruise, but the wound of the tongue will crush the bones. {28:22} Many have fallen by the mouth of the sword, but not as many as have perished by their own tongue. {28:23} Blessed is he who is protected from a wicked tongue, who has not gone over to its wrath, and has not pulled its yoke, and has not been bound by its chains. {28:24} For its yoke is a yoke of iron. And its chains are chains of brass. {28:25} Its death is a most wicked death. And hell is more useful than it is. {28:26} Its continuance will not be permanent, but it will take hold of the ways of the unjust. And the just will not be burned by its flame. {28:27} Those who abandon God will fall by it, and it will burn within them and not be quenched. And it will be sent upon them, like a lion, and it will wound them, like a leopard. {28:28} Hedge your ears with thorns. Do not be willing to listen to a wicked tongue. And make doors and bars for your mouth. {28:29} Melt down your gold and your silver. And make a scale for your words, and an upright bridle for your mouth.
{28:30} And be attentive, lest perhaps you may slip with your tongue, and fall in the sight of your enemies, who are lying in wait for you, and then your fall may be incurable unto death.

[Sirach 29] {29:1} He shows mercy who lends to his neighbor, for he keeps the commandments by strengthening him. {29:2} Lend to your neighbor in his time of need, and receive it again from your neighbor in his time. {29:3} Keep your word, and act faithfully with him, and then you will find whatever you need in every time. {29:4} Many have treated a loan like found money, and they offered trouble to those who helped them. {29:5} Until they receive, they kiss the hands of the giver, and they humble their voice in promises. {29:6} But at the time of repayment, they will ask for more time, and they will speak annoying and complaining words, and they will make excuses for the time. {29:7} Then, if he is able to repay, he will turn away. He will pay barely one half, and he will consider it as if he had found it. {29:8} But if not, then he will defraud him of his money, and he will have him as an enemy without cause. {29:9} And he will repay him with accusations and curses, and he will repay him with contempt, instead of with honor and kindness. {29:10} Many have refused to lend, not because of wickedness, but because they were afraid to be defrauded without cause. {29:11} Yet truly, be more steadfast toward the humble, and you should not delay in acts of mercy toward them. {29:12} Assist the poor because of the commandment. And you should not send him away empty because of his dire need. {29:13} Lose your money to your brother and your friend. For you should not hide it under a stone to be lost. {29:14} Let your treasure be in the precepts of the Most High, and it will benefit you more than gold. {29:15} Store your alms in the hearts of the poor, and it will obtain help for you against all evil. {29:16} Better than the shield or the lance of a powerful man, {29:17} it will fight for you against your enemy. {29:18} A good man offers credit for the sake of his neighbor. But one who abandons him to himself will perish in shame. {29:19} You should not forget the kindness of your benefactor. For he has offered his life on your behalf. {29:20} The sinner and the unclean flee from such promises. {29:21} A sinner attributes to himself the goods of his loan. And an ungrateful mind will abandon the one who has freed him. {29:22} A man offers credit to his neighbor. But when he will have lost respect, he will abandon him. {29:23} A wicked promise has destroyed many who had good intentions, and has tossed them like a wave on the ocean. {29:24} It has caused powerful men to travel around, and they have wandered amid foreign nations. {29:25} A sinner transgressing the commandment of the Lord will fall into a wicked promise. And he who undertakes many things will fall into judgment. {29:26} Help your neighbor to recover according to your ability, but attend to yourself, lest you also fall. {29:27} The primary need in a man’s life is water and bread, and clothing, and a house to protect modesty. {29:28} A pauper’s food under a roof of boards is better than a splendid feast on a sojourn away from home. {29:29} Let yourself be pleased with little instead of much, and you will not hear the reproach of being away from home. {29:30} It is a wicked life to go from house to house as a guest. For wherever he is a guest, he will not act confidently, nor open his mouth. {29:31} He will entertain, and feed, and give drink to the ungrateful, and beyond this, he will listen to bitter words: {29:32} “Go, my guest, and set the table, and let others eat from what you have in your hand.” {29:33} “Depart from the honored face of my friends. For it has become necessary for my house to host my brother instead.” {29:34} These things are grievous to a man having understanding: to take advantage of a household, and to reproach a lender.

[Sirach 30] {30:1} He who loves his son will frequently chastise him, so that he may be happy in the very end, and not grope for the doors of his neighbors. {30:2} He who instructs his son will be praised over him and will glory in him, in the midst of his household. {30:3} He who teaches his son will make his enemy jealous, and in the midst of his friends, he will glory in him. {30:4} When his father has died, it will be as if he were not dead. For he will have left behind someone who is like himself. {30:5} In his life, he saw him and rejoiced in him. And at his passing, he was not sorrowful, nor was he confounded in the sight of his enemies. {30:6} For he left behind himself a defender of his house against his enemies, and someone who will repay his friends with kindness. {30:7} For the sake of the souls of his sons, he will bind up his wounds, and at every voice, his gut will be stirred up. {30:8} An untamed horse becomes stubborn, and a child left to himself becomes headstrong. {30:9} Coddle a son, and he will make you afraid. Play with him, and he will make you sorrowful. {30:10} You should not laugh with him; otherwise you may have grief, and in the end, your teeth be clenched. {30:11} You should not give him power in his youth, but you should not despise his thoughts. {30:12} Bow down his neck in his youth, and slap his sides while he is a child, lest perhaps he may become stubborn, and then he will not trust you, and so he will bring sorrow to your soul. {30:13} Instruct your son, and work with him, lest you give offense by his shameful behavior. {30:14} Better is a healthy pauper with a strong constitution, than a wealthy man who is weak and afflicted by maladies. {30:15} A healthy soul with the sanctity of justice is better than all the gold and silver. And a sound body is better than immense revenues. {30:16} There is no revenue above the revenue of a healthy body. And there is no delight above a joyful heart. {30:17} Death is better than a bitter life. And eternal rest is better than continual sickness. {30:18} Good things hidden in a closed mouth are like seats at a feast placed around a grave. {30:19} What benefit is there in an offering to an idol? For it can neither eat, nor smell. {30:20} So is he who flees from the Lord, carrying the wages of his iniquity. {30:21} He sees with his eyes and groans, like a eunuch who embraces a virgin and sighs. {30:22} You should not give your soul to sadness, and you should not afflict yourself by your own counsel. {30:23} The gladness of the heart is the life of a man, and it is a treasure of sanctity without defect. And the exultation of a man is length of life. {30:24} Take pity on your own soul by pleasing God, and show self-restraint. Gather your heart into his sanctity, and drive sadness far away from yourself. {30:25} For sadness has killed many, and there is no usefulness in it. {30:26} Envy and anger will diminish your days, and pensiveness will bring old age before its time. {30:27} A cheerful and good heart is like a feast. And its feasts are formed by diligence.

[Sirach 31] {31:1} Watching for wealth consumes the flesh, and thinking about it takes away sleep. {31:2} Anticipation in thought distracts the mind, and a grievous infirmity makes the soul sober. {31:3} The rich man has labored in gathering wealth, and in his rest, he will be filled with his goods. {31:4} The poor man has labored in his lowly way, and in the end, he may still be in need. {31:5} Whoever loves gold will not be justified. And whoever pursues consumption will be consumed by it. {31:6} Many have been caused to fall because of gold, and it became their ruin by its beauty. {31:7} Gold is a stumbling block to those who sacrifice for it. Woe to those who pursue it eagerly, for all the imprudent will perish by it. {31:8} Blessed is the rich man who is found to be without blemish. And blessed is he who has not gone after gold, nor placed his hope in money or treasures. {31:9} Who is he? For we should praise him. For he has done wonderful things in his life. {31:10} He has been tested by it, and has become perfect; he will have eternal glory. He was able to transgress, but he has not transgressed. He was able to do evil, but he has not done evil. {31:11} Therefore, his good things are established in the Lord, and the entire Church of the saints will proclaim his almsgiving. {31:12} Are you seated at a great table? You should not open your mouth over it first. {31:13} You should not speak in this way: “There are many things that are upon it.” {31:14} Remember that a wicked eye is evil. {31:15} What has been made more wicked than the eye? Therefore, when it sees, it will shed tears over the entire face. {31:16} You should not extend your hand first, for then, having been corrupted by envy, you would be ashamed. {31:17} You should not press forward at a feast. {31:18} Understand which things are your neighbor’s and not your own. {31:19} Make use of the things that are set before you, just as a frugal man would. Otherwise, if you eat much, you will be hated. {31:20} Cease eating first, for the sake of discipline. And do not eat to excess, lest you offend. {31:21} And if you sit in the midst of many, you should not extend your hand before they do, and you should not be the first to ask for a drink. {31:22} How sufficient is a little wine for a well-taught man! For in sleep, you will not labor because of it, and you will not feel pain. {31:23} Worry, and disease, and torment are with an intemperate man. {31:24} A healthy sleep is with a temperate man. He will sleep until morning, and his soul will be delighted with him. {31:25} And if you have been coaxed into eating too much, rise up, go outside, and vomit. And it will refresh you, and you will not bring sickness upon your body. {31:26} Listen to me, son, for you should not spurn me. And in the very end, you will discover my words. {31:27} In all your works, be prompt, and then no infirmity will befal you. {31:28} The lips of many will bless the splendid in bread. For the testimony of his truthfulness is faithful. {31:29} The city will murmur against the wicked in bread. For the testimony against his wickedness is true. {31:30} Do not choose to provoke those who love wine. For wine has destroyed many. {31:31} Fire tests the hardness of iron; similarly, drinking wine to inebriation will rebuke the hearts of the arrogant. {31:32} Drinking wine in sobriety gives a contented life to men. If you drink it in moderation, you will be sober. {31:33} What is life to him who is diminished by wine? {31:34} What can cheat him of his life? Death. {31:35} From the beginning, wine was created for cheerfulness, but not for inebriation. {31:36} Wine taken in moderation lifts up the mind and the heart. {31:37} Sober drinking is healthful to mind and body. {31:38} Wine taken in excess stirs up conflict and anger, and brings many to ruin. {31:39} Wine taken in excess is bitter to the soul. {31:40} The effects of inebriation are a stumbling block to the imprudent, diminishing strength and causing wounds. {31:41} You should not argue with your neighbor during a banquet of wine. And you should not spurn him in his cheerfulness. {31:42} You should not speak words of reproach to him. And you should not press him with repeated requests.
commandments. And whoever trusts in him will not be diminished.

[Sirach 33] {33:1} No evils will befall one who fears the Lord. Instead, God will preserve him during temptation and will free him from evils. {33:2} A wise man does not hate the commandments and the justices, and so he will not be thrown about violently, like a ship in a storm. {33:3} A man of understanding puts his faith in the law of God, and so the law is faithful to him. {33:4} Whoever would resolve a dispute will prepare a word, and so, having prayed, he will be heard. And he will observe discipline, and then he will respond. {33:5} The heart of a fool is like the wheel of a cart. And his thoughts are like a turning axel. {33:6} A friend who is a whisperer is like an untamed horse: he neighs under anyone who sits upon him. {33:7} Why does day follow day after day, and light follow after light, and year follow after year, in accord with the sun? {33:8} By the knowledge of the Lord, they were arranged, after the sun was made, in keeping with his command. {33:9} And so, the seasons changed, with their feast days. And according to them, they celebrated the feast days, in their hour. {33:10} Some of them, God exalted and sanctified, and some of them, he has cursed and brought low, according to their ways. {33:11} With a multitude of disciplines, the Lord has distinguished them and diversified their ways. {33:12} Some of them, he has blessed and exalted. And some of them he has sanctified and placed close to himself. And some of them, he has cursed and brought low, and he has turned them from their station. {33:13} Just as the clay is in the potter's hand, so as to form and to shape it, so are all his ways in accord with his dispensation, and so is man in the hand of the One who made him. And he will repay him according to his judgment. {33:14} Good is against evil, and life is against death; so also is a sinner against a just man. And so should you consider all the works of the Most High: two and two, and one against another. {33:15} And I awakened at the very end, and I was like one who gathers grapes after the grape-gatherers. {33:16} I, too, have hoped in the blessing of God. And I have filled the winepress like one who gathers grapes. {33:17} Consider how I have not labored for myself alone, but for all who are seeking discipline. {33:18} Listen to me, you great ones, with all the peoples. And incline your ears, you rulers of the Church. {33:19} You should not give authority over yourself to a son or wife, to a brother or friend, in your life. And you should not give your estate to another, lest perhaps you may regret it, and then you would be begging for the same. {33:20} While you are still living and breathing, let no one among all flesh change you. {33:21} For it is better if your children petition you, than if you look toward the hands of your children. {33:22} In all your works, be pre-eminent. {33:23} You should not allow a blemish upon your glory. On the day of the consummation of the days of your life, at the time of your passing, distribute your inheritance. {33:24} Fodder and a rod and a burden are for a donkey; bread and discipline and work are for a servant. {33:25} He works under discipline, and he seeks rest. Allow his hands to be idle, and he seeks liberty. {33:26} The yoke and the strap bend a stiff neck, and continual labors bend a servant. {33:27} Torture and chains are for a malevolent servant; send him to work, so that he may not be idle. {33:28} For idleness has taught much evil. {33:30} Appoint him to a task. For this is fitting for him. And if he will not be obedient, bend him with chains. But you should do no more than any flesh can bear. Truly, you should do nothing grievous without judgment. {33:31} If you have a faithful servant, let him be to you like your own soul. Treat him like a brother. For you have obtained him by the blood of your soul. {33:32} If you harm him unjustly, he will turn away and flee. {33:33} And then, when he lifts himself up and departs, you will not know whom to ask, or in what way to seek him.

[Sirach 34] {34:1} The hopes of a senseless man are empty and false; and dreams extol the imprudent. {34:2} Like one who chases a shadow and pursues the wind, so also is one who pays attention to lying visions. {34:3} In the vision of dreams, one thing represents another, as when a mask is before the face of a man. {34:4} What can be cleansed by the unclean? And what truth can be spoken from a lie? {34:5} Erroneous divinations and false signs and the dreams of evildoers are emptiness. {34:6} For your heart suffers from imagination, like a woman suffering in childbirth. Unless it is a visitation sent from the Most High, you should not set your heart upon it. {34:7} For dreams have caused many to go astray, and those who have hoped in them have fallen away. {34:8} The word of the law will be fulfilled without a lie, and wisdom will be made plain in the mouths of the faithful. {34:9} He who has not been tested, what does he know? A man with much experience will consider many things. And whoever has learned much will explain with understanding. {34:10} He who has no experience knows little. And he who has done many things has made many mistakes. {34:11} He who has not been tested, what kind of things can he know? He who has been deceived will be more cunning. {34:12} I have seen much by wandering, and the customs of many things. {34:13} At times, I have even been in danger of death because of these things, but I was freed by the grace of God. {34:14} The spirit of those who fear God is sought, and they will be blessed by his providence. {34:15} For their hope is in him who saves them, and the eyes of God are on those who love him. {34:16} Those who fear the Lord will tremble at nothing, and they will not be terrified. For he is their hope. {34:17} The soul of him who fears the Lord is blessed. {34:18} To whom should he look, and who is his strength? {34:19} The eyes of the Lord are upon those who fear him. He is a powerful Protector, a Firmament of virtue, a Shelter from the heat, and a Covering from the midday sun, a Guardian from offenses, and a Helper from falling, who exalts the soul and illuminates the eyes, and who gives health and life and blessing. {34:20} An immolation from iniquity is a stained oblation, and the derisions of the unjust are not well pleasing. {34:21} An immolation from the Most High does not approve of the gifts of the iniquitous. Neither does he have respect for the oblations of the unjust; neither will he forgive their sins because of the multitude of their sacrifices. {34:22} The Lord is only for those who persevere for him in the way of truth and justice. {34:23} The Most High does not approve of the gifts of the iniquitous. Neither does he have respect for the oblations of the unjust; neither will he forgive their sins because of the multitude of their sacrifices. {34:24} Whoever offers a sacrifice from the substance of the poor is like one who sacrifices the son in the sight of his father. {34:25} The bread of the indigent is the life of the poor. Whoever cheats them out of it is a man of blood. {34:26} Whoever takes away the bread of sweat is like one who kills his neighbor. {34:27} He who sheds blood, and he who cheats the hired hand out of his wages, are brothers.
When one builds and another destroys, what benefit do they have from their labor? When one prays and another curses, whose voice will God heed? He who washes himself after touching the dead, and then touches him again, what was the benefit of his washing? Similarly, a man who fasts for his sins, and then does the same again, what was the benefit of his humbling himself? Who will heed his prayer?

[Sirach 35] 35:1 Whoever observes the law multiplies oblations. 35:2 It is a salutary sacrifice to attend to the commandments and to withdraw from all iniquity. 35:3 And to depart from injustice is to offer a propitiatory sacrifice for injustices and a supplication for sins. 35:4 Whoever gives thanks, offers a gift of fine flour, and whoever acts with mercy, offers a sacrifice. 35:5 To withdraw from iniquity is well-pleasing to the Lord. And to withdraw from injustice is a supplication for sins. 35:6 You should not appear empty before the sight of the Lord. For all these things are to be done because of the commandment of God. 35:8 The oblation of the just fattens the altar, and is a fragrance of sweetness in the sight of the Most High. 35:9 The sacrifice of the just is acceptable, and the Lord will never forget the memorial of it. 35:10 Render glory to God with a good heart. And you should not reduce the first-fruits of your hands. 35:11 With every gift, have a cheerful countenance, and sanctify your tithes with exultation. 35:12 Give to the Most High according to his gifts to you, and act with a good eye toward the creations of your hands. 35:13 For the Lord gives recompense, and he will repay you seven times as much. 35:14 Do not be willing to offer corrupt gifts. For he will not accept them. 35:15 And do not be willing to consider an unjust sacrifice. For the Lord is the judge, and with him there is no favoritism toward anyone. 35:16 The Lord will not accept favoritism against the poor, but he will heed the prayer of one who has been harmed. 35:17 He will not despise the prayers of the orphan, nor of the widow, if she utters a lamenting complaint. 35:18 Do a widow's tears not run down her cheek? And will her outcry not cause their downfall? 35:19 For from her cheek, her tears ascend even to heaven. And the Lord, the One who listens, will not take delight in them. 35:20 Whoever adores God with joy will be accepted, and his prayer will reach even to the clouds. 35:21 The prayer of one who humbles himself will pierce the clouds. And it will not be consolled until it draws near; and it will not withdraw until the Most High beholds. 35:22 And the Lord will not delay, and he will judge for those who are just, and he will accomplish judgment. And the Almighty will not have patience with them, so that he may crush their back. 35:23 And he will repay vengeance to the Gentiles, until he has taken away the multitude of the arrogant, and broken the scepters of the iniquitous, until he has rendered to men according to their deeds, and according to the works of Adam, and according to his presumption, until he has judged the judgment of his people. And he will delight the just with his mercy. 35:26 The mercy of God is beautiful in the time of tribulation, like a rain cloud in the time of drought.

[Sirach 36] 36:1 O God of all, take pity on us, and look with favor on us, and show us the light of your compassion. 36:2 And send your fear upon the Gentiles, who have not sought you, so that they may acknowledge that there is no God except you, and so that they may declare your great deeds. 36:3 Lift up your hand over unbelieving nations, so that they may see your power. 36:4 For just as, in their sight, you have been sanctified in us, so also, in our sight, you will be magnified in them. 36:5 So may they know you, as we also have known you. For there is no God apart from you, O Lord. 36:6 Renew your signs, and work new wonders. 36:7 Glorify your hand and your right arm. Stir up your fury, and pour out your wrath. Take away our adversary, and afflict our enemy. 36:10 Hasten the time, and remember the end, so that they may declare your miracles. 36:11 Let those who escape be devoured by the wrath of fire. And let those who harass your people find perdition. 36:12 Crush the head of the leaders of the enemies, for they say: “There is no other beside us.” 36:13 Gather together all the tribes of Jacob, so that they may acknowledge that there is no God except you, and so that they may declare your great deeds. And you will inherit them, as from the beginning. 36:14 Take pity on your people, over whom your name has been invoked, and on Israel, whom you have treated as your firstborn. 36:15 Take pity on Jerusalem, the city of your sanctification, the city of your rest. 36:16 Fill Zion with your ineffable words, and fill your people with your glory. 36:17 Give testimony to those who have been your creations from the beginning, and lift up the prophecies which the former prophets spoke in your name. 36:18 Give a reward to those who endure for you, so that your prophets may be found to be faithful. And heed the prayers of your servants, in accord with the blessing of Aaron over your people. And direct us in the way of justice, and let all who inhabit the earth know that you are God, the Beholder of all ages. 36:20 The belly can devour any food, yet one meal is better than another. The palate tests the meat of wild animals, and the understanding heart tests false words. 36:22 A corrupt heart will cause grief, and a man of experience will resist it. 36:23 A woman can receive any male, yet one daughter is better than another. 36:24 The beauty of a wife cheers the face of her husband, and rises above his desire, above all the desires of man. 36:25 If she offers healing words, then she both comforts and shows mercy; and so her husband is not like other men. 36:26 He who holds to a good wife establishes a possession. She is a helper in agreement with him, and she is a pillar of rest. 36:27 Where there is no hedge, a possession will be trampled. And where there is no wife, he will mourn her absence. 36:28 Who will trust one who has no nest, and who conceals himself wherever his course may take him, like a well-equipped robber passing from city to city?
You should not forget your friend in your soul, and you should not be unmindful of him in your wealth. Do not choose to consult with someone who waits in ambush for you. And hide your counsel from those who rival you. Every counselor offers advice, but some are counselors only for themselves. Guard your soul from a counselor. And know beforehand what his interests are. For he will form thoughts from his own soul. Otherwise, he may set a signpost in the ground, and he may say to you: “Your own way is good.” But then he will stand at a distance to see what befalls you. Do not discuss holiness with an irreligious man, nor justice with one who is unjust. You should not speak with a woman about her who is a rival, nor with a coward about war, nor with a merchant about exaggeration, nor with a buyer about selling, nor with a spiteful man about giving thanks, nor with the impious about piety, nor with the dishonest about honesty, nor with the field worker about other kinds of work, nor with a worker hired for a year about the end of the year, nor with a lazy servant about great works. You should pay no heed to these persons in any matter of counsel. But be continually with a holy man, with anyone whom you know to observe the fear of God. Whose soul is in agreement with your own soul, and who, when you falter in the dark, will share your sorrows. And establish a heart of good counsel within yourself. For there is nothing of greater usefulness to you than this. At any time, the soul of a holy man declares more truths than seven vigilant watchmen sitting in a high place. But concerning all things, pray to the Most High, so that he may direct your way in truth. In all your works, let a true word precede you, with steadfast counsel before every deed. A wicked word can change the heart. From the heart four kinds of things arise: good and evil, life and death. And the tongue is continually their ruler. There is a man who is an astute teacher of many, and yet this is useless to his own soul. A man of experience has taught many, and this is pleasant to his own soul. Whoever speaks mere rhetoric is hateful; he will be deceived in every matter. Grace is not given to him from the Lord. There is a wise man who is wise within his own soul, and the fruit of his understanding is praiseworthy. A wise man instructs his own people, and the fruit of his understanding is faithful. A wise man will be filled with blessings, and those who see will praise him. The life of a man is in the number of his days. But the days of Israel are innumerable. A wise man will inherit honor among the people, and his name will live in eternity. Son, test your own heart in your life, and if it is lacking, you should not give it authority. For not all things are fitting for all persons, and not every kind of thing is agreeable to every soul. Do not choose to be eager during any feast, and you should not act with excess toward any food. For in excessive eating there will be infirmity, and gluttony will continue even unto illness. By excessive drinking, many have passed away. But he who abstains will add to his life.

Honor the physician because of necessity, and because the Most High created him. For all healing is from God, and so he will receive gifts from the King. The expertise of the physician will lift up his head, and in the sight of great men, he will be praised. The Most High has created medicines from the earth, and a prudent man will not abhor them. Was not bitter water made sweet with wood? The benefits of these things is recognized by men, and the Most High has given this knowledge to men, so that he may be honored in his wonders. By these things, he will cure or mitigate their suffering, and the pharmacist will make soothing ointments, and he will form healing medicines, and there will be no end to his works. For the peace of God is upon the surface of the earth. Son, in your infirmity, you should not neglect yourself, but pray to the Lord, and he will cure you. Turn away from sin, and direct your hands, and cleanse your heart from every offenses. Give a sweet offering, and a memorial of fine flour, and fatten your oblation, but also give a place to the physician. For the Lord created him. And so, do not let him depart from you, for his works are necessary. For there is a time when you may fall into their hands. Truly, they will beseech the Lord, so that he may direct their treatments and cures, for the sake of their way of life. He who sins in the sight of the One who made him will fall into the hands of the physician. Son, shed tears over the dead, and begin to weep, as if you had suffered dreadfully. And according to judgment, cover his body, and you should not neglect his burial. And though you will sink down into bitterness, bear his mourning for one day, and then be consoled in your sadness. And carry out his mourning, according to his merit, for one or two days because of this loss. Yet sadness hastens death and overcomes strength, and the sorrow of the heart bows down the neck. When one is taken away, sorrow remains. But the resources of a destitute man is found in his heart. You should not give your heart over to sadness, but push it away from you. And remember the very end. Do not be willing to forget this; for there is no turning back. Otherwise, it will not benefit you, and you will cause great harm to yourself. Call to mind my judgment. For so shall it be for you also. Yesterday is mine, and today is yours. When the deceased is at rest, let his memory rest also. And console him at the departure of his spirit. The wisdom of a scribe is found in his time of leisure. So whoever has less to do will gain wisdom. With what wisdom will someone be filled who holds the plow, and who boasts of the cattle prod that drives the oxen forward, and who is occupied in these labors, and whose only conversation is about the offspring of bulls? He will give his mind over to the plowing of furrows, and his vigilance to the fattening of the cows. Similarly, every craftsman and artisan, who crafts in the night as well as in the day, who sculpts graven seals, and who, by his diligence, varies the image, will give his mind over to the likeness of the image. And he will complete the work by his vigilance. The blacksmith, sitting by his anvil and considering a work of iron, is similar. The steam from the fire sings his flesh, and he struggles against the heat of the furnace. The voice of the hammer is ever in his ears, and his eye is upon the pattern of the ironwork. He gives his heart to the completion of his work, and his vigilance adorns it to perfection. The potter, sitting at his work and turning the wheel with his feet, is similar. He has settled into a continual concern for his work, and there is a rhythm in all that he does. {38:33} He forms the clay with his arm, and he bends his strength over his feet. {38:34} He will give his heart over to the completion of the glazing, and his vigilance to the cleansing of the furnace. {38:35} All these persons trust in their own hands, and each one is wise in his own art. {38:36} Without these persons, a city is not built. {38:37} But they will neither inhabit nor walk around in the city. And they will not go across to the church. {38:38} They will not sit upon the seats of judges, and they will not understand a decree of judgment. And they will not make clear discipline and judgment, and they will not be found to understand parables. {38:39} But they will strengthen the state of the world, and their prayer will be in their artistic works, applying their soul, and searching the law of the Most High.

[Sirach 39] {39:1} A wise man will seek the wisdom of all the ancients, and he will be occupied in the prophets. {39:2} He will preserve the words of renowned men, and he will enter with them into the subtleties of parables. {39:3} He will search for the hidden meanings of proverbs, and he will become familiar with the mysteries of parables. {39:4} He will minister in the midst of great men, and he will appear in the sight of the foremost leader. {39:5} He will pass through the land of foreign nations. For he will test good and evil the sight of the foremost leader. {39:6} At first light, he will offer his heart with watchfulness to the Lord who made him, and he will pray in the sight of the Most High. {39:7} He will open his mouth in prayer, and he will make supplication for his offenses. {39:8} For if the great Lord is willing, he will fill him with the Spirit of understanding. {39:9} And he will send forth the eloquence of his wisdom like rain showers, and in his prayer, he will confess to the Lord. {39:10} And he will direct his counsel and his discipline, and he will meditate on his mysteries. {39:11} He will make the discipline of his doctrine clear, and he will glory in the law of the covenant of the Lord. {39:12} Many persons will together praise his wisdom, and it will never be abolished, for all ages. {39:13} The memory of him will not fade away, and his name will be sought from generation to generation. {39:14} The peoples will declare his wisdom, and the Church will announce his praise. {39:15} While he remains, he leaves behind a name greater than a thousand, and when he will rest, it will be to his benefit. {39:16} I will meditate further, so that I may explain. For I have been filled with a passion. {39:17} In a voice, he says: Listen to me, divine fruits. You shall bear fruit, like roses planted beside streams of waters. {39:18} You shall have a sweet fragrance, like the cedars of Lebanon. {39:19} Blossom with flowers, like the lily, and diffuse a fragrance, and sprout leaves in grace, and give praise with canticles, and bless the Lord in his works. {39:20} Give magnificence to his name, and confess to him with the voice of your lips and with the canticles of your mouth and with stringed instruments. And in so praising him, you will confess: {39:21} All the works of the Lord are very good. {39:22} At his word, the waters stood still, as if piled together. And at the words of his mouth, the waters were contained, as if in basins of water. {39:23} For it is made pleasing by his precept, and there is no decrease in his salvation. {39:24} The works of all flesh are in his sight, and there is nothing hidden from his eyes. {39:25} His gaze is from eternity to eternity, and nothing is a wonder in his sight. {39:26} Let it not be said: “What is this?” or, “What is that?” For all things will be sought in their time. {39:27} His blessing has overflowed like a river. {39:28} In the same way that a flood inundates the dry land, so also will his wrath inherit the peoples that have not sought him. {39:29} In the same way that he turned the waters into dry land, and made the earth dry, and just as his ways have been directed for their journey, so also will sinners stumble before his wrath. {39:30} From the beginning, good things were created for those who are good, and similarly, good and evil things are for those who are wicked. {39:31} The principal things necessary for the life of men are: water, fire, and iron, salt, milk, and flour for bread, and honey, and the grape cluster, and oil, and clothing. {39:32} All these things will be used for good by those who are holy, but they will be turned to evil use by the impious and by sinners. {39:33} There are spirits that have been created for vengeance, and they strengthen their torments by their fury. {39:34} In the time of the consummation, they will pour forth their strength. And they will appease the fury of the One who made them. {39:35} Fire, hail, famine, and death: all these were created for vengeance. {39:36} The teeth of wild beasts, and scorpions, and serpents, and the spear: all these take vengeance upon the impious, unto utter destruction. {39:37} At his command, they will feast. And they will be prepared upon the earth until they are needed. And in their time, they will not ignore his word. {39:38} For this reason, from the beginning, I was strengthened, and I have meditated, and I have considered, and I have put these things in writing. {39:39} All the works of the Lord are good, and he will provide for each work in its own hour. {39:40} Let it not be said: “This is worse than that.” For all things will be tested in their time. {39:41} And now, with the whole heart and mouth, give praise to him, and bless the name of the Lord.

[Sirach 40] {40:1} A great occupation was created for all men, and a heavy yoke is upon the sons of Adam, from the day of their departure from their mother’s womb, even until the day of their burial into the mother of all: {40:2} their thoughts, and the fears of their heart, their imagined expectations, and the day of their end, {40:3} from him who sits upon a glorious throne, even to him who is humbled in earth and ashes, {40:4} from him who wears hyacinth and bears a crown, even to him who is covered with rough linen: wrath, envy, tumult, restlessness, and the fear of death, continual anger and contention. {40:5} And in the time of rest upon his bed, the sleep of the night changes his knowledge. {40:6} There is little or no rest, and sleep is taken from him, as if on a day of keeping watch. {40:7} He is disturbed by a vision of his heart, as if he had escaped in a day of warfare. In the time of his salvation, he rose up and wondered that there was no fear. {40:8} This is so with all flesh, from man even to cattle, but upon sinners it is seven times as great. {40:9} Add to this: death, bloodshed, contention, and the spear, oppression, famine, and affliction, and scourges. {40:10} All these things have been created because of iniquity, and it is due to iniquity that the great flood was made. {40:11} All things that are of the earth shall return to the earth, and all waters shall return to the sea. {40:12} All bribery and iniquity will be wiped away, but faith shall stand forever. {40:13} The substance of the unjust will dry up like a river, and will pass away with a noise like loud thunder in a rainstorm. {40:14} When he opens his hands, he will rejoice. So will transgressors pass away at the consummation. {40:15} The descendents of the impious will not produce many branches, for they may be compared to dirty roots at the edge of a rock. {40:16} The weeds, which grow above every water and beside the banks of the river, will be uprooted before all the grass. {40:17} Grace is like a paradise of blessings, and mercy continues for eternity. {40:18} The life of a worker, when content with what is sufficient, will become sweet, and in it you will find a treasure. {40:19} Sons, and the building of a city, will establish a name, but an immaculate wife will be ranked above these things. {40:20} Wine and music rejoice the heart, but the love of wisdom is above them both. {40:22} Your eye desires elegance and beauty, but verdant fields are above these things. {40:23} A friend and a companion meet one another in time, but above them both is a wife with her husband. {40:24} Brothers are a help in time of tribulation, but mercy will liberate, more so than they will. {40:25} Gold and silver provide a firm position for the feet, but well-spoken counsel is above them both. {40:26} Ability and strength lift up the heart, but the fear of the Lord is above these things. {40:27} There is no loss in the fear of the Lord, and it has no need to ask for assistance. {40:28} The fear of the Lord is like a paradise of blessings, and they have covered it above all glory. {40:29} Son, in your lifetime you should not be indigent, for it is better to die than to be destitute. {40:30} The life of him who looks to another man’s table should not be thought of as a way of life. For he feeds his life with another man’s food. {40:31} But a disciplined and well-taught man will take care of himself. {40:32} Scarcity will seem sweet to the mouth of the imprudent, but a fire will burn in his belly.

[Sirach 41] {41:1} O death, how bitter is the memory of you: to a man who has peace in his substance, {41:2} to a quiet man, and to him whose ways are directed properly in all things, and who still has the strength to take nourishment. {41:3} O death, your judgment is good to the indigent man, and to him whose strength has diminished. {41:4} who is failing due to old age, and who is anxious about all things, and to the unbelieving man who has lost patience. {41:5} Do not choose to dread the judgment of death. Remember the things that occurred before you, and the things that will occur after you. This judgment is from the Lord upon all flesh. {41:6} And what will happen to you is well-pleasing to the Most High, whether in ten, or one hundred, or one thousand years. {41:7} For death is no indictment of life. {41:8} The sons of sinners, and those who pass their time in the manner of the houses of the impious, become sons of abominations. {41:9} The inheritance of the sons of sinners will perish, and continual disgrace will be with their offspring. {41:10} The sons of an impious father will complain, for they are in disgrace because of him. {41:11} Woe to you, impious men, who have abandoned the law of the Most High Lord! {41:12} And when you are born, you will be born into a curse; and when you die, your portion will be in a curse. {41:13} All things that are from the earth shall return to the earth. Similarly, the impious will proceed from a curse unto perdition. {41:14} The grieving of men is in their body, but the name of the impious will be wiped away. {41:15} Have concern for your good name. For this will continue with you, more so than a thousand precious and great treasures. {41:16} A good life has its number of days, but a good name will continue forever. {41:17} Sons, practice discipline peacefully. For what use is there in either concealed wisdom, or undiscovered treasure? {41:18} Better is the man who hides his foolishness than the man who hides his wisdom. {41:19} Yet truly, have respect for these things which proceed from my mouth. {41:20} For it is not good to observe every reverence. And all things do not please all persons in their beliefs. {41:21} Have shame of these things: of fornication before father and mother, and of a lie before the first leader and the powerful, {41:22} of a crime before a ruler or a judge, of iniquity before a congregation or a people, {41:23} of injustice before a companion or a friend, and of the place in which you live, {41:24} of theft, and of the truth before God, and of the covenant, of reclining to eat bread, and of deceitfulness in giving or receiving, {41:25} of silence before those who greet you, of looking upon a woman of fornication, and of averting your face from a relative. {41:26} You should not avert your face from your neighbor, nor should you take away a portion and not restore it. {41:27} You should not stare at another man’s wife, and nor pursue his handmaid, nor approach her bed. {41:28} Avoid reproachful speeches before friends, and when you give, you should not place blame.

[Sirach 42] {42:1} You should not repeat a claim heard from the revealing of a hidden word. And then, truly, you will be without shame, and you will find favor in the sight of all men. You should not accept the reputation of someone, so that you would sin, nor should you be confounded in any of the following things: {42:2} in the law of the Most High and his covenant, or by giving a judgment to justify the impious; {42:3} in a word among companions and fellow travelers, or by distributing the inheritance of friends; {42:4} in the fairness of scales and weights, or in acquiring much or little; {42:5} by the corruption of buying and negotiating, or in the ample discipline of children, or in causing the side of a wicked servant to bleed. {42:6} A seal is good over a wicked wife. {42:7} Where there are many hands, seal and deliver all things by number and weight; and truly, give and receive everything in writing. {42:8} You should not have shame in correcting the senseless, the foolish, and those youths who would judge their elders. And so shall you be well-instructed in all things and well-approved in the sight of all the living. {42:9} The vigilance of a father for his daughter is hidden, and his concern for her takes away his sleep. For perhaps, in her adolescence, she might be brought into adulthood. Or when she lives with her husband, she might become hateful. {42:10} In her virginity, she might be defiled, and then she may be found to be pregnant in her father’s house. Or perhaps, when she lives with her husband, she might stray, or at least become barren. {42:11} Keep a close watch over a self-indulgent daughter. Otherwise, at some time, she might bring you into disgrace before your enemies, and into disrepute in the city, and into reproach among the people, and so she may confound you before the multitude of the people. {42:12} She should not choose to gaze upon the beauty of every man, and she should not choose to spend her time in the midst of married women. {42:13} For a moth goes forth from garments, and iniquity over a man goes forth from a woman. {42:14} Yet iniquity over a man is better for her than if a married woman, seeking to benefit her, instead leads her into confusion and disgrace. {42:15} And now, I will remember the works of the Lord, and I will announce what I have seen. The words of the Lord are in his works. {42:16} The sun illuminates and considers all things, and its work shows the fullness of the glory of the Lord. {42:17} Has not the Lord caused the holy ones to describe all his miracles, which the all-powerful Lord has firmly established in his glory? {42:18} He has examined the abyss and the hearts of men. And he has considered their astuteness. {42:19} For the Lord comprehends all knowledge, and he has gazed upon the signs of the times: announcing the things of the past, as well as the things of the future, and revealing the traces of hidden things. {42:20} No thought passes by him unnoticed, and no word can conceal itself from him. {42:21} He has adorned the magnificent works of his wisdom. He is before eternity and even unto eternity. And nothing can be added, {42:22} and nothing can be taken away. And he has no need of any counselor. {42:23} O how desirable are all his works! And all that we consider is but a spark. {42:24} All these works exist, and they remain in the present age, and they all obey him in every purpose. {42:25} All things are two-fold, one facing another, and he has not made anything to be lacking. {42:26} He has confirmed each thing as good. And who would tire of beholding his glory?

[Sirach 43] {43:1} The firmament on high is his beauty; it is the beauty of heaven in a vision of glory. {43:2} The sun, at its appearance, announces its journey; it is an instrument of wonder, a work of the Most High. {43:3} At midday, it scorches the earth. And in the presence of its heat, who would be able to endure? It is like the custodian of a furnace in its works of heat. {43:4} In three ways, the sun acts: scorching the mountains, emitting fiery rays, and shining with its beams that can blind the eyes. {43:5} Great is the Lord who made it, and at his word, it hurries on its journey. {43:6} And the moon, in all its phases, serves to mark the seasons and to be a sign of the times. {43:7} From the moon is the sign of a feast day; it is a light which diminishes at its consummation. {43:8} A month is named according to its appearance, announces its journey; it is an instrument of prudence, with very holy prophets. {43:9} It is an instrument of the armies on high, shining gloriously in the firmament of heaven. {43:10} The glory of the stars is the beauty of heaven; the Lord illuminates the world from on high. {43:11} At the words of the Holy One, they stand for judgment, and they will never fail in their vigilance. {43:12} Consider the rainbow, and bless the One who made it; it is very beautiful in its splendor. {43:13} It encompasses the heavens with the circle of its glory; the hands of the Most High made it appear. {43:14} By his order, he hastens the snow, and he spurs on the lightning to express his judgment. {43:15} In like manner, his storehouses are opened, and the clouds fly out like birds. {43:16} By his greatness, he has positioned the clouds, and the hailstones have been broken. {43:17} At his glance, the mountains will be shaken, and by his will, the south wind will blow. {43:18} The voice of his thunder will reverberate through the earth, by a storm from the north, and by a gathering of the whirlwind. {43:19} And like the birds landing in a flock upon the earth, he sends down the snow; and its descent is like the arrival of a swarm of locusts. {43:20} The eye is in wonder at the beauty of its whiteness, and the heart is astonished at its falling. {43:21} He will pour out frost like salt upon the earth. And when it freezes, it will become like the tops of thistles. {43:22} The cold north wind blows, and the water freezes into crystals; it will rest upon every gathering of water, and it will clothe the water like a breastplate. {43:23} And it will devour the mountains, and burn the wilderness, and extinguish the greenery, like a fire. {43:24} Relief for all is in the hurried arrival of a cloud. And the lowly dew will arrive to meet the heat and overpower it. {43:25} At his word, the wind grows quiet, and by his thought, he appeases the abyss, for the Lord has planted islands in it. {43:26} Let those who navigate the sea describe its perils. And when we have heard it with our ears, we will wonder. {43:27} There are illustrious and wondrous works: the various kinds of wild animals, and all manner of cattle, and the great creatures of the sea. {43:28} Through him, the end of their journey is confirmed, and by his word, all things fit together. {43:29} We can say much, and yet still lack for words. But the consummation of our words is this: He is in all things. {43:30} What would we be able to do to glorify him? For the Almighty himself is above all his own works. {43:31} The Lord is terrible, and exceedingly great, and his power is wonderful. {43:32} Glorify the Lord as much as you are able, yet still he will far exceed this. For his magnificence is beyond wonder. {43:33} Bless the Lord and exalt him, as much as you are able. But he is beyond all praise. {43:34} When you exalt him, use all your ability, and do not cease in this labor. For you can never comprehend him. {43:35} Who will see him and explain? And who will magnify him, as he is from the beginning? {43:36} There are many things, hidden from us, which are greater than these things. For we have seen but a few of his works. {43:37} But the Lord has made all things, and he has given wisdom to those who act with piety.

[Sirach 44] {44:1} Let us praise the men of glory, and our ancestors in their generation. {44:2} The Lord has wrought great glory, by his own magnificence, from ancient times. {44:3} There are those who rule with their authority, men of great virtue, who are gifted with prudence. There are those who announce among the prophets, with the dignity of priests. {44:4} And there are those who rule over the present generation, by the virtue of prudence, with very holy words for the people. {44:5} There are those who, by their skill, compose musical themes, so as to set the verses of Scripture to music. {44:6} There are men rich in virtue, who make a study of beauty, who live in peacefulness in their houses. {44:7} All these obtained glory in their generations, and they had praise in their days. {44:8} They left behind a name for those who were born of them, so that their praises might be described. {44:9} But for some of them, there is no memorial. They have passed away as if they had never existed; and they have become as if they had never been born, and their sons along with them. {44:10} But these were men of mercy, whose pious deeds have not failed. {44:11} Good things continue with their offspring. {44:12} Their descendents are a holy inheritance, and their offspring stand firm in the covenants. {44:13} And because of them, their descendents are a holy inheritance, and their offspring stand firm in the covenants. {44:14} Their bodies were buried in peace, and their name lives on, from generation to generation. {44:15} Let the people declare their wisdom, and let the Church announce their praise. {44:16} Enoch pleased God, and he was transferred to Paradise, so that he might offer repentance to the nations. {44:17} Noah was found to be perfect and just, and so, in the time of wrath, he was made a reconciliation. {44:18} As a result, there was a remnant left for the earth, when the great flood was made. {44:19} The covenants of the world were placed with him, so that all flesh would not be wiped away by the great flood. {44:20} Abraham was the great father of a multitude of nations, and no one was found to be like him in glory. He observed the law of the Most High, and he formed a covenant with him. {44:21} In his flesh, he caused the covenant to stand, and when tested, he was found to be faithful. {44:22} Therefore, by an oath, he gave glory to him among his people, so as to increase him like the dust of the earth, {44:23} and to exalt his offspring like the stars, and to give an inheritance to them from sea to sea, and from the river even to the ends of the earth. {44:24} And he acted in like manner toward Isaac, because of his father Abraham. {44:25} The Lord gave the blessing of all the nations to him, and he confirmed his covenant upon the head of Jacob. {44:26} He acknowledged him in his blessings, and he gave an inheritance to him, and he distributed to him the portion of the twelve tribes. {44:27} And he preserved for him men of mercy, who were found to have grace before the eyes of all flesh.

[Sirach 45] {45:1} Moses was beloved by God and men. The remembrance of him is a blessing. {45:2} He made him like the holy ones in glory, and he magnified him by the fear of his enemies, and he appeased great portents by his words. {45:3} He glorified him in the sight of kings, and he gave commandments to him in the sight of his people, and he revealed his glory to him. {45:4} He made him holy by his faith and meekness, and he chose him from among all flesh. {45:5} For he heard him and his voice, and he led him into a cloud. {45:6} And he gave him precepts in his presence, with a law of life and discipline, so as to teach Jacob his covenant and Israel his judgments. {45:7} He exalted his brother Aaron and those who were similar to him from the tribe of Levi. {45:8} He established an eternal covenant with him, and he gave him the priesthood of the people, and he caused him to be blessed in glory. {45:9} And he encircled him with a glorious belt, and he clothed him with a robe of glory, and he crowned him with virtuous attire. {45:10} He placed upon him a garment to the feet, and pants, and an ephod, and he wrapped him all around with many little bells of gold, {45:11} so that there would be a sound at his arrival, and so as to make a noise that would be heard in the temple, as a memorial for the sons of his people. {45:12} He provided him with a holy robe of gold and hyacinth and purple, a woven work for a wise man of judgment and truth, {45:13} a work of twisted scarlet, the work of an artist, with precious stones, cut and set in gold, and engraved by the work of a jeweler, as a memorial according to the number of the tribes of Israel. {45:14} He provided him with a crown of gold upon his headdress, on which was written a symbol of holiness, a mark of honor. This was a work of virtue and a delight to the eyes in its beauty. {45:15} Prior to him, there was no one of such beauty, even from the beginning. {45:16} No foreigner was ever clothed with these things, but only his sons and his descendents alone, for all time. {45:17} His sacrifices were consumed by fire daily. {45:18} Moses filled his hands and anointed him with holy oil. {45:19} An eternal covenant was made, with him and with his offspring, like the days of heaven, to execute the office of the priesthood, and to give praise and to glorify his people, in his name. {45:20} He chose him from among all living men to offer to God sacrifice, incense, and a pleasing fragrance, as a memorial of appeasement on behalf of his people. {45:21} And he gave him authority by his precepts, in the covenants of his judgments, to teach Jacob his testimonies, and to give light by his law to Israel. {45:22} Then strangers stood up against him, and, because of envy, the men who were with Dathan and Abiram surrounded him in the desert, along with the congregation of Korah, in their anger. {45:23} The Lord God saw this, and it did not please him, and so they were consumed by the force of his anger. {45:24} He wrought great portents among them, and he consumed them with a flame of fire. {45:25} And he added glory to Aaron, and he gave him an inheritance, and he allotted to him the first-fruits of the earth. {45:26} He prepared for them the finest bread unto fullness. And they shall also eat from the sacrifices of the Lord, which he gave to him and to his offspring. {45:27} And yet he will not have an inheritance among the people of the land, and he has no portion among the people. For the Lord himself is his portion and his inheritance. {45:28} Phinehas, the son of Eleazar, is third in glory, by imitating him in the fear of the Lord. {45:29} And he stood up against the shamefulness of the people. By the goodness and responsiveness of his soul, he appeased God on behalf of Israel. {45:30} For this reason, he made him a covenant of peace, a leader of the sanctuary and of his people, so that the dignity of the priesthood would remain with him and with his offspring unto eternity. {45:31} And he made a covenant with king David, the son of Jesse from the tribe of Judah, an inheritance for him and for his offspring, so that he might provide wisdom for our hearts, so as to judge his people in justice, lest their good things be abolished. And he caused their glory within their nation to be everlasting.

[Sirach 46] {46:1} Joshua, the son of Nun, was valiant in warfare; he was the successor of Moses among the prophets. He was great in accord with his name, {46:2} very great in the saving the elect of God. He fought against the insurgent enemies, so that he might obtain the inheritance for Israel. {46:3} What great glory he secured, by lifting up his hands and throwing his spears against the cities! {46:4} Who before him has stood so firmly? For the Lord himself led forward the enemies. {46:5} Was not the sun halted by his wrath, and one day made as if two? {46:6} He called upon the Most High Power, when the enemies assailed him on every side. And the great and holy God answered him with hailstones of exceedingly great force. {46:7} He made a violent assault against a hostile nation, and at his descent, he destroyed his adversaries, {46:8} so that the nations would acknowledge his power: that it is not easy to fight against God. And he followed the Almighty. {46:9} And in the days of Moses, he accomplished a work of mercy. He and Caleb, the son of Jephuneh, stood against the enemy, and forbid the people from sin, and broke their wicked murmuring. {46:10} And these two, having been appointed, were freed from peril, from foot soldiers numbering six hundred thousand, so as to lead them into their inheritance, into a land flowing with milk and honey. {46:11} And the Lord gave strength to Caleb also, and his strength remained even in his old age, so that he ascended to the high places of the land, and his offspring obtained it as an inheritance. {46:12} This was so that all the sons of Israel would see that it is good to obey the holy God. {46:13} Then there were the judges, each one called by name, whose heart was not corrupted. They did not turn away from the Lord, {46:14} so that their memory might be blessed, and their bones might spring forth from their place, {46:15} and their name might remain forever, continuing in their sons, holy men of glory. {46:16} Samuel, prophet of the Lord, beloved by the Lord his God, established a new government, and he appointed leaders over his people. {46:17} By the law of the Lord, he judged the congregation, and the God of Jacob saw it, and so, by his fidelity, he was proven to be a prophet. {46:18} And he was known to be faithful in his words. For he saw the God of light. {46:19} And when fighting against the enemies, who stood against him on every side, he called upon the name of the Almighty Lord, with an offering of an inviolate lamb. {46:20} And the Lord thundered from heaven, and with a great noise, he made his voice to be heard. {46:21} And he crushed the leaders of the Tyrians, and all the commanders of the Philistines. {46:22} And before the time of the end of his life in the world, he offered testimony in the sight of the Lord and of his Christ, that he had not taken a bribe from any flesh, not even so much as a shoe, and that no man made an accusation against him. {46:23} And after this, he slept. And he made known to the king and revealed to him the end of his life. And he lifted up his voice from the earth in prophecy, to abolish the impiety of the people.

[Sirach 47] {47:1} After these things, Nathan the prophet arose, in the days of David. {47:2} And just as fat is separated from meat, so was David separated from the sons of Israel. {47:3} He played with lions, as if with lambs, and he acted similarly with bears, as if they were lambs of the flock, in his youth. {47:4} Did he not kill the giant, and take away the reproach from his people? {47:5} By lifting up his hand, with a stone in a sling, he threw down the boasting of Goliath. {47:6} For he called upon the Almighty Lord, and he swore with his right hand to take away the mighty man of war, and to exalt the horn of his people. {47:7} So he glorified him amid ten thousand, and he praised him with the blessings of the Lord, by offering him a crown of glory. {47:8} For he crushed the enemies on every side, and he eradicated his adversaries, the Philistines, even to this day. He broke their horn, even for all time. {47:9} In all his works, he gave thanks to the Holy One, to the Most High, with words of glory. {47:10} With all his heart, he praised the Lord and he loved God, who made him and who gave him power against his enemies. {47:11} And he appointed singers to stand opposite the altar, and by their voices he provided sweet music. {47:12} And he provided beauty for the celebrations, and he gave order to the times, even until the end of his life, so that they would praise the holy name of the Lord, and magnify the sanctity of God, from early morning. {47:13} The Lord purged his sins, and he exalted his horn forever. And he gave him the covenant of the kingdom, and a throne of glory in Israel. {47:14} After him, an understanding son rose up. And by means of him, he cast down all the power of the enemies. {47:15} Solomon reigned in days of peace, and God subjected all his enemies to him, so that he might build a house in his name, and prepare a sanctuary for all time. O how well-taught you were in your youth! {47:16} And you were filled with wisdom like a river, and your mind exposed the world. {47:17} And you explained mysteries by means of parables. Your name became known to far off islands, and you were beloved for your peace. {47:18} The earth was in wonder over your canticles, and proverbs, and parables, and interpretations, {47:19} and over the name of the Lord God, who is known as the God of Israel. {47:20} You gathered gold like copper, and you multiplied silver like lead. {47:21} But you bent your thigh to women, and you were held by the power of your body. {47:22} You brought a stain upon your glory, and you profaned your seed, so as to bring wrath upon your children, and to incite your foolishness, {47:23} so that you would cause the kingdom to be divided, and an obstinate kingdom to rule from Ephraim. {47:24} But God will not abandon his mercy, nor will he corrupt or abolish his own works. And he will not perish the stock of the descendents of his elect. And he will not destroy the offspring of him who loves the Lord. {47:25} Therefore, he left behind a remnant for Jacob and for David, from the same stock. {47:26} And Solomon had his end with his fathers. {47:27} And he left behind himself some of his offspring, as the folly of the nation: {47:28} both Rehoboam, who had little prudence, and who turned away the people by his counsel, {47:29} and Jeroboam, the son of Nebat, who caused Israel to sin, and who provided a way of sin to Ephraim. And their sins were multiplied exceedingly. {47:30} They thoroughly turned them away from their own land. {47:31} And they sought every kind of wickedness, even until punishment overwhelmed them, and freed them from every kind of sin.

[Sirach 48] {48:1} And the prophet Elijah arose like a fire, and his word burned like a torch. {48:2} He brought a famine upon them, and those who provoked him in their envy became few. For they could not bear the precepts of the Lord. {48:3} By the word of the Lord, he closed the heavens, and he brought down fire from heaven three times. {48:4} In this way, Elijah was magnified in his wondrous works. So who can say that he is similar to you in glory? {48:5} He raised up a dead man from the grave, from the fate of death, by the word of the Lord God. {48:6} He threw down kings unto perdition, and he easily shattered their power and boasting from his bed. {48:7} He heeded the judgment at Sinai, and the judgments of punishment at Horeb. {48:8} He anointed kings unto repentance, and he chose the prophets who would follow after him. {48:9} He was received into a whirlwind of fire, into a swift chariot with fiery horses. {48:10} He is written in the judgments of the times, so as to lessen the wrath of the Lord, to reconcile the heart of the father to the son, and to restore the tribes of Jacob. {48:11} Blessed are those who saw you, and who were adorned with your friendship. {48:12} For we live only in our life, and after death, our name will not be the same. {48:13} Certainly, Elijah was covered by the whirlwind, and his spirit was completed in Elisha. In his days, he was not fearful of the ruler, and no power defeated him. {48:14} No word overwhelmed him, and after death, his body prophesied.

{48:15} In his life, he gave great portents, and in death, he wrought miracles. {48:16} In all these things, the people did not repent, and they did not withdraw from their sins, even until they were cast out of their land, and were dispersed throughout all the earth. {48:17} And there was left behind a people very few in number, but with a leader in the house of David. {48:18} Some of these did what pleased God. But others committed many sins. {48:19} Hezekiah fortified his city, and he brought water into its midst, and he dug into rock with iron, and he built a well for water. {48:20} In his days, Sennacherib rose up, and he sent Rabshakeh, and he lifted up his hand against them, and he extended his hand against Zion, and he became arrogant in his power. {48:21} Then their hearts and hands shook. And they were in pain, like women giving birth. {48:22} And they called upon the merciful Lord. And they spread their hands and lifted them up to heaven. And the holy Lord God quickly heeded their voice. {48:23} He was not mindful of their sins, and he did not give them over to their enemies. Instead, he purified them by the hand of Isaiah, the holy prophet. {48:24} He threw down the army of the Assyrians, and the Angel of the Lord crushed them. {48:25} For Hezekiah did what pleased God, and he went with fortitude in the way of David his father, just as he had been commanded by Isaiah, a prophet great and faithful in the sight of God. {48:26} In his days, the sun went backwards, and he added to the king's life. {48:27} With a great spirit he saw the final things. And he consoled the mourners in Zion. {48:28} He revealed the future, even the distant future, and hidden things before they occurred.

[Sirach 49] {49:1} The memory of Josiah is like a blend of fragrances composed by the work of a perfumer. {49:2} His remembrance will be sweet like honey in every mouth, and like music at a banquet of wine. {49:3} He was divinely directed for the repentance of the nation, and he took away the abominations of impiety. {49:4} And he guided his heart toward the Lord. And during the days of sinners, he strengthened piety. {49:5} Other than David, and Hezekiah, and Josiah, everyone committed sin. {49:6} For the kings of Judah abandoned the law of the Most High, and they held contempt for the fear of God. {49:7} For they gave their kingdom to foreigners, and their glory to a strange people. {49:8} They set fire to the chosen city of sanctity, and they made its streets desolate, in accord with the hand of Jeremiah. {49:9} For they treated him wickedly, though he was consecrated as a prophet from his mother's womb: to overthrow, and to root out, and to destroy, and also to rebuild and to renew. {49:10} It was Ezekiel who saw a vision of glory, which was revealed to him with the chariot of the Cherubim. {49:11} For it called to mind the enemies under the figure of rain, to do good to those who have revealed the upright ways. {49:12} And may the bones of the twelve prophets spring up from their place. For they strengthened Jacob, and they redeemed themselves with a virtuous faith. {49:13} How will we magnify Zerubbabel? For he, too, was like a signet on the right hand. {49:14} So also was Jesus, the son of Jozadak, who in their days built the house, and raised up a holy temple to the Lord, as a preparation for everlasting glory. {49:15} And may Nehemiah be remembered for a long time. He raised up for us the walls that had been torn down. And he made firm the gates and the bars. He raised up our houses. {49:16} No one has been born upon the earth like Enoch. And he was also taken up from the earth. {49:17} And there was no one like Joseph, who was a man born to be foremost among his brothers, the firmament of his clan, a guide to his brethren, the mainstay of his people. {49:18} And his bones were visited, and after death, they prophesied. {49:19} Shem and Seth obtained glory among men. And above every soul, at the very beginning, was Adam.
acted toward us in accord with his mercy. {50:25} May he give us joyfulness in heart, and may there be peace in our days, in Israel for unending days, {50:26} so that Israel may trust the mercy of God to be with us, in order to free us in his days. {50:27} Two nations my soul hates, and a third, which I hate, is not a nation: {50:28} those who sit upon mount Seir, and the Philistines, and the foolish people who live at Shechem. {50:29} Jesus, the son of Sirach, of Jerusalem, who renewed wisdom from his heart, wrote the doctrine of wisdom and discipline in this book. {50:30} Blessed is he who lives by these good things. Whoever places these things in his heart will be ever wise. {50:31} For if he does these things, he will prevail in all things. For the light of God is upon his footsteps.

[Sirach 51] {51:1} The prayer of Jesus, the son of Sirach: I will confess to you, O Lord and King, and I will give praise to you, O God my Saviour. {51:2} I will acknowledge your name. For you have been my Helper and Protector. {51:3} And you have freed my body from perdition, from the snare of the iniquitous tongue, and from the lips of those who forge lies. And you have been my Helper in the sight of those who stood nearby. {51:4} And you have freed me according to the multitude of the mercy of your name: from those who roared and prepared to devour, {51:5} from the hands of those who sought my life, and from the gates of tribulation that surrounded me, {51:6} from the oppression of the flames that surrounded me, and so I was not burned in the midst of the fire, {51:7} from the depths of the bowels of hell, and from the defiled tongue, and from lying words, from an iniquitous king, and from an unjust tongue. {51:8} My soul shall praise the Lord, even unto death. {51:9} For my life was drawing near to hell below. {51:10} And they surrounded me on every side. And there was no one who would help me. I looked around for the assistance of men, and there was none. {51:11} Then I remembered your mercy, O Lord, and your works, which are from the very beginning. {51:12} For you rescue those who persevere for you, O Lord, and you free them from the hands of the Gentiles. {51:13} You exalted my habitation upon the earth, and I made supplication that death would pass away. {51:14} I called upon the Lord, the Father of my Lord, so that he would not abandon me in the day of my tribulation, nor in the time of arrogance without assistance. {51:15} I will praise your name unceasingly, and I will praise it with thanksgiving, for my prayer was heeded. {51:16} And you freed me from perdition, and you rescued me from the time of iniquity. {51:17} Because of this, I will give thanks and praise to you, and I will bless the name of the Lord. {51:18} When I was still young, before I wandered astray, I sought wisdom openly in my prayer. {51:19} I asked for her before the temple, and even to the very end, I will inquire after her. And she flourished like a newly-ripened grape. {51:20} My heart rejoiced in her. My feet walked in the right path. From my youth, I pursued her. {51:21} I bent my ear a little and accepted her. {51:22} I found much wisdom within myself, and I benefited greatly by her. {51:23} I will give glory to him who gives wisdom to me. {51:24} For I have decided that I should act according to wisdom. I have been zealous for what is good, and so I will not be confounded. {51:25} My soul has struggled for wisdom, and in doing so, I have been confirmed. {51:26} I extended my hands on high, and I mourned my ignorance of her. {51:27} I directed my soul toward her, and I found her within knowledge. {51:28} From the beginning, I held my heart to wisdom. Because of this, I will not be forsaken. {51:29} My stomach was stirred up while seeking her. Because of her, I will hold a good possession. {51:30} The Lord has given me a tongue as my reward, and I will praise him with it. {51:31} Draw near to me, you who are untaught, and gather yourselves into the house of discipline. {51:32} Why are you reluctant? And what do you have to say about these things? Your souls are exceedingly thirsty! {51:33} I have opened my mouth, and I have spoken. Buy wisdom for yourselves without silver, {51:34} and subject your neck to her yoke, and let your soul accept her discipline. For she is close enough to be found. {51:35} See with your own eyes how I have labored only a little, and have found much rest for myself. {51:36} Take up discipline, as if it were a great sum of money, and possess an abundance of gold in her. {51:37} Let your soul rejoice in his mercy. For you will not be confounded by his praise. {51:38} Accomplish your work before the time. And he will give you your reward in his time.

 The Prophecy of Isaiah **

[Isaiah 1] {1:1} The vision of Isaiah, the son of Amoz, which he saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem, in the days of Uzziah, Joatham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah. {1:2} Listen, O heavens, and pay attention, O earth, for the Lord has spoken. I have nurtured and raised children, but they have spurned me. {1:3} An ox knows his owner, and a donkey knows the manger of his lord, but Israel has not known me, and my people have not understood. {1:4} Woe to a sinful nation, a people burdened by iniquity, a wicked offspring, accursed children. They have abandoned the Lord. They have blasphemed the Holy One of Israel. They been taken away backwards. {1:5} For what reason shall I continue to strike you, as you increase transgressions? The entire head is feeble, and the entire heart is grieving. {1:6} From the sole of the foot, even to the top of the head, there is no soundness within. Wounds and bruises and swelling sores: these are not bandaged, nor treated with medicine, nor soothed with oil. {1:7} Your land is desolate. Your cities have been set ablaze. Foreigners devour your countryside in your sight, and it will become desolate, as if devastated by enemies. {1:8} And the daughter of Zion will be left behind, like an arbor in a vineyard, and like a shelter in a cucumber field, and like a city being laid to waste. {1:9} If the Lord of hosts had not bequeathed us offspring, we would be left behind, like an arbor in a vineyard, and like a shelter in a cucumber field, and like a city being laid to waste. {1:10} Listen to the Word of the Lord, you leaders of the people of Sodom. Listen closely to the law of our God, O people of Gomorrah. {1:11} The multitude of your sacrifices, what is that to me, says the Lord? I am full. I do not desire holocausts of rams, nor the fat of fatlings, nor the blood of calves and of lambs and of he-goats. {1:12} When you approach before my sight, who is it that does these things, he will prevail in all things. For the light of God is in his heart will be ever wise. {50:31} For if he does these things, he will prevail in all things. For the light of God is upon his footsteps.
your days of proclamation and your solemnities. They have become bothersome to me. I labor to endure them. {1:15} And so, when you extend your hands, I will avert my eyes from you. And when you multiply your prayers, I will not heed you. For your hands are full of blood. {1:16} Wash, become clean, take away the evil of your intentions from my eyes. Cease to act perversely. {1:17} Learn to do good. Seek judgment, support the oppressed, judge for the orphan, defend the widow. {1:18} And then approach and accuse me, says the Lord. Then, if your sins are like scarlet, they shall be made white like snow; and if they are red like vermilion, they shall become white like wool. {1:19} If you are willing, and you listen to me, then you will eat the good things of the land. {1:20} But if you are not willing, and you provoke me to anger, then the sword will devour you. For the mouth of the Lord has spoken. {1:21} How has the faithful city, full of judgment, become a harlot? Justice lived in her, but now murderers. {1:22} Your silver has turned into dross. Your wine has been mixed with water. {1:23} Your leaders are unfaithful, the associates of thieves. They all love gifts; they pursue rewards. They do not judge for orphans, and the widow’s case is not brought before them. {1:24} Because of this, the Lord God of hosts, the Strength of Israel, says: Ah! I will be consoled over my enemies, and I will be vindicated from my adversaries. {1:25} And I will turn my hand to you. And I will temper your dross unto purity, and I will take away all your tin. {1:26} And I will restore your judges, so that they will be as before, and your counselors as in times long past. After this, you shall be called the City of the Just, the Faithful City. {1:27} Zion will be redeemed in judgment, and they will lead her back to justice. {1:28} And he shall crush the accursed and sinners together. And those who have abandoned the Lord will be consumed. {1:29} For they shall be confounded because of the idols, to which they have sacrificed. And you shall be ashamed over the gardens that you chose, {1:30} when you were like an oak with falling leaves, and like a garden without water. {1:31} And your strength will be like the embers from stubble, and your work will be like a spark, and both will burn together, and there will be no one to extinguish it.

[Isaiah 2] {2:1} The word that Isaiah, the son of Amoz, saw concerning Judah and Jerusalem. {2:2} And in the last days, the mountain of the house of the Lord will be prepared at the summit of the mountains, and it will be exalted above the hills, and all the nations shall flow to it. {2:3} And many peoples will go, and they will say: “Let us approach and ascend to the mountain of the Lord, and to the house of the God of Jacob. And he will teach us his ways, and we will walk in his paths.” For the law will go forth from Zion, and the Word of the Lord from Jerusalem. {2:4} And he will judge the nations, and he will reprove many peoples. And they shall forge their swords into plowshares, and their spears into sickles. Nation will not lift up sword against nation, neither will they continue to train for battle. {2:5} O house of Jacob, let us approach and walk in the light of the Lord. {2:6} For you have cast aside your people, the house of Jacob, because they have been filled up, as in past times, and because they have had soothsayers as the Philistines have, and because they have joined themselves to foreign servants. {2:7} Their land has been filled with silver and gold. And there is no end to their storehouses. {2:8} And their land has been filled with silver and gold. And because they have joined themselves to foreign servants. {2:9} And man has bowed himself down, and so man has become debased. Therefore, you should not forgive them. {2:10} Enter into the rock, and hide in a ditch in the soil, from the presence of the fear of the Lord, and from the glory of his majesty. {2:11} The lofty eyes of man have been humbled, and the haughtiness of men will be bowed down. Then the Lord alone shall be exalted, in that day. {2:12} For the day of the Lord of hosts will prevail over all the proud and self-exalted, and over all the arrogant, and each one shall be humbled, {2:13} and over all the straight and tall cedars of Lebanon, and over all the oaks of Bashan; {2:14} and over all the lofty mountains, and over all the elevated hills; {2:15} and over every lofty tower, and over every fortified wall; {2:16} and over all the ships of Tarshish, and over all the beauty that may be seen. {2:17} And the loftiness of men will be bowed down, and the haughtiness of men will be brought low. And the Lord alone shall be exalted, in that day. {2:18} And idols will be thoroughly crushed. {2:19} And they will go into the caves of the rocks, and into the caverns of the earth, from the presence of the dread of the Lord, and from the glory of his majesty, when he will have risen up to strike the earth. {2:20} In that day, man shall cast aside his idols of silver and his images of gold, which he had made for himself, as if to reverence the moles and the bats. {2:21} And so he will go into the clefts of the rocks, and into the caverns of stone, from the presence of the dread of the Lord, and from the glory of his majesty, when he will have risen up to strike the earth. {2:22} Therefore, rest away from man, whose breath is in his nostrils, for he considers himself to be exalted.

[Isaiah 3] {3:1} For behold, the sovereign Lord of hosts will take away, from Jerusalem and from Judah, the powerful and the strong: all the strength from bread, and all the strength from water; {3:2} the strong man, and the man of war, the strong: all the strength from bread, and all the strength from water; {3:3} the leader over fifty and the honorable in appearance; and the judge and the prophet, and the seer and the elder; {3:4} the noble against the ignoble; the ignoble against the noble. {3:5} And I will provide children as their leaders, and the effeminate will rule over them. {3:6} And the people will rush, man against man, and each one against his neighbor. The child shall rebel against the elder, and the ignoble against the noble. {3:7} In that day, he will respond by saying: “The vestment is yours. Be our leader, but let this ruin be under your hand.” {3:8} In that day, he will respond by saying: “I am not a healer, and there is no bread or vestment in my house. Do not choose to appoint me as a leader of the people.” {3:9} For Jerusalem is ruined, and Judah has fallen, because their words and their plans are against the Lord, in order to provoke the eyes of his majesty. {3:10} The acknowledgement of their countenance is their response. For they have proclaimed their own sin, like Sodom; and they have not concealed it. Woe to their souls! For evils are being repaid to them. {3:11} Tell the just man that it is well, for he shall eat from the fruit of his own plans. {3:12} Woe to the impious man immersed in evil! For retribution will be given to him from his own hands. {3:13} For my people, their oppressors have despoiled them, and women have ruled over them. My people, who call you blessed, the same are deceiving you and disrupting the path of your steps. {3:13} The Lord stands for judgment, and he stands to judge the people. {3:14} The Lord will enter into judgment with the elders of his people, and with their leaders. For you have been devouring the vineyard, and the plunder from the poor is in your house. {3:15} Why do you wear down my people, and grind up the faces of the poor, says the Lord, the God of hosts? {3:16} And the Lord said: Because the daughters of Zion have been lifted up, and have walked with extended necks and winking eyes, because they have continued on, walking noisily and advancing with a pretentious stride, {3:17} the Lord will make the heads of the daughters of Zion bald, and the Lord will strip them of the locks of their hair. {3:18} In that day, the Lord will take away their decorative shoes, {3:19} and the little moons and chains, and the necklaces and bracelets, and the hats, {3:20} and the ornaments for their hair, and the anklets, and the touches of myrrh and little bottles of perfumes, and the earrings, {3:21} and the rings, and the jewels hanging on their foreheads, {3:22} and the continual changes in appearance, and the short skirts, and the fine linens and embroidered cloths, {3:23} and the mirrors, and scarves, and ribbons, and their sparse clothing. {3:24} And in place of a sweet fragrance, there will be stench. And in place of a belt, there will be a rope. And in place of stylish hair, there will be baldness. And in place of a blouse, there will be haircloth. {3:25} Likewise, your most handsome men will fall by the sword, and your strong men will fall in battle. {3:26} And the Lord will grieve and mourn. And she will sit on the ground, her strength will be exhausted in one day, and she will be plundered and brought low in that day. {3:27} And the virgins will be brought low in that day, and the maids will be humbled in that day. {4:1} And seven women will take hold of one man, in that day, saying, “We will eat our own bread and wear our own clothing, only let us be called by your name, so as to take away our reproach.” {4:2} In that day, the seedling of the Lord will have magnificence and glory, and the fruit of the earth will be greatly-esteemed and a source of joy to those who will have been saved out of Israel. {4:3} And this shall be: all who are left behind in Zion, and who remain in Jerusalem, shall be called holy, all who have been written in life in Jerusalem. {4:4} Then the Lord will have washed away the filth of the daughters of Zion, and will have washed away the blood of Jerusalem from its midst, by means of a spirit of judgment and a spirit of intense devotion. {4:5} And the Lord will create, over every place of Mount Zion and wherever he is called upon, a cloud by day and a smoke with the splendor of burning fire by night. For protection will be over every glory. {4:6} And there will be a tabernacle for shade from the heat in daytime, and for security, and for protection from the whirlwind and from rain.

[Isaiah 4] {4:1} And seven women will take hold of one man, in that day, saying, “We will eat our own bread and wear our own clothing, only let us be called by your name, so as to take away our reproach.” {4:2} In that day, the seedling of the Lord will have magnificence and glory, and the fruit of the earth will be greatly-esteemed and a source of joy to those who will have been saved out of Israel. {4:3} And this shall be: all who are left behind in Zion, and who remain in Jerusalem, shall be called holy, all who have been written in life in Jerusalem. {4:4} Then the Lord will have washed away the filth of the daughters of Zion, and will have washed away the blood of Jerusalem from its midst, by means of a spirit of judgment and a spirit of intense devotion. {4:5} And the Lord will create, over every place of Mount Zion and wherever he is called upon, a cloud by day and a smoke with the splendor of burning fire by night. For protection will be over every glory. {4:6} And there will be a tabernacle for shade from the heat in daytime, and for security, and for protection from the whirlwind and from rain.

[Isaiah 5] {5:1} I will sing to my beloved the canticle of my paternal cousin, about his vineyard. A vineyard was made for my beloved, at the horn in the son of oil. {5:2} And he fenced it in, and he picked the stones out of it, and he planted it with the best vines, and he built a tower in the middle of it, and he set up a winepress within it. And he expected it to produce grapes, though it produced wild vines. {5:3} Now then, inhabitants of Jerusalem and men of Judah: judge between me and my vineyard. {5:4} What more should I have done for my vineyard that I did not do for it? Should I not have expected it to produce grapes, though it produced wild vines? {5:5} And now, I will reveal to you what I will do to my vineyard. I will take away its fence, and it will be plundered. I will pull down its wall, and it will be tramelled. {5:6} And I will make it desolate. It will not be pruned, and it will not be dug. And briers and thorns will rise up. And I will command the clouds not to rain upon it. {5:7} For the vineyard of the Lord of hosts is the house of Israel. And the man of Judah is his delightful seedling. And I expected that he would do judgment, and behold iniquity, and that he would do justice, and behold an outcry. {5:8} Woe to you who join house to house, and who combine field to field, even to the limits of the place! Do you intend to live alone in the midst of the earth? {5:9} These things are in our ears, says the Lord of hosts. Otherwise, many houses, great and beautiful, will become desolate, without an inhabitant. {5:10} Then ten acres of vineyard will produce one small bottle of wine, and thirty measures of seed will produce three measures of grain. {5:11} Woe to you who rise up in the morning to pursue drunkenness, and to drink even until evening, so as to be inflamed with wine. {5:12} Harp and lyre and timbrel and pipe, as well as wine, are at your feasts. But you do not respect the work of the Lord, nor do you consider the works of his hands. {5:13} Because of this, my people have been led away as captives, for they did not have knowledge, and their nobles have passed away from famine, and their multitudes have dried up from thirst. {5:14} For this reason, Hell has expanded its soul, and has opened its mouth without any limits. And their strong ones, and their people, and their exalted and glorious ones will descend into it. {5:15} And man will be bowed down, and man will be humbled, and the eyes of the exalted will be brought low. {5:16} And the Lord of hosts will be exalted in judgment, and the holy God will be sanctified in justice. {5:17} And the lambs will pasture in proper order, and new arrivals will eat from the deserts turned into fertile lands. {5:18} Woe to you who draw iniquity with cords of vanity, and who draw sin as if with the rope of a cart, {5:19} and who say: “Let him hurry, and let his work arrive soon, so that we may see it. And let the plan of the Holy One of Israel approach and arrive, so that we may know it.” {5:20} Woe to you who call evil good, and good evil; who substitute darkness for light, and light for darkness; who exchange bitter for sweet, and sweet for bitter! {5:21} Woe to you who are wise in your own eyes, and prudent in your own sight! {5:22} Woe to you who are powerful at drinking wine, who are strong men in contriving inebriation! {5:23} For you justify an impious man in exchange for bribes, and you carry away the justice of a just man from him. {5:24} Because of this, as the tongue of fire devours stubble, and as the heat of a flame burns it completely, so will their root become like glowing embers, and so will their offshoot ascend like dust. For they have cast aside the law of the Lord of hosts, and they have blasphemed the eloquence of the Holy One of Israel. {5:25} For this reason, the fury of the Lord has been enraged against his people, and he has extended his hand over them, and he has struck them. And the mountains were disturbed. And their carcasses became like dung in the midst of the streets. After all this, his fury was not turned away; instead, his hand was still extended. {5:26} And he will lift up a sign to nations far away, and he will whistle to them from the ends of the earth. And behold, they will rush forward speedily. {5:27} There is no one weak or struggling among them. They will not become drowsy, and they will not sleep. Neither will the belt around their waist be loosened, nor the laces of their boots be broken. {5:28} Their arrows are sharp, and all their bows are taut. The hoofs of their horses are like flint, and their wheels are like the force of a tempest. {5:29} Their roaring is like the lion; they will roar like young lions. They will both roar and seize their prey. And they will wrap themselves around it, and there will be no one who can rescue it. {5:30} And in that day, they will make a noise over it, like the sound of the sea. We will gaze out toward the land, and behold, the darkness of the tribulation, and even the light has been darkened by its gloom.

[Isaiah 6] {6:1} In the year in which king Uzziah died, I saw the Lord sitting on a throne, sublime and exalted, and the things that were under him filled the temple. {6:2} The Seraphims were standing above the throne. One had six wings, and the other had six wings: with two they were covering his face, and with two they were covering his feet, and with two they were flying. {6:3} And they were crying out to one another, and saying: “Holy, holy, holy is the Lord God of hosts! All the earth is filled with his glory!” {6:4} And the lintels above the hinges were shaken at the voice of the one crying out. And the house was filled with smoke. {6:5} And I said: “Woe to me! For I have remained silent. For I am a man of unclean lips, and I live in the midst of a people having unclean lips, and I have seen with my eyes the King, the Lord of hosts!” {6:6} And one of the Seraphims flew to me, and in his hand was a burning coal, which he had taken with tongs from the altar. {6:7} And he touched my mouth, and he said, “Behold, this has touched your lips, and so your iniquities will be taken away, and your sin will be cleansed.” {6:8} And I heard the voice of the Lord, saying: “Whom shall I send?” and, “Who will go for us?” And I said: “Here I am. Send me.” {6:9} And he said: “Go forth! And you shall say to this people: ‘When you listen, you will hear and not understand. And when you see a vision, you will not comprehend.’ ”{6:10} Blind the heart of this people. Make their ears heavy and close their eyes, lest they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and be converted, and then I would heal them.” {6:11} And I said, “For how long, O Lord?” And he said, “Until the cities are desolate, without an inhabitant, and the houses are without a man, and the land will be left behind, deserted.” {6:12} For the Lord will take the men far away, and she who will have been left behind will be multiplied in the midst of the earth. {6:13} But still, there will be a tithing within her, and she will be put on display, like a terebinth tree and like an oak which extends its branches. And what will remain standing within her will be a holy offspring.

[Isaiah 7] {7:1} And it happened in the days of Ahaz, the son of Jotham, the son of Uzziah, the king of Judah, that Rezin, the king of Syria, and Pekah, the son of Remaliah, king of Israel, ascended to Jerusalem to battle against it. But they were not able to defeat it. {7:2} And they reported to the house of David, saying: “Syria has withdrawn to Ephraim.” And his heart was shaken, with the heart of his people, just as the house of David, saying: “Syria has withdrawn to Ephraim.” {7:3} And the Lord said to Isaiah: Go out to meet Ahaz, you and your son, Jashub, who was left behind, to the end of the aqueduct, at the upper pool, on the road to the fuller’s field. {7:4} And you shall say to him: “See to it that you are silent. Do not be afraid. And have no dread in your heart over the two tails of these firebrands, nearly extinguished, which are the wrath of the fury of Rezin, king of Syria, and of the son of Remaliah.” {7:5} For Syria has undertaken a plan against you, with the evil of Ephraim and the son of Remaliah, saying: {7:6} “Let us ascend to Judah, and stir it up, and tear it away for ourselves, and appoint the son of Tabeel as a king in its midst.” {7:7} Thus says the Lord God: This shall not stand, and this shall not be. {7:8} For the head of Syria is Damascus, and the head of Damascus is Rezin; and within sixty-five years from now, Ephraim will cease to be a people. {7:9} For the head of Ephraim is Samaria, and the head of Samaria is the son of Remaliah. If you will not believe, you will not continue. {7:10} And the Lord spoke further to Ahaz, saying: {7:11} Ask for a sign for yourself from the Lord your God, from the depths below, even to the heights above. {7:12} And Ahaz said, “I will not ask, for I will not tempt the Lord.” {7:13} And he said: “Then listen, O house of David. Is it such a small thing for you to trouble men, that you must also trouble my God? {7:14} For this reason, the Lord himself will grant to you a sign. Behold, a virgin will conceive, and she will give birth to a son, and his name will be called Immanuel. {7:15} He will eat butter and honey, so that he may know to reject evil and to choose good. {7:16} But even before the boy knows to refuse evil and to choose good, the land that you detest will be abandoned by the face of her two kings. {7:17} The Lord will lead over you, and over your people, and over the house of your father, such days as have not occurred since the days of the separation of Ephraim from Judah by the king of the Assyrians. {7:18} And this shall be in that day: the Lord will call for the fly, which is in the most distant parts of the rivers of Egypt, and for the swarm, which is in the land of Assur. {7:19} And they will arrive, and they all will rest in the torrents of the valleys, and in the caverns of the rocks, and in every thicket, and in every opening. {7:20} In that day, the Lord will shew with a razor the ones hired by those who are across the river, by the king of the Assyrians, from the head to the hairs of the feet, with the entire beard. {7:21} And this shall be in that day: a man will raise a cow among oxen, and two sheep, {7:22} and, instead of an abundance of milk, he will eat butter. For all who are left behind in the midst of the land will eat butter and honey. {7:23} And this shall be in that day: every place, where there were a thousand grapevines worth a thousand pieces of silver, will become thorns and briers. {7:24} They will enter such places with arrows and bows. For briers and thorns will be throughout the entire land. {7:25} But as for all the mountains, which will be dug with a hoe, the terror of thorns and briers will not approach those places. And there will be pasture land for oxen, and a range for cattle.”

[Isaiah 8] {8:1} And the Lord said to me: “Take up for yourself a large book, and with a man’s pen write in it: ‘Take away the spoils quickly; plunder swiftly.’ ” {8:2} And I summoned to myself faithful witnesses: Uriah, the priest, and Zechariah, the son of Berechiah. {8:3} And I joined with the prophetess, and she conceived and gave birth to a son. And the Lord said to me: “Call his name: ‘Rush to take away the spoke to me further, saying: {8:6} “Because this people has cast aside the waters of Shiloah, which go forth silently, and has instead chosen Rezin and the son of Remaliah, {8:7} for this reason, behold, the Lord will lead over them the waters of a river, strong and plentiful: the king of the Assyrians with all his glory. And he will rise up throughout all his streams, and he will overflow all his banks. {8:8} And he will pass through Judah, inundating it, and he will cross over and arrive, even at its neck. And he will extend his wings, filling the breadth of your land, O Immanuel.” {8:9} O people, gather together, and be conquered! All distant lands, listen! Be strengthened, and be conquered! Gird yourselves, and be conquered! {8:10} Undertake a plan, and it will be dissipated! Speak a word, and it will not be done! For God is with us. {8:11} For the Lord said this to me, and he has instructed this to me with a strong hand, lest I go forth in the way of this people, saying: {8:12} “You should not say ‘It is conspiracy!’ For all that this people speaks is a conspiracy. And you should be frightened or alarmed with their fear. {8:13} Sanctify the Lord of hosts himself. Let him be your dread, and let him be your fear. {8:14} And so shall he be a sanctification to you. But he will be a stone of offense and a rock of scandal to the two houses of Israel, and a snare and a ruin to the inhabitants of Jerusalem. {8:15} And very many of them will stumble and fall, and they will be broken and entangled and seized. {8:16} Bind the testimony, seal the law, among my disciples.” {8:17} And I will wait for the Lord, who has concealed his face from the house of Jacob, and I will stand before him. {8:18} Behold: I and my children, whom the Lord has given to me as a sign and a portent, in Israel, from the Lord of hosts, who lives on Mount Zion. {8:19} And though they say to you, “Seek from seers and diviners,” they who hiss in their incantations, should not the people seek from their God, for the sake of the living, and not from the dead? {8:20} And this is, moreover, for the sake of the law and the testimony. But if they do not speak according to this Word, then he will not have the morning light. {8:21} And he will pass by it; he will fall and become hungry. And when he is hungry, he will become angry, and he will speak evil against his king and his God, and he will lift himself upward. {8:22} And he will gaze downward to the earth, and behold: tribulation and darkness, dissolution and distress, and a pursuing gloom. For he will not be able to fly away from its distress.

[Isaiah 9] {9:1} In the earlier time, the land of Zebulun and the land of Naphtali were lifted up. But in the later time, the way of the sea beyond the Jordan, the Galilee of the Gentiles, was weighed down. {9:2} The people who walked in darkness have seen a great light. A light has risen for the inhabitants of the region of the shadow of death. {9:3} You have increased the nation, but you have not increased the rejoicing. They will rejoice before you, like those who rejoice at the harvest, like the victorious exulting after capturing the prey, when they divide the spoils. {9:4} For you have prevailed over the yoke of their burden, and over the rod of their shoulder, and over the scepter of their oppressor, as in the day of Midian. {9:5} For every violent plunder with a tumult, and every garment mixed with blood, will be burned up and will become fuel for the fire. {9:6} For unto us a child is born, and unto us a son is given. And leadership is placed upon his shoulder. And his name shall be called: wonderful Counselor, mighty God, father of the future age, Prince of Peace. {9:7} His reign will be increased, and there will be no end to his peace. He will sit upon the throne of David and over his kingdom, to confirm and strengthen it, in judgment and justice, from now even unto eternity. The zeal of the Lord of hosts shall accomplish this. {9:8} The Lord sent a word to Jacob, and it fell upon Israel. {9:9} And all the people of Ephraim will know it. And the inhabitants of Samaria will say it, in the arrogance and haughtiness of their heart: {9:10} “The bricks have fallen, but we will build with squared stones. They have cut down the sycamores, but we will replace them with cedars.” {9:11} And the Lord will raise up the enemies of Rezin over him, and he will turn his adversaries into a tumult: {9:12} the Syrians from the east and the Philistines from the west. And they will devour Israel with their whole mouth. After all this, his fury was not turned away; instead, his hand was still extended. {9:13} And the people did not return to the One who struck them, and they did not seek the Lord of hosts. {9:14} And so, the Lord will disperse, away from Israel, the head and the tail, he who bows down and he who refrains, in one day. {9:15} The long-lived and honorable, he is the head; and the prophet who teaches lies, he is the tail. {9:16} And those who deceitfully praise this people, and those who are praised, will be thrown down violently. {9:17} For this reason, the Lord will not rejoice over their youths. And he will not take pity on their orphans and widows. For each one is a hypocrite, and each one is wicked, and every mouth has spoken foolishness. After all this, his fury was not turned away; instead, his hand was still extended. {9:18} For impiety has been kindled like a fire: it will devour brier and thorn, and it will burn in the dense forest, and it will be interwoven with the ascending smoke. {9:19} The earth has been shaken by the wrath of the Lord of hosts, and the people will become like fuel for the fire. A man will not spare his own brother. {9:20} And he will turn toward the right, and he will be hungry. And he will eat toward the left, and he will not be satisfied. Each one will eat the flesh of his own arm: Manasseh Ephraim, and Ephraim Manasseh, and together they will be against Judah. {9:21} After all this, his fury was not turned away; instead, his hand was still extended.

[Isaiah 10] {10:1} Woe to those who make unfair laws, and who, when writing, write injustice: {10:2} in order to oppress the poor in judgment, and to do violence to the case of the humble of my people, in order that widows may be their prey, and that they might plunder the orphan. {10:3} What will you do on the day of visitation and calamity which is approaching from afar? To whom will you flee for assistance? And where will you leave behind your own glory, {10:4} so that you may not be bowed down under the chains, and fall with the slain? Concerning all this, his fury was not turned away; instead, his hand was still extended. {10:5} Woe to Assur! He is the rod and the staff of my fury, and my indignation is in their hands. {10:6} I will send him to a deceitful nation, and I will order him against the people of my fury, so that he may take away the plunder, and tear apart the prey, and place it to be trampled like the mud of the
he will not consider it to be so, and his heart will not suppose it to be this way. Instead, his heart will be set to crush and to exterminate more than a few nations. {10:8} For he will say: {10:9} "Are not my princes like many kings? Is not Calno like Carchemish, and Hamath like Arpad? Is not Samaria like Damascus? {10:10} In the same manner as my hand reached the kingdoms of the idol, so also will it reach their false images, those of Jerusalem and of Samaria. {10:11} Should I not do to Jerusalem and her false images, just as I have done to Samaria and her idols?" {10:12} And this shall be: when the Lord will have completed each of his works on Mount Zion and in Jerusalem, I will act against the fruit of the exalted heart of king Assur, and against the glory of the haughtiness of his eyes. {10:13} For he has said: "I have acted with the strength of my own hand, and I have understood with my own wisdom, and I have removed the limits of the people, and I have plundered their leaders, and, like one with power, I have pulled down those residing on high. {10:14} And my hand has reached to the strength of the people, as to a nest. And, just as the eggs which have been left behind are gathered, so have I gathered the entire earth. And there was no one who moved a wing, or opened a mouth, or uttered a snarl." {10:15} Should the axe glorify itself over him who wields it? Or can the saw exalt itself over him who pulls it? How can a rod lift itself up against him who wields it, or a staff exalt itself, though it is only wood? {10:16} Because of this, the sovereign Lord, the Lord of hosts, will send leanness among his fat ones. And under the influence of his glory, a burning ardor will rage, like a consuming fire. {10:17} And the light of Israel will be like a fire, and the Holy One of Israel will be like a flame. And his thorns and briers will be set ablaze and devoured, in one day. {10:18} And the glory of his forest and of his beautiful hill will be consumed, from the soul even to the flesh. And he will flee away in terror. {10:19} And what remain of the trees of his forest will be so few, and so easily numbered, that even a child could write them down. {10:20} And this shall be in that day: those not added to the remnant of Israel, and those who escape the house of Jacob, will not lean upon him who strikes them. Instead, they will lean upon the Lord, the Holy One of Israel, in truth. {10:21} The remnant of Jacob, again I say the remnant, will be converted to the mighty God. {10:22} For though your people, O Israel, will be like the sand of the sea, yet only a remnant of them will be converted. The consummation, having been shortened, will be inundated with justice. {10:23} For the Lord, the God of hosts, will accomplish an abbreviation and a consummation, in the midst of all the earth. {10:24} For this reason, the Lord, the God of hosts, says this: "My people, who inhabit Zion: do not be afraid of Assur. He will strike you with his rod, and he will lift up his staff over you, on the way of Egypt. {10:25} But after a little while and a brief time, my indignation will be consumed, and my fury will turn to their wickedness." {10:26} And the Lord of hosts will raise up a scourge over him, like the scourge of Midian at the rock of Oreb, and he will raise up his rod over the sea, and he will lift it up against the way of Egypt. {10:27} And this shall be in that day: his burden will be taken away from your shoulder, and his yoke will be taken away from your neck, and the yoke will decay at the appearance of the oil. {10:28} He will approach Aiath; he will cross into Migron; he will entrust his vessels to Michmash. {10:29} They have passed through in haste; Geba is our seat; Ramah was stupefied; Gibeah of Saul fled. {10:30} Neigh with your voice, daughter of Gallim; pay attention, Laishah, impoverished woman of Anathoth. {10:31} Madmenah has moved away; be strengthened, you inhabitants of Gebim. {10:32} It is still daylight, so stand at Nob. He will shake his hand against the mountain of the daughter of Zion, the hill of Jerusalem. {10:33} Behold, the sovereign Lord of hosts will crush the little bottle of wine with terror, and the exalted in stature will be cut down, and the lofty will be brought low. {10:34} And the dense forest will be overturned with iron. And Lebanon, with its exalted ones, will fall.
[Isaiah 12] {12:1} And you will say in that day: “I will confess to you, O Lord, because you have been angry with me; but your fury has been turned away, and you have consoled me. {12:2} Behold, God is my savior, I will act faithfully, and I will not be afraid. For the Lord is my strength and my praise, and he has become my salvation.”

{12:3} You will draw water with gladness from the fountains of the Savior. {12:4} And you will say in that day: “Confess the Lord, and invoke his name! Make his plans known among the peoples! Remember that his name is exalted! {12:5} Sing to the Lord, for he has acted magnificently! Announce it to the whole world! {12:6} Exult and give praise, O habitation of Zion! For the Great One, the Holy One of Israel, is in your midst!”

[Isaiah 13] {13:1} The burden of Babylon which Isaiah, the son of Amoz, saw. {13:2} Over the foggy mountain lift up a sign! Raise the voice, lift up the hand, and let the rulers enter through the gates! {13:3} In my wrath, I commanded my sanctified ones, and I called my strong ones, those who exult through the gates! {13:4} On the mountains, there is the voice of a multitude, as if of a numerous people, a voice with the sound of kings, of nations gathered together. For the Lord of hosts has given orders to soldiers of war, {13:5} to those who are arriving from a far off land, from the heights of the heavens. It is the Lord and the instruments of his fury, so that he may bring ruin to all the earth. {13:6} Wail aloud! For the day of the Lord draws near! It will arrive like a devastation from the Lord. {13:7} Because of it, every hand will fail, and every heart of man will waste away and be crushed. {13:8} Wringing and pain will seize them. They will be in pain, like a woman in labor. Each one will appear stupefied to his neighbor. Their countenances will be like faces which have been burned up. {13:9} Behold, the day of the Lord approaches: a cruel day, full of indignation and wrath and fury, which will place the earth in solitude and crush the sinners from it. {13:10} For the stars of the heavens, in their splendor, will not display their light. The sun will be obscured at its rising, and the moon will not shine in her brightness. {13:11} And I will act against the evils of the world, and against the impious for their iniquity. And I will cause the pride of the unfaithful to cease, and I will bring down the arrogance of the strong. {13:12} A man will be more precious than gold, and mankind will become like pure refined gold. {13:13} For this purpose, I will stir up heaven, and the earth will be moved from its place, because of the indignation of the Lord of hosts, because of the day of his furious wrath. {13:14} And they will be like a doe fleeing away, or like sheep; and there will be no one who may gather them together. Each one will turn to his own people, and every one will flee to his own land. {13:15} All who are found will be killed, and all who are caught unaware will fall by the sword. {13:16} Their infants will be thrown down violently before their eyes. Their houses will be plundered, and their wives will be violated. {13:17} Behold, I will stir up the Medes against them. They will not seek silver, nor desire gold. {13:18} Instead, with their arrows, they will put the little children to death, and they will take no pity on breastfeeding women, and their eye will not spare their children. {13:19} And then Babylon, the glorious one among kingdoms, that famous pride of the Chaldeans, will be destroyed, even as the Lord destroyed Sodom and Gomorrah. {13:20} It will not be inhabited, even unto the end, and it will not be reestablished, even from generation to generation. The Arab will not pitch his tents there, nor will the shepherds take rest there. {13:21} Instead, the wild beasts will rest there, and their houses will be filled with serpents, and ostriches will live there, and the hairy ones will leap about there. {13:22} And the tawny owls will answer one another there, in its buildings, and the Sirens in its shrines of pleasure.

[Isaiah 14] {14:1} Her time is drawing near, and her days will not be prolonged. For the Lord will take pity on Jacob, and he will still choose from Israel, and he will cause them to rest upon their own soil. And the new arrival will be joined to them, and he will adhere to the house of Jacob. {14:2} And the people will take them, and lead them to their place. And the house of Israel will possess them, in the land of the Lord, as men and women servants. And they will take captive those who had taken them captive. And they will subjugate their oppressors. {14:3} And this shall be in that day: when God will have given you rest from your labor, and from your oppression, and from the difficult servitude under which you served before, {14:4} you will accept this parable against the king of Babylon, and you will say: “How is it that the oppressor has ceased, along with his tribute? {14:5} The Lord has crushed the staff of the impious, the scepter of despots, {14:6} which struck the people in wrath with an incurable wound, which subjugated the nations in fury, which persecuted with cruelty. {14:7} All the earth has become quiet and still; it has been gladdened and has rejoiced. {14:8} The evergreens, too, have rejoiced over you, and the cedars of Lebanon, saying: ‘Since you have slept, no one has ascended who would cut us down.’ {14:9} Hell below was stirred up to meet you at your advent; it has awakened the giants for you. All the leaders of the earth have risen from their thrones, all the leaders among the nations.” {14:10} Everyone will respond and will say to you: “Now you are wounded, just as we were; you have become like us. {14:11} Your arrogance has been dragged down to Hell. Your body has fallen dead. The moths will be strewn beneath you, and the worms will be your covering. {14:12} How is it that you have fallen from heaven, O Lucifer, who used to rise like the sun? How is it that you have fallen to the earth, you who wounded the peoples? {14:13} And you said in your heart: ‘I will climb up to heaven. I will exalt my throne above the stars of God. I will be enthroned upon the mountain of the covenant, on the northern parts.’ {14:14} I will ascend above the tops of the clouds. I will be like the Most High.’ {14:15} Yet truly, you shall be dragged down to Hell, into the depths of the pit. {14:16} Those who see you, will lean toward you, and will gaze upon you, saying: ‘Could this be the man who disturbed the earth, who shook kingdoms, {14:17} who made the world into a desert and destroyed its cities, who would not even open a prison for his prisoners?’ ” {14:18} All the kings of the nations throughout the whole world have slept in glory, each man in his own house. {14:19} But you have been rejected from your grave, like a useless polluted plant, and you have been bound up with those who were slain by the sword, and who descended to the bottom of the pit, like a rotting carcass. {14:20} You will not be associated with them, even in the grave. For you have destroyed your own land; you have slain your own people. The offspring of the wicked ones will not be called upon for eternity. {14:21} Prepare his sons for the slaughter, according to the iniquity of their fathers. They will not rise up, nor inherit the earth, nor fill the face of the world with cities. {14:22} But I will rise up against them, says the Lord of hosts. And I will perish the name of Babylon and its remnant: both the plant and its progeny, says the Lord. {14:23} And I will appoint it as a possession for the hedgehog, with swamps of water. And I will sweep it out and wear it away with a brush, says the Lord of hosts. {14:24} The Lord of hosts has sworn, saying: Surely, just as I have considered it, so shall it be, and in the same manner as I have drawn it through my mind, {14:25} so shall it occur. So shall I crush the Assyrian in my land, and I will trample him upon my mountains, and his yoke will be taken away from them, and his burden will be removed from their shoulder. {14:26} This is the plan that I have decided, concerning the entire earth, and this is the hand which is extended over all the nations. {14:27} For the Lord of hosts has decreed it, and who is able to weaken it? And his hand is extended, so who can avert it? {14:28} In the year in which king Ahaz died, this burden was given: {14:29} You should not rejoice, all you of Philistia, that the rod of him who struck you has been crushed. For from the root of the serpent will go forth a king snake, and his offspring will engulf that which flies. {14:30} And the firstborn of the poor will be pastured, and the poor will rest in faithfulness. And I will cause your root to pass away by famine, and I will put to death your remnant. {14:31} Wail, O gate! Cry out, O city! All of Philistia has been prostrated. For a smoke will arrive from the north, and there is no one who will escape his army. {14:32} And what will be the response to this news among the nations? It will be that the Lord has established Zion, and that the poor of his people will hope in him.

Isaiah 15} [15:1] The burden of Moab. Because Ar of Moab has been destroyed by night, it is utterly silent. Because the wall of Moab has been destroyed by night, it is utterly silent. {15:2} The house has ascended with Dibon to the heights, in mourning over Nebo and over Medeba. Moab has wailed. There will be baldness on all of their heads, and every beard will be shaven. {15:3} At their crossroads, they have been wrapped with sackcloth. On their rooftops and in their streets, everyone descends, wailing and weeping. {15:4} Heshbon will cry out with Elealeh. Their voice has been heard as far as Jahaz. Over this, the well-equipped men of Moab wail; each soul will wail to itself. {15:5} My heart will cry out to Moab; its bars will cry out even to Zoar, like a three-year-old calf. For they will ascend weeping, by way of the ascents of Luhith. And along the way of Horonaim, they will lift up a cry of contrition. {15:6} For the waters of Nimrim will be desolate, because the plants have withered, and the seedling has failed, and all the greenery has passed away. {15:7} This is in accord with the magnitude of their works and of their visitation. They will lead them to the torrent of the willows. {15:8} For an outcry has circulated along the border of Moab; its wailing even to Eleagim, and its clamor even to the well of Elim. {15:9} Because the waters of Dibon have been filled with blood, I will place even more upon Dibon: those from Moab who flee the lion, and the survivors of the earth.

Isaiah 16} [16:1] O Lord, send forth the Lamb, the Ruler of the earth, from the Rock of the desert to the mountain of the daughter of Zion. {16:2} And this shall be: like a bird fleeing away, and like fledglings flying from the nest, so will the daughters of Moab be at the passage of Arnon. {16:3} Form a plan. Call a council. Let your shadow be as if it were night, even at midday. Conceal the fugitives, and do not betray the wanderers. {16:4} My fugitives will live with you. Become a hiding place, O Moab, from the face of the destroyer. For the dust is at its end; the miserable one has been consumed. He who trampled the earth has failed. {16:5} And a throne will be prepared in mercy, and One shall sit upon it in truth, in the tabernacle of David, judging and seeking judgment, and quickly repaying what is just. {16:6} We have heard of the pride of Moab; he is very proud. His pride and his arrogance and his indignation is more than his strength. {16:7} For this reason, Moab will wail to Moab; each one will wail. Speak of their wounds to those who rejoice upon the brick walls. {16:8} For the suburbs of Heshbon are deserted, and the lords of the Gentiles have cut down the vineyard of Sibmah. Its vines have arrived even at Jazer. They have wandered in the desert. Its seedlings have been abandoned. They have crossed over the sea. {16:9} I will weep with the tears of Jazer over this, the vineyard of Sibmah. I will inebriate you with my tears, Heshbon and Elealeh! For the sound of those who trample has rushed over your vintage and over your harvest. {16:10} And so, rejoicing and exultation will be taken away from Carmel, and there will be no jubilation or exultation in the vineyards. He who was accustomed to tread will not tread out the wine in the winepress. I have taken away the sound of those who tread. {16:11} Over this, my heart will resonate like a harp for Moab, and my inner most soul will wail to itself. {16:12} And this shall be: when it is seen that Moab has struggled upon his high places, he will enter his holy places to pray, but he will not prevail. {16:13} This is the word that the Lord has spoken to Moab concerning that time. {16:14} And now the Lord has spoken, saying: In three years, like the years of a hired hand, the glory of Moab concerning the entire multitude of the people will be taken away, and what is left behind will be small and weak and not so numerous.

Isaiah 17} [17:1] The burden of Damascus. Behold, Damascus will cease to be a city, and it will be like a heap of stones in ruin. {17:2} The cities in ruin will be left for the flocks, and they will take rest there, and there will be no one who may terrify them. {17:3} And assistance will cease from Ephraim, and the kingdom will cease from Damascus. And the remnant of Syria will be like the glory of the sons of Israel, says the Lord of hosts. {17:4} And this shall be in that day: the glory of Jacob will be thinned, and the fatness of his flesh will be reduced. {17:5} And it shall be like the gathering of the harvest which remains, and his arm will pick the ears of grain. And it shall be like a search for grain in the valley of Rephaim. {17:6} And what is left behind in it will be like one cluster of grapes, or like a shaken olive tree with two or three olives at the top of a branch, or like four or five olives at the top of a tree, says the Lord God of Israel. {17:7} In that day, a man will bow before his Maker, and his eyes will consider the Holy One of Israel. {17:8} And he will not bow before the altars that his hands have made. And he will not consider the things that his fingers have made, the sacred groves and the shrines. {17:9} In that day, his strong cities will be abandoned, like the plows and the grain fields which were left behind before the face of the sons of Israel, and you shall be deserted. {17:10} For you have forgotten God your Savior, and you have not remembered your strong Helper. Because of this, you will plant trustworthy plants, but you will sow a foreign seed. {17:11} In the day of your planting, the wild grapevine and your morning seed will flourish. The harvest has been taken away to the day of inheritance, and you will grieve heavily. {17:12} Woe to the multitude of many peoples, like the multitude of the roaring sea! Woe to the tumult of crowds, like the noise of many waters! {17:13} The peoples will make a noise, like the noise of waters overflowing, but he will rebuke him, and so he will flee far away. And he will be quickly taken away, like the dust of the mountains before the face of the wind, and like a whirlwind before a tempest. {17:14} In the time of the evening, behold: there will be a disturbance. When it is early morning, he will not remain. This is the portion of those who have devastated us, and this is the lot of those who have plundered us.

[Isaiah 18] {18:1} Woe to the land, that winged cymbal, which is beyond the rivers of Ethiopia, {18:2} which sends ambassadors by sea and in vessels of papyrus above the waters. Go forth, O swift Angels, to a nation which has been convulsed and torn apart, to a terrible people, after whom there is no other, to a nation apprehensive and downtrodden, whose land the rivers have spoiled. {18:3} All inhabitants of the world, you who dwell upon the earth: when the sign will have been elevated on the mountains, you will see, and you will hear the blast of the trumpet. {18:4} For the Lord says this to me: I will be quiet, and I will consider in my place, as the light at midday is clear, and as a cloud of dew in the day of the harvest. {18:5} For before the harvest, all was flourishing. And it will spring forth with an untimely completion, and its little branches will be pruned with a curved blade. And what is left over will be cut away and shaken off. {18:6} And together they will be abandoned to the birds of the mountains and to the wild beasts of the earth. And the birds will be continuously on them in the summer, and all the wild beasts of the earth will winter over them. {18:7} In that time, a gift will be carried to the Lord of hosts, from a people divided and torn apart, from a terrible people, after whom there has been no other, from an apprehensive nation, apprehensive and downtrodden, whose land the rivers have ruined, and it will be carried to the place of the name of the Lord of hosts, to mount Zion.

[Isaiah 19] {19:1} The burden of Egypt. Behold, the Lord will ascend upon a lofty cloud, and he will enter into Egypt, and the false images of Egypt will be moved before his face, and the heart of Egypt will waste away in its midst. {19:2} And I will cause Egyptian to rush against Egyptian. And they will fight: a man against his brother, and a man against his friend, city against city, kingdom against kingdom. {19:3} And the spirit of Egypt will be ruptured to its very core. And I will cast down their plan violently. And they will seek answers from their false images, and their diviners, and those led by demons, and their seers. {19:4} And I will deliver Egypt into the hand of cruel masters, and a strong king will dominate them, says the Lord, the God of hosts. {19:5} And the waters of the sea will dry up, and the river will be desolate and dry. {19:6} And the rivers will fail. The streams of its banks will diminish and dry up. The reed and the bulrush will wither away. {19:7} The channel of the river will be stripped down to its source, and everything irrigated by it will dry up and wither and be no more. {19:8} And the fishermen will grieve. And all who cast a hook into the river will mourn. And those who cast a net upon the surface of its waters will languish. {19:9} Those who work with linen, combing and weaving fine textiles, will be confounded. {19:10} And its irrigated places will begin to fail, with all those who make pools to take fish. {19:11} The leaders of Tanis are foolish. The wise counselors of Pharaoh have given foolish counsel. How can you say to Pharaoh: “I am the son of wisemen, the son of the kings of antiquity?” {19:12} Where are your wisemen now? Let them announce it to you, and let them reveal what the Lord of hosts intends for Egypt. {19:13} The leaders of Tanis have become foolish. The leaders of Memphis have decayed. They have deceived Egypt, the corner of its people. {19:14} The Lord has mixed a spirit of giddiness into its midst. And they have caused Egypt to err in all its works, like a drunken man who staggers and vomits. {19:15} And there will be no work for Egypt that would produce a head or a tail, one who bows down or one who refrain from bowing down. {19:16} In that day, Egypt will be like women, and they will be stupefied and fearful before the presence of the shaking hand of the Lord of hosts, the hand which he will move over them. {19:17} And the land of Judah will be a dread to Egypt. Everyone who thinks about it will be terrified before the presence of the plan of the Lord of hosts, the plan which he has decided concerning them. {19:18} In that day, there will be five cities in the land of Egypt which speak the language of Canaan, and which swear by the Lord of hosts. One will be called the City of the Sun. {19:19} In that day, there will be an altar of the Lord in the midst of the land of Egypt and a monument of the Lord beside its borders. {19:20} This shall be a sign and a testimony to the Lord of hosts in the land of Egypt. For they will cry out to the Lord before the face of the tribulation, and he will send them a savior and a defender who will free them. {19:21} And the Lord will be acknowledged by Egypt, and the Egyptians will recognize the Lord in that day, and they will worship him with sacrifices and gifts. And they will make vows to the Lord, and they will fulfill them. {19:22} And the Lord will strike Egypt with a scourge, and he will heal them. And they will return to the Lord. And he will be placated toward them, and he will heal them. {19:23} In that day, there will be a way from Egypt to the Assyrians, and the Assyrian will enter into Egypt, and the Egyptian will be with the Assyrians, and the Egyptians will serve Assur. {19:24} In that day, will Israel be the third to the Egyptian and the Assyrian, a blessing in the midst of the earth, {19:25} which the Lord of hosts has blessed, saying: Blessed be my people of Egypt, and the work of my hands for the Assyrian, but Israel is my inheritance.

[Isaiah 20] {20:1} In the year in which Tharthan entered into Ashdod, when Sargon, the king of the Assyrians, had sent him, and when he had fought against Ashdod and had captured it, {20:2} in that same time, the Lord spoke by the hand of Isaiah, the son of Amoz, saying: “Go forth, and remove the sackcloth from your waist, and take your shoes from your feet.” And he did so, going out naked and barefoot. {20:3} And the Lord said: Just as my servant Isaiah has walked naked and barefoot, as a sign and as a portent of three years over Egypt and over Ethiopia, {20:4} so also will the king of the Assyrians force the captivity of Egypt, and the transmigration of Ethiopia: young and old, naked and barefoot, with their buttocks uncovered, to the shame of Egypt. {20:5} And they will be afraid and confounded over Ethiopia, their hope, and Egypt, their glory. {20:6} And in that day, the inhabitants of a certain island will say: “Behold, this was our hope, we fled to them for help, to free us from the face of the king of the Assyrians. And now, how will we be able to escape?”

[Isaiah 21] {21:1} The burden of the desert of the sea. Just as the whirlwinds approach from Africa, it approaches from the desert, from a terrible land. {21:2} A difficult vision has been announced to me: he who is unbelieving, he acts unfaithfully, and he who is a plunderer, he devastates. Ascend, O Elam! Lay siege, O Media! I have caused all its mourning to cease. {21:3} Because of this, my lower back has been filled with pain, and anguish has possessed me, like the anguish of a woman in labor. I fell down when I heard it. I was disturbed when I saw it. {21:4} My heart withered. The darkness stupefied me. Babylon, my beloved, has become a wonder to me. {21:5} Prepare the table. Contemplate, from a place of observation, those who eat and drink. Rise up, you leaders! Take up the shield! {21:6} For the Lord has said this to me: “Go and station a watchman. And let him announce whatever he will see.” {21:7} And he saw a chariot with two horsemen, and a rider on an donkey, and a rider on a camel. And he considered them diligently, with an intense gaze. {21:8} And a lion cried out: “I am on the watchtower of the Lord, standing continually by day. And I am at my station, standing throughout the night. {21:9} Behold, a certain man approaches, a man riding on a two-horse chariot.” And he responded, and he said: “Fallen, fallen is Babylon! And all its graven gods have been crushed into the earth! {21:10} O my threshed grain! O sons of my threshing floor! What I have heard from the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, I have announced to you.” {21:11} The burden of Dumah, cried out to me from Seir: “Watchman, how goes the night? Watchman, how goes the night?” {21:12} The watchman said: “Morning approaches with the night. If you are seeking: seek, and convert, and approach.” {21:13} The burden in Arabia. In the forest you shall sleep, in the evening on the paths of Dedanim. {21:14} You who inhabit the land of the south: upon meeting the thirsty, bring water; meet the fugitive with bread. {21:15} For they are fleeing before the face of swords, before the face of a sword hanging over them, before the face of a bent bow, before the face of a grievous battle. {21:16} For the Lord said this to me: “After one more year, just like one year for a hired hand, all the glory of Kedar will be taken away. {21:17} And the remainder of the multitude of strong archers from the sons of Kedar will be few, for the Lord, the God of Israel, has spoken it.”

[Isaiah 22] {22:1} The burden of the valley of vision. What does it mean to you, then, that each of you have even climbed to the rooftops? {22:2} Filled with clamor, a busy city, an exultant city: your dead have not been slain by the sword, nor did they die in battle. {22:3} All your leaders have fled together, and they have been bound by hardship. All who were found were chained together. They have fled far away. {22:4} For this reason, I said: “Depart from me. I will weep bitterly. Make no attempt to console me, over the devastation of the daughter of my people.” {22:5} For it is a day of death, and of trampling, and of weeping to the Lord, the God of hosts, in the valley of vision: examining the wall and the magnificence above the mountain. {22:6} And Elam took up the quiver and the chariot of the horseman; and he stripped the wall of the shield. {22:7} And your elect valleys will be filled with chariots, and the horsemen will position themselves at the gates. {22:8} And the covering of Judah will be exposed, and in that day, you will see the weaponry of the forest house. {22:9} And you will see breaches in the city of David, for these have been multiplied. But you have gathered together the waters of the lower fish-pool. {22:10} And you have numbered the houses of Jerusalem. And you have destroyed the houses in order to fortify the wall. {22:11} And you have made a pit between two walls for the waters of the ancient fish-pool. But you have not gazed upward to him who made it, and you have not considered, even from a distance, its Maker. {22:12} And in that day, the Lord, the God of hosts, will call to weeping and mourning, to baldness and the wearing of sackcloth. {22:13} But behold: gladness and rejoicing, the killing of calves and the slaughter of rams, the eating of meat and the drinking of wine: “Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we will die.” {22:14} And the voice of the Lord of hosts was revealed in my ears: “Surely this iniquity will not be forgiven you, until you die,” says the Lord, the God of hosts. {22:15} Thus says the Lord, the God of hosts: Go forth and enter to him who lives in the tabernacle, to Shebna, who is in charge of the temple, and you shall say to him: {22:16} “What are you here, or who are you claiming to be here? For you have hewn a sepulcher for yourself here. You have diligently hewn a memorial in a rock, as a tabernacle to yourself. {22:17} Behold, the Lord will cause you to be carried away, like a domesticated rooster, and he will remove you, like an outer garment. {22:18} He will crown you with a crown of tribulation. He will toss you like a ball into a broad and spacious land. There you will die, and there the chariot of your glory will be, for it is a shame to the house of your Lord.” {22:19} And I will expel you from your station, and I will depose you from your ministry. {22:20} And this shall be in that day: I will call my servant Eliakim, the son of Hilkiah. {22:21} And I will clothe him with your vestment, and I will strengthen him with your belt, and I will give your authority to his hand. And he shall be like a father to the inhabitants of Jerusalem and to the house of Judah. {22:22} And I will place the key of the house of David upon his shoulder. And when he opens, no one will close. And when he closes, no one will open. {22:23} And I will fasten him like a peg in a trustworthy place. And he will be upon a throne of glory in the house of his father. {22:24} And they will suspend over him all the glory of his father’s house: various kinds of vessels and every little article, from the vessels of bowls even to every instrument of music. {22:25} In that day, says the Lord of hosts, the peg which was fastened in a trustworthy place shall be taken away. And he will be broken, and he will fall, and he will perish, along with all that had depended upon him, because the Lord has spoken it.

[Isaiah 23] {23:1} The burden of Tyre. Wail, you ships of the sea! For the house, from which they were accustomed to go forth, has been laid waste. From the land of Kittim, this has been revealed to them. {23:2} Be silent, you inhabitants of the island! The merchants of Sidon, crossing over the sea, have filled you. {23:3} The offspring of the Nile is in the midst of many waters. The harvest of the river is her crop. And she has become the marketplace of the nations. {23:4} Be ashamed, O Sidon! For the sea speaks, the strength of the sea, saying: “I have not been in labor, and I have not given birth, and I have not raised young men, nor have I promoted the development of virgins.” {23:5} When it has been heard in Egypt, they will be in anguish, when they hear of Tyre. {23:6} Cross over the seas. Wail, you inhabitants of the island! {23:7} Is this not your place, which from its earliest days has glowed in its antiquity? Her feet will lead her to a sojourn far away. {23:8} Who has made this plan against Tyre, which formerly was crowned, whose merchants were leaders, whose traders were illustrious on the earth? {23:9} The Lord of hosts has planned this, so that he may tear down the arrogance of all glory, and may bring disgrace to all the illustrious of the earth. {23:10} Cross through your land, as through a river, O daughter of the sea. You no longer have a belt. {23:11} He has extended his hand over the sea. He has stirred up kingdoms. The Lord has given an order against Canaan, so that he may crush its strong. {23:12} And he said: “You shall no longer increase so as to glory, while enduring calumny, O virgin daughter of Sidon. Rise up and set sail for Kittim; in that place, too, there will be no rest for you.” {23:13} Behold, the land of the Chaldeans: never before was there such a people! Assur founded it. They have led away its strong ones into captivity. They have dug under its houses. They have left it in ruins. {23:14} Wail, you ships of the sea! For your strength has been devastated. {23:15} And this shall be in that day: you, O Tyre, will be forgotten for seventy years, like the days of one king. Then, after seventy years, there will be, for Tyre, something like the canticle of a harlot. {23:16} Take up a stringed instrument. Circulate through the city, you harlot who had been forgotten. Sing many canticles well, so that you may be remembered. {23:17} And this shall be after seventy years: the Lord will visit Tyre, and he will lead her back to her profits. And she will fornicate again with all the kingdoms of the world upon the face of the earth. {23:18} And her businesses and her profits will be sanctified to the Lord. They will not be locked away and they will not be stored. For her business will be for those who will live in the presence of the Lord, so that they may eat until satisfied, and may be well-clothed even into old age.

[Isaiah 24] {24:1} Behold, the Lord will lay waste to the earth, and he will strip it, and he will afflict its surface, and he will scatter its inhabitants. {24:2} And this shall be: as with the people, so with the priest; and as with the servant, so with his master; as with the handmaid, so with her mistress; as with the buyer, so with the seller; as with the lender, so with the borrower; as with the creditor, so with the debtor. {24:3} The earth will be utterly devastated and utterly plundered. For the Lord has spoken this word. {24:4} The earth mourned, and slipped away, and languished. The world slipped away; the loftiness of the people of the earth was weakened. {24:5} And the earth was corrupted by its inhabitants. For they have transgressed the laws, they have changed the ordinance, they have dissipated the everlasting covenant. {24:6} Because of this, a curse will devour the earth, and its inhabitants will sin. And for this reason, its caretakers will become crazed, and few men will be left behind. {24:7} The vintage has mourned. The vine has languished. All those who were rejoicing in their hearts have groaned. {24:8} The gladness of the drums has ceased. The sound of rejoicing has quieted. The sweetness of stringed instruments has been silenced. {24:9} They will not drink wine with a song. The drink will be bitter to those who drink it. {24:10} The city of vanity has been worn away. Every house has been closed up; no one enters. {24:11} There will be a clamor for wine in the streets. All rejoicing has been abandoned. The gladness of the earth has been carried away. {24:12} Solitude is what remains in the city, and calamity will overwhelm its gates. {24:13} For so shall it be in the midst of the earth, in the midst of the people: it is as if the few remaining olives are being shaken from the olive tree, and it is like a few clusters of grapes, when the grape harvest has already ended. {24:14} These few shall lift up their voice and give praise. When the Lord will have been glorified, they will make a joyful noise from the sea. {24:15} Because of this, glorify the Lord in doctrine: the name of the Lord, the God of Israel, in the islands of the sea. {24:16} From the ends of the earth, we have heard the praises of the glory of the Just One. And I said: “My secret is for myself! My secret is for myself! Woe to me! Those who would betray us have betrayed us, and they have betrayed us with the betrayal of transgression.” {24:17} Dread, and the pit, and the snare are over you, O inhabitant of the earth! {24:18} And this shall be: whoever will flee from the voice of dread will fall into the pit. And whoever will extricate himself from the pit will be caught in the snare. For the floodgates from above have been opened, and the foundations of the earth will be shaken. {24:19} The earth will be utterly broken! The earth will be utterly crushed! The earth will be utterly shaken! {24:20} The earth will stagger greatly, like a drunken man, and will be carried away, like the tent of a single night. And its iniquity will be heavy upon it, and it will fall and not rise up again. {24:21} And this shall be: in that day, the Lord will visit upon the armies of the sky above, and upon the kings of the earth who are on the ground. {24:22} And they will be gathered together like the gathering of one bundle into a pit. And they will be enclosed in that place, as in a prison. And after many days, they will be visited. {24:23} And the moon will be ashamed, and the sun will be confounded, when the Lord of hosts will reign on mount Zion and in Jerusalem, and when he will have been glorified in the sight of his elders.

[Isaiah 25] {25:1} O Lord, you are my God! I will exalt you, and I will confess your name. For you have accomplished miracles. Your plan, from antiquity, is faithful. Amen. {25:2} For you have appointed a city as a tomb, a strong city for ruination, a house of foreigners: so that it may not be a city, and so that it may not be rebuilt forever. {25:3} Concerning this, a strong people will praise you; a city with a robust people will fear you. {25:4} For you have been the strength of the poor, the strength of the indigent in his tribulation, a refuge from the whirlwind, a shadow from the heat. For the spirit of the mighty is like a whirlwind striking against a wall. {25:5} You will bring low the uprising of foreigners, just as heat brings thirst. And like heat under a torrential cloud, you will cause the offshoot of the strong to wither away. {25:6} And the Lord of hosts will cause all the people on this mountain to feast on fatness, to feast on wine, a fatness full of marrow, a purified wine. [25:7] And he will cast down violently, on this mountain, the face of the chains, with which all peoples had been bound, and the net, with which all nations had been covered. [25:8] He will violently cast down death forever. And the Lord God will take away the tears from every face, and he will take away the disgrace of his people from the entire earth. For the Lord has spoken it. [25:9] And they will say in that day: “Behold, this is our God! We have waited for him, and he will save us. This is the Lord! We have endured for him. We will exult and rejoice in his salvation.” [25:10] For the hand of the Lord will rest upon this mountain. And Moab will be trampled under him, just as stubble is worn away by a wagon. [25:11] And he will extend his hands under him, like a swimmer extending his hands to swim. And he will bring down his glory with a clap of his hands. [25:12] And the fortifications of your sublime walls will fall, and be brought low, and be torn down to the ground, even to the dust.

[Isaiah 26] [26:1] In that day, this canticle will be sung in the land of Judah. Within it will be set the city of our strength: Zion, a savior, a wall with a bulwark. [26:2] Open the gates, land of Judah. Within it will be set the city of our strength: Zion, a savior. [26:3] The old error has gone away. You will serve peace: peace, for we have hoped in you. [26:4] You have trusted in the Lord for all eternity, in the Lord God almighty forever. [26:5] For he will bend down those living in the heights. He will bring low the lofty city. He will lower it, even to the ground. He will tear it down, even to the dust. [26:6] The foot will tread it down: the feet of the poor, the steps of the indigent. [26:7] The path of the just is upright; the difficult path of the just is right to walk in. [26:8] And in the path of your judgments, O Lord, we have endured for you. Your name and your remembrance are the desire of the soul. [26:9] My soul has desired you in the night. But I will also watch for you with my spirit, in my inmost heart, from the morning. When you accomplish your judgments upon the earth, the inhabitants of the world will learn justice. [26:10] Let us take pity on the impious one, but he will not learn justice. In the land of the holy ones, he has done iniquity, and so he will not see the glory of the Lord. [26:11] Lord, let your hand be exalted, and let them not see it. May the envious people see and be confounded. And may fire devour your enemies. [26:12] Lord, you will give us peace. For all our works have been wrought for us by you. [26:13] O Lord our God, other lords have possessed us apart from you, but in you alone let us remember your name. [26:14] Let not the dead live; let not the giants rise up again. For this reason, you have visited and destroyed them, and you have perished all remembrance of them. [26:15] You have been lenient to the people, O Lord, lenient to the people. But have you been glorified? You have removed all the limits of the earth. [26:16] Lord, they have sought you in anguish. Your doctrine was with them, amid the tribulation of murmuring. [26:17] Like a woman who has conceived and is approaching the time for delivery, who, in anguish, cries out in her pains, so have we become before your face, O Lord. [26:18] We have conceived, and it is as if we were in labor, but we have given birth to wind. We have not brought forth salvation on the earth. For this reason, the inhabitants of the earth have not fallen. [26:19] Your dead shall live. My slain will rise again. Be awakened, and give praise, you who live in the dust! For your dew is the dew of the light, and you shall be dragged down to the land of the giants, to ruination. [26:20] Go, my people! Enter your chambers. Close your doors behind you. Conceal yourselves for a very brief time, until the indignation has passed over you. [26:21] For behold, the Lord will go forth from his place, so that he may visit the iniquity of each inhabitant of the earth against him. And the earth will reveal its blood, and it will no longer cover its slain.

[Isaiah 27] [27:1] In that day, the Lord will visit, with his harsh and great and strong sword, against Leviathan, the barred serpent, and against Leviathan, the twisted serpent, and he will slay the whale that is in the sea. [27:2] In that day, the vineyard of pure wine will sing to them. [27:3] I am the Lord, who watches over it. I will suddenly give drink to it. I will watch over it, night and day, lest perhaps someone visit against it. [27:4] Indignation is not mine. Who will be a thorn and a brier to me in battle? I will advance against them. I set them on fire together. [27:5] Or will he, instead, take hold of my strength? Will he make peace with me? Will she make peace with me? [27:6] As they advance with violence against Jacob, Israel will flourish and spring forth, and they will fill the face of the world with offspring. [27:7] Has he struck him with the scourge that he himself used to strike others? Or has he killed in the manner that he himself used to kill his victims? [27:8] You will judge this by comparing one measure to another, when he has been cast out. He has decided this, by his stern spirit, for the day of heat. [27:9] Therefore, concerning this, the iniquity of the house of Jacob will be forgiven. And this is the reward of all: that their sin be taken away, when he will have made all the stones of the altar to be like crushed cinders. For the sacred groves and the shrines shall not stand. [27:10] For the fortified city will be desolate. The shining city will be abandoned and will be left behind like a desert. In that place, the calf will pasture, and in that place, he will lie down, and he will feed from its summits. [27:11] Its harvest will be crushed by dryness. Women will arrive and teach it, for it is not a wise people. Because of this, he who made it will not take pity on it, and he who formed it will not spare it. [27:12] And this shall be: in that day, the Lord will strike, from the channel of the river, even to the torrent of Egypt. And you shall be gathered together, one by one, O sons of Israel. [27:13] And this shall be: in that day, a noise will be made with a great trumpet. And those who had been lost will approach from the land of the Assyrians, with those who had been outcasts in the land of Egypt. And they will adore the Lord, on the holy mountain, in Jerusalem.
In that day, the Lord of hosts will be the crown of glory and the wreath of exultation for the remnant of his people. And he will be the spirit of judgment for those who sit in judgment, and the strength of those who return from war to the gates. Yet truly, these also have been ignorant due to wine, and they have gone astray due to inebriation. The priest and the prophet have been ignorant because of inebriation. They have been absorbed by wine. They have staggered in drunkenness. They have not known the One who sees. They have been ignorant of judgment.

For all the tables have been filled with vomit and filth, so much so that there was no place left. To whom will he teach knowledge? And to whom will he grant an understanding of what is heard? To those who have been weaned from the milk, who have been pulled away from the breasts. Then: command, and command again; command, and command again; expect, and expect again; a little here, and a little there. For with the speech of lips and with a different language, he will speak to this people.

He said to them: “This is my rest. Refresh the weary,” and, “This is my refreshment.” And yet they were unwilling to listen. And so, the word of the Lord to them will be: “Command, and command again; command, and command again; expect, and expect again; a little here, and a little there,” so that they may go forward and fall backward, and so that they may be broken and ensnared and captured.

Because of this, listen to the word of the Lord, you mocking men, who lord it over my people who are at Jerusalem. For you have said: “We struck a deal with death, and we formed a pact with Hell. When the inundating scourge passes through, it will not overwhelm us. For we have placed our hope in lies, and we are protected by what is false.”

For this reason, thus says the Lord God: Behold, I will set a stone within the foundations of Zion, a tested stone, a cornerstone, a precious stone, which has been established in the foundation: whoever trusts in him need not hurry.

And I will establish judgment in weights, and justice in measures. And a hailstorm will come, and it will put an end to the earth. And it will be like Ariel to me. And I will surround you like a sphere all around you, and I will raise up a rampart against you, and I will set up fortifications to blockade you.

You will be brought low. You will speak from the ground, and your eloquence will be heard from the dirt. And, from the ground, your voice will be like that of the python, and your eloquence will rumble from the dirt.

And the multitude of those who fan you will be like fine dust. And the multitude of those who have prevailed against you will be like embers fading away. And this will happen suddenly and swiftly. It will be visited from the Lord of hosts with thunder and earthquakes, and with the great noise of a whirlwind and a storm, and with a flame of devouring fire.

And the multitude of all the nations that have struggled against Ariel will be like the dream of a vision by night, along with all who have battled, and besieged, and prevailed against it.

And it will be like one who is hungry and dreams of eating, but, when he has been awakened, his soul is empty. And it will be like one who is thirsty and dreams of drinking, but, after he has been awakened, he still languishes in thirst, and his soul is empty.

So shall the multitude of all the nations be, who have struggled against Mount Zion.

Be stupefied and in wonder! Shake and quiver! Be inebriated, but not from wine! Stagger, but not from drunkenness!

For the Lord has mixed for you a spirit of deep sleep. He will close your eyes. He will cover your prophets and leaders, who see visions.

And the vision of all will be to you like the words of a sealed book, which, when they have given it to someone who knows how to read, they will say, “Read this,” but he will respond, “I cannot; for it has been sealed.” But if the book is given to someone who does not know how to read, and it is said to him, “Read,” then he will respond, “I do not know how to read.”

And the Lord said: Since this people have drawn near to me only with their mouth, and their lips glorify me while their heart is far from me, and their fear of me is based on the commandments and doctrines of men, for this reason, behold, I will proceed to accomplish a wonder for this people, a great and mystifying miracle. For wisdom will perish from their wise, and the understanding of their prudent will be concealed.

Woe to you who use the depths of the heart, so that you may hide your intentions from the Lord. Their works are done in darkness, and so they say: “Who sees us?” and “Who knows us?”

This intention of yours is perverse. It is as if the clay were to plan against the potter, or as if the work were to say to its maker: “You did not make me.” Or it is as if what has been formed were to say to the one who formed it,
“You do not understand.” {29:17} In not more than a little while and a brief time, Lebanon will be turned into a fruitful field, and a fruitful field will be considered to be a forest. {29:18} And in that day, the deaf will hear the words of a book, and out of darkness and obscurity the eyes of the blind will see. {29:19} And the meek will increase their rejoicing in the Lord, and the poor among men will exult in the Holy One of Israel. {29:20} For the one who was prevailing has failed, the one who was mocking has been consumed, and all those who were standing guard over iniquity have been cut down. {29:21} For they caused men to sin by a word, and they supplanted him who argued against them at the gates, and they turned away from justice in vain. {29:22} Because of this, thus says the Lord, he who has redeemed Abraham, to the house of Jacob: From now on, Jacob will not be confounded; from now on his countenance will not blush with shame. {29:23} Instead, when he sees his children, they will be the work of my hands in his midst, sanctifying my name, and they will sanctify the Holy One of Jacob, and they will preach the God of Israel. {29:24} And those who had gone astray in spirit will know understanding, and those who had murmured will learn the law.

[Isaiah 30] {30:1} “Woe to the sons of apostasy!” says the Lord. For you would take advice, but not from me. And you would begin to weave, but not by my spirit. Thus do you add sin upon sin! {30:2} You are walking so as to descend into Egypt, and you have not sought answers from my mouth, instead hoping for assistance from the strength of Pharaoh and placing trust in the shadow of Egypt. {30:3} And so, the strength of Pharaoh will be your confusion, and trust in the shadow of Egypt will be your disgrace. {30:4} For your leaders were at Tanis, and your messengers have traveled even as far as Hanes. {30:5} They have all been confounded because of a people who were not able to offer profit to them, who were not of assistance, nor of other usefulness, except to offer confusion and reproach. {30:6} The burden of the beasts in the south. In a land of tribulation and anguish, from which go forth the lioness and the lion, the viper and the flying king snake, they carry their riches upon the shoulders of beasts of burden, and their valuables upon the humps of camels, to a people who are not able to offer profit to them. {30:7} For Egypt will offer assistance, but without purpose or success. Therefore, concerning this, I cried out: “It is only arrogance! Remain calm.” {30:8} Now, therefore, enter and write for them upon a tablet, and note it diligently in a book, and this shall be a testimony in the last days, and even unto eternity. {30:9} For they are a people who provoke to wrath, and they are lying sons, sons unwilling to listen to the law of God. {30:10} They say to the seers, “Do not see,” and to those who behold: “Do not behold for us the things that are right. Speak to us of pleasing things. See errors for us. {30:11} Take me from the way. Avert me from the path. Let the Holy One of Israel cease from before our face.” {30:12} Because of this, thus says the Holy One of Israel: Since you have rejected this word, and you have hoped in calumnny and rebellion, and since you have depended upon these things, {30:13} for this reason, this iniquity will be to you like a breach that has fallen, and like a gap in a high wall. For its destruction will happen suddenly, when it is not expected. {30:14} And it will be crushed, just as the earthen vessel of a potter is destroyed by a sharp blow. And not even a fragment of its earthenware will be found, which might carry a little fire from the hearth, or which might draw a little water from a hollow. {30:15} For thus says the Lord God, the Holy One of Israel: If you return and are quiet, you shall be saved. Your strength will be found in silence and in hope. But you are not willing! {30:16} And you have said: “Never! Instead, we will flee by horseback.” For this reason, you will be put to flight. And you have said, “We will climb upon swift ones.” For this reason, those who pursue you will be even swifter. {30:17} A thousand men will flee in terror from the face of one, and you will flee in terror from the face of five, until you who have been left behind are like the mast of a ship at the top of a mountain, or like a sign on a hill. {30:18} Therefore, the Lord waits, so that he may take pity on you. And therefore, he will be exalted for sparing you. For the Lord is the God of judgment. Blessed are all those who wait for him. {30:19} For the people of Zion will live in Jerusalem. Bitterly, you will not weep. Mercifully, he will take pity on you. At the voice of your outcry, as soon as he hears, he will respond to you. {30:20} And the Lord will give you thick bread and accessible water. And he will not cause your teacher to fly away from you anymore. And your eyes will behold your instructor. {30:21} And your ears will listen to the word of one admonishing you behind your back: “This is the way! Walk in it! And do not turn aside, neither to the right, nor to the left.” {30:22} And you will defile the plates of your silver graven images and the vestment of your gold molten idols. And you will throw these things away like the uncleanness of a menstruating woman. You will say to it, “Go away!” {30:23} And wherever you sow seed upon the earth, rain will be given to the seed. And bread from the grain of the earth will be very plentiful and full. In that day, the lamb will pasture in the spacious land of your possession. {30:24} And your bulls, and the colts of the donkeys that work the ground, will eat a mix of grains like that winnowed on the threshing floor. {30:25} And there will be, on every lofty mountain, and on every elevated hill, rivers of running water, in the day of the slaughter of many, when the tower will fall. {30:26} And the light of the moon will be like the light of the sun, and the light of the sun will be sevenfold, like the light of seven days, in the day when the Lord will bind the wound of his people, and when he will heal the stroke of their scourge. {30:27} Behold, the name of the Lord arrives from far away. His fury is burning and heavy to bear. His lips have been filled with indignation, and his tongue is like a devouring fire. {30:28} His Spirit is like a torrent, inundating, even as high as the middle of the neck, in order to reduce the nations to nothing, along with the bridle of error that was in the jaws of the people. {30:29} There will be a song for you, as in the night of a sanctified solemnity, and a joy of heart, as when one travels with music to arrive at the mountain of the Lord, to the Strong One of Israel. {30:30} And the Lord will cause the glory of his voice to be heard, and, with a threatening fury and a devouring flame of fire, he will reveal the terror of his arm. He will crush with the whirlwind and with hailstones. {30:31} For at the voice of the Lord, Assur will dread being struck with the staff. {30:32} And when the passage of the staff has been begun, the Lord will cause it to rest upon him, with timbrels and harps. And with special battles, he will fight against them. {30:33} For a burning place, deep and wide, has been prepared from yesterday, prepared by the King. Its nourishment is fire and much wood. The breath of the Lord, like a torrent of brimstone, kindles it.

Isaiah 31
{31:1} Woe to those who descend into Egypt for assistance, hoping in horses, and putting their trust in four-horse chariots because they are many, and in horsemen because they are exceedingly strong. And they have not believed in the Holy One of Israel, and they have not sought the Lord.
{31:2} Therefore, being wise, he has permitted harm, and he has not removed his words, and he will rise up against the house of the wicked and against those who assist the workers of iniquity.
{31:3} Egypt is man, and not God. And their horses are flesh, and not spirit. And so, the Lord will reach down his hand, and the helper will fall, and the one who was being helped will fall, and they will all be consumed together.
{31:4} For the Lord says this to me: In the same way that a lion roars, and a young lion is over his prey, and though a multitude of shepherds may meet him, he will not dread their voice, nor be afraid of their number, so will the Lord of hosts descend in order to battle upon mount Zion and upon its hill.
{31:5} Like birds flying, so will the Lord of hosts protect Jerusalem, protecting and freeing, passing over and saving.
{31:6} Be converted to the same depth that you have drawn away, O sons of Israel.
{31:7} For in that day, a man will cast away his idols of silver and his idols of gold, which your hands have made for you unto sin.
{31:8} And Assur will fall by a sword not of man, and a sword not of man will devour him. And he will not flee from the face of the sword, and his young men will be subject to a penalty.
{31:9} And his strength will pass away in terror, and his princes will flee in fear. The Lord has said it. His fire is in Zion, and his furnace is at Jerusalem.

Isaiah 32
{32:1} Behold, the king will reign in justice, and the princes will rule in judgment.
{32:2} And a man will be like someone hidden from the wind, who conceals himself from a storm, or like rivers of waters in a time of thirst, or like the shadow of a rock that juts out in a desert land.
{32:3} The eyes of those who see will not be obscured, and the ears of those who hear will listen closely.
{32:4} And the heart of the foolish will understand knowledge, and the tongue of those with impaired speech will speak quickly and plainly.
{32:5} He who is foolish will no longer be called leader, nor will the deceitful be called greater.
{32:6} For a foolish man speaks foolishness and his heart works iniquity in order to accomplish deception. And he speaks to the Lord deceitfully, so as to empty the soul of the hungry and to take away drink from the thirsty.
{32:7} The tools of the deceitful are very wicked. For they have concocted plans to destroy the meek by lying words, though the poor speak judgment.
{32:8} Yet truly, the prince will plan things that are worthy of a prince, and he will stand above the rulers.
{32:9} You opulent women, rise up and listen to my voice! O confident daughters, play close attention to my eloquence!
{32:10} For after a year and some days, you who are confident will be disturbed. For the vintage has been completed; the gathering will no longer occur.
{32:11} Be stupefied, you opulent women! Be disturbed, O confident ones! Strip yourselves, and be confounded; gird yourselves at the waist.
{32:12} Mourn over your breasts, over the delightful country, over the fruitful vineyard.
{32:13} Thorn and brier will rise up, over the soil of my people. How much more over all the houses of gladness, over the city of exultation?
{32:14} For the house has been forsaken. The multitude of the city has been abandoned. A darkness and a covering have been placed over its dens, even unto eternity. It will be the gladness of wild donkeys and the pasture of flocks, until the Spirit is poured over us from on high. And the desert will be a fruitful field, and the fruitful field will be considered as a forest.
{32:15} And judgment will live in solitude, and justice will be seated in a fruitful place.
{32:16} And the work of justice will be peace. And the service of justice will be quiet and secure, forever.
{32:18} And my people will be seated in the beauty of peacefulness, and in the tabernacles of faithfulness, and in the opulence of restfulness.
{32:19} But hail will be in the descent of the forest, and the city will be brought exceedingly low.
{32:20} Blessed are you who sow over any waters, sending the feet of the ox and the donkey there.
look upon a shameless people, a people of exalted words. For you are not able to understand the dissertation of a tongue in which there is no wisdom. 33:20 Look with favor upon Zion, the city of our solemnity. Your eyes will behold Jerusalem: an opulent habitation, a tabernacle that can never be taken away. Its stakes will not be taken away forever, nor will any of its cords be broken. 33:21 For only in that place has our Lord been magnified. It is a place of rivers, very broad and open. No ship with oars will cross through it, nor will the great Greek ship pass through it. 33:22 For the Lord is our judge. The Lord is our lawgiver. The Lord is our king. He himself will save us. 33:23 Your ropes have become loose, and they will not prevail. Your mast will be such that you will not be able to unfurl a flag. Then the spoils of much plunder will be divided. The lame will seize the spoils. 33:24 He who is nearby will not say: "I am too weak." The people who live in it will have their iniquity taken away from them.

[Isaiah 34] 34:1 O nations and peoples: draw near, and listen, and pay attention! Let the earth and its fullness hear, the entire world and all its offspring. 34:2 For the indignation of the Lord is over all the nations, and his fury is over all their armies. He has put them to death, and he has raised its young, and has dug around them, and has kept them warm in its shadow. In that place, the birds of prey have joined together, one to another. 34:3 Their slain will be cast out, and from their carcasses a foul odor will rise up. The mountains will languish because of their blood. 34:4 And the entire army of the heavens will languish, and the heavens will be folded like a book. And their entire army will fall away, as a leaf falls from the vine or from the fig tree. 34:5 “For my sword in heaven has been inebriated. Behold, it will descend upon Idumea, and upon the people of my slaughter, unto judgment.” 34:6 The sword of the Lord has been filled with blood. It has been thickened by the blood of lambs and he-goats, by the innermost blood of rams. For the victim of the Lord is in Bozrah, and a great slaughter is in the land of Edom. 34:7 And the single-horned beasts will descend with them, and the bulls along with the mighty. Their land will be inebriated by blood, and their ground by the fat of their lazy ones. 34:8 For this is the day of the vengeance of the Lord, the year of retribution for the judgment of Zion. 34:9 And its torrents will be turned into tar, and its soil into sulfur. And its land will become burning tar. 34:10 Night and day, it will not be extinguished; its smoke will rise up without ceasing. From generation to generation it will remain desolate. No one will pass through it, forever and ever. 34:11 The pelican and the hedgehog will possess it. And the ibis and the raven will live in it. And a measuring line will be extended over it, so that it may be reduced to nothing, and a plumb line, unto desolation. 34:12 Its nobles will not be in that place. Instead, they will call upon the king, and all its leaders will be as nothing. 34:13 And thorns and nettles will rise up in its houses, and the thistle in its fortified places. And it will be the lair of serpents and the pasture of ostriches. 34:14 And demons and monsters will meet, and the hairy ones will cry out to one another. There, the ogress has lain down and found rest for herself. 34:15 In that place, the hedgehog has kept its den, and has raised its young, and has dug around them, and has kept them warm in its shadow. In that place, the birds of prey have joined together, one to another. 34:16 Search and read diligently in the book of the Lord. Not one of them was lacking; not one has sought for the other. For what has proceeded from my mouth, he has commanded, and his very Spirit has gathered them. 34:17 And he has cast lots over them. And his hand has distributed this to them by measure. They will possess it, even unto eternity. From generation to generation, they will dwell in it.

[Isaiah 35] 35:1 The desolate and impassable land will rejoice, and the place of solitude will exult, and it will flourish like the lily. 35:2 It will spring up and blossom, and it will exult with rejoicing and praising. The glory of Lebanon has been given to it, with the beauty of Carmel and Sharon. These will see the glory of the Lord and the beauty of our God. 35:3 Strengthen the lax hands, and confirm the weak knees! 35:4 Say to the fainthearted: “Take courage and fear not! Behold, your God will bring the vindication of retribution. God himself will arrive to save you.” 35:5 Then the eyes of the blind will be opened, and the ears of the deaf will be cleared. 35:6 Then the disabled will leap like a buck, and the tongue of the mute will be untied. For the waters have burst forth in the desert, and torrents in solitary places. 35:7 And the land that was dry will have a pond, and the thirsty land will have fountains of water. In the hollows where the serpents lived before, there will rise up the greenery of reed and bulrush. 35:8 And there shall be a path and a road in that place. And it will be called the Holy Way. The defiled will not pass through it. For this will be an upright path for you, so much so that the foolish will not wander along it. 35:9 There will be no lions in that place, and harmful wild animals will neither climb up to it, nor be found there. Only those who have been freed will walk in that place. 35:10 And the redeemed of the Lord will be converted, and they will return to Zion with praising. And everlasting joy will be upon their heads. They will obtain gladness and rejoicing. For pain and sorrow will flee away.

[Isaiah 36] 36:1 And it happened that, in the fourteenth year of king Hezekiah, Sennacherib, the king of the Assyrians, went up against all the fortified cities of Judah, and he seized them. 36:2 And the king of the Assyrians sent Rabshakeh from Lachish into Jerusalem, to king Hezekiah, with a great force, and he stood near the aqueduct of the upper pool, at the road to the fuller’s field. 36:3 And those who went to him were Eliakim, son of Hilkiah, who was over the house, and Shebna, the scribe, and Joah, son of Asaph, the historian. 36:4 And Rabshakeh said to them: “Tell Hezekiah: Thus says the great king, the king of the Assyrians: What is this faith in which you believe? 36:5 And by what counsel or strength would you prepare to rebel? In whom do you have faith, so much so that you would withdraw from me? 36:6 Behold, you are trusting in Egypt, in that broken staff of a reed. But if a man were to lean against it, it would enter his hand and pierce it. So is Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, to all who trust in him. 36:7 But if you answer me by saying: ‘We trust in the Lord our God.’ Is it not his high places and altars that Hezekiah has taken away? And he has said to Judah and to Jerusalem, ‘You shall worship before this altar.’ 36:8 And now, hand yourselves over to my lord, the king of the Assyrians, and I will give you two thousand horses, and you will not be able to find riders for them on your own. 36:9 So how will you withstand the face of the ruler of even one place, of even the least of my lord’s subordinates? But if you trust in Egypt, in four-horse chariots and in horsemen:
[36:10] do I intend to go up against this land to destroy it without the Lord? But the Lord said to me, ‘Go up against this land, and destroy it.’”
[36:11] And Eliakim, and Shebna, and Joah said to Rabshakeh: “Speak to your servants in the Syrian language. For we understand it. Do not speak to us in the Jewish language, in the hearing of the people, who are upon the wall.”
[36:12] And Rabshakeh said to them: “Has my lord sent me to your lord and to you in order to speak all these words, and not even more so to the men who are sitting on the wall, so that they may eat their own dung and drink their own urine with you?”
[36:13] Then Rabshakeh stood up, and he cried out with a loud voice in the Jewish language, and he said: “Listen to the words of the great king, the king of the Assyrians.
[36:14] Thus says the king: Do not let Hezekiah deceive you. For he will not be able to rescue you.
[36:15] And do not let Hezekiah cause you to trust in the Lord, saying: ‘The Lord will rescue and free us. This city will not be given into the hands of the king of the Assyrians.’
[36:16] Do not listen to Hezekiah. For the king of the Assyrians says this: Act with me to your own benefit, and come out to me. And let each one eat from his own vine, and each one from his own fig tree. And let each one drink water from his own well, [36:17] until I arrive and take you away to a land which is like your own: a land of grain and of wine, a land of bread and of vineyards.
[36:18] But you should not let Hezekiah disturb you, saying, ‘The Lord will deliver us.’ Have any of the gods of each of the nations delivered their land from the hand of the king of the Assyrians?
[36:19] Where is the god of Hamath and of Arpad? Where is the god of Sepharvaim? Have they freed Samaria from my hand?
[36:20] Who is there, among all the gods of these lands, who has rescued his land from my hand, so that the Lord would rescue Jerusalem from my hand?”
[36:21] And they remained silent and did not answer a word to him. For the Lord would rescue Jerusalem from my hand?
[36:22] And Eliakim, son of Hilkiah, who was over the house, and Shebna, the scribe, and Joah, son of Asaph, the historian, entered to Hezekiah with their garments rent, and they reported to him the words of Rabshakeh.

Isaiah 37
[37:1] And it happened that, when king Hezekiah had heard this, he rent his garments, and he wrapped himself in sackcloth, and he entered the house of the Lord.
[37:2] And he sent Eliakim, who was over the house, and Shebna, the scribe, and the elders of the priests, covered with sackcloth, to Isaiah, the son of Amoz, the prophet.
[37:3] And they said to him: “Thus says Hezekiah: This day is a day of tribulation, and of rebuke, and of blasphemy. For the sons have arrived at the time for birth, but there is not enough strength to bring them forth.
[37:4] Perhaps, somehow, the Lord your God will hear the words of Rabshakeh, whom the king of the Assyrians, his lord, has sent to blaspheme the living God, and will rebuke the words that the Lord your God has heard. Therefore, lift up your prayers on behalf of the remnant which has been left behind.”
[37:5] And so the servants of king Hezekiah went to Isaiah.
[37:6] And Isaiah said to them: “You shall say this to your lord: Thus says the Lord: Do not be afraid to face the words that you have heard, by which the servants of the king of the Assyrians blasphemed me.
[37:7] Behold, I will send a spirit to him, and he will hear a message, and he will return to his own land. And I will cause him to fall by the sword, in his own land.”
[37:8] Then Rabshakeh returned, and he found the king of the Assyrians fighting against Libnah. For he had heard that he had set out from Lachish.
[37:9] And he heard from Tirsakah, the king of Ethiopia: “He has gone forth so that he may fight against you.” And when he had heard this, he sent messengers to Hezekiah, saying:
[37:10] “You shall say this to Hezekiah, the king of Judah, saying: Do not let your God, in whom you trust, deceive you by saying: ‘Jerusalem will not be given into the hands of the king of the Assyrians.’”
[37:11] Behold, you have heard about all that the kings of the Assyrians have done to all the lands that they have conquered, and so, how can you be delivered?
[37:12] Have the gods of the nations rescued those whom my fathers have conquered: Gozan, and Haran, and Rezeph, and the sons of Eden who were at Telassar?
[37:13] Where is the king of Hamath and the king of Arpad, or the king of the city of Sepharvaim, or of Hena and Ivah?
[37:14] And Hezekiah took the letter from the hand of the messengers, and he read it, and he went up to the house of the Lord, and Hezekiah spread it out in the sight of the Lord.
[37:15] And Hezekiah prayed to the Lord, saying:
[37:16] “O Lord of hosts, the God of Israel who sits upon the Cherubim: you alone are God of all the kingdoms of the earth. You have made heaven and earth.
[37:17] O Lord, incline your ear and listen. O Lord, open your eyes and see. And hear all the words of Sennacherib, which he has sent to blaspheme the living God.
[37:18] For truly, O Lord, the kings of the Assyrians have laid waste to countries and territories.
[37:19] And they have cast their gods into the fire. For these were not gods, but the works of men’s hands, of wood and of stone. And they broke them into pieces.
[37:20] And now, O Lord our God, save us from his hand. And let all the kingdoms of the earth acknowledge that you alone are Lord.”
[37:21] And Isaiah, the son of Amoz, sent to Hezekiah, saying: “Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: Because of what you have prayed to me about Sennacherib, the king of the Assyrians, [37:22] this is the word that the Lord has spoken over him: The virgin daughter of Zion has despised you and mocked you. The daughter of Jerusalem has shaken her head at you.
[37:23] Whom have you insulted? And whom have you blasphemed? And against whom have you lifted up your voice and raised up your eyes on high? Against the Holy One of Israel!
[37:24] By the hand of your servants, you have reproached the Lord. And you have said: ‘With a multitude of my four-horse chariots, I have ascended the heights of the mountains adjoining Lebanon. And I will cut down its lofty cedars and its choice pine trees. And I will reach the top of its summit, to the forest of its Carmel.
[37:25] I dug deep, and I drank water, and I dried up all the river banks with the sole of my foot.’
[37:26] Have you not heard what I have done to it in past times? In ancient times, I formed it. And now I have brought it forth. And it has been made so that the hills and the fortified cities would fight together, unto its destruction.
[37:27] Their inhabitants had unsteady hands. They trembled and were confused. They became like the plants of the field, and the grass of the pastures, and like the weeds on the rooftops, which wither before they are mature.
[37:28] I know your habitation, and your arrival, and your departure, and your madness against me.
[37:29] When you became angry against me, your arrogance rose up to my ears. Therefore, I will place a ring in your nose, and a bit between your lips. And I will turn you back on the road by which you arrived. {37:30} But this shall be a sign for you: Eat, in this year, whatever springs up on its own. And in the second year, eat fruits. But in the third year, sow and reap, and plant vineyards, and eat their fruit. {37:31} And what will be saved from the house of Judah, and what is left behind, will form deep roots, and will bear high fruits. {37:32} For from Jerusalem, a remnant shall go forth, and salvation from mount Zion. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will accomplish this. {37:33} For this reason, thus says the Lord about the king of the Assyrians: He will not enter this city, nor shoot an arrow into it, nor overtake it with a shield, nor dig a rampart all around it. {37:34} He will return on the road by which he arrived. And into this city, he will not enter, says the Lord. {37:35} And I will protect this city, so that I may save it for my own sake, and for the sake of David, my servant.” {37:36} Then the Angel of the Lord went forth and struck down, in the camp of the Assyrians, one hundred eighty-five thousand. And they arose in the morning, and beheld, all these were dead bodies. {37:37} And Sennacherib, the king of the Assyrians, departed and went away. And he returned and lived at Nineveh. {37:38} And it happened that, as he was adoring his god in the temple of Nisroch, his sons, Adramelech and Sharezer, struck him with the sword. And they fled into the land of Ararat. And Esarhaddon, his son, reigned in his place.

[Isaiah 38] {38:1} In those days Hezekiah became ill and was near death. And so, Isaiah, the son of Amoz, the prophet, entered to him, and he said to him: “Thus says the Lord: Put your house in order, for you shall die, and you shall not live.” {38:2} And Hezekiah turned his face toward the wall, and he prayed to the Lord. {38:3} And he said: “I beg you, Lord, I beseech you, to remember how I walked before you in truth and prayed to the Lord. {38:4} And Hezekiah turned his face toward the wall, and he prayed to the Lord. {38:5} And he said: “I beg you, Lord, I beseech you, to remember how I walked before you in truth and prayed to the Lord.” {38:6} And the Lord said: “Go and say to Hezekiah: Thus says the Lord, the God of David, your father: I have heard your prayer, and I will restore you to health. {38:7} And your children, who will issue from you, whom I will give to you, they will recover from your sickness.” {38:8} And Hezekiah said to Isaiah: “The word of the Lord has come to me: From morning until evening, you have marked my limits. From morning until evening, you have marked my limits. {38:9} I will cry out, like a young swallow. I will meditate, like a dove. My eyes have been weakened by gazing upward. O Lord, I suffer violence! Answer in my favor. {38:15} What can I say, or what would he answer me, since he himself has done this? I will acknowledge to you all my years, in the bitterness of my soul. {38:16} O Lord, if such is life, and if the life of my spirit is of such a kind, may you correct me and may you cause me to live. {38:17} Behold, in peace my bitterness is most bitter. But you have rescued my soul, so that it would not perish. You have cast all my sins behind your back. {38:18} For Hell will not confess to you, and death will not praise you. Those who descend into the pit will not hope for your truth. {38:19} The living, the living, these will give praise to you, as I also do this day! The father will make the truth known to the sons. {38:20} O Lord, save me! And we will sing our psalms, all the days of our life, in the house of the Lord.” {38:21} Now Isaiah had ordered them to take a paste of figs, and to spread it like plaster over the wound, so that he would be healed. {38:22} And Hezekiah said, “What will be the sign that I may go up to the house of the Lord?”

[Isaiah 39] {39:1} At that time, Merodach Baladan, the son of Baladan, the king of Babylon, sent letters and gifts to Hezekiah. For he had heard that he had fallen ill and had recovered. {39:2} And Hezekiah rejoiced over them, and he showed them the storehouses of his aromatic spices, and of the silver and gold, and of the perfumes and precious ointments, and all the repositories for his belongings, and all the things that were found in his treasures. There was nothing in his house, nor in all his dominion, that Hezekiah did not show them. {39:3} Then Isaiah the prophet entered before king Hezekiah, and he said to him, “What did these men say, and from where did they come to you?” And Hezekiah said, “They came to me from a far away land, from Babylon.” {39:4} And he said, “What did they see in your house?” And Hezekiah said: “They have seen all the things that are in my house. There was nothing that I did not show them among my treasures.” {39:5} And Isaiah said to Hezekiah: “Hear the word of the Lord of hosts: {39:6} Behold, the days are coming when all that is in your house, and all that your fathers have stored up, even to this day, will be taken away to Babylon. There will be nothing left behind, says the Lord. {39:7} And your children, who will issue from you, whom you will produce, they will be taken away. And they will become eunuchs in the palace of the king of Babylon.” {39:8} And Hezekiah said to Isaiah, “The word of the Lord which he has spoken is good.” And he said, “But let there be peace and truth in my days.”

[Isaiah 40] {40:1} “Be consoled, be consoled, O my people!” says your God. {40:2} Speak to the heart of Jerusalem, and call out to her! For her malice has reached its end. Her iniquity has been forgiven. She has received double for all her sins from the hand of the Lord. {40:3} The voice of one crying out in the desert: “Prepare the way of the Lord! Make straight the paths of our God, in a solitary place. {40:4} Every valley will be exalted, and every mountain and hill will be brought low. And the crooked will be straightened, and the uneven will become level ways. {40:5} And the glory of the Lord will be revealed. And all flesh together will see that the mouth of the Lord has spoken.” {40:6} The voice of one saying, “Cry out!” And I said, “What should I cry out?” “All flesh is grass, and all its glory is like the flower of the and young men will fall into infirmity. But those who are failing. Servants will struggle and fail, weary, and it is he who increases fortitude and strength in wisdom searchable. It is he who gives strength to the eternal God, who has created the limits of the earth. He does not diminish, and he does not struggle. Neither is his way hidden from him. He is the eternal God, who has created the limits of the earth. He leads forth their army by number, One. Lift up your eyes on high, and see who has blown them across them, and they have withered, and a secret to nothingness. He has brought the judges of the earth to emptiness. And certainly, their stalk was neither planted, nor sown, nor rooted in the ground. He has suddenly blown them up, and they have withered, and a whirlwind will scatter them. And you shall winnow them, and the wind will blow them away, and the whirlwind will scatter them. And you will turn the hills into chaff. You will winnow them, and the wind will blow them away, and the whirlwind will scatter them. And you shall exult in the Lord; you shall rejoice in the Holy One of Israel. The indigent and the poor are seeking water, but there is none. Their tongue has been dried up by thirst. I, the Lord, will heed them. I, the God of Israel, will not abandon them.

[Isaiah 41] 41:1 Let the islands be silent before me, and let the nations take new strength. Let them draw near, and then speak. Let us apply for judgment together. 41:2 Who has raised up a just man from the east, and has called him to follow him? He will place the nations under his gaze, and he will rule over kings. He will cause them to be like dust before his sword, like chaff driven by the wind before his bow. 41:3 He will pursue them. He will pass by in peace. No trace will appear after his feet. 41:4 Who has worked and accomplished these things, calling to the generations from the beginning? "It is I, the Lord! I am the first and the last." 41:5 The islands saw it and were afraid. The ends of the earth were stupefied. They drew near and arrived. 41:6 Each one will help his neighbor and will say to his brother, "Be strengthened." 41:7 The coppersmith striking with the mallet encouraged him who was forging at that time, saying, "It is ready for soldering." And he strengthened it with nails, so that it would not be moved. 41:8 But you, O Israel, are my servant, O Jacob, whom I have chosen, the offspring of my friend Abraham. 41:9 For his sake, I have taken you from the ends of the earth, and I have called you from its distant places. And I said to you: "You are my servant. I have chosen you, and I have not cast you aside." 41:10 Do not be afraid, for I am with you. Do not turn away, for I am your God. I have strengthened you, and I have assisted you, and the right hand of my just one has upheld you. 41:11 Behold, all who fight against you shall be confounded and ashamed. They will be as if they did not exist, and the men who contradict you will perish. 41:12 You will seek them, and you will not find them. The men who rebel against you will be as if they did not exist. And the men who make war against you will be like something that has been consumed. 41:13 For I am the Lord your God. I take you by your hand, and I say to you: Do not be afraid. I have helped you. 41:14 Fear not, O worm of Jacob, you who are dead within Israel. I have helped you, says the Lord, your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel. 41:15 I have established you like a new threshing cart, having serrated blades. You will thresh the mountains and crush them. And you will turn the hills into chaff. You will winnow them, and the wind will blow them away, and the whirlwind will scatter them. And you shall exult in the Lord; you shall rejoice in the Holy One of Israel. 41:17 The indigent and the poor are seeking water, but there is none. Their tongue has been dried up by thirst. I, the Lord, will heed them. I, the God of Israel, will not abandon them. 41:18 I will open rivers in the high hills, and fountains in the midst of the plains. I will turn the desert into pools of water, and the impassable land into streams of water. 41:19 I will plant the cedar in a deserted place, with the thorn, and the myrtle, and the olive tree. In the desert, I will plant the pine, and the elm, and the box tree together, so that they may see and know, acknowledge and understand, together, that the hand of the Lord has accomplished this, and that the Holy One of Israel has created it. 41:21 Bring your case forward, says the Lord. Bring it here, if you have anything to allege, says the King of Jacob. 41:22 Let them approach and announce to us the hope in the Lord will renew their strength. They will take up wings like eagles. They will run and not struggle. They will walk and not tire.
things that will occur. Announce to us the things that were before. And we will apply our heart to them, and we will know their end. And so, reveal to us the things that will occur. {41:23} Announce the things that will occur in the future, and we will know that you are gods. Likewise, accomplish good or evil, if you are able, and let us speak of it and see it together. {41:24} Behold, you exist out of nothing, and your work is from what does not exist; he who has chosen you is an abomination. {41:25} I have raised up one from the north, and he will arrive from the rising of the sun. He will call upon my name, and he will reduce magistrates to mud, like a potter working with clay. {41:26} Who has announced this from its rising, so that we may know it, or from its beginning, so that we may say, “You are just.” There is no one who either announces, or predicts, or hears your words. {41:27} The first one will say to Zion: “Behold, they are here,” and to Jerusalem, “I will present an evangelist.” {41:28} And I saw, and there was no one among any of them to consult, or who, when I asked, could answer a word. {41:29} Behold, they are all unjust, and their works are empty. Their idols are wind and emptiness.

[Isaiah 42] {42:1} Behold my servant, I will uphold him, my elect, with him my soul is well-pleased. I have sent my Spirit upon him. He will offer judgment to the nations. {42:2} He will not cry out, and he will not show favoritism to anyone; neither will his voice be heard abroad. {42:3} The bruised reed he will not break, and the smoldering wick he will not extinguish. He will lead forth judgment unto truth. {42:4} He will not be saddened or troubled, until he establishes judgment on earth. And the islands will await his law. {42:5} Thus says the Lord God, who created the heavens and expanded it, who formed the earth and all that springs from it, who gives breath to the people in it, and spirit to those walking on it. {42:6} I, the Lord, have called you in justice, and I have taken your hand and preserved you. And I have presented you as a covenant of the people, as a light to the Gentiles, {42:7} so that you may open the eyes of the blind, and lead out the prisoner from confinement and those sitting in darkness from the house of incarceration. {42:8} I am the Lord; this is my name. I will not give my glory to another, nor my praise to graven things. {42:9} The things that were first, behold, they have arrived. And I also announce what is new. Before these things arise, I will cause you to hear about them. {42:10} Sing to the Lord a new canticle, sing his praise from the ends of the earth, you who descend into the sea and all its fullness, the islands and their inhabitants. {42:11} Let the desert and its cities be lifted up. Kedar will dwell in all its fullness, the islands and their inhabitants. {42:12} From the ends of the earth, you who descend into the sea and them. {42:13} Let the Lord be magnified, and let our God be exalted. {42:14} He will prevail against his enemies. {42:15} I have always been quiet, I have been silent, I have been patient. I will speak like a woman giving birth. I will destroy and consume, all at once. {42:16} I will desolate the mountains and the hills, and I will wither all their grass. And I will turn rivers into islands, and I will dry up the pools of water. {42:17} And I will lead the blind along a way which they do not know. And I will cause them to walk along paths with which they were unfamiliar. I will turn darkness into light before them, and crooked into straight. These things I have done for them. For I have not abandoned them. {42:18} They have been converted again. Let those who trust in graven idols be greatly confounded, for they say to a molten thing, “You are our god.” {42:19} You who are deaf, hear! You who are blind, turn your gaze and see! {42:20} Who is blind, except my servant? Who is deaf, except the one to whom I have sent my messengers? Who is blind, except the one who has been sold? And who is blind, except the servant of the Lord? {42:21} You who see many things, will you not keep them? You who have open ears, will you not listen? {42:22} And the Lord was willing to sanctify him, and to magnify the law, and to exalt him. But this same people has robbed and laid waste. All their youth are a snare, and they have been hidden in houses of confinement. They have become victims; there is no one who may rescue them. They have been plundered; there is no one who may say, “Restore.” {42:23} Who is there among you who will hear this, who will listen closely and heed this in the future? {42:24} Who has handed over Jacob into plunder, and Israel into devastation? It is not the Lord himself, against whom we have sinned? And they were not willing to walk in his ways, and they have not listened to his law. {42:25} And so, he poured out over him the indignation of his fury and a strong battle. And he burned him all around, and he did not realize it. And he set him on fire, and he did not understand it.

[Isaiah 43] {43:1} And now thus says the Lord who created you, O Jacob, and who formed you, O Israel: Do not be afraid. For I have redeemed you, and I have called you by your name. You are mine. {43:2} When you pass through the waters, I will be with you, and the rivers will not cover you. When you walk through fire, you will not be burned, and the flames will not scorch you. {43:3} For I am the Lord your God, the Holy One of Israel, your Saviour. I have presented Egypt as your atonement, Ethiopia and Seba on your behalf. {43:4} Since then, you have become honorable in my eyes, and glorious. I have loved you, and I will present men on behalf of you, and people on behalf of your life. {43:5} Fear not, for I am with you. I will lead your offspring from the East, and I will gather you from the West. {43:6} I will call Egypt, and Ethiopia will be called for you. I will gather you from the ends of the earth. {43:7} Fear not, I am the first, I am the last, I am he who formed you. I am God, and there is no savior apart from me. {43:8} I am the Lord your God, who is sanctifying you. I will cause you to boast of my holiness, and to exalt him. {43:9} You who are deaf, hear! You who are blind, turn your gaze and see! {43:10} Who is blind, except the one to whom I have sent my Spirit? Who is deaf, except the one to whom I have sent my messengers? Who is blind, except the one who has been sold? And who is blind, except the servant of the Lord? {43:11} I am. I am the Lord. And there is no savior apart from me. {43:12} I have announced, and I have made him. {43:13} Lead forth the people who are blind and have eyes, who are deaf and have ears. {43:14} All the nations have been assembled together, and the tribes have been collected. Who among you will announce this, and who will cause us to listen to the things that are first? Let them present their witnesses. Let them act justly, and listen, and say: “It is true.” {43:15} You are my witnesses, says the Lord, and you are my servant, whom I have chosen, so that you may know, and may believe in me, and so that you may understand that I am the same. Before me, there was no god formed, and after me there will be none. {43:16} I am. I am the Lord. And there is no savior apart from me. You are my witnesses, says the Lord, and I am God. {43:17} And from the beginning, I am the same. And there is no one who can rescue from my hand. I act, and who can turn it aside? {43:14} Thus says the Lord, your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel: For your sake, I sent to Babylon, and tore down all their bars, with the Chaldeans who glory in their ships. {43:15} I am the Lord, your Holy One, the Creator of Israel, your King. {43:16} Thus says the Lord, who gave you a way through the sea and a path through the torrent of waters, {43:17} who led out the chariot and the horse, the column of robust troops. They went to sleep together, and they will not arise. They have been crushed like flax, and they have been extinguished. {43:18} You need not call to mind the past, nor consider the things of antiquity. {43:19} Behold, I am accomplishing new things. And presently, they will spring forth. With certainty, you will know them. I will make a way in the desert, and rivers in an impassible place. {43:20} The wild beasts of the field will glorify me, with the serpents and the ostriches. For I have brought waters to the desert, rivers to inaccessible places, in order to give drink to my people, to my elect. {43:21} This is the people whom I have formed for myself. They will speak my praise. {43:22} But you have not called upon me, O Jacob, nor have you struggled for me, O Israel. {43:23} You have not offered me the ram of your holocaust, and you have not glorified me with your victims. I have not burdened you with oblations, nor have I wearied you with incense. {43:24} You have bought me no sweet cane with money, and you have not inebriated me with the fat of your victims. Yet truly, you have burdened me with your sins; you have wearied me with your iniquities. {43:25} I am. I am the very One who wipes away your iniquities for my own sake. And I will not remember your sins. {43:26} Call me to mind, and let us go to judgment together. If you have anything to justify yourself, explain it. {43:27} Your first father sinned, and your interpreters have betrayed me. {43:28} And so, I have defiled the holy leaders. I have handed over Jacob to slaughter, and Israel to calumny.

[Isaiah 44] {44:1} And now, listen, Jacob, my servant, and Israel, whom I have chosen. {44:2} Thus says the Lord, who made and formed you, your Helper from the womb: Do not be afraid, Jacob, my servant and my most righteous, whom I have chosen. {44:3} For I will pour out waters upon the thirsty ground, and rivers upon the dry land. I will pour out my Spirit upon your offspring, and my benediction upon your stock. {44:4} And they will spring up among the plants, like willows beside running waters. {44:5} This one will say, “I am the Lord’s,” and that one will call himself by the name of Jacob, and yet another will write with his hand, “For the Lord,” and he will take the name Israel. {44:6} Thus says the Lord, the King and Redeemer of Israel, the Lord of hosts: I am the first, and I am the last, and there is no God apart from me. {44:7} Who is like me? Let him call out and announce it. And let him explain to me the order of things, since it is I who appointed the ancient people. The things of the near and the distant future, let him announce them. {44:8} Do not be afraid, and do not be disturbed. From the time when I caused you to listen, I also announced it. You are my witnesses. Is there another God beside me, also a Maker, whom I have not known? {44:9} All of those who create idols are nothing, and their most beloved things will not benefit them. These are their witnesses, for they do not see, and they do not understand, so that they might be confounded. {44:10} Who has formed a god or cast a molten image, which is useful for nothing? {44:11} Behold, all those who partake in this will be confounded. For these makers are men. They will all assemble together. They will stand and be terrified. And they will be confounded together. {44:12} The maker of iron has wrought with his file. With coals and hammers, he has formed it, and he has wrought with the strength of his arm. He will hunger and grow faint. He will not drink water, and he will become weary. {44:13} The maker of wood has extended his ruler. He has formed it with a plane. He has made it with corners, and he has smoothed its curves. And he has made the image of a man, a seemingly beautiful man, dwelling in a house. {44:14} He has cut down cedars; he has taken the evergreen oak, and the oak that stood among the trees of the forest. He has planted the pine tree, which the rain has nourished. {44:15} And it is used by men for fuel. He took it from it and warmed himself. And he set it on fire and baked bread. But from the remainder, he made a god, and he adored it. He made an idol, and he bowed down before it. {44:16} Part of it, he burned with fire, and with part of it, he cooked meat; he boiled food and was filled. And he was warmed, and so he said: “Ah, I am warm. I have gazed at the fire.” {44:17} But from its remainder, he made a god and a graven image for himself. He bowed down before it, and he adored it, and he prayed to it, saying: “Free me! For you are my god.” {44:18} They have neither known nor understood. For their eyes are obscured, lest they see with their eyes and understand with their heart. {44:19} They do not consider in their mind, nor do they know, nor do they think to say: “I have burned part of it in the fire, and I have baked bread upon its coals. I have cooked flesh and I have eaten. And from its remainder, should I make an idol? Should I fall prostrate before the trunk of a tree?” {44:20} Part of it is ashes. His foolish heart adores it. And he will not liberate his soul, and he will not say, “Perhaps there is a lie in my right hand.” {44:21} Remember these things, O Jacob, O Israel. For you are my servant. I have formed you. You are my servant, Israel. Do not forget me. {44:22} I have wiped away your iniquities like a cloud, and your sins like a mist. Return to me, because I have redeemed you. {44:23} Give praise, O heavens! For the Lord has shown mercy. Shout with joy, O ends of the earth! Let the mountains resound with praise, with the forest and all its trees. For the Lord has redeemed Jacob, and Israel will be glorified. {44:24} Thus says the Lord, your Redeemer, and your Maker from the womb: I am the Lord, who makes all things, who alone extends the heavens, who makes the earth firm. And there is no one with me. {44:25} I make the signs of the diviners useless, and I turn the seers to madness. I turn the wise backwards, and make their knowledge into foolishness. {44:26} I lift up the word of my servant, and I fulfill the counsel of my messengers. I say to Jerusalem, “You shall be inhabited,” and to the cities of Judah, “You shall be rebuilt,” and I will lift up its deserts. {44:27} I say to the depths, “Be desolate,” and, “I will dry up your rivers.” {44:28} I say to Cyrus, “You are my shepherd, and you will accomplish all that I will.” I say to Jerusalem, “You shall be built,” and to the Temple, “Your foundations shall be laid.”

[Isaiah 45] {45:1} Thus says the Lord to my anointed Cyrus, whose right hand I hold, so that I may subjugate the nations before his face, and I may turn the backs of kings, and I may open the doors before him, and so that the gates will not be shut. 45:2 I will go before you. And I will humble the glorious ones of the earth. I will shatter the gates of brass, and I will break apart the bars of iron. 45:3 And I will give you hidden treasures and the knowledge of secret things, so that you may know that I am the Lord, the God of Israel, who calls your name. 45:4 For the sake of Jacob, my servant, and Israel, my elect, I have even called you by your name. I have taken you up, and you have not known me. 45:5 I am the Lord, and there is no one else. There is no god beside me. I girded you, and you have not known me. 45:6 So may those who are from the rising of the sun, and those who are from its setting, know that there is no one beside me. I am the Lord, and there is no other. 45:7 I form the light and create the darkness. I make peace and create disaster. I, the Lord, do all these things. 45:8 Send down dew from above, O heavens, and let the clouds rain down upon the just! Let the earth open and spring forth a savior! And let justice rise up at once! I, the Lord, have created him. 45:9 Woe to him who contradicts his Maker, a mere shard from an earthen vessel! Should the clay say to the potter, “What are you making?” or, “Your work is not made by your hands?” 45:10 Woe to him who says to his father, “Why did you conceive?” or to a woman, “Why did you give birth?” 45:11 Thus says the Lord, the Holy One of Israel, his Maker: Would you question me about the future, concerning my sons, and command me concerning the work of my hands? 45:12 I made the earth, and I created man upon it. My hand stretched out the heavens, and I have commanded all their hosts. 45:13 I have raised him up unto justice, and I will direct all his ways. He himself will build my city and release my captives, but not He formed it so that it would be inhabited. I am the Lord, and there is no other. 45:14 Thus says the Lord: The labor of Egypt, and the business dealings of Ethiopia, and of the Sabaeans, men of stature, will pass to you and will be yours. They will walk behind you. They will travel, bound in irons. And they will adore you and petition you: “In you alone is God, and there is no God apart from you. 45:15 Truly, you are a hidden God, the God of Israel, the Savior.” 45:16 They have all been confounded and should be ashamed! These fabricators of errors have departed together into confusion! 45:17 Israel is saved in the Lord by an eternal salvation. You will not be confounded, and you will not be ashamed, even forever and ever. 45:18 For thus says the Lord, who created the heavens, God himself who formed the earth and made it, the very Molder of it. He did not create it to no purpose. He formed it so that it would be inhabited. I am the Lord, and there is no other. 45:19 I have not spoken in secret, in a dark place of the earth. I have not said to the offspring of Jacob, “Seek me in vain.” I am the Lord, who speaks justice, who announces what is right. 45:20 Assemble yourselves, and approach, and draw near together, you who have been saved among the Gentiles. They lack knowledge, who lift up the wood of their sculpture, and who petition a god unable to save. 45:21 Announce it, and approach, and consult together. Who has caused this to be heard from the beginning, and who has foretold it from that time? Is it not I, the Lord? And is there some other god beside me? I am a just God who saves, and there is no one except me. 45:22 All ends of the earth, be converted to me, and you will be saved. For I am God, and there is no other. 45:23 I have sworn by myself. The Word of justice will proceed from my mouth, and it will not turn back. 45:24 For every knee shall bend to me, and every tongue shall swear it. 45:25 Therefore, he will say, “In the Lord are my justices and my dominion.” They will go to him. And all who fight against him will be confounded. 45:26 In the Lord, all the offspring of Israel will be justified and praised. [Isaiah 46] 46:1 Bel has been broken. Nebo has been crushed. Their idols have been placed upon beasts and cattle, your grievous heavy burdens, even unto exhaustion. 46:2 They have been melted down, or have been smashed together. They were not able to save the one who carried them, and their life will go into captivity. 46:3 Listen to me, house of Jacob, all the remnant of the house of Israel, who are carried in my bosom, who were born from my womb. 46:4 Even to your old age, I am the same. And even with your grey hairs, I will carry you. I have made you, and I will sustain you. I will carry you, and I will save you. 46:5 To whom would you likened me, or equate me, or compare me, or consider me to be similar? 46:6 You take gold from a bag, and you weigh silver on a scale, so as to hire a goldsmith to make a god. And they fall prostrate and adore. 46:7 They carry him on their shoulders, supporting him, and they set him in his place. And he will stand still and will not move from his place. But even when they will cry out to him, he will not hear. He will not save them from tribulation. 46:8 Remember this, and be confounded. Return, you transgressors, to the heart. 46:9 Remember the past ages. For I am God, and there is no other god. There is no one like me. 46:10 From the beginning, I announce the last things, and from the start, the things that have not yet been done, saying: My plan will stand firm, and my entire will shall be done. 46:11 I call a bird from the east, and from a far away land, the man of my will. And I have spoken it, and I will carry it out. I have created, and I will act. 46:12 Hear me, you who are hard of heart, who are far from justice! 46:13 I have brought my justice near. It will not be far away, and my salvation will not be delayed. I will grant salvation in Zion, and my glory in Israel. [Isaiah 47] 47:1 Descend, sit in the dust, O virgin daughter of Babylon! Sit on the ground. There is no throne for the daughter of the Chaldeans. For you shall no longer be called delicate and tender. 47:2 Take a millstone and grind meal. Uncover your shame, bare your shoulder, reveal your legs, cross the streams. 47:3 Your disgrace will be revealed, and your shame will be seen. I will seize vengeance, and no man will withstand me. 47:4 Our Redeemer, the Lord of hosts is his name, the Holy One of Israel. 47:5 Sit in silence, and enter into darkness, O daughter of the Chaldeans! For you shall no longer be called the noblewoman of kingdoms. 47:6 I was angry with my people. I have polluted my inheritance, and I have given them into your hand. You have not shown mercy to them. You have greatly increased the burden of your yoke upon the elders. 47:7 And you have said: “I will be a noblewoman forever.” You have not set these things upon your heart, and you have not remembered your end. 47:8 And now, hear these things, you who are delicate and have confidence, who say in your heart: “I am, and there is no one greater than me. I will not sit as a widow, and I will not know barrenness.” 47:9 These two things will suddenly overwhelm you in one day: barrenness and widowhood. All things shall overwhelm you, because of the multitude of your sorceries and because of the great cruelty of your enchantments. {47:10} And you have trusted in your malice, and you have said: "There is no one who sees me." Your wisdom and your knowledge, these have deceived you. And you have said in your heart: "I am, and beside me there is no other." {47:11} Evil will overwhelm you, and you will not notice its rising. And calamity will fall violently over you, and you will not be able to avert it. You will suddenly be overwhelmed by a misery such as you have never known. {47:12} Stand with your incantations, and with the multitude of your sorceries, in which you have labored from your youth, as if somehow it might benefit you, or as if it were able to make you stronger. {47:13} You have failed in the multitude of your plans! Let the seers stand and save you, those who were contemplating the stars, and figuring the months, so that from these they might announce to you the things to come. {47:14} Behold, they have become like stubble. Fire has consumed them. They will not free themselves from the power of the flames. These are not coals by which they may be warmed, nor is this a fire which they may sit beside. {47:15} So have all these things, in which you have labored, become to you. Your merchants from your youth, each one has erred in his own way. There is no one who can save you.

[Isaiah 48] {48:1} Listen to these things, O house of Jacob, you who are called by the name of Israel, and who went forth from the waters of Judah. You swear by the name of the Lord and you call to mind the God of Israel, but not in truth, and you who are called by the name of Israel, and who went forth from the waters of Judah. You swear by the name of the Lord your God, who teaches you beneficial things, who guides you in the way that you walk. {48:18} If only you had paid attention to my commandments! Your peace would have been like a river, and your justice would have been like the waves of the sea. {48:19} and your offspring would have been like the sand, and the stock from your loins would have been like its stones. His name would not have passed away, nor would it have been worn away before my face. {48:20} Depart from Babylon! Flee from the Chaldeans! Announce it with a voice of exultation. Cause it to be heard, and carry it even to the ends of the earth. Say: "The Lord has redeemed his servant Jacob." {48:21} They did not thirst in the desert, when he led them out. He produced water from the rock for them. For he split the rock, and the waters flowed out. {48:22} "There is no peace for the impious," says the Lord.

[Isaiah 49] {49:1} Pay attention, you islands, and listen closely, you far away peoples. The Lord has called me from the womb; from the womb of my mother, he has been mindful of my name. {49:2} And he has appointed my mouth as a sharp sword. In the shadow of his hand, he has protected me. And he has appointed me as an elect arrow. In his quiver, he has hidden me. {49:3} And he has said to me: "You are my servant, Israel. For in you, I will glory." {49:4} And I said: "I have labored toward emptiness. I have consumed my strength without purpose and in vain. Therefore, my judgment is with the Lord, and my work is with my God." {49:5} And now, says the Lord, who formed me from the womb as his servant, so that I may bring back Jacob to him, for Israel will not be gathered together, but I have been glorified in the eyes of the Lord and my God has become my strength, {49:6} and so he has said: "It is a small thing that you should be my servant so as to raise up the tribes of Jacob, and so as to convert the dregs of Israel. Behold, I have offered you as a light for the Gentiles, so that you may be my salvation, even to the furthest regions of the earth." {49:7} Thus says the Lord, the Redeemer of Israel, his Holy One, to a contemptible soul, to an abominable nation, to the servant of lords: The kings will see, and the princes will rise up, and they will adore, because of the Lord. For he is faithful, and he is the Holy One of Israel, who has chosen you. {49:8} Thus says the Lord: In a pleasing time, I have heeded you, and in the day of salvation, I have assisted you. And I have preserved you, and I have presented you as a covenant of the people, so that you would lift up the earth, and possess the scattered inheritances, {49:9} so that you would say to those who are bound, "Go forth!" and to those who are in darkness, "Be released!" They will pasture along the roads, and their pastures will be in every open place. {49:10} They will not hunger or thirst, nor will the heat of the sun beat down upon them. For the one who takes pity on them will rule them, and he will give them to drink from fountains of waters. {49:11} And I will make all my mountains into a road, and my paths will be exalted. {49:12} Behold, some will come from far away, and behold, others from the north and from the sea, and still others from the land of the south. {49:13} Give praise, O heavens! And exult, O earth! Let the mountains give praise with jubilation! For the Lord has consoled his people, and he will take pity on his poor ones. {49:14} And Zion said: “The Lord has abandoned me, and the Lord has forgotten me.” {49:15} Can a woman forget her infant, so as not to take pity on the child of her womb? But even if she would forget, still I shall never forget you. {49:16} Behold, I have engraved you on my hands. Your walls are always before my eyes. {49:17} Your builders have arrived. Those who would tear you down and destroy you, they will depart from you. {49:18} Lift up your eyes all around, and see: all these have been gathered together; they have come to you. As I live, says the Lord, you shall be clothed with all these things, as if with an ornament. And like a bride, you shall wrap these things all around you. {49:19} For your deserts, and your solitary places, and the land of your ruination will now be too narrow, because of all the inhabitants. And those who devoured you will be chased far away. {49:20} Even the children of your barrenness will say in your ears: “This place is too narrow for me. Make me a spacious place in which to dwell.” {49:21} And you will say in your heart: “Who has conceived them? I was barren and unable to give birth. I was taken away and held captive. And so, who has raised them? I was destitute and alone. And so, where have they been?” {49:22} Thus says the Lord God: Behold, I will lift up my hand to the Gentiles, and I will exalt my sign before the peoples. And they will carry your sons in their arms, and they will bear your daughters on their shoulders. {49:23} And kings will be your caretakers, and queens will be your maidservants. They will reverence you with their face to the ground, and they will lick the dust at your feet. And you will know that I am the Lord. For those who hope in him will not be confounded. {49:24} Can prey be taken from the strong? Or is anything taken captive by the powerful able to be saved? {49:25} For thus says the Lord: Certainly, even the captives will be taken away from the strong, even what has been taken by the powerful will be saved. And truly, I will judge those who have judged you, and I will save your children. {49:26} And I will feed your enemies their own flesh. And they will be inebriated with their own blood, as with new wine. And all flesh will know that I am the Lord, who saves you, and your Redeemer, the Strong One of Jacob.

[Isaiah 50] {50:1} Thus says the Lord: What is this bill of divorce for your mother, by which I have dismissed her? Or who is my creditor, to whom I have sold you? Behold, you were sold by your iniquities, and I have dismissed your mother for your wickedness. {50:2} For I arrived, and there was no man. I called out, and there was no one who would hear. Has my hand been shortened and become small, so that I am unable to redeem? Or is there no power in me to deliver? Behold, at my rebuke, I will make the sea into a desert. I will turn rivers into dry land. The fish will rot for lack of water and will die of thirst. {50:3} I will clothe the heavens in darkness, and I will make sackcloth their covering. {50:4} The Lord has given me a learned tongue, so that I would know how to uphold with a word, one who has weakened. He rises in the morning, he rises to my ear in the morning, so that I may heed him like a teacher. {50:5} The Lord God has opened my ear. And I do not contradict him. I have not turned back. {50:6} I have given my body to those who strike me, and my cheeks to those who plucked them. I have not averted my face from those who rebuked me and who spit on me. {50:7} The Lord God is my helper. Therefore, I have not been confounded. Therefore, I have set my face like a very hard rock, and I know that I will not be confounded. {50:8} He who justifies me is near. Who will speak against me? Let us stand together. Who is my adversary? Let him approach me. {50:9} Behold, the Lord God is my helper. Who is the one who would condemn me? Behold, they will all be worn away like a garment; the moth will devour them. {50:10} Who is there among you who fears the Lord? Who hears the voice of his servant? Who has walked in darkness, and there is no light in him? Let him hope in the name of the Lord, and let him lean upon his God. {50:11} Behold, all you who kindle a fire, wrapped in flames: walk in the light of your fire and in the flames that you have kindled. This has been done to you by my hand. You will sleep in anguish.

[Isaiah 51] {51:1} Listen to me, you who follow what is just and who seek the Lord. Pay attention to the rock from which you have been hewn, and to the walls of the pit from which you have been dug. {51:2} Pay attention to Abraham, your father, and to Sarah, who bore you. For I called him alone, and I blessed him, and I multiplied him. {51:3} Therefore, the Lord will console Zion, and he will console all its ruins. And he will turn her desert into a place of delights, and her wilderness into a garden of the Lord. Gladness and rejoicing will be found in her, thanksgiving and a voice of praise. {51:4} Pay attention to me, my people, and listen to me, my tribes. For a law will go forth from me, and my judgment will rest as a light for the nations. {51:5} My just one is near. My Savior has gone forth. And my arms will judge the people. The islands will hope in me, and they will patiently wait for my arm. {51:6} Lift up your eyes to heaven, and look down to the earth below. For the heavens will vanish like smoke, and the earth will be worn away like a garment, and its inhabitants will pass away in like manner. But my salvation will be forever, and my justice will not fail. {51:7} Listen to me, you who know what is just, my people who have my law and my commandments in their heart. Do not be afraid of disgrace among men, and do not dread their blasphemies. {51:8} For the worm will consume them like a garment, and the moth will devour them like wool. But my salvation will be forever, and my justice will be from generation to generation. {51:9} Rise up, Rise up! Clothe yourself in strength, O arm of the Lord! Rise up as in the days of antiquity, as in generations long past. Have you not struck the arrogant one and wounded the dragon? {51:10} Have not you dried up the sea, the waters of the great abyss, and turned the depths of the sea into a road, so that the deliverer could cross over it? {51:11} And now, those who have been redeemed by the Lord will return. And they will arrive in Zion, praising. And everlasting rejoicing will be upon their heads. They will take hold of gladness and rejoicing. Anguish and mourning will flee away. {51:12} It is I, I myself, who will console you. Who are you that you would be afraid of a mortal man, and of a son of man, who will wither like the grass? {51:13} And have you forgotten the Lord, your Maker, who extended the heavens, and who founded the earth? And have you been in constant dread, all day long, at the face of his fury, of the one who afflicted you and who had prepared to destroy you? Where is the fury of the oppressor now? {51:14} Advancing quickly, he will arrive to be revealed, and he will not kill unto utter destruction, nor will his bread fail. {51:15} But I am the Lord, your God, who stirs up the sea, and who makes the waves swell. The Lord of hosts is my name. {51:16} I have placed my words in your mouth, and I have protected you in the shadow of my hand, so that you might plant the heavens, and found the earth, and so that you might say to Zion, “You are my people.” {51:17} Lift up, Lift up! Arise, O Jerusalem! You drank, from the hand of the Lord, the cup of his wrath. You drank, even to the bottom of the cup of deep sleep. And you were given to drink, all the way to the dregs. {51:18} There is no one who can uphold her, out of all the sons whom she has conceived. And there is no one who would take her by the hand, out of all the sons whom she has raised. {51:19} There are two things which have happened to you. Who will be saddened over you? There is devastation and destruction, and famine and sword. Who will console you? {51:20} Your sons have been cast out. They have slept at the head of all the roads, and they have been ensnared like a gazelle. They have been filled by the indignation of the Lord, by the rebuke of your God. {51:21} Therefore, listen to this, O poor little ones, and you who have been inebriated, but not by wine. {51:22} Thus says your Sovereign, the Lord, and your God, who will fight on behalf of his people: Behold, I have taken the cup of deep sleep from your hand. You shall no longer drink from the bottom of the cup of my indignation. {51:23} And I will set it in the hand of those who have humiliated you, and who have said to your soul: “Bow down, so that we pass over.” And you placed your body on the ground, as a path for them to pass over.

[Isaiah 52] {52:1} Rise up, Rise up! Clothe yourself in strength, O Zion! Put on the garments of your glory, O Jerusalem, the city of the Holy One! For the uncircumcised and the unclean will no longer pass through you. {52:2} Shake yourself from the dust! Arise and sit up, O Jerusalem! Loose the chains from your neck, O captive daughter of Zion! {52:3} For thus says the Lord: You were sold for nothing, and you will be redeemed without money. {52:4} For thus says the Lord God: My people descended into Egypt, in the beginning, in order to sojourn there. But the Assyrian oppressed them, without any cause at all. {52:5} And now, what is left for me here, says the Lord? For my people have been taken away without cause. Their lords treat them unjustly, says the Lord. And my name is being continually blasphemed all day long. {52:6} Because of this, my people will know my name, in that day. For it is I myself who is speaking. Behold, I am here. {52:7} How beautiful upon the mountains are the feet of the messenger and the preacher of peace! Announcing good and preaching peace, they are saying to Zion, “Your God will reign!” {52:8} It is the voice of your watchmen. They have lifted up their voice. They will praise together. For they will see eye to eye, when the Lord converts Zion. {52:9} Be glad and rejoice together, O deserts of Jerusalem! For the Lord has consoled his people. He has redeemed Jerusalem. {52:10} The Lord has prepared his holy arm, in the sight of all the Gentiles. And all the ends of the earth will see the salvation of our God. {52:11} Depart, depart, get out of here! Do not be willing to touch what is polluted. Go out from her midst! Be cleansed, you who bear the vessels of the Lord. {52:12} For you will not go out in a tumult, nor will you take flight in a hurry. For the Lord will precede you, and the God of Israel will gather you. {52:13} Behold, my servant will understand; he will be exalted and lifted up, and he will be very sublime. {52:14} Just as they were stupefied over you, so will his countenance be without glory among men, and his appearance, among the sons of men. {52:15} He will sprinkle many nations; kings will close their mouth because of him. And those to whom he was not described, have seen. And those who have not heard, have considered.

[Isaiah 53] {53:1} Who has believed our report? And to whom has the arm of the Lord been revealed? {53:2} And he will rise up like a tender plant in his sight, and like a root from the thirsty ground. There is no beautiful or stately appearance in him. For we looked upon him, and there was no aspect, such as we would desire him. {53:3} He is despised and the least among men, a man of sorrows who knows infirmity. And his countenance was hidden and despised. Because of this, we did not esteem him. {53:4} Truly, he has taken away our weaknesses, and he himself has carried our sorrows. And we thought of him as if he were a leper, or as if he had been struck by God and humiliated. {53:5} But he himself was wounded because of our iniquities. He was bruised because of our wickedness. The discipline of our peace was upon him. And by his wounds, we are healed. {53:6} We have all gone astray like sheep; each one has turned aside to his own way. And the Lord has placed all our iniquity upon him. {53:7} He was offered up, because it was his own will. And he did not open his mouth. He will be led like a sheep to the slaughter. And he will be mute like a lamb before his shearer. For he will not open his mouth. {53:8} He was lifted up from anguish and judgment. Who will describe his life? For he has been cut off from the land of the living. Because of the wickedness of my people, I have struck him down. {53:9} And he will be given a place with the impious for his burial, and with the rich for his death, though he has done no iniquity, nor was deceit in his mouth. {53:10} But it was the will of the Lord to crush him with infirmity. If he lays down his life because of sin, he will see offspring with long lives, and the will of the Lord will be revealed, and he will not kill unto utter destruction, nor will there be any tumult, nor will he take flight in a hurry. For the Lord will precede you, and the God of Israel will gather you. {53:11} Because his soul has labored, to be revealed, and he will not take flight in a hurry. For the Lord will precede you, and the God of Israel will gather you. {53:12} Behold, my servant will understand; he will be exalted and lifted up, and he will be very sublime. {53:14} Just as they were stupefied over you, so will his countenance be without glory among men, and his appearance, among the sons of men. {53:15} He will sprinkle many nations; kings will close their mouth because of him. And those to whom he was not described, have seen. And those who have not heard, have considered.

[Isaiah 54] {54:1} Give praise, you who are barren and unable to conceive. Sing praise and make a joyful noise, you who have not given birth. For many are the children of the desolate, more so than of her who has a husband, says the Lord. {54:2} Enlarge the place of your tent and extend the skins of your tabernacles, unsparingly. Lengthen your cords, and strengthen your stakes. {54:3} For you shall extend to the right and to the left. And your offspring shall inherit the nations, and you shall inhabit the desolate cities. {54:4} Do not be afraid! For you will not be confounded, and you will not blush. And you will not be put to shame, because you shall forget the confusion of your youth, and you shall no longer remember the disgrace of your widowhood. {54:5} For the One who made you will rule over you. The Lord of hosts is his name. And your Redeemer, the Holy One of Israel, will be called the God of all the earth. {54:6} For the Lord has called you, like a woman forsaken and mourning in spirit, and like a wife rejected in her youth, said your God. {54:7} For a brief moment, I have forsaken you, and with great pities, I will gather you. {54:8} In a moment of indignation, I have hidden my face from you, for a little while. But with everlasting mercy, I have taken pity on you, said your Redeemer, the Lord. {54:9} For me, it is just as in the days of Noah, to whom I swore that I would no longer bring in the waters of Noah over the earth. Thus have I sworn not to be angry with you, and not to rebuke you. {54:10} For the mountains will be moved, and the hills will tremble. But my mercy will not depart from you, and the covenant of my peace will not be shaken, said the Lord, who has compassion on you. {54:11} O poor little ones, convulsed by the tempest, away from any consolation! Behold, I will set your stones in order, and I will lay your foundation with sapphires, {54:12} and I will make your ramparts out of jasper, and your gates out of sculpted stones, and all your borders out of desirable stones. {54:13} All your children will be taught by the Lord. And great will be the peace of your children. {54:14} And you will be founded in justice. Depart far from oppression, for you will not be afraid. And depart from terror, for it will not approach you. {54:15} Behold, a settler will arrive, who was not with me, a certain new arrival will be joined to you. {54:16} Behold, I created the smith who fans the coals of the fire and produces an object by his work, and I have created the slayer who destroys. {54:17} No object which has been formed to use against you will succeed. And every tongue that resists you in judgment, you shall judge. This is the inheritance of the servants of the Lord, and this is their justice with me, says the Lord.

[Isaiah 55] {55:1} All you who thirst, come to the waters. And you who have no money: hurry, buy and eat. Approach, buy wine and milk, without money and without barter. {55:2} Why do you spend money for what is not bread, and expend your labor for what does not satisfy? Listen very closely to me, and eat what is good, and then your soul will be delighted by a full measure. {55:3} Incline your ear and closely to me, and eat what is good, and then your soul will not know understanding. All have turned aside in their own way, each one to his own avarice, from the highest even to the least: {55:4} “Come, let us take wine, and be filled by inebriation. And as it is today, so shall it be tomorrow and for a long time.”

[Isaiah 57] {57:1} The just man perishes, and there is no one who acknowledges it in his heart; and men of mercy are taken away, for there is no one who understands. For the just man has been taken away before the face of malice. {57:2} Let peace arrive. Let he who has walked in his righteousness find rest on his bed. {57:3} But come here, you sons of the prophetess, you offspring of an adulterous man and a fornicating woman. {57:4} Whom are you mocking? Against whom have you opened your mouth wide and wagged your tongue? Are you not sons of wickedness, a lying offspring, {57:5} who are being consoled by idols under every leafy tree, immolating little children at the torrents, under the high rocks? {57:6} Your portion is in the currents of the torrent; this is your lot! And you yourselves have poured out libations to them; you have offered sacrifice. Should I not be angry over these things? {57:7} Upon a high and lofty mountain, you have placed your bed, and you have ascended to that place to immolate victims. {57:8} And behind the door, and beyond the post, you have set up your memorial. For you uncovered yourself next to me, and you received an adulterer. You widened your bed, and you formed a pact with them. You loved their bed with an open hand. {57:9} And you have adorned yourself for the king with ointments, and you have increased your cosmetics. You have sent your representatives to distant places, and you have debased yourself all the way to Hell. {57:10} You have been wearied by the multitude of your own ways. Yet you did not say, “I will cease.” You have found life by your own hand; because of this, you have not prayed. {57:11} For whose sake have you been anxiously afraid, so that you would lie and not be mindful of me, nor consider me in your heart? For I am silent, and I am like someone who does not see, and so you have forgotten me. {57:12} I will announce your justice, and your works will not benefit you. {57:13} When you cry out, let your followers free you. But the wind will carry them all away; a breeze will take them up. But he who has faith in me will inherit the earth and will possess my holy mountain. {57:14} And I will say: “Make way! Grant passage! Move to the side of the path! Take the obstacles out of the way of my people!” {57:15} For this is said by the Most High, the Sublime One, who dwells in eternity. And his name is Holy, for he dwells in the exalted and holy place, and he acts with a restrained and humble spirit, to revive the spirit of the humble, and to revive the heart of the contrite. {57:16} For I will not contend unceasingly, and I will not be angry to the end. For I will exhale my breath, and the Spirit will go forth from my face. {57:17} Because of the iniquity of his avarice, I was angry, and I struck him down. I concealed my face from you, and I was angry. And he went astray by wandering in his heart. {57:18} I saw his ways, and I healed him, and I led him back again, and I restored consolations to him and to those who mourn for him. {57:19} I created the fruit of the lips: peace, peace to him who is far away, and peace to him who is near, said the Lord, and I healed him. {57:20} But the impious are like the raging sea, which is not able to be quieted, and its waves stir up dirt and mud. {57:21} There is no peace for the impious, says the Lord God.

Isaiah 58 {58:1} Cry out! Cease not! Exalt your voice like a trumpet, and announce to my people their wicked acts, and to the house of Jacob their sins. {58:2} For they also seek me, from day to day, and they are willing to know my ways, like a nation which has done justice and has not abandoned the judgment of their God. They petition me for judgments of justice. They are willing to draw near to God. {58:3} “Why have we fasted, and you have not taken notice? Why have we humbled our souls, and you have not acknowledged it?” Behold, in the day of your fasting, your own will is found, and you petition for payment from all your debtors. {58:4} Behold, you fast with strife and contention, and you strike with the fist impiously. Do not choose to fast as you have done even to this day. Then your outcry will be heard on high. {58:5} Is this a fast such as I have chosen: for a man to afflict his soul for a day, to contort his head in a circle, and to spread sackcloth and ashes? Should you call this a fast and a day acceptable to the Lord? {58:6} Is not this, instead, the kind of fast that I have chosen? Release the constraints of impiety; relieve the burdens that oppress; freely forgive those who are broken; and break apart every burden. {58:7} Break your bread with the hungry, and lead the destitute and the homeless into your house. When you see someone naked, cover him, and do not despise your own flesh. {58:8} Then your light will break forth like the morning, and your health will improve quickly, and your justice will go before your face, and the glory of the Lord will gather you up. {58:9} Then you will call, and the Lord will heed; you will cry out, and he will say, “Here I am,” if you take away the chains from your midst, and cease to point your finger and to speak what is not beneficial. {58:10} When you pour out your life for the hungry, and you satisfy the afflicted soul, then your light will rise up in darkness, and your darkness will be like the midday. {58:11} And the Lord will give you rest continually, and he will fill your soul with splendor, and he will free your bones, and you will be like a watered garden and like a fountain of water whose waters will not fail. {58:12} And places that have been desolate for ages will be built up by you. You will raise a foundation for generation after generation. And you will be called the repairer of hedges, who turns the roadways into quiet places. {58:13} If you restrain your foot on the Sabbath, from doing your own will on my holy day, and if you call the Sabbath delightful, and the Holy of the Lord glorious, and if you glorify him, while you do not act according to your own ways, and your own will is not found, not even to speak a word, {58:14} then you will find delight in the Lord, and I will take you up, above the heights of the earth, and I will nourish you with the inheritance of Jacob, your father. For the mouth of the Lord has spoken.

Isaiah 59 {59:1} Behold, the hand of the Lord has not been shortened, so that it cannot save, and his ear has not been blocked, so that it cannot hear. {59:2} But your iniquities have made a division between you and your God, and your sins have concealed his face from you, so that he would not hear. {59:3} For your hands have been polluted by blood, and your fingers by iniquity. Your lips have spoken lies, and your tongue utters iniquity. {59:4} There is no one who calls for justice, and there is no one who judges truly. For they trust in nothing, and they speak emptiness. They have conceived hardship, and they have given birth to iniquity. {59:5} They have ruptured the eggs of asps, and they have woven the webs of spiders. Whoever will eat of their eggs will die. For what has been incubated will hatch into a king snake. {59:6} Their weavings will not be for clothing, nor will they cover themselves with their handicraft. Their works are useless things, and the work of iniquity is in their hands. {59:7} Their feet run to evil, and they rush to shed innocent blood. Their thoughts are useless thoughts; devastation and destruction are in their ways. {59:8} They have not known the way of peace, and there is no judgment in their steps. Their paths have become crooked for them. Anyone who treads in them knows no peace. {59:9} Because of this, judgment is far from us, and justice will not take hold of us. We waited for light, and behold, darkness; we waited for brightness, and we walked in darkness. {59:10} We grooped for the wall, like one who is blind, and we felt our way, like one without eyes. We stumbled at midday, as if in darkness; and in darkness, as if in death. {59:11} We will all roar like bears, and we will sigh like despondent doves. We hoped for judgment, and there is none; for salvation, and it is far from us. {59:12} For our iniquities have been multiplied in your sight, and our sins have answered us. For our wickedness is with us, and we have acknowledged our iniquities:

{59:13} sinning and lying against the Lord. And we have turned away, not so as to go after our God, and so that we were speaking calumny and transgression. We have conceived, and spoken from the heart, words of falsehood.

{59:14} And judgment has been turned backwards, and justice has stood far away. For truth has fallen down in the street, and fairness was not able to enter. {59:15} And the truth has gone into oblivion. And he who withdraws from evil endures plunder. And the Lord saw this, and it seemed evil in his eyes. For there is no judgment. {59:16} And he saw that there was no good man. And he was astonished that there was no one to meet him. And his own arm brought salvation to him, and his own justice strengthened him.

{59:17} He clothed himself with justice as with a breastplate, and with a helmet of salvation upon his head. He put on the vestments of vengeance, and he was covered with zeal as with a cloak. {59:18} This was for vindication, as a repayment of indignation to his adversaries, and as a sudden reversal for his enemies. He will repay the islands in their turn. {59:19} And those from the west will fear the name of the Lord, and those from the rising of the sun will fear his glory, when he arrives like a violent river, which the Spirit of the Lord urges on. {59:20} And the Redeemer will arrive in Zion, and to those who return from the iniquity within Jacob, says the Lord. {59:21} This is my pact with them, says the Lord. My Spirit is within you, and my words, which I have put in your mouth, will not withdraw from your mouth, nor from the mouth of your offspring, nor from the mouth of your offspring's offspring, says the Lord, from this moment, and even forever.

[Isaiah 60] {60:1} Rise up to be illuminated, O Jerusalem! For your light has arrived, and the glory of the Lord has risen over you. {60:2} For behold, darkness will cover the earth, and thick darkness will cover the peoples. Then the Lord will rise above you, and his glory will be seen in you. {60:3} And the nations will walk in your light, and the kings will walk by the splendor of your rising. {60:4} Lift up your eyes all around and see! All these have been gathered together; they have arrived before you. Your sons will arrive from far away, and your daughters will rise up from your side. {60:5} Then you will see, and you will overflow, and your heart will be amazed and expanded. When the multitude of the sea will have been converted to you, the strength of the nations will approach you. {60:6} A multitude of camels will inundate you: the dromedaries from Midian and Ephah. All those from Sheba will arrive, carrying gold and frankincense, and announcing praise to the Lord. {60:7} All the flocks of Kedar will be gathered together before you; the rams of Nebaioth will minister to you. They will be offered upon my pleasing altar, and I will glorify the house of my majesty. {60:8} Who are these ones, who fly like the clouds and like doves to their windows? {60:9} For the islands await me, and the ships of the sea in the beginning, so that I may lead your sons from far away, their silver and their gold with them, to the name of the Lord your God and to the Holy One of Israel. For he has glorified you. {60:10} And the sons of sojourners will build up your walls, and their kings will minister to you. For in my wrath, I have struck you. And in my reconciliation, I have taken pity on you. {60:11} And your gates will be open continually. They will not be closed day or night, so that the strength of the nations may be brought before you, and their kings may be lead in. {60:12} For the nation and the kingdom that will not serve you will perish. And the Gentiles will be devastated by solitude. {60:13} The glory of Lebanon will arrive before you, the fir tree and the box tree and the pine tree together, to adorn the place of my sanctification. And I will glorify the place of my feet. {60:14} And the sons of those who humiliate you will approach and will bow down before you. And all who detract you will reverence the path of your feet. And they will call you the City of the Lord, the Zion of the Holy One of Israel. {60:15} For though you were forsaken, and held in hatred, and there was no one who would pass near you, I will establish you as an everlasting glory, as a gladness from generation to generation. {60:16} And you will drink the milk of the Gentiles, and you will be nursed at the breasts of kings, and you will know that I am the Lord, your Saviour and your Redeemer, the Strong One of Jacob. {60:17} In exchange for brass, I will bring gold; and in exchange for iron, I will bring silver; and for wood, brass; and for stones, iron. And I will make your visitation into peace, and your leaders into justice. {60:18} Iniquity will no longer be heard in your land, nor devastation and destruction in your borders. And salvation will occupy your walls, and praise will occupy your gates. {60:19} The sun will no longer be your light by day, nor will the brightness of the moon illuminate you. Instead, the Lord will be an everlasting light for you, and your God will be your glory. {60:20} Your sun will no longer set, and your moon will not diminish. For the Lord will be an everlasting light for you, and the days of your mourning will be completed. {60:21} And your people will all be just. They will inherit the earth in perpetuity, the seedling of my planting, the work of my hand, so as to glorify me. {60:22} The least will become a thousand, and a little one will become a very strong nation. I, the Lord, will accomplish this, suddenly, in its time.

[Isaiah 61] {61:1} The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, for the Lord has anointed me. He has sent me to bring good news to the meek, so as to heal the contrite of heart, to preach leniency to captives and release to the confined, {61:2} and to preach grace to the humble, so as to heal the contrite of heart, to preach leniency to captives and release to the confined. {61:3} to take up the mourners of Zion and to give them a crown in place of ashes, an oil of joy in place of mourning, a garment of praise in place of a spirit of grief. And there, they shall be called the strong ones of justice, the planting of the Lord, unto glorification. {61:4} And they will rebuild the deserted places of past ages, and they will raise up the ruins of antiquity, and they will repair the desolate cities, which had been dissipated for generation after generation. {61:5} And foreigners will stand up and will pasture your flocks. And the sons of sojourners will be your farmers and the workers of your vineyards. {61:6} But you yourselves will be called the priests of the Lord. It will be said to you, “You are the ministers of our God.” You will eat from the strength of the Gentiles, and you will pride yourself on their glory. {61:7} Instead of your double confusion and shame, they will praise their portion. Because of this, they will possess double in their land. Everlasting joy will be for them. {61:8} For I am the Lord, who loves judgment and who holds hatred for robbery within a burnt offering. And I will turn their work into truth, and I will forget a perpetual covenant with them. {61:9} And they will know their offspring among the nations, and their progeny in the midst of the peoples. All who see them will recognize them: that these are the offspring whom the Lord has blessed. {61:10} I will rejoice greatly in the Lord, and my soul will exult in my God. For he has clothed me with the vestments of salvation, and he has wrapped me in the clothing of justice, like a groom arrayed with a crown, and like a bride adorned with her jewels. {61:11} For as the earth brings forth its seedlings and the garden produces its seeds, so will the Lord God bring forth justice and praise in the sight of all the nations.

[Isaiah 62] {62:1} For the sake of Zion, I will not be silent, and for the sake of Jerusalem, I will not rest, until her Just One advances in splendor, and her Savior is kindled like a lamp. {62:2} And the Gentiles will see your Just One, and all the kings will see your Renown One. And you shall be called by a new name, which the mouth of the Lord will choose. {62:3} And you shall be a crown of glory in the hand of the Lord, and a royal diadem in the hand of your God. {62:4} You will no longer called Forsaken. And your land will no longer be called Desolate. Instead, you shall be called My Will within it, and your land shall be called Inhabited. For the Lord has been well pleased with you, and your land will be inhabited. {62:5} For the young man will live with the virgin, and your children will live with you. And the groom will rejoice over the bride, and your God will rejoice over you. {62:6} Upon your walls, O Jerusalem, I have stationed watchmen all day and all night unceasingly; they will not be silent. You who are mindful of the Lord, you should not be silent, {62:7} and you should not grant silence to him, until he makes firm and establishes Jerusalem as a praise upon the earth. {62:8} The Lord has sworn with his right hand and with the arm of his strength: “Certainly, I will no longer permit your grain to be the food of your enemies. And the sons of foreigners will not drink your wine, for which you have labored.” {62:9} For those who gather it will eat it, and they will praise the Lord. And those who bring it together will drink it in my holy courts. {62:10} Pass through, pass through the gates! Prepare a way for the people! Make the road level, remove the stones, and lift up a sign for the people! {62:11} Behold, the Lord has caused it to be heard to the ends of the earth. Tell the daughter of Zion: “Behold, your Saviour approaches! Behold, his reward is with him, and his work before him.” {62:12} And they will call them: The holy people, the redeemed of the Lord. Then you will be called: A city sought, and not forsaken.

[Isaiah 63] {63:1} Who is this, who arrives from Edom with dyed garments from Bozrah? This is the Handsome One in his robe, advancing by the fullness of his strength. It is I, the Speaker of Justice, and I am the Fighter for Salvation. {63:2} So then, why is your garment red, and why are your vestments like the ones of those who tread the winepress? {63:3} I have trod the winepress alone. And among the nations, there is no man beside me. I have trampled on them in my fury, and I have tread them down in my wrath. And so, their blood has been sprinkled on my vestments, and I have stained all my garments. {63:4} For the day of vengeance is in my heart. The year of my redemption has arrived. {63:5} I gazed around, and there was no one to assist. I sought, and there was no one who would help. And so, my own arm has saved for me, and my own wrath itself has assisted me. {63:6} And I have trampled the peoples in my fury, and I have inebriated them with my indignation, and I have torn down their strength to the ground. {63:7} I will remember the compassion of the Lord, the praise of the Lord over all that the Lord has bestowed on us, and over the multitude of his good things for the house of Israel, which he has granted to them according to his leniency, and according to the multitude of his mercies. {63:8} And he said: “Yet truly, these are my people, sons who have not been disowned.” And he became their Savior. {63:9} Throughout all their tribulation, he was not troubled, for the Angel of his presence saved them. With his love, and by his leniency, he has redeemed them, and he has carried them and lifted them up, throughout all the days of the ages. {63:10} But they themselves provoked to wrath and afflicted his Holy Spirit, and he was turned to be for them like an enemy, and he himself went to war against them. {63:11} And he remembered the days of ancient times, the days of Moses and his people. Where is he who led them out of the sea, with the shepherds of his flock? Where is he who placed his Holy Spirit in their midst? {63:12} He led Moses by the right hand, with the arm of his majesty. He split the waters before them, in order to make an everlasting name for himself. {63:13} He led them through the abyss, like a horse which does not stumble, in the desert. {63:14} Like an animal who descends to an open field, the Spirit of the Lord was their guide. Thus did you lead your people, in order to make a glorious name for yourself. {63:15} Gaze down from heaven, and behold from your holy habitation and from your glory. Where is your zeal, and your strength, the fullness of your heart and of your compassion? They have held themselves back from me. {63:16} For you are our Father, and Abraham has not known us, and Israel has been ignorant of us. You are our Father, O Lord our Redeemer. Your name is beyond all ages. {63:17} Why have you allowed us to stray from your ways, O Lord? Why have you hardened our heart, so that we do not fear you? Return, for the sake of your servants, the tribes of your inheritance. {63:18} They have possessed your holy people as if it were nothing. Our enemies have trampled your sanctuary. {63:19} We have become as we were in the beginning, when you did not rule over us, and when we were not called by your name.

[Isaiah 64] {64:1} I wish that you would rend the heavens, and then descend! The mountains would flow away before your face. {64:2} They would melt, as if thoroughly burned by fire. The waters would burn with fire, so that your name might be made known to your enemies, so that the nations would be stirred up before your face. {64:3} When you will perform miracles, we will not be able to withstand them. You descended, and the mountains flowed away before your presence. {64:4} From ages past, they have not heard it, and they have not perceived it with the ears. Apart from you, O God, the eye has not seen what you have prepared for those who await you. {64:5} You have met with those who rejoice in doing justice. By your ways, they will remember you. Behold, you have been angry, for we have sinned. In this, we have continued, but we will be saved. [64:6] And we have all become like the unclean. And all our justices are like a rag of menstruation. And we have all fallen away, like a leaf. And our iniquities have carried us away, like the wind. [64:7] There is no one who calls upon your name, who rises up and holds fast to you. You have concealed your face from us, and you have crushed us with the hand of our own iniquity. [64:8] And now, O Lord, you are our Father, yet truly, we are clay. And you are our Maker, and we are all the works of your hands. [64:9] Do not be so angry, O Lord, and no longer call to mind our iniquity. Behold, consider that we are all your people. [64:10] The city of your sanctuary has become a desert. Zion has become a desert. Jerusalem is desolate. [64:11] The house of our sanctification and of our glory, where our fathers prayed you, has been completely consumed by fire, and all our admirable things have been turned into ruins. [64:12] Should you restrain yourself, O Lord, concerning these things? Should you remain silent, and afflict us vehemently?

[Isaiah 65] [65:1] Those who before were not asking for me have sought me. Those who have not sought me have found me. I said, “Behold, it is I! Behold, it is I!” to a nation which was not invoking my name. [65:2] I have extended my hands all day long to an unbelieving people, who advance along a way that is not good, following their own thoughts, [65:3] to a people who provoke me to anger before my face continually, who immolate in the gardens, and who sacrifice upon the bricks. [65:4] They live in sepulchers, and they sleep in the shrines of idols. They eat the flesh of swine, and a profane elixir is in their vessels. [65:5] They say: “Depart from me! Do not approach me, for you are unclean!” Such as these will be the smoke in my fury, a fire burning all day long. [65:6] Behold, it has been written in my sight; I will not be silent. Instead, I will render retribution into their sinews. [65:7] Your iniquities are joined with the iniquities of your fathers, says the Lord. For they have sacrificed upon the mountains, and they have offended me upon the hills. And so, I will measure back to them, from their first work, into their sinews. [65:8] Thus says the Lord: In the same way as it is said about a grain found in a cluster, “Do not destroy it, because it is a blessing,” so will I act for the sake of my servants, so that I may not destroy the whole. [65:9] And I will lead forth an offspring from Jacob, and a possessor of my mountains from Judah. And my elect shall inherit it, and my servants shall live there. [65:10] And the open plains will become sheepfolds for the flocks, and the valley of Achor will become a domicile for the herds, for my people who have sought me. [65:11] And you who have forsaken the Lord, who have forgotten my holy mountain, who set a table for Fortune, and who offer libations concerning her: [65:12] I will number you with the sword, and you will all fall by slaughter. For I called and you did not respond; I spoke, and you did not listen. And you did what is evil in my eyes; and what I did not will, you have chosen. [65:13] Because of this, thus says the Lord God: Behold, my servants will eat, and you will be hungry. Behold, my servants will drink, and you will be thirsty. [65:14] Behold, my servants will rejoice, and you will be confounded. Behold, my servants will give praise in exultation of heart, and you will cry out in sorrow of heart, and you will wail in contrition of spirit. [65:15] And you will leave behind your name to my elect as a curse. And the Lord God will put you to death, and he will call his servants by another name. [65:16] By that name, whoever is blessed on earth, will be blessed in God. Amen! And whoever swears on earth, will swear by God. Amen! For the past anguishes have been delivered into oblivion, and they have been hidden from my eyes. [65:17] For behold, I create the new heavens and the new earth. And the former things will not be in memory and will not enter into the heart. [65:18] But you will be glad and exult, even forever, in these things that I create. For behold, I create Jerusalem as an exultation, and its people as a joy. [65:19] And I will exult in Jerusalem, and I will rejoice in my people. And neither a voice of weeping, nor a voice of outcry, will be heard in her anymore. [65:20] There will no longer be an infant of only a few days there, nor an elder who does not complete his days. For a mere child dies at a hundred years of age, and a sinner of a hundred years will be accursed. [65:21] And they will build houses, and will inhabit them. And they will plant vineyards, and will eat their fruits. [65:22] They will not build, so that another may inhabit. They will not plant, so that another may eat. For according to the days of a tree, so will be the days of my people. And the works of their hands will be long-standing. [65:23] My elect will not labor in vain, and they will not bring forth in disorder. For they are the offspring of the blessed of the Lord, and their posterity are with them. [65:24] And this shall be: before they call out, I will perceive; while they are still speaking, I will hear. [65:25] The wolf and the lamb will pasture together. The lion and the ox will eat hay. And dust will be the food of the serpent. They will not harm, and they will not kill, on all my holy mountain, says the Lord.

[Isaiah 66] [66:1] Thus says the Lord: Heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool. What is this house that you would build for me? And what is this place of my rest? [66:2] My hand has made all these things, and all these things have been made, says the Lord. But upon whom will I look with favor, except upon a poor little one, who is contrite in spirit, and who trembles at my words? [66:3] Whoever immolates an ox, it is as if he slaughters a man. Whoever sacrifices a sheep, it is as if he is smashing the head of a dog. Whoever offers an oblation, it is as if he is offering swine’s blood. Whoever makes remembrance with incense, it is as if he is blessing an idol. All these things, they have chosen according to their own ways, and their soul has taken delight in their own abominations. [66:4] Therefore, I also will choose their illusions, and I will lead over them the things that they feared. For I called, and there was no one who would respond. I have spoken, and they have not listened. And they have done evil in my eyes; and what I did not will, they have chosen. [66:5] Listen to the word of the Lord, you who tremble at his word. Your brothers, who hate you and who cast you out because of my name, have said: “Let the Lord be glorified, and we will see by your rejoicing.” But they themselves will be confounded. [66:6] A voice of the people from the city! A voice from the temple! The voice of the Lord repaying retribution to his enemies! [66:7] Before she was in labor, she gave birth. Before her time arrived for delivery, she gave birth to a male child. [66:8] Who has ever heard of such a thing? And who has seen anything like this? Will the earth give birth in one day? Or will a nation be born all at once? For Zion has been in labor, and she has given birth to her sons. {66:9} Will I, who causes others to give birth, not also give birth myself, says the Lord? Will I, who bestows generation upon others, be barren myself, says the Lord your God? {66:10} Rejoice with Jerusalem, and exult in her, all you who love her! Rejoice greatly with her, all you who mourn over her! {66:11} So may you nurse and be filled, from the breasts of her consolations. So may you receive milk and overflow with delights, from every portion of her glory. {66:12} For thus says the Lord: Behold, I will turn a river of peace toward her, with an inundating torrent: the glory of the Gentiles, from which you will nurse. You will be carried at the breasts, and they will caress you upon the knees. {66:13} In the manner of one whom a mother caresses, so will I console you. And you will be consoled in Jerusalem. {66:14} You will see, and your heart will be glad, and your bones will flourish like a plant, and the hand of the Lord will be known to his servants, and he will be angry with his enemies. {66:15} For behold, the Lord will arrive with fire, and his four-horse chariots will be like a whirlwind: to render his wrath with indignation, and his rebuke with flames of fire. {66:16} For the Lord will divide with fire, and with his sword among all flesh, and those slain by the Lord will be many. {66:17} Those who were sanctified, who thought themselves to be clean in the gardens behind the inner gate, who were eating swine’s flesh, and the abomination, and the mouse: they will be consumed all at once, says the Lord. {66:18} But I know their works and their thoughts. I am arriving, so that I may gather them together with all nations and languages. And they will approach, and they will see my glory. {66:19} And I will set a sign among them. And I will send some of those who will have been saved to the Gentiles in the land, to Africa, and to those who draw the bow in Lydia, to Italy and Greece, to islands far away, to those who have not heard of me, and to those who have not seen my glory. And they will announce my glory to the Gentiles. {66:20} And they will lead all of your brothers from all of the Gentiles as a gift to the Lord, on horses, and in four-horse chariots, and on stretchers, and on mules, and in coaches, to my holy mountain Jerusalem, says the Lord, in the same manner that the sons of Israel would carry an offering in a pure vessel into the house of the Lord. {66:21} And I will take from them to be priests and Levites, says the Lord. {66:22} For in like manner as the new heavens and the new earth, which I will cause to stand before me, says the Lord, so will your offspring and your name stand. {66:23} And there will be month after month, and Sabbath after Sabbath. And all flesh will approach, so as to adore before my face, says the Lord. {66:24} And they will go out, and they will view the carcasses of the men who have transgressed against me. Their worm will not die, and their fire will not be extinguished. And they will be a sight to all flesh even unto revulsion.

 The Prophecy of Jeremiah **

[Jeremiah 1] {1:1} The words of Jeremiah, the son of Hilkiah of the priests who were in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin. {1:2} The word of the Lord, which came to him in the days of Josiah, the son of Amon, king of Judah, in the thirteenth year of his reign, {1:3} and which came to him in the days of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, even until the completion of the eleventh year of Zedekiah, the son of Josiah, king of Judah, even until the transmigration of Jerusalem in the fifth month. {1:4} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {1:5} “Before I formed you in the womb, I knew you. And before you went forth from the womb, I sanctified you. And I made you a prophet to the nations.” {1:6} And I said: “Alas, alas, Lord God! Behold, I do not know how to speak, for I am a boy.” {1:7} And the Lord said to me: “Do not choose to say, ‘I am a boy.’ For you shall go forth to everyone to whom I will send you. And you shall speak all that I will command you. {1:8} You should not be afraid before their face. For I am with you, so that I may deliver you,” says the Lord. {1:9} And the Lord put forth his hand, and he touched my mouth. And the Lord said to me: “Behold, I have placed my words in your mouth. {1:10} Behold, today I have appointed you over nations and over kingdoms, so that you may root up, and pull down, and destroy, and scatter, and so that you may build and plant.” {1:11} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying, “What do you see, Jeremiah?” And I said, “I see a staff, keeping watch.” {1:12} And the Lord said to me: “You have seen well. For I will keep watch over my word, so that I may accomplish it.” {1:13} And the word of the Lord came to me a second time, saying, “What do you see?” And I said, “I see a cooking pot upon a fire, and its face is before the face of the north.” {1:14} And the Lord said to me: “From the north, an evil will spread over all the inhabitants of the earth. {1:15} For behold, I will call together all the close associates of the kingdoms of the north, says the Lord. And they will arrive, and each one of them will place his throne at the entrance to the gates of Jerusalem, and over all its surrounding walls, and over all the cities of Judah. {1:16} And I will speak my judgments with them, concerning all the wickedness of those who have forsaken me, and who have offered libations to strange gods, and who have adored the work of their own hands. {1:17} Therefore, you should gird your waist, and rise up, and speak to them everything that I instruct you. You should not have dread before their face. For I will cause you to be unafraid of their countenance. {1:18} For certainly, this day, I have made you like a fortified city, and an iron pillar, and a brass wall, over all the land, to the kings of Judah, to its leaders, and to the priests, and to the people of the land. {1:19} And they will make war against you, but they will not prevail. For I am with you, says the Lord, so that I may free you.”

[Jeremiah 2] {2:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {2:2} “Go, and cry out to the ears of Jerusalem, saying: Thus says the Lord: I have remembered you, taking pity on your youth and on the charity of your betrothal, when you followed me into the desert, into a land which is not sown. {2:3} Israel is holy to the Lord, the first of his fruits. All those who devour him commit an offense. Evils will spread over all the inhabitants of the earth. {2:4} And they have not said: ‘Where is the Lord, who led us through a land in which no one walked and in which no man caused us to ascend from the land of Egypt; who led us over the mountains of the Amorites, and the Rechites, and the Canaanites, and the Hittites, and the Perizzites, and the Girgashites, and the Jebusites, and the Ammonites, and the Moabites, and the Amalekites, and the Edomites, and the Philistines, and the Egyptians, and the Arabians?’ {2:5} Thus says the Lord: ‘What iniquity have your fathers found in me, that they would draw far away from me, and would walk after emptiness, and would become empty?’ {2:6} And they have not said: ‘Where is the Lord, who caused us to ascend from the land of Egypt; who led us through the desert, through an uninhabited and impassable land, through a land of drought and of the image of death, through a land in which no one walked and in which no man lived?’ {2:7} And I led you into the land of Carmel, so that you would eat from its fruit and from its excellence. And having entered it, you defiled my land, and you turned my inheritance into an abomination. {2:8} The priests have not said: ‘Where is the Lord?’ And those who held the law did not know me. And the pastors betrayed me. And the prophets prophesied in Baal and followed idols. {2:9} Because of this, I will still contend in judgment against you, says the Lord, and I will dispute with your sons. {2:10} Cross over to the isles of Kittim, and gaze. And send to Kedar, and consider diligently. And see if anything like this has ever been done. {2:11} See if a nation has ever changed their gods, though certainly those are not gods. Yet truly, my people have exchanged their glory for an idol. {2:12} Be astonished at this, O heavens, and be utterly desolate, O gates of heaven, says the Lord. {2:13} For my people have done two evils. They have forsaken me, the Fountain of living water, and they have dug for themselves cisterns, broken cisterns that are unable to hold water. {2:14} Is Israel a servant, or one born into slavery? Then why has he become a prey? {2:15} The lions have roared over him, and they have uttered their voice. They have set his land in solitude; his cities have been burned up, and there is no one who lives in them. {2:16} Likewise, the sons of Memphis and of Tahpanhes have defiled you, even to the top of the head. {2:17} Has this not been done to you because you abandoned the Lord your God, in that time when he was leading you by the way? {2:18} And now what do you want from the way of Egypt, but to drink their turbid water? And what do you want from the way of the Assyrians, but to drink the water of their river? {2:19} Your own malice will reprove you, and your own apostasy will rebuke you! But know and perceive this: it is an evil and bitter thing for you to forsake the Lord your God, and to be without my fear within you, says the Lord, the God of hosts. {2:20} From ancient times, you have broken my yoke; you have torn apart my bonds, and you have said, ‘I will not serve.’ For on every high hill, and under every leafy tree, you have been debased, O harlot. {2:21} Yet I planted you as an elect vineyard, with only true seed. Then how have you been turned away from me, toward that which is depraved, O strange vineyard? {2:22} Even if you wash yourself with soap, and increase your use of herbal soaps, you are still stained by your iniquity in my sight, says the Lord God. {2:23} How can you say: ‘I have not been polluted. I have not walked after Baal?’ Consider your ways in the steep valley. Acknowledge what you have done, so that you may be like a swift runner, following his course. {2:24} A wild donkey accustomed to solitude, out of the desire in his soul, caught the scent of his lover. Now nothing will turn him away from her. All those who seek her will not cease. But they will find her in her menstruation. {2:25} You should keep your foot from being naked, and your throat from being thirsty. But you have said: ‘I have lost hope. I will not do it. For certainly, I have loved strangers, and I will walk after them.’ {2:26} In the same way that a thief is confounded when he has been apprehended, so the house of Israel has been confounded, they and their kings, their leaders and priests and prophets. {2:27} For they say to a piece of wood, ‘You are my father,’ and to a stone, ‘You have conceived me.’ They have turned their back to me, and not their face. But in the time of their affliction, they will say: ‘Rise up and deliver us.’ {2:28} Where are your gods that you made for yourselves? Let them rise up and deliver you in the time of your affliction. For certainly, your gods were like the number of your cities, O Judah. {2:29} Why do you want to contend against me in judgment? You have all forsaken me, says the Lord. {2:30} I have struck your children to no effect; they have not accepted discipline. Your own sword has devoured your prophets. Your generation is like a raging lion. {2:31} Consider the word of the Lord. Have I become like a wilderness to Israel, or like a land late to bear fruit? Then why have my people said, ‘We are withdrawing; we will no longer approach you?’ {2:32} Can a virgin forget her ornament, or a bride the covering across her breast? Yet truly, my people have forgotten me, for innumerable days. {2:33} Why are you striving to claim that your way is good, as if to seek my love, when all the while you are also displaying your malice by your own way, {2:34} and in your armpits there is found the blood of poor and innocent souls? I have found them, not in ditches, but everywhere that I mentioned previously. {2:35} And you have said: ‘I am innocent and without sin. And because of this, let your fury be turned away from me.’ Behold, I will contend with you in judgment, because you have said: ‘I have not sinned.’ {2:36} How exceedingly vile you have become, repeating your ways again and again! And so, you will be ashamed of Egypt, just as you were ashamed of Assur. {2:37} For you will also depart from that place, and your hand will be upon your head. For the Lord has crushed your confidence, and you will have nothing prosperous by it.”
words toward the north, and you shall say: Return, O apostate Israel, says the Lord. For I will not avert my face from you. For I am holy, says the Lord, and I will not be angry forever. {3:13} So then, truly acknowledge your iniquity, that you have betrayed the Lord your God, and that you have spread your ways to strangers, under every leafy tree, and that you have not listened to my voice, says the Lord. {3:14} Convert, O rebellious sons, says the Lord. For I am your leader. And so, I will take you, one from a city, and two from a family, and I will lead you into Zion. {3:15} And I will give you pastors according to my own heart. And they will feed you with knowledge and doctrine. {3:16} And when you have been multiplied and increased in the land in those days, says the Lord, they will no longer say: 'The Ark of the covenant of the Lord!' And it will not enter into the heart, and they will not call it to mind. It will neither be visited, nor made use of, any longer. {3:17} In that time, Jerusalem will be called: 'The Throne of the Lord.' And all the nations will be gathered to it, in the name of the Lord, in Jerusalem. And they will not walk after the depravity of their own most wicked heart. {3:18} In those days, the house of Judah will go to the house of Israel, and they will come from the land of the north, at the same time, to the land that I gave to your fathers. {3:19} But I said: How shall I place you among the sons, and distribute to you a desirable land, the preeminent inheritance of the host of the Gentiles? And I said: You will call me Father, and you will not cease to walk after me. {3:20} But, in the same way that a woman spurns her lover, so also has the house of Israel spurned me, says the Lord." {3:21} A voice has been heard in the highways, the weeping and wailing of the sons of Israel. For they have made their own ways sinful; they have forgotten the Lord their God. {3:22} "Convert, O rebellious sons! And I will heal your rebelliousness." 'Behold, we are returning to you. For you are the Lord our God! {3:23} Truly, the hills were liars, with the multitude of the mountains. Truly, the salvation of Israel is in the Lord our God. {3:24} Confusion has devoured the labor of our fathers, from our youth, with their flocks and their herds, with their sons and their daughters. {3:25} We will sleep in our confusion, and our disgrace will cover us. For we have sinned against the Lord our God: we and our fathers, from our youth, even to this day. And we have not listened to the voice of the Lord our God."

[Jeremiah 4] {4:1} "O Israel, if you would return, says the Lord, then be converted to me. If you remove your offense from before my face, then you will not be shaken. {4:2} And you will swear, 'As the Lord lives,' in truth and in judgment and in justice." And the Gentiles will bless him, and they will praise him. {4:3} For thus says the Lord to the men of Judah and of Jerusalem: "Break new ground, and do not choose to sow upon thorns. {4:4} Be circumcised to the Lord, and take away the foreskins from your hearts, O men of Judah, O inhabitants of Jerusalem. Otherwise my indignation may burst forth and flare up like a fire. And then there will be no one who can extinguish it, because of the wickedness of your thoughts. {4:5} Declare it in Judah, and make it known in Jerusalem! Speak out and sound the trumpet in the land! Cry out strongly and say: 'Gather yourselves! And let us go forth to fortified cities!' {4:6} Lift up a standard in Zion. Be strengthened! Do not choose to stand still. For I am bringing an evil from the north, with great destruction. {4:7} The lion has ascended from his den, and the pillager of the nations has lifted himself up. He has gone forth from his place, so that he may set your land in desolation. Your cities will be laid waste, remaining without an inhabitant. {4:8} Concerning this, wrap yourselves in haircloth, mourn and wail: 'For the wrath of the fury of the Lord has not been turned away from us.' {4:9} And this shall be in that day, says the Lord: 'The heart of the king will perish, with the heart of the princes. And the priests will be stupefied, and the prophets will be in consternation." {4:10} And I said: "Alas, alas, alas, O Lord God! Could it be that you have deceived this people and Jerusalem, saying: 'Peace shall be yours,' while, behold, the sword reaches even to the soul?" {4:11} "In that time, it will be said to this people and to Jerusalem: 'A burning wind is in the ways that are in the desert, along the way of the daughter of my people, but not to winnow and not to cleanse.' {4:12} A full spirit from these places will come to me. And now I will speak my judgments over them. {4:13} Behold, he will ascend like a cloud, and his chariot will ascend like a tempest. His horses are swifter than eagles. 'Woe to us! For we are being devastated!' {4:14} Wash your heart from malice, O Jerusalem, so that you may be saved. How long will harmful thoughts abide in you? {4:15} For there is a voice, of someone announcing from Dan, and he is making known the idol from mount Ebal. {4:16} Say to the nations: 'Behold, it has been heard in Jerusalem! Guardians are coming from a far away land, to utter their voice against the cities of Judah.' {4:17} They have been stationed over her, like the guardians of fields, all around. For she has provoked me to wrath, says the Lord. {4:18} Your ways and your thoughts have brought these things upon you. This is your own wickedness. And it is bitter, because it has touched your heart. {4:19} I am afflicted in my heart, in my heart. The senses of my heart have been stirred up within me. I will not remain silent. For my soul has heard the voice of the trumpet, the clamar of the battle. {4:20} Destruction upon destruction has been called forth. And the entire earth has been devastated. My tabernacles have been destroyed suddenly, and my tents in an instant. {4:21} How long shall I watch those who are fleeing, and listen to the voice of the trumpet? {4:22} For my foolish people have not known me. They are foolish and mad sons. They are clever in doing evil, but they do not know how to do good. {4:23} I gazed upon the earth, and behold, it was empty and brought to nothing. And I gazed upon the heavens, but there was no light in them. {4:24} I watched the mountains, and behold, they trembled, and all the hills were shaken. {4:25} I looked, and there was no man. And all the flying things of the air had gone away. {4:26} I gazed, and behold, Carmel was a desert, and all its cities were destroyed before the face of the Lord, and before the face of the wrath of his fury." {4:27} For thus says the Lord: "All the earth will be desolate, but I will not yet bring about its consummation. {4:28} The earth will mourn, and the heavens will lament from above. For I have spoken, I have decided, and I have not regretted. Neither will I be turned away from it. {4:29} Before the voice of the horsemen and of those who send forth arrows, the entire city has fled. They have entered steep places, and they have ascended the cliffs. All of the cities have been abandoned, and no man lives within them. {4:30} So then, when you have been devastated, what will you do? Though you will clothe yourself with scarlet, though you will adorn yourself with a gold necklace... and tint your eyes with cosmetics, you will be dressing yourself up in vain. Your lovers have spurned you; they will be seeking your life. {4:31} For I have heard a voice, like that of a woman giving birth, during the difficulties of labor. It is the voice of the daughter of Zion, dying, extending her hands: ‘Woe to me! For my soul is failing because of those who have been slain!’ ”

[Jeremiah 5] {5:1} “Travel the streets of Jerusalem; and gaze, and consider, and seek, in its wide streets. If you can find a man exercising judgment and seeking faith, then I will be forgiving to them. {5:2} For even though they say, ‘As the Lord lives,’ in this, too, they swear falsely.” {5:3} O Lord, your eyes look with favor upon faith. You have struck them, and they have not grieved. You have bruised them, and they have refused to accept discipline. They have hardened their faces more than rock, and they are not willing to return. {5:4} But I said: Perhaps these are the poor and the senseless, who are ignorant of the way of the Lord, of the judgment of their God. {5:5} Therefore, I will go to great men, and I will speak with them. For they have known the way of the Lord, the judgment of their God. And behold, these ones have broken the yoke all the more; they have torn apart the bonds. {5:6} For this reason, a lion from the forest has struck them down, a wolf toward evening has laid waste to them, a leopard lies in wait over their cities. All who go out from there will be taken. For their transgressions have been multiplied; their rebellions have been strengthened. {5:7} “Over which things am I able to be merciful to you? Your sons have forsaken me, and they swear by those who are not gods. I gave them everything, and they committed adultery, and they indulged themselves in the house of the harlot. {5:8} They have become like wild horses in heat; each one was neighing after his neighbor’s wife. {5:9} Shall I not visit against these things, says the Lord? And shall my soul not take vengeance on a nation such as this? {5:10} Scale its walls and tear them down. But do not be willing to bring about its very end. Take away its plantings, for they are not the Lord’s. {5:11} For the house of Israel and the house of Judah have greatly transgressed against me, says the Lord. {5:12} They have denied the Lord, and they have said, ‘It is not him,’ and, ‘Evil will not overwhelm us. We will not see famine and the sword.’ {5:13} The prophets have spoken into the wind, and there was no answer with them. Therefore, these things will happen to them.” {5:14} Thus says the Lord, the God of hosts: “Since you have spoken this word, behold, I will make your words in your mouth like fire and this people like wood, and it will devour them. {5:15} Behold, O house of Israel, I will lead over you a far away nation, says the Lord, a robust nation, an ancient nation, a nation whose language you will not know, nor will you understand what they are saying. {5:16} Their quiver is like an open sepulcher. They are all strong. {5:17} And they will consume your grain fields and your bread. They will devour your sons and your daughters. They will consume your flocks and your herds. They will consume your vineyards and your figs. And with the sword, they will crush your fortified cities, in which you have placed your trust. {5:18} Yet truly, in those days, says the Lord, I will not bring the consumption over you. {5:19} And if they say, ‘Why has the Lord our God done all these things to us?’ You shall say to them: ‘Just as you have abandoned me and have served a strange god in your own land, so will you serve strangers in a land not your own.’ {5:20} Announce this to the house of Jacob, and make it known in Judah, saying: {5:21} Listen, O foolish people who have no heart! You have eyes, but you do not see, and ears, but you do not hear. {5:22} So then, will you not fear me, says the Lord. And will you not have sorrow before my face? I have placed the shore as a limit for the sea, as an everlasting precept that it will not transgress. And its waves will crash, but they will not prevail; and its waves will swell, but they will not go across. {5:23} But the heart of this people has become incredulous and provocative; they have turned away and departed. {5:24} And they have not said in their heart: ‘Let us dread the Lord our God, who gives us the timely and the late rains, in their proper time, who guards the full measure of the yearly harvest for us.’ {5:25} Your iniquities have turned these things away, and your sins have held back good things from you. {5:26} For the impious are found among my people; they lie in ambush like fowlers setting snares, for they set traps to catch men. {5:27} Just as a snare is full of birds, so are their houses full of deceit. As a result, they have become exalted and enriched. {5:28} They have grown stout and fat. And they have transgressed my words most wickedly. They have not judged the case of the widow; they have not given guidance to the case of the orphan; and they have not judged a judgment for the poor. {5:29} Shall I not visit against these things, says the Lord? Or shall my soul not take vengeance on a nation of this kind? {5:30} Astonishing and wondrous things have been done upon the earth. {5:31} The prophets have prophesied lies, and the priests have applauded with their hands, and my people have loved these things. So then, what shall be done at the very end?”

[Jeremiah 6] {6:1} “O sons of Benjamin, be strengthened in the midst of Jerusalem, and sound the trumpet in Tekoa, and lift up a banner over the house of Haccherem. For an evil has been seen from the north, with great destruction. {6:2} I have placed the shore as a limit for the sea, as an everlasting precept that it will not transgress. And its waves will crash, but they will not prevail; and its waves will swell, but they will not go across. {6:3} The prophets have prophesied lies, and the priests have applauded with their hands, and my people have loved these things. So then, what shall be done at the very end?”

[Jeremiah 6] {6:4} ‘ Sanctify a war against her! Rise up together, and let us ascend at midday.’ ‘Woe to us! For the day has declined; for the shadows of the evening have grown longer.’ {6:5} ‘Rise up, and let us ascend in the night, and let us destroy her houses.’ ” {6:6} For thus says the Lord of hosts: “Cut down her trees, and build a rampart around Jerusalem. This is the city of visitation! Every kind of false claim is in her midst. {6:7} Just as a cistern makes its water cold, so has she made her wickedness cold. Iniquity and devastation will be heard in her; sickness and wounds will be ever before me. {6:8} O Jerusalem, accept instruction, lest perhaps my soul may withdraw from you; lest perhaps I may set you in a desert, in an uninhabitable land.” {6:9} Thus says the Lord of hosts: “They will gather the remnant of Israel, even as a single cluster of grapes is gathered from a vine. Direct your hand, as a grapegatherer directs his hand to the basket. {6:10} To whom should I speak, and to whom should I testify, so as to be heard? Behold, their ears are uncircumcised, and so they are unable to hear. Behold, for them, the word of the Lord has become a disgrace. And so they will not accept it. {6:11} For this reason, I have been filled with the fury of the
The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying: {7:1} “Stand at the gate to the house of the Lord, and preach this word there, and say: Listen to the word of the Lord, all you of Judah who enter through these gates to adore the Lord. {7:2} “Do not choose to trust in lying words, saying: ‘This is the temple of the Lord! The temple of the Lord!’ {7:3} But they did not listen, nor did they incline their ear. Instead, they walked by their own will and in the depravity of their own wicked heart. And so, they went backward, and not forward.”

[Jeremiah 7] {7:1} The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying: {7:2} “Stand at the gate to the house of the Lord, and preach this word there, and say: Listen to the word of the Lord, all you of Judah who enter through these gates to adore the Lord. {7:3} Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Make your ways and your intentions good, and I will live with you in this place. {7:4} Do not choose to trust in lying words, saying: ‘This is the temple of the Lord! The temple of the Lord!’ {7:5} For if you direct your ways and your intentions well, if you exercise judgment between a man and his neighbor, {7:6} if you do not act with deceit toward the new arrival, the orphan, and the widow, and if you do not pour out innocent blood in this place, and if you do not walk after strange gods, which is to your own harm, {7:7} then I will live with you in this place, in the land that I gave to your fathers from the beginning and even forever. {7:8} Behold, you trust in false words, which will not benefit you, {7:9} so as to steal, to murder, to commit adultery, to swear falsely, to offer libations to Baal, and to go after strange gods, which you do not know. {7:10} And you arrived and stood before me in this house, where my name is invoked, and you said: ‘We have been freed because we carried out all these abominations.’ {7:11} So then, has this house, where my name has been invoked, become a den of robbers in your eyes? It is I, I am, I have seen, says the Lord. {7:12} Go to my place in Shiloh, where my name has lived from the beginning, and see what I did to it because of the wickedness of my people Israel. {7:13} And now, because you have done all these works, says the Lord, and because I have spoken to you from your morning rising, and because I was speaking, but you were not listening, and because I have called you, but you have not responded: {7:14} I will do to this house, in which my name is invoked, and in which you have confidence, even to this place which I gave to you and to your fathers, just as I have done to Shiloh. {7:15} And I will cast you away from my face, just as I have cast away all your brothers, the entire offspring of Ephraim. {7:16} Therefore, you should not pray for this people, nor take up praise and supplication on their behalf. And you should not stand in opposition to me. For then I will not heed you. {7:17} Have you not seen what they are doing in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem? {7:18} The sons gather the wood, and the fathers kindle the fire, and the wives spread the grease, so as to make cakes to the queen of heaven and to offer libations to strange gods, and so as to provoke me to anger. {7:19} But are they provoking me to anger, says the Lord? Are they not provoking themselves, to the confusion of their own faces?”

{7:20} Therefore, thus says the Lord God: “Behold, my fury and my indignation is kindled against this place, over men and over beasts, and over the trees of the countryside and over the fruits of the land, and it will burn and not be extinguished.” {7:21} Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: “Add your holocausts to your sacrifices, and eat the flesh. {7:22} For concerning the matter of holocausts and sacrifices, I did not speak with your fathers, and I did not instruct them, in the day when I led them away from the land of Egypt. {7:23} But on this matter I did instruct them, saying: Listen to my voice, and I will be your God, and you will be my people. And walk in the entire way that I have commanded you, so that it may be well with you. {7:24} But they did not listen, nor did they incline their ear. Instead, they walked by their own will and in the depravity of their own wicked heart. And so, they went backward, and not forward, {7:25} from the day when their fathers went forth from the land of Egypt, even to this day. And I have sent all my servants, the prophets, to you, throughout the day, rising at first light and sending them. {7:26} But they have not listened to me, nor have they inclined their ear. Instead, they have stiffened their neck, and they have behaved worse than their fathers did. {7:27} And so, you will speak to them all these words, but they will not listen to you. And you will call to them, but they will not respond to you. {7:28} And you will say to them: This is the nation that has not listened to the voice of the Lord their God, nor accepted discipline. Faith has perished and been taken away from their mouth. {7:29} Cut off your hair, and cast it away. And take up a lamentation on high. For the Lord has cast aside and abandoned this generation of his fury. {7:30} For the sons of Judah have done evil in my eyes, says the Lord. They have stationed their abominations in the house where my name is invoked, so that they may defile it. {7:31} And they have built the exalted places of Topheth, which is in the Valley of the son of Hinnom, so that they may burn their sons and their daughters with fire, something I neither instructed, nor thought in my heart. {7:32} For this reason, behold, the days will arrive, says the Lord, when it will no longer be called Topheth, nor the Valley of the son of Hinnom, but instead the Valley of Slaughter. Yet they will bury in Topheth, because there will be no other place. {7:33} And the corpses of this people will be food for the birds of the air and for the wild beasts of the land, and there will be no one to drive them away. {7:34} And from the cities of Judah and the streets of Jerusalem, I will cause the cessation of the voice of gladness and the voice of rejoicing, the voice of the groom and the voice of the bride. For the land will be in utter desolation."

[Jeremiah 8] {8:1} “In that time, says the Lord, they will cast out the bones of the kings of Judah, and the bones of its leaders, and the bones of the priests, and the bones of the prophets, and the bones of those who were living in Jerusalem, from their graves. {8:2} And they will spread them out before the sun and the moon and the entire army of the heavens, which they have loved, and served, and followed, and which they have sought and adored. They will not be collected, and they will not be buried. They will be like manure upon the face of the earth. {8:3} And they will greatly prefer death to life: all those who will have been left from this wicked kindred, in all the forsaken places to which I will cast them out, says the Lord of hosts. {8:4} And you will say to them: Thus says the Lord: He who falls, will he not rise again? And he who has been turned away, will he not return? {8:5} Then why have this people in Jerusalem turned away with a contentious loathing? They have taken hold of what is false, and they are not willing to return. {8:6} I paid close attention and I listened carefully. No one is speaking what is good. There is no one who does penance for his sin, saying: ‘What have I done?’ They have all turned to their own course, like a horse rushing with fury into battle. {8:7} The hawk in the heavens has known her time. The turtledove, and the swallow, and the stork have kept the time of their arrival. But my people have not known the judgment of the Lord. {8:8} How can you say: ‘We are wise, and the law of the Lord is with us?’ Truly, the lying pen of the scribes has wrought falsehood. {8:9} The wise men have been confounded; they were terrified and captured. For they cast aside the word of the Lord, and there is no wisdom in them. {8:10} Because of this, I will give their wives to outsiders and their fields to others as an inheritance. For from the least, even to the greatest, they all pursue avarice; from the prophet, even to the priest, they all act with deceit. {8:11} And they healed the destruction of the daughter of my people with disgrace, by saying: ‘Peace, peace,’ though there was no peace. {8:12} They have been confounded because they committed abomination. Or rather, they have not been confounded with shame, for they do not know how to blush. For this reason, they will fall among the fallen. In the time of their visitation, they will fall, says the Lord. {8:13} When gathering, I will gather them together, says the Lord. There are no grapes on the vine, and there are no figs on the fig tree. The leaves have fallen. And I have given them the things that have passed away.” {8:14} “Why are we sitting still? Assemble, and let us enter the fortified city, and let us remain silent there. For the Lord our God has brought us to silence, and he has given us the water of gall as a drink. For we have sinned against the Lord. {8:15} We expected peace, but there was nothing good. We expected a time of health, and behold, dread.” {8:16} “From Dan, the snorting of his horses was heard; the entire land was shaken by the voice of the neighing of his fighters. And they arrived and devoured the land and its plenteitude, the city and its inhabitants. {8:17} For behold, I will send among you serpents, king snakes, against which there is no charm, and they will bite you, says the Lord. {8:18} My sorrow is beyond sorrow; my heart mourns within me. {8:19} Behold, the voice of the daughter of my people from a far away land. Is the Lord not with Zion, and is her king not within her? Then why have they provoked me to wrath by their graven images, and by their strange vanities? {8:20} The harvest has passed by, the summer is at an end, and we have not been saved. {8:21} Over the destruction of the daughter of my people, I am contrite and saddened; astonishment has taken hold of me. {8:22} Is there no balm in Gilead? Or is there no physician there? Then why has the wound of the daughter of my people not been closed?”

[Jeremiah 9] {9:1} “Who will provide water for my head, and a fount of tears for my eyes? And then I will weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people. {9:2} Who will provide me, in the wilderness, with a lodging place along the road? And then I will forsake my people, and withdraw from them. For they are all adulterers, a union of transgressors. {9:3} And they have bent their tongue, like a bow, to send forth lies and not the truth. They have been transgressors. {9:4} And you will say to them: Thus says the Lord: He who falls, will he not rise again? And he who has been turned away, will he not return? {9:5} Then why have this people in Jerusalem turned away with a contentious loathing? They have taken hold of what is false, and they are not willing to return. {9:6} I paid close attention and I listened carefully. No one is speaking what is good. There is no one who does penance for his sin, saying: ‘What have I done?’ They have all turned to their own course, like a horse rushing with fury into battle. {9:7} The hawk in the heavens has known her time. The turtledove, and the swallow, and the stork have kept the time of their arrival. But my people have not known the judgment of the Lord. {9:8} How can you say: ‘We are wise, and the law of the Lord is with us?’ Truly, the lying pen of the scribes has wrought falsehood. {9:9} The wise men have been confounded; they were terrified and captured. For they cast aside the word of the Lord, and there is no wisdom in them. {9:10} Because of this, I will give their wives to outsiders and their fields to others as an inheritance. For from the least, lamentation over the mountains, and mourning over the beautiful places in the desert. For they have been scorched because no man is passing through them. And they have not heard the voice of any occupant. From the birds of the air, even to the cattle, they have migrated and withdrawn. 9:11 And I will make Jerusalem into piles of sand and into a lair for serpents. And I will make the cities of Judah desolate, so much so that there will be no inhabitant.

9:12 Who is the wise man who understands this, and to whom a word from the mouth of the Lord may be given, so that he may announce this: why the land has perished, and has been scorched like a desert, so much so that no one passes through it?" 9:13 And the Lord said: "It is because they have abandoned my law, which I gave to them, and they have not listened to my voice, and they have not walked by it. 9:14 And they have gone after the depravity of their own heart, and after Baal, which they learned from their fathers."

9:15 For this reason, thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: "Behold, I will feed this people with absinthe, and I will give them the water of gall to drink. 9:16 And I will disperse them among nations, which they and their fathers have not known. And I will send the sword after them, until they are consumed." 9:17 Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: "Consider and call upon the women mourners, and let them approach. And send to those women who are wise, and let them hurry. 9:18 'Let them hasten to take up a lamentation over us. Let our eyes shed tears, and our eyelids run with water. ' 9:19 For a voice of lamentation has been heard from Zion: 'How is it that we have been devastates and greatly confounded? Our tabernacles have been thrown down because we have forsaken the land.' " 9:20 "Therefore, listen, O women, to the word of the Lord! And let your ears take up the word of his mouth. And teach your daughters to lament. And let each one teach her neighbor to mourn: 9:21 'For death has climbed through our windows. It has entered our houses to perish the little children from the outdoors, the youths from the streets.'

9:22 "Speak: Thus says the Lord: And the corpses of men will fall like manure over the face of the countryside, and like hay behind the back of the reaper, and there will be no one to gather it." 9:23 Thus says the Lord: "The wise man should not glory in his wisdom, and the strong man should not glory in his strength, and the rich man should not glory in his riches. 9:24 But he who glories should glory in this: to know me and to know me well. For I am the Lord, who accomplishes mercy and judgment and justice upon the earth. For these things are pleasing to me, says the Lord. 9:25 Behold, the days are approaching, says the Lord, when I will visit upon all who are uncircumcised: 9:26 upon Egypt, and upon Judah, and upon Edom, and upon the sons of Ammon, and upon Moab, and upon all who have shaved off their hair, living in the desert. For all the nations are uncircumcised in body, but all the house of Israel is uncircumcised in heart."

[Jeremiah 10] {10:1} Listen to the word that the Lord has spoken concerning you, O house of Israel. {10:2} Thus says the Lord: "Do not choose to learn according to the ways of the Gentiles. And do not be willing to dred the signs of heaven, which the Gentiles fear. {10:3} For the laws of the people are empty. For the work of the hand of the craftsman has cut a tree from the forest with an axe. {10:4} He has adorned it with silver and gold. He has put it together with nail and hammer, so that it will not fall apart. {10:5} They have been fabricated in the likeness of a palm tree, and they will not speak. They must be carried to be moved, because they do not have the ability to walk. Therefore, do not be willing to fear them, for they can do neither evil nor good." 10:6 O Lord, there is nothing similar to you. You are great, and your name is great in strength. 10:7 Who will not fear you, O King of the nations? For honor is yours. Among all the wise of the nations, and within all their kingdoms, there is nothing similar to you. 10:8 Together, they will all be proven to be unwise and foolish. The doctrine of their vanity is made of wood. 10:9 Rolled silver is brought from Tarshish, and gold from Uphaz. It is the work of a craftsman, and of the hand of a coppersmith. Hyacinth and purple is their clothing. All these things are the work of artists. 10:10 But the Lord is the true God. He is the living God and the everlasting King. Before his indignation, the earth will shake. And the Gentiles will not be able to withstand his threats. 10:11 "And so, you shall speak to them in this way: The gods that have not made heaven and earth, let them perish from the earth and from among those places which are under heaven. 10:12 He made the earth by his power, he prepared the world in his wisdom, and he stretched out the heavens with his understanding. 10:13 At his voice, he grants a multitude of waters in the heavens, and he lifts up the clouds from the ends of the earth. He causes the lightning with the rain, and he leads forth the wind from his storehouses. 10:14 Every man has become a fool concerning knowledge; every artist has been confounded by his graven image. For what he has formed is false, and there is no spirit in these things. 10:15 These things are empty, and they are a work deserving of ridicule. In the time of their visitation, they will perish. 10:16 Jacob's portion is not like his portion. For his portion is from the One who formed all things. And Israel is the staff of his inheritance. The Lord of hosts is his name. 10:17 Gather your shame from the earth, you who are living under siege." 10:18 For thus says the Lord: "Behold, in this turn, I will cast the inhabitants of the land far away. And I will afflict them no matter where they may be found." 10:19 Woe to me, concerning my destruction! My wound is very grievous. And yet I said: Clearly, this infirmity is mine, and I will carry it. 10:20 My tent has been destroyed. All my cords have been broken. My sons have gone away from me; they did not remain. There is no one to stretch out my tent any more, nor to set up my curtains. 10:21 For the pastors have acted foolishly, and they have not sought the Lord. Because of this, they have not understood, and all their flock has been dispersed. 10:22 Behold, the sound of a voice approaches, a great commotion from the land of the north: so that he may make the cities of Judah into a wilderness and into a dwelling place for serpents. 10:23 I know, O Lord, that the way of man is not his own. Neither is it given to man to walk and to direct his own steps. 10:24 Correct me, O Lord, yet truly, do so with judgment, and not in your fury. Otherwise, you will reduce me to nothing. 10:25 Pour out your indignation upon the nations that have not known you, and upon the provinces that have not invoked your name. For they have fed upon Jacob, and devoured him, and consumed him, and they have utterly destroyed his honor.
[Jeremiah 11] {11:1} The word that came from the Lord to Jeremiah, saying: {11:2} “Listen to the words of this covenant, and speak to the men of Judah and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem. {11:3} And you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: Cursed is the man who will not listen to the words of this covenant, {11:4} which I commanded to your fathers in the day when I led them away from the land of Egypt, away from the iron furnace, saying: Listen to my voice, and do all that I command you, and then you will be my people and I will be your God. {11:5} So shall I uphold the oath which I swore to your fathers, that I would give them a land flowing with milk and honey, just as it is this day.” And I answered by saying: “Amen, O Lord.”

{11:6} And the Lord said to me: “Shout all these words in the cities of Judah, and in the streets of Jerusalem, saying: Listen to the words of the covenant, and do them. {11:7} For when testing, I tested your fathers in the day when I led them away from the land of Egypt, even until this day. Rising early, I tested them, and I said: Listen to my voice. {11:8} But they did not listen, nor did they incline their ear. Instead, each one of them walked in the depravity of his own evil heart. And so, I brought over them all the words of this covenant, which I instructed them to do. But they would not do them.”

{11:9} And the Lord said to me: “A conspiracy has been found among the men of Judah and among the inhabitants of Jerusalem. {11:10} They have returned to the former iniquities of their fathers, who refused to listen to my words. And likewise, they have gone after strange gods, so that they may serve them. The house of Israel and the house of Judah have treated as void my covenant, which I made with their fathers. {11:11} For this reason, thus says the Lord: Behold, I will lead evils over them, from which they will not be able to escape. And they will cry out to me, and I will not heed them.

{11:12} And the cities of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem will go forth, and they will cry out to the gods, to whom they offer libations, and they will not save them in the time of their affliction. {11:13} For according to the number of your cities, so were your gods, O Judah. And according to the number of the streets of Jerusalem, so did you establish altars of confusion, altars to offer libations to Baal. {11:14} Therefore, you should not choose to pray for this people, and you should not take up praise and petitioning on their behalf. For I will not heed them in the time of their outcry to me, in the time of their affliction. {11:15} Why has my beloved wrought great wickedness in my house? How can the holy flesh take away from you your wickedness, in which you have gloried? {11:16} The Lord has called your name: a beautiful, fruitful, splendid, and productive olive tree. At the voice of a word, a great fire was kindled in it, and its greenery was burned up.

{11:17} And the Lord of hosts, who planted you, has pronounced an evil against you, concerning the evils of the house of Israel and the house of Judah, which they have done to themselves so as to provoke me, by offering libations to Baal.” {11:18} But you, O Lord, have revealed this to me, and I have understood. Then you displayed their efforts to me. {11:19} And I was like a meek lamb, who is being carried to be a victim. And I did not realize that they had devised plans against me, saying: “Let us place wood upon his bread, and let us eradicate him from the land of the living, and let his name no longer be remembered.”

{11:20} But you, O Lord of hosts, who judges justly, and who tests the temperance and the heart, let me see your vengeance against them. For I have revealed my case to you. {11:21} “Because of this, thus says the Lord to the men of Anathoth, who are seeking your life, and who are saying: ‘You shall not prophesy in the name of the Lord, and you shall not die by our hands.’” {11:22} Because of this, thus says the Lord of hosts: Behold, I will visit upon them. Their young men will die by the sword. Their sons and their daughters will die by famine. {11:23} And there will be nothing left of them. For I will lead an evil over the men of Anathoth: the year of their visitation.”

[Jeremiah 12] {12:1} Certainly, O Lord, you are just. But if I may contend with you, while still speaking what is just to you: Why does the way of the impious prosper? Why is it well with all those who transgress and act unfairly? {12:2} You planted them, and they took root. They are prospering and bearing fruit. You are near to their mouths, but far from their hearts. {12:3} And you, O Lord, have known me well. You have seen me, and you have tested my heart with you. Gather them together like a flock for the sacrifice and sanctify them for the day of slaughter. {12:4} How long shall the earth mourn? And how long shall the plants of every field whither because of the wickedness of the inhabitants within them? It has consumed the wild animals and the birds. For they said: “He will not see our very end.”

{12:5} “If you have struggled to run on foot, how will you be able to compete with horses? And if you have been secure in a land of peace, what will you do about the arrogance of the Jordan? {12:6} For even your brothers, and the house of your father, even these have fought against you. And they have cried out after you with loud voice: ‘You should not believe them, when they speak good things to you.’”

{12:7} “I have abandoned my house. I have disowned my inheritance. I have given my beloved soul into the hand of its enemies. {12:8} My inheritance has become for me like a lion in the forest. It has uttered a voice against me, therefore, I have hated it. {12:9} Is my inheritance to me like a discolored bird? Is it like a bird that has entirely changed color? Approach and assemble, all beasts of the earth! Hurry, so that you may devour! {12:10} Many pastors have demolished my vineyard. They have trampled my portion. They have made my desirable portion into a desert of solitude. {12:11} They have squandered it, and it has grieved concerning me. The entire earth has become utterly desolate, because there is no one who understands with the heart.”

{12:12} The devastators have arrived, over all the ways of the wilderness. For the sword of the Lord will devour, from one end of the earth even to its furthest limits. There is no peace for all that is flesh.

{12:13} They sowed wheat, but they reaped thorns. They received an inheritance, but it will not benefit them. You will be confounded by your own fruits, because of the wrath of the fury of the Lord. {12:14} Thus says the Lord against all my wicked neighbors, who touch the inheritance that I have distributed to my people Israel: “Behold, I will root them out of their own land, and I will root the house of Judah out of their midst. {12:15} And when I have rooted them out, I will turn back and take pity on them. And I will lead them back, one man to his inheritance, and another man to his land.

{12:16} And this shall be: if they are taught and they learn the ways of my people, so that they swear by my name, ‘As the Lord lives,’ just as they had taught my people to swear by Baal, then they will be built up in the midst of my people.
{12:17} But if they will not listen, I will uproot that nation unto utter destruction and perdition, says the Lord.

[Jeremiah 13] {13:1} Thus says the Lord to me: “Go, and obtain for yourself a linen waistcloth. And you shall place it over your loins, and you shall not put it into water.” {13:2} And so I obtained a waistcloth, according to the word of the Lord, and I placed it around my loins. {13:3} And the word of the Lord came to me a second time, saying: {13:4} “Take the waistcloth, which you obtained, which is around your loins, and, rising up, go to the Euphrates, and hide it there in an opening of the rock.” {13:5} And so I went, and I hid it by the Euphrates, just as the Lord had instructed me. {13:6} And it happened that, after many days, the Lord said to me: ‘Rise up, go to the Euphrates, and take from there the waistcloth, which I instructed you to hide there.’ {13:7} And so I went to the Euphrates, and I dug up and took the waistcloth from the place where I had hidden it. And behold, the waistcloth had rotted, so that it was not fit for any use. {13:8} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {13:9} “Thus says the Lord: In the same way, I will cause the arrogance of Judah and the arrogance of Jerusalem to rot. {13:10} This most wicked people, they are not willing to listen to my words, for they walk in the depravity of their own heart, and they have gone after strange gods, so as to serve them and to adore them. And so, they will become like this waistcloth, which is not fit for any use. {13:11} For just as the waistcloth clings to the loins of a man, so have I brought close to me the entire house of Israel and the entire house of Judah, so that they would be to me: a people, and a name, and a praise, and a glory. But they did not listen. {13:12} Therefore, you shall speak to them this word: Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: ‘Every bottle will be filled with wine.’ And they will say to you: ‘Are we ignorant that every bottle will be filled with wine?’ {13:13} And you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord: Behold, I will fill all the inhabitants of this land, and the kings from the stock of David who sit upon his throne, and the priests, and the prophets, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, unto inebriation. {13:14} And I will scatter them, a man from his brother, and fathers and sons similarly, says the Lord. I will not spare them, and I will not pardon them, and I will not take pity, so as not to destroy them.” {13:15} Hear and pay close attention. Do not choose to lift yourself up, for the Lord has spoken. {13:16} Give glory to the Lord your God, before darkness falls, and before your feet stumble on the darkened mountains. You will expect light, but he will turn it into the shadow of death and into utter darkness. {13:17} But if you will not listen to this, then my soul will weep in secret before the face of your pride. It will weep bitterly, and my eyes will flow with tears, because the flock of the Lord has been taken captive. {13:18} “Say to the king and to the female ruler: Humble yourselves, sit down. For the crown of your glory has gone down from your head. {13:19} The cities of the south have been closed, and there is no one who may open them. All of Judah has been taken away into complete captivity. {13:20} Lift up your eyes and see, you who are arriving from the north. Where is the flock that was given to you, your famous cattle? {13:21} What will you say when he visits upon you? For you have taught them against you, and you have instructed them with your own head. Will not pains take hold of you, as with a woman in labor? {13:22} But if you say in your heart, ‘Why have these things happened to me?’ it is because of the greatness of your iniquity that your shame has been uncovered and the soles of your feet have been defiled. {13:23} If the Ethiopian is able to change his skin, or the leopard is able to change his spots, then you also may be able to do well, though you have learned evil. {13:24} And I will scatter them like chaff, which is carried away by the wind in the desert. {13:25} This is your lot, and this is the portion of your measure from me, says the Lord, because you have forgotten me, and you have had confidence in what is false. {13:26} Therefore, I have even bared your thighs before your face, and your shame has been seen. {13:27} For I have seen your adulteries, and your neighing for the wickedness of your formation, and your abominations upon the hills in the field. Woe to you, Jerusalem! How much longer before you will be made clean after me?”

[Jeremiah 14] {14:1} The word of the Lord that came to Jeremiah concerning the words of the drought. {14:2} “Judea has mourned. And its gates have fallen and become hard to discern on the ground. And the outcry of Jerusalem has ascended. {14:3} The greater ones have sent their lesser ones to the water. They went to draw water; they did not find water; they carried their vessels back empty. They were confounded and afflicted, and so they covered their heads. {14:4} Because of the devastation of the earth, because rain did not fall upon the earth, the farmers were confounded; they covered their heads. {14:5} For even the doe has given birth in the field, and then left it behind. For there was no grass. {14:6} And the wild donkeys stood upon the rocks; like dragons, they drew in the wind, but their eyes failed. For there was no grass.” {14:7} “O Lord, if our iniquities have responded against us, let it be for the sake of your name. For our rebellions are many; we have sinned against you. {14:8} O Hope of Israel, its Savior in time of tribulation, why would you be like a wandering man, like a strong man who is unable to save? But you, O Lord, are with us, and your name is invoked over us, so do not abandon us!” {14:10} Thus says the Lord to this people, who have loved to move their feet, and who have not rested, but who have not pleased the Lord: “Now he will remember their iniquities, and now he will visit against their sins.” {14:11} And the Lord said to me: “Do not choose to pray for this people for good.” {14:12} When they will fast, I will not heed their petitions. And if they offer holocausts and victims, I will not accept them. For I will consume them by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence.” {14:13} And I said: “Alas, alas, alas, O Lord God! The prophets are saying to them: ‘You will not see the sword, and there will be no famine among you. Instead, he will give you true peace in this place.’” {14:14} And the Lord said to me: “The prophets prophesy falsely in my name. I did not send them, and I did not instruct them, and I have not spoken to them. They prophesy to you a lying vision, and a divination, and a fraud, and a seduction from their own heart. {14:15} For this reason, thus says the Lord about the prophets who prophesy in my name, whom I have not sent, who say: ‘Sword and famine will not be in this land.’ By sword and famine those prophets will be consumed.” {14:16} And the people, to whom they prophesy, will be cast into the streets of Jerusalem, due to famine and the sword, and there will be no one who may bury them, they and their wives, their sons and daughters, and I will pour out their own evil upon them. {14:17} And you shall speak this word to them: Let my eyes shed tears throughout the night and day, and let them not cease. For the virgin daughter of my people has been crushed by a great affliction, by a very grievous wound.” {14:18} “If I go out into the fields: behold, those slain by the sword. And if I enter into the city: behold, those weakened by famine. Likewise, the prophet, too, and the priest, have gone into a land that they did not know. {14:19} Could you have utterly cast out Judah? Or has your soul abhorred Zion? Then why have you struck us, so much so that there is no health for us? We have waited for peace, but there is nothing good, and for the time of healing, and behold, trouble. {14:20} O Lord, we acknowledge our impieties, the iniquities of our fathers, that we have sinned against you. {14:21} For the sake of your name, do not give us over into disgrace. And do not dishonor in us the throne of your glory. Remember, do not make void, your covenant with us. {14:22} Could any of the graven images of the Gentiles send rain? Or are the heavens able to give showers? Have we not hoped in you, the Lord our God? For you have made all these things.”

{15:1} And the Lord said to me: “Even if Moses and Samuel were to stand before me, my soul would not be toward this people. Cast them away from my face, and let them depart! {15:2} And if they say to you, ‘Where shall we go?’ you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord: Those who go to death, shall go to death. And those who go to the sword, shall go to the sword, and those go to famine, shall go to famine, and those who go to captivity, shall go to captivity. {15:3} And I will visit against them in four ways, says the Lord: by the sword, to kill; and by dogs, to tear apart; and by the birds of the air and by the beasts of the earth, to devour and to scatter. {15:4} And I will give them over to the fervor of all the kingdoms of the earth, because of Manasseh, the son of Hezekiah, the king of Judah, because of all that he did in Jerusalem. {15:5} For who will take pity on you, O Jerusalem? Or who will feel sorrow for you? Or who will go to prayer for the sake of your peace? {15:6} You have abandoned me, says the Lord. You have gone backwards. And so, I will extend my hand over you, and I will destroy you. I have labored to plead with you. {15:7} And I will scatter them with a winnowing fan at the gates of the land. I have killed and dispersed my people, and yet they have not turned back from their ways. {15:8} Their widows have been multiplied by me, more so than the sand of the sea. I have led them against the mother of a youth like an attacker at midday. I have sent a terror suddenly against the cities. {15:9} She who gave birth to seven has become weak. Her sun has set while it was still daytime. She has been confounded and shamed. And the remainder of them I will give over to the sword in the sight of their enemies, says the Lord.” {15:10} “O my mother, woe to me! Why did you conceive me, a man of strife, a man of discord to all the earth? I have not lent money at interest, nor has anyone lent money to conceive me, a man of strife, a man of discord to all the earth?

{16:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {16:2} “You shall not take a wife, and there shall be no sons or daughters for you in this place. {16:3} For thus says the Lord concerning the sons and daughters who are conceived in this place, and concerning their mothers who give birth to them, and concerning their fathers, from whose stock they have been born in this land: {16:4} They will die from grievous mortal illnesses. They will not be mourned, and they will not be buried. They will be like manure on the ground. They will not be buried, and they will not be mourned. They will be like manure on the face of the earth. And they will be consumed by sword and by famine. And their dead bodies will be food for the birds of the air and the beasts of the land.” {16:5} For thus says the Lord: “You shall not enter the house of feasting, and you shall not go to mourn or to console them. For I have taken away from this people, says the Lord, my peace, my mercy, and my pity. {16:6} Both the great and the small will die in this land. They will not be buried, and they will not be mourned. And no one will cut themselves or make themselves bald on their behalf. {16:7} And they will not break bread among themselves for the sake of him who mourns, so as to console him over the dead. And they will not give them a chalice to drink, so as to console them over their father and mother. {16:8} And so, you shall not enter the house of feasting, so as to sit with them, and to eat and drink.” {16:9} For thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: “Behold, I will take away from this place, in your sight and in your days, the voice of gladness and the voice of rejoicing, the voice of the groom and the voice of the bride. {16:10} And when you announce all these words to this people, they will say to you: ‘Why would the Lord pronounce all this great evil against us? What is our iniquity and what is our sin that we have committed against the Lord our God?’ {16:11} And you shall say to them: It is because your fathers abandoned me, says the Lord. And they went after strange gods, and they served them and adored them. And they abandoned me, and they did not keep my law. {16:12} But you have acted even worse than your fathers. For behold, each one walks after the depravity of his own evil heart, so that he does not listen to me. {16:13} And so, I will cast you out of this land, into a land that you do not know, and that your fathers did not know. And in that place, you will serve, day and night, strange gods who will not give you rest. {16:14} Therefore, behold, the days are approaching, says the Lord, when it will no longer be said, ‘As the Lord lives, who led the sons of Israel away from the land of Egypt,’ {16:15} but instead, ‘As the Lord lives, who led the sons of Israel away from the land of the north,’ and from all the lands to which I have cast them out. And I will lead them back into their own land, which I gave to their fathers. {16:16} Behold, I will send many fishermen, says the Lord, and they will fish for them. And after this, I will send many hunters to them, and they will hunt for them on every mountain, and on every hilltop, and in the caverns of the rocks. {16:17} For my eyes are upon all their ways. They have not been hidden from my face, and their iniquity has not been concealed from my eyes. {16:18} But first, I will repay their double iniquities and their sins. For they have defiled my land with the dead bodies of their idols, and they have filled my inheritance with their abominations.” {16:19} “O Lord, my strength, and my health, and my refuge in the day of tribulation: the Gentiles will approach you from the ends of the earth, and they will say: ‘Truly, our fathers possessed a lie, an emptiness that has not benefited them.’” {16:20} How can man make gods for himself, though these are not gods?” {16:21} “Concerning this, behold: I will make it clear to them, in this turn. I will reveal to them my hand and my virtue. And they will know that the Lord is my name.”

[Jeremiah 17] {17:1} “The sin of Judah has been written with a pen of iron and a point of diamond. It has been engraved upon the breadth of their heart and upon the horns of their shrines. {17:2} And their sons make a remembrance of their shrines, and their sacred groves, and their leafy trees on high mountains, {17:3} by sacrificing in the field. And so, I will give over your strength and all your treasures to be despised, along with your exalted places of sin, within all your borders. {17:4} And you will be left behind without your inheritance, which I gave to you. And I will cause you to serve your enemies in a land that you do not know. For you have kindled a fire in my fury; it shall burn, even unto eternity.” {17:5} Thus says the Lord: “Cursed is a man who trusts in man, and who establishes what is flesh as his right arm, and whose heart withdraws from the Lord. {17:6} For he will be like a saltcedar tree in the desert. And he will not perceive it, when what is good has arrived. Instead, he will live in dryness, in a desert, in a land of salt, which is uninhabitable. {17:7} Blessed is the man who trusts in the Lord, for the Lord will be his confidence. {17:8} And he will be like a tree planted beside waters, which sends out its roots to moist soil. And it will not fear when the heat arrives. And its leaves will be green. And in the time of drought, it will not be anxious, nor will it cease at any time to bear fruit. {17:9} The heart is depraved above all things, and it is unsearchable, who can know it? {17:10} I am the Lord, who examines the heart and tests the temperament, who gives to each one according to his way and according to the fruit of his own decisions. {17:11} A partridge has hatched eggs that she did not lay; a man has gathered riches, but without judgment. In the midst of his days, he will leave it all behind, and he will be foolish concerning his very end.” {17:12} “A high and glorious throne is the place of our sanctification from the beginning. {17:13} O Lord, Hope of Israel: all who forsake you will be confounded. Those who withdraw from you will be written into the earth. For they have abandoned the Lord, the Source of living waters. {17:14} Heal me, O Lord, and I will be healed. Save me, and I will be saved. For you are my praise. {17:15} Behold, they themselves are saying to me: ‘Where is the word of the Lord? Let it come.’ {17:16} But I am not troubled; I am following you as my shepherd. And I have not desired the day of man, as you know. That which has gone forth from my lips has been right in your sight. {17:17} May you not be a dread to me. You are my hope in the day of affliction. {17:18} May those who persecute me be confounded, but may I not be confounded. May they be fearful, and may I not be fearful. Lead over them the day of affliction, and crush them with a double destruction.” {17:19} Thus says the Lord to me: “Go, and stand at the gate of the sons of the people, through which the kings of Judah enter and depart, and at all the gates of Jerusalem. {17:20} And you shall say to them: Listen to the word of the Lord, O kings of Judah, and all of Judah, and all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, who enter through these gates.” {17:21} Thus says the Lord: “Guard your souls, and do not choose to carry heavy things on the day of the Sabbath, nor choose to carry these things through the gates of Jerusalem. {17:22} And do not be willing to cast burdens out of your houses on the day of the Sabbath, nor should you do any work. Sanctify the day of the Sabbath, just as I instructed your fathers. {17:23} But they did not listen, nor did they incline their ear. Instead, they hardened their neck, lest they listen to me and receive discipline. {17:24} And this shall be: If you listen to me, says the Lord, so that you do not carry in burdens through the gates of this city on the day of the Sabbath, and if you sanctify the day of the Sabbath, so that you do not do work in it, {17:25} then there will enter through the gates of this city: kings and princes, sitting on the throne of David, and riding on chariots and horses, they and their princes, the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And this city will be inhabited forever. {17:26} And they will arrive from the cities of Judah and from all around Jerusalem, and from the land of Benjamin, and from the plains, and from the mountainous regions, and from the south, carrying holocausts, and victims, and sacrifices, and frankincense. And they will carry an oblation into the house of the Lord. {17:27} But if you will not listen to me, to sanctify the day of the Sabbath, and not to carry burdens, and not to bring these things through the gates of Jerusalem on the day of the Sabbath, then I will kindle a fire at its gates, and it will devour the houses of Jerusalem, and it will not be extinguished.”

[Jeremiah 18] {18:1} The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying: {18:2} “Rise up and descend into the house of the potter, and there you will hear my words.” {18:3} And I descended into the house of the potter, and behold, he was making a work on the wheel. {18:4} And the vessel, which he was making with his hands out of clay, broke. And turning away, he made another vessel, for it had been pleasing in his eyes to make it. {18:5} Then the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {18:6} “Am I not able to do with you, O house of Israel, just as this potter has done, says the Lord? Behold, like clay in the hand of the potter, so are you in my hand, O house of Israel. {18:7} Suddenly, I will speak against a nation and against a kingdom, so that I may uproot, and destroy, and scatter it. {18:8} If that nation, against which I have spoken, will repent from their evil, I too will repent from the evil that I have decided I would do to them. {18:9} And soon, I will speak about a nation and about a kingdom, so that I may build and plant it. {18:10} If it does evil in my sight, so as not to listen to my voice, I will repent of the good that I have said I would do to it. {18:11} Now, therefore, speak to the men of Judah and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, saying: Thus says the Lord: Behold, I am forming an evil against you, and I am considering a plan against you. Let each one of you return from his evil way, and direct your ways and your intentions well.” {18:12} And they said: “We have lost hope. And so we will follow our own thoughts, and each of us will act according to the depravity of his own evil heart.” {18:13} For this reason, thus says the Lord: “Inquire among the Gentiles. Who has heard of such horrible things as the virgin of Israel has done to excess? {18:14} Do the snows of Lebanon fail to fall on the rocks of the field? Or are the cold waters, which burst forth and flow down, able to be rooted out? {18:15} Yet my people have forgotten me, offering useless libations, and stumbling in their ways, in the paths of the world, so that they walk by these on an unmarked route. {18:16} And so their land has been given over to desolation and to perpetual hissing. Each one who passes by will be astonished and will shake his head. {18:17} Like a burning and to perpetual hissing. Each one who passes by will be astonished and will shake his head. {18:18} And they said: “Come, and let us devise a plan against Jeremiah. For the law will not perish from the earth, so that you may make it. {18:19} Because of this, behold, the days are coming, when I will make this city to be like Topheth, or the valley of the son of Hinnom, but the Valley of Slaughter. {19:1} Thus says the Lord: Behold, I will give you over to fear, you and all your friends, and they will fall by the sword of their enemies, and by the hand of those who seek their lives. And I will give their carcasses to the birds of the air and to the beasts of the land as food. {19:2} And I will set this city amid stupor and hissing. Everyone who passes by it will be stupefied, and they will hiss over all its wounds. {19:3} And I will feed them with the flesh of their sons and with the flesh of their daughters. And each one of them will eat the flesh of his friend during the blockade and the embargo by which their enemies, and those who seek their lives, will enclose them. {19:4} And you shall crush the bottle in the sight of the men who will go with you. {19:5} And you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord of hosts: Behold, the God of Israel: Behold, I will lead over this city to the hand of those who seek their lives, and the block and the embargo by which their enemies, and those who seek their lives, will enclose them. {19:6} And you shall crush the bottle in the sight of the men who will go with you. {19:7} And I will scatter the counsel of the king of Babylon, and of Jerusalem in this place. And I will overthrow them with the sword, in the sight of their enemies and by the hand of those who seek their lives. And I will give their carcasses to the birds of the air and to the beasts of the land as food. {19:8} And I will set this city amid stupor and hissing. Everyone who passes by it will be stupefied, and they will hiss over all its wounds. {19:9} And I will feed them with the flesh of their sons and with the flesh of their daughters. And each one of them will eat the flesh of his friend during the blockade and the embargo by which their enemies, and those who seek their lives, will enclose them. {19:10} And you shall crush the bottle in the sight of the men who will go with you. {19:11} And you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord of hosts: Behold, the God of Israel: Behold, I will lead over this city to the hand of those who seek their lives, and the block and the embargo by which their enemies, and those who seek their lives, will enclose them. {19:12} So will I do to this place and to its inhabitants, says the Lord. And I will make this city to be like Topheth. {19:13} And the houses of Jerusalem and the houses of the kings of Judah will be unclean, just like the place of Topheth: all the houses on whose roofs they sacrificed to all the armies of heaven and poured out libations to strange gods.” {19:14} Then Jeremiah arrived from Topheth, where the Lord had sent him to prophesy, and he stood in the atrium of the house of the Lord, and he said to all the people: {19:15} “Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will lead over this community, and over all its cities, all the evils that I have spoken against it. For they have hardened their necks, so that they would not heed my words.”
will give all the treasures of the kings of Judah into the hands of their enemies. And they will plunder them, and take them away, and lead them into Babylon. {20:6} But you, Pashhur, and all the inhabitants of your house, will go into captivity. And you will go to Babylon. And there you shall die. And there you shall be buried, you and all your friends, to whom you have prophesied a lie." {20:7} “You have led me away, O Lord, and I have been led away. You have been stronger than I, and you have prevailed. I have become a derision all day long; everyone mocks me. {20:8} For I speak now as I have long spoken: crying out against iniquity and proclaiming devastation. And the word of the Lord has been made into a reproach against me and a derision, all day long. {20:9} Then I said: I will not call him to mind, nor will I speak any longer in his name. And my heart became like a raging fire, enclosed within my bones. And I became weary of continuing to bear it. {20:10} For I heard the insults of many, and terror all around: ‘Persecute him!’ and, ‘Let us persecute him!’ from all the men who had been at peace with me and who had kept watch by my side. ‘If only there were some way that he might be deceived, and we might prevail against him and obtain vengeance from him!’ {20:11} But the Lord is with me, like a strong warrior. For this reason, those who persecute me will fall, and they will be ineffective. They will be greatly confounded. For they have not understood the everlasting disgrace that will never be wiped away. {20:12} And you, O Lord of hosts, the Tester of the just, who sees the temperament and the heart: I beg you to let me see your vengeance upon them. For I have revealed my case to you. {20:13} Sing to the Lord! Praise the Lord! For he has freed the soul of the poor from the hand of the wicked. {20:14} Cursed is the day on which I was born! The day on which my mother gave birth to me: let it not be blessed! {20:15} Cursed is the man who announced it to my father, saying, ‘A male child has been born to you,’ causing him to rejoice with gladness. {20:16} Let that man be like the cities that the Lord has overthrown without regret. Let him hear an outcry in the morning, and wailing at the time of midday! {20:17} So let him be, who did not put me to death from the womb, so that my mother would have been my sepulcher, and her womb would have been my eternal resting place! {20:18} Why did I depart from the womb, so that I would see hardship and sorrow, and so that my days would be consumed by trouble?”

[Jeremiah 21] [21:1] The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, when king Zedekiah sent Pashhur, the son of Malchiah, and Zephaniah, the son of Maaseiah, the priest, to him, saying: {21:2} “Question the Lord on our behalf, for Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, is fighting against us. Perhaps it may be that the Lord will act toward us according to all his wonders, and he may withdraw from us.” {21:3} And Jeremiah said to them: “This is what you shall say to Zedekiah: {21:4} Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: Behold, I will turn back the weapons of war that are in your hands, with which you fight against the king of Babylon and the Chaldeans, who besiege you at the surrounding walls. And I will gather these things together in the midst of this city. {21:5} And I myself will make war against you: with an outstretched hand, and with a strong arm, and in fury, and in indignation, and in great wrath. {21:6} And I will strike the inhabitants of this city; men and beasts will die from a great pestilence. {21:7} And afterward, thus says the Lord: I will give Zedekiah, the king of Judah, and his servants, and his people, and those who have been left behind in this city after pestilence and the sword and famine, into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, and into the hand of their enemies, and into the hand of those who seek their lives. And he will strike them with the edge of the sword. And he will not waver, and he will not be lenient, and he will not take pity. {21:8} And to this people, you shall say: Thus says the Lord: Behold, I set before you the way of life and the way of death. {21:9} Whoever lives in this city will die by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence. But whoever will have departed and fled away to the Chaldeans, who besiege you, will live, and his life will be to him like a spoil. {21:10} For I have set my face against this city for evil, and not for good, says the Lord. It will be given into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he will burn it with fire. {21:11} And to the house of the king of Judah, you shall say: Listen to the word of the Lord, {21:12} O house of David! Thus says the Lord: Judge with judgment from early morning, and rescue anyone who is oppressed by violence from the hand of a false accuser. Otherwise, my indignation may go forth like a fire, and may flare up, and there will be no one who can extinguish it, because of the evil of your intentions. {21:13} Behold, I am against you, O inhabitants of a valley with firm and level ground, says the Lord. And you say: ‘Who can strike us? And who can enter into our houses?’ {21:14} But I will visit against you according to the fruit of your intentions, says the Lord. And I will kindle a fire in its forest. And it shall devour everything around it.”

[Jeremiah 22] [22:1] Thus says the Lord: “Descend to the house of the king of Judah, and there you shall speak this word. {22:2} And you shall say: Listen to the word of the Lord, O king of Judah, who sits upon the throne of David: you and your servants, and your people, who enter through these gates. {22:3} Thus says the Lord: Exercise judgment and justice, and free anyone who is oppressed by violence from the hand of a false accuser. And do not be willing to sadden the new arrival, or the orphan, or the widow, nor should you burden them unfairly. And you shall not shed innocent blood in this place. {22:4} For if you will indeed accomplish this word, then there will enter through the gates of this house kings from the stock of David, sitting on his throne, and riding on chariots and on horses: they, and their servants, and their people. {22:5} But if you will not listen to these words, I swear by myself, says the Lord, that this house will be in desolation. {22:6} For thus says the Lord about the house of the king of Judah: You are to me like Gilead, the head of Lebanon. Certainly, I will make you desolate, with uninhabitable cities. {22:7} And I will sanctify over you the destroying man and his weapons. And they will cut down your select cedars and throw them violently into the fire. {22:8} And many nations will pass through this city. And each one will say to his neighbor: ‘Why has the Lord acted in this way toward this great city?’ {22:9} And they will answer: ‘It is because they abandoned the covenant of the Lord their God, and they adored strange gods and served them.’ {22:10} You should not choose to weep for the dead, nor should you mourn over them with tears. Lament for him who is departing, for he will return no more, nor will he see his native land again. {22:11} For thus says the Lord to Shallum, the son of Josiah, the king of Judah, who reigned in place of his father, who has departed from this place: He will not return here again. {22:12} Instead, he will die in the place to which I have transferred him, and he will not see this land anymore. {22:13} Woe to one who builds his house with injustice and his upper rooms without judgment, who oppresses his friend without cause and does not pay him his wages. {22:14} And he says: 'I will build a broad house for myself, with spacious upper rooms.' He makes windows for himself, and he builds the roof out of cedar, and he paints it with red ocher. {22:15} Will you reign because you compare yourself to the cedar? Did your father not eat and drink, and act with judgment and justice, so that it would be well with him? {22:16} He judged the case of the poor and the indigent for their good. Was this not because he knew me, says the Lord? {22:17} Yet truly, your eyes and your heart are toward avarice and the shedding of innocent blood, and toward false accusations and the pursuit of evil deeds. {22:18} Because of this, thus says the Lord toward Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, king of Judah: They will not mourn for him by saying, ‘Alas, to a brother, or, ‘Alas,’ to a sister. They will not make a noise for him and say, ‘Alas,’ to a master, or, ‘Alas,’ to a nobleman. {22:19} He will be buried with the burial of a donkey, having rotted and been thrown out of the gates of Jerusalem. {22:20} Ascend to Lebanon and cry out! And utter your voice in Bashan, and cry out to those passing by. For all your lovers have been crushed. {22:21} I spoke to you in your abundance, and you said, ‘I will not listen.’ This has been your way from your youth, for you have not listened to my voice. {22:22} The wind will feed all your shepherds, and your lovers will go into captivity. And then you will be confounded, and you will be ashamed of all your wickedness. {22:23} You who sit in Lebanon, and who nest in the cedars, in what way did you mourn when suffering came to you, like the suffering of a woman giving birth? {22:24} As I live, says the Lord, if Jeconiah, the son of Jehoiakim, the king of Judah, were a ring on my right hand, I would remove him from there. {22:25} And I will deliver you into the hand of those who seek your life, and into the hand of those whose face you there. {22:25} And I will deliver you into the hand of those whose face you there. {22:25} And I will deliver you into the hand of those whose face you there. And I will raise up shepherds over them, and they will pasture them. They will no longer dread, and they will no longer fear. And no one among their number will be seeking more, says the Lord. {23:5} Behold, the days are approaching, says the Lord, when I will raise up to David a righteous branch. And a king will reign, and he will be wise. And he will exercise judgment and justice upon the earth. {23:6} In those days, Judah will be saved, and Israel will live in confidence. And this is the name that they will call him: ‘The Lord, our Just One.’ {23:7} Because of this, behold, the days are approaching, says the Lord, when they will no longer say, ‘As the Lord lives, who led the sons of Israel away from the land of Egypt,’ {23:8} but instead, ‘As the Lord lives, who led away and brought back the offspring of the house of Israel from the land of the north and from the entire earth,’ from the places to which I had cast them out. And they will live in their own land.” {23:9} To the prophets: “My heart is crushed within me. All my bones are trembling. I have become like an inebriated man, and like a man hardened by wine, before the face of the Lord, and before the face of his holy words. {23:10} For the earth is full of adulterers! And the earth has mourned before the face of evil talk. The plains of the desert have dried up, and their course has become hazardous, and their firmness has become uneven.” {23:11} “For both the prophet and the priest have become polluted, and I have found their wickedness within my own house, says the Lord. {23:12} For this reason, their way will be like a slippery path in the dark. For they will be impelled forward, and they will fall in it. For I will bring evils over them, in the year of their visitation, says the Lord. {23:13} And I have seen the foolishness of the prophets of Samaria. They have prophesied in Baal, and they have deceived my people Israel. {23:14} And in the prophets of Jerusalem, I have seen the likeness of adulterers and the path of falsehood. And they have strengthened the hands of the wicked, so that each one would not convert from his malice. They have all become to me like Sodom, and its inhabitants have become like Gomorrah.” {23:15} Because of this, thus says the Lord of hosts: “Behold, I will feed them absinthe, and I will give them gall to drink. For from the prophets of Jerusalem corruption has gone forth over the entire earth.” {23:16} Thus says the Lord of hosts: “Do not choose to listen to the words of the prophets who prophesy to you and deceive you. They speak a vision from their own heart, and not from the mouth of the Lord. {23:17} To those who blaspheme me, they say: ‘The Lord has said: You shall have peace.’ And to every one who walks in the depravity of his own heart, they have said: ‘No evil will overwhelm you.’” {23:18} For who has been present in the counsel of the Lord, and who has seen and heard his word? Who has considered his word and heard it? {23:19} Behold, the whirlwind of the Lord’s indignation will go forth, and a tempest will break out; it will overwhelm the head of the impious. {23:20} The fury of the Lord will not return until it succeeds, and until it completes the plan of his heart. In the last days, you will understand this counsel. {23:21} “I did not send these prophets, yet they hurry forward. I was not speaking to them, yet they were prophesying. {23:22} If they had stood in my counsel, and if I had made my words known after Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, carried away
two baskets full of figs were set before the temple of the Lord, eaten because they were so bad. {24:3} And the Lord said to the other basket had exceedingly bad figs, which could not be good figs, like the figs usually found early in the season, and leaders, and the craftsmen and engravers of Jerusalem, and and also saying: 'I have dreamed! I have dreamed!' {23:26} How long will this be in the heart of the prophets who predict what is false, and who prophesy deceptions from their own heart? {23:27} They want to cause my people to forget my name, by means of their dreams, which each of them describes to his neighbor, just as their fathers forgot my name for the sake of Baal. {23:28} The prophet who has had a dream, let him describe the dream. And he who receives my word, let him speak my word in truth. For what has the chaff to do with the wheat, says the Lord? {23:29} Are not my words like a fire, says the Lord, and like a hammer crushing rock? {23:30} Therefore, behold: I am against the prophets, who steal my words, each one from his neighbor. {23:31} Behold, I am against the prophets, says the Lord, who take up their tongues and say: 'The Lord says it.' {23:32} Behold, I am against the prophets, who dream what is false, says the Lord; who explain and so seduce my people with their falsehoods and with their miracles, though I did not send them, nor did I command them. They have offer nothing beneficial to this people, says the Lord. {23:33} Therefore, if this people, or a prophet, or a priest questions you, saying, 'What is the burden of the Lord?' you shall say to them, 'You are the burden. And certainly I will cast you away, says the Lord.' {23:34} And as for the prophet, and the priest, and the people who say, 'The burden of the Lord!' I will visit upon that man and upon his house.
{23:35} And then you will speak in this way, each one to his neighbor and to his brother: 'What has the Lord answered?
And what has the Lord said?' {23:36} And the burden of the Lord will be no longer be called to mind. For each one's own word will be a burden. For you have perverted the words of the living God, of the Lord of hosts, our God. {23:37} And then you will speak in this way to the prophet: 'What has the Lord answered you? And what has the Lord spoken?' {23:38} But if you say, 'The burden of the Lord!' then because of this, thus says the Lord: Since you have spoken this word, 'The burden of the Lord!' though I sent to you telling you not to say: 'The burden of the Lord,' {23:39} because of this, behold, I will take you away, like a burden, and I will forsake you, as well as the city that I gave to you and to your fathers, before my face. {23:40} And I will give you over to an everlasting reproach and an eternal disgrace, which shall never be wiped away into oblivion.'

[Jeremiah 24] {24:1} The Lord revealed to me, and behold, two baskets full of figs were set before the temple of the Lord,
after Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, carried away Jeconiah, the son of Jehoiakim, king of Judah, and his leaders, and the craftsmen and engravers of Jerusalem, and led them into Babylon. {24:2} One basket had exceedingly good figs, like the figs usually found early in the season, and the other basket had exceedingly bad figs, which could not be eaten because they were so bad. {24:3} And the Lord said to me: “What do you see, Jeremiah?” And I said: “Figs: the good figs are very good, and the bad figs are very bad and cannot be eaten because they are so bad.” {24:4} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {24:5} “Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: Just like these good figs, so will I regard as good the captives of Judah, whom I have sent from this place into the land of the Chaldeans. {24:6} And I will set my eyes upon them, so as to be pleased. And I will lead them back into this land. And I will build them up, and I will not tear them down. And I will plant them, and I will not uproot them. {24:7} And I will give them a heart, so that they may know me, that I am the Lord. And they will be my people, and I will be their God. For they shall return to me with their whole heart. {24:8} And just like the very bad figs, cannot be eaten because they are so bad, thus says the Lord: so will I regard Zedekiah, the king of Judah, and his leaders, and the rest of Jerusalem, those who have remained in this city, and those who are living in the land of Egypt.
{24:9} And I will give them over, with upheaval and affliction, to all the kingdoms of the earth: to be a disgrace, and a parable, and a proverb, and a curse in all the places to which I have cast them out. {24:10} And I will send among them the sword, and famine, and pestilence: until they have been worn away from the land, which I gave to them and to their fathers.”
Wail, O shepherds, and cry out! And sprinkle one end of the earth, even to the other end. They will not be. And the slain of the Lord will be, on that day, from whirlwind will go forth from the ends of the earth. For the Lord is entering into judgment of the earth. {25:31} The sound of it will penetrate even to the place of his beauty. He will call out, like those who chant in the house of the Lord. The Lord will roar from on high, and he will utter his voice of the earth, says the Lord of hosts. {25:30} And you shall drink, and be stirred up, and become maddened, before the face of the sword that I will send among them.” {25:17} And I received the chalice from the hand of the Lord, and I caused all the nations, to which the Lord has sent me, to drink from it: Jerusalem, and the cities of Judah, and its kings, and its leaders, so that I gave them over to desolation, and stupor, and hissing, and a curse, just as it is this day. {25:19} “But as for Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, and his servants, and his leaders, and all his people, {25:20} and the entire populace in general: all the kings of the land of the south, and all the kings of the land of the Philistines, and Ashkelon, and Gaza, and Ekron, and the remnant of Ashdod, {25:21} and Idumea, and Moab, and the sons of Ammon, {25:22} and all the kings of Tyre, and all the kings of Sidon, and the kings of the land of the islands that are across the sea, {25:23} and Dedan, and Tema, and Buz, and all those who have shaved off their hair, {25:24} and all the kings of Arabia, and all the kings of the west, who live in the desert, {25:25} and all the kings of Zimri, and all the kings of Elam, and all the kings of Media, {25:26} and likewise, all the kings of the north from near to far, each one facing his brother, and all the kingdoms upon the face of the earth, and the king of Sesac: all these shall drink after them. {25:27} And you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Drink, and be inebriated, and vomit, and fall down. And you shall not rise up before the face the sword that I will send among you. {25:28} And if they refuse to receive the cup from your hand and to drink, you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord of hosts: Certainly, you shall drink! {25:29} For behold, I am beginning to afflict the city in which my name has been invoked, and will you be innocent and immune? You will not become immune! For I will call the sword over all the inhabitants of the earth, says the Lord of hosts. {25:30} And you shall prophesy to them all these words, and you shall say to them: The Lord will roar from on high, and he will utter his voice from his holy habitation. When roaring, he will roar over the place of his beauty. He will call out, like those who chant in rhythm as they trample the grapes, against all the inhabitants of the earth. {25:31} The sound of it will penetrate even to the ends of the earth. For the Lord is entering into judgment with the nations. He himself is entering into judgment with all flesh. I have delivered the impious to the sword, says the Lord.” {25:32} Thus says the Lord of hosts: “Behold, an affliction will go forth from nation to nation, and a great whirlwind will go forth from the ends of the earth. {25:33} And the slain of the Lord will be, on that day, from one end of the earth, even to the other end. They will not be mourned, and they will not be gathered, and they will not be buried. They will lie upon the face of the earth like dung. {25:34} Wail, O shepherds, and cry out! And sprinkle yourselves with ashes, O nobles of the flock! For the days have been completed that lead to your slaughter and your destruction. And you will fall like precious vessels. {25:35} And escape will flee from the shepherds, and safety will flee from the nobility of the flock.” {25:36} There is a voice of outcry from the shepherds, and a wailing among the nobles among the flock! For the Lord has laid waste to their pastures. {25:37} And the fields of peace have been silenced before the face of the fury of the Lord. {25:38} He has abandoned those he sheltered like a lion. For the earth has become a desolation before the face of the anger of the dove, and before the face of the fury of the Lord.

[Jeremiah 26] {26:1} In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, the king of Judah, this word came from the Lord, saying: {26:2} “Thus says the Lord: Stand in the atrium of the house of the Lord, and speak to all the cities of Judah, from which they come to adore in the house of the Lord, all the words that I have commanded you to speak to them. Do not choose to subtract any word. {26:3} So may they hear and be converted, each one from his evil way. And then I may repent of the evil that I plan to do them because of the wickedness of their pursuits. {26:4} And you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord: If you will not listen to me, so that you walk in my law, which I have given to you, {26:5} so that you listen to the words of my servants, the prophets, whom I have sent to you, who arise while it is still night, and though they give guidance, you do not listen, {26:6} then I will make this house like Shiloh, and I will make this city into a curse for all the nations of the earth.” {26:7} And the priests, and the prophets, and all the people said to the priests and to the prophets: “There is no prophecy in the name of the Lord.” And then the Lord will repent of the evil that I plan to do this city, just as you have heard with your own ears.” {26:8} And when Jeremiah had completed speaking all that the Lord had instructed him to speak to all the people, then the priests, and the prophets, and all the people apprehended him, saying: “You shall be put to death.” {26:9} “Why has he prophesied in the name of the Lord, saying: ‘Like Shiloh, so shall this house be,’ and, ‘This city shall be made desolate, even without an inhabitant?’ “ And all the people were gathered together against Jeremiah in the house of the Lord. {26:10} And the leaders of Judah heard these words. And they ascended from the house of the king to the house of the Lord, and they sat at the entrance by the new gate of the house of the Lord. {26:11} And the priests and the prophets spoke to the leaders and to all the people, saying: “A judgment of death is for this man. For he has prophesied against this city, just as you have heard with your own ears.” {26:12} And Jeremiah spoke to all the leaders and to the entire people, saying: “The Lord has sent me to prophesy, about this house and about this city, all the words that you have heard. {26:13} Now, therefore, make your ways and your intentions good, and heed the voice of the Lord your God. And then the Lord will repent of the evil that he has spoken against you. {26:14} But as for me, behold, I am in your hands. Do to me what is good and right in your eyes. {26:15} Yet truly, know and understand this: if you kill me, you will be bringing innocent blood against yourselves, and against this city and its inhabitants. For in truth, the Lord sent me to you, so as to speak all these words in your hearing.” {26:16} And then the leaders and all the people said to the priests and to the prophets: “There is no judgment of death against this man. For he has spoken to us in the name of the Lord our God.” {26:17} Then some of the elders of the land rose up. And they spoke to the entire assembly of the people, saying: {26:18} “Micah from Moresheth was a prophet in the days of Hezekiah, the king of Judah, and he spoke to all the people of Judah, saying: ‘Thus says the Lord of hosts: Zion will be ploughed like a field. And Jerusalem will be a pile of stones. And the mountain of the house will be like the forests of high places.’” {26:19} Did the king of Judah, Hezekiah, with all of Judah, condemn him to death? Did they not fear the Lord, and petition the face of the Lord? And so the Lord repented of the evil that he had spoken against them. Therefore, we are committing a great evil against our own souls. {26:20} Likewise, there was a man prophesying in the name of the Lord: Uriah, the son of Shemaiah, of Kiriath-jearim. And he prophesied against this city and against this land, in accord with all the words of Jeremiah. {26:21} And king Jehoiakim, with all his warriors and leaders, heard these words. And so the king sought to put him to death. And Uriah heard, and was afraid, and fled, and he entered into Egypt. {26:22} And king Jehoiakim sent men into Egypt: Elhanathan, the son of Achbor, and the men who went with him into Egypt. {26:23} And they led Uriah out of Egypt. And they brought him to king Jehoiakim, and he struck him down with the sword. And he cast his dead body among the graves of the common people.” {26:24} But the hand of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, was with Jeremiah, so that he would not be delivered into the hands of the people, and so that they would not put him to death.

[Jeremiah 27] {27:1} In the beginning of the reign of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, the king of Judah, this word came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying: {27:2} “Thus says the Lord to me: Make bands and chains for yourself. And you shall place them on your neck. {27:3} And you shall send them to the king of Edom, and to the king of Moab, and to the king of the sons of Ammon, and to the king of Tyre, and to the king of Sidon, by the hand of the messengers who came to Jerusalem, to Zedekiah, the king of Judah. {27:4} And you shall instruct them to say to their masters: Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: You shall say these things to your masters: {27:5} I made the earth, and the men and beasts which are upon the face of the earth, by my great strength and by my outstretched arm. And I have given it to whomever it was pleasing in my eyes. {27:6} And now, therefore, I have given all these lands into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, my servant. Moreover, I have given to him also the beasts of the field, so that they may serve him. {27:7} And all the nations will serve him, and his son, and his son’s son. Many nations and great kings will serve him, until the time arrives for him and his land. {27:8} But the nation or kingdom that will not serve Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, and whoever will not bend his neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, I will visit upon that nation with the sword, and with famine, and with pestilence, says the Lord, until I consume them by his hand. {27:9} Therefore, you should not choose to listen to your own prophets, and diviners, and dreamers, and soothsayers, and sorcerers, who say to you: ‘You shall not serve the king of Babylon.’ {27:10} For they prophesy lies to you, so that they may cause you to be far from your own country, and may cast you out, and may cause you to perish. {27:11} Furthermore, the nation which will bend its neck under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and which will serve him, I will permit them to remain in their own land, says the Lord. And they will cultivate it, and they will live in it.” {27:12} And I spoke to Zedekiah, the king of Judah, according to all these words, saying: “Subject your necks under the yoke of the king of Babylon, and serve him and his people, and you will live. {27:13} Why should you suffer death, you and your people, by the sword, and famine, and pestilence, just as the Lord has spoken against any nation that refuses to serve the king of Babylon? {27:14} Do not choose to listen to the words of the prophets, saying to you: ‘You will not serve the king of Babylon.’ For they are speaking a lie to you. {27:15} For I have not sent them, says the Lord. And they prophesy falsely in my name, so that they may cast you out, and so that you may perish, both you and the prophets who make predictions for you.” {27:16} I spoke also to the priests and to this people, saying: “Thus says the Lord: Do not choose to listen to the words of your prophets, who prophesy to you, saying: ‘Behold, the vessels of the Lord will now quickly be returned from Babylon.’ For they are prophesying to you a lie. {27:17} Therefore, do not choose to listen to them, but instead, serve the king of Babylon, so that you may live. Why should this city be given over into desolation? {27:18} But if they are prophets, and if the word of the Lord is in them, then let them intercede before the Lord of hosts, so that the vessels that were left behind in the house of the Lord, and in the house of the king of Judah, and in Jerusalem, may not go to Babylon. {27:19} For thus says the Lord of hosts to the pillars, and to the sea of brass, and to the bases, and to the remainder of the vessels that have been left behind in this city, which Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, did not take when he carried away Jeconiah, the son of Jehoiakim, the king of Judah, from Jerusalem into Babylon, with all the nobility of Judah and Jerusalem: {27:20} For thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, to the vessels that were left behind in the house of the Lord and in the house of the king of Judah and Jerusalem: {27:21} They shall be carried away to Babylon, and there they shall be, until the day of their visitation, says the Lord. And then I will cause them to be carried back, and to be restored to this place.

[Jeremiah 28] {28:1} And it happened in that year, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah, the king of Judah, in the fourth year, in the fifth month, that Hananiah, the son of Azur, the prophet from Gibeon, spoke to me, in the house of the Lord, in the sight of the priests and all the people, saying: {28:2} “Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: I have broken the yoke of the king of Babylon. {28:3} There are still two years of days, and then I will cause to be carried back to this place all the vessels of the house of the Lord that Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, took from this place and carried away to Babylon. {28:4} And I will return to this place: Jeconiah, the son of Jehoiakim, the king of Judah, and all those taken captive from Judah, who were brought into Babylon, says the Lord. For I will crush the yoke of the king of Babylon.” {28:5} And Jeremiah the prophet spoke to Hananiah the prophet, before the eyes of the priests and before the eyes of all the people who were standing in the house of the Lord. {28:6} And Jeremiah the prophet said: “Amen, may the Lord accomplish this; may the Lord act upon your words, which you have prophesied, so that the vessels may be carried back to the house of the Lord, and so that all those taken captive may return from Babylon to this place. (28:7) Yet truly, listen to this word, which I am speaking to your ears and to the ears of all the people. (28:8) The prophets, who were before me and before you, from the beginning, have prophesied over many lands and over great kingdoms, about war, and about affliction, and about famine. (28:9) The prophet who has predicted peace, if his word will occur, then the prophet will be known as one whom the Lord has sent in truth.” (28:10) And Hananiah the prophet took the chain from the neck of Jeremiah the prophet, and he broke it. (28:11) And Hananiah spoke in the sight of all the people, saying: “Thus says the Lord: So shall I break the yoke of Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, after two years of days, from the neck of all the people.” (28:12) And Jeremiah the prophet went his own way. And after Hananiah the prophet had broken the chain from the neck of Jeremiah the prophet, the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying: (28:13) “Go, and you shall say to Hananiah: Thus says the Lord: You have broken chains of wood, and so you will make for them chains of iron. (28:14) For thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: I have placed a yoke of iron on the neck of all these nations, so that they may serve Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon. And they shall serve him. Moreover, I have given to him even the beasts of the earth.” (28:15) And Jeremiah the prophet said to Hananiah the prophet: “Listen, Hananiah! The Lord has not sent you, and so you have caused this people to trust in a lie. (28:16) For this reason, thus says the Lord: Behold, I will send you away from the face of the earth. This year, you shall die. For you have spoken against the Lord.” (28:17) And Hananiah the prophet died in that year, in the seventh month.

[Jeremiah 29] (29:1) And these are the words of the letter which Jeremiah, the prophet, sent from Jerusalem to the remnant of the elders of the transmigration, and to the priests, and to the prophets, and to all the people, whom Nebuchadnezzar had led away from Jerusalem to Babylon, (29:2) after king Jeconiah, with the queen, and the eunuchs, and the leaders of Judah and of Jerusalem, and the craftsmen and engravers, had departed from Jerusalem. (29:3) It was sent by the hand of Elasah, the son of Shaphan, and by Gemariah, the son of Hilkiah, whom Zedekiah, the king of Judah, sent to Babylon to Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, saying: (29:4) “Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, to all who have been taken away, whom I have caused to be transferred from Jerusalem to Babylon: (29:5) Build houses and live in them. And plant gardens, and eat from their fruit. (29:6) Take wives, and conceive sons and daughters. And give wives to your sons, and give your daughters to husbands, and let them bear sons and daughters. And be multiplied there, and do not choose to be few in number. (29:7) And seek the peace of the city, to which I have caused you to be taken away, and pray to the Lord on its behalf. For your peace will be in its peace. (29:8) For thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Do not allow your prophets and your diviners, who are in your midst, to seduce you. And you should pay no attention to your dreams, which you are dreaming. (29:9) For they prophesy falsely to you in my name, and I have not sent them, says the Lord. (29:10) For thus says the Lord: When the seventy years will begin to be completed in Babylon, I will visit you. And I will raise up over you my good word, so that I may lead you back to this place. (29:11) For I know the thoughts that I think over you, says the Lord: thoughts of peace and not of affliction, so that I may give you patience and an end. (29:12) And you shall call upon me, and you shall go forth. And you shall pray to me, and I will heed you. (29:13) You shall seek me. And you will find me, when you have sought me with your whole heart. (29:14) And I will be found by you, says the Lord. And I will lead you back from your captivity. And I will gather you from all the nations and all the places, to which I have expelled you, says the Lord. And I will return you from the place to which I sent you into captivity. (29:15) For you have said: ‘The Lord has raised up prophets for us in Babylon.’ (29:16) For thus says the Lord, to the king who sits upon the throne of David, and to all the people who live in this city, to your brothers who have not departed with you in the transmigration: (29:17) Thus says the Lord of hosts: Behold, I will send among them the sword, and famine, and pestilence. And I will make them like the bad figs, which cannot be eaten, because they are very bad. (29:18) And I will pursue them with the sword, and with famine, and with pestilence. And I will give them over to affliction, amid all the kingdoms of the earth: as a curse, and in stupor, and with hissing, and as a disgrace among all the nations to which I have driven them out. (29:19) For they have not listened to my words, says the Lord, which I sent to them through my servants, the prophets, rising while it was still night, and sending. But you have not listened, says the Lord. (29:20) Therefore, listen to the word of the Lord, all of you of the transmigration, whom I have sent away from Jerusalem into Babylon. (29:21) Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, to Ahab, the son of Koliah, and to Zedekiah, the son of Maaseiah, who prophesy falsely to you in my name: Behold, I will deliver them into the hands of Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, and he will strike them down before your eyes. (29:22) And a curse will be taken up about them, by all the captives of Judah that are in Babylon, saying: ‘May the Lord make you like Zedekiah, and like Ahab, whom the king of Babylon fried in the fire!’ (29:23) For they have acted foolishly in Israel, and they have committed adultery with the wives of their friends, and they have spoken lying words in my name, which I did not command them. I am the Judge and the Witness, says the Lord. (29:24) And to Shemaiah of Nehelam, you shall say: (29:25) Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Similarly, you have sent letters in your name to all the people that are in Jerusalem, and to Zephaniah, the son of Maaseiah, the priest, and to all the priests, saying: (29:26) ‘The Lord has made you priest in place of Jehoiada, the priest, so that you would be the ruler in the house of the Lord over every man who raves and prophesies, to send him to the stocks and to prison.’ (29:27) And now why have you not rebuked Jeremiah of Anathoth, who prophesies to you? (29:28) For about this, he has sent to us in Babylon, saying: It is a long time. Build houses and live in them. And plant gardens, and eat from their fruits.” (29:29) Thus, Zephaniah, the priest, read this letter, in the hearing of Jeremiah the prophet. (29:30) And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying: (29:31) “Send to all those of the transmigration, saying: Thus says the Lord to Shemaiah of Nehelam: Because Shemaiah has prophesied to you, though I did not send him, and because he has caused you to trust in a lie: 29:32] For this reason, thus says the Lord: Behold, I will visit upon Shemaiah of Nehelam, and upon his offspring. There will not be, for him, even one man sitting in the midst of this people. And he will not see the good that I will accomplish for my people, says the Lord. For he has spoken a betrayal against the Lord."

[Jeremiah 30] [30:1] This is the word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying: [30:2] “Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel, saying: You shall write in a book all the words that I have spoken to you. [30:3] For behold, the days are approaching, says the Lord, when I will convert the turning away of my people, Israel and Judah, says the Lord. And I will return them to the land which I gave to their fathers, and they will possess it.” [30:4] And these are the words which the Lord has spoken to Israel and to Judah: [30:5] For thus says the Lord: ‘We have heard a voice of terror. There is dread, and there is no peace.’ [30:6] Inquire and see, does a male give birth? Then why have I seen every man with his hand on his lower back, like a woman bearing a child? And why have all of their faces turned pale? [30:7] Woe! For that day is great, and there is nothing like it. For it is the time of tribulation for Jacob, but he will be saved from it. [30:8] And this shall be in that day, says the Lord of hosts: I will crush his yoke from your neck, and I will break open his bands. And strangers will no longer rule over him. [30:9] Instead, they will serve the Lord their God, and David their king, whom I will raise up for them. [30:10] Therefore, O my servant Jacob, you should not be afraid, says the Lord, and you should not be frightened, O Israel. For behold, I will save you from a far away land, and your offspring from the land of their captivity. And Jacob will return and have rest, and he shall flow with every good thing. And there will be no one for him to dread. [30:11] For I am with you, says the Lord, so that I may save you. For I will bring about the consummation of all the nations, among which I have scattered you. But I will not bring about your consummation. Instead, I will chastise you in judgment, so that you will not seem innocent to yourself.” [30:12] For thus says the Lord: “Your fracture is incurable; your wound is very serious. [30:13] There is no one who may judge your judgment, so as to bandage it; there is no useful treatment for you. [30:14] All your lovers have forgotten you, and they will not seek you. For I have wounded you with the strike of an enemy, with a cruel chastisement. Your sins have become hardened because of the multitude of your iniquities. [30:15] Why do you cry out over your affliction? Your pain is incurable. I have done these things to you because of the multitude of your iniquity and because of your hardened sins. [30:16] Because of this, all those who devour you, will be devoured. And all your enemies will be led into captivity. And those who devastate you, will be devastated. And all those who prey upon you, I will offer as a prey. [30:17] For I will close up your scar, and I will heal you of your wounds, says the Lord. For they have called you an outcast, O Zion: ‘This is she who has no one asking for her.’ ” [30:18] Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will turn back the turning away of the tabernacles of Jacob, and I will take pity on his roofs. And the city will be built up in her heights, and the temple will be founded according to its order. [30:19] And praise will go forth from them, with the voice of those who play. And I will multiply them, and they will not be lessened. And I will glorify them, and they will not be weakened. [30:20] And their sons will be as in the beginning. And their assembly will remain in my sight. And I will visit against all those who trouble them. [30:21] And their ruler will one of their own. And their prince will be led forward from their midst. And I will draw him near, and he will cling to me. For who is the one who applies his heart, so that he may draw near to me, says the Lord? [30:22] And you shall be my people, and I will be your God.” [30:23] Behold the whirlwind of the Lord, his fury going forth, a destroying storm! It will rest upon the head of the impious. [30:24] The Lord will not turn back the wrath of his indignation, until he has accomplished and completed the plan of his heart. In the last days, you shall understand these things.

[Jeremiah 31] [31:1] “In that time, says the Lord, I will be the God of all the families of Israel, and they will be my people.” [31:2] Thus says the Lord: “The people who had remained after the sword, found grace in the desert. Israel will go to his rest.” [31:3] The Lord appeared to me from a distance: “And I have loved you in perpetual charity. Therefore, showing pity, I have drawn you. [31:4] And I will build you up again. And you shall be built up, O virgin of Israel. Still shall you be adorned with your timbrels, and still shall you go forth to the singing of those who play. [31:5] Still shall you plant vineyards on the mountains of Samaria. The planters will plant, and they will not gather the vintage until the time arrives. [31:6] For there will be a day on which the guardians on mount Ephraim will cry out: ‘Arise! And let us ascend on Zion to the Lord our God!’ ” [31:7] For thus says the Lord: “Exult in the joy of Jacob, and neigh before the head of the Gentiles. Shout, and sing, and say: ‘O Lord, save your people, the remnant of Israel!’ ” [31:8] Behold, I will lead them from the land of the north, and I will gather them from the ends of the earth. Among them will be the blind and the lame, she who is with child, together with she who is giving birth: a great assembly returning to this place. [31:9] They will approach with weeping. And I will lead them back with mercy. And I will lead them through the torrents of water, by an upright way, and they will not stumble in it. For I have become Father to Israel, and Ephraim is my firstborn.” [31:10] Listen to the word of the Lord, O Gentiles, and announce it amid the Gentiles: ‘O mountains of Samaria, you who loathe the Gentiles, and it is said among you: “As I have done, so they will do to me.”’ [31:11] For the Lord has redeemed Jacob, and he has freed him from the hand of one more powerful. [31:12] And they will arrive and give praise on Mount Zion. And they will flow together, to the good things of the Lord, over grain, and wine, and oil, and the offspring of cattle and herds. And their soul will be like an irrigated garden, and they will no longer be hungry. [31:13] Then the virgin will rejoice with singing, the young and the old together, and I will turn their mourning into gladness, and I will console them and gladden them after their sorrow. [31:14] And I will inebriate the soul of the priests with fatness, and my people will be filled with my good things, says the Lord.” [31:15] Thus says the Lord: “A voice has been heard on high: of lamentation, mourning, and weeping; of Rachel crying for her sons and refusing to be consoled over them, because they are not.” [31:16] Thus says the Lord: “Let your voice cease from crying and your eyes from tears. For there is a reward.
for your work, says the Lord. And they will return from the land of the enemy. {31:17} And there is hope for your very end, says the Lord. And the sons will return to their own borders. {31:18} Listening, I heard Ephraim going into captivity: 'You have chastised me, and I was instructed, like a young untamed bull. Convert me, and I shall be converted. For you are the Lord my God. {31:19} For after you converted me, I did penance. And after you revealed to me, I struck my thigh. I am confounded and ashamed. For I have endured the disgrace of my youth.' {31:20} Certainly, Ephraim is an honorable son to me; surely, he is a tender child. For I will still remember him, as in the time when I first spoke about him. Because my heart is stirred up over him, surely I will take pity on him, says the Lord. {31:21} Establish a watchtower for yourself. Place yourself in bitterness. Direct your heart into the upright way, in which you used to walk. Return, return, O virgin of Israel, to these your cities! {31:22} How long will you be absorbed in delights, O wandering daughter? For the Lord has created something new upon the earth: a woman will encompass a man.” {31:23} Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: “Still they will speak this word in the land of Judah, and in its cities, when I will convert their captivity: 'May the Lord bless you, the beauty of justice, the holy mountain.' {31:24} And they will live in it. Judah together with all its cities, the farmer and those who drive the flocks. {31:25} For I have inebriated the weary soul, and I have satisfied every hungry soul. {31:26} Over this, I was awakened, as if from a deep sleep. And I saw, and my sleep became sweet to me. {31:27} Behold, the days are approaching, says the Lord, when I will sow the house of Israel and the house of Judah with the offspring of men and with the offspring of cattle. {31:28} And just as I have watched over them, so that I may root up, and tear down, and scatter, and destroy, and afflict, so will I watch over them, so that I may build and plant them, says the Lord. {31:29} In those days, they will no longer say: ‘The fathers ate a bitter grape, and the teeth of the sons have been affected.’ {31:30} Instead, each one will die for his own iniquity. Each man who will have eaten a bitter grape, his own teeth will be affected. {31:31} Behold, the days are approaching, says the Lord, when I will form a new covenant with the house of Israel and with the house of Judah, {31:32} not according to the covenant which I made with their fathers, in the day when I took them by the hand, so as to lead them away from the land of Egypt, the covenant which they nullified, though I was the ruler over them, says the Lord. {31:33} But this will be the covenant that I will form with the house of Israel, after those days, says the Lord: I will give my law to their inner most being, and I will write it upon their heart. And I will be their God, and they shall be my people. {31:34} And they will no longer teach, a man his neighbor, and a man his brother, saying: ‘Know the Lord.’ For all will know me, from the littlest of them even to the greatest, says the Lord. For I will forgive their iniquity, and I will no longer remember their sin. {31:35} Thus says the Lord, who gives the sun as the light of the day, who puts the moon and the stars in order as the light of the night, who stirs up the sea and makes its waves roar: the Lord of hosts is his name. {31:36} If these laws fail in my sight, says the Lord, then the offspring of Israel will also fail, so that they will not be a people in my sight for all time.” {31:37} Thus says the Lord: “If the heavens above are able to be measured, and if the foundations of the earth beneath can be examined, I also will cast aside all the offspring of Israel, because of all that they have done, says the Lord. {31:38} Behold, the days are approaching, says the Lord, when a city will be built for the Lord from the tower of Hananel, even to the Gate of the Corner; {31:39} and the measuring line will go on even further in his sight, over the hill of Gareb, and it will encircle Goah {31:40} and the entire Valley of dead bodies and ashes, and the entire region of death, even to the torrent of Kedron, and to the corner of the Horse Gate to the east. All this will be the holy place of the Lord. It will not be rooted up, and it will not be torn down, anymore, forever.”

[Jeremiah 32] {32:1} The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord in the tenth year of Zedekiah, the king of Judah. The same is the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar. {32:2} It was then that the army of the king of Babylon besieged Jerusalem. And Jeremiah, the prophet, was confined to the atrium of the prison, which was in the house of the king of Judah. {32:3} For Zedekiah, the king of Judah, had confined him, saying: “Why do you make predictions, saying: ‘Thus says the Lord: Behold, I will give this city into the hand of the king of Babylon, and he will capture it?’ {32:4} And Zedekiah, the king of Judah, will not escape from the hand of the Chaldeans. Instead, he will be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon. And he will speak to him, mouth to mouth, and he will see him, eye to eye. {32:5} And he will lead Zedekiah to Babylon. And he will be there until I visit him, says the Lord. So then, if you contend against the Chaldeans, you will have no success.” {32:6} And Jeremiah said: “The word of the Lord came to me, saying: {32:7} Behold, Hanamel, the son of Shallum, your cousin, will come to you, saying: ‘Buy for yourself my field, which is in Anathoth, says the Lord. {32:8} And in accord with the word of the Lord, Hanamel, the son of my uncle, came to me, to the entrance of the prison, and he said to me: ‘Take possession of my field, which is in Anathoth in the land of Benjamin. For the right of inheritance is yours, and as the next of kin you may possess it.’ Then I understood that this was the word of the Lord. {32:9} And I bought the field, which is in Anathoth, from Hanamel, the son of my uncle. And I weighed out the money to him, seven small coins and ten pieces of silver. {32:10} And I wrote it in a book and signed it, and I summoned witnesses. And I weighed out the silver on a scale. {32:11} And I received the signed deed of possession, and the stipulations, and the ratifications, with the exterior seals. {32:12} And I gave the deed of possession to Baruch, the son of Neriah, the son of Mahseiah, in the sight of Hanamel, the son of my uncle, in the sight of the witnesses who had been recorded in the book of the purchase, and in the sight of all the Jews who were sitting in the atrium of the prison. {32:13} And I instructed Baruch, in their sight, saying: {32:14} Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘Take these writings, this sealed deed of purchase, and this deed which is open, and place them in an earthen vessel, so that they will be preserved for many days.’ {32:15} For thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: ‘Houses, and fields, and vineyards will be possessed still, in this land.’ {32:16} And after I had delivered the deed of possession to Baruch, the son of Neriah, I prayed to the Lord, saying: {32:17} Alas, alas, alas, O Lord God! Behold, you have made heaven and earth, by your great strength and by your have given them this land, which you swore, to their fathers, outstretched arm, and with great terror. {32:22} And you caused signs and portents in the land of Egypt, and in Israel, and among men, even until this day. And you have made a name for yourself, just as in this day. {32:21} And you have led your people Israel away from the land of Egypt, with signs and portents, and with a robust hand and an outstretched arm, and with great terror. {32:22} And you have given them this land, which you swore, to their fathers, that you would give to them, a land flowing with milk and honey. {32:23} And they entered it and possessed it. But they did not obey your voice, and they did not walk in your law.
And they did not do all of the things that you commanded them to do. And so, all of these evils have happened to them.
{32:24} Behold, fortifications were built against the city, so as to capture it. And the city was given into the hands of the Chaldeans, who fight against it, before the face of the sword, and of famine, and of pestilence. And what you have spoken has occurred, just as you yourself discern. {32:25} So why, O Lord God, are you saying to me: 'Buy a field with money, and summon witnesses,' while the city is being given into the hands of the Chaldeans?" {32:26} And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying: {32:27} "Behold, I am the Lord God; I am above all flesh. Can any word be difficult for me?
Therefore, thus says the Lord: Behold, I will deliver this city into the hands of the Chaldeans, and into the hands of the king of Babylon, and they will capture it. {32:29} And the Chaldeans fighting against this city will advance, and set fire to it, and burn it, along with the houses on whose roofs they were offering sacrifice to Baal and were pouring out libations to strange gods, so that they provoked me to wrath.
{32:30} For the sons of Israel and the sons of Judah, from their youth, have continually done evil in my eyes. The sons of Israel, even until now, have been provoking me with the work of their hands, says the Lord. {32:31} For this city has been a cause of fury and indignation to me, from the day when they built it, until this day, in which it will be taken away from my sight, {32:32} because of all the wickedness of the sons of Israel and the sons of Judah, which they have done, provoking me to wrath, they and their kings, their leaders and their priests and their prophets, the men of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem. {32:33} And they have turned their backs to me, and not their faces. And though I taught them and instructed them, rising at first light, they were not willing to listen, so that they would receive discipline. {32:34} And they have placed their idols in the house where my name is invoked, so that they defiled it.
{32:35} And they have built the exalted places of Baal, which are in the valley of the son of Hinnom, so that they may initiate their sons and their daughters into Molech, though I did not command, nor did it enter into my heart, that they should do this abomination, and so lead Judah into sin.
{32:36} And now, because of these things, thus says the Lord, the God of Israel, to this city, about which you say that it will be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence: {32:37} Behold, I will gather them together from all the lands to which I have cast them out in my fury, and in my wrath, and in my great indignation. And I will lead them back to this place, and I will cause them to live in confidence. {32:38} And they will be my people, and I will be their God. {32:39} And I will give to them one heart and one way, so that they may fear me all their days, and so that it may be well with them, and with their sons after them. {32:40} And I will form an everlasting covenant with them, and I will not cease to do good for them.
And I will put my fear into their heart, so that they do not withdraw from me. {32:41} And I will rejoice over them, while I do good for them. And I will plant them in this land, in truth, with my whole heart and with my whole soul.
{32:42} For thus says the Lord: Just as I have led over this people all this great evil, so will I lead over them all the good that I am speaking to them now. {32:43} And fields will be possessed in this land, about which you say that it is desolate because there remains neither man nor beast, and because it has been given into the hands of the Chaldeans.
{32:44} Fields will be bought for money, and deeds will be written and signed, and witnesses will be summoned, in the land of Benjamin and all around Jerusalem, in the cities of Judah, and in the cities on the mountains, and in the cities on the plains, and in the cities that are toward the south. For I will convert their captivity, says the Lord."
fulfilling their vows in the house of the Lord. For I will lead back the turning away of the land, just as from the beginning, says the Lord.” {33:12} Thus says the Lord of hosts: “Still shall there be in this place, (which is desolate without man and without beast,) and in all of its cities: a habitation for the shepherds giving rest to their flocks. {33:13} For even in the cities on the mountains, and in the cities on the plains, and in the cities that are toward the south, and in the land of Benjamin, and all around Jerusalem, and in the cities of Judah, still shall the flocks travel by the hand of him who numbers them, says the Lord. {33:14} Behold, the days are approaching, says the Lord, when I will fulfill the good word that I have spoken to the house of Israel and to the house of Judah. {33:15} In those days and at that time, I will cause the seedling of justice to spring up from David, and he will accomplish judgment and justice upon the earth. {33:16} In those days, Judah will be saved, and Jerusalem will live in confidence. And this is the name that they will call him: ‘The Lord, our Just One.’ {33:17} For thus says the Lord: There shall not cease to be a man from David sitting upon the throne of the house of Israel. {33:18} And there shall not cease to be a man from the priests and from the Levites before my face, who offers holocausts, and burns sacrifices, and kills victims, for days without end.” {33:19} And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying: {33:20} “Thus says the Lord: If my covenant with the day is able to be nullified, or my covenant with the night, such that there would be no day and no night in their time, {33:21} then, too, my covenant with David, my servant, may be nullified, such that he would not have a son who reigns upon his throne, with both the Levites and the priests as my ministers. {33:22} Just as the stars of heaven are not able to be numbered, and the sand of the sea is not able to be measured, so will I multiply the offspring of David, my servant, and the Levites, my ministers.” {33:23} And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying: {33:24} “Have you not seen what this people has spoken? They say: ‘The two families which the Lord had chosen have been rejected.’ And so they have despised my people, as if they were no longer a nation in their sight. {33:25} Thus says the Lord: If I have not established my covenant with the day and the night, and my laws over heaven and earth, {33:26} then truly I will also cast aside the offspring of Jacob, and of David, my servant, so that I do not take up any of his offspring to be leaders over the offspring of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob. For I will lead back their turning way, and I will take pity on them.”

[Jeremiah 34] {34:1} The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, when Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, and his entire army, and all the kingdoms of the earth that were under the authority of his hand, and all the people were making war against Jerusalem and against all of its cities, saying: {34:2} “Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: Go, and speak to Zedekiah, the king of Judah. And you shall say to him: Thus says the Lord: Behold, I will deliver this city into the hands of the king of Babylon, and he will burn it with fire. {34:3} And you will not escape from his hand. Instead, you will be overtaken and captured, and you will be delivered into his hand. And your eyes will see the eyes of the king of Babylon, and his mouth will speak with your mouth, and you will enter into Babylon. {34:4} Even so,listen to the word of the Lord, Zedekiah, king of Judah: Thus says the Lord to you: You will not die by the sword. {34:5} Instead, you will die in peace. And, in accord with the burnings of your fathers, the former kings who were before you, so will they burn you. And they will mourn you, saying: ‘Alas, lord!’ For I have spoken the word, says the Lord.” {34:6} And Jeremiah, the prophet, spoke all these words to Zedekiah, the king of Judah, in Jerusalem. {34:7} And the army of the king of Babylon fought against Jerusalem and against all the cities of Judah that remained, against Lachish and against Azekah. For only these remained out of the cities of Judah that were fortified cities. {34:8} The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, after king Zedekiah had struck a pact with all the people in Jerusalem, proclaiming {34:9} that each one should release his man servant, and each one his woman servant, as a free Hebrew man and a free Hebrew woman, and that they should never be rulers over them, that is, over the Jews, their own brothers. {34:10} Then all the leaders and all the people who entered into the pact, heard that each one should release his man servant, and each one his woman servant, to be free, and that they should no longer rule over them. Therefore, they listened, and they released them. {34:11} But later on, they turned back. And they took back again their man servants and their woman servants, whom they had released to be free. And they subjugated them as male and female servants. {34:12} And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah from the Lord, saying: {34:13} “Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: I struck a pact with your fathers in the day when I led them away from the land of Egypt, from the house of servitude, saying: {34:14} ‘When seven years have been completed, let each one release his brother, a Hebrew, who had been sold to him. And so he will serve you for six years, and then you shall release him to be free from you.’ But your fathers did not listen to me, nor did they incline their ear. {34:15} And today you converted, and you did what is right in my eyes, so that you proclaimed liberty, each one to his friend. And you entered into a pact in my sight, in the house in which and over which my name is invoked. {34:16} But now you have turned back, and you have stained my name. For you have led back again, each one his man servant, and each one his woman servant, whom you had released so that they would be free and under their own authority. And you have subjugated them, so that they would be your servants and handmaids.” {34:17} Because of this, thus says the Lord: “You have not heeded me, though you proclaimed liberty, each one to his brother and each one to his friend. Behold, I am proclaiming a liberty for you, says the Lord, to the sword, to pestilence, and to famine. And I will cause you to be removed to all the kingdoms of the earth. {34:18} And I will give over the men who have betrayed my covenant, and who have not observed the words of the covenant, to which they assented in my sight when they cut the calf into two parts and passed between its parts: {34:19} the leaders of Judah, and the leaders of Jerusalem, the eunuchs and the priests, and all the people of the land, who have passed between the parts of the calf. {34:20} And I will give them into the hands of their enemies and into the hands of those who are seeking their life. And their dead bodies will be food for the birds of the air and for the beasts of the earth. {34:21} And Zedekiah, the king of Judah, and his leaders, I will give over to the hands of their enemies, and to the hands of those who are seeking their lives, and to the hands of the armies of the king of Babylon, which had withdrawn from you. {34:22} Behold, I will command, speak to them, and lead them into the house of the Lord, into one of the halls of the treasuries. And you shall give them wine to drink.” {35:3} And so I took Jaazaniah, the son of Jeremiah, the son of Habazziniah, and his brothers, and all his sons, and the entire house of the Rechabites, {35:4} and I led them into the house of the Lord, to the treasury of the sons of Hanan, the son of Igddaliah, a man of God, which was near the treasury of the princes, above the storehouse of Maseiah, the son of Shallum, who was the guardian of the entrance. {35:5} And I placed before the sons of the house of the Rechabites bowls filled with wine, and chalices. And I said to them, “Drink wine.” {35:6} And they responded: “We will not drink wine. For Jonadab, the son of Rechab, our father, instructed us, saying: ‘You shall not drink wine, you and your sons, in perpetuity.' {35:7} And you shall not build houses, and you shall not sow any seeds, and you shall not plant or have vineyards. Instead, you shall live in tents all your days, so that you may live many days upon the face of the earth, in which you are sojourners.’ {35:8} Therefore, we have obeyed the voice of Jonadab, the son of Rechab, our father, in all that he has commanded us, so that we do not drink wine all our days, we and our wives, our sons and daughters. {35:9} And we do not build houses in which to live. And we do not have vineyard, or field, or seed to sow. {35:10} Instead, we live in tents, and we have been obedient in accord with all that Jonadab, our father, has instructed us. {35:11} But when Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, had ascended to our land, we said: ‘Come and let us enter into Jerusalem, before the face of the army of the Chaldeans, and before the face of the army of Syria.’ And we have remained in Jerusalem.” {35:12} And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, saying: {35:13} “Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Go, and say to the men of Judah and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem: Will you not accept discipline, so that you obey my words, says the Lord? {35:14} The words of Jonadab, the son of Rechab, in which he instructed his sons, so that they would not drink wine, have prevailed. And they have not drunk wine, even to this day. For they have obeyed the instruction of their father. But I have spoken to you, rising and speaking from early morning, and you did not obey me. {35:15} And I have sent to you all my servants, the prophets, rising at first light, and sending, and saying: “Convert, each one from his wicked way, and make your intentions good. And do not choose to follow strange gods, nor shall you worship them. And then you shall live in the land which I gave to you and to your fathers.” And yet you have not inclined your ear, and you have not heeded me. {35:16} So the sons of Jonadab, the son of Rechab, have remained firm in the commandment of their father, which he instructed to them, while this people has not been obedient to me. {35:17} For this reason, thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will lead over Judah and over all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, every evil that I have declared against them. For I have spoken to them, and they have not listened. I have called to them, and they have not responded to me.” {35:18} Then Jeremiah said to the house of the Rechabites: “Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Because you have obeyed the commandment of Jonadab, your father, and have kept all his precepts, and have done all that he has instructed you, {35:19} because of this, thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: There will not be a man lacking from the stock of Jonadab, the son of Rechab, standing in my sight, for all days.”
said to him, “Sit and read these things in our hearing.” And Baruch read in their hearing. {36:16} Therefore, when they had heard all the words, each one looked at his neighbor in astonishment, and they said to Baruch: “We ought to report all these words to the king.” {36:17} And they questioned him, saying, “Describe to us how you wrote all these words from his mouth.” {36:18} Then Baruch said to them: “He was speaking with his mouth, as if reading to me. And I wrote in a volume with ink.” {36:19} And the leaders said to Baruch: “Go away and hide, you and Jeremiah, and let no one know where you are.” {36:20} And they entered to the king, in the court. Furthermore, they stored the volume in the treasury of Elishama, the scribe. And they announced all the words in the hearing of the king. {36:21} And the king sent Jehudi to take the volume. And bringing it from the treasury of Elishama, the scribe, he read it in the hearing of the king and of all the leaders who were standing around the king. {36:22} Now the king was sitting in the winter house, in the ninth month. And there was a hearth placed before him, filled with burning coals. {36:23} And when Jehudi had read three or four pages, he cut it with a small knife, and he threw it into the fire which was upon the hearth, until the entire volume was consumed by the fire which was upon the hearth. {36:24} And the king and all his servants, who had heard all these words, were not afraid, and they did not rend their garments. {36:25} Yet truly, Elnathan, and Delaiah, and Gemariah contradicted the king, so that he might not burn the book. But he did not listen to them. {36:26} And the king instructed Jerahmeel, the son of Amelch, and Seraiah, the son of Azriel, and Shelemiah, the son of Abdeel, so that they would apprehend Baruch, the scribe, and Jeremiah, the prophet. But the Lord concealed them. {36:27} And after the king had burned the volume and the words that Baruch had written from the mouth of Jeremiah, the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah, the prophet, saying: {36:28} “Again, take another volume and write in it all the former words, which were in the first volume that Jehoiakim, the king of Judah, has burned. {36:29} And you shall say to Jehoiakim, the king of Judah: Thus says the Lord: You have burned that volume, saying: ‘Why have you written in it, announcing that the king of Babylon will advance quickly, and will devastate this land, and will cause both man and beast to cease from it?’ {36:30} Because of this, thus says the Lord against Jehoiakim, the king of Judah: There will be, from him, no one who may sit upon the throne of David. And his dead body shall be cast out: to the heat by day, and to the frost by night. {36:31} And I will visit against him, and against his offsprings, and against his servants for their iniquities. And I will lead over them, and over the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and over the men of Judah, all the evil that I have declared against them, for they have not listened.” {36:32} Then Jeremiah took up another volume, and he gave it to Baruch, the son of Neriah, the scribe, who wrote in it, from the mouth of Jeremiah, all the words of the book that Jehoiakim, the king of Judah, had burned with fire. And moreover, there were many more words added than there had been before.

[Jeremiah 37] {37:1} And then king Zedekiah, the son of Josiah, reigned in place of Jeconiah, the son of Jehoiakim. For Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, appointed him as king in the land of Judah. {37:2} And neither he himself, nor his servants, nor the people of the land, obeyed the words of the Lord, which he spoke by the hand of Jeremiah, the prophet. {37:3} And king Zedekiah sent Jehucal, the son of Shelemiah, and Zephaniah, the son of Maaseiah, the priest, to Jeremiah the prophet, saying: “Pray to the Lord our God for us.” {37:4} Now Jeremiah was walking freely in the midst of the people. For they had not yet sent him into the custody of the prison. And then the army of Pharaoh went forth from Egypt. And hearing this, the Chaldeans, who were besieging Jerusalem, withdrew from Jerusalem. {37:5} And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah the prophet, saying: {37:6} “Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel: So shall you say to the king of Judah, who sent you to question me: Behold, the army of Pharaoh, which has gone forth in assistance to you, will return to their own land, into Egypt. {37:7} And the Chaldeans will return and will make war against this city. And they will seize it and burn it with fire. {37:8} Thus says the Lord: Do not be willing to deceive your own souls, saying: ‘The Chaldeans will certainly withdraw and go away from us.’ For they will not go away. {37:9} But even if you were to strike down the entire army of the Chaldeans who are fighting against you, and if there were left behind from among them only a few wounded men, they would rise up, each one from his tent, and they would burn this city with fire.” {37:10} Therefore, when the army of the Chaldeans had withdrawn from Jerusalem because of Pharaoh’s army, {37:11} Jeremiah went forth from Jerusalem, to go into the land of Benjamin, and to distribute a possession there, in the sight of the citizens. {37:12} And when he had arrived at the gate of Benjamin, the keeper of the gate, whose turn it was to be there, was named Irijah, the son of Shelemiah, the son of Hananiah. And he apprehended Jeremiah the prophet, saying, “You are fleeing to the Chaldeans.” {37:13} And Jeremiah responded: “That is false. I am not fleeing to the Chaldeans.” But he did not listen to him. And so Irijah took Jeremiah, and he brought him to the leaders. {37:14} Therefore, the leaders were angry with Jeremiah, and so they beat him and sent him to the prison that was in the house of Jonathan, the scribe. For he was the chief over the prison. {37:15} And so Jeremiah went into the house of the prison and into a dungeon. And Jeremiah sat there for many days. {37:16} Then Zedekiah the king, sending, took him out and questioned him secretly in his house, and he said: “Do you think that there is any word from the Lord?” And Jeremiah said: “There is.” And he said: “You will be delivered into the hands of the king of Babylon.” {37:17} And Jeremiah said to king Zedekiah: “How have I sinned against you, or your servants, or your people, such that you would cast me into a house of imprisonment? {37:18} Where are your prophets, who were prophesying to you, and who were saying: ‘The king of Babylon will not overwhelm you and this land?’ {37:19} Now therefore, listen, I beg you, my lord the king. Let my petition prevail in your sight. And do not send me back into the house of Jonathan the scribe, lest I die there.” {37:20} Then king Zedekiah instructed that Jeremiah be confined to the vestibule of the prison, and that they should give him a twist of bread daily, along with stew, until all the bread in the city had been consumed. And Jeremiah remained at the entrance of the prison.

[Jeremiah 38] {38:1} Then Shephatiah, the son of Mattan, and Gedaliah, the son of Pashhur, and Jehucal, the son of Shelemiah, and Pashhur, the son of Malchiah, heard the words that Jeremiah was speaking to all the people, saying:

{38:2} "Thus says the Lord: Whoever will remain in this city will die by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence. But whoever will flee away from the Chaldeans, will live, and his soul will dwell in safety. {38:3} Thus says the Lord: This city will certainly be delivered into the hand of the army of the king of Babylon, and he will capture it." {38:4} And the leaders said to the king: "We petition you to put this man to death. For he is deliberately weakening the hands of the men of war, who have remained in this city, and the hands of the people, by speaking to them with these words. For this man is certainly not seeking peace for this people, but evil." {38:5} And king Zedekiah said: "Behold, he is in your hands. For it is not fitting for the king to deny you anything."

{38:6} Therefore, they took Jeremiah and cast him into the pit of Malchiah, the son of Amelech, which was at the entrance to the prison. And they lowered Jeremiah by ropes into the pit, in which there was no water, but only mud. And so Jeremiah descended into the mire. {38:7} Now Ebedmelech, an Ethiopian man, a eunuch who was in the king's house, heard that they had sent Jeremiah into the pit, and also that the king was sitting at the gate of Benjamin.

{38:8} And so Ebedmelech departed from the king's house, and he spoke to the king, saying: {38:9} "My lord the king, these men have done evil in all that they have perpetrated against Jeremiah the prophet, casting him into the pit so that he would die there from famine. For there is no more bread in the city." {38:10} And so the king instructed Ebedmelech, the Ethiopian, saying: "Take with you thirty men from here, and lift Jeremiah the prophet from the pit, before he dies." {38:11} Therefore, Ebedmelech, taking the men with him, entered into the king's house to a place below the storehouse. And he took from there old garments, no longer in use, and he sent them down by rope to Jeremiah in the pit.

{38:12} And Ebedmelech, the Ethiopian, said to Jeremiah: "Place these old garments, and these cut and decaying cloths, under your arms and over the ropes." And Jeremiah did so. {38:13} And they pulled up Jeremiah with the ropes, and they led him away from the pit. And Jeremiah remained in the vestibule of the prison. {38:14} And king Zedekiah sent and took Jeremiah the prophet to him at the third gate, which was at the house of the Lord. And the king said to Jeremiah: "I will question you about a matter. You shall conceal nothing from me." {38:15} Then Jeremiah said to Zedekiah: "If I announce to you, will you not put me to death? And if I give you counsel, you will not listen to me." {38:16} Then king Zedekiah swore to Jeremiah, secretly, saying: "As the Lord lives, who made this soul for us, I will not kill you, nor will I deliver you into the hands of those men who are seeking your life." {38:17} And Jeremiah said to Zedekiah: "Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: If, having set out, you go to the rulers of the king of Babylon, your soul will live, and this city will not be burned with fire. And you and your house will be safe. {38:18} But if you will not go to the rulers of the king of Babylon, this city will be delivered into the hands of the Chaldeans, and they will burn it with fire. And you will not escape from their hand." {38:19} And king Zedekiah said to Jeremiah: "I am anxious, because of the Jews who have crossed over to the Chaldeans, lest perhaps I may be delivered into their hands, and they may abuse me." {38:20} But Jeremiah responded: "They will not deliver you. Listen, I ask you, to the voice of the Lord, which I am speaking to you, and it will be well with you, and your soul will live. {38:21} But if you refuse to depart, this is the word that the Lord has revealed to me: {38:22} Behold, all the women who remain in the house of the king of Judah will be led away to the rulers of the king of Babylon. And the women will say: 'Your men of peacefulness have led you astray, and they have prevailed against you. They have immersed your feet in mud and have set them in a slippery place. And they have withdrawn from you.' {38:23} And all your wives and your sons will be led away to the Chaldeans, and you will not escape from their hands. Instead, you will be seized by the hand of the king of Babylon. And he will burn this city with fire." {38:24} Then Zedekiah said to Jeremiah: "Let no one know of these words, and you will not die. {38:25} But if the leaders hear that I have spoken with you, and if they come to you, and say to you: 'Tell us what you said to the king. Do not conceal it from us, and we will not put you to death. And tell us what the king said to you,' {38:26} then you shall say to them: 'I presented my supplication before the king, so that he would not order me to be led back to the house of Jonathan, to die there.' " {38:27} Then all the leaders came to Jeremiah, and they questioned him. And he spoke to them in accord with all the words that the king had commanded him. And they withdrew from him, for they had learned nothing. {38:28} Yet truly, Jeremiah remained at the entrance of the prison, until the day when Jerusalem was seized. And it happened that Jerusalem was captured.

[Jeremiah 39] {39:1} In the ninth year of Zedekiah, the king of Judah, in the tenth month, Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, came to Jerusalem, with his entire army, and they besieged it. {39:2} Then, in the eleventh year of Zedekiah, in the fourth month, on the fifth of the month, the city was opened. {39:3} And all the rulers of the king of Babylon entered and were seated at the middle gate: Nergal-Sharcezer, the priest of Nebo, Sarsechim, the chief eunuch, Nergal-Sharcezer, the chief magi, and all the other rulers of the king of Babylon. {39:4} And when Zedekiah, the king of Judah, with all the men of war, had seen them, they fled. And they departed from the city at night, by way of the king's garden, and through the gate which was between the two walls. And they departed along the way of the desert. {39:5} But the army of the Chaldeans pursued them. And they overtook Zedekiah in the plain of the desert of Jericho. And having captured him, they led him to Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, at Riblah, which is in the land of Hamath. And he declared a judgment against him {39:6} And the king of Babylon killed the sons of Zedekiah, at Riblah, before his eyes. And the king of Babylon killed all the nobles of Judah. {39:7} Also, he plucked out the eyes of Zedekiah. And he bound him with fetters, to be led away to Babylon. {39:8} Also, the Chaldeans burned the house of the king and the house of the people with fire, and they overturned the wall of Jerusalem. {39:9} And Nebuzaradan, the leader of the military, carried away captive to Babylon the remnant of the people who had remained in the city, and the fugitives who had fled to him, and all the rest of the people who had remained. {39:10} And Nebuzaradan, the leader of the military, released some of the poor people, those who had almost nothing, into the land of Judah. And he gave them vineyards and cisterns in that day. {39:11} Now Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, had instructed Nebuzaradan, the leader of the military, about Jeremiah, saying: {39:12} “Take him, and set your eyes on him, and you shall do no harm to him at all. But as he is willing, so shall you do with him.” {39:13} Therefore, Nebuzaradan, the leader of the military, sent, and Nebushazban, the chief eunuch, and Nergal-Sharezer, the chief magi, and all thenobles of the king of Babylon sent, {39:14} and they took Jeremiah from the vestibule of the prison, and they delivered him to Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, so that he could enter a house and live among the people. {39:15} But the word of the Lord had come to Jeremiah, when he had been confined to the vestibule of the prison, saying: “Go, and speak to Ebedmelech, the Ethiopian, saying: {39:16} Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will bring my words over this city for evil, and not for good; and they shall be in your sight in that day. {39:17} And I will free you in that day, says the Lord. And you will not be delivered into the hands of the men whom you dread. {39:18} But when delivering, I will free you. And you will not fall by the sword. Instead, your life will be saved for you, because you had faith in me, says the Lord.”

[Jeremiah 40] {40:1} The word that came to Jeremiah from the Lord, after Nebuzaradan, the leader of the military, had released him from Ramah, where he had taken him, bound in chains, along with all those who were being carried away from Jerusalem and from Judah, and were being led to Babylon. {40:2} Therefore, the leader of the military, taking Jeremiah, said to him: “The Lord your God has declared this evil over this place, {40:3} and he has brought it. And the Lord has done just as he has spoken. For you have sinned against the Lord, and you have not heeded his voice, and so this word has happened to you. {40:4} Now therefore, behold, I have released you this day from the chains which were on your hands. If it pleases you to come with me into Babylon, then come. And I will set my eyes upon you. But if it displeases you to come with me into Babylon, then remain. Behold, all the land is in your sight. Whatever you will choose, and wherever it will please you to go, so shall you go, proceeding to that place. {40:5} And you may decline to come with me. For you may live with Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, whom the king of Babylon has made governor over the cities of Judah. Therefore, you may live with him in the midst of the people. And you may go wherever it will please you to go.” And the leader of the military also gave him foods and gifts, and he released him. {40:6} Then Jeremiah went to Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, at Mizpah. And he lived with him in the midst of the people, those who had been left behind in the land. {40:7} And when all the leaders of the army, who had been dispersed throughout the regions, they and their associates, had heard that the king of Babylon had made Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, governor of the land, and that he had committed to him the men, and women, and children, and the poor of the land, who had not been carried away to Babylon, {40:8} they went to Gedaliah at Mizpah, with Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, and Johanan and Jonathan, the sons of Kareah, and Seraiah, the son of Tanhumeth, and the sons of Ephai, who were of Netophathi, and Jezaniah, the son of Maacath, they and their men. {40:9} And Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, swore to them and to their companions, saying: “Do not be afraid to serve the Chaldeans. Live in the land, and serve the king of Babylon, and it will be well with you. {40:10} Behold, I live at Mizpah, so that I may follow the instruction of the Chaldeans who are sent to us. But as for you, gather the vintage, and the harvest, and the oil, and store it up in your vessels, and dwell in your cities, which you hold.” {40:11} So then, all the Jews, who were in Moab, and among the sons of Ammon, and in Idumea, and in all the regions, when they had heard that the king of Babylon had left a remnant in Judea, and that he had made Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, governor over them, {40:12} all the Jews, I say, returned from all the places to which they had fled, and they came into the land of Judah, to Gedaliah at Mizpah. And they gathered wine and an exceedingly great harvest. {40:13} Then Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the leaders of the army, who had been dispersed in the regions, came to Gedaliah at Mizpah. {40:14} And they said to him: “Know that Baalis, the king of the sons of Ammon, has sent Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, to strike down your life.” And Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, did not believe them. {40:15} But Johanan, the son of Kareah, spoke to Gedaliah, separately, at Mizpah, saying: “I will go, and I will strike down Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, without anyone knowing; otherwise he may kill you, and all the Jews will be scattered who have been gathered to you, and the remnant of Judah will perish.” {40:16} And Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, said to Johanan, the son of Kareah: “Do not do this word. For what you have said about Ishmael is false.”}

[Jeremiah 41] {41:1} And it happened that, in the seventh month, Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, the son of Elishama of royal descent, with the nobles of the king, and accompanied by ten men, went to Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, at Mizpah. And they ate bread together there, in Mizpah. {41:2} Then Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, rose up, and the ten men who were with him, and they struck down Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, with the sword, and they killed him whom the king of Babylon had made governor over the land. {41:3} Likewise, Ishmael struck down all the Jews who were with Gedaliah at Mizpah, with the Chaldeans who were found there, and the men of war. {41:4} Then, on the second day after he had killed Gedaliah, while no one yet knew of it, {41:5} men arrived from Shechem, and from Shiloh, and from Samaria, eighty men, with their beards shaved, and their garments rent, and unbathed. And they had gifts and frankincense in hand, so that they might make an offering in the house of the Lord. {41:6} Therefore, Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, departing from Mizpah to meet them, went forth weeping as he was walking. And when he had met them, he said to them, “Come to Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam.” {41:7} And when they had arrived at the center of the city, Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, put them to death around the public cistern, he and the men who were with him. {41:8} But ten men were found among them, who said to Ishmael: “Do not kill us! For in the field we have storehouses of grain and barley and oil and honey.” And so he ceased, and he did not put them to death with their brothers. {41:9} Now the cistern, into which Ishmael cast all the dead bodies of the men whom he had struck down because of Gedaliah, is the same one that king Asa made out of fear of Baasha, the king of Israel. This same cistern Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, filled with those who were slain. {41:10} Then Ishmael led away captive all the remnant of the people who were at Mizpah, whom Nebuzaradan, the leader of the military, had committed to Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam. And Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, seized them and went away, so that he might go over to the sons of Ammon. {41:11} But Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the leaders of the fighters who were with him, heard about all the evil that Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, had done. {41:12} And taking all the men, they set out to make war against Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah. And they found him at the great waters that are in Gibeon. {41:13} And when all the people who were with Ishmael had seen Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the leaders of the fighters who were with him, they rejoiced. {41:14} And all the people whom Ishmael had seized turned back to Mizpah. And they returned and went over to Johanan, the son of Kareah. {41:15} But Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, fled with eight men from the face of Johanan, and they went over to the sons of Ammon. {41:16} Therefore, Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the leaders of the fighters who were with him, took from Mizpah the entire remnant of the common people, whom they had led away from Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, after he had struck down Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam. These were strong men of battle, and women, and children, and eunuchs: those whom he had led away from Gibeon. {41:17} And they went away and settled as sojourners at Chimham, which is near Bethlehem, so that they might continue on and enter into Egypt, {41:18} away from the face of the Chaldeans. For they were afraid of them, because Ishmael, the son of Nethaniah, had struck down Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, whom the king of Babylon had made governor in the land of Judah.

[Jeremiah 42] {42:1} And all the leaders of the warriors, and Johanan, the son of Kareah, and Azariah, the son of Hoshaiah, and the rest of the common people, from the least even to the greatest, drew near. {42:2} And they said to Jeremiah the prophet: “Let our supplication fall before your sight. And pray for us to the Lord your God, on behalf of this entire remnant. For few out of many have been left behind, just as your eyes behold us. {42:3} And so, may the Lord your God announce to us the way that we must travel, and the word that we must accomplish.” {42:4} Then Jeremiah, the prophet, said to them: “I have listened. Behold, I will pray to the Lord your God according to your words. And whatever word he will respond to me, I will declare to you. And I will conceal nothing from you.” {42:5} And they said to Jeremiah: “May the Lord be the witness between us of truth and fidelity, if we do not act according to whatever word the Lord your God will send to you. {42:6} Whether it is for good or for harm, we will obey the voice of the Lord our God, to whom we are sending you. So may it be well with us, when we heed the voice of the Lord our God.” {42:7} Then, when ten days had been completed, the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah. {42:8} And he called Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the leaders of warriors who were with him, and all the people, from the least even to the greatest. {42:9} And he said to them: “Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel, to whom you have sent me, so that I may present your petitions in his sight: {42:10} If you dwell quietly in this land, I will build you up, and I will not tear you down. I will plant you, and I will not uproot you. For now I have been appeased by the harm that I have done to you. {42:11} Do not be afraid before the face of the king of Babylon, whom you have dreaded with great fear. Do not dread him, says the Lord. For I am with you, so that I may accomplish your salvation, and so that I may rescue you from his hand. {42:12} And I will give you mercies, and I will take pity on you, and I will cause you to live in your own land. {42:13} But if you say: ‘We will not live in this land, nor will we heed the voice of the Lord our God,’ {42:14} saying: ‘Never! Instead, we will travel to the land of Egypt, where we will not see war, and we will not hear the blast of the trumpet, and we will not endure famine. And there we shall live.’ {42:15} Because of this, hear now the word of the Lord, O remnant of Judah: Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: If you set your faces so as to advance into Egypt, and if you enter so that you may live there, {42:16} the sword which you dread will overtake you there, in the land of Egypt, and the famine, about which you are anxious, will cling to you in Egypt, and there you shall die. {42:17} And all the men, who have set their faces so that they may advance to Egypt in order to live there, will die by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence. None of them will remain, nor will they escape from the face of the evil that I will bring over them. {42:18} For thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Just as my fury and my indignation has been enflamed over the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so will my indignation be enflamed over you, when you will have entered into Egypt. And so you will be an oath, and an astonishment, and a curse, and a disgrace. And you will never see this place again. {42:19} This is the word of the Lord concerning you, O remnant of Judah: Do not choose to enter into Egypt, for certainly you understand what I have sworn to you this day. {42:20} For you have deceived your own souls. For you have sent me to the Lord our God, saying: ‘Pray on our behalf to the Lord our God. And in accord with anything whatsoever that the Lord our God will tell you, announce this to us, and we will do it.’ {42:21} And I have announced it to you this day, and you have not heeded the voice of the Lord your God, concerning everything about which he has sent me to you. {42:22} Therefore, know with certainty now, that you will die by the sword, and by famine, and by pestilence, in the place which you wish to enter so that you may live there.”

[Jeremiah 43] {43:1} Then it happened that, when Jeremiah had finished speaking all the words of the Lord their God to the people, all those words concerning which the Lord their God had sent him to them, {43:2} Azariah, the son of Hoshaiah, and Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the exalted men, spoke to Jeremiah, saying: “You are speaking a lie! The Lord our God has not sent you to say: ‘You shall not enter into Egypt so as to live in that place.’ {43:3} Instead, Baruch, the son of Neriah, has incited you against us, so as to deliver us into the hands of the Chaldeans, to put us to death and to cause us to be led away into Babylon.” {43:4} And so Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the leaders of the warriors, and all the people, did not heed the voice of the Lord to remain in the land of Judah. {43:5} But Johanan, the son of Kareah, and all the leaders of the warriors, took away all the remnant of Judah, who had returned from all the nations (to which they had been scattered before) to live in the land of Judah: {43:6} men, and women, and children, and the daughters of the king, and every soul that Nebuzaradan, the leader of the military, had left behind with Gedaliah, the son of Ahikam, the son of Shaphan, as well as Jeremiah, the prophet, and Baruch, the son of Neriah. {43:7} And they entered into the land of Egypt. For they did not obey the voice of the Lord. And they went as far as Tahpanhes. {43:8} And the word of the Lord came to Jeremiah at Tahpanhes, saying: {43:9} “Take great stones in your hand, and you shall conceal them in the crypt which is under the brick wall at the gate of the house of Pharaoh at Tahpanhes, in the sight of the men of Judah. {43:10} And you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will send for and take Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, my servant, and I will set his throne over these stones which I have concealed, and he will establish his throne upon them. {43:11} And he will come and strike the land of Egypt: those who are meant for death, shall go to death, and those for captivity, to captivity, and those for the sword, to the sword. {43:12} And he will kindle a fire in the shrines of the gods of Egypt, and he will burn them down, and he will lead them away captive. And he will clothe himself with the land of Egypt, just as a shepherd is clothed with his cloak. And he will go forth from that place in peace. {43:13} And he will crush the statues of the house of the Sun, those that are in the land of Egypt, and the shrines of the gods of Egypt he will burn up with fire.”

[Jeremiah 44] {44:1} The word that came through Jeremiah to all the Jews who were living in the land of Egypt, living at Migdol, and at Tahpanhes, and at Memphis, and in the land of Pathros, saying: {44:2} “Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: You yourselves have seen all this evil that I have led over Jerusalem and over all the cities of Judah. And behold, they are desolate to this day, and there is no inhabitant in them, {44:3} because of the wickedness which they have done, so that they provoked me to wrath, and because they went to offer sacrifice and worship to strange gods, which neither they, nor you, nor your fathers knew. {44:4} And I sent to you all my servants, the prophets, rising in the night, and sending, and saying: ‘Do not choose to do this abominable word, which I hate.’ {44:5} But they did not listen, nor did they incline their ear, so that they would convert from their evil, and so that they would not sacrifice to strange gods. {44:6} And so my indignation and my fury was fanned and kindled in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem. And they have been turned into desolation and devastation, just as it is this day. {44:7} And now, thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Why do you commit this great evil against your own souls, so that, among you, man and woman, child and infant would pass away from the midst of Judah, and so that no remnant at all would be left behind of you? {44:8} For you have provoked me by the works of your hands, by sacrificing to strange gods in the land of Egypt, into which you have entered in order to live there, and so that you would perish and become a curse and a disgrace before all the nations of the earth. {44:9} How could you have forgotten the evils of your fathers, and the evils of the kings of Judah, and the evils of their wives, and your own evils, and the evils of your own wives, which they have done in the land of Judah and in the regions of Jerusalem? {44:10} They have not been cleansed, even to this day. And they have not feared, and they have not walked in the law of the Lord and in my precepts, which I have given before you and before your fathers. {44:11} For this reason, thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will set my face upon you for evil. And I will disperse all of Judah. {44:12} And I will take the remnant of Judah, who had set their faces so that they would enter into the land of Egypt and live there, and they will all be consumed in the land of Egypt. They will fall by the sword and by famine. And they will be consumed, from the least, even to the greatest. By sword and by famine shall they die. And they will be an oath, and a wonder, and a curse, and a disgrace. {44:13} And I will visit against those who are living in the land of Egypt, just as I have visited against Jerusalem: with the sword, and with famine, and with pestilence. {44:14} And there will be no one who escapes, of those who remain among the remnant of the Jews, those who have gone to sojourn in the land of Egypt. And they wish to be returned to the land of Judah, for they lift up their souls so that they might return and live there. But there will be no one who may return, except those who will flee.” {44:15} Then all the men, knowing that their wives were sacrificing to strange gods, and all of the women, a great multitude of whom were standing there, and all of the people who were living in the land of Egypt at Pathros, responded to Jeremiah, by saying: {44:16} “Concerning the word that you have spoken to us in the name of the Lord, we will not heed you. {44:17} But we will continue to do every word which proceeds from our own mouth, so that we sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and we pour out libations to her, just as we and our fathers have done, our kings and our leaders, in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem. For we were filled with bread, and it was well with us, and we saw no evil. {44:18} But since the time that we ceased to offer sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and to pour out libations to her, we have been in need of all things, and we have been consumed by the sword and by famine. {44:19} But when we offer sacrifice to the queen of heaven and pour out libations to her, do we make cakes for her worship and offer libations to her without our husbands?” {44:20} And Jeremiah spoke to all the people, facing the men, and facing the women, and facing all the people who had responded this word to him, saying: {44:21} “Was this not the sacrifice that you offered in the cities of Judah and in the streets of Jerusalem, you and your fathers, your kings and your leaders, and the people of the land, which has been called to mind by the Lord and which has entered into his heart? {44:22} And the Lord could no longer bear this, because of the evil of your intentions, and because of the abominations that you have done. And so, your land has become a desolation, and an astonishment, and a curse, and it is without an inhabitant, even to this day. {44:23} This is because you have sacrificed to idols, and you have sinned against the Lord. And you have not heeded the voice of the Lord, and you have not walked in his law, and in his precepts, and in his testimonies. It is for this reason that these evils have happened to you, just as it is today.” {44:24} Then Jeremiah said to all the people and to all the women: “Listen to the word of the Lord, all you of Judah who are in the land of Egypt: {44:25} Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, saying: You and your wives have spoken it with your mouth, and have fulfilled it with your hands, saying: ‘Let us perform our vows that we have made, so that we may offer sacrifice to the queen of heaven, and Mount the horses, and exult upon chariots, and let the like those of a river. And he will say: 'I will ascend and cover ascends in the form of a river, and its waves will be moved.

Who is this, who ascends like a flood, and whose ruined, toward the north, near the river Euphrates. They have been conquered and thought to save themselves. They have been conquered and crossed.

Let not the swift take flight; let not the strong ones cut down. They have fled in disorder and have not looked back. Terror on every side, says the Lord.

'Prepare the heavy and the light shield, and advance to war!' Harness the horses, and let the horsemen climb upon them! Stand forth with helmets! Sharpen the lances! Clothe yourselves in armor!' And what is next? I have seen them terrified, and turning their backs, their strong ones cut down. They have fled in disorder and have not looked back. Terror on every side, says the Lord.

Let not the swift take flight; let not the strong ones cut down. They have fled in disorder and have not looked back. Terror on every side, says the Lord.

The word that Jeremiah the prophet spoke to Baruch, the son of Neriah, when he had written these words in a book, from the mouth of Jeremiah, in the fourth year of Jehoiakim, the son of Josiah, the king of Judah, saying: Thus says the Lord, the God of Israel, to you, Baruch: You have said: 'Woe to me, a wretched man! For the Lord has added sorrow to my sorrow. I have labored in my groaning, and I have not found rest.' Thus says the Lord: 'Behold, I will deliver Pharaoh Hophra, the king of Egypt, into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, his enemy and the one who was seeking his life.'

The word that Jeremiah the prophet spoke to Jeremiah the prophet, concerning how Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, would arrive and strike the land of Egypt: Announce it to Egypt, and make it heard in Migdol, and let it resonate in Memphis and in Tahpanhes. Say this: Stand and prepare yourself! For the sword will devour everything around you.

Why have your strong ones decayed? They have not stood firm, because the Lord has overthrown them. He has multiplied those in ruin, and each man has fallen beside his neighbor. And they will say: 'Rise up, and let us return to our own people and to the land of our nativity, away from the face of the sword of the dove.' Call the name of Pharaoh, the king of Egypt: 'Time has brought tumult.' As I live, says the King, whose name is the Lord of hosts, just as Tabor is among the mountains, and just as Carmel is beside the sea, so will he come. Equip yourself for the transmigration, O daughter who inhabits Egypt. For Memphis will be in desolation, and it will be deserted and uninhabited. Egypt is like a stately and finely-formed calf. The one who will goad her will come from the north.

Her hired hands also, who move within her midst, like fatted calves have been turned back, and they have fled at the same time, and they are not able to stand firm. For the day of their passing away has overwhelmed them; it is the time of their visitation. Her voice will sound out like brass. For they will rush forward with an army, and with axes they will come against her, like those who chop wood.

They have cut down her forest, says the Lord, which was not able to be counted. They have been multiplied more than locusts, and they are without number. The daughter of Egypt has been confounded, and she has been delivered into the hand of the people of the north.

The Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, said: Behold, I will visit against the tumult of Alexandria, and against Pharaoh, and against Egypt, and against her gods, and against her kings, and against Pharaoh, and against those who trust in him. And I will give them over to the hand of those who seek their lives, and into the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, and into the hand of his servants. And after this, it shall be inhabited, just as in the former days, says the Lord. And as for you, my servant Jacob, you should not be afraid, and you should not dread, O Israel. For behold, I will bring your salvation from afar, and your offspring from the land of your captivity. And Jacob will return and have rest, and he will prosper. And there will be no one who may terrify him. And as for you, my servant Jacob, do not be afraid, says the Lord. For I am with you. For I will consume all the nations to which I have cast you out. Yet truly, I will not consume you. Instead,
I will chastise you in judgment, but neither will I spare you, as if you were innocent."

[Jeremiah 47] {47:1} The word of the Lord that came to Jeremiah, the prophet, against the Philistines, before Pharaoh struck Gaza. {47:2} Thus says the Lord: "Behold, waters will rise up from the north, and they will be like an inundating torrent, and they will cover the land and its plenitude, the city and its inhabitants. The men will cry out, and all the inhabitants of the land will wail, {47:3} before the uproar of a procession of weapons and of his soldiers, before the commotion of his four-horse chariots and the multitude of his wheels. The fathers have not looked back for the sons, because of feebleness of hands, {47:4} because of the arrival of the day on which all the Philistines will be devastated, and Tyre and Sidon will be destroyed, with all the rest of their helpers. For the Lord has depopulated the Philistines, the remnant of the island of Cappadocia. {47:5} Baldness has arrived over Gaza. Ashkelon has been silenced, along with the remnant of their valley. And how long will you continue to be cut down? {47:6} O sharp sword of the Lord, how long will you be without rest? Enter your sheath; be refreshed and silenced. {47:7} But how can it find rest, when the Lord has ordered it against Ashkelon and against its maritime regions, and when a task has been appointed to it there?"

[Jeremiah 48] {48:1} Against Moab, thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: "Woe upon Nebo! For it has been devastated and confounded. Kiriathaim has been seized; the strong one has been confounded and has trembled. {48:2} There is no longer any rejoicing in Moab over Heshbon. They have devised evil. "Come and let us destroy it as a nation.' Then you will be utterly silenced, and the sword will pursue you. {48:3} A voice of clamor from Horonaim: devastation and great destruction! {48:4} Moab has been crushed. Announce an outcry for her little ones. {48:5} For, along the ascent of Luhith, the mourner will ascend with weeping. For, on the descent of Horonaim, the enemies have heard the wailing of devastation. {48:6} Flee, save your lives! And you shall be like a saltcedar tree in the desert. {48:7} For because you have had faith in your fortifications and in your storehouses, you too will be seized. And Chemosh will go into captivity: his priests and his leaders together. {48:8} And the despoiler will overwhelm every city, and not a single city will be saved. And the valleys will perish, and the fields will be destroyed. For the Lord has spoken. {48:9} Give a blossom to Moab. For it will depart when it is blossoming. And its cities will become desolate and uninhabited. {48:10} Cursed is he who does the work of the Lord deceitfully. And cursed is he who prohibits his sword from blood. {48:11} Moab has been fertile from his youth, and he has rested amid his brood. And he has not been transferred from vessel to vessel, nor has he gone into the transmigration. Therefore, his taste has remained with him, and his scent has not changed. {48:12} Because of this, behold, the days are approaching, says the Lord, when I will send to him those who will line up and knock down his bottles, and they will knock him down and empty his vessels, and they will break their bottles against one another.

{48:13} And Moab will be confounded by Chemosh, just as the house of Israel was shamed by Bethel, in which they had faith. {48:14} How can you say: 'We are strong and robust men of battle?' {48:15} Moab has been devastated, and they have cut down her cities. And her elect young men have descended to slaughter. So says the King, whose name is the Lord of hosts. {48:16} The passing away of Moab draws near and arrives. Its evil will rush forward with great speed. {48:17} Console him, all you who surround him and all you who know his name. Say: 'How has the strong staff become broken, the glorious staff?' {48:18} Descend from your glory, and sit in thirst, O habitation of the daughter of Dibon! For the destroyer of Moab has ascended to you; he has dissipated your fortifications. {48:19} Stand in the way, and gaze out, O habitation of Aror! Question him who is fleeing, and say to him who has escaped: 'What has happened?' {48:20} Moab has been confounded, because he has been conquered. Wail and cry out! Announce it in Arnon: Moab has been devastated, {48:21} and judgment has arrived upon the land of the plains: upon Holon, and upon Jahzah, and upon Mephaath, {48:22} and judgment has arrived upon the land of the plains: upon Holon, and upon Dibon, and upon Nebo, and upon the house of Deblathaim, {48:23} and upon Kiriathaim, and upon the house of Gamul, and upon the house of Meon, {48:24} and upon Kerioth, and upon Bozrah, and upon all the cities of the land of Moab, those far away and those nearby. {48:25} The horn of Moab has been cut away, and his arm has been crushed, says the Lord. {48:26} Inebriate him, for he has lifted himself up against the Lord. And Moab will thrust his hand into his own vomit, and also now he himself will become a derision. {48:27} For Israel had been a derision to them. It was as if you had discovered him among thieves. Because of your own words, then, which you have spoken against him, you will be led away captive. {48:28} Relinquish the cities, and live upon a rock, O inhabitants of Moab, and be like a dove nesting at the mouth of an opening at the summit. {48:29} We have listened to the arrogance of Moab; he is very proud: his exaltation, and arrogance, and pride, and the loftiness of his heart. {48:30} I myself know, says the Lord, his boasting, and that his ability is not in accord with it, nor is it in accord with what he has been striving to do. {48:31} For this reason, I will wail over Moab, and I will cry out to all of Moab, to the men on the brick wall who are lamenting. {48:32} O vineyard of Sibmah, I will weep for you, with the mourning of Jazer. Your offshoots have crossed over the sea. They have reached even to the sea of Jazer. The despoiler has rushed over your harvest and your vintage. {48:33} Rejoicing and exultation has been taken away from Carmel and from the land of Moab. And I have taken the wine from the winepresses. The treader of grapes will no longer sing the usual rhythmic chant. {48:34} From the outcry of Heshbon, even to Elealeh and Jahzah, they have uttered their voice; from Zoar, even to Horonaim, like a three year old calf. So too, the waters of Nimrim will be very bad. {48:35} And I will take away from Moab, says the Lord, the one who makes offerings in exalted places, and the one who sacrifices to his gods. {48:36} Because of this, my heart will resound for Moab, like the pipes, and my heart will make a sound like the pipes for the men on the brick wall. For he has done more than he was able, yet still they have perished. {48:37} For every head will be bald, and every beard will be shaved. All the hands will be bound together, and there will be haircloth on every back. {48:38} Over all the rooftops of Moab, and in its streets, everyone will mourn. For I have crushed Moab like a useless vessel, says the Lord. {48:39} How was it conquered, so that they would wail? How is it that Moab has cast down his neck and been confounded? And Moab will be a derision and an example to everyone around him.” {48:40} Thus says the Lord: “Behold, he will fly like the eagle, and he will extend his wings to Moab. {48:41} Kerioth has been captured, and the fortifications have been taken. And in that day, the heart of the strong ones of Moab will be like the heart of a woman giving birth. {48:42} And Moab will cease to be a people. For he has been glorified against the Lord. {48:43} Terror and the pit and the snare will overwhelm you, O inhabitant of Moab, says the Lord. {48:44} Whoever flees from the terror will fall into the pit. And whoever climbs out of the pit will be seized by the snare. For I will lead over Moab the year of their visitation, says the Lord. {48:45} Those fleeing from the snare stood in the shadow of Heshbon. For a fire has gone forth from Heshbon, and a flame from the midst of Sihon, and it will devour the portion of Moab, and the top of the head of the sons of tumult. {48:46} Woe to you, O Moab! You have been ruined, O people of Chemosh! For your sons and your daughters have been taken into captivity. {48:47} But I will convert the captivity of Moab in the last days, says the Lord.” Such are the judgments of Moab thus far.

[Jeremiah 49] {49:1} Against the sons of Ammon. Thus says the Lord: “Does Israel have no sons? Or is there no heir for him? Then why has Milcom possessed the inheritance of Gad, and why have his people lived in his cities? {49:2} Therefore, behold, the days are approaching, says the Lord, when I will cause the noise of battle to be heard over Rabbah of the sons of Ammon. And it will be scattered into a tumult, and her daughters will be burned with fire. And Israel shall possess his offspring has been devastated, with his brothers and his neighbors, and he himself will not exist. {49:11} Leave his offspring has been devastated, with his brothers and his neighbors, and he himself will not exist. {49:12} Behold, those who judged that they would not drink the cup, will certainly drink. And so, will you be released as if you were innocent? You will not be released as if innocent. Instead, you shall certainly drink. {49:13} For I have sworn by myself, says the Lord, that Bozrah will be a desolation, and a disgrace, and a wasteland, and a curse. And all her cities will be a perpetual wilderness. {49:14} I have heard a report from the Lord, and an legate has been sent to the nations: ‘Gather yourselves together, and go forth against her, and let us rise up to battle.’ {49:15} For behold, I have made you little among the nations, contemptible among men. {49:16} Your arrogance has deceived you, by the pride of your heart, you who live in the caverns of the rock and who strive to take hold of the height of the hill. But even if you make your nest like that of an eagle, I will pull you down from there, says the Lord. {49:17} And Idumea will be a desert. Everyone who passes by it will be stupefied and will hiss over all its wounds. {49:18} Just as Sodom and Gomorrah and their neighbors were overthrown, says the Lord: there will not be a man living there, and no son of man will tend it. {49:19} Behold, he will ascend like a lion from the arrogance of the Jordan, against the robust beauty. For I will cause him to rush against her suddenly. And who will be the elect one, whom I may appoint over her? For who is like me? And who can endure me? And who is that pastor who can withstand my countenance? {49:20} Because of this, listen to the counsel of the Lord, which he has undertaken concerning Edom, and to his thoughts, which he has devised concerning the inhabitants of Teman. Certainly, the little ones of the flock will cast them down, unless they scatter them with their habituation. {49:21} The earth has been shaken at the noise of their destruction. The outcry of their voice has been heard at the Red Sea. {49:22} Behold, he will ascend like an eagle and will fly. And he will spread his wings over Bozrah. And in that day, the heart of the strong ones of Idumea will be like the heart of a woman giving birth.” {49:23} Against Damascus. “Hamath has been confounded, with Arpad. For they have heard a most grievous report. They have been stirred up like the sea. Because of anxiousness, they were not able to rest. {49:24} Damascus has been broken. She has been turned to flight. Trembling has taken hold of her. Anguish and sorrows have seized her, like a woman giving birth. {49:25} How could they have abandoned the praiseworthy city, the city of rejoicing? {49:26} For this reason, her young men will fall in her streets. And all the men of battle will be silenced in that day, says the Lord of hosts. {49:27} And I will kindle a fire at the wall of Damascus, and it will devour the defensive walls of Ben-hadad.” {49:28} Against Kedar and against the kingdoms of Hazor, which Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, has struck down. Thus says the Lord: “Rise up and ascend to Kedar, and lay waste to the sons of the East. {49:29} They will seize their tabernacles and their flocks. And they will take for themselves their tents, and all their vessels, and their camels. And they will call down a terror upon them on every side. {49:30} Flee, go away urgently! Sit in deep pits, you who inhabit Hazor, says the Lord. For Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, has undertaken a counsel against you, and he has devised plans against you. {49:31} Rise up, and ascend to a nation that is quiet and lives in confidence, says the Lord. They have neither gates nor bars. They dwell alone. {49:32} And their camels will be a spoil, and the multitude of their cattle will be a prey. And I will disperse, into every wind, those who have shaved their hair. And from all their confines,
I will lead great destruction over them, says the Lord. {49:33} And Hazor will be a habitation for serpents, deserted even unto eternity. No man will abide there, nor will a son of man tend it.” {49:34} The word of the Lord that came to Jeremiah the prophet against Elam, in the beginning of the reign of Zedekiah, the king of Judah, saying: {49:35} “Thus says the Lord of hosts: Behold, I will break the bow of Elam, and the summit of their strength. {49:36} And I will lead the four winds over Elam, from the four corners of heaven. And I will scatter them into all these winds. And there will be no nation to which the fugitives of Elam will not travel. {49:37} And I will cause Elam to be terrified before their enemies and in the sight of those who seek their life. And I will lead an evil over them, the wrath of my fury, says the Lord. And I will send the sword after them, until I consume them. {49:38} And I will set my throne in Elam, and I will perish the kings and princes from there, says the Lord. {49:39} But in the last days, I will cause the captives of Elam to return, says the Lord.”

[Jeremiah 50] {50:1} The word that the Lord has spoken about Babylon and about the land of the Chaldeans, by the hand of Jeremiah the prophet. {50:2} “Announce it among the Gentiles, and make it known. Lift up a sign. Proclaim it and do not conceal it. Say this: ‘Babylon has been captured. Bel has been confounded. Merodach has been conquered. Their graven things have been confounded. Their idols have not survived.’ {50:3} For a nation has ascended against her from the north, which will set her land in desolation. And there will be no one who may live within it, from man even to beast. For they have been removed and have gone away. {50:4} In those days and in that time, says the Lord, the sons of Israel will advance, and the sons of Judah together. Weeping as they walk, they will hurry on, and they will seek the Lord their God. {50:5} They will ask the way to Zion; Weeping as they walk, they will hurry on, and they will seek the Lord their God. {50:6} My people have become a lost flock. Their shepherds have led them astray and have caused them to wander in the mountains. They have crossed from mountain to hill. They have forgotten their resting place. {50:7} All whom they have found, they have devoured. And their enemies have said: ‘We have not sinned. For it is they who have sinned against the Lord, the beauty of justice, and against the Lord, the hope of their fathers.’ {50:8} Withdraw from the midst of Babylon, and go forth from the land of the Chaldeans. And be like young goats before the flock. {50:9} For behold, I am raising up, and I will lead against Babylon, a congregation of great nations from the land of the north. And they will be prepared against her, and from there she will be taken. Their arrows, like those of a strong man, a killer, will not return empty. {50:10} And Chaldea will become a prey. All who lay waste to her will be filled, says the Lord. {50:11} For you exult and you speak great things, plundering my inheritance. For you have spread out like calves upon the grass, and you have bellowed like bulls. {50:12} Your mother has been exceedingly shamed, and she who bore you has become equal to the dust. Behold, she will be the last among the nations, a desert, impassable and dry. {50:13} By the wrath of the Lord, it will not be inhabited. Instead, it will be entirely desolate. Every one who passes by Babylon will be stupefied and will hiss over all her wounds. {50:14} Prepare yourselves against Babylon, on every side, all you who bend the bow. Make war against her! You should not spare the arrows, for she has sinned against the Lord. {50:15} Cry out against her! For where she has put forth a hand, her foundations have fallen, her walls have been destroyed. For it is the vengeance of the Lord. Take vengeance against her! Just as she has done, do so to her. {50:16} Destroy the founder from Babylon, and the one who holds the sickle in the time of harvest. Before the face of the sword of the dove, each one will turn back to his people, and every one will flee to his own land. {50:17} Israel is a scattered flock. The lions have driven him away. First, the king of Assyria devoured him. And last, this Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, has taken away his bones. {50:18} Because of this, thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: Behold, I will visit the king of Babylon and his land, just as I have visited the king of Assyria. {50:19} And I will lead back Israel to his habitation. And he will pasture on Carmel and Bashan, and his soul will be satiated at mount Ephraim and Gilead. {50:20} In those days and at that time, says the Lord, the iniquity of Israel will be sought, and there will be none. And the sin of Judah will be sought, and none will be found. For I will be forgiving to them, whom I will leave behind. {50:21} Ascend against the land of the rulers, and visit against its inhabitants! Scatter and destroy whatever has been left behind them, says the Lord, and act according to all that I have instructed you. {50:22} A voice of war in the land, and great destruction! {50:23} How has the mallet of the entire earth been broken and crushed? How has Babylon been turned into a desert among the nations? {50:24} I have ensnared you, and you have been captured, O Babylon, and you did not realize it. You have been discovered and seized, because you provoked the Lord. {50:25} The Lord has opened his storehouse, and he has brought forth the instruments of his wrath. For there is work for the Lord, the God of hosts, within the land of the Chaldeans. {50:26} Advance against her from the furthest regions! Open, so that those who will trample her may go out! Take stones from the road, and gather them into piles, and destroy her. And let there be nothing left of her. {50:27} Scatter all her strong ones. Let them descend to the slaughter. Woe to them! For their day has arrived, the time of their visitation. {50:28} It is the voice of those who are fleeing and of those who have escaped from the land of Babylon: to announce in Zion the revenge of the Lord our God, the revenge of his Temple. {50:29} Announce it to the many in Babylon, to all who bend the bow. Stand together against her all around, and let no one escape. Repay her according to her work. In accord with all that she has done, do to her. For she has raised herself up against the Lord, against the Holy One of Israel. {50:30} For this reason, her young men will fall in her streets. And all her men of war will be silenced, in that day, says the Lord. {50:31} Behold, I am against you, O proud one, says the Lord, the God of hosts. For your day has arrived, the time of your visitation. {50:32} And the proud one will fall and be ruined. And there will be no one who may lift him up. And I will kindle a fire in his cities, and it will devour everything around him.” {50:33} Thus says the Lord of hosts: “The sons of Israel and the sons of Judah have endured calumny together. All who have seized them are holding them and refusing to release them. {50:34} Their redeemer is strong. The Lord of hosts is his name. He will defend their case in judgment, so that he may terrify the land and disturb the inhabitants of Babylon. {50:35} A sword is for the Chaldeans, says the Lord, and for the inhabitants of Babylon, and for her leaders, and for her wise ones. {50:36} A sword is for her diviners, who will be fooled. A sword is for her strong ones, who will be afraid. {50:37} A sword is for their horses, and for their chariots, and for all the common people who are in her midst. And they will be like women. A sword is for her storehouses, and they will be plundered. {50:38} A drought is over her waters, and they will be dried up. For it is a land of graven images, and they glory in portents. {50:39} Because of this, dragons will live there with the fig façuns, and ostriches will live in it. And it will no longer be inhabited, even in perpetuity, nor will it be raised up, even from generation to generation. {50:40} Just as the Lord overthrew Sodom and Gomorrah, and their neighboring towns, says the Lord, no man will live there, and a son of man will not tend it. {50:41} Behold, a sword is for the Chaldeans, says the Lord, and for the inhabitants of Babylon. {50:42} They will take up the bow and the shield. They are cruel and merciless. Their voice will sound out, like the sea, and they will ride upon horses, like a man prepared for battle against you. O daughter of Babylon. {50:43} The king of Babylon has heard the report about them, and his hands have been weakened. Anguish has overtaken him, like the pains of a woman giving birth. {50:44} Behold, he will ascend like a lion from the arrogance of the Jordan to the robust beauty. For I will cause him to rush upon her suddenly. And who will be the elect one, whom I may appoint over her? For who is like me? And who can endure me? And who is that pastor who can withstand my countenance?” {50:45} Because of this, listen to the counsel of the Lord, which he has conceived in his mind against Babylon, and to his thoughts, which he has devised against the land of the Chaldeans: “Certainly the little ones of the flocks will pull them down, unless their habitation will have been destroyed with them. {50:46} At the voice of the captivity of Babylon, the earth has been moved, and an outcry has been heard among the nations.”

[Jeremiah 51] {51:1} Thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will raise up, over Babylon and over its inhabitants, who have lifted up their heart against me, something like a pestilent wind. {51:2} And I will send winnowers into Babylon, and they will winnow her, and they will demolish her land. For they will overwhelm her from every side in the day of her affliction. {51:3} Let him who draws the bow, not draw his bow. And let him who wears armor, not rise up. Do not spare your young men. Destroy her entire military. {51:4} And the slain will fall in the land of the Chaldeans, and the wounded in its regions. {51:5} Yet Israel and Judah have not been widowed by their God, the Lord of hosts, though their land has been filled with transgression against the Holy One of Israel. {51:6} Flee from the midst of Babylon! And let each one save his own life. Do not be silent about her iniquity. For it is the time of revenge from the Lord. He himself will repay her, in her turn. {51:7} Babylon is a gold cup in the hand of the Lord, inebriating the entire earth. The nations have drunk from her wine, and therefore they have staggered. {51:8} Suddenly, Babylon has fallen and been crushed. Wail over her! Take a balm to her pain, if perhaps she may be healed.” {51:9} “We would have cured Babylon, but there is no cure. Let us abandon her, and let each one of us go to his own land. For her judgment has reached even to the heavens, and has been lifted up even to the clouds. {51:10} The Lord has brought forth our justices. Come and let us describe in Zion the work of the Lord our God.” {51:11} Sharpen the arrows, fill the quivers. The Lord has raised up the spirit of the kings of the Medes. And his mind is against Babylon, so that he may destroy her. For this is the vengeance of the Lord, the vengeance of his temple. {51:12} Upon the walls of Babylon, lift up a sign. Increase the watch! Rouse the watchmen! Prepare ambushes! For the Lord has planned and has accomplished all that he has spoken, against the inhabitants of Babylon. {51:13} You who live above many waters, rich in treasures: your end has arrived, your measure has been cut short. {51:14} The Lord of hosts has sworn by himself, saying: “For I will fill you with men as with locusts, and they will sing a rhythmic chant against you.” {51:15} The One who made the earth by his strength, who prepared the world by his wisdom, and who stretched out the heavens by his prudence: {51:16} when he utters his voice, the waters will be multiplied in the heavens. The One who lifts up the clouds from the ends of the earth: he has turned lightning into rain, and he has brought forth wind from his storehouses. {51:17} Each man has become foolish before his own knowledge. Each sculptor has been confounded by his own sculpture. For what he has formed of them is a lie, and there is no spirit in them. {51:18} They are empty works, deserving of ridicule. In the time of their visitation, they will perish. {51:19} The portion of Jacob is not like their portion. For the One who made all things is his portion, and Israel is the scep ter of his inheritance. The Lord of hosts is his name: {51:20} “For me, you strike together the instruments of war; and with you, I will strike together nations; and with you, I will scatter the kingdoms. {51:21} And with you, I will strike together the horse and his rider; and with you, I will strike together the chariot and its rider. {51:22} And with you, I will strike together man and woman; and with you, I will strike together the old man and the boy; and with you, I will strike together the young man and the virgin. {51:23} And with you, I will strike together the pastor and his flock; and with you, I will strike together the farmer and his yoke of oxen; and with you, I will strike together military leaders and civil leaders. {51:24} And I will repay Babylon and all the inhabitants of Chaldea for all their evil that they have done in Zion, before your eyes, says the Lord. {51:25} Behold, I am against you, you pestilent mountain, says the Lord, for you are corrupting the entire earth. And I will extend my hand over you, and I will roll you down from the rocks, and I will make you into a burning mountain. {51:26} And they will not take from you a stone for the corner, nor a stone for the foundations. Instead, you will be destroyed unto eternity,” says the Lord. {51:27} Lift up a sign in the land! Sound the trumpet among the nations! Sanctify the nations against her. Announce against her the kings of Ararat, Minni, and Ashkenaz. Number against her Taphsars. Lead in the horse, like the stinging locust. {51:28} Sanctify the nations against her: the kings of Media, their military leaders, and all their civil leaders, and the entire land under their authority. {51:29} And the earth will be shaken and will be disturbed. For the plan of the Lord against Babylon will awaken, so that he may make the land of Babylon desolate and uninhabitable. {51:30} The strong ones of Babylon have ceased to do battle.
They have lived in fortresses. Their health has been devoured, and they have become like women. Her tabernacles have been set ablaze; her bars have been broken. {51:31} Runner will go forth to meet runner, and messenger will meet messenger, so as to tell the king of Babylon that his city has been captured, from one end to the other, {51:32} and that the fords were seized in advance, and that the marshes have been burned with fire, and that the men of war have been set in disarray. {51:33} For thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel: “The daughter of Babylon is like a threshing floor. This is the time of her threshing. A little while longer, and the time of her harvest will arrive.” {51:34} “Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, has consumed me, he has devoured me. He has made me like an empty vessel. He has swallowed me like a dragon. He has filled his belly with my tender ones, and he has cast me out. {51:35} This iniquity is against me, and so my flesh is upon Babylon,” says the habitation of Zion. “And my blood is upon the inhabitants of Chaldea,” says Jerusalem. {51:36} Because of this, thus says the Lord: “Behold, I will judge your case, and I will avenge your vengeance, and I will make her sea into a desert, and I will dry up her spring. {51:37} And Babylon will become a tumult, the habitation of dragons, an astonishment, and a hissing, because there is no inhabitant. {51:38} They will roar together, like lions, they will shake their manes, like young lions. {51:39} In their heat, I will give them a drink, and I will inebriate them, so that they become drowsy, and sleep an everlasting sleep, and do not rise up, says the Lord. {51:40} I will lead them away, like lambs to the slaughter, and like rams with young goats. {51:41} How was Sesac captured, and how was the renowned one of all the earth seized? How has Babylon become an astonishment among the nations? {51:42} The sea has ascended over Babylon; she has been covered by the multitude of its waves. {51:43} Her cities have become an astonishment, an uninhabited and desolate land, a land in which no one may live, nor may a son of man pass through it. {51:44} And I will visit against Bel in Babylon, and I will cast from his mouth what he has swallowed. And the nations will no longer flow together before him. For even the wall of Babylon will also fall. {51:45} Go forth from her midst, my people, so that each one may save his life from the wrath of the Lord. {51:46} For otherwise, your heart may faint, and you may be afraid at the news that is heard in the land. And the news will arrive within a year, and after that year more news will arrive. And iniquity will be in the land, and one ruler will be over another ruler. {51:47} Because of this, behold, the days are approaching, when I will visit against her graven images, and within all her land the wounded will groan. {51:53} If Babylon were to ascend to heaven, and establish her strength on high, her despisers would go forth from me, says the Lord.” {51:54} A voice of outrcy from Babylon, and great destruction from the land of the Chaldeans! {51:55} For the Lord has despoiled Babylon, and he has perished the great voice from her. And their wave will make a sound like many waters. Their voice has uttered a noise. {51:56} For the despoiler has overwhelmed her, that is, Babylon, and her strong ones have been apprehended, and their bow has been weakened. For the Lord, the powerful revenger, will certainly repay. {51:57} “And I will inebriate her leaders, and her wise ones, and her military rulers, and her civil rulers, and her strong ones. And they will sleep an everlasting sleep, and they will not awaken,” says the King: the Lord of hosts is his name. {51:58} Thus says the Lord of hosts: “That very wide wall of Babylon will be utterly overturned, and her exalted gates will be burned with fire, and the labors of the people will be as nothing, and the labors of the nations will be sent into the fire and will perish.” {51:59} The word that Jeremiah, the prophet, instructed to Seraiah, the son of Neriah, the son of Mahseiah, when he traveled with king Zedekiah into Babylon, in the fourth year of his reign. Now Seraiah was the leader of the prophets. {51:60} And Jeremiah wrote in one book all the evil that was to overwhelm Babylon; all these words were written against Babylon. {51:61} And Jeremiah said to Seraiah: “When you will enter into Babylon, and you will see and read all these words, {51:62} you will say: ‘O Lord, you have spoken against this place so that you may destroy it, so that there would not be anyone, from man even to beast, who may live in it, and so that it may be desolate forever.’ ” {51:63} And when you have completed reading this book, you will tie a stone to it, and you will cast it into the midst of the Euphrates. {51:64} And you will say: ‘So shall Babylon be submerged! And she will not rise up before the face of the affliction that I will lead over her. And she will be broken.’ ”

The words of Jeremiah thus far.

[Jeremiah 52] {52:1} Zedekiah was a son of twenty-one years when he first began to reign. And he reigned for eleven years in Jerusalem. And the name of his mother was Hamutal, the daughter of Jeremiah from Libnah. {52:2} And he did what was evil in the eyes of the Lord, in accord with all that Jehoiakim had done. {52:3} And so the fury of the Lord was toward Jerusalem, and toward Judah, even until he cast them away from his face. And Zedekiah drew away from the king of Babylon. {52:4} And it happened that, in the ninth year of his reign, in the tenth month, on the tenth of the month, Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, he and his entire army, came against Jerusalem. And they besieged it, and they built fortifications against it, on every side. {52:5} And the city was besieged, until the eleventh year of king Zedekiah. {52:6} Then, in the fourth month, on the ninth of the month, a famine gripped the city. And there was no nourishment for the people of the land. {52:7} And the city was broken, and all the men of war fled, and they departed from the city at night by way of the gate which is between the two walls, and which leads to the king’s garden, while the Chaldeans were besieging the city all around, and they went away by the road that leads to the wilderness. {52:8} But the army of the Chaldeans pursued the king. And they overtook Zedekiah in the desert which is near Jericho.
And all of his companions fled away from him. {52:9} And when they had captured the king, they led him away to the king of Babylon at Riblah, which is in the land of Hamath. And he spoke a judgment against him. {52:10} And the king of Babylon cut the throats of the sons of Zedekiah before his eyes, and he also killed all the leaders of Judah at Riblah. {52:11} And he plucked out the eyes of Zedekiah, and he bound him with shackles, and the king of Babylon led him away to Babylon, and he placed him in the prison house, even until the day of his death. {52:12} Then, in the fifth month, on the tenth of the month, which is the nineteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, Nebuzaradan, the leader of the military, arrived. And he was standing before the king of Babylon at Jerusalem. {52:13} And he set fire to the house of the Lord, and to the house of the king, and to all the houses of Jerusalem. And every great house he burned with fire. {52:14} And the entire army of the Chaldeans, who were with the chief of the military, destroyed the entire wall all around Jerusalem. {52:15} Then Nebuzaradan, the leader of the military, took away some of the poor people, and some of the rest of the common people, who had remained in the city, and some of the fugitives, who had fled over to the king of Babylon, and the rest of the multitude. {52:16} Yet truly, some of the poor of the land, Nebuzaradan, the leader of the military, left behind as vinedressers and farmers. {52:17} The Chaldeans also broke apart the bronze pillars that were in the house of the Lord, and the bases, and the sea of brass that was in the house of the Lord. And they took all the brass of these things to Babylon. {52:18} And they took the cooking pots, and the hooks, and the psalteries, and the bowls, and the little mortars, and all the bronze vessels that had been used in the ministry. {52:19} And the chief of the military took the water pots, and the censers, and the pitchers, and the basins, and the lampstands, and the mortars, and the little cups, whatever was gold, for the gold, and whatever was silver, for the silver, {52:20} as well as the two pillars, and the one brass sea, and the twelve oxen of brass that were under the bases, which king Solomon had made in the house of the Lord. There was no weight of brass left behind out of all these vessels. {52:21} Now concerning the pillars, one pillar was eighteen cubits high, and a cord of twelve cubits encircled it. Moreover, its thickness was four fingers, and the interior was hollow. {52:22} And heads of brass were upon both. And the height of one head was five cubits. And little nets with pomegranates were upon the heads all around, all of brass. The second pillar was similar, and the pomegranates. {52:23} And there were ninety-six pomegranates hanging down; and there were one hundred pomegranates in all, surrounded by the little nets. {52:24} And the chief of the military took Seraiah, the first priest, and Zephaniah, the second priest, and the three keepers of the vestibule. {52:25} He also took from the city one eunuch who was in charge of the men of war, and seven men among those who served before the face of the king, who were found in the city, and a scribe, a leader of the military, who tested the new recruits, and sixty men from the people of the land, who were found in the midst of the city. {52:26} Then Nebuzaradan, the chief of the military, took them, and he led them to the king of Babylon at Riblah. {52:27} And the king of Babylon struck them and put them to death at Riblah, in the land of Hamath. And Judah was carried away from his land. {52:28} This is the people whom Nebuchadnezzar carried away: in the seventh year, three thousand and twenty-three Jews; {52:29} in the eighteenth year of Nebuchadnezzar, eight hundred thirty-two souls from Jerusalem; {52:30} in the twenty-third year of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuzaradan, the chief of the military, carried away of the Jews seven hundred forty-five souls. Therefore, all the souls were four thousand six hundred. {52:31} And it happened that, in the thirty-seventh year of the transmigration of Jehoiachin, the king of Judah, in the twelfth month, on the twenty-fifth of the month, Evilmerodach, the king of Babylon, in the very first year of his reign, lifted up the head of Jehoiachin, the king of Judah, and he brought him out of the prison house. {52:32} And he spoke with him for good, and he set his throne above the thrones of the kings who were after him in Babylon. {52:33} And he changed his prison garments, and he ate bread in his sight always, all the days of his life. {52:34} And for his meals, a continual provision was allotted to him by the king of Babylon, a measure for every single day, until the day of his death, all the days of his life.

The Lamentations of Jeremiah

Lamentations Prologue
{P:1} And it happened that, after Israel was driven into captivity, and Jerusalem was deserted, {P:2} the prophet Jeremiah sat weeping, and he wailed this lamentation in Jerusalem. {P:3} And sighing with a bitter soul, and mourning, he said:

Lamentations 1
{1:1} ALEPH. O how a city once filled with people now sits alone! The Governess of the Gentiles has become like a widow. The Prince of the provinces has been placed under tribute. {1:2} BETH. Weeping, she has wept through the night, and her tears are on her cheeks. There is no one to be a comfort to her and to all her beloved. All her friends have spurned her, and they have become her enemies. {1:3} GHIMEL. Judah has migrated because of affliction and great servitude. She has lived among the nations and not found rest. All of her persecutors have apprehended her, amid torments. {1:4} DALETH. The pathways of Zion mourn, because there are none who approach for the solemnity. All her gates are destroyed. Her priests groan. Her virgins are filthy. And she is overwhelmed with bitterness. {1:5} HE. Her enemies have been made her leaders; her adversaries have been enriched. For the Lord has spoken against her, because of the multitude of her iniquities. Her little ones have been led into captivity before the face of the tribulator. {1:6} VAU. And all her elegance has departed, with bitterness. {1:7} ZAIN. Jerusalem has remembered the days of her affliction and great servitude. She has lived among the nations and not found rest. All of her persecutors have apprehended her, amid torments. {1:8} HETH. Jerusalem has sinned a grievous sin. Because of this, she has become unstable. All who glorified her have spurned her, because they have looked upon her disgrace. Then she groaned and turned away again. {1:9} TETH. Her filth is on her feet, and her end has not been remembered.
She has been vehemently put down, having no consolation. O Lord, look upon my affliction, for the adversary has been lifted up. {1:10} JOD. The enemy has sent his hand against all her desirable ones. For she has watched the Gentiles enter her sanctuary, even though you instructed that they should not enter into your church. {1:11} CAPH. All her people are groaning and seeking bread. They have given up whatever was precious in exchange for food, so as to remain alive. See, O Lord, and consider, for I have become vile. {1:12} LAMED. O all you who pass by the way, attend, and see if there is any sorrow like my sorrow. For he has made me a vintage, just as the Lord has spoken in the day of his furious anger. {1:13} MEM. From on high, he has sent fire into my bones, and he has educated me. He has spread a net for my feet; he has turned me back. He has placed me in desolation, consumed by grief, all day long. {1:14} NUN. Vigilant is the yoke of my iniquities. They have been folded together in his hand and imposed on my neck. My virtue has been weakened. The Lord has given me into a hand, out of which I am not able to rise. {1:15} SAMECH. The Lord is just; for it is I who has provoked his mouth to wrath. I beg all people to listen and to see my sorrow. My virgins and my youths have gone into captivity. {1:19} COPH. I called for my friends, but they deceived me. My priests and my elders have been consumed in the city. For they were seeking their food, so as to revive their life. {1:20} RES. See, O Lord, that I am in tribulation. My bowels have been disturbed, my heart has been subverted within me, for I am filled with bitterness. Outside, the sword puts to death, and at home there is a similar death. {1:21} SIN. They have heard that I groan and that there is no one to console me. All my enemies have heard of my misfortune; they have rejoiced that you caused it. You have brought in a day of consolation, and so they shall become like me. {1:22} THAU. Let all their evil enter before you. And make vintage of them, just as you made vintage of me, because of all my iniquities. For my sighs are many, and my heart is grieving.

[Lamentations 2] {2:1} ALEPH. O how the Lord has covered the daughter of Zion with gloom in his fury! O how he has thrown down from heaven to earth the famous one of Israel, and he has not remembered his footstool in the day of his fury. {2:2} BETH. The Lord has cast down, and he has not been lenient, with all the beauties of Jacob. In his fury, he has destroyed the fortifications of the virgin of Judah, and he has thrown them down to the ground. He has polluted the kingdom and its leaders. {2:3} GHIMEL. In the anger of his fury, he has broken the entire horn of Israel. He has drawn back his right hand before the face of the enemy. And he has kindled within Jacob a flaming fire, devouring all around. {2:4} DALETH. He has bent his bow like an enemy. He has fixed his right hand like an adversary. And he has cut down all that was beautiful to behold in the tabernacle of the daughter of Zion. He has poured out his indignation like fire. {2:5} HE. The Lord has become like an enemy. He has thrown down Israel. He has thrown down all of his defenses. He has torn apart his fortifications. And he has filled the daughter of Judah with humbled men and humbled women. {2:6} VAU. And he has torn apart her tent like a garden. He has demolished her tabernacle. In Zion, the Lord has delivered feast and Sabbath into oblivion, and king and priest into disgrace, and into the indignation of his fury. {2:7} ZAIN. The Lord has pushed away his own altar. He has cursed his own sanctuary. He has delivered the walls of its towers into the hand of the enemy. They have made a noise in the house of the Lord, as if on the day of a solemnity. {2:8} HETH. The Lord has decided to tear down the wall of the daughter of Zion. He has stretched out his measuring line, and he has not turn away his hand from perdition. And the rampart has mourned, and with the wall it has been torn apart. {2:9} TETH. Her gates have been buried in the ground. He has ruined and crushed its bars. Her king and her princes are with the Gentiles. There is no law, and her prophets have found no vision from the Lord. {2:10} JOD. The elders of the daughter of Zion have become idle; they sit on the ground. They have sprinkled their heads with ashes. They have been wrapped with haircloth. The virgins of Jerusalem have cast their heads down to the ground. {2:11} CAPH. My eyes have exhausted their tears. My internal organs have become disturbed. My liver has been poured out on the earth, over the grief of the daughter of my people, when the little ones and the infants passed away in the streets of the town.

{2:12} LAMED. They said to their mothers, “Where is the wheat and the wine?” when they fell like the wounded in the streets of the city, when they breathed out their lives into the streets of the town. {2:13} AIN. For this I weep, and my eyes bring forth water. For the consoler has been far away from me, changing my soul. My sons have become lost, because the enemy has prevailed. {2:14} HE. The Lord has become like an enemy. He has fixed his right hand like an adversary. And he has cut down all that was beautiful to behold in the tabernacle of the daughter of Zion. He has poured out his indignation like fire. {2:15} SAMECH. The Lord has become like an enemy. He has thrown down Israel. He has thrown down all of his defenses. He has torn apart his fortifications. And he has filled the daughter of Judah with humbled men and humbled women. {2:16} PHE. All your enemies have opened their mouth over you. They have hissed and gnashed their teeth, and they said: “We will devour her. Yes, this is the day we waited for. We have found it, we have seen it.” {2:17} AIN. The Lord has done what he decided to do. He has fulfilled his word, which he instructed since the days of antiquity. He has destroyed, and he has not been lenient, and he has caused the enemy to rejoice over you, and he has exalted the horn of your adversaries. {2:18} SADE. Their heart cried out to the Lord from the walls of the daughter of Zion. Let tears run down like a torrent throughout the day and the night. Do not give rest to yourself, and do not allow the pupil of your eye to cease. {2:19} COPH. Rise up. Give praise in the night, in the first of the watches. Pour out your heart like water before the sight of the Lord. Lift up your hands to him on behalf of the souls of your little ones, who have passed away from famine.
at the head of all the crossroads. {2:20} RES. O Lord, see and consider those whom you have made into a such vintage. So then, shall women eat their own fruit, little ones measured by the palm of the hand? Shall priest and prophet be killed in the sanctuary of the Lord? {2:21} SIN. The boy and the old man lie down on the ground outside. My virgins and my youths have fallen by the sword. You have slain them in the day of your fury. You have struck down, and you have not shown pity. {2:22} THAU. You have called, as if to a day of solemnity, those who would terrify me all around. And there was no one, in the day of the fury of the Lord, who escaped or was left behind. Those whom I educated and nourished, my enemy has consumed.

[Lamentations 3] {3:1} ALEPH. I am a man watching my own poverty by the rod of his indignation. {3:2} ALEPH. He has driven me and led me into darkness, and not into light. {3:3} ALEPH. Against me only, he has turned and turned again his hand, all day long. {3:4} BETH. My skin and my flesh, he has made old; he has crushed my bones. {3:5} BETH. He has built all around me, and he has encircled me with gall and hardship. {3:6} BETH. He has gathered me into darkness, like those who are forever dead. {3:7} GHIMEL. He has built against me all around, so that I may not depart. He has increased the burden of my confinement. {3:8} GHIMEL. Yet even when I cry out and beg, he excludes my prayer. {3:9} GHIMEL. He has enclosed my ways with square stones; he has subverted my paths. {3:10} DALETH. He has become to me like a bear lying in ambush, like a lion in hiding. {3:11} DALETH. He has subverted my paths, and he has broken me. He has placed me in desolation. {3:12} DALETH. He has bent his bow, and he has positioned me like a target for his arrows. {3:13} HE. He has shot into my kidneys the daughters of his quiver. {3:14} HE. I have become a derision to all my people, their song throughout the day. {3:15} HE. He has filled me with bitterness; he has inebriated me with wormwood. {3:16} VAU. And he has broken each one of my teeth; he has fed me with ashes. {3:17} VAU. And my soul has been driven away from peace; I have forgotten what is good. {3:18} VAU. And I said, "My end and my hope from the Lord has perished." {3:19} ZAIN. Remember my poverty and my transgression, the wormwood and the gall. {3:20} ZAIN. I will call to mind the past, and my soul shall languish within me. {3:21} ZAIN. These recollections are in my heart; therefore, I shall hope. {3:22} HETH. By the mercies of the Lord, we are not consumed. For his compassion has not passed away. {3:23} HETH. I know it at first light; great is your faithfulness. {3:24} HETH. "The Lord is my portion," said my soul. Because of this, I will wait for him. {3:25} TETH. The Lord is good to those who hope in him, to the soul that seeks him. {3:26} TETH. It is good to stand ready in silence for the salvation of God. {3:27} TETH. It is good for a man, when he has carried the yoke from his youth. {3:28} JOD. He shall sit solitary and silent. For he has lifted it upon himself. {3:29} JOD. He shall place his mouth in the dirt, if perhaps there may be hope. {3:30} JOD. He shall give his cheek to those who strike him; he shall be saturated with reproaches. {3:31} CAPH. For the Lord will not rebuke forever. {3:32} CAPH. For, if he has cast down, he will also have compassion, according to the multitude of his mercies. {3:33} CAPH. For he has not humiliated from his heart, nor has he thrown aside the sons of men, {3:34} LAMED. as if to crush under his feet all the prisoners of the land, {3:35} LAMED. as if to turn aside the judgment of a man in the sight of the presence of the Most High, {3:36} LAMED. as if to pervert a man in his judgment: the Lord does not do this. {3:37} MEM. Who is this, who said to do what the Lord did not command? {3:38} MEM. Does not both misfortune and good proceed from the mouth of the Most High? {3:39} MEM. Why has a living man murmured, a man suffering for his sins? {3:40} NUN. Let us examine our ways, and seek out, and return to the Lord. {3:41} NUN. Let us lift up our hearts, with our hands, toward the Lord in the heavens. {3:42} NUN. We have acted sinfully, and we have provoked to wrath. About this, you are relentless. {3:43} SAMECH. You have covered us in your fury, and you have struck us. You have killed, and have not spared. {3:44} SAMECH. You have set a cloud opposite you, lest our prayer pass through. {3:45} SAMECH. In the midst of the peoples, you have uprooted me and cast me out. {3:46} PHE. All our enemies have opened their mouths over us. {3:47} PHE. Prediction has become for us a dread, and a snare, and a grief. {3:48} PHE. My eye has brought forth streams of water at the contrition of the daughter of my people. {3:49} AIN. My eye has been afflicted, and it has not been quieted, because there would be no rest {3:50} AIN. until the Lord looked down and saw from the heavens. {3:51} AIN. My eye has exhausted my soul over every one of the daughters of my city. {3:52} SADE. My enemies have chased me, and they have caught me like a bird, without reason. {3:53} SADE. My life has fallen into a pit, and they have placed a stone over me. {3:54} SADE. The waters have flooded over my head. I said, "I am lost." {3:55} COPH. I called upon your name, O Lord, from the furthest pit. {3:56} COPH. You have heard my voice. Do not turn away your ear from my sobbing and my cries. {3:57} COPH. You drew near in the daytime, when I called upon you. You said, "Fear not." {3:58} RES. You have judged, O Lord, the case of my soul. You are the Redeemer of my life. {3:59} RES. You have seen, O Lord, their iniquity against me. Judge my case. {3:60} RES. You have seen all their fury, every one of their thoughts is against me. {3:61} SIN. You have heard our reproach, O Lord, all their thoughts are against me. {3:62} SIN. The lips of those who rise up against me, and their meditations, are against me all day long. {3:63} SIN. Watch their sitting down and their rising up: I am their psalm. {3:64} THAU. You shall pay a recompense to them, O Lord, according to the works of their hands. {3:65} THAU. You shall give them a heavy shield of the heart: your hardship. {3:66} THAU. You shall pursue them in fury, and you shall destroy them under the heavens, O Lord.

[Lamentations 4] {4:1} ALEPH. O how the gold has become dulled, the finest color has been altered, the stones of the sanctuary have been scattered at the head of every street. {4:2} BETH. The famous sons of Zion, and those clothed with the foremost gold: how they have become like earthen vessels, the work of the hands of a potter. {4:3} GHIMEL. Yet even savages expose their breast and give milk to their young. But the daughter of my people is cruel, like the ostrich in the desert. {4:4} DALETH. The tongue of the infant adheres to his palate out of thirst. The little ones have asked for bread, and there was no one to break it for them.
The cup will also pass to you; you will be inebriated as well. We will live among the Gentiles. {4:21} Be glad and a father; our mothers are like widows. {5:4} We paid for our houses to outsiders. {5:3} We have become orphans without.*

Remember, O Lord, what has been uncovered your sins. He has visited your iniquity, O daughter of Edom; O daughter of Zion. He will no longer send you away to captivity. He has no longer dwelt among them.

Our inheritance has been turned over to foreigners; our days have been completed, for our end draws near. Our footsteps have slipped on the paths of our own streets. Our eyes have been darkened: for this reason, our heart became gloomy; for this reason, our eyes have been darkened: {5:17} Because of this, our heart became gloomy; for this reason, our eyes have been darkened: {5:18} because of mount Zion, because it was ruined. Foxes have wandered upon it. {5:19} But you, O Lord, shall remain for eternity, your throne from generation to generation. Why would you forget us forever? Why would you forsake us for a long time? {5:21} Convert us, O Lord, to you, and we shall be converted. Renew our days, as from the beginning. {5:22} But you have utterly rejected us; you are vehemently angry against us.

[Baruch 1] {1:1} And these are the words of the book, which Baruch the son of Neriaiah, the son of Mahseiah, the son of Zedekiah, the son of Hasadiah, the son Hilkiah, wrote in Babylon. {1:2} in the fifth year, on the seventh day of the month, since the time when the Chaldeans captured Jerusalem and set it on fire. {1:3} And Baruch read the words of this book to the ears of Jeconiah, the son of Jehoiakim king of Judah, and to the ears of the entire people, who came to the book: {1:4} even to the ears of the powerful sons of kings, and to the ears of the elders, and to the ears of the people, from the least to the greatest of them, of all those living in Babylon, near the river Sud. {1:5} And upon hearing it, they wept and fasted and prayed in the sight of the Lord. {1:6} And they collected money in accordance with whatever each one was able to handover. {1:7} And they sent it to Jerusalem to Jehoiakim, the son of Hilkiah, the son of Shalum the priest, and to the priests, and to all the people, who were found with him in Jerusalem. {1:8} At that time, he received the vessels of the temple of the Lord (which had been carried away from the temple) so as to return them to the land of Judah, on the tenth day of the month Sivan. These were the silver vessels, which Zedekiah, the son of Josiah king of Judah, had made. {1:9} After this, Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, captured Jeconiah, and the leaders, and all the powerful, and the people of the land, and led them captive from Jerusalem to Babylon. {1:10} And they said, “Behold we have sent you money with which to buy holocausts and frankincense. Therefore, make manna and offer it for sin at the altar of the Lord our God. {1:11} And pray for the life of Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, and for the life of Belshazzar his son, so that their days may be just like the days of the heaven above the earth, and so that the Lord may give virtue to us, and enlighten our eyes, so that we may live under the shadow of Nebuchadnezzar the king of Babylon, and under the shadow... of Belshazzar his son, and so that we may serve them for many days and may find favor in their sight.  [1:13] And pray for us also to the Lord our God, for we have sinned against the Lord our God, and the madness of our sin has not been driven away from us even to this day.  [1:14] And read this book, which we have sent to you to be recited in the temple of the Lord, on solemn days and on other suitable days.  [1:15] And you will say, 'To the Lord our God is justice, but to us is confusion of our face, just as it is this day for all of Judah and the inhabitants of Jerusalem,  [1:16] even for our kings, and our leaders, and our priests, and our prophets, and our fathers.  [1:17] We have sinned before the Lord our God and we have not believed, lacking confidence in him.  [1:18] And we have not been submissive to him, and we have not listened to the voice of the Lord our God, so as to walk in his commandments, which he has given to us.  [1:19] From the day that he led our fathers out of the land of Egypt, even to this day, we were unfaithful to the Lord our God, and, having been scattered, we fell away. We did not listen to his voice.  [1:20] And we joined ourselves to many evils and to the curses which the Lord established through Moses, his servant, who led our fathers out of the land of Egypt, to give us a land flowing with milk and honey, just as it is in the present day.  [1:21] And we have not listened to the voice of the Lord our God, according to all the words of the prophets whom he sent to us.  [1:22] And we have gone astray, each one after the inclinations of his own malignant heart, serving strange gods and doing evil before the eyes of the Lord our God.

[Baruch 2]  [2:1] “ 'For this reason, the Lord our God has fulfilled his word, which he has spoken to us, and to our judges, who have judged Israel, and to our kings, and to our leaders, and to all Israel and Judah.  [2:2] And so the Lord has brought upon us great evils, such as never before happened under heaven, (but which have come to pass in Jerusalem according to what was written in the law of Moses)  [2:3] even that a man would eat the flesh of his son and the flesh of his daughter.  [2:4] And so he placed them under the hand of all the kings who surround us, in disgrace and desolation among all the people where the Lord has scattered us.  [2:5] And we were brought down low and were not raised up, because we sinned against the Lord our God, by not obeying his voice.  [2:6] To the Lord our God is justice, but to us and to our fathers is confusion of face, just as on this day.  [2:7] For the Lord has pronounced against us all these evils, which have overcome us.  [2:8] And we have not beseeched the face of the Lord our God, so that we might return, each one of us from our most sinful ways.  [2:9] And the Lord has watched over us for evil and has brought it upon us, because the Lord is just in all his works that he has commanded us,  [2:10] and we have not listened to his own voice, so as to walk according to the teachings of the Lord, which he has set before our face.  [2:11] And now, O Lord God of Israel, who has led your people out of the land of Egypt with a strong hand, and with signs, and with wonders, and with your great power, and with an exalted arm, and has made a name for yourself, just as on this day,  [2:12] we have sinned, we become impious, we have acted unjustly, O Lord our God, against all your principles.  [2:13] May your wrath be turned away from us because, having been forsaken, we are few among the irreligious where you have scattered us.  [2:14] Heed, O Lord, our petitions and our prayers, and deliver us for your own sake, and grant that we may find favor before the face of those who have led us away,  [2:15] so that all the earth may know that you are the Lord our God, and because your name has been invoked over Israel and over his posterity.  [2:16] Gaze upon us, O Lord, from your holy home, and incline your ear, and heed us.  [2:17] Open your eyes and see, because the dead, who are in the underworld, whose spirit has been taken away from their vital organs, will not give honor and justification to the Lord.  [2:18] But the soul that is sorrowful for the greatness of evil, approaches bowed down and weak, and the failing eyes and the hungering soul give glory and justice to you, the Lord.  [2:19] For it is not according to the righteousness of our fathers that we pour out our petitions and beg mercy in your sight, O Lord our God, but because you have sent your wrath and your fury upon us, just as you have spoken by the hand of your children the prophets, saying:  [2:20] ‘Thus says the Lord, ‘Bow down your shoulder and your neck, and do work for the king of Babylon, and settle in the land which I gave to your fathers,  [2:21] because, if you will not listen to the voice of the Lord your God, to serve the king of Babylon, I will cause you to depart from the cities of Judah and from the gates of Jerusalem.  [2:22] And I will take away from you the voice of cheerfulness and the voice of joy, and the voice of the bridegroom and the voice of the bride, and all the land will be without any trace of its inhabitants.’ ”  [2:24] And they did not listen to your voice, that they should serve the king of Babylon, and so you have fulfilled your words, which you spoke by the hands of your children the prophets, so that the bones of our kings and the bones of our fathers would be carried away from their place.  [2:25] And, behold, they have been cast out into the heat of the sun and the frost of the night, and they have died by means of grievous evils, by famine, and by the sword, and by banishment.  [2:26] And you have set up the temple, in which your name itself was called upon, just as it is on this day, because of the iniquity of the house of Israel and the house of Judah.  [2:27] And you have accomplished in us, O Lord our God, according to all your goodness and according to all your great mercy,  [2:28] just as you spoke by the hand of your child Moses, in the day when you commanded him to write your law before the sons of Israel,  [2:29] saying: “If you will not listen to my voice, this great multitude will be changed into the least among the peoples, where I will scatter them.  [2:30] For I know that the people will not listen to me, for the people are stiff necked. But they will have a change of their heart in the land of their captivity,  [2:31] and they will know that I am the Lord their God. And I will give them a heart, and they will understand, ears, and they will hear.  [2:32] And they will praise me in the land of their captivity, and will remember my name.  [2:33] And they will turn themselves away from their stiff back, and from their wicked deeds, for they will call to mind the way of their fathers, who sinned against me.  [2:34] And I will restore them to the land which I pledged to their fathers, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and they will rule over it, and I will multiply them, and they will not be diminished.  [2:35] And I will establish for them a new and everlasting covenant, so that I will be their God and they will be my people. And I will no longer move my people, the sons of Israel, out of the land which I have given them.”
There is no one who is able to know her ways, nor found her, and brought her, chosen instead of gold? {3:30} For you are throned in eternity, but we will pass away in time. {3:34} O Lord Almighty, the God of Israel, listen now to the prayer of the dead of Israel and of their sons, who have sinned before you and have not listened to the voice of the Lord their God, and have joined themselves to evil. {3:35} Remember not the iniquities of our fathers, but remember your hand and your name at this time. {3:36} For you are the Lord our God, and we will praise you, O Lord. {3:37} And for this reason, you have imparted your fear into our hearts, and also, so that we may call upon your name and may praise you in our captivity, for we are converted from the iniquity of our fathers, who sinned before you. {3:38} And, behold, we are still in our captivity on this day, where you have scattered us into disgrace, and into slander, and into sin, according to all the iniquities of our fathers, who withdrew from you, O Lord our God. {3:39} Listen, O Israel, to the commandments of life! Pay attention, so that you may learn prudence! {3:10} How is it, O Israel, that you are in the land of your enemies, that you have grown old in a foreign land, that you are defiled with the dead, that you are regarded as among those who are descending into hell? {3:12} You have forsaken the fountain of wisdom. {3:13} For if you had walked in the way of God, you would certainly have lived in everlasting peace. {3:14} Learn where prudence is, where virtue is, where understanding is, so that you may know at the same time where long life and prosperity are, where the light of the eyes and peace are. {3:15} Who has discovered its place? And who has entered its treasure chamber? {3:16} Where are the leaders of the peoples, and those who rule over the beasts that are upon the earth, {3:17} who play among the birds of the air, {3:18} who store up treasures of silver and gold, in which men trust, and with whom there is no end to their acquiring, who work with silver and are anxious about it, whose works are inexplicable? {3:19} They have been banished and have descended to hell, and others are risen up in their place. {3:20} The youth have seen the light and have dwelt upon the earth, yet they are ignorant of the way of instruction. {3:21} They have neither understood the paths of it, nor have their sons accepted it. It is far from their face. {3:22} It has not been heard of in the land of Canaan, nor has it been seen in Teman. {3:23} It is likewise with the sons of Hagar, who search for the practicality that is of the earth, the negotiators of Merran and Teman, and the storytellers, and the searchers of discretion and intelligence. Yet the way of wisdom they have not known, nor have they called to mind its paths. {3:24} O Israel, how great is the house of God, and how vast is the place of his possession! {3:25} It is great and has no end! It is exalted and immense! {3:26} There were those who were called giants, who existed from the beginning, of great stature, expert in war. {3:27} The Lord did not choose them, nor did they discover the way of instruction; for this reason they perished, and, because they did not have wisdom, they passed away as a result of their foolishness. {3:29} Who has gone up into heaven, and taken her, and brought her down from the clouds? {3:30} Who has crossed the sea, and found her, and brought her, chosen instead of gold? {3:31} There is no one who is able to know her ways, nor any who can search out her paths. {3:32} Yet he who knows the universe is familiar with her, and in his foresight he invented her, he who prepared the earth for time without end, and filled it with cattle and four-footed beasts, {3:33} who sends out the light, and it goes, and who summoned it, and it obeyed him in fear. {3:34} Yet the stars have given light from their posts, and they rejoiced. {3:35} They were called, and so they said, “Here we are,” and they shined with cheerfulness to him who made them. {3:36} This is our God, and no other can compare to him. {3:37} He invented the way of all instruction, and delivered it to Jacob his child, and to Israel his beloved. {3:38} After this, he was seen on earth, and he conversed with men.
captivity from God, so also will they soon see your salvation from God, which will overcome you with great honor and eternal splendor. {4:25} Sons, endure patiently the wrath that has come upon you, for your enemy has persecuted you, but you will quickly see his destruction and you will climb over his neck. {4:26} My delicate ones have walked rough ways, for they were regarded as a flock torn apart by enemies. {4:27} Be ever more peaceful in soul, sons, and call out to the Lord, for you will be remembered by him who led you away. {4:28} For as much as you thought to go astray from God, ten times as much again he will require of you when converting. {4:29} For he who led you into evil, he himself will again lead you to eternal happiness with your salvation.” {4:30} Be ever more peaceful in soul, Jerusalem, for he who has named you, has been affected by you. {4:31} The criminals who have troubled you, will perish, and those who rejoiced in your ruin, will be punished. {4:32} The cities that your sons have served, will be punished, and also, she who received your sons. {4:33} For just as she was glad at your ruin, and she rejoiced in your fall, so also will she be grieved in her own desolation, {4:34} and the exaltation of her multitude will be cut off, and her gladness will be turned to sorrow. {4:35} For fire will overcome her from the Eternal for many days, and she will be inhabited by evil spirits for a long time. {4:36} Look around, Jerusalem, towards the east, and see the happiness that comes to you from God. {4:37} For behold, your sons approach, whom you sent away scattered. They approach, gathering together, from the east all the way to the west, at the word of the Holy One, rejoicing in the honor of God.

[Baruch 5] {5:1} “ ‘Take off, O Jerusalem, the garment of your sorrow and troubles, and put on your beauty and the honor of that eternal glory, which you have from God. {5:2} God will surround you with a double garment of justice, and he will set a crown on your head of everlasting honor. {5:3} For God will reveal his splendor in you to all who are under heaven. {5:4} For your name will be given to you by God for eternity: the peace of justice and the honor of piety. {5:5} Arise, O Jerusalem, and stand in exaltation, and look around towards the east, and see your sons, gathering together, from the rising of the sun to the setting of the sun, by the word of the Holy One, rejoicing in the remembrance of God. {5:6} For they went out from you on foot, led by the enemies, but the Lord will lead them to you, being carried in honor like sons of the kingdom. {5:7} For God has resolved to humble every high mountain and the longstanding cliffs, and to fill up the steep valleys in order to level the ground, so that Israel may walk diligently in the honor of God. {5:8} Yet the woods and every sweet-smelling tree have provided shade for Israel by the commandment of God. {5:9} For God will lead Israel with joy into the light of his majesty, with mercy and justice, which is from him.’ ”

[Baruch 6] {6:1} This is a copy of the letter that Jeremiah sent to those who would be taken captive into Babylon by the king of Babylon, so as to prophesy to them according to the warning he had received about them from God. “Because of the sins which you have sinned before God, you will be carried away into the captivity of Babylon by Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon. {6:2} And so, having been taken into Babylon, you will be there many years and for a long time, even to seven generations, yet after this, I will lead you away from there with peace. {6:3} But now, you will see in Babylon gods of gold and of silver, and of stone and of wood, carried upon shoulders, an awful display for the peoples. {6:4} See to it, then, that you do not in effect become like these strangers and become afraid, so that in awe you would be carried away into their midst. {6:5} And so, seeing the turmoil, behind you and in front of you, as they are worshiping, say in your hearts, ‘You ought to be adored, O Lord.’ {6:6} For my angel is with you. And I myself will examine your souls. {6:7} For their tongue is polished by the craftsman, and they themselves are even inlaid with gold and silver, yet they are false and unable to speak. {6:8} And, just like a virgin who loves to decorate herself, so do they take up gold and make designs with it. {6:9} Their gods have crowns of certified gold upon their heads, from which the priests subtract gold and silver, and spend it on themselves. {6:10} Moreover, they even give from it to prostitutes, and use it to adorn kept women, and when they receive it back from the kept women, they use it to adorn their gods. {6:11} But these cannot be freed from rust and moths. {6:12} Although they are covered with a purple garment, they must wipe off their face, because of the dust of the house, which is very great around them. {6:13} Yet he who holds a scepter like a man, like the judge of the region, cannot put to death one who sins against him. {6:14} And though he holds in his hand a sword and an axe, yet he cannot free himself from war and robbers. From this let it be known to you that they are not gods. {6:15} Therefore, do not fear them. For just as the vessel a man uses becomes useless when broken, so also are their gods. {6:16} When they are set up in a house, their eyes are full of dust from the feet of those who enter. {6:17} And like one who has offended the king and is surrounded at every door, or like a corpse about to be carried away to the grave, so do the priests secure the doors with bars and locks, lest they be plundered by robbers. {6:18} They light candles to them, and in great number, and still they are unable to see, for they are like logs in the house. {6:19} It is truly said that the creeping things, which are of the earth, gnaw their hearts, and yet when these devour them and their garments, they do not feel it. {6:20} Their faces are made black by the smoke that is made in the house. {6:21} Over their bodies and over their heads fly owls and swallows and birds, and similarly, even cats. {6:22} From this you should understand that they are not gods. Therefore, neither should you fear them. {6:23} Furthermore, the gold which they have is shiny, but unless someone wipes off the rust, they will not shine. And even when they were molten, they did not feel it. {6:24} They acquire all kinds of costly things, yet there is no breath in them. {6:25} Without feet, they are carried upon shoulders, showing their unworthiness to all men. And so, may those who worship them be confounded. {6:26} Because of this, if they fall to the ground, they do not get up by themselves; and if someone sets it upright, they will not stand firm on their own; yet, just like the dead, offerings are placed next to them. {6:27} The priests themselves sell their sacrifices, and they spend it wastefully; and, in like manner, their wives take part of it, never sharing anything with the sick or the beggars. {6:28} Fertile and menstruous women contaminate their sacrifices. And so, knowing from this that they are not gods, you should not fear them. {6:29} For what reason are they called gods? It is because the women serve before the gods of silver and gold and wood, {6:30} and the priests sit in their houses, with torn garments, and their heads and beards shaven, and nothing on their heads. {6:31} But they roar, shouting out to their gods, just as at a feast for the dead. {6:32} The priests take away the garments of their gods, and clothe their wives and their sons. {6:33} And whether they endure evil from someone, or good, they are not able to repay it. They can neither establish a king, nor remove him. {6:34} Similarly, they can neither give riches, nor avenge evil. If anyone makes a vow to them, and does not keep it, they cannot require it. {6:35} They cannot free a man from death, nor rescue the weak from the strong. {6:36} They cannot restore sight to the blind, nor free a man from need. {6:37} They will not have mercy on the widow, nor do good to orphans. {6:38} Their gods of wood, and of stone, and of gold, and of silver, are like stones from the mountain; and those who worship them will be confounded. {6:39} In what way, then, is it to be supposed or said that they are gods? {6:40} For even the Chaldeans themselves do not honor these, who, when they hear about a mute, unable to speak, they offer him to Bel, asking from him that he may speak, {6:41} as if these, who are unable to move, would be able to perceive. And even they themselves, when they shall understand this, will abandon them, for, having come to their senses, they do not consider them to be gods. {6:42} Yet the women, wrapped in cords, sit by the roads, burning olive-stones. {6:43} And when any one of them, having been attracted by someone passing by, would sleep with him, she reproaches her neighbor because she was not found worthy, as she was, nor was her cord broken. {6:44} But all things that occur with them are false; in what way, then, is it to be considered or said that they are gods? {6:45} Yet they have been made by the workmen and the goldsmiths. They will be nothing else but what the priests want them to be. {6:46} For the artisans themselves, who make them, do not exist for a long time. So then, can these things, which have been made by them, be gods? {6:47} Yet they have bequeathed falsehoods and disgrace after this to the future. {6:48} For when they are overcome by battle or evil, the priests consider among themselves where they may hide themselves with them. {6:49} Therefore, why would they be perceived to be gods, who can neither free themselves from war, nor rescue themselves from evils? {6:50} For, in as much as they are only wood, inlaid with gold and silver, so let it be known henceforth, by all nations and kings, that they are false; because it has been revealed that they are not gods, but the work of men's hands, and there is no work of God in them. {6:51} For this reason, then, it has been accepted that they are not gods, but are works of the hands of men, and no work of God is in them. {6:52} They have not raised up a king in the region, nor will they give rain to men. {6:53} They will not discern a judgment for anyone, nor will they free a region from injury, because they can do nothing, like crows in the middle of heaven and earth. {6:54} And, indeed, when there happens to be a fire in the house of these gods of wood, silver, and gold, the priests will certainly run away and save themselves, but these will truly be burned up like logs in the midst of it. {6:55} Yet they cannot withstand a king and war. In what way, then, is it to be considered or accepted that they are gods? {6:56} These gods of wood and stone, inlaid with gold and silver, can free themselves neither from thieves nor from robbers; whoever is stronger than they are, {6:57} will take up these things, the gold and the silver, and the garments which cover them, and will get away; neither will they be able to help themselves. {6:58} Therefore, it is better to be a king displaying his power, or a useful vessel in a house, about which he who owns it will boast, or a door in the house, which keeps safe what is inside, than to be these gods of falsehood. {6:59} For the sun, and the moon, and the constellations, though they are brilliant and have been sent forth to be useful, are obedient. {6:60} Similarly, the lightning, when it appears and is evident, and, in like manner, the wind blowing in every region, {6:61} and the clouds, when God orders them to make their rounds over the whole world, each carries out what was commanded. {6:62} Furthermore, the fire, having been sent from above so that it may consume mountains and woods, does what it has been instructed to do. Yet these are not similar, neither in splendor, nor in power, to any one of them. {6:63} From this, it should neither be supposed, nor said, that they are gods; since they are neither able to give judgment, nor to accomplish anything for men. {6:64} And so, knowing that they are not gods, therefore, have no fear of them. {6:65} For they can neither curse kings, nor bless them. {6:66} Besides, they show no signs in heaven to the nations; they neither shine like the sun, nor give light like the moon. {6:67} Beasts are better than they are, for they can flee under a covering, and so protect themselves. {6:68} Therefore, in no way is it clear to us that they are gods; because of this, you should not fear them. {6:69} For just as a scarecrow in a cucumber field protects nothing, so are their gods of wood, and silver, and inlaid gold. {6:70} They are just the same as a white thorn in a garden, on which all the birds sit; they are even like a corpse thrown out into the darkness, just so are these gods of wood, and inlaid gold, and inlaid silver. {6:71} By the purple, and likewise the Royal purple, moth-eaten garments upon them, you will then know that they are not gods. And finally, they themselves are consumed and will be a disgrace in the region. {6:72} Better is the just man who has no such images, for he will be far from disgrace.”

 The Prophecy of Ezekiel **

[Ezekiel 1] {1:1} And it happened that, in the thirtieth year, in the fourth month, on the fifth of the month, when I was in the midst of the captives beside the river Chebar, the heavens were opened, and I saw the visions of God. {1:2} On the fifth of the month, the same is the fifth year of the transmigration of king Joachin, {1:3} the word of the Lord came to Ezekiel, a priest, the son of Buzi, in the land of the Chaldeans, next to the river Chebar. And the hand of the Lord was over him there. {1:4} And I saw, and behold, a whirlwind arrived from the north. And a great cloud, wrapped in fire and brightness, was all around it. And from its midst, that is, from the midst of the fire, there was something with the appearance of amber. {1:5} And in its midst, there was the likeness of four living creatures. And this was their appearance: the likeness of a man was in them. {1:6} Each one had four faces, and each one had four wings. {1:7} Their feet were straight feet, and the sole of their foot was like the sole of a calf, and they sparkled with the appearance of glowing brass. {1:8} And they had the hands of a man under their wings on the four sides. And they had faces with the wings on the four sides. {1:9} And their wings were joined to one another. They did not turn as they went. Instead, each one advanced before his face. {1:10} But as for the likeness of their face, there was the face of a man, and the face of a lion on the right of each of the four, then the face of an ox on the left of each of the four, and the face of an eagle above each of the four. {1:11} Their faces and their wings were extended above: two wings of each one were joined together, and two covered their bodies. {1:12} And each one of them advanced before his face. Wherever the impetus of the spirit was to go, there they went. And they did not turn as they advanced. {1:13} And as for the likeness of the living creatures, their appearance was like that of burning coals of fire, and like the appearance of lamps. This was the vision dashing in the midst of the living creatures, a bright fire, with lightning going forth from the fire. {1:14} And the living creatures went and returned like flashes of lightning. {1:15} And as I beheld the living creatures, there appeared above the earth, next to the living creatures, one wheel having four faces. {1:16} And the appearance of the wheels and their work was like the appearance of the sea. And each of the four were similar to one another. And their appearance and work was like a wheel in the center of a wheel. {1:17} Going forth, they went by means of their four parts. And they did not turn as they went. {1:18} Also, the size and height and appearance of the wheels was dreadful. And the entire body was full of eyes all around each of the four. {1:19} And when the living creatures advanced, the wheels advanced together with them. And when the living creatures were lifted up from the earth, the wheels, too, were lifted up at the same time. {1:20} Wherever the spirit went, as the spirit was going forth to that place, the wheels, too, were lifted up together, so as to follow them. For the spirit of life was in the wheels. {1:21} When going forth, they went forth, and when standing still, they stood still. And when they were lifted up from the earth, the wheels, too, were lifted up together, so as to follow them. For the spirit of life was in the wheels. {1:22} And above the heads of the living creatures was the likeness of a firmament: similar to crystal, but dreadful to behold, and extending over their heads from above. {1:23} And their wings were straight under the firmament, one toward the other. One of them was covered by two wings on his body, and the other was covered similarly. {1:24} And I heard the sound of their wings, like the sound of many waters, like the sound of the sublme God. When they walked, it was like the sound of a multitude, like the sound of an army. And when they stood still, their wings were let down. {1:25} For when a voice came from above the firmament, which was over their heads, they stood still, and they put down their wings. {1:26} And above the firmament, which was suspended over their heads, there was the likeness of a throne, with the appearance of the sapphire stone. And over the likeness of the throne, there was a likeness with the appearance of a man above it. {1:27} And I saw something with the appearance of amber, with the likeness of fire within it and all around it. And from his waist and upward, and from his waist downward, I saw something with the appearance of fire shining all around. {1:28} There was the appearance of the rainbow, as when it is in a cloud on a rainy day. This was the appearance of the splendor on every side.

[Ezekiel 2] {2:1} This was the vision of the likeness of the glory of the Lord. And I saw, and I fell on my face, and I heard the voice of someone speaking. And he said to me: “Son of man, stand on your feet, and I will speak with you.” {2:2} And after this was spoken to me, the Spirit entered into me, and he set me on my feet. And I heard him speaking to me, {2:3} and saying: “Son of man, I am sending you to the sons of Israel, to an apostate nation, which has withdrawn from me. They and their fathers have betrayed my covenant, even to this day. {2:4} And those to whom I am sending you are sons with a hard face and an unyielding heart. And you shall say to them: ‘Thus says the Lord God.’” {2:5} Perhaps it may be that they will hear, and perhaps they may be quieted. For they are a provoking house. And they shall know that there has been a prophet in their midst. {2:6} But as for you, son of man, you should not fear them, and you should not dread their words. For you are among unbelievers and subversives, and you are living with scorpions. You should not fear their words, and you should not dread their faces. For they are a provoking house. {2:7} Therefore, you shall speak my words to them, so that perhaps they may hear and be quieted. For they are provoking. {2:8} But as for you, son of man, listen to all that I say to you. And do not choose to be provoking, as that house is a provoker. Open your mouth, and eat whatever I give to you.” {2:9} And I looked, and beheld: a hand was put forth toward me; there was a scroll rolled up in it. And he spread it out before me, and there was writing on the inside and on the outside. And there were written in it lamentations, and verses, and woes.
creatures, and the voice of a great commotion. {3:14} Then the Spirit lifted me and took me away. And I went forth in bitterness, with the indignation of my spirit. For the hand of the Lord was with me, strengthening me. {3:15} And I went to those of the transmigration, to the stockpile of new crops, to those who were living beside the river Chebar. And I sat where they were sitting. And I remained there for seven days, while mourning in their midst. {3:16} Then, when seven days had passed, the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {3:17} “Son of man, I have made you a watchman for the house of Israel. And so, you shall listen to the word from my mouth, and you shall announce it to them from me. {3:18} If, when I say to the impious man, ‘You shall certainly die,’ you do not announce it to him, and you do not speak so that he may turn aside from his impious way and live, then the same impious man will die in his iniquity. But I will attribute his blood to your hand. {3:19} But if you announce it to the impious man, ‘You shall certainly die,’ you do not announce it to him, and you do not speak so that he may turn aside from his impious way and live, then the same impious man will die in his iniquity. But I will attribute his blood to your hand. {3:20} Moreover, if the just man turns aside from his justice and commits iniquity, I will place a stumbling block before him. He shall die, because you have not announced to him. He shall die in his sin, and his justices that he did shall not be remembered. Yet truly, I will attribute his blood to your hand. {3:21} But if you announce to the just man, so that the just man may not sin, and he does not sin, then he shall certainly live, because you have announced to him. And you will have delivered your own soul.” {3:22} And the hand of the Lord was over me. And he said to me: “Rise up, and go out to the plain, and there I will speak with you.” {3:23} And I rose up, and I went out to the plain. And behold, the glory of the Lord was standing there, like the glory that I saw beside the river Chebar. And I fell upon my face. {3:24} And the Spirit entered into me, and set me upon my feet. And he spoke to me, and he said to me: “Enter and enclose yourself in the midst of your house. {3:25} And as for you, son of man, behold: they shall put chains upon you and bind you with them. And you shall not go out from their midst. {3:26} And I will cause your tongue to adhere to the roof of your mouth. And you will be mute, not like a man who reproaches. For they are a provoking house. {3:27} But when I will speak to you, I will open your mouth, and you shall say to them: ‘Thus says the Lord God.’ Whoever is listening, let him hear. And whoever is quieted, let him be quieted. For they are a provoking house.”

[Ezekiel 4] {4:1} “And as for you, son of man, take up for yourself a tablet, and you shall set it before you. And you shall draw upon it the city of Jerusalem. {4:2} And you shall set up a blockade against it, and you shall build fortifications, and you shall put together a rampart, and you shall encamp opposite it, and you shall place battering rams around it. {4:3} And you shall take up for yourself an iron frying pan, and place it as an iron wall between you and the city. And you shall turn your face toward the siege of Jerusalem, and your arm shall be extended. And you shall prophesy against it. {4:4} Behold, I have surrounded you with chains. And you shall not turn yourself from one side to the other side, until you have completed the days of your siege. {4:5} And you shall take for yourself wheat, and barley, and beans, and lentils, and millet, and vetch. And you shall set them in one vessel, and you shall make for yourself bread by the number of days that you will sleep upon your side: three hundred and ninety days shall you shall eat from it. {4:6} But your food, which you will eat, shall be in weight twenty staters a day. You shall eat it from time to time. {4:7} And you shall drink water by measure, one sixth part of a hin. You shall drink it from time to time. {4:8} And you shall eat it like barley bread baked under ashes. And you shall cover it, in their sight, with the dung that goes out of a man.” {4:9} And the Lord said: “So shall the sons of Israel eat their bread, polluted among the Gentiles, to whom I will cast them out.” {4:10} And I said: “Alas, alas, alas, O Lord God! Behold, my soul has not been polluted, and from my infancy even until now, I have not eaten anything that has died of itself, nor that which has been torn up by beasts, and no unclean flesh at all has entered into my mouth.” {4:11} And he said to me: “Behold, I have given to you cow manure in place of human dung, and you shall make your bread with it.” {4:12} And he said to me: “Son of man, behold: I will crush the staff of bread in Jerusalem. And they will eat bread by weight and with anxiety. And they will drink water by measure and with anguish. {4:13} Then, when seven days have passed, the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {4:14} “Since you have surpassed the Gentiles who are all around her. {5:1} “As for you, son of man, obtain for yourself a sharp knife for shaving hair, and you shall take it and draw it across your head and across your beard. And you shall obtain for yourself a balance for weighing, and you shall divide the hair. {5:2} A third part you shall burn with fire in the midst of the city, according to the completion of the days of the siege. And you shall take a third part, and you shall cut it with the knife all around. Yet truly, the other third, you shall scatter to the wind, for I will unsheathe the sword after them. {5:3} And you shall take from there a small number. And you shall bind them in the end of your cloak. {5:4} And again, you shall take from them, and you shall throw them into the midst of the fire, and you shall burn them with fire. And from it, there shall go forth a fire to the entire house of Israel.” {5:5} Thus says the Lord God: “This is Jerusalem. I have placed her in the midst of the Gentiles and of the lands all around her. {5:6} And she has despised my judgments, so as to be more impious than the Gentiles, and my precepts, more so than the lands that are all around her. For they have cast aside my judgments, and they have not walked in my precepts. {5:7} For this reason, thus says the Lord God: “Since you have surpassed the Gentiles who are all around you, and have not walked in my precepts, and have not accomplished my judgments, and have not even acted in accord with the judgments of the Gentiles who are all around you: {5:8} therefore, thus says the Lord God: Behold, I am against you, and I myself will accomplish judgments in your midst, in the sight of the Gentiles. {5:9} And I will do in you what I have not done before, and the likes of which I will not do again, because of all your abominations. {5:10} Therefore, the fathers shall consume the sons in your midst, and the sons shall consume their fathers. And I will execute judgments in you, and I will winnow your entire remnant in every wind. {5:11} Therefore, as I myself live says the Lord God, because you have violated my sanctuary with all your offenses and with all your abominations, I also will break into pieces, and my eye will not be lenient, and I will not take pity. {5:12} One third part of you will die by pestilence or be consumed by famine in your midst. And one third part of you will fall by the sword all around you. Yet truly, one third part of you I will scatter to every wind, and I will unsheathe the sword after them. {5:13} And I will fulfill my fury, and I will cause my indignation to rest upon them, and I will be consoled. And they shall know that I, the Lord, have spoken in my zeal, when I will have fulfilled my indignation in them. {5:14} And I will make you desolate, and a disgrace among the Gentiles, who are all around you, in the sight of all who pass by. {5:15} And you shall be a disgrace and a blasphemy, an example and an astonishment, among the Gentiles, who are all around you, when I will have executed judgments in you, in fury and in indignation and with rebukes of wrath. {5:16} I, the Lord, have spoken. At that time, I will send among them the most grievous arrows of famine, which shall bring death, and which I will send so that I may destroy you. And I will gather a famine over you, and I will crush the staff of bread among you. {5:17} And I will send among you famine and very harmful beasts, even unto utter ruin. And pestilence and blood shall pass through you. And I will bring the sword over you. I, the Lord, have spoken."

[Ezekiel 7] {7:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {7:2} “And as for you, son of man: Thus says the Lord God to the land of Israel: The end is coming, the end is coming, over the four regions of the earth. {7:3} Now the end is over you, and I will send my fury upon you. And I will judge you according to your ways. And I will place all your abominations before you. {7:4} And my eye will not be lenient over you, and I will not take pity. Instead, I will set your ways upon you, and your abominations will be in your midst. And you shall know that I am the Lord.” {7:5} Thus says the Lord God: “One affliction, behold, one affliction is approaching. {7:6} The end is coming, the end is coming. It has been vigilant against you. Behold, it is approaching. {7:7} Destruction is coming over you, who live upon the earth. The time is approaching, the day of slaughter is near, and it is not of the glory of the mountains. {7:8} Now, very soon, I will pour out my wrath upon you, and I will fulfill my fury in you. And I will judge you according to your ways, and I will set upon you all your crimes. {7:9} And my eye will not be lenient, nor will I take pity. Instead, I will place your ways upon you, and your abominations will be in your midst. And you shall know that I am the Lord, who is striking. {7:10} Behold, the day! Behold, it approaches! Destruction has gone forth, the rod has blossomed, arrogance has germinated. {7:11} Iniquity has risen up into a rod of impiety. There shall be nothing left of them, and of their people, and of the sound of them. And there shall be no rest for them. The time is approaching; the day is very near. Whoever buys should not rejoice. And whoever sells should not mourn. For wrath is over all of their people. {7:13} For whoever sells will not return to what he has sold, but as yet their life will be among the living. For the vision concerning their entire multitude will not turn back. And man will not be strengthened in the iniquity of his life. {7:14} Sound the trumpet! Let everyone be prepared! And yet there is no one who may go to battle. For my wrath is over all their people. {7:15} The sword is outside, and the pestilence and the famine are inside. Whoever is in the field will die by the sword. And whoever is in the city will be devoured by the pestilence and the famine. {7:16} And those who flee from among them will be saved. And they will be among the mountains, like doves in steep valleys, with everyone of them trembling, each one because of his iniquity. {7:17} All hands will be weakened, and all knees will flow with water. {7:18} And they will wrap themselves with haircloth, and do this evil to them.” {6:11} Thus says the Lord God: “Strike with your hand, and stomp with your foot, and say: ‘Alas, to all the abominations of the evils of the house of Israel!’ For they will fall by the sword, by famine, and by pestilence. {6:12} Whoever is far away will die of pestilence. But whoever is near will fall by the sword. And whoever remains and is besieged will die by famine. And I will fulfill my indignation among them. {6:13} And you shall know that I am the Lord, when your slain will be in the midst of your idols, all around your altars, on every exalted hill, and on the summits of all the mountains, and under every dense tree, and under every leafy oak: the places where they burned sweet-smelling incense to all their idols. {6:14} And I will extend my hand over them. And I will make the earth desolate and destitute: from the desert of Riblah to all their dwelling places. And they shall know that I am the Lord.”

dread will cover them. And shame will be upon every face, and baldness will be upon all of their heads. (7:19) Their silver will be thrown away, and their gold will be like a dunghill. Their silver and their gold will have no power to free them in the day of the fury of the Lord. They will not satisfy their soul, and their bellies will not be filled, because of the scandal of their iniquity. (7:20) And they have set arrogance as the ornament of their necklaces, and they have made images of their abominations and graven idols. Because of this, I have let it be an uncleanness for them. (7:21) And I will give it into the hands of foreigners as a spoil, and to the impious of the earth as a prey, and they will defile it. (7:22) And I will avert my face from them, and they will violate my place of mystery. And untamed persons will enter into it, and they will defile it. (7:23) Cause it to be closed. For the land has been filled with the judgment of blood, and the city is full of iniquity. (7:24) And I will lead in the most sinful among the Gentiles, and they will possess their houses. And I will cause the arrogance of the powerful to be quieted. And they will possess their sanctuaries. (7:25) When anguish overwhelms them, they will seek peace, and there will be none. (7:26) Disturbance will follow after disturbance, and rumor after rumor. And they will seek the vision of the prophet, and the law will perish from the priest, and counsel will perish from the elders. (7:27) The king will mourn, and the prince will be clothed with grief, and the hands of the people of the earth will be greatly disturbed. I will act toward them in accord with their own way, and I will judge them in accord with their own judgments. And they shall know that I am the Lord.”

[ Ezekiel 8] [8:1] And it happened that, in the sixth year, in the sixth month, on the fifth of the month, I was sitting in my house, and the elders of Judah were sitting before me, and the hand of the Lord God fell upon me there. (8:2) And I saw, and behold, there was an image with the appearance of fire. From the appearance of his waist, and downward, there was fire. And from his waist, and upward, there was the appearance of splendor, like the sight of amber. (8:3) And as the image of a hand went out, it took hold of me by a lock of my head. And the Spirit lifted me up between earth and heaven. And he brought me into Jerusalem, within a vision, where there was stationed an idol of rivalry, so as to provoke the anger of God, next to the inner gate that looked toward the north, where the place was full of the abominations, and all of the idols of the house of Israel were depicted on the wall all around, throughout the entire place. (8:11) And there were seventy men out of the elders of the house of Israel, with Jaazaniah, the son of Shaphan, standing in their midst, and they stood before the pictures. And each one had a censer in his hand. And a cloud of smoke rose up from the incense. (8:12) And he said to me: “Certainly, son of man, you see what the elders of the house of Israel are doing in the darkness, each one while hidden in his chamber. For they say: ‘The Lord does not see us. The Lord has forsaken the earth.’ ” (8:13) And he said to me: “If you turn again, you will see even greater abominations, which these ones are committing.” (8:14) And he led me in through the door of the gate of the Lord’s house, which looked toward the north. And behold, women were sitting there, mourning for Adonis. (8:15) And he said to me: “Certainly, son of man, you have seen. But if you turn again, you will see even greater abominations than these.” (8:16) And he led me into the inner arium of the house of the Lord. And behold, at the door of the temple of the Lord, between the vestibule and the altar, there were about twenty-five men with their backs toward the temple of the Lord, and their faces toward the east. And they were adoring toward the rising of the Sun. (8:17) And he said to me: “Certainly, son of man, you have seen. Can this be so trivial to the house of Judah, when they commit these abominations, just as they have committed here, that, having filled the earth with iniquity, they now turn to provoke me? And behold, they are applying a branch to their nose. (8:18) Therefore, I also will act toward them in my fury. My eye will not be lenient, nor will I take pity. And when they will have cried out to my ears with a loud voice, I will not heed them.”

[ Ezekiel 9] [9:1] And he cried out in my ears with a loud voice, saying: “The visitations of the city have drawn near, and each one has equipment for killing in his hand.” (9:2) And behold, six men were approaching from the way of the upper gate, which looks to the north. And each one had equipment for killing in his hand. Also, one man in their midst was clothed with linen, and an instrument for writing was at his waist. And they entered and stood beside the bronze altar. (9:3) And the glory of the Lord of Israel was taken up, from the cherub upon which he was, to the threshold of the house. And he called out to the man who was clothed with linen and had an instrument for writing at his waist. (9:4) And the Lord said to him: “Cross through the midst of the city, in the center of Jerusalem, and seal a Tau upon the foreheads of the grieving men, who are mourning over all the abominations which are being committed in its midst.” (9:5) And he said to the others, in my hearing: “Cross through the city after him, and strike! Your eye shall not be lenient, and you shall not take pity. (9:6) Kill, even to utter destruction, old men, young men, and virgins, little ones, and women. But all upon whom see the Tau, you shall not kill. And begin from my sanctuary.” Therefore, they began with the men among the elders, who were before the face of the house. (9:7) And he said to them: “Defile the house, and fill its courts with the slain! Go forth!” And they went forth and struck down those who were in the city. (9:8) And when the slaughter was completed, I remained. And I fell upon my face, and crying out, I said: “Alas, alas, alas, O Lord God! Will you now destroy the entire remnant of Israel, by pouring out your fury upon Jerusalem?” [9:9] And he said to me: “The iniquity of the house of Israel, and of Judah, is vast and exceedingly great, and the land has been filled with blood, and the city has been filled with what is abhorrent. For they have said: ‘The Lord has forsaken the earth,’ and, ‘The Lord does not see.’” [9:10] Therefore, my eye will not be lenient, and I will not take pity. I will repay their own way upon their head.” [9:11] And behold, the man who was clothed with linen, who had a writing instrument at his back, responded a word, saying: “I have done just as you instructed me.”

[Ezekiel 10] [10:1] And I saw, and behold, in the firmament that was over the heads of the cherubim, there appeared above them something like the sapphire stone, with the sight of the likeness of a throne. [10:2] And he spoke to the man who was clothed with linen, and he said: “Enter, between the wheels that are under the cherubim, and fill your hand with the coals of fire that are between the cherubim, and pour them upon the city.” And he entered, in my sight. [10:3] Now the cherubim were standing before the right side of the house, when the man entered. And a cloud filled the inner court. [10:4] And the glory of the Lord was lifted up, from above the cherubim, to the threshold of the house. And the house was filled with the cloud. And the court was filled with the splendor of the glory of the Lord. [10:5] And the sound of the wings of the cherubim was heard even in the outer court, like the voice of Almighty God speaking. [10:6] And when he had instructed the man who was clothed with linen, saying, “Take fire from the midst of the wheels that are between the cherubim,” he entered and stood next to the wheel. [10:7] And one cherub extended his hand, from the midst of the cherubim, to the fire that was between the cherubim. And he took and gave it into the hands of the one who was clothed with linen, and he accepted it and went forth. [10:8] And there appeared amid the cherubim the likeness of a hand of a man, under its wings. [10:9] And I saw, and behold, there were four wheels beside the cherubim. One wheel was next to one cherub, and another wheel was next to another cherub. And the appearance of the wheels was like the sight of the chrysolite stone. [10:10] And in their appearance, each one of the four were similar, as if a wheel were in the midst of a wheel. [10:11] And when they went, they advanced in four parts. And they did not turn as they went. Instead, to the place to which they were inclined to go at first, the rest also followed, and they did not turn back. [10:12] And their entire body, with their necks and their hands and their wings and the circles, were full of eyes all around the four wheels. [10:13] And in my hearing, he called these wheels: “constant and changing.” [10:14] Now each one had four faces. One face was the face of the cherub, and the second face was the face of a man, and in the third was the face of a lion, and in the fourth was the face of an eagle. [10:15] And the cherubim were lifted up. This is the living creature, which I had seen beside the river Chebar. [10:16] And when the cherubim advanced, the wheels also went beside them. And when the cherubim lifted up their wings in order to be raised up from the earth, the wheels did not remain behind, but they also were beside them. [10:17] When they were standing, these stood still. And when they were lifted up, these were lifted up. For the spirit of life was in them. [10:18] And the glory of the Lord went forth from the threshold of the temple, and stood above the cherubim. [10:19] And the cherubim, lifting up their wings, were raised up from the earth in my sight. And as they went away, the wheels also followed. And it stood at the entrance to the east gate of the house of the Lord. And the glory of the God of Israel was over them. [10:20] This is the living creature, which I saw under the God of Israel beside the river Chebar. And I understood that they were cherubim. [10:21] Each one had four faces, and each one had four wings. And the likeness of the hand of a man was under their wings. [10:22] And, concerning the appearance of their faces, these were the same faces that I had seen beside the river Chebar, and the gaze and force of each one of them was to go before his face.

[Ezekiel 11] [11:1] And the Spirit lifted me up, and he brought me to the east gate of the house of the Lord, which looks toward the rising of the sun. And behold, at the entrance to the gate were twenty-five men. And I saw, in their midst, Jaazaniah, the son of Azzur, and Pelatiah, the son of Benaiyah, leaders of the people. [11:2] And he said to me: “Son of man, these are men who devise iniquity. And they offer a wicked counsel in this city, [11:3] saying: ‘Was it so long ago that houses were being built? This city is a cooking pot, and we are the meat.’” [11:4] Therefore, prophesy against them, prophesy, O son of man.” [11:5] And the Spirit of the Lord fell upon me, and he said to me: “Speak: Thus says the Lord: So have you spoken, O house of Israel. And I know the thoughts of your heart. [11:6] You have killed very many in this city, and you have filled its streets with the slain. [11:7] Because of this, thus says the Lord God: Your slain, whom you have placed in its midst, these are the meat, and this city is the cooking pot. And I will draw you out of its midst. [11:8] You have dared the sword, and so I will lead the sword over you, says the Lord God. [11:9] And I will cast you out of its midst, and I will give you over to the hand of the enemies, and I will execute judgments among you. [11:10] You will fall by the sword. I will judge you within the borders of Israel. And you shall know that I am the Lord. [11:11] This city will not be a cooking pot for you, and you will not be like meat in its midst. I will judge you within the borders of Israel. [11:12] And you shall know that I am the Lord. For you have not walked in my precepts, and you have not accomplished my judgments. Instead, you have acted in accord with the judgments of the Gentiles, who are all around you.” [11:13] And it happened that, when I prophesied, Pelatiah, the son of Benaiyah, died. And I fell upon my face, and I cried out with a loud voice, and I said: “Alas, alas, alas! O Lord God! Will you cause the consummation of the remnant of Israel?” [11:14] And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: [11:15] “Son of man, your brothers, the men among your close relatives, your brothers and the entire house of Israel, are all among those to whom the inhabitants of Jerusalem have said: ‘Withdraw far from the Lord; the earth has been given to us as a possession.’ [11:16] Because of this, thus says the Lord God: Since I have caused them to be far away, among the Gentiles, and since I have dispersed them among the lands, I will be a little sanctuary for them within the lands to which they have gone. [11:17] Because of this, say to them: Thus says the Lord God: I will gather you from among the peoples, and I will unite you, from the lands into which you were dispersed, and I will give the soil of Israel to you. [11:18] And they shall go to that place, and they shall remove all the offenses and all its abominations from that place. {11:19} And I will give them one heart. And I will distribute a new spirit to their interior.
And I will take away the heart of stone from their body. And I will give them a heart of flesh. {11:20} So may they may walk in my precepts, and observe my judgments, and accomplish them. And so may they be my people, and I will be their God. {11:21} But as for those whose heart walks after their offenses and abominations, I will set their own way upon their head, says the Lord God." {11:22} And the cherubim lifted up their wings, and the wheels with them. And the glory of the God of Israel was above them. {11:23} And the glory of the Lord ascended from the midst of the city and stood above the mountain, which is to the east of the city. {11:24} And the Spirit lifted me up, and he brought me into Chaldea, to those of the transmigration, in a vision, in the Spirit of God. And the vision that I had seen was raised up, away from me. {11:25} And I spoke, to those of the transmigration, all the words of the Lord that he had revealed to me.

Ezekiel 12 {12:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {12:2} "Son of man, you live in the midst of a provoking house. They have eyes to see, and they do not see; and ears to hear, and they do not hear. For they are a provoking house. {12:3} As for you, then, son of man, prepare for yourself the supplies for traveling far away, and travel away in the daytime in their sight. And you shall travel from your place to another place in their sight, so that perhaps they may consider it. For they are a provoking house. {12:4} And you shall carry your supplies outside, like the supplies of one who is traveling far away, in the daytime in their sight. Then you shall go forth in the evening in their presence, just as one goes forth who is moving far away. {12:5} Dig for yourself through the wall, before their eyes. And you shall go out through it. {12:6} In their sight, you shall be carried on shoulders; you shall be carried in the dark. You shall cover your face, and you shall not see the ground. For I have appointed you as a portent for the house of Israel." {12:7} Therefore, I did just as he had instructed me. I brought out my supplies in the daytime, like the supplies of one who is moving far away. And in the evening, I dug myself through the wall by hand. And I went out in the dark, and I was carried on shoulders, in their sight. {12:8} And the word of the Lord came to me, in the morning, saying: {12:9} "Son of man, has not the house of Israel, the provoking house, said to you: 'What are you doing?' {12:10} Say to them: Thus says the Lord God: This is the burden concerning my leader who is in Jerusalem, and concerning the entire house of Israel, who are in their midst. {12:11} Say: I am your portent. Just as I have done, so shall it be done to them. They will be taken captive and moved far away. {12:12} And the leader who is in their midst will be carried on shoulders; he will go forth in darkness. They will dig through the wall, so that they may lead him away. His face will be covered, so that he may not see the land with his eye. {12:13} And I will extend my net over him, and he will be captured in my dragnet. And I will lead him to Babylon, into the land of the Chaldeans, but he himself will not see it. And there he shall die. {12:14} And all who are around him, his guards and his companies, I will scatter into every wind. And I will unsheathe the sword after them. {12:15} And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I will have dispersed them among the Gentiles, and will have sowed them among the lands. {12:16} And I will leave behind a few men of them, apart from the sword, and the famine, and the pestilence, so that they may declare all their wicked deeds among the Gentiles, to whom they will go. And they shall know that I am the Lord." {12:17} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {12:18} "Son of man, eat your bread in consternation. Moreover, drink your water hurriedly and in sorrow. {12:19} And say to the people of the land: Thus says the Lord God, to those who are living in Jerusalem, in the land of Israel: They shall eat their bread in anxiety, and drink their water in desolation, so that the land may be desolate before its multitude, because of the iniquity of all who are living in it. {12:20} And cities that are now inhabited will become desolate, and the land will be forsaken. And you shall know that I am the Lord." {12:21} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {12:22} "Son of man, what is this proverb that you have in the land of Israel? saying: 'The days shall be extended in length, and every vision shall perish.' {12:23} Therefore, say to them: Thus says the Lord God: I will cause this proverb to cease, and it shall no longer be a common saying in Israel. And tell them that the days are approaching, and the word of every vision. {12:24} For there shall be no longer be any empty visions, nor any ambiguous divination in the midst of the sons of Israel. {12:25} For I, the Lord, will speak. And whatever word I will speak, it shall be done, and it shall not be delayed any more. Instead, in your days, O provoking house, I will speak a word and do it, says the Lord God." {12:26} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {12:27} "Son of man, behold the house of Israel, those who are saying: 'The visions that this one sees is many days away,' and, 'This man prophesies about times that are far away.' {12:28} Because of this, say to them: Thus says the Lord God: No word of mine will be delayed any longer. The word that I will speak will be fulfilled, says the Lord God."
built a wall, but they have covered it in clay without straw. {13:11} Say to those who spread mortar without mixing, that it will fall apart. For there will be an inundating rain, and I will cause full-grown hailstones to rush down from above, and a windstorm to dissipate it. {13:12} So then, behold: when the wall has fallen, will it not be said to you: ‘Where is the mortar with which you covered it?’ {13:13} Because of this, thus says the Lord God: And I will cause a violent wind to burst forth in my indignation, and there will be an inundating rain in my fury, and great hailstones in wrath, to consume. {13:14} And I will destroy the wall that you have covered without tempering it. And I will level it to the ground, and its foundation will be revealed. And it will fall and be consumed in its midst. And you shall know that I am the Lord. {13:15} And I will fulfill my indignation against the wall, and against those who cover it without mixing the mortar, and I will say to you: The wall is no more, and those who covered it are no more: {13:16} the prophets of Israel, who prophesy to Jerusalem, and who see visions of peace for her when there is no peace, says the Lord God. {13:17} And as for you, son of man, set your face against the daughters of your people, who prophesy from their own heart. And prophesy about them, {13:18} and say: Thus says the Lord God: Woe to those who sew together little pillows under every forearm, and who make little cushions for the heads of every stage of life, in order to capture souls. And when they have seized the souls of my people, they became the life of their souls. {13:19} And they violated me among my people, for the sake of a handful of barley and a fragment of bread, so that they would kill the souls that should not die, and enlive the souls that should not live, lying to my people who believe in falsehoods. {13:20} Because of this, thus says the Lord God: Behold, I am against your little pillows, with which you catch flying souls. And I will tear them away from your arms. And I will release the souls that you are capturing, the souls that should fly. {13:21} And I will tear away your little cushions. And I will free my people from your hand. And they shall no longer be a prey in your hands. And you shall know that I am the Lord. {13:22} For by deception you have caused the heart of the just to grieve, whom I would not sadden. And I have strengthened the hands of the impious, so that he would not be turned back from his evil way and live. {13:23} Therefore, you shall not see emptiness, and you shall not divine divinations, any more. And I will rescue my people from your hand. And you shall know that I am the Lord.”

[Ezekiel 14] {14:1} And men among the elders of Israel came to me, and they sat down before me. {14:2} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {14:3} “Son of man, these men have placed their uncleanness in their hearts, and they have stationed the scandal of their iniquities before their face. So why should I respond when they inquire of me? {14:4} Because of this, speak to them, and you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord God: The man, the man of the house of Israel, who places his uncleanness in his heart, and who stations the scandal of his iniquities before his face, and who approaches a prophet, so as to inquire of me through him: I, the Lord, will respond to him in accord with the multitude of his uncleannesses, {14:5} so that the house of Israel may be seized within their own heart, by which they have withdrawn from me to all their idols. {14:6} Because of this, say to the house of Israel: Thus says the Lord God: Be converted, and withdraw from your idols, and turn your faces away from all your abominations. {14:7} For the man, the man of the house of Israel, and the new arrival among the converts who may be in Israel, if he is alienated from me, and he sets his idols in his heart, and he stations the scandal of his iniquity before his face, and he approaches the prophet, so that he may inquire of me through him: I, the Lord, will respond to him through myself. {14:8} And I will set my face against that man, and I will make him an example and a proverb. And I will perish him from the midst of my people. And you shall know that I am the Lord. {14:9} And when a prophet has gone astray and has spoken a word: I, the Lord, have deceived that prophet. And I will extend my hand over him, and I will wipe him away from the midst of my people, Israel. {14:10} And they shall bear their iniquity. In accord with the iniquity of the one who inquires, so shall the iniquity of the prophet be. {14:11} So may the house of Israel no longer go astray from me, nor be polluted by all their transgressions. Instead, may they be my people, and may I be their God, says the Lord of hosts.” {14:12} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {14:13} “Son of man, when a land has will have sinned against me, so that it transgresses grievely, I will extend my hand over it, and I will crush the staff of its bread. And I will send a famine upon it, and I will destroy from it both man and beast. {14:14} And if these three men, Noah, Daniel, and Job, were in it, in it, they would deliver their own souls by their justice, says the Lord of hosts. {14:15} And if I also lead in very harmful beasts upon the land, so that I devastate it, and it becomes impassable, so that no one may cross through it because of the beasts, {14:16} if these three men were in it, as I live, says the Lord God, they will deliver neither sons, nor daughters. But only they themselves will be delivered, for the land shall be desolated. {14:17} Or if I lead in the sword upon that land, and if I say to the sword, ‘Pass through the land,’ and so I destroy from it both man and beast, {14:18} and if these three men were in its midst, as I live, says the Lord God, they will deliver neither son, nor daughter, but they will deliver only their own souls by their justice. {14:21} For thus says the Lord God: Even though I will send upon Jerusalem my four most grievous judgments, sword and famine and harmful beasts and pestilence, so that I destroy from it both man and beast, {14:22} yet still there shall be left within it some who will be saved, who shall lead away their own sons and daughters. Behold, they will enter to you, and you will see their way and their accomplishments. And you shall be consoled concerning the evil that I have brought upon Jerusalem, concerning all the things that I have brought to bear upon it. {14:23} And they shall console you, when you see their ways and their accomplishments. And you shall know that I have not acted to no purpose in all that I have done within it, says the Lord God.”

[Ezekiel 15] {15:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {15:2} “Son of man, what can be made from the stalk of a vine, compared to all the plants of the woods that are among the trees of the forests?

{15:3} Can any wood be taken from it, so that it may be made into a work, or formed into a peg so as to hang some kind of vessel upon it?

{15:4} Behold, it is used in the fire as fuel. The fire consumes both its ends; and its middle is reduced to ashes. So how can it be useful for any work?

{15:5} Even when it was whole, it was unsuitable for a work. How much more so, when fire has devoured it and burned it up, will nothing of it be useful?

{15:6} Therefore, thus says the Lord God: Like the stalk of the vine among the trees of the forests, which I have given to be devoured by fire, so will I deliver the inhabitants of Jerusalem.

{15:7} And I will set my face against them. They will go away from fire, and yet fire will consume them. And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I will have set my face against them, {15:8} and when I will have made their land impassable and desolate. For they have stood forth as transgressors, says the Lord God."

[Ezekiel 16]

{16:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying:

{16:2} "Son of man, make known to Jerusalem her abominations.

{16:3} And you shall say: Thus says the Lord God to Jerusalem: Your root and your lineage is from the land of Canaan; your father was an Amorite, and your mother was a Cethite.

{16:4} And when you were born, on the day of your nativity, your umbilical cord was not cut, and you were not washed with water for health, nor salted with salt, nor wrapped with cloths.

{16:5} No eye took pity on you, so as to do even one of these things to you, out of compassion for you. Instead, you were cast upon the face of the earth, in the abjection of your soul, on the day when you were born.

{16:6} But, passing by you, I saw that you were wallowing in your own blood. And I said to you, when you were in your blood: 'Live.' I tell you that I said to you, in your blood: 'Live.'

{16:7} I multiplied you like the seedling of the field. And you were multiplied and became great, and you advanced and arrived at the ornament of a woman. Your breasts rose up, and your hair grew. And you were naked and full of shame.

{16:8} And I passed by you and saw you. And behold, your time was the time of lovers. And I spread my garment over you, and I covered your disgrace. And I swore to you, and I entered into a covenant with you, says the Lord God, and you became mine.

{16:9} And I washed you with water, and I cleansed you of your blood, and I anointed you with oil.

{16:10} And I covered you with embroidery, and I put violet shoes upon you, and I wrapped you in fine linen, and I clothed you with delicate garments.

{16:11} I adorned you with ornaments, and I put bracelets upon your hands and a necklace around your neck.

{16:12} And I put gold upon your face, and earrings in your ears, and a beautiful crown upon your head.

{16:13} And you were adorned with gold and silver, and you were clothed in fine linen, woven with many colors. You ate fine flour, and honey, and oil. And you became very beautiful. And you advanced to royal power.

{16:14} And your renown went forth among the Gentiles, because of your beauty. For you were perfected by my beauty, which I had placed upon you, says the Lord God.

{16:15} But, having confidence in your own beauty, you fornicated in your fame. And you presented your fornication to every passer-by, so as to become his.

{16:16} And taking from your garments, you made for yourself exalted things, having sewed together disparate pieces. And you fornicated upon them, in a way that has not been done before, nor will be in the future.

{16:17} And you took your beautiful items, made of my gold and my silver, which I gave to you, and you made for yourself images of men, and you fornicated with them.

{16:18} And you used your multicolored vestments to cover these things. And you placed my oil and my incense before them.

{16:19} And my bread, which I gave to you, the fine flour, and the oil, and the honey, by which I nourished you, you placed in their sight as a sweet fragrance. And so it was done, says the Lord God.

{16:20} And you took your sons and your daughters, whom you bore for me, and you immolated them to be devoured. Is your fornication a small matter?

{16:21} You have immolated my sons, and you have consecrated and delivered my sons to them.

{16:22} And after all your abominations and fornications, you have not remembered the days of your youth, when you were naked and full of shame, wallowing in your own blood.

{16:23} And it happened that, after all your wickedness, (woe, woe to you, says the Lord God) you built for yourself a brothel, and you made for yourself a place of prostitution in every street.

{16:24} At the head of every way, you set up a place of prostitution, and you made for yourself a brothel, and you made for yourself a place of prostitution in every street.

{16:25} At the head of every way, you set up a place of prostitution, and you made for yourself a brothel, and you made for yourself a place of prostitution in every street.

{16:26} At the head of every way, you set up a place of prostitution, and you made for yourself a brothel, and you made for yourself a place of prostitution in every street.

{16:27} Behold, I will extend my hand over you, and I will take away your justification. And I will give you to the souls of those who hate you, the daughters of the Philistines, who are ashamed of your wicked way.

{16:28} You also fornicated with the sons of the Assyrians, for you were not yet done. And after you fornicated, even then, you were not satisfied.

{16:29} And you multiplied your fornications in the land of Canaan with the Chaldeans. And even then, you were not satisfied.

{16:30} With what can I cleanse your heart, says the Lord God, since you do all these things, the works of a woman who is a shameless prostitute?

{16:31} For you have built your brothel at the head of every way, and you have made your exalted place on every street. And you have not even been like a choosy prostitute, increasing her price, but instead like a woman who is an adulteress, who prefers strangers to her own husband.

{16:32} Wages are given to all prostitutes. But you have given wages to all your lovers, and you have given gifts to them, so that they would enter to you from every side, in order to fornicate with you.

{16:33} And it is done with you, in your fornications, contrary to the custom of women, and even after you, there will be no such fornication. For in as much as you have given payment, and not taken payment, what has been done in you is the contrary."

{16:35} Because of this, O harlot, listen to the word of the Lord.

{16:36} Thus says the Lord God: "Because your money has been poured out, and your disgrace has been uncovered, in your fornications with your lovers and with the idols of your abominations, in the blood of your sons, whom you gave to them:

{16:37} Behold, I will gather all your lovers, with whom you have united, and all those whom you have loved, together with all those whom you have hated. And I will gather them together against you on every side. And I will uncover your disgrace before them, and they will see all your indecency.

{16:38} And I will judge you with the judgment of adulteresses and of those who shed blood. And I will give you over to blood, in fury and in zeal.

And I will deliver you into their hands. And they will destroy your brothel and demolish your place of prostitution. And they will strip you of your vestments. And they will take away the ornaments of your beauty. And they will leave you behind, naked and full of disgrace. And they will lead over you a multitude. And they will stone you with stones, and massacre you with their swords. And they will burn up your houses with fire, and they will carry out judgments against you in the sight of many women. And you will cease from fornication, and no longer give payment. And my indignation will be quieted in you. And my zeal will be taken from you. And I will rest, and no longer be angry. For you have not remembered the days of your youth, and you have provoked me in all these things. Because of this, I also have delivered all your ways upon your head, says the Lord God, but I have not acted in accord with your wickedness in all your abominations. Behold, all who speak a common proverb will take this up against you, saying: 'Like the mother, so also is her daughter.' You are your mother’s daughter, for she cast away her husband and her children. And you are the sister of your sisters, for they cast away their husbands and their children. Your mother was a Cethite, and your father was an Amorite. And your older sister is Samaria, she and her daughters are those who live to your left. But your younger sister, who lives to your right, is Sodom and her daughters.

But neither have you walked in their ways. For you have done only a little less compared to their wickedness. You have acted almost more wickedly, in all your ways, than they have acted. As I live, says the Lord God, your sister Sodom herself, and her daughters, have not done as you and your daughters have done. Behold, this was the iniquity of Sodom, your sister: arrogance, indulgence in bread and abundance, and the idleness of her and her daughters; and they did not reach out their hand to the needy and the poor. And they were exalted, and they committed abominations before me. And so I took them away, just as you have seen.

But Saria has not committed even half of your sins. For you have exceeded them in your wickedness, and you have justified your sisters by all your abominations, which you have wrought. Therefore, you also bear your shame, for you have exceeded your sisters with your sins, acting more wickedly than they did. So they have been justified above you. By this also, you are confounded, and you bear your disgrace, for you have justified your sisters. But I will convert and restore them, by converting Sodom with her daughters, and by converting Samaria and her daughters. And I will convert your return in their midst. So may you bear your disgrace and be confounded over all that you have done, consoling them. And your sister Sodom and her daughters will return to their ancient state. And Samaria and her daughters will return to their ancient state. And you and your daughters will be returned to your ancient state. Your sister Sodom was not heard from your mouth, then, in the day of your pride, before your malice was revealed, as it is at this time, with the reproach of the daughters of Syria and of all the daughters of Palestine, who surround you, who encircle you on every side. You have borne your wickedness and your disgrace, says the Lord God.” For thus says the Lord God: “I will act toward you, just as you have despised the oath, so that you would make void the covenant.

And I will remember my covenant with you in the days of your youth. And I will raise up for you an everlasting covenant. And you shall remember your ways and be confounded, when you will have received your sisters, your elder with your younger. And I will give them to you as daughters, but not by your covenant. And I will raise up my covenant with you. And you shall know that I am the Lord. So may you remember and be confounded. And it will no longer be for you to open your mouth, because of your shame, when I will have been pacified toward you over all that you have done, says the Lord God.”

And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: Son of man, propose an enigma and describe a parable to the house of Israel, and you shall say: Thus says the Lord God: A large eagle, with great wings and elongated pinions, full of feathers with many colors, came to Lebanon. And he took the kernel of the cedar. He tore off the summit of its branches, and he transported it to the land of Canaan; he placed it in a city of merchants. And he took from the seed of the land and placed it in the ground for seed, so that it might take firm root above many waters; he placed it at the surface. And when it had germinated, it increased into a more extensive vine, low in height, with its branches facing toward itself. And its roots were underneath it. And so, it became a vine, and sprouted branches, and produced shoots. And there was another large eagle, with great wings and many feathers. And behold, this vine seemed to bend its roots towards him, extending its branches toward him, so that he might irrigate it from the garden of its germination. It had been planted in a good land, above many waters, so that it would produce branches and bear fruit, so that it would become a large vine. Speak: Thus says the Lord God: What if it does not prosper? Should he not pull up its roots, and strip off its fruit, and dry up all the branches that it has produced, and let it wither, though he is without a strong arm and without many people to pull it up by the root? Behold, it has been planted. What if it does not prosper? Should it not be dried up when the burning wind touches it, and should it not wither in the garden of its germination? And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: “Say to the provoking house: Do you not know what these things signify? Say: Behold, the king of Babylon arrives in Jerusalem. And he will take away its king and princes, and he will lead them away to himself in Babylon. And he will take one from the offspring of the king, and he will strike a pact with him and receive an oath from him. Moreover, he will take away the strong ones of the land, so that it may be a lowly kingdom, and may not lift itself up, and may instead keep his pact and serve it. But, withdrawing from him, he sent messengers to Egypt, so that it would give him horses and many people. Should he who has done these things prosper and obtain safety? And should he who has broken the pact go free? As I live, says the Lord God, in the place of the king, who appointed him as king, whose oath he has made void, and whose pact he has broken, under which he was living with him, in the midst of Babylon, he shall die. And not with a great army, nor with many people will Pharaoh undertake a battle against him, when he will cast up ramparts and build defenses, in order to put to death many souls. {17:18} For he has despised an oath, in that he broke the pact. And behold, he had given his hand. And so, since he has done all these things, he shall not escape. {17:19} Because of this, thus says the Lord God: As I live, I will place upon his head the oath that he has sworn and the pact that he has betrayed. {17:20} And I will spread my net over him, and he will be captured in my dragnet. And I will lead him into Babylon, and I will judge him there for the transgression by which he has despoised me. {17:21} And all his fugitives, with all his procession, will fall by the sword. Then the remainder will be scattered into every wind. And you shall know that I, the Lord, have spoken.” {17:22} Thus says the Lord God: “I myself will take from the kernel of the exalted cedar, and I will establish it. I will tear off a tender twig from the top of its branches, and I will plant it on a mountain, lofty and exalted. {17:23} On the sublime mountains of Israel, I will plant it. And it shall spring forth in buds and bear fruit, and it shall be a great cedar. And all the birds will live under it, and every bird will make its nest under the shadow of its branches. {17:24} And all the trees of the regions will know that I, the Lord, have brought low the sublime tree, and have exalted the lowly tree, and have dried up the green tree, and have caused the dry tree to flourish. I, the Lord, have spoken and acted.”

[Ezekiel 18] {18:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {18:2} “Why is it that you circulate among yourselves this parable, as a proverb in the land of Israel, saying: ‘The fathers ate a bitter grape, and the teeth of the sons have been affected.’ {18:3} As I live, says the Lord God, this parable shall no longer be a proverb for you in Israel. {18:4} Behold, all souls are mine. Just as the soul of the father is mine, so also is the soul of the son. The soul that sins, the same shall die. {18:5} And if a man is just, and he accomplishes judgment and justice, {18:6} and if he does not eat upon the mountains, nor lift up his eyes to the idols of the house of Israel, and who has not grieved any man, nor

[19:1] “And as for you, take up a lament over the leaders of Israel, {19:2} and you shall say: Why did your mother, the lioness, recline among the male lions, and raise her little ones in the midst of young lions? {19:3} And she led away one of her little ones, and he became a lion. And he learned to seize prey and to consume men. {19:4} And the Gentiles heard about him, and they seized him, but not without receiving wounds. And they led him away in chains to the land of Egypt. [19:5] Then, when she had seen that she was weakened, and that her hope had perished, she took one of her little ones, and appointed him as a lion. [19:6] And he advanced among the lions, and he became a lion. And he learned to seize prey and to devour men. [19:7] He learned to make widows, and to lead their citizens into the desert. And the land, with its plenteitude, was made desolate by the voice of his roaring. [19:8] And the Gentiles came together against him, on every side, from the provinces, and they spread their net over him; by their wounds, he was captured. [19:9] And they put him into a cage; they led him in chains to the king of Babylon. And they cast him into a prison, so that his voice would no longer be heard upon the mountains of Israel. [19:10] Your mother is like a vine, in your blood, planted by the water, her fruit and her branches have increased because of many waters. [19:11] And her strong branches were made into scepters for the rulers, and her stature was exalted among the branches. And she saw her own loftiness among the multitude of her branches. [19:12] But she was uprooted in wrath, and cast upon the ground. And the burning wind dried up her fruit. Her robust branches withered and were dried up. A fire consumed her. [19:13] And now she has been transplanted into the desert, into a land impassable and dry. [19:14] And a fire has gone forth from a rod of her branches, which has consumed her fruit. And there is no strong branch in her to become a scepter for the rulers. This is a lamentation, and it shall be a lamentation."

[Ezekiel 20] {20:1} And it happened that, in the seventh year, in the fifth month, on the tenth of the month, men from the elders of Israel arrived, so that they might inquire of the Lord, and they sat before me. {20:2} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {20:3} "Son of man, speak to the elders of Israel, and you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord God: Have you arrived in order to inquire of me? As I live, I will not answer you, says the Lord God. {20:4} If you judge them, if you judge, O son of man, reveal to them the abominations of their fathers. {20:5} And you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord God: In the day when I chose Israel, and I lifted up my hand on behalf of the stock of the house of Jacob, and I appeared to them in the land of Egypt, and I lifted up my hand on behalf of the stock of the house of Jacob, and I appeared to them in the land of Egypt, and I lifted up my hand on their behalf, saying, 'I am the Lord your God,' {20:6} in that day, I lifted up my hand for their sake, so that I would lead them away from the land of Egypt, into a land which I had provided for them, flowing with milk and honey, which was singular among all lands. {20:7} And I said to them: 'Let each one cast away the offenses of his eyes, and do not choose to defile yourselves with the idols of Egypt. I am the Lord your God.' {20:8} But they provoked me, and they were not willing to listen to me. Each one of them did not cast away the abominations of his eyes, nor did they leave behind the idols of Egypt. And so, I said that I would pour out my indignation upon them, and fulfill my wrath against them, in the midst of the land of Egypt. [20:9] But I acted for the sake of my name, so that it would not be violated in the sight of the Gentiles, in the midst of whom they were, and among whom I appeared to them, so that I might lead them away from the land of Egypt. [20:10] Therefore, I cast them out of the land of Egypt, and I led them away into the desert. [20:11] And I gave them my precepts, and I revealed to them my judgments, which, if a man does them, he shall live by them. [20:12] Moreover, I also gave to them my Sabbaths, so that these would be a sign between me and them, and so that they would know that I am the Lord, who sanctifies them. [20:13] But the house of Israel provoked me in the desert. They did not walk in my precepts, and they cast aside my judgments, which, if a man does them, he shall live by them. And they grievously violated my Sabbaths. Therefore, I said that I would pour out my fury upon them in the desert, and that I would consume them. [20:14] But I acted for the sake of my name, lest it be violated before the Gentiles, from whom I cast them out, in their sight. [20:15] And so I lifted up my hand over them in the desert, so as not to lead them into the land that I had given to them, flowing with milk and honey, the foremost of all lands. [20:16] For they cast aside my judgments, and they did not walk in my precepts, and they violated my Sabbaths. For their heart went after idols. [20:17] Yet my eye was lenient concerning them, so that I did not utterly destroy them, nor did I consume them in the desert. [20:18] Then I said to their sons in the wilderness: ‘Do not choose to advance by the precepts of your fathers, nor should you observe their judgments. And do not be defiled by their idols. [20:19] I am the Lord your God. Walk in my precepts, and observe my judgments, and accomplish them. [20:20] And sanctify my Sabbaths, so that these may be a sign between me and you, and so that you may know that I am the Lord your God.’ [20:21] But their sons provoked me. They did not walk in my precepts. And they did not observe my judgments, so as to do them; for if a man does them, he shall live by them. And they violated my Sabbaths. And so, I threatened that I would pour out my fury upon them, and that I would fulfill my wrath among them in the desert. [20:22] But I turned aside my hand, and I acted for the sake of my name, so that it would not be violated before the Gentiles, from whom I cast them out, before their eyes. [20:23] Again, I lifted up my hand against them, in the wilderness, so that I would disperse them among the nations, and scatter them among the lands. [20:24] For they had not accomplished my judgments, and they had rejected my precepts, and they had violated my Sabbaths. And their eyes had been after the idols of their fathers. [20:25] Therefore, I also gave them precepts that were not good, and judgments by which they shall not live. [20:26] And I defiled them by their own gifts, when they offered everything that opened the womb, because of their offenses. And they shall know that I am the Lord. [20:27] For this reason, son of man, speak to the house of Israel, and you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord God. Yet also in this did your fathers blaspheme me, after they had spurned and despised me, [20:28] though I had led them into the land, about which I lifted up my hand, so that I might give it to them: They saw every lofty hill and every leafy tree, and there they immolated their victims, and there they presented the provocation of their oblations, and there they stationed their sweet fragrances, and poured out their libations. [20:29] And I said to them, ‘What is exalted about the place to which you go?’ And yet its name is called ‘Exalted,’ even to this day. [20:30] Because of this, say to the house of Israel: Thus says the Lord God: Certainly, you are defiled by the way of your fathers, and you have fornicated after their stumbling blocks. [20:31] And you are being defiled by all of your idols, even to this day, by the oblation of your gifts, when you lead your sons through the fire. And should I respond to you, O house of Israel? As I live, says the Lord God, I will not answer you. {20:32} And the plan of your mind will not occur, saying: ‘We will be like the Gentiles, and like the families of the earth, so that we worship what is wood and stone.’ {20:33} As I live, says the Lord God, I will reign over you with a strong hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with fury poured out. {20:34} And I will lead you away from the peoples. And I will gather you from the lands into which you were dispersed. I will reign over you with a powerful hand, and with an outstretched arm, and with fury poured out. {20:35} And I will lead you into the desert of the peoples, and there I will enter into judgment with you, face to face. {20:36} Just as I contended in judgment against your fathers in the desert of the land of Egypt, so also will I enter into judgment with you, says the Lord God. {20:37} And I will subject you to my scepter, and I will lead you into the bonds of the covenant. {20:38} And I will select, from among you, the transgressors and the impious. And I will lead them away from the land of their sojourn, but they shall not enter into the land of Israel. And you shall know that I am the Lord. {20:39} And as for you, house of Israel: thus says the Lord God: Walk, each one of you, after your idols and serve them. But if in this also you will not listen to me, and you continue to defile my holy name with your gifts and with your idols, {20:40} on my holy mountain, on the exalted mountain of Israel, says the Lord God, there all the house of Israel shall serve me; all of them, I say, in the land in which they shall please me, and where I will require your first-fruits, and the foremost of your tithes, with all your sanctifications. {20:41} I will receive from you a fragrance of sweetness, when I will have led you away from the peoples, and gathered you from the lands into which you were dispersed. And I will be sanctified in you before the eyes of the nations. {20:42} And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I will have led you into the land of Israel, into the land about which I lifted up my hand, so that I would give it to your fathers. {20:43} And there you shall remember your ways and all your wickedness, by which you have been defiled. And you will be displeased with yourselves in your own sight, over all your evil deeds which you did. {20:44} And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I will have acted well toward you for the sake of my name, and not according to your evil ways, nor according to your very great wickedness, O house of Israel, says the Lord God.” {20:45} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {20:46} “Son of man, set your face against the way of the south, and pour in drops toward Africa, and prophesy against the land of Israel: Thus says the Lord God: Behold, I am against you, and I will cast my sword from its sheath, and I will slay the just and the impious among you. {21:4} But in as much as I have slain among you the just and the impious, for this reason my sword will go forth from its sheath against all flesh, from the south even to the north. {21:5} So may all flesh know that I, the Lord, have led my sword out of its sheath irreversibly. {21:6} And as for you, son of man, groan in the breaking of your back, and groan in bitterness before them. {21:7} And when they will say to you, ‘Why are you groaning?’ you shall say: ‘On behalf of the report, For it is approaching. And every heart will waste away, and every hand will be broken, and every spirit will be weakened, and water will flow across every knee.’ Behold, it is approaching and it will happen, says the Lord God.” {21:8} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {21:9} “Son of man, prophesy, and you shall say: Thus says the Lord God: Speak: The sword! The sword has been sharpened and polished! {21:10} It has been sharpened, so that it may cut down victims! It has been polished, so that it may shine! You are disturbing the scepter of my son. You have cut down every tree. {21:11} And I have sent it to be made smooth, so that it may be handled. This sword has been sharpened, and it has been polished, so that it may be in the hand of the one who kills. {21:12} Cry out and wail, O son of man! For this has been done among my people, this is among all the leaders of Israel, who have fled. They have been handed over to the sword, with my people. Therefore, slap your thigh, {21:13} for it has been tested. And this one, when he will have overthrown the scepter, will not be, says the Lord God. {21:14} You therefore, O son of man, prophesy, and strike hand against hand, and let the sword be doubled, and let the sword of the slain be tripled. This is the sword of the great slaughter, which causes them to be utterly stupefied, {21:15} and to waste away in heart, and which multiplies ruin. At all their gates, I have presented the constellation of the sword, which has been sharpened and polished so as to shine, which has been dressed for the slaughter. {21:16} Be sharpened! Go to the right or to the left, whichever way is the desire of your face. {21:17} And then I will clap hand against hand, and I will fulfill my indignation. I, the Lord, have spoken.” {21:18} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {21:19} “And as for you, son of man, set for yourself two ways, so that the sword of the king of Babylon may approach. Both shall go forth from one land. And with a hand, he will grasp and cast lots; he will cast at the head of the two ways, seeking divination, shuffling arrows; he inquired of idols, and he consulted entrails. {21:22} To his right was set the divination over Jerusalem, to place battering rams so as to open a mouth for the slaughter, to lift up the voice of wailing, to place battering rams opposite the gates, to cast up a rampart, to build fortifications. {21:23} And he shall be, in their eyes, like someone consulting an oracle in vain, or imitating the leisure of Sabbaths. But he will call to mind iniquities, so that it will be captured. {21:24} Therefore, thus says the Lord God: Because you have been remembered in your iniquities, and you have revealed your betrayals, and your sins have appeared within all your plans, because, I say, you have been remembered, you will be captured by a hand. {21:25} But as for you, O impious leader of Israel, whose day has arrived that was predetermined at the time of iniquity: {21:26} Thus says the Lord God: Take away the diadem, remove the crown. Is this not what has exalted the lowly one, and brought low the sublime one? {21:27} Iniquity, iniquity, iniquity I will make it. And this was not done until the one arrived to whom judgment belongs, and I will hand it over to him. {21:28} And as for you, son of man, prophesy, and say: Thus says the Lord God to the sons of Ammon, and to their disgrace, and you shall say: O sword, O sword, unsheathe yourself so as to slay; polish yourself so as to kill and to shine, {21:29} while they look upon you in vain, and they divine lies, so that you may be given over to the necks of the wounded impious, whose day has arrived that was predetermined at the time of iniquity. {21:30} Be returned to your sheath! I will judge you in the place where you were created, in the land of your nativity. {21:31} And I will pour out upon you my indignation. In the fire of my fury, I will fan you, and I will give you over to the hands of cruel men, who have devised destruction. {21:32} You will be food for the fire; your blood will be in the midst of the land; you will be delivered to oblivion. For I, the Lord, have spoken.”

[Ezekiel 22] {22:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {22:2} “And you, son of man, should you not judge, should you not judge the city of blood? {22:3} And you shall reveal to her all her abominations. And you shall say: Thus says the Lord God: This is the city which sheds blood in her midst, so that her time may come, and which has made idols against herself, so that she may be defiled. {22:4} You have offended by your blood, which you shed from yourself. And you have been defiled by your idols which you yourself made. And you have caused your days to approach, and you have brought on the time of your years. Because of this, I have made you a disgrace to the Gentiles, and a derision to all the lands. {22:5} Those that are near and those that are far from you will triumph over you. You are filthy, infamous, great in destruction. {22:6} Behold, the leaders of Israel have each used his arm to shed blood within you. {22:7} They have abused father and mother within you. The new arrival has been oppressed in your midst. They have grieved the orphan, and the widow among you. {22:8} You have spurned my sanctuaries, and you have defiled my Sabbaths. {22:9} Maligning men were within you, in order to shed blood, and they have eaten upon the mountains within you. They have worked wickedness in your midst. {22:10} They have uncovered the nakedness of their father within you. They have debased the uncleanness of the menstruous woman within you. {22:11} And each one has committed abomination with the wife of his neighbor. And the father-in-law has heinously defiled his daughter-in-law. The brother has oppressed his sister, the daughter of his father, within you. {22:12} They have accepted bribes among you to shed blood. You have received usury and superabundance, and in avarice you have oppressed your neighbors. And you have forgotten me, says the Lord God. {22:13} Behold, I have clapped my hands over your avarice, which you have worked, and over the blood that has been shed in your midst. {22:14} How can your heart endure, or your hands prevail, in the days that I will bring upon you? I, the Lord, have spoken, and I will act. {22:15} And I will disperse you among the nations, and I will scatter you among the lands, and I will cause your uncleanness to fade away from you. {22:16} And I will possess you in the sight of the Gentiles. And you shall know that I am the Lord.” {22:17} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {22:18} “Son of man, the house of Israel has become like dross to me. All these are brass, and tin, and iron, and lead in the midst of the furnace; they have become like the dross of silver. {22:19} Because of this, thus says the Lord God: Since you have all turned into dross, therefore, behold, I will gather you together in the midst of Jerusalem, {22:20} just as they gather silver, and brass, and tin, and iron, and lead in the midst of the furnace, so that I may kindle in it a fire to melt it. So will I gather you together in my fury and in my wrath, and I will be quieted, and I will melt you down. {22:21} And I will gather you together, and I will burn you in the fire of my fury, and you will be melted in its midst. {22:22} Just as silver is melted in the midst of the furnace, so will you be in its midst. And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I will have poured out my indignation upon you.” {22:23} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {22:24} “Son of man, say to her: You are a land unclean and not rained upon, in the day of fury. {22:25} There is a conspiracy of prophets in her midst. Like a lion, roaring and seizing the prey, they have devoured souls. They have taken riches and a price. They have multiplied widows in her midst. {22:26} Her priests have despised my law, and they have defiled my sanctuaries. They have held no distinction between holy and profane. And they have not understood the difference between defiled and clean. And they have averted their eyes from my Sabbaths. And I was profaned in their midst. {22:27} Her leaders in her midst are like wolves seizing the prey: to shed blood, and to perish souls, and to continually pursue profit with avarice. {22:28} And her prophets have covered them without tempering the mortar, seeing emptiness, and divining lies for them, saying, ‘Thus says the Lord God,’ when the Lord has not spoken. {22:29} The people of the land have oppressed with slander and have seized with violence. They have afflicted the needy and the poor, and they have oppressed the new arrival by accusations without judgment. {22:30} And I sought among them for a man who might set up a hedge, and stand in the gap before me on behalf of the land, so that I might not destroy it; and I found no one. {22:31} And so I poured out my indignation upon them; in the fire of my wrath I consumed them. I have rendered their own way upon their head, says the Lord God.”

[Ezekiel 23] {23:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {23:2} “Son of man, two women were daughters of one mother, {23:3} and they fornicated in Egypt; they committed fornication in their youth. In that place, their breasts were conquered; the breasts of their adolescence were subdued. {23:4} Now their names were Oholah, the elder, and Oholibah, her younger sister. And I held them, and they bore sons and daughters. As for their names: Oholah is Samaria, and Oholibah is Jerusalem. {23:5} And then, Oholah committed fornication against me, and she acted madly with her lovers, with the Assyrians who approached her, {23:6} who were clothed with hyacinth: rulers and magistrates, passionate youths and all of the horsemen, mounted on horses. {23:7} And she distributed her fornications to those chosen men, all of them sons of the Assyrians. And she defiled herself with the uncleanness of all those whom she madly desired. {23:8} Moreover, she also did not abandon her fornications, which she had done in Egypt. For they also slept with her in her youth, and they bruised the breasts of her virginity, and they poured out their fornication upon her. {23:9} Because of this, I have delivered her into the hands of her lovers, into the hands of the sons of the Assur, whom she has lustfully desired. {23:10} They uncovered her shame; they took away her sons and daughters; and they slew her with the sword. And they became infamous women. And they carried out judgments in her. {23:11} And when her sister, Oholibah, had seen this, she was even more mad with lust than the other. And her fornication was beyond the fornication of her sister. {23:12} She shamelessly offered herself to the sons of the Assyrians, to the rulers and magistrates who brought themselves to her clothed with colorful garments, to the horsemen who were carried by horses, and to the youths, all of them exceptional in appearance. {23:13} And I saw that she had been defiled, and that they both took the same path. {23:14} And she increased her fornications. And when she had seen men depicted on the wall, the images of the Chaldeans, expressed in colors, {23:15} with belts wrapped around the waist, and with dyed headaddresses on their heads, having seen the appearance of all the rulers, the likenesses of the sons of Babylon and of the land of the Chaldeans in which they were born, {23:16} she became mad for them with the desire of her eyes, and she sent messengers to them in Chaldea. {23:17} And when the sons of Babylon had gone to her, to the bed of breasts, they defiled her with their fornications, and she was polluted by them, and her soul was gorged by them. {23:18} Also, her fornications were uncovered, and her shame was revealed. And my soul withdrew from her, as my soul had withdrawn from her sister. {23:19} For she multiplied her fornications, remembering the days of her youth, in which she fornicated in the land of Egypt. {23:20} And she was mad with lust after lying with them, whose flesh is like the flesh of donkeys, and whose flow is like the flow of horses. {23:21} And you have revisited the crimes of your youth, when your breasts were conquered in Egypt, and the breasts of your adolescence were subdued. {23:22} Because of this, Oholibah, thus says the Lord God: Behold, I will raise up against you all of your lovers, with whom your soul has been gorged. And I will gather them together against you all around: {23:23} the sons of Babylon, and all the Chaldeans, the nobles, the sovereigns and princes, all the sons of the Assyrians, youths of exceptional form, all the rulers and magistrates, the leaders among leaders, and the renowned riders of horses. {23:24} And they will overwhelm you, well-equipped with chariot and wheel, a multitude of peoples. They will be armed against you on every side with armor and shield and helmet. And I will give judgment to their eyes, and they will judge you with their judgments. {23:25} And against you, I will set my zeal, which they will execute upon you with fury. They will cut off your nose and your ears. And what remains will fall by the sword. They will seize your sons and your daughters, and your youngest will be devoured by fire. {23:26} And they will strip you of your vestments, and take away the articles of your glory. {23:27} And I will cause your wickedness to cease from you, and your fornication to cease from the land of Egypt. Neither shall you lift up your eyes toward them, and you shall no longer remember Egypt. {23:28} For thus says the Lord God: Behold, I will deliver you into the hands of those whom you have hated, into the hands by which your soul has been gorged. {23:29} And they will act toward you with hatred, and they will take away all your labors, and they will send you away naked and filled with disgrace. And the shame of your fornication will be revealed: your crimes and your fornications. {23:30} They have done these things to you, because you have fornicated after the Gentiles, among whom you were defiled by their idols. {23:31} You have walked in the way of your sister, and so I will give her chalice into your hand. {23:32} Thus says the Lord God: You will drink the chalice of your sister, deep and wide. You will be held in derision and in ridicule, to a very great extent. {23:33} You will be filled with inebriation and sorrow, by the chalice of grief and sadness, by the chalice of your sister Samaria. {23:34} And you will drink it, and you will empty it, even to the dregs. And you will consume even its particles. And you will wound your own breasts. For I have spoken, says the Lord God. {23:35} Because of this, thus says the Lord God: Since you have forgotten me, and you have cast me behind your body, so also will you bear your wickedness and your fornications.” {23:36} And the Lord spoke to me, saying: “Son of man, should you not judge Oholah and Oholibah, and announce to them their crimes? {23:37} For they are adulteresses, and blood is in their hands, and they have fornicated with their idols. Moreover, they have offered even their children, whom they bore for me, to them to be devoured. {23:38} But they have done even this to me: They have defiled my sanctuary on the same day, and they have profaned my Sabbaths. {23:39} And when they immolated their children to their idols, they also entered my sanctuary on the same day, so that they defiled it. They have done these things, even in the midst of my house. {23:40} They sent for men who were coming from far away, to whom they had sent a messenger. And so, behold, they arrived, those for whom you washed yourself, and smeared cosmetics around your eyes, and were adorned with feminine ornaments. {23:41} You sat upon a very beautiful bed, and a table was adorned before you, on which you placed my sanctuary on the same day, so that they defiled it. They have offered even their children, whom they bore for me, to them to be devoured. {23:42} And they will set their hand against you with a multitude, and hand them over to tumult and to pillaging. {23:43} And they will be stoned with the stones of judgment of adulteresses and with the judgment of those who shed blood. For they are adulteresses, and blood is on their hands. {23:44} And they entered to her, as if to a kept woman. So did they enter to Oholah and Oholibah, nefarious women. {23:45} But there are just men; these shall judge them with the judgment of adulteresses and with the judgment of those who shed blood. For they are adulteresses, and blood is on their hands. {23:46} For thus says the Lord God: Lead upon them a multitude, and hand them over to tumult and to pillaging. {23:47} And may they be stoned with the stones of the peoples, and may they be pierced with their own swords. They will put to death their sons and daughters, and they will burn their houses with fire. {23:48} And I will take away wickedness from the land. And all women shall learn not to act according to their wickedness. {23:49} And they will set your own crimes upon you, and you will bear the sins of your idols. And you shall know that I am the Lord God.”
[Ezekiel 24] (24:1) And the word of the Lord came to me, in the ninth year, in the tenth month, on the tenth day of the month, saying: (24:2) “Son of man, write for yourself the name of this day, on which the king of Babylon was confirmed against Jerusalem today. (24:3) And you shall speak, through a proverb, a parable to the inciting house. And you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord God: Set out a cooking pot; set it out, I say, and put water into it. (24:4) Pile together within it every morsel, every good piece, the thigh and the shoulder, the choice pieces and those full of bones. (24:5) Take the fattest from the flock, and arrange also a heap of bones under it. Its cooking has boiled over, and its bones in its midst have been thoroughly cooked. (24:6) Because of this, thus says the Lord God: Woe to the city of blood, to the cooking pot that has rust in it, and whose rust has not gone out of it! Cast it out piece by piece! No lot has fallen upon it. (24:7) For her blood is in her midst; she has shed it upon the smoothest rock. She has not shed it upon the ground, so that it could be covered with dust. (24:8) So shall I bring my indignation over her, and take my vengeance. I have presented her blood upon the smoothest rock, so that it would not be covered. (24:9) Because of this, thus says the Lord God: Woe to the city of blood, out of which I will make a great funeral pyre. (24:10) Pile together the bones, which I will burn with fire. The flesh shall be consumed, and the entire composition shall be boiled, and the bones shall deteriorate. (24:11) Also, place it empty on burning coals, so that it may be heated, and its brass may melt. And let the flint of it be melted in its midst, and let its rust be consumed. (24:12) There has been much sweat and labor, and yet its extensive rust has not gone out of it, not even by fire. (24:13) Your uncleanness is execrable. For I wanted to cleanse you, and you have not been cleansed from your filth. So then, neither will you be cleansed before I cause my indignation over you to cease. (24:14) I, the Lord, have spoken. It shall happen, and I will act. I will not pass over, nor be lenient, nor be placated. I will judge you according to your ways and according to your intentions, says the Lord.” (24:15) And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: (24:16) “Son of man, behold, I am taking away from you, with a stroke, the desire of your eyes. And you shall not lament, and you shall not weep. And your tears shall not flow down. (24:17) Groan silently; you shall make no mourning for the dead. Let the band of your crown be on you, and let your shoes be on your feet. And you shall not cover your face, nor shall you eat the food of those who mourn.” (24:18) Therefore, I spoke to the people in the morning. And my wife died in the evening. And in the morning, I did just as he had instructed me. (24:19) And the people said to me: “Why won’t you explain to us what these things signify, which you are doing?” (24:20) And I said to them: “The word of the Lord came to me, saying: (24:21) ‘Speak to the house of Israel: Thus says the Lord God: Behold, I will defile my sanctuary, the pride of your realm, and the desire of your eyes, and the dread of your soul. Your sons and your daughters, whom you have forsaken, will fall by the sword.’ (24:22) And so, you shall do just as I have done. You shall not cover your faces, and you shall not eat the food of those who mourn. (24:23) You shall have crowns on your heads, and shoes on your feet. You shall not lament, and you shall not weep. Instead, you will waste away in your iniquities, and each one will groan to his brother. (24:24) ’And Ezekiel shall be a portent for you. In accord with all that he has done, so shall you do, when this will happen. And you shall know that I am the Lord God.’ ” (24:25) “And as for you, son of man, behold, in the day when I will take away from them their strength, and the joy of their dignity, and the desire of their eyes, in which their souls find rest: their sons and their daughters, (24:26) in that day, when one who is fleeing will come to you, so that he may report to you, (24:27) in that day, I say, your mouth shall be opened to him who has fled. And you shall speak, and you shall no longer be silent. And you shall be for them a portent. And you shall know that I am the Lord.”

[Ezekiel 25] (25:1) And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: (25:2) “Son of man, set your face against the sons of Ammon, and you shall prophesy about them. (25:3) And you shall say to the sons of Ammon: Listen to the word of the Lord God: Thus says the Lord God: Because you have said, ‘Well, well!’ over my sanctuary, when it was profaned, and over the land of Israel, when it was desolate, and over the house of Judah, when they were led into captivity, (25:4) therefore, I will deliver you to the sons of the East, as an inheritance. And they will arrange their fences within you, and they will place their tents within you. They will eat your crops, and they will drink your milk. (25:5) And I will make Rabbah into the habitation of camels, and the sons of Ammon into the resting place of cattle. And you shall know that I am the Lord. (25:6) For thus says the Lord God: Because you have clapped your hands and stomped your foot, and have rejoiced with all your heart against the land of Israel, (25:7) therefore, behold, I will extend my hand over you, and I will deliver you as a spoil of the Gentiles. And I will destroy you from the peoples, and I will perish you from the lands, and I will crush you. And you shall know that I am the Lord. (25:8) Thus says the Lord God: Because Moab and Seir have said, ‘Behold, the house of Judah is like all the Gentiles!’ (25:9) therefore, behold, I will open the shoulder of Moab from the cities, from his cities, I say, and from his borders, the famous cities of the land of Beth-Jesimoth, and Baal-meon, and Kiriathaim, (25:10) with the sons of Ammon, to the sons of the East, and I will give it to them as an inheritance, so that there may no longer be a remembrance of the sons of Ammon among the Gentiles. (25:11) And I will execute judgments in Moab. And they shall know that I am the Lord. (25:12) Thus says the Lord God: Because Idumea has taken vengeance, so as to vindicate herself against the sons of Judah, and has sinned grievously, and has sought revenge against them, (25:13) therefore, thus says the Lord God: I will extend my hand over Idumea, and I will take from it both man and beast, and I will make it desolate from the south. And those who are in Dedan will fall by the sword. (25:14) And I will issue my vengeance upon Idumea, by the hand of my people, Israel. And they shall act in Idumea in accord with my wrath and my fury. And they shall know my vengeance, says the Lord God. (25:15) Thus says the Lord God: Because the Philistines have taken vengeance, and have revenged themselves with all their soul, destroying, and fulfilling ancient hostilities, (25:16) because of this, thus says the Lord God: Behold, I will extend my hand over the Philistines, and I will destroy those who destroy, and I will perish the remnant of the maritime regions.
{25:17} And I will execute great vengeance against them, reprobating them in fury. And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I will send my vengeance upon them.”

[Ezekiel 26] {26:1} And it happened that, in the eleventh year, on the first of the month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {26:2} “Son of man, because Tyre has said about Jerusalem: ‘It is Well! The gates of the peoples have been broken! She has been turned toward me. I will be filled. She will be deserted!’” {26:3} because of this, thus says the Lord God: Behold, I am against you, O Tyre, and I will cause many nations to rise up against you, just as the waves of the sea rise up. {26:4} And they will break apart the walls of Tyre, and they will destroy its towers. And I will scrape her dust from her, and I will make her into the barest rock. {26:5} She will be a drying place for nets. And you will no longer be a haven. {26:6} Likewise, her daughters who are in the field will be slain by the sword. And they shall know that I am the Lord. {26:7} For thus says the Lord God: Behold, I will lead into Tyre: Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, a king among kings, from the north, with horses, and chariots, and horsemen, and companies, and a great people. {26:8} Your daughters who are in the field, he will kill with the sword. And he will surround you with fortifications, and he will put together a rampart on all sides. And he will lift up a shield against you. {26:9} And he will combine moveable shelters and battering rams before your walls, and he will destroy your towers with his armaments. {26:10} He will cover you with the inundation of his horses and with their dust. Your walls will shake at the sound of horsemen and wheels and chariots, when they will have entered your gates, as if through the entrance of a city that has been broken open. {26:11} With the hoofs of his horses, he will trample all your streets. He will cut down your people with the sword, and your noble statues will fall to the ground. {26:12} They will lay waste to your wealth. They will despoil your businesses. And they will tear down your walls and overturn your eminent houses. And they will put your stones and your timber and your dust into the midst of the waters. {26:13} And I will cause the multitude of your songs to cease. And the sound of your stringed instruments will no longer be heard. {26:14} And I will make you like the barest rock; you will be a drying place for nets. And you will no longer be built up. For I have spoken, says the Lord God.” {26:15} Thus says the Lord God to Tyre: “Will not the islands shake at the sound of your ruin and at the groans of your slain, when they will have been cut down in your midst? {26:16} And all the leaders of the sea will descend from their thrones. And they will cast aside their outer garments and their colorful clothing, and they will be clothed in stupor. They will sit on the ground, and they will wonder with astonishment at your sudden downfall. {26:17} And taking up a lamentation over you, they will say to you: ‘How could you have perished, you who live in the sea, the famous city that was strong in the sea, with your inhabitants, of whom the whole world was in dread?’” {26:18} Now the ships will be stupefied, in the day of your terror. And the islands of the sea will be disturbed, because no one goes out from you. {26:19} For thus says the Lord God: When I will have made you a desolate city, like the cities that are uninhabited, and when I will have led the abyss over you, and many waters will have covered you, {26:20} and when I will have dragged you down with those who descend into the pit to the everlasting people, and when I will have assembled you in the lowest parts of the earth, like the desolate places of antiquity, with those who have been brought down into the pit, so that you will be uninhabited, and moreover, when I will have given glory to the land of the living: {26:21} I will reduce you to nothing, and you shall not be, and if you are sought, you will no longer be found, in perpetuity, says the Lord God.”

[Ezekiel 27] {27:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {27:2} “You, therefore, son of man, take up a lamentation over Tyre. {27:3} And you shall say to Tyre, which lives at the entrance to the sea, which is the marketplace of the peoples for the many islands: Thus says the Lord God: O Tyre, you have said, ‘I am of perfect beauty, and I will not be brought down to the Pit, and I will not be brought down to the Pit!’ But I will bring you down to the Pit. {27:4} And I will cause the multitude of your songs to cease. {27:5} They will utterly destroy your merchant ships; and you will no longer be a marketplace of the peoples. And every island that is in the sea will be laid waste by you. {27:6} For thus says the Lord God to Tyre: “Will not the sea rise up? {27:7} And the sea will rise up and come against you, when the multitude of your songs has ceased. And it will render you a multitude of diverse riches, with silver, iron, tin, and lead. {27:8} But the nations that trade with you will be destroyed. {27:9} They will cast you down to the Pit, and you will be no more. And all the inhabitants of the sea will sing over you. They will be of you an everlasting reproving. And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I have reduced you to nothing, and you shall no longer be found, in perpetuity, says the Lord God.”

goats. {27:22} The vendors of Sheba and Raamah, these were your merchants, with all the finest aromatics, and precious stones, and gold, which they offered in your marketplace. {27:23} Haran, and Canneh, and Eden were your merchants. Sheba, Assur, and Chilmad were your sellers. {27:24} These were your merchants in many places, with windings of hyacinth and of colorful weavings, and with precious treasures, which were wrapped and bound with cords. Also, they had works of cedar among your merchandise. {27:25} The ships of the sea were important to your business dealings. For you were replenished and exceedingly glorified in the heart of the sea. {27:26} Your rowers have brought you into many waters. The south wind has worn you down in the heart of the sea. {27:27} Your riches, and your treasures, and your versatile equipment, your sailors and your navigators, who handle your goods and who were first among your people, likewise your men of war, who were among you, and your entire multitude that is in your midst: they will fall in the heart of the sea on the day of your ruin. {27:28} Your fleets will be disturbed by the sound of an outcry from your navigators. {27:29} And all who were handling the oar will descend from their ships; the sailors and all the navigators of the sea will stand upon the land. {27:30} And they will howl over you with a great voice, and they will cry out with bitterness. And they will cast dust upon their heads, and they will be sprinkled with ashes. {27:31} And they will shave their heads because of you, and they will be wrapped in haircloth. And they will weep for you with bitterness of soul, with a very bitter weeping. {27:32} And they will take up a mournful verse over you, and they will lament you: “What city is like Tyre, which has become mute in the midst of the sea?” {27:33} For by the going forth of your merchandise by sea, you supplied many peoples; by the multitude of your riches and of your people, you enriched the kings of the earth. {27:34} Now you have been worn away by the sea, your opulence is in the depths of the waters, and your entire multitude that was in your midst has fallen. {27:35} All the inhabitants of the islands have been stupefied over you; and all their kings, having been struck by the tempest, have changed their expression. {27:36} The merchants of the peoples have hissed over you. You have been reduced to nothing, and you shall not be again, ever forever.”

[Ezekiel 28] {28:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {28:2} “Son of man, say to the leader of Tyre: Thus says the Lord God: Because your heart has been exalted, and you have said, ‘I am God, and I sit in the chair of God, in the heart of the sea,’ though you are a man, and not God, and because you have presented your heart as if it were the heart of God: {28:3} Behold, you are wiser than Daniel; no secret is concealed from you. {28:4} By your wisdom and prudence, you have made yourself strong, and you have acquired gold and silver for your storehouses. {28:5} By the multitude of your wisdom, and by your business dealings, you have multiplied strength for yourself. And your heart has been exalted by your strength. {28:6} Therefore, thus says the Lord God: Because your heart has been exalted as if it were the heart of God, {28:7} for this reason, behold, I will lead over you foreigners, the most robust among the Gentiles. And they will bare their swords over the beauty of your wisdom, and they will defile your beauty. {28:8} They will destroy you and pull you down. And you will die the death of those slain in the heart of the sea. {28:9} So then, will you speak, in the presence of those who are destroying you, before the hand of those who are killing you, saying, ‘I am God,’ though you are a man, and not God? {28:10} You will die the death of the uncircumcised at the hand of foreigners. For I have spoken, says the Lord God.” {28:11} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: “Son of man, take up a lamentation over the king of Tyre, {28:12} and you shall say to him: Thus says the Lord God: You were the seal of similitudes, full of wisdom and perfect in beauty. {28:13} You were with the delights of the Paradise of God. Every precious stone was your covering: sardius, topaz, and jasper, chrysolite, and onyx, and beryl, sapphire, and garnet, and emerald. The work of your beauty was of gold, and your fiscures were ready in the day when you were formed. {28:14} You were a cherub, stretched out and protecting, and I stationed you on the holy mountain of God. You have walked in the midst of stones containing fire. {28:15} You were perfect in your ways, from the day of your formation, until iniquity was found in you. {28:16} By the multitude of your business dealings, your interior was filled with iniquity, and you sinned. And I cast you away from the mountain of God, and I perished you, O protecting cherub, from the midst of the stones containing fire. {28:17} And your heart was exalted by your beauty; you have destroyed your own wisdom by your beauty. I have cast you to the ground. I have presented you before the face of kings, so that they may examine you. {28:18} You have defiled your sanctuaries, by the multitude of your iniquities and by the iniquity of your business dealings. Therefore, I will produce a fire from your midst, which will consume you, and I will make you into ashes upon the earth, in the sight of all who are watching you. {28:19} All who gaze upon you among the Gentiles will be stupefied over you. You were made out of nothing, and you shall not be, forever.” {28:20} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {28:21} “Son of man, set your face against Sidon, and you shall prophesy about it. {28:22} And you shall say: Thus says the Lord God: Behold, I am against you, Sidon, and I will be glorified in your midst. And they shall live in confidence, when I will have executed judgments upon all those who turn against them on every side in her midst. And they shall know that I am the Lord their God.” {28:23} And I will send a pestilence upon her, and there will be blood in her streets. And they will fall, slain by the sword, on every side in her midst. And they shall know that I am the Lord. {28:24} And the house of Israel will no longer be a stumbling block of bitterness, nor a thorn bringing pain everywhere around them, to those who turn against them. And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I will have executed judgments in her, and when I will have been sanctified in her. {28:25} Thus says the Lord God: “When I will have gathered together the house of Israel, from the peoples among whom they have been dispersed, I shall be sanctified in them in the sight of the Gentiles. And they shall live in their own land, which I gave to my servant Jacob. {28:26} And they shall live within it securely. And they shall build houses and plant vineyards. And they shall live in confidence, when I will have executed judgments upon all those who turn against them on every side. And they shall know that I am the Lord their God.”

[Ezekiel 29] {29:1} In the tenth year, in the tenth month, on the eleventh day of the month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {29:2} “Son of man, set your face against Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, and you shall prophesy about him and about all of Egypt. {29:3} Speak, and you shall say: Thus says the Lord God: Behold, I am against you, Pharaoh, king of Egypt, you great dragon, who rests in the midst of your rivers. And you say: 'Mine is the river, and I have made myself.' {29:4} But I will place a bridle in your jaws. And I will adhere the fish of your rivers to your scales. And I will draw you out of the midst of your rivers, and all your fish will adhere to your scales. {29:5} And I will cast you into the desert, with all the fish of your river. You will fall upon the surface of the earth; you will not be taken up, nor gathered together. I have given you to the beasts of the earth and to the birds of the air, to be devoured. {29:6} And all the inhabitants of Egypt shall know that I am the Lord. For you have been a staff made of reed to the house of Israel. {29:7} When they took hold of you with the hand, you broke, and so you wounded all of their shoulders. And when they leaned on you, you shattered, and so you injured all of their lower backs. {29:8} Because of this, thus says the Lord God: Behold, I will lead the sword over you, and I will destroy both man and beast from among you. {29:9} And the land of Egypt will be a desert and a wilderness. And they shall know that I am the Lord. For you have said, 'The river is mine, and I have made it.' {29:10} Therefore, behold, I am against you and against your rivers. And I will make the land of Egypt into a wilderness, destroyed by the sword from the tower of Syene all the way to the borders of Ethiopia. {29:11} The foot of man will not pass through it, and the foot of cattle will not walk in it. And it will be uninhabited for forty years. {29:12} And I will set the land of Egypt in desolation, in the midst of desolate lands, and its cities in the midst of overturned cites. And they will be desolate for forty years. And I will scatter the Egyptians among the nations, and I will disperse them among the lands. {29:13} For thus says the Lord God: After the end of forty years, I will gather the Egyptians from the peoples among whom they had been scattered. {29:14} And I will lead back the captivity of Egypt, and I will collect them in the land of Pathros, in the land of their nativity. And in that place, they will be a lowly kingdom. {29:15} It will be the lowest among the other kingdoms, and it will no longer be exalted above the nations. And I will diminish them, lest they rule over the Gentiles. {29:16} And they will no longer be the confidence of the house of Israel, teaching iniquity, so that they may flee and follow them. And they shall know that I am the Lord God.” {29:17} And it happened that, in the twenty-seventh year, in the first month, on the first of the month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {29:18} “Son of man, Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, has caused his army to serve with great servility against Tyre. Every head was shaven, and every shoulder was stripped of hair. And wages have not been paid to him, nor to his army, for Tyre, for the service by which he served against it. {29:19} Because of this, thus says the Lord God: Behold, I will station Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, in the land of Egypt. And he will take its multitude, and he will plunder its spoils. And this shall be the wages for his army {29:20} and for the work by which he has served against it. I have given to him the land of Egypt, because he has labored for me, says the Lord God. {29:21} In that day, a horn will spring forth for the house of Israel, and I will give to you an open mouth in their midst. And they shall know that I am the Lord.”

[Ezekiel 30] {30:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {30:2} “Son of man, prophesy and say: Thus says the Lord God: Wail: ‘Woe, woe to the day!’ {30:3} For the day is near, and the day of the Lord is approaching! It is a day of gloom; it will be the time of the Gentiles. {30:4} And the sword will come to Egypt. And there will be dread in Ethiopia, when the wounded will have fallen in Egypt, and its multitude will have been taken away, and its foundations will have been destroyed. {30:5} Ethiopia, and Libya, and Lydia, and all the rest of the common people, and Chub, and the sons of the land of the covenant, will fall with them by the sword. {30:6} Thus says the Lord God: And those who prop up Egypt will fall, and the arrogance of its reign will be brought down. They will fall in it by the sword, before the tower of Syene, says the Lord, the God of hosts. {30:7} And they will be scattered into the midst of desolate lands, and its cities will be in the midst of cities that have been deserted. {30:8} And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I will have brought a fire into Egypt, and when all its helpers will have been worn away. {30:9} In that day, messengers will go forth from my face in Greek warships, in order to crush the confidence of Ethiopia. And there will be dread among them in the day of Egypt; for without doubt, it will happen. {30:10} Thus says the Lord God: By the hand of Nebuchadnezzar, the king of Babylon, I will cause the multitude of Egypt to cease. {30:11} He, and his people with him, the strongest of the Gentiles, will be brought forth in order to destroy the land. And they will draw their swords over Egypt. And they will fill the land with the slain. {30:12} And I will cause the channels of the rivers to dry up. And I will deliver the land into the hand of the most wicked. And by the hands of foreigners, I will utterly destroy the land and its plentitude. I, the Lord, have spoken. {30:13} Thus says the Lord God: And I will destroy the graven images, and I will cause the idols of Memphis to cease. And there will no longer be a commander of the land of Egypt. And I will send terror upon the land of Egypt. {30:14} And I will destroy the land of Pathros, and I will send a fire upon Tahpanhes, and I will execute judgments in Alexandria. {30:15} And I will pour out my indignation upon Pelusium, the strength of Egypt. And I will cause the idols of Memphis to cease. {30:16} And I will send a fire upon Egypt. Pelusium will be in pain, like a woman giving birth. And Alexandria will be utterly destroyed. And in Memphis, there will be anguish every day. {30:17} The young men of Heliopolis and Pibeseth will fall by the sword, and the young women will be led into captivity. {30:18} And in Tahpanhes, the day will grow black, when, in that place, I will break the scepters of Egypt. And the arrogance of her authority will fail within her; a gloom will cover her. Then her daughters will be led into captivity. {30:19} And I will execute judgments in Egypt. And they shall know that I am the Lord.” {30:20} And it happened that, in the eleventh year, in the first month, on the seventh of the month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {30:21} “Son of man, I have broken the arm of Pharaoh, the king of Egypt. And behold, it has not been wrapped, so that it might be restored to health; it has not been bound with cloths, or bandaged with linen, so that, having recovered strength, it would be able to hold the sword. {30:22} Because of this, thus says the Lord God: Behold, I am against Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, and I will shatter his strong arm, which has already been broken. And I will cast the sword away from his hand. {30:23} And I will disperse Egypt among the nations, and I will scatter them among the lands. {30:24} And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon. And I will put my sword into his hand. And I will break the arms of Pharaoh. And they will groan acutely, when they are slain before his face. {30:25} And I will strengthen the arms of the king of Babylon. And the arms of Pharaoh will fall. And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I will have given my sword into the hand of the king of Babylon, and when he will have extended it over the land of Egypt. {30:26} And I will disperse Egypt among the nations, and I will scatter them among the lands. And they shall know that I am the Lord."

Ezekiel 31 {31:1} And it happened that, in the eleventh year, in the third month, on the first of the month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {31:2} “Son of man, speak to Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, and to his people: To whom can you be compared in your greatness? {31:3} Behold, Assur is like the cedar of Lebanon, with fair branches, and full of leaves, and of high stature, and his summit has been elevated above the thick branches. {31:4} The waters have nourished him. The abyss has exalted him. Its rivers have flowed around his roots, and it has sent forth its streams to all the trees of the regions. {31:5} Because of this, his height was exalted above all the trees of the regions, and his groves were multiplied, and his own branches were elevated, because of the many waters. {31:6} And when he had extended his shadow, all the birds of the air made their nests in his branches, and all the beasts of the forest conceived their young under his foliage, and an assembly of the many peoples lived under his shadow. {31:7} And he was most beautiful in his greatness and in the expansion of his groves. For his root was near many waters. {31:8} The cedars in the Paradise of God were not higher than he was. The spruce trees were not equal to his summit, and the plane trees were not equal to his fullness. No tree in the Paradise of God was similar to him or to his beauty. {31:9} For I made him beautiful, and dense with many branches. And all the trees of delight, which were in the Paradise of God, were jealous of him. {31:10} Because of this, thus says the Lord God: Since he was sublime in height, and he made his summit green and dense, and his heart was exalted because of his height, {31:11} I have delivered him into the hands of the most powerful one among the Gentiles, so that he will deal with him. I have cast him out, in accord with his impiety. {31:12} And foreigners, and the most cruel among the nations, will cut him down. And they will cast him on the mountains. And his branches will fall in every steep valley, and his grove will be broken apart on every cliff of the earth. And all the peoples of the earth will withdraw from his shadow, and abandon him. {31:13} All the birds of the air lived upon his ruins, and all the beasts of the countryside were among his branches. {31:14} For this reason, none of the trees among the waters will exalt themselves because of their height, nor will they place their summits above the thick branches and foliage, nor will any of those that are irrigated stand out because of their height. For they have all been delivered unto death, to the lowest part of the earth, into the midst of the sons of men, those who descend into the pit. {31:15} Thus says the Lord God: In the day when he descended into hell, I led in grieving. I covered him with the abyss. And I held back its rivers, and I restrained the many waters. Lebanon was saddened over him, and all the trees of the field were struck together. {31:16} I shook the Gentiles with the sound of his ruin, when I led him down to hell, with those who were descending into the pit. And all the trees of delights, the finest and best in Lebanon, all that were irrigated with waters, were consoled in the deepest parts of the earth. {31:17} For they, too, will descend with him into hell, to those who have been slain by the sword. And the arm of each one will reside under his shadow, in the midst of the nations. {31:18} To whom can you be compared, O famous and sublime one, among the trees of pleasure? Behold, you have been brought down, with the trees of pleasure, to the lowest part of the earth. You will sleep in the midst of the uncircumcised, with those who have been slain by the sword. This is Pharaoh, and all his multitude, says the Lord God.”

Ezekiel 32 {32:1} And it happened that, in the twelfth year, in the twelfth month, on the first of the month, the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {32:2} “Son of man, speak to Pharaoh, the king of Egypt, and to his people: To whom can you be compared in your greatness? {32:3} Behold, Assur is like the lion of the Gentiles, and like the dragon that is in the sea. And you brandished a horn among your rivers, and you disturbed the waters with your feet, and you trampled upon their rivers. {32:4} Because of this, thus says the Lord God: I will spread my net over you, with the multitude of many peoples, and I will draw you into my dragnet. {32:5} And I will throw you upon the land. I will cast you upon the surface of the field. And I will cause all the birds of the air to live upon you. And I will satiate the beasts of the entire earth with you. {32:5} And I will place your flesh upon the mountains. And I will fill up your hills with your decaying flesh. {32:6} And I will irrigate the earth with your rotting blood upon the mountains. And the valleys will be filled with you. {32:7} And I will cover heaven, when you will have been extinguished. And I will cause its stars to grow dark. I will shroud the sun with gloom, and the moon will not give her light. {32:8} I will cause all the lights of heaven to grieve over you. And I will bring darkness upon your land, says the Lord God, when your wounded will have fallen in the midst of the land, says the Lord God. {32:9} And I will provoke the heart of many peoples to anger, when I will have led in your destruction among the Gentiles, over the lands that you have not known. {32:10} And I will cause many peoples to be stupefied over you. And their kings will be afraid, with great horror, over you, when my sword will begin to fly above their faces. And suddenly, they will be struck with astonishment, each one concerning his own life, on the day of their ruination. {32:11} For thus says the Lord God: The sword of the king of Babylon will come to you. {32:12} By the swords of the strong, I will cast down your multitude. All these nations are invincible, and they will lay waste to the arrogance of Egypt, and so its multitude will be destroyed. {32:13} And I will perish all its cattle, which were above the many waters. And the foot of man will no longer disturb them, and the hoof of cattle will no longer trouble them. {32:14} Then I will cause their waters to be very pure, and their rivers to be like oil, says the Lord God, {32:15} when I will have set the land of Egypt in desolation. And the land will be deprived of her plenteous, when I will have struck all its inhabitants. And they shall know that I am the Lord. {32:16} This is the lamentation. And they shall lament it. The daughters of the Gentiles shall lament it. They shall lament it over Egypt and over its multitude, says the Lord God.” {32:17} And it happened that, in the twelfth year, on the fifteenth of the month, the word of the Lord came to me saying: {32:18} “Son of man, sing mournfully over the multitude of Egypt. And cast her down, both her and the daughters of the robust nations, to the lowest part of the earth, with those who descend into the pit. {32:19} Whom do you exceed in beauty? Descend and sleep with the uncircumcised! {32:20} They will fall by the sword in the midst of the slain. The sword has been given. They have dragged her down, with all her people. {32:21} The most powerful among the strong will speak to him from the midst of hell, those who descended with his helpers and who went to sleep uncircumcised, slain by the sword. {32:22} Assur is in that place, with all his multitude. Their graves are all around him: all of the slain and those who fell by the sword. {32:23} Their graves have been placed in the lowest parts of the pit. And his multitude was stationed on all sides of his grave: all of the slain, and those who fell by the sword, who formerly spread terror in the land of the living. {32:24} Elam is in that place, with all his multitude, on all sides of his grave, all those who were slain or who fell by the sword, who descended uncircumcised to the lowest part of the earth, who caused their terror in the land of the living. And they have borne their disgrace, with those who descend into the pit. {32:25} They have appointed him a place to lie among all his people, in the midst of the slain. Their graves are all around him. All these are uncircumcised and were slain by the sword. For they spread their terror in the land of the living, and they have borne their disgrace, with those who descend into the pit. They have been stationed in the midst of the slain. {32:26} Meshech and Tubal are in that place, with all their multitude. Their graves are all around him: all these are uncircumcised, and they were slain and fell by the sword. For they spread their terror in the land of the living. {32:27} But they shall not sleep with the strong, and with those who also fell uncircumcised, who descended to hell with their weapons, and who placed their swords under their heads, while their iniquities were in their bones. For they were the terror of the strong in the land of the living. {32:28} Therefore, you also will be broken in the midst of the uncircumcised, and you will sleep with those who were slain by the sword. {32:29} Idumea is in that place, with her kings and all her commanders, who with their army have been given to those who were slain by the sword. And they have slept with the uncircumcised and with those who descend into the pit. {32:30} All the leaders of the north are in that place, with all the hunters, who were brought down with the slain, fearful and confounded in their strength, who have gone to sleep uncircumcised, with those who were slain by the sword. And they have borne their disgrace, with those who descend into the pit. {32:31} Pharaoh saw them, and he was consoled over all his multitude, which was slain by the sword, even Pharaoh and all his army, says the Lord God. {32:32} For I have spread my terror in the land of the living, and he has gone to sleep in the midst of the uncircumcised, with those who were slain by the sword, even Pharaoh and all his multitude, says the Lord God.”

[Ezekiel 33] {33:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {33:2} “Son of man, speak to the sons of your people, and you shall say to them: Concerning the land, when I will have led the sword over it: if the people of the land take a man, one of their least, and appoint him over themselves as a watchman, {33:3} and if he sees the sword approaching over the land, and he sounds the trumpet, and he announces to the people, {33:4} then, having heard the sound of the trumpet, whoever he is, if he also does not take care of himself, and the sword arrives and takes him: his blood will be upon his own head. {33:5} He heard the sound of the trumpet, and he did not take care of himself, so his blood will be upon him. But if he guards himself, he will save his own life. {33:6} And if the watchman sees the sword approaching, and he does not sound the trumpet, and so the people do not guard themselves, and the sword arrives and takes some of their lives, certainly these have been taken due to their own iniquity. But I will attribute their blood to the hand of the watchman. {33:7} And as for you, son of man, I have made you a watchman to the house of Israel. Therefore, having heard the word from my mouth, you shall announce it to them from me. {33:8} When I say to the impious, ‘O impious man, you will die a death,’ if you have not spoken so that the impious man will keep himself from his way, then that impious man will die in his iniquity. But I will attribute his blood to your hand. {33:9} But if you have announced to the impious man, so that he may be converted from his ways, and he has not converted from his way, then he will die in his iniquity. Yet you will have freed your own soul. {33:10} You, therefore, O son of man, say to the house of Israel: You have spoken in this way, saying: ‘Our iniquities and our sins are upon us, and we waste away in them. So then, how would we be able to live?’ {33:11} Say to them: As I live, says the Lord God, I do not desire the death of the impious, but that the impious should convert from his way and live. Be converted, be converted from your evil ways! For why should you die, O house of Israel? {33:12} And as for you then, son of man, say to the sons of your people: The justice of the just man will not deliver him, on whatever day he will have sinned. And the iniquity of the impious man will not harm him, on whatever day he will have been converted from his iniquity. And the just man will not be able to live by his justice, on whatever day he will have sinned. {33:13} Even now, if I say to the just man that he shall certainly live, and so, with confidence in his justice, he commits iniquity, all his justices will be delivered into oblivion, and by his iniquity, which he has done, by this he shall die. {33:14} And if I say to the impious man, ‘You shall certainly die,’ and yet he repents from his sin, and he does judgment and justice, {33:15} and if that impious man returns the collateral, and repays what he has taken by force, and if he walks in the commandments of life, and does not do anything unjust, then he shall certainly live, and he shall not die. {33:16} None of his sins, which he has committed, will be imputed to him. He has done judgment and justice, so he shall certainly live. {33:17} And the sons of your people have said, ‘The way of the Lord is not a fair balance,’ even while their own way is unjust. {33:18} For when the just man will have withdrawn from his justice, and committed iniquities, he shall die by these. {33:19} And when the impious man will have withdrawn from his iniquity, and have done judgment and justice, he shall live by these. {33:20} And yet you say, ‘The way of the Lord is not right.’ But I shall judge each one of you according to his own ways, O house of Israel.”
{33:21} And it happened that, in the twelfth year of our transmigration, in the tenth month, on the fifth of the month, one who had fled from Jerusalem arrived saying, “The city has been laid waste.” {33:22} But the hand of the Lord had been upon me in the evening, before the one who had fled arrived. And he opened my mouth, until he came to me in the morning. And since my mouth had been opened, I was no longer silent. {33:23} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {33:24} “Son of man, as for those who live in these ruinous ways on the soil of Israel, when speaking, they say: ‘Abraham was one man, and he possessed the land as an inheritance. But we are many; the land has been given to us as a possession.’” {33:25} Therefore, you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord God: You who eat even the blood, and who lift up your eyes to your uncleannesses, and who shed blood: will you possess the land as an inheritance? {33:26} You stood by your swords, you committed abominations, and each one has defiled his neighbor’s wife. And will you possess the land as an inheritance? {33:27} You shall say these things to them: So says the Lord God: As I live, those who live in ruinous ways will fall by the sword. And whoever is in the field will be delivered over to wild beasts to be devoured. But those who are in fortresses and in caves will die of the pestilence. {33:28} And I will make the land into a wilderness and a desert. And its arrogant strength will fail. And the mountains of Israel will be desolate; for there will be no one who crosses through them. {33:29} And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I will have make their land desolate and deserted, because of all their abominations, which they have worked. {33:30} And as for you, O son of man: the sons of your people speak about you beside the walls and in the doorways of houses. And they speak to one another, each man to his neighbor, saying: ‘Come, and let us hear what may be the word going forth from the Lord.’ {33:31} And they come to you, as if the people were entering, and my people sit before you. And they listen to your words, but they do not do them. For they turn them into a song for their mouth, but their heart pursues their own avarice. {33:32} And you are to them like a verse set to music, which is sung with a sweet and pleasing voice. And they hear your words, but they do not do them. {33:33} And when what has been predicted occurs, for behold it is approaching, then they shall know that a prophet was among them.”

{Ezekiel 34} {34:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {34:2} “Son of man, prophesy about the shepherds of Israel. Prophesy, and you shall say to the shepherds: Thus says the Lord God: Woe to the shepherds of Israel who feed themselves! Should not the flocks be fed by the shepherds? {34:3} You consumed the milk, and you covered yourselves with the wool, and you killed what was fattened. But my flock you did not feed. {34:4} What was weak, you have not strengthened, and what was sick, you have not healed. What was broken, you have not bound, and what was cast aside, you have not led back again, and what was lost, you have not sought. Instead, you ruled over them with severity and with power. {34:5} And my sheep were scattered, because there was no shepherd. And they became devoured by all the wild beasts of the field, and they were dispersed. {34:6} My sheep have wandered to every mountain and to every exalted hill. And my flocks have been scattered across the face of the earth. And there was no one who sought them; there was no one, I say, who sought them. {34:7} Because of this, O shepherds, listen to the word of the Lord: {34:8} As I live, says the Lord God, since my flocks have become a prey, and my sheep have been devoured by all the wild beasts of the field, since there was no shepherd, for my shepherds did not seek my flock, but instead the shepherds fed themselves, and they did not feed my flocks: {34:9} because of this, O shepherds, listen to the word of the Lord: {34:10} Thus says the Lord God: Behold, I myself will be over the shepherds. I will require my flock at their hand, and I will cause them to cease, so that they no longer refrain from feeding the flock. Neither will the shepherds feed themselves any more. And I will deliver my flock from their mouth; and it will no longer be food for them. {34:11} For thus says the Lord God: Behold, I myself will seek my sheep, and I myself will visit them. {34:12} Just as a shepherd visits his flock, in the day when he will be in the midst of his sheep that were scattered, so will I visit my sheep. And I will deliver them from all the places to which they had been scattered in the day of gloom and darkness. {34:13} And I will lead them away from the peoples, and I will gather them from the lands, and I will bring them into their own land. And I will pasture them on the mountains of Israel, by the rivers, and in all the settlements of the land. {34:14} I will feed them in very fertile pastures, and their pastures will be on the lofty mountains of Israel. There they will rest on the green grass, and they will be fed in the fat pastures, on the mountains of Israel. {34:15} I will feed my sheep, and I will cause them to lie down, says the Lord God. {34:16} I will seek what had been lost. And I will lead back again what had been cast aside. And I will bind up what had been broken. And I will strengthen what had been infirm. And I will preserve what was fat and strong. And I will feed them on judgment. {34:17} But as for you, O my flocks, thus says the Lord God: Behold, I judge between cattle and cattle, among rams and among he-goats. {34:18} Was it not enough for you to feed upon good pastures? For you even trample with your feet upon the remainder of your pastures. And when you drank the purist water, you disturbed the remainder with your feet. {34:19} And my sheep were pastured from what you had trampled with your feet, and they drank from what your feet had disturbed. {34:20} Because of this, thus says the Lord God to you: Behold, I myself am judging between the fat cattle and the lean. {34:21} For you have pushed with your sides and shoulders, and you have threatened all the weak cattle with your horns, until they were scattered abroad. {34:22} I will save my flock, and it will be no longer a prey, and I will judge between cattle and cattle. {34:23} And I will raise up over them ONE SHEPHERD, who will feed them, my servant David. He himself will feed them, and he will be their shepherd. {34:24} And I, the Lord, will be their God. And my servant David will be the leader in their midst. I, the Lord, have spoken. {34:25} And I will make a covenant of peace with them. And I will cause the very harmful beasts to cease from the land. And those who are living in the desert will sleep securely in the forests. {34:26} And I will make them a blessing all around my hill. And I will send the rain in due time; there will be showers of blessing. {34:27} And the tree of the field will yield its fruit, and the land will yield its crop. And they will be in their own land without fear. And they shall know that I am the Lord, when I will have crushed the chains of their yoke, and when I will have rescued them from the hand of those who rule over them. {34:28} And they will no longer be a prey to the Gentiles, nor will the wild beasts of the earth devour them. Instead, they will live in confidence without any terror. {34:29} And I will raise up for them a renown branch. And they will be no longer be diminished by famine in the land, nor will they carry any longer the reproach of the Gentiles. {34:30} And they shall know that I, the Lord their God, am with them, and that they are my people, the house of Israel, says the Lord God. {34:31} For you are my flocks; the flocks of my pasture are men. And I am the Lord your God, says the Lord God.”

[Ezekiel 35]  {35:1} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {35:2} “Son of man, set your face against mount Seir, and you shall prophesy about it, and you shall say to it: {35:3} Thus says the Lord God: Behold, I am against you, mount Seir, and I will extend my hand over you, and I will make you desolate and deserted. {35:4} I will tear down your cities, and you will be deserted. And you shall know that I am the Lord. {35:5} For you have been a continual adversary, and you have enclosed the sons of Israel, by the hands of the sword, in the time of their affliction, in the time of extreme iniquity. {35:6} Because of this, as I live, says the Lord God, I will hand you over to blood, and blood will pursue you. Even though you have hated blood, blood will pursue you. {35:7} And I will make mount Seir desolate and deserted. And I will take away from it the one who departs and the one who returns. {35:8} And I will fill up its mountains with its slain. In your hills, and in your valleys, as well as in your torrents, the slain will fall by the sword. {35:9} I will hand you over to everlasting desolations, and your cities will not be inhabited. And you shall know that I am the Lord God. {35:10} For you have said, ‘Two nations and two lands will be mine, and I will possess them as an inheritance,’ though the Lord was in that place. {35:11} Because of this, as I live, says the Lord God, I will act in accord with your own wrath, and in accord with your own zeal, by which you have acted with hatred toward them. And I will be made known by them, when I will have judged you. {35:12} And you shall know that I, the Lord, have heard all your disgraces, which you have said about the mountains of Israel, saying: ‘They are deserted. They have been given to us to devour.’ {35:13} And you rose up against me with your mouth, and you disparaged me with your words. I have heard. {35:14} Thus says the Lord God: When the whole earth will rejoice, I will reduce you to solitude. {35:15} Just as you have rejoiced over the inheritance of the house of Israel, when it was laid waste, so will I act toward you. You will be laid waste, O mount Seir, with all of Idumea. And they shall know that I am the Lord.”

[Ezekiel 36]  {36:1} “But as for you, son of man, prophesy over the mountains of Israel, and you shall say: O mountains of Israel, listen to the word of the Lord. {36:2} Thus says the Lord God: Because the enemy has said about you: ‘It is well! of Israel, listen to the word of the Lord. {36:2} Thus says the Lord God: Because the enemy has said about you: ‘It is well! The everlasting heights have been given to us as an inheritance!’ {36:3} because of this, prophesy and say: Thus says the Lord God: Because you have been made desolate, and you have been trampled on every side, and you have been made into an inheritance for the remainder of the nations, and because you rose up, over the tip of the tongue and over the shame of the people, {36:4} because of this, O mountains of Israel, listen to the word of the Lord God. Thus says the Lord God to the mountains, and to the hills, to the torrents, and to the valleys, and to the deserts, and to the ruins, and to the forsaken cities, which have been depopulated and ridiculed by the remainder of the nations all around: {36:5} Because of this, thus says the Lord God: In the fire of my zeal, I have spoken about the remainder of the nations, and about all of Idumea, who have given my land to themselves, joyfully, as an inheritance, and with all the heart and mind, and who have cast it out, so that they may lay waste to it. {36:6} Therefore, prophesy over the soil of Israel, and you shall say to the mountains, and to the hills, to the ridges, and to the valleys: Thus says the Lord God: Behold, I have spoken in my zeal and in my fury, because you have endured the shame of the Gentiles. {36:7} Therefore, thus says the Lord God: I have lifted up my hand, so that the Gentiles, who are all around you, will themselves bear their shame. {36:8} But as for you, O mountains of Israel, spring forth your branches, and bear your fruit, to my people Israel. For they are close to their advent. {36:9} For behold, I am for you, and I will turn to you, and you will be plowed, and you will receive seed. {36:10} And I will multiply men among you and among all the house of Israel. And the cities shall be inhabited, and the ruinous places shall be restored. {36:11} And I will fill you again with men and with cattle. And they will be multiplied, and they will increase. And I will cause you to live as from the beginning, and I will give you even greater gifts than those you had from the start. And you shall know that I am the Lord. {36:12} And I will lead men over you, over my people Israel, and they will possess you as an inheritance. And you shall be to them as an inheritance. And you shall no longer be permitted to be without them. {36:13} Thus says the Lord God: Because they are saying about you, ‘You are a woman who devours men, and you are strangling your own nation,’ {36:14} because of this, you shall no longer consume men, and you shall no longer harm your own nation, says the Lord God. {36:15} Neither will I permit men to discover in you the shame of the Gentiles any more. And you shall never again bear the reproach of the peoples. And you shall not send your people away any more, says the Lord God.” {36:16} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {36:17} “Son of man, the house of Israel lived on their own soil, and they defiled it with their ways and with their intentions. Their way, in my sight, became like the uncleanness of a menstruous woman. {36:18} And so I poured out my indignation upon them, because of the blood which they shed upon the land, and because they defiled it with their ways and with their intentions. Their way, in my sight, became like the uncleanness of a menstruous woman. {36:19} And I dispersed them among the Gentiles, and they have been scattered among the lands. I have judged them according to their ways and their plans. {36:20} And when they walked among the Gentiles, to whom they had entered, they defiled my holy name, though it was being said about them: ‘This is the people of the Lord,’ and ‘They went forth from his land.’ {36:21} But I have spared my holy name, which the house of Israel has defiled among the Gentiles, to whom they entered. {36:22} For this reason, you shall say to the house of Israel: Thus says the Lord God: I will act, not for your sake, O house of Israel, but for the sake of my holy name, which you have defiled among the Gentiles, to whom you entered.
And I will sanctify my great name, which was defiled among the Gentiles, which you have defiled in their midst. So may the Gentiles know that I am the Lord, says the Lord of hosts, when I will have been sanctified in you, before their eyes. Certainly, I will take you away from the Gentiles, and I will gather you together from all the lands, and I will lead you into your own land. And I will pour clean water over you, and you shall be cleansed from all your filth, and I will cleanse you from all your idols. And I will give to you a new heart, and I will place in you a new spirit. And I will take away the heart of stone from your body, and I will give to you a heart of flesh. And I will place my Spirit in your midst. And I will act so that you may walk in my precepts and keep my judgments, and so that you may fulfill them. And you shall live in the land that I gave to your fathers. And you shall be my people, and I will be your God. And I will save you from all your filth. And I will call for grain, and I will multiply it, and I will not impose a famine upon you. And I will multiply the fruit of the tree and the produce of the field, so that you may no longer bear the disgrace of famine among the nations. And you shall remember your very wicked ways and your intentions, which were not good. And you will be displeased by your own iniquities and your own crimes. It is not for your sakes that I will act, says the Lord God; let this be known to you. Be confounded and ashamed over your own ways, O house of Israel. Thus says the Lord God: In the day when I will have cleansed you from all your iniquities, and when I will have caused the cities to be inhabited, and when I will have restored the ruined places, and when the deserted land will have been cultivated, which previously was desolate to the eyes of all who passed by, then they shall say: ‘This uncultivated land has become a garden of delight, and the cities, which were deserted and destitute and overthrown, have been settled and fortified.’ And the Gentiles, those who remain around you, shall know that I, the Lord, have built up what was destroyed, and have planted what was uncultivated. I, the Lord, have spoken and acted. Thus says the Lord God: In the day of the Lord’s covenant, when I will have established it, then will the cities of Judah be inhabited, and the towns of the mountains of Israel, and one king will be ruler over all. And they will no longer be two nations, nor will they be divided any more into two kingdoms. And they will no longer be defiled by their idols, and by their abominations, and by all their iniquities. And I will save them, out of all the settlements in which they have sinned, and I will cleanse them. And they will be my people, and I will be their God. And my servant David shall be the king over them, and they shall have one shepherd. They shall walk in my judgments, and they shall keep my commandments, and they shall do them. And they shall live upon the land that I gave to my servant Jacob, in which your fathers lived. And I will give to you a new heart, and I will cause flesh to grow over you, and I will extend skin over you. And I will give you spirit, and you shall live. And you shall know that I am the Lord.”

[Zechariah 14] 43:1 The hand of the Lord was set upon me, and he led me away in the Spirit of the Lord, and he released me in the midst of a plain which was full of bones. And he said to me, “Son of man, do you think that these bones will live?” And I said, “O Lord God, you know.” And he said to me, “Prophesy about these bones. And you shall say to them: Dry bones, listen to the word of the Lord!” Thus says the Lord God to these bones: Behold, I will send spirit into you, and you shall live. And I will set sinews upon you, and I will cause flesh to grow over you, and I will extend skin over you. And I will give you spirit, and you shall live. And you shall know that I am the Lord.” And I prophesied, just as he had instructed me. But a noise occurred, as I was prophesying, and behold: a commotion. And the bones joined together, each one at its joint. And I saw, and behold: sinews and flesh rose up over them; and skin was extended over them. But they had no spirit within them. And he said to me: “Prophesy to the spirit! Prophesy, O son of man, and you shall say to the spirit: Thus says the Lord God: Approach, O spirit, from the four winds, and blow across these ones who were slain, and revive them.” And I prophesied just as he had instructed me. And spirit entered into them, and they lived. And they stood upon their feet, an exceedingly great army. And he said to me: “Son of man: All these bones are the house of Israel. They say: ‘Our bones are dried out, and our hope has perished, and we have been cut off.’ Because of this, prophesy, and you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord God: Behold, I will open your tombs, and I will lead you away from your sepulchers, O my people. And I will lead you into the land of Israel. And you shall know that I am the Lord, when I will have opened your sepulchers, and when I will have led you away from your tombs, O my people. And I will place my Spirit within you, and you shall live. And I will cause you to rest upon your own soil. And you shall know that I, the Lord, have spoken and acted, says the Lord God.” And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: “And as for you, son of man, take up a piece of wood for yourself, and write upon it: ‘For Joseph, the wood of Ephraim, and for the entire house of Israel, and for his companions.’ And take up another piece of wood for yourself, and write upon it: ‘For Judah, and for the sons of Israel, his companions.’ And take up another piece of wood, and write upon it: ‘For Joseph, the wood of Ephraim, and for the entire house of Israel, and for his companions.’ And join these, one to the other, for yourself, as one piece of wood. And they will be united in your hand. Then, when the sons of your people will speak to you, saying: ‘Will you not tell us what you intend by this?’ you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord God: Behold, I will take up the wood of Joseph, which is in the hand of Ephraim, and the tribes of Israel, which are joined to him, and I will put them together with the wood of Judah, and I will make them one piece of wood. And they will be one in his hand. Then the pieces of wood, on which you have written, will be in your hand, before their eyes. And you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord God: Behold, I will take up the sons of Israel, from the midst of the nations to which they have gone, and I will gather them together on every side, and I will lead them onto their own soil. And I will make them one nation in the land, on the mountains of Israel, and one king will be ruler over all. And they will no longer be two nations, nor will they be divided any more into two kingdoms. And they will no longer be defiled by their idols, and by their abominations, and by all their iniquities. And I will save them, out of all the settlements in which they have sinned, and I will cleanse them. And they will be my people, and I will be their God. And my servant David shall be the king over them, and they shall have one shepherd. They shall walk in my judgments, and they shall keep my commandments, and they shall do them. And they shall live upon the land that I gave to my servant Jacob, in which your fathers lived. And they shall live upon it, they and their sons, and the sons of their sons, even for all time. And David, my servant, shall be their leader, in perpetuity. And I will strike a covenant of peace with them. This will be an everlasting covenant for them. And I will establish them, and multiply them. And I will set my sanctuary in their midst, unceasingly.

37:27 And my tabernacle shall be among them. And I will be their God, and they will be my people. 37:28 And the Gentiles shall know that I am the Lord, the Sanctifier of Israel, when my sanctuary will be in their midst, forever.”

[Ezekiel 38] 38:1 And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: 38:2 “Son of man, set your face against Gog, the land of Magog, the prince of the head of Meshech and Tubal, and prophesy about him. 38:3 And you shall say to him: Thus says the Lord God: Behold, I am against you, O Gog, prince of the head of Meshech and Tubal. 38:4 And I will turn you around, and I will place a bit in your jaws. And I will lead you away, with all your army, the horses and the horsemen all clothed in armor, a great multitude, equipped with spears and light shields and swords, 38:5 the Persians, the Ethiopians, and the Libyans with them, all with heavy shields and helmets, 38:6 Gomer, and all his companies, the house of Togarmah, the northern parts, and all his strength, and the many peoples with you. 38:7 Prepare and equip yourself, with all your multitude which has been assembled to you. And you shall be like a commandment to them. 38:8 After many days, you will be visited. At the end of the years, you will arrive at the land which was turned back by the sword, and which has been gathered from many peoples to the mountains of Israel that have been continually abandoned. These ones have been led away from the peoples, and all of them will be living confidently within it. 38:9 But you will ascend and arrive like a tempest and like a cloud, so that you may cover the land, you and all your companies, and the many peoples with you. 38:10 Thus says the Lord God: In that day, words will climb into your heart, and you will invent a most wicked plan. 38:11 And you will say: ‘I will ascend to the land without a wall. I will go to those who are resting and dwelling securely. All these live without a wall; they have no bars or gates.’ 38:12 Thus, you will plunder spoils, and you will take possession of prey, so that you may lay your hand upon those who had been abandoned, and afterwards were restored, and upon a people who were gathered away from the Gentiles, a people who have begun to possess, and to be the inhabitants of, the navel of the earth. 38:13 Sheba, and Dedan, and the merchants of Tarshish, and all its lions will say to you: ‘Could you have arrived in order to purchase from the spoils? Behold, you have gathered your multitude in order to plunder a prey, so that you may take silver and gold, and carry away equipment and substance, and plunder immeasurable wealth.’ 38:14 Because of this, son of man, prophesy, and you shall say to Gog: Thus says the Lord God: How is it that you do not know of that day, when my people, Israel, will be living in confidence? 38:15 And you will advance from your place, from the parts of the north, you and the many peoples with you, all of them riding on horses, a great assembly and an immense army. 38:16 And you will rise up over my people, Israel, like a cloud, so that you may cover the earth. In the latter days, you will be. And I will lead you over my own land, so that the Gentiles may know me, when I will have been sanctified in you, O Gog, before their eyes. 38:17 Thus says the Lord God: Therefore, you are the one, about whom I spoke in the days of antiquity, by the hand of my servants the prophets of Israel, who prophesied in the days of those times that I would lead you over them. 38:18 And this shall be in that day, in the day of the advent of Gog over the land of Israel, says the Lord God: my indignation will rise up in my fury. 38:19 And I have spoken, in my zeal and in the fire of my wrath, that there shall be a great commotion over the land of Israel, in that day. 38:20 And before my face there shall be stirred up: the fish of the sea, and the flying things of the air, and the beasts of the field, and every crawling thing that moves across the soil, and all the men who are upon the face of the earth. And the mountains will be overturned, and the hedges will fall, and every wall will fall in ruin to the ground. 38:21 And I will call for the sword against him on all my mountains, says the Lord God. Each one’s sword will be directed toward his brother. 38:22 And I will judge him by pestilence, and blood, and violent rainstorms, and immense hailstones. I will rain fire and brimstone upon him, and upon his army, and upon the many peoples who are with him. 38:23 And I will be magnified and sanctified. And I will be known in the eyes of the many nations. And they shall know that I am the Lord.”

[Ezekiel 39] 39:1 “But as for you, son of man, prophesy against Gog, and you shall say: Thus says the Lord God: Behold, I am above you, O Gog, prince of the head of Meshech and Tubal. 39:2 And I will turn you around, and I will lead you away, and I will cause you to rise up from the parts of the north. And I will bring you over the mountains of Israel. 39:3 And I will strike your bow in your left hand, and I will cast away your arrows from your right hand. 39:4 You will fall upon the mountains of Israel, you and all your companies, and your peoples who are with you. I have given you over to the wild animals, to the birds, and to every flying thing, and to the beasts of the earth, in order to be devoured. 39:5 You will fall upon the face of the field. For I have spoken, says the Lord God. 39:6 And I will send a fire upon Magog, and upon those who are living confidently in the islands. And they shall know that I am the Lord. 39:7 And I will make known my holy name in the midst of my people, Israel, and my holy name will no longer be defiled. And the Gentiles shall know that I am the Lord, the Holy One of Israel. 39:8 Behold, it approaches, and it is done, says the Lord God. This is the day, about which I have spoken. 39:9 And the inhabitants from the cities of Israel will go forth, and they will kindle and burn the weapons, the shields and the spears, the bows and the arrows, and the staff and the lance. And they will kindle fires with them for seven years. 39:10 And they will not carry wood from the countryside, and they will not cut from the forests. For they will kindle the weapons with fire. And they will prey upon those who had preyed upon them, and they will plunder those who had plundered them, says the Lord God. 39:11 And this shall be in that day: I will give Gog a renown place as a sepulcher in Israel, the valley of the wayfarers to the east of the sea, which will cause astonishment in those who pass by. And in that place, they will bury Gog and all his multitude, and it will be called the valley of the multitude of Gog. 39:12 And the house of Israel will bury them, so that they may cleanse the land, for seven months 39:13 Then all the people of the earth will bury them, and this shall be for them a renown day, on which I have been glorified, says the Lord God. 39:14 And they shall appoint men to continually examine the earth, so that they may seek out and bury those who have remained on the surface of the earth, so that they may cleanse it. Then, after seven months, they will begin to seek. {39:15} And they will go around, traveling the earth. And when they will have seen the bone of a man, they will station a marker beside it, until the undertakers may bury it in the valley of the multitude of Gog. {39:16} And the name of the city will be: the Multitude. And they shall cleanse the earth. {39:17} As for you, then, son of man, thus says the Lord God: Say to every flying thing, and to all the birds, and to all the beasts of the field: Assemble! Hurry! Rush together from every side to my victim, which I have immolated for you, a great victim upon the mountains of Israel, so that you may consume flesh, and drink blood! {39:18} You shall eat the flesh of the powerful, and you shall drink the blood of the princes of the earth, of rams and lambs and he-goats and bulls, and of fattened birds and all that is fat. {39:19} And you shall consume the fat unto satiation, and you shall drink the blood unto inebriation, from the victin that I will immolate for you. {39:20} And you shall be satiated, upon my table, from horses and powerful horsemen, and from all the men of war, says the Lord God. {39:21} And I will set my glory among the Gentiles. And all the nations shall see my judgment, which I have accomplished, and my hand, which I have laid upon them. {39:22} And the house of Israel shall know that I am the Lord, their God, from that day and thereafter. {39:23} And the Gentiles shall know that the house of Israel was taken captive because of their own iniquity, because they abandoned me. And so I concealed my face from them, and I delivered them into the hands of their enemies, and they all fell by the sword. {39:24} I have acted toward them in accord with their uncleanness and wickedness, and so I concealed my face from them. {39:25} Because of this, thus says the Lord God: Now I will lead back the captivity of Jacob, and I will take pity upon the entire house of Israel. And I will act with zeal on behalf of my holy name. {39:26} And they shall bear their shame and all their transgression, by which they betrayed me, though they were living in their own land confidently, dreading no one. {39:27} And I will lead them back from among the peoples, and I will gather them together from the lands of their enemies, and I will be sanctified in them, in the sight of the many nations. {39:28} And they shall know that I am the Lord, their God, because I carried them away to the nations, and I gathered them upon their land, and I did not abandon any of them there. {39:29} And I will no longer conceal my face from them, for I have poured out my Spirit upon the entire house of Israel, says the Lord God."

[Ezekiel 40] {40:1} In the twenty-fifth year of our transmigration, at the beginning of the year, on the tenth of the month, in the fourteenth year after the city was struck, on this very day, the hand of the Lord was placed upon me, and he brought me to that place. {40:2} In the visions of God, he brought me into the land of Israel, and he released me on an exceedingly high mountain, on which there was something like the edifice of a city, verging toward the south. {40:3} And he led me into that place. And behold, there was a man, whose appearance was like the appearance of brass, with a linen rope in his hand, and a measuring reed in his hand. And he was standing at the gate. {40:4} And the same man said to me: “Son of man, look with your eyes, and listen with your ears, and set your heart upon all that I will reveal to you. For you have been brought to this place, so that these things may be revealed to you. Announce all that you see to the house of Israel.” {40:5} And behold, there was a wall outside of the house, encircling it all around, and in the man’s hand was a measuring reed of six cubits and a palm. And he measured the width of the edifice with one reed; likewise, the height with one reed. {40:6} And he went to the gate which looked toward the east, and he ascended by its steps. And he measured the width of the threshold of the gate as one reed, that is, one threshold was one reed in width. {40:7} And a chamber was one reed in length and one reed in width. And between the chambers, there were five cubits. {40:8} And the threshold of the gate, next to the inner vestibule of the gate, was one reed. {40:9} And he measured the vestibule of the gate as eight cubits, and its front as two cubits. But the vestibule of the gate was inside. {40:10} Moreover, the chambers of the gate, toward the way of the east, were three from one side to the other. The three were of one measure, and the fronts were of one measure, on both sides. {40:11} And he measured the width of the threshold of the gate as ten cubits, and the length of the gate as thirteen cubits. {40:12} And before the chambers, the border was one cubit. And on both sides, the border was one cubit. But the chambers were six cubits, from one side to the other. {40:13} And he measured the gate, from the roof of one chamber to the roof of another, twenty-five cubits in width, from door to door. {40:14} And he found the fronts to be sixty cubits. And at the front, there was a court for the gate on every side all around. {40:15} And before the face of the gate, which extended even to the face of the vestibule of the gate of the interior, there were fifty cubits. {40:16} And there were slanting windows in the chambers and at their fronts, which were within the gate on every side all around. And similarly, there were also windows in the vestibules all around the interior, and there were images of palm trees before the fronts. {40:17} And he led me away to the outer court, and behold, there were storerooms and a layer of pavement stones throughout the court. Thirty storerooms encircled the pavement. {40:18} And the pavement in front of the gates, along the length of the gates, was lower. {40:19} And he measured the width, from the face of the lower gate to the front of the outer part of the inner court, to be one hundred cubits, to the east and to the north. {40:20} Likewise, he measured the gate of the outer court, which looked to the way of the north, to be as much in length as in width. {40:21} And its chambers were three from one side to the other. And its front and its vestibule, in accord with the measure of the former gate, were fifty cubits in its length and twenty-five cubits in width. {40:22} Now its windows, and the vestibule, and the engravings were in accord with the measure of the gate which looked to the east. And its ascent was by seven steps, and a vestibule was before it. {40:23} And the gate of the inner court was opposite the gate of the north, and that of the east. And he measured from gate to gate as one hundred cubits. {40:24} And he led me to the way of the south, and behold, there was a gate which looked toward the south. And he measured its front and its vestibule to be the same as the measures above. {40:25} And its windows and the vestibule all around were like the other windows: fifty cubits in length and twenty-five cubits in width. {40:26} And there were seven steps to ascend to it, and a
And he led me into the vestibule of the temple. And he measured from one gate to another, on the way to the south, to be one hundred cubits. And he led me into the inner court, to the south gate. And he measured the gate to be twenty cubits, and the width was eleven cubits, and there were eight steps to ascend to it. And there were pillars at the front, one on this side and another on that side.

1 And he led me into the temple, and he measured the front to be six cubits in width on one side, and six cubits in width on the other side, which is the width of the tabernacle. 2 And the width of the gate was ten cubits. And the sides of the gate were five cubits on one side, and five cubits on the other side. And he measured its length to be forty cubits, and the width to be twenty cubits. 3 And proceeding inward, he measured the front of the gate to be two cubits. And the gate was six cubits, and the width of the gate was seven cubits. 4 And he measured its length to be twenty cubits, and its width to be twenty cubits, before the face of the temple. And he said to me, “This is the Holy of Holies.” 5 And he measured the wall of the house to be six cubits, and the width of the sides to be four cubits, all around the house on every side. 6 Now the side chambers were side by side, and twice thirty-three. And they projected outward, so that they might enter along the wall of the house, on the sides all around, in order to contain, but not touch, the wall of the temple. 7 And there was a broad circular path, rising upward by winding, and it led to the cenacle of the temple by a circular course. As a result, the temple was wider in the higher parts. And so, from the lower parts, they rose up to the higher parts, in the center. 8 And in the house, I saw the height all around the foundations of the side chambers, which were the measure of a reed, the space of six cubits. 9 And the width of the exterior wall for the side chambers was five cubits. And the inner house was within the side chambers of the house. 10 And between the storerooms, there was the width of twenty cubits, all around the house on every side. 11 And the door of the side chambers was toward the place of prayer. One door was toward the way of the north, and one door was toward the way of the south. And the width of the place for prayer was five cubits all around. 12 And the edifice, which was separate, and which verged toward the way looking toward the sea, was seventy cubits in width. But the wall of the edifice was five cubits in width on all sides, and its length was ninety cubits. 13 And he measured the length of the house to be one hundred cubits, and the edifice, which was separate, with its walls, to be one hundred cubits in length. 14 Now the width before the face of the house, and of that which was separate facing the east, was one hundred cubits. 15 And he measured the length of the edifice opposite its face, which was separated at the back, and the porticoes on both sides, to be one hundred cubits, with the inner temple and the vestibules of the court. 16 The thresholds, and the oblique windows, and the porticoes, encircling it on three sides, were opposite the threshold of each one, and were floored with wood throughout the entire area. But the floor reached even to the windows, and the windows were closed above the doors; 17 and it reached even to the inner house, and to the exterior, throughout the entire wall, all around the interior and exterior, for the entire extent.
And there were cherubim and palm trees wrought, and each palm tree was between one cherub and another, and every cherub had two faces. The face of a man was closest to the palm tree on one side, and the face of a lion was closest to the palm tree on the other side. This was depicted throughout the entire house all around. From the floor, even to the upper parts of the gate, there were cherubim and palm trees engraved in the wall of the temple. The square threshold and the face of the sanctuary were one sight facing the other. The altar of wood was three cubits in height, and its length was two cubits. And its corners, and its length, and its walls were of wood. And he said to me, "This is the table in the sight of the Lord." And there were two doors in the temple and in the sanctuary. And in the two doors, on both sides, were two little doors, which were folded within each other. For two doors were on both sides of the doors. And cherubim were engraved in the same doors of the temple, with the figures of palm trees, as were depicted also on the walls. For this reason also, the boards were thicker in the front of the vestibule on the exterior. Upon these were the oblique windows, with the representation of palm trees on one side as well as on the other, at the sides of the vestibule, in accord with the sides of the house, and the width of the walls.

Ezekiel 42 {42:1} And he led me into the outer court by the way that leads to the north, and he led me into the storeroom that was opposite the separate edifice, and opposite the shrine that verges toward the north. {42:2} The length of the face of the north gate was one hundred cubits, and the width was fifty cubits. {42:3} Opposite the twenty cubits of the interior court, and opposite the layer of pavement stones in the outer court, in that place, there was a portico joined to a triple portico. {42:4} And before the storerooms, there was a walkway of ten cubits in width, looking toward the interior along a way of one cubit. And their doors were toward the north. {42:5} In that place, there were storerooms in the upper part of the lower level. For they supported the porticos, which projected from them out of the lower level, and out of the middle of the building. {42:6} For they were of three levels, and they did not have pillars, as they were like the pillars of the courts. Because of this, they projected from the lower levels and from the middle, fifty cubits from the ground. {42:7} And the exterior enclosing wall, adjacent to the storerooms that were along the way of the exterior court in front of the storerooms, was fifty cubits long. {42:8} For the length of the storerooms of the exterior court was fifty cubits, and the length before the face of the temple was one hundred cubits. {42:9} And under these storerooms, there was an entrance from the east, for those who were entering into it from the outer court. {42:10} In the width of the enclosing wall of the court that was opposite the way of the east, at the face of the separate edifice, there were also storerooms, before the edifice. {42:11} And the way before their face was in accord with the form of the storerooms which were along the way of the north. As was their length, so also was their width. And the entire entrance, and the likenesses, and their doors were in accord with the doors of the storerooms that were on the way looking toward the Renown. There was a door at the head of the way, and the way was before a separate vestibule, along the way entering toward the east. {42:13} And he said to me: "The storerooms of the north, and the storerooms of the south, which are before the separate edifice, these are holy storerooms, in which the priests, who draw near to the Lord in the Holy of Holies, shall eat. There they shall station the Holy of Holies, and the offering for sin, and for trespasses. For it is a holy place. {42:14} And when the priests will have entered, they shall not depart from the holy places into the outer court. And in that place, they shall set their vestments, in which they minister, for they are holy. And they shall be clothed with other vestments, and in this manner they shall go forth to the people." {42:15} And when he had completed measuring the inner house, he led me out along the way of the gate that looked toward the way of the east. And he measured it on every side all around. Then he measured facing the east wind with the measuring reed: five hundred reeds with the measuring reed throughout the course. {42:17} And he measured facing the wind of the north: five hundred reeds with the measuring reed throughout the course. {42:18} And toward the south wind, he measured five hundred reeds with the measuring reed throughout the course. {42:19} And toward the west wind, he measured five hundred reeds with the measuring reed. {42:20} By the four winds, he measured its wall, on every side throughout the course: five hundred cubits in length and five hundred cubits in width, dividing between the sanctuary and the place of the common people.

Ezekiel 43 {43:1} And he led me to the gate which looked toward the way of the east. {43:2} And behold, the glory of the God of Israel entered along the way of the east. And his voice was like the voice of many waters. And the earth was resplendent before his majesty. {43:3} And I saw a vision in accord with the form that I had seen when he arrived so that he might destroy the city. And the form was in accord with the sight that I had seen beside the river Chebar. And I fell upon my face. {43:4} And the majesty of the Lord advanced into the temple, along the way of the gate which looked toward the east. {43:5} And the Spirit lifted me up and brought me into the inner court. And behold, the house was filled with the glory of the Lord. {43:6} And I heard someone speaking to me from the house, and the man who was standing beside me said to me: "Son of man, the place of my throne, and the place of the steps of my feet, is where I live: in the midst of the sons of Israel forever. And the house of Israel, they and their kings, shall no longer defile my holy name by their fornications, and by the ruinous ways of their kings, and by exalted places. They have fabricated their threshold beside my threshold, and their doorposts beside my doorposts. And there was a wall between me and them. And they defiled my holy name by the abominations which they committed. Because of this, I consumed them in my wrath. {43:9} Now therefore, let them drive away their fornications, and the ruinous ways of their kings, from before me. And I will live in their midst forever. {43:10} But as for you, son of man, reveal the temple to the house of Israel, and let them be confounded by their iniquities, and let them measure the fabrication, and let them be ashamed at all the things that they have done. Reveal to them the form and the fabrication of the house, its exits and entrances, and its entire description, and all of its precepts, and its entire order, and all of its laws. And you shall write in their sight, so that they may observe its entire description and its precepts, and so that they may accomplish them.” {43:12} This is the law of the house at the summit of the mountain, with all its parts all around. It is the Holy of Holies. Therefore, this is the law of the house. {43:13} Now these are the measures of the altar by the most true cubit, which has a cubit and a palm. Its bend was a cubit, and it was a cubit in width. And its boundary, even to its edge and all around, was the width of one palm. The trough of the altar was like this also. {43:14} And from the bend at the floor even to the furthest rim was two cubits, and the width was one cubit. And from the lesser rim even to the greater rim was four cubits, and the width was one cubit. {43:15} Now the hearth itself was four cubits. And from the hearth going upward, there were four horns. {43:16} And the hearth was twelve cubits in length by twelve cubits in width, foursquare, with equal sides. {43:17} And the rim was fourteen cubits in length, by fourteen cubits in width, at its four corners. And the crown all around it was one half cubit, and its bend was one cubit all around. And its steps turned toward the east. {43:18} And he said to me: “Son of man, thus says the Lord God: These are the rituals of the altar, in whatever day it will be made, so that holocausts may be offered upon it, and blood may be poured out. {43:19} And you shall present these to the priests and to the Levites, who are of the offspring of Zadok, those who draw near to me, says the Lord God, so that they may offer to me a calf from the herd on behalf of sin. {43:20} And you shall take from its blood, and you shall place it on its four horns, and on the four corners of the rim, and on the crown all around. And so shall you cleanse and expiate it. {43:21} And you shall take the calf, which will be offered for sin, and you shall burn it in a separate place in the house, outside of the sanctuary. {43:22} And on the second day, you shall offer an immaculate he-goat from among the she-goats on behalf of sin. And they shall expiate the altar, just as they expiated it with the calf. {43:23} And when you will have completed expiating it, you shall offer an immaculate calf from the herd and an immaculate ram from the flock. {43:24} And you shall offer them in the sight of the Lord. And the priests shall sprinkle salt over them, and they shall offer them as a holocaust to the Lord. {43:25} For seven days, you shall offer daily a he-goat on behalf of sin. Also, they shall offer a calf from the herd, and a ram from the flock, ones that are immaculate. {43:26} For seven days, they shall expiate the altar, and they shall cleanse it, and they shall fill its hand. {43:27} Then, when the days have been completed, on the eighth day and thereafter, the priests shall offer your holocausts upon the altar along with the peace offering. And I will be pleased with you, says the Lord God.”

[Ezekiel 44] {44:1} And he turned me back, toward the way of the gate of the outer sanctuary, which looked toward the east. And it was closed. {44:2} And the Lord said to me: “This gate will be closed; it will not be opened. And man shall not cross through it. For the Lord, the God of Israel, has entered through it, and it shall be closed {44:3} to the prince. The prince himself will sit at it, so that he may eat bread before the Lord; he will enter by the way of the vestibule of the gate, and he will depart by the same way.” {44:4} And he led me in, along the way of the north gate, in the sight of the house. And I saw, and behold, the glory of the Lord filled the house of the Lord. And I fell upon my face. {44:5} And the Lord said to me: “Son of man, set within your heart, and see with your eyes, and hear with your ears all that I am speaking to you about all the ceremonies of the house of the Lord and about all its laws. And set your heart upon the ways of the temple, along all the exits of the sanctuary. {44:6} And you shall say to the house of Israel, which provokes me: Thus says the Lord God: Let all your wicked deeds be sufficient for you, O house of Israel. {44:7} For you bring in foreign sons, uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, so that they may be in my sanctuary and may defile my house. And you offer my bread, the fat, and the blood, yet you have broken my covenant by all your wicked deeds. {44:8} And you have not observed the precepts of my sanctuary, yet you have stationed observers of my vigil in my sanctuary for yourselves. {44:9} Thus says the Lord God: Any foreigner, any foreign son who is in the midst of the sons of Israel, who is uncircumcised in heart and uncircumcised in flesh, shall not enter into my sanctuary. {44:10} And as for the Levites, they have withdrawn far away from me, in the errors of the sons of Israel, and they have gone astray from me after their idols, and they have borne their iniquity. {44:11} They will be caretakers in my sanctuary, and doorkeepers at the gates of the house, and ministers to the house. They will slay the holocausts and the victims of the people. And they will stand before them, so that they may minister to them. {44:12} But because they ministered to them in the sight their idols, and they became a stumbling block of iniquity to the house of Israel, for this reason, I have lifted up my hand against them, says the Lord God, and they will bear their iniquity. {44:13} And they shall not draw near to me, so as to exercise the priesthood for me, and they shall not approach to any of my holy things, which are near the Holy of Holies. Instead, they will bear their shame and their wicked deeds, which they committed. {44:14} And I will make them doorkeepers of the house, for all its ministries and for all that will be done within it. {44:15} But the priests and the Levites who are the sons of Zadok, who observed the ceremonies of my sanctuary when the sons of Israel went astray from me, these shall draw near to me, so that they may minister for me. And they shall stand in my sight, so that they may offer to me the fat and the blood, says the Lord God. {44:16} They shall enter into my sanctuary, and they shall draw near to my table, so that they may minister for me, and so that they may observe my ceremonies. {44:17} And when they enter the gates of the inner court, they shall be clothed with linen garments. Neither shall anything woolen be placed over them, when they minister within the gates of the inner and the outer court. {44:18} They shall have linen bands on their heads, and linen undergarments over their loins, and they shall not be girded so as to sweat. {44:19} And when they go forth to the outer court to the people, they shall strip off their vestments, in which they ministered, and they shall place them in the storeroom of the sanctuary, and they shall clothe themselves with other garments. And they shall not sanctify the people in their vestments. {44:20} Now they shall not shave their heads, and they shall not grow long hair. Instead, they shall trim the hair of their heads. {44:21} And no priest shall drink wine, when he will be entering into the inner court. {44:22} And they shall not take as wife a widow or one who has been divorced. Instead, they shall take virgins from the offspring of the house of Israel. But they may also take a widow, if she is the widow of a priest. {44:23} And they shall teach my people the difference between holy and defiled, and they shall... distinguish for them between clean and unclean. {44:24} And when there has been a controversy, they shall stand in my judgments, and they shall judge. They shall observe my laws and my precepts, in all my solemnities, and they shall sanctify my Sabbaths. {44:25} And they shall not enter to a dead person, lest they be defiled, except to father or mother, or son or daughter, or brother, or to a sister who does not have another man. By these, they may become unclean. {44:26} And after he will have been cleansed, they shall number for him seven days. {44:27} And on the day when he enters into the sanctuary, to the inner court, so that he may minister to me in the sanctuary, he shall make an offering because of his offense, says the Lord God. {44:28} And there shall be no inheritance for them. I am their inheritance. And you shall not give them any possession in Israel. For I am their possession. {44:29} They shall eat the victim both for sin and for offenses. And every vowed offering in Israel shall be theirs. {44:30} And the first-fruits of all the firstborn, and all the libations out of all that is offered, shall belong to the priests. And you shall give the first-fruits of your foods to the priest, so that he may return a blessing to your house. {44:31} The priests shall not consume anything which has died on its own, or which was seized by a beast, whether from the fowl or the cattle."

Ezekiel 45 {45:1} “And when you will begin to divide the land by lot, separate as first-fruits for the Lord a sanctified portion of the land, in length twenty-five thousand and in width ten thousand. It will be holy within all its borders all around. {45:2} And there shall be, out of the entire region, a sanctified portion of five hundred by five hundred, foursquare all around, with fifty cubits for its suburbs on all sides. {45:3} And with this measure, you shall measure a length of twenty-five thousand, and a width of ten thousand, and within it shall be the temple and the Holy of Holies. {45:4} The sanctified portion of the land shall be for the priests, the ministers of the sanctuary, who approach for the ministry of the Lord. And it shall be a place for their houses, and for the holy place of the sanctuary. {45:5} Now twenty-five thousand in length, and ten thousand in width shall be for the Levites, who minister in the house. They shall possess twenty storerooms. {45:6} And you shall appoint a possession in the city of five thousand in width, and twenty-five thousand in length, in accord with the separation of the sanctuary, for the entire house of Israel. {45:7} Appoint the ministry of the Lord. And it shall be a place for their houses, and for the holy place of the sanctuary. {45:8} A portion of the land in Israel shall be for him. And the princes shall no longer plunder my people. Instead, they shall give the land to the house of Israel according to their tribes. {45:9} Thus says the Lord God: Let this be sufficient for you, O princes of Israel! Cease from iniquity and robberies, and execute judgment and justice. Separate your confines from my people, says the Lord God. {45:10} You shall have just scales, and a just unit of dry measure, and a just unit of liquid measure. {45:11} The units of dry and liquid measure shall be one uniform measure, so that a bath contains one tenth part of a cor, and an ephah contains one tenth part of a cor; each shall be of equal volume in accord with the measure of a cor. {45:12} Now the shekel consists of twenty obols. Furthermore, twenty shekels, and twenty-five shekels, and fifteen shekels makes one mina. {45:13} And these are the first-fruits that you shall take: a sixth part of an ephah from each cor of wheat, and a sixth part of an ephah from each cor of barley. {45:14} Likewise, a measure of oil, a bath of oil, is one tenth part of a cor. And ten baths make one cor. For ten baths complete one cor. {45:15} And take one ram from each flock of two hundred, out of those that Israel tends for sacrifice and holocausts and peace offerings, in order to make an expiation for them, says the Lord God. {45:16} All the people of the land will take hold of these first-fruits for the prince in Israel. {45:17} And concerning the prince, there shall be holocausts and sacrifice and libations, on solemnities and new moons and Sabbaths, and on all the solemnities of the house of Israel. He himself shall offer the sacrifice for sin, and the holocaust, and the peace offerings, in order to make expiation for the house of Israel. {45:18} Thus says the Lord God: In the first month, on the first of the month, you shall take an immaculate calf from the herd, and you shall expiate the sanctuary. {45:19} And the priest shall take from the blood that will be for the sin offering. And he shall place it on the doorposts of the house, and on the four corners of the rim of the altar, and on the posts of the gate of the inner court. {45:20} And so shall you do on the seventh day of the month, on behalf of each one who was ignorant or who was deceived by error. And you shall make expiation for the house. {45:21} In the first month, the fourteenth day of the month shall be for you the solemnity of the Passover. For seven days, unleavened bread shall be eaten. {45:22} And on that day, the prince shall offer, on behalf of himself and on behalf of all the people of the land, a calf for sin. {45:23} And during the solemnity of the seven days, he shall offer a holocaust to the Lord of seven immaculate calves and seven immaculate rams, daily for seven days, and a he-goat from among the she-goats, daily for sin. {45:24} And he shall offer the sacrifice of an ephah for each calf, and an ephah for each ram, and a hin of oil for every ephah. {45:25} In the seventh month, on the fifteenth day of the month, during the solemnities, he shall do just as was said above for the seven days, as much for the sin offering, as for the holocaust and sacrifice and oil.”

Ezekiel 46 {46:1} Thus says the Lord God: “The gate of the inner court which looks toward the east shall be closed for the six days on which work is done. Then, on the Sabbath day, it shall be opened. But also on the day of the new moon, it shall be opened. {46:2} And the prince shall enter from outside, by the way of the vestibule of the gate, and he shall stand at the threshold of the gate. And the priests shall offer his holocaust and his peace offerings. And he shall adore upon the threshold of the gate, and then depart. But the gate shall not be closed until evening. {46:3} And the people of the land shall adore at the entrance of the same gate, on the Sabbaths and on the new moons, in the sight of the Lord. {46:4} Now this holocaust, which the prince shall offer to the Lord on the Sabbath day, shall be six immaculate lambs, and one immaculate ram. {46:5} The sacrifice shall be one ephah for each ram. But for the lambs, the sacrifice shall be whatever his hand shall give. And there shall be one hin of oil for each ephah. {46:6} Then, on the day of the new moon, he shall offer one immaculate calf from the herd. Both the six lambs and the rams shall be immaculate. {46:7} And he shall offer the sacrifice of one ephah for each calf, and also one ephah for each ram. But for the lambs, it shall be just as his hand will find. And there shall be one hin of oil for each ephah. {46:8} And when the prince will enter, let him enter by the way of the vestibule of the gate, and let him go out by the same way. {46:9} And when the people of the land will enter in the sight of the Lord on the solemnities, whoever enters by the north gate so that he may adore, shall depart by the way of the south gate. And whoever enters by the way of the south gate shall depart by the way of the north gate. He shall not return by way of the gate through which he entered. Instead, he shall depart from the direction opposite to it. {46:10} But the prince in their midst shall enter when they enter, and he shall depart when they depart. {46:11} And during the feasts and the solemnities, there shall be the sacrifice of one ephah for each calf, and one ephah for each ram. But for the lambs, the sacrifice shall be just as his hand will find. And there shall be one hin of oil for each ephah.

{46:12} But when the prince will offer a voluntary holocaust or a voluntary peace offering to the Lord, the gate which looks toward the east shall be opened to him. And he shall offer his holocaust and his peace offerings, just as is usually done on the Sabbath day. And he shall depart, and the gate shall be closed after he has gone out. {46:13} And daily he shall offer, as a holocaust to the Lord, an immaculate lamb of the same age. He shall offer it always in the morning. {46:14} And he shall offer as a sacrifice with it, morning after morning, one sixth part of an ephah, and one third part of a hin of oil, to be mixed with the fine flour, as a sacrifice to the Lord, by a continual and everlasting ordinance. {46:15} He shall offer the lamb and the sacrifice and the oil, morning after morning, as an everlasting holocaust. {46:16} Thus says the Lord God: If the prince grants a gift to any of his sons, the inheritance of it will go to his sons; they shall possess it as an inheritance. {46:17} But if he grants a legacy from his inheritance to one of his servants, it shall be his only until the year of remission, and then it shall be returned to the prince. For his inheritance shall go to his sons. {46:18} And the prince shall not take from the inheritance of the people by force, nor from their possession. Instead, from his own possession, he shall give an inheritance to his sons, so that my people will not be scattered, each one from his possession.” {46:19} And he led me in by the entrance which was at the side of the gate, into the storerooms of the sanctuary for the priests, which looked toward the north. And there was a place there which verged toward the west. {46:20} And he said to me: “This is the place where the priests will cook the offering for sin and the offering for trespasses. Here, they shall cook the sacrifice, so that they need not carry it to the outer court, and so that the people may be sanctified.” {46:21} And he led me away to the outer court, and he led me around by the four corners of the court. And behold, there was a little atrium at the corner of the court; a little atrium was at each corner of the court. {46:22} At the four corners of the court, little atriums were positioned, forty cubits in length, and thirty in width; each of the four were of the same measure. {46:23} And there was a wall all around, encircling the four little atriums. And kitchens had been constructed under the porticos on all sides. {46:24} And he said to me: “This is the house of the kitchens, in which the ministers of the house of the Lord will cook the victims of the people.”

[Ezekiel 47] {47:1} And he turned me back to the gate of the house. And behold, waters went out, from under the threshold of the house, toward the east. For the face of the house looked toward the east. But the waters descended on the right side of the temple, toward the south of the altar. {47:2} And he led me out, along the way of the north gate, and he turned me back toward the way outside the exterior gate, the way which looked toward the east. And behold, the waters overflowed on the right side. {47:3} Then the man who held the rope in his hand departed toward the east, and he measured one thousand cubits. And he led me forward, through the water, up to the ankles. {47:4} And again he measured one thousand, and he led me forward, through the water, up to the knees. {47:5} And he measured one thousand, and he led me forward, through the water, up to the waist. And he measured one thousand, into a torrent, through which I was not able to pass. For the waters had risen to become a profound torrent, which was not able to be crossed. {47:6} And he said to me: “Son of man, certainly you have seen.” And he led me out, and he turned me back to the bank of the torrent. {47:7} And when I had turned myself around, behold, on the bank of the torrent, there were very many trees on both sides. {47:8} And he said to me: “These waters, which go forth toward the hillocks of sand to the east, and which descend to the plains of the desert, will enter the sea, and will go out, and the waters will be healed. {47:9} And every living soul that moves, wherever the torrent arrives, will live. And there will be more than enough fish, after these waters have arrived there, and they will be healed. And all things will live, where the torrent arrives. {47:10} And fishermen will stand over these waters. There will be the drying of nets, from Engedi even to Eneglaim. There will be very many kinds of fish within it: a very great multitude, like the fish of the great sea. {47:11} But on its shore and in the marshes, they will not be healed. For these will be made into salt pits. {47:12} And above the torrent, on its banks on both sides, every kind of fruit tree will rise up. Their foliage will not fall away, and their fruit will not fail. Every single month they will bring forth first-fruits. For its waters will go forth from the sanctuary. And its fruits will be for food, and its leaves will be for medicine.” {47:13} Thus says the Lord God: “This is the border, by which you shall possess the land, in accord with the twelve tribes of Israel. For Joseph shall have a double portion. {47:14} And you shall possess it, each one in equal manner as his brother. I lifted up my hand over it, so that I might give it to your fathers. And this land shall fall to you as a possession. {47:15} Now this is the border of the land toward the northern region, from the great sea, by the way of Hethlon, arriving at Zedad: {47:16} Hamath, Berothah, Sibraim, which is between the border of Damascus and the confines of Hamath, the house of Ticon, which is beside the border of Hauran, {47:17} and the border will be from the sea, even to the entrance of Enon, at the border of Damascus, and from the north to the north, at the border of Hamath, on the northern side. {47:18} Moreover, the eastern region will be from the midst of Hauran, and from the midst of Damascus, and from the midst of Gilead, and from the midst of the land of Israel, to the Jordan, marking the boundary to the eastern
Now the southern region, toward the meridian, will be from Tamar, even to the Waters of Contradiction at Kadesh, and from the Torrent, even to the great sea. And this is the southern region, toward the meridian. 47:20 And the region toward the sea will have its confines from the great sea continuing directly until one arrives at Hamath. This is the region of the sea. 47:21 And you shall divide this land among yourselves according to the tribes of Israel. 47:22 And you shall distribute it by lot as an inheritance, for yourselves and for the new arrival who will be added to you, who will conceive sons in your midst. And they shall be to you as the indigenous among the sons of Israel. They shall divide the possession with you, in the midst of the tribes of Israel. 47:23 And in whatever tribe the new arrival will be, there you shall give a possession to him, says the Lord God."

[Ezekiel 48] 48:1 “And these are the names of the tribes, from the parts of the north, beside the way of Hethlon, continuing on to Hamath, at the entrance of Enon, to the border of Damascus toward the north, beside the way of Hamath. And from the region of the east to the sea, there will be one portion for Dan. 48:2 And beyond the border of Dan, from the eastern region, even to the region of the sea, there shall be one portion for Asher. 48:3 And beyond the border of Asher, from the eastern region, even to the region of the sea, there shall be one portion for Naphtali. 48:4 And beyond the border of Naphtali, from the eastern region, even to the region of the sea, there shall be one portion for Manasseh. 48:5 And beyond the border of Manasseh, from the eastern region, even to the region of the sea, there shall be one portion for Ephraim. 48:6 And beyond the border of Ephraim, from the eastern region, even to the region of the sea, there shall be one portion for Reuben. 48:7 And beyond the border of Reuben, from the eastern region, even to the region of the sea, there shall be one portion for Judah. 48:8 And beyond the border of Judah, from the eastern region, even to the region of the sea, there shall be the first-fruits, which you shall separate, twenty-five thousand in width, and in length, the same as each one of the portions from the eastern region, even to the region of the sea. And the sanctuary shall be in its midst. 48:9 The first-fruits, which you shall separate to the Lord, shall be, in length, twenty-five thousand, and in width, ten thousand. 48:10 And these shall be the first-fruits for the sanctuary of the priests: toward the north, in length, twenty-five thousand, and toward the sea, in width, ten thousand, but also, toward the east, in width, ten thousand, and toward the south, in length, twenty-five thousand. And the sanctuary of the Lord shall be in its midst. 48:11 The sanctuary shall be for the priests from the sons of Zadok, who observed my ceremonies and did not go astray, when the sons of Israel went astray, just as the Levites also went astray. 48:12 And so the foremost of the first-fruits of the land, the Holy of Holies, beside the border of the Levites, shall be for them. 48:13 But also the Levites, similarly, shall have, beside the borders of the priests, twenty-five thousand in length, and ten thousand in width. The entire length shall be twenty-five thousand, and the width shall be ten thousand. 48:14 And they shall not sell from it, nor exchange, and the first-fruits of the land shall not be transferred. For these have been sanctified to the Lord. 48:15 But the five thousand that is left over, out of the twenty-five thousand in width, will be a profane place of the city for dwelling and for the suburbs. And the city shall be in the center. 48:16 And these shall be its measurements: on the northern side, four thousand and five hundred; and on the southern side, four thousand and five hundred; and on the western side, four thousand and five hundred; and on the eastern side, four thousand and five hundred. 48:17 But the suburbs of the city shall be: to the north, two hundred and fifty; and to the south, two hundred and fifty; and to the east, two hundred and fifty; and to the sea, two hundred and fifty. 48:18 Now what will remain of the length, in accord with the first-fruits of the sanctuary, ten thousand in the east, and ten thousand in the west, shall be as the first-fruits of the sanctuary. And its produce will be for the bread of those who serve the city. 48:19 And those who serve the city will be taken from all the tribes of Israel. 48:20 All the first-fruits, of the twenty-five thousand by twenty-five thousand square, shall be separated as the first-fruits of the sanctuary and as the possession of the city. 48:21 And what will remain shall be for the prince out of every portion of the first-fruits of the sanctuary and of the possession of the city, from the region of the twenty-five thousand of the first-fruits, even to the eastern border. But also to the sea from the region of the twenty-five thousand, even to the border of the sea, similarly shall be the portion of the prince. And the first-fruits of the sanctuary, and the sanctuary of the temple, shall be in its center. 48:22 Now from the possession of the Levites, and from the possession of the city, which are in the midst of the prince's portions, whatever is between the border of Judah and the border of Benjamin, shall also belong to the prince. 48:23 And for the remainder of the tribes, from the eastern region, even to the western region, there shall be one portion for Benjamin. 48:24 And opposite the border of Benjamin, from the eastern region, even to the western region, there shall be one portion for Simeon. 48:25 And beyond the border of Simeon, from the eastern region, even to the western region, there shall be one portion for Issachar. 48:26 And beyond the border of Issachar, from the eastern region, even to the western region, there shall be one portion for Zebulun. 48:27 And beyond the border of Zebulun, from the eastern region, even to the region of the sea, there shall be one portion for Gad. 48:28 And beyond the border of Gad, toward the southern region, in the meridian, the last part shall be from Tamar, even to the Waters of Contradiction at Kadesh, as the inheritance opposite the great sea. 48:29 This is the land that you shall distribute by lot to the tribes of Israel, and these shall be their portions, says the Lord God. 48:30 And these shall be the exits of the city: from the northern region, you shall measure four thousand and five hundred. 48:31 And the gates of the city shall be according to the names of the tribes of Israel. There shall be three gates from the north: the gate of Reuben one, the gate of Gad one, the gate of Levi one. 48:32 And to the eastern region, there shall be four thousand and five hundred. And there shall be three gates: the gate of Joseph one, the gate of Benjamin one, the gate of Dan one. 48:33 And to the southern region, you shall measure four thousand and five hundred. And there shall be three gates: the gate of Simeon one, the gate of Issachar one, the gate of Zebulun one. 48:34 And to the western region, there shall be four thousand and five hundred, and their three gates: the gate of Gad one, the gate of Asher one, the gate of Naphtali one. {48:35} Along circumference, there shall be eighteen thousand. And the name of the city, from that day, shall be: "The Lord is in that very place."

 The Prophecy of Daniel **

[Daniel 1] {1:1} In the third year of the reign of Jehoiakim king of Judah, Nebuchadnezzar king of Babylon came to Jerusalem and besieged it. {1:2} And the Lord delivered into his hand Jehoiakim the king of Judah and a portion of the vessels of the house of God. And he carried them away into the land of Shirar, to the house of his god, and he brought the vessels into the treasure chamber of his god. {1:3} And the king told Ashpenaz, the chief of the eunuchs, that he should bring in some of the sons of Israel, and some of the offspring of the king and of the sovereigns: {1:4} young men, in whom there was no blemish, noble in appearance, and accomplished in all wisdom, cautious in knowledge, and well-educated, and who could stand in the palace of the king, so that he might teach them the letters and the language of the Chaldeans. {1:5} And the king appointed for them provisions for each day, from his own food and from the wine which he himself drank, so that, after being nourished for three years, they would stand in the sight of the king. {1:6} Now, among those of the sons of Judah, there were Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah. {1:7} And the chief of the eunuchs assigned names to them: to Daniel, Belteshazzar; to Hananiah, Shadrach; to Mishael, Meshach; and to Azariah, Abednego. {1:8} But Daniel resolved in his heart that he would not be polluted with the king's meal, nor with the wine he drank, and he requested of the chief of the eunuchs that he might not be contaminated. {1:9} And so God gave Daniel grace and mercy in the sight of the leader of the eunuchs. {1:10} And the leader of the eunuchs said to Daniel, "I am afraid of my lord the king, who has appointed food and drink for you, who, if he should see that your faces are leaner than those of the other youths your age, you would condemn my head to the king." {1:11} And Daniel said to Malasar, whom the leader of the eunuchs had appointed over Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah, {1:12} "I beg you to test us, your servants, for ten days, and let roots be given to us to eat and water to drink, {1:13} and then observe our faces, and the faces of the children who eat the king's food, and then deal with your servants according to what you see." {1:14} When he had heard these words, he tested them for ten days. {1:15} But, after ten days, their faces appeared better and fatter than all the children who had eaten from the king's food. {1:16} Th thereafter, Malasar took away their portions and their wine for drinking, and he gave them roots. {1:17} Yet, to these children, God gave knowledge and instruction in every book, and wisdom, but to Daniel, also the understanding of all visions and dreams. {1:18} And when the time was completed, after which the king had said that they would be brought in, the chief of the eunuchs brought them in before the sight of Nebuchadnezzar. {1:19} And, when the king conversed with them, there had not been found so any great in all the world as Daniel, Hananiah, Mishael, and Azariah; and so they stood in the sight of the king. {1:20} And in every concept of wisdom and understanding, about which the king consulted with them, he found them to be ten times better than all the seers and astrologers put together, who were in his entire kingdom. {1:21} And so Daniel remained, even until the first year of king Cyrus.

[Daniel 2] {2:1} In the second year of the reign of Nebuchadnezzar, Nebuchadnezzar saw a dream, and his spirit was terrified, and his dream fled from him. {2:2} Yet the king commanded that the seers, and the astrologers, and the sorcerers, and the Chaldeans be gathered together to reveal to the king his dreams. When they arrived, they stood in front of the king. {2:3} And the king said to them, "I saw a dream, and, being confused in mind, I do not know what I saw." {2:4} And the Chaldeans answered the king in Syriac, "O king, live forever. Tell the dream to your servants, and we will reveal its interpretation." {2:5} And in answer, the king said to the Chaldeans, "The memory of it has slipped away from me. Unless you reveal the dream to me, and its meaning, you will be put to death, and your houses will be confiscated. {2:6} But if you explain the dream and its meaning, you will receive from me rewards, and gifts, and great honor. Therefore, reveal to me the dream and its interpretation." {2:7} They answered again and said, "Let the king tell the dream to his servants, and we will reveal its interpretation." {2:8} The king answered and said, "I am certain that you are stalling for time because you know that the memory of it has slipped away from me. {2:9} Therefore, if you do not reveal to me the dream, there is only one conclusion to be reached about you, that the interpretation is likewise false, and packed full of deception, so as to speak before me until the time passes away. And so, tell me the dream, so that I will also know that the interpretation that you tell me is likewise true." {2:10} Then the Chaldeans answered before the king, and they said, "There is no man on earth who can accomplish your word, O king. For neither has any king, however great and mighty, asked for an answer of this kind from every seer, and astrologer, and Chaldean. {2:11} For the answer that you seek, O king, is very difficult. Neither can anyone be found who can reveal it in the sight of the king, except the gods, whose conversation is not with men." {2:12} When he heard this, the king commanded, in fury and in great wrath, that all the wise men of Babylon should be destroyed. {2:13} And when the decree had gone forth, the wise men were put to death; and Daniel and his companions were sought, to be destroyed. {2:14} Then Daniel inquired, about the law and the sentence, of Arioch, the general of the king's army, who had gone forth to execute the wise men of Babylon. {2:15} And he asked him, who had received the orders of the king, for what reason such a cruel sentence had gone forth from the face of the king. And so, when Arioch had revealed the matter to Daniel, {2:16} Daniel went in and asked of the king that he would grant him time to reveal the solution to the king. {2:17} And he went into his house and explained the task to Hananiah, and Mishael, and Azariah, his companions, {2:18} so that they would seek mercy before the face of the God of heaven, about this mystery, and so that Daniel and his companions might not perish with the other wise men of Babylon. {2:19} Then the secret was revealed to Daniel by a vision in the night. And Daniel blessed the God of heaven, {2:20} and speaking aloud, he said, "May the name of the Lord be blessed by the present generation and for ever; for wisdom and fortitude are his. {2:21} And he alters the times and the ages. He takes away kingdoms and he establishes them. He gives wisdom to those who are wise and teaching skills to those who understand. {2:22} He reveals deep and hidden things, and he knows what has been established in darkness. And the light is with him. {2:23} To you, God of our fathers, I confess, and you, I praise. For you have given wisdom and fortitude to me, and now you have revealed to me what we asked of you, for you have uncovered for us the king’s thoughts.” {2:24} After this, Daniel went in to Arioch, whom the king had appointed to destroy the wise men of Babylon, and he spoke to him in this way. “Do not destroy the wise men of Babylon. Bring me in before the king, and I will explain the solution to the king.” {2:25} Then Arioch quickly brought Daniel to the king, and he said to him, “I have found a man of the sons of the transmigration of Judah, who would announce the solution to the king.” {2:26} The king answered and said to Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, “Do you really think that you can reveal to me the dream that I saw and its interpretation?” {2:27} And Daniel, facing the king, answered and said, “The secret that the king seeks, the wise men, the seers, and the soothsayers are unable to reveal to the king. {2:28} But there is a God in heaven who reveals mysteries, who has revealed to you, king Nebuchadnezzar, what will happen in the latter times. Your dream and the visions of your head upon your bed, are such as these. {2:29} You, O king, began to think, while in your blanket, about what will be hereafter. And he who reveals secrets showed you what will happen. {2:30} To me, likewise, this mystery is revealed, not according to the wisdom that is in me more than in other living things, but so that the interpretation might be made manifest to the king, and so that you may know the thoughts of your mind. {2:31} You, O king, saw, and behold, something like a great statue. This statue, which was great and high, stood exalted above you, and you considered how terrible it was. {2:32} The head of this statue was of the finest gold, but the breast and the arms were of silver, and further on, the belly and the thighs were of brass; {2:33} but the shins were of iron, a certain part of the feet were of iron and another part were of clay. {2:34} And so you looked until a stone was broken off without hands from a mountain, and it struck the statue on its feet, which were of iron and clay, and it shattered them. {2:35} Then the iron, the clay, the brass, the silver, and the gold were crushed together and diminished like the ashes of a summer courtyard, and they were quickly taken away by the wind, and no place was found for them; but the stone that struck the statue became a great mountain and filled the whole earth. {2:36} This is the dream; we will also tell its interpretation before you, O king. {2:37} You are a king among kings, and the God of heaven has given to you a kingdom, and fortitude, and power, and glory, {2:38} and all the places wherein the sons of men and the beasts of the field dwell. He has likewise given the flying creatures of the air into your hand, and he has placed all things under your realm. Therefore, you are the head of gold. {2:39} And after you, another kingdom will rise up, inferior to you, of silver, and another third kingdom of brass, which will rule over the whole world. {2:40} And the fourth kingdom will be like iron. Just as iron shatters and conquers all things, so will it shatter and crush all these. {2:41} Furthermore, because you saw the feet and the toes to be part of potter’s clay and part of iron, the kingdom will be divided, but still, from the slip of iron it will take its origin, since you saw the iron mingled with the earthenware from clay. {2:42} And as the toes of the feet were partly of iron and partly of clay, part the kingdom will be strong and part will be crushed. {2:43} Yet, because you saw the iron mingled with pottery from the earth, they will indeed be combined together with the offspring of man, but they will not adhere to one another, just as iron cannot be mixed with earthenware. {2:44} But in the days of those kingdoms, the God of heaven will inspire a kingdom that will never be destroyed, and his kingdom will not be handed over to another people, and it will crush and will consume all these kingdoms, and this kingdom itself will stand in eternity. {2:45} In accordance with what you saw, because the stone was torn away from the mountain without hands, and it crushed the earthenware, and the iron, and the brass, and the silver, and the gold, the great God has shown the king what will happen after this. And the dream is true, and its interpretation is faithful.” {2:46} Then king Nebuchadnezzar fell on his face and adored Daniel, and he commanded that they should offer in sacrifice to him victims and incense. {2:47} And so the king spoke with Daniel and said, “Truly, your God is the God of gods, and Lord of kings, and also a revealer of secrets, since you could uncover this mystery.” {2:48} Then the king raised Daniel to a high rank and gave him many great gifts, and he appointed him as leader over all the provinces of Babylon and as chief of the magistrates over all the other wise men of Babylon. {2:49} However, Daniel required of the king that he appoint Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego over the works of the province of Babylon. But Daniel himself was at the king’s door.

[Daniel 3] {3:1} King Nebuchadnezzar made a statue of gold, sixty cubits high and six cubits wide, and he set it up in the plain of Dura in the province of Babylon. {3:2} Then king Nebuchadnezzar sent to gather together the governors, magistrates and judges, generals and sovereigns and commanders, and all the leaders of the regions, to come together for the dedication of the statue, which king Nebuchadnezzar had raised. {3:3} Then the governors, magistrates and judges, generals and sovereigns and nobles, who were appointed to power, and all the leaders of the regions were brought together so as to convene for the dedication of the statue, which king Nebuchadnezzar had raised. And so they stood before the statue that king Nebuchadnezzar had set up. {3:4} And a herald proclaimed loudly, “To you it is said, to you peoples, tribes, and languages, {3:5} that in the hour when you will hear the sound of the trumpet and the pipe and the lute, the harp and the psaltery, and of the symphony and every kind of music, you must fall down and adore the gold statue, which king Nebuchadnezzar has set up. {3:6} But if anyone will not bow down and adore, in the same hour he will be cast into a furnace of burning fire.” {3:7} After this, therefore, as soon as all the people heard the sound of the trumpet, the pipe and the lute, the harp and the psaltery, and of the symphony and every kind of music, all the peoples, tribes, and languages fell down and adored the gold statue, which king Nebuchadnezzar had set up. {3:8} And soon, about the same time, some influential Chaldeans came and accused the Jews, {3:9} and they said to king Nebuchadnezzar, “O king, live forever. {3:10} You, O king, have established a decree, so that every man who might hear the sound of the trumpet, the pipe and the lute, the harp and the psaltery, and of the symphony and every kind of music, will prostrate himself and adore the gold statue. {3:11} But if any man will not fall down and adore, he would be cast into a furnace of burning fire. {3:12} Yet there are influential Jews, whom you have appointed over the works of the region of Babylon, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego. These men, O king, have scorned your decree. They do not worship your gods, and they do not adore the gold statue which you have raised up.” {3:13} Then Nebuchadnezzar, in fury and in wrath, commanded that Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego should be brought, and so, without delay, they were brought before the king. {3:14} And king Nebuchadnezzar addressed them and said, “Is it true, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, that you do not worship my gods, nor adore the gold statue, which I have set up? {3:15} Therefore, if you are prepared now, whenever you hear the sound of the trumpet, pipe, lute, harp and psaltery, and of the symphony and every kind of music, prostrate yourselves and adore the statue which I have made. But if you will not adore, in the same hour you will be cast into the furnace of burning fire. And who is the God that will rescue you from my hand?” {3:16} Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego answered and said to king Nebuchadnezzar, “It is not right for us to obey you in this matter. {3:17} For behold our God, whom we worship, is able to rescue us from the oven of burning fire and to free us from your hands, O king. {3:18} But even if he will not, let it be known to you, O king, that we will not worship your gods, nor adore the gold statue, which you have raised up.” {3:19} Then Nebuchadnezzar was filled with fury and the appearance of his face was changed against Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, and he commanded that the furnace should be heated to seven times its usual fire. {3:20} And he ordered the strongest men of his army to bind the feet of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, and to cast them into the furnace of burning fire. {3:21} And immediately these men were bound, and along with their coats, and their hats, and their shoes, and their garments, were cast into the middle of the furnace of burning fire. {3:22} But the king’s order was so urgent that the furnace was heated excessively. As a result, those men who had cast in Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, were killed by the flame of the fire. {3:23} But these three men, that is, Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, having been bound, fell down in the middle of the oven of burning fire.
{3:24} And they were walking in the midst of the flame, praising God and blessing the Lord. {3:25} Then Azariah, while standing, prayed in this manner, and opening his mouth in the midst of the fire, he said: {3:26} “Blessed are you, O Lord, the God of our fathers, and your name is praiseworthy and glorious for all ages. {3:27} For you are just in all the things that you have accomplished for us, and all your works are true, and your ways are right, and all your judgments are true. {3:28} For you have made equally true judgments in all the things that you have brought upon us and upon Jerusalem, the holy city of our fathers. For in truth and in judgment, you have brought down all these things because of our sins. {3:29} For we have sinned, and we have committed iniquity in withdrawing from you, and we have offended in all things. {3:30} And we have not listened to your precepts, nor have we observed or done as you have ordered us, so that it might go well with us. {3:31} Therefore, everything that you have brought upon us, and all that you have done for us, you have done in true judgment. {3:32} And you have delivered us into the hands of our enemies: traitors, unjust and most wicked, and to a king, unjust and most wicked, even more so than all others on earth. {3:33} And now we are not able to open our mouths.
We have become a shame and a disgrace to your servants and to those who worship you. {3:34} Do not hand us over forever, we ask you, because of your name, and do not abolish your covenant. {3:35} And do not withdraw your mercy from us, because of Abraham, your beloved, and Isaac, your servant, and Israel, your holy one. {3:36} You have spoken with them, promising that you would multiply their offspring like the stars of heaven and like the sand on the seashore. {3:37} For we, O Lord, are diminished more than all other peoples, and we are brought low throughout all the earth, this day, because of our sins. {3:38} Neither is there, at this time, a leader, or a ruler, or a prophet, nor any holocaust, or sacrifice, or oblation, or incense, or place of first fruits, in your eyes, {3:39} so that we may be able to find your mercy.
Nevertheless, with a contrite soul and humble spirit, let us be accepted. {3:40} Just as in the holocausts of rams and bullocks, and as in thousands of fat lambs, so let our sacrifice be in your sight this day, in order to please you. For there is no shame for those who trust in you. {3:41} And now we follow you wholeheartedly, and we fear you, and we seek your face. {3:42} Do not put us to shame, but deal with us in agreement with your clemency and according to the multitude of your mercies. {3:43} And rescue us by your wonders and give glory to your name, O Lord. {3:44} And let all those be confounded who lead your servants towards evil. May they be confounded by all your power and may their strength be crushed. {3:45} And may they know that you are the Lord, the only God, and glorious above the world.” {3:46} And they did not cease, those attendants of the king who had cast them in, to heat the furnace with oil, and flax, and pitch, and brush. {3:47} And the flame streamed forth above the furnace for forty-nine cubits.
{3:48} And the fire erupted and burnt those of the Chaldeans within its reach near the furnace. {3:49} But the angel of the Lord descended with Azariah and his companions into the furnace; and he cast the flame of the fire out of the furnace.
{3:50} And he made the middle of the furnace like the blowing of a damp wind, and the fire did not touch them, nor afflict them, nor bother them at all. {3:51} Then these three, as if with one voice, praised and glorified and blessed God, in the furnace, saying: {3:52} “Blessed are you, Lord, God of our fathers: praiseworthy, and glorious, and exalted above all forever. And blessed is the holy name of your glory:
praiseworthy, and exalted above all, for all ages.
{3:53} Blessed are you in the holy temple of your glory:
praiseworthy above all and exalted above all forever.
{3:54} Blessed are you on the throne of your kingdom:
praiseworthy above all and exalted above all forever.
{3:55} Blessed are you who beholds the abyss and sits upon the cherubims: praiseworthy and exalted above all forever.
{3:56} Blessed are you in the firmament of heaven:
praiseworthy and glorious forever. {3:57} All works of the Lord, bless the Lord: praise and exalt him above all forever.
{3:58} Angels of the Lord, bless the Lord: praise and exalt him above all forever. {3:59} Heaven, bless the Lord: praise and exalt him above all forever. {3:60} All waters that are

[3:91] Then king Nebuchadnezzar was astonished, and he quickly got up and said to his nobles: “Did we not cast three men shackled into the midst of the fire?” Answering the king, they said, “True, O king.” [3:92] He answered and said, “Behold, I see four men unbound and walking in the midst of the fire, and no harm is in them, and the appearance of the fourth is like a son of God.” [3:93] Then Nebuchadnezzar approached the entrance of the furnace of burning fire, and he said, “Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, servants of the supreme God, come out and approach.” And immediately Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego went out from the midst of the fire. [3:94] And when the governors, and the magistrates, and the judges, and the powerful of the king had gathered together, they considered these men because the fire had no power against their bodies, and not a hair of their head had been scorched, and their pants had not been affected, and the smell of the fire had not passed onto them. [3:95] Then Nebuchadnezzar, bursting out, said, “Blessed is their God, the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, who sent his angel and rescued his servants who believed in him. And they altered the verdict of the king, and they delivered up their bodies, so that they would not serve or adore any god except their God. [3:96] Therefore, this decree is established by me: that every people, tribe, and language, whenever they have spoken blasphemy against the God of Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego, will perish and their homes will be destroyed. For there is no other God who is able to save in this way.” [3:97] Then the king promoted Shadrach, Meshach, and Abednego in the province of Babylon. [3:98] NEBUCHADNEZZAR, the king, to all peoples, nations, and languages, who dwell in the whole world, may peace be increased with you. [3:99] The supreme God has accomplished signs and wonders with me. Therefore, it has pleased me to proclaim his signs, which are great, and his wonders, which are mighty. For his kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and his power continues from generation to generation.

[Daniel 4] [4:1] I, Nebuchadnezzar, was content in my house and prospering in my palace. [4:2] I saw a dream that terrified me, and my thoughts on my bed and the visions in my head disturbed me. [4:3] And so a decree was established by me, that all of the wise men of Babylon should be brought in before me, and that they should reveal to me the answer to the dream. [4:4] Then the seers, the astrologers, the Chaldeans, and the soothsayers entered, and I explained about the dream in their presence, but they did not reveal its answer to me. [4:5] And then their colleague came in before me, Daniel, (whose name is Belteshazzar according to the name of my god,) who has the spirit of the holy gods within his very self, and I told the dream directly to him. [4:6] Belteshazzar, leader of the seers, since I know that you have in you the spirit of the holy gods, and that no mystery is unreachable to you, explain to me the visions of my dreams, which I saw, and the solution to them. [4:7] This was the vision of my head on my bed. I looked, and behold, a tree in the middle of the earth, and its height was exceedingly great. [4:8] The tree was great and strong, and its height reached up to heaven. It could be seen all the way to the ends of the entire earth. [4:9] Its leaves were very beautiful, and its fruit was very abundant, and in it was food for the whole world. Under it, animals and beasts were dwelling, and in its branches, the birds of the sky were sheltered, and from it, all flesh was fed. [4:10] I saw in the vision of my head upon my blanket, and behold, a watcher and a holy one descended from heaven. [4:11] He cried out loudly, and he said this: “Cut down the tree and prune its branches; shake off its leaves and scatter its fruits; let flee the beasts, which are under it, and the birds from its branches. [4:12] Nevertheless, leave the stump of its roots in the earth, and let it be bound with a band of iron and brass among the plants, which are close by, and let it be touched by the dew of heaven, and let its place be with the wild animals among the plants of the earth. [4:13] Let his heart be changed from being human, and let the heart of a wild animal be given to him, and let seven periods of time pass over him. {4:14} This is the decree from the judgment of the watchers, and the decision and proclamation of the holy ones, until the living shall know that the Supreme One is ruler in the kingdom of men, and that he will give it to whomever he wills, and he will appoint the lowest man over it." {4:15} I, king Nebuchadnezzar, saw this dream. And so you, Belteshazzar, must quickly explain to me the interpretation because all the wise men of my kingdom are not able to declare the meaning of it to me. But you are able because the spirit of the holy gods is in you. {4:16} Then Daniel, whose name was Belteshazzar, began silently to think within himself for about one hour, and his thoughts troubled him. But the king responded, saying, "Belteshazzar, do not let the dream and its interpretation disturb you." Belteshazzar answered and said, "My lord, the dream is for those who hate you, and its interpretation may be for your enemies. {4:17} The tree that you saw was lofty and strong; its height reached toward heaven, and it could be seen throughout the whole world. {4:18} And its branches were very beautiful, and its fruit very abundant, and in it was food for all. Under it, dwelt the beasts of the field, and in its branches, the birds of the air stayed. {4:19} It is you, O king, who has been greatly esteemed, and you have grown strong. And you have increased your power, and it reaches towards heaven, and your rule is to the ends of the whole earth. {4:20} Yet the king also saw a watcher and a holy one descend from heaven and say: 'Cut down the tree and scatter it; however, leave the stump of its roots in the earth, and let it be bound with iron and brass, among the surrounding plants, and let it be sprinkled with the dew of heaven, and let his feeding be with the wild beasts, until seven periods of time pass over him.' {4:21} This is the interpretation of the judgment of the Most High, which has reached my lord, the king. {4:22} They will expel you from among men, and your dwelling will be with the beasts and the wild animals, and you will eat hay like an ox, and you will be drenched with the dew of heaven. Likewise, seven periods of time will pass over you, until you know that the Supreme One rules over the kingdom of men, and he gives it to whomever he wills. {4:23} But, since he commanded that the stump of its roots, that is, of the tree, should be left behind, your kingdom will be left for you, after you have realized that power is from divinity. {4:24} Because of this, O king, let my counsel be acceptable to you. And redeem your sins with alms, and your iniquities with mercy towards the poor. Perhaps he will forgive your offenses." {4:25} All these things came upon king Nebuchadnezzar. {4:26} After the end of twelve months, he was taking a walk in the palace of Babylon. {4:27} And the king spoke out loud, saying, "Isn't this the great Babylon, which I have built, as the home of the kingdom, by the strength of my power and in the glory of my excellence?" {4:28} And while the words were still in the king's mouth, a voice rushed down from heaven, "To you, O king Nebuchadnezzar, it is said: 'Your kingdom will be taken away from you, and they will expel you from among men, and your dwelling will be with the beasts and the wild animals. You will eat hay like an ox, and seven times will pass over you, until you know that the Supreme One rules in the kingdom of men, and he gives it to whomever he wills.' ” {4:30} The same hour, the sentence was fulfilled upon Nebuchadnezzar, and he was driven away from among men, and he ate hay like an ox, and his body was drenched with the dew of heaven, until his hair increased like the feathers of eagles, and his nails like those of birds. {4:31} Therefore, at the end of these days, I, Nebuchadnezzar, lifted up my eyes to heaven, and my mind was restored to me. And I blessed the Most High, and I praised and glorified him who lives forever. For his power is an everlasting power, and his kingdom is from generation to generation. {4:32} And all the inhabitants of the earth are reputed as nothing before him. For he acts according to his own will, with the inhabitants of the earth just as with the holy inhabitants of heaven. And there is no one who can resist his hand, or say to him, "Why have you done this?" {4:33} At the same time, my mind returned to me, and I arrived at the honor and glory of my kingdom. And my appearance was given back to me. And my nobles and my magistrates needed me. And I was restored to my kingdom, and even greater majesty was added to me. {4:34} Therefore I, Nebuchadnezzar, now praise, and magnify, and glorify the King of heaven, because all his works and the judgments of his way are true, and those who go forth in arrogance, he is able to bring low.

{5:1} Belshazzar, the king, made a great feast for a thousand of his nobles, and each one of them drank according to his age. {5:2} And so, when they were drunk, he instructed that the vessels of gold and silver should be brought, which Nebuchadnezzar, his father, had carried away from the temple, which was in Jerusalem, so that the king, and his nobles, and his wives, and the concubines, might drink from them. {5:3} Then the gold and silver vessels were presented, which he had carried away from the temple and which had been in Jerusalem, and the king, and his nobles, wives, and concubines, drank from them. {5:4} They drank wine, and they praised their gods of gold, and silver, brass, iron, and wood and stone. {5:5} In the same hour, there appeared fingers, as of the hand of a man, writing on the surface of the wall, opposite the candlestick, in the king's palace. And the king observed the part of the hand that wrote. {5:6} Then the king's countenance was changed, and his thoughts disturbed him, and he lost his self-control, and his knees knocked against one other. {5:7} And the king cried out loudly for them to bring in the astrologers, Chaldeans, and soothsayers. And the king proclaimed to the wise men of Babylon, saying, "Whoever will read this writing and make known to me its interpretation will be clothed with purple, and will have a golden chain on his neck, and will be third in my kingdom." {5:8} Then, in came all the wise men of the king, but they could neither read the writing, nor reveal the interpretation to the king. {5:9} Therefore, king Belshazzar was quite confused, and his face was altered, and even his nobles were disturbed. {5:10} But the queen, because of what had happened to the king and his nobles, entered the banquet house. And she spoke out, saying, "O king, live forever. Do not let your thoughts confuse you, neither should your face be altered. {5:11} There is a man in your kingdom, who has the spirit of the holy gods within himself, and in the days of your father, knowledge and wisdom were found in him. For king Nebuchadnezzar, your father, appointed him leader of the astrologers, enchanters, Chaldeans, and soothsayers, even your father, I say to you, O king. {5:12} For a greater spirit, and foresight, and understanding, and interpretation of dreams, and the revealing of secrets, and the solution to difficulties were found in him, that is, in Daniel, to whom the king gave the name Belteshazzar. Now, therefore, let Daniel be summoned, and he will explain the interpretation.” {5:13} Then Daniel was brought in before the king. And the king spoke to him, saying, “Are you Daniel, of the sons of the captivity of Judah, whom my father the king led out of Judea? {5:14} I have heard of you, that you have the spirit of the gods, and that greater knowledge, as well as understanding and wisdom, have been found in you.
{5:15} And now the wise astrologers have entered into my presence, so as to read this writing and to reveal to me its interpretation. And they were not able to tell me the meaning of this writing. {5:16} Furthermore, I have heard about you that you can interpret obscure things and solve difficulties. So then, if you succeed in reading the writing, and in revealing its interpretation, you will be clothed with purple, and you will have a chain of gold around your neck, and you will be the third leader in my kingdom.” {5:17} To this Daniel responded by saying directly to the king, “Your rewards should be for yourself, and the gifts of your house you may give to another, but I will read to you the writing, O king, and I will reveal to you its interpretation. {5:18} O king, the Most High God gave to Nebuchadnezzar, your father, a kingship and greatness, glory and honor. {5:19} And because of the greatness that he gave to him, all peoples, tribes, and languages trembled and were afraid of him. Whomsoever he wished, he put to death; and whomever he wished, he destroyed; and whomever he wished, he exalted; and whomever he wished, he lowered. {5:20} But when his heart was lifted up and his spirit was hardened in arrogance, he was deposed from the throne of his kingdom and his glory was taken away. {5:21} And he was expelled from the sons of men, and so his heart was placed with the beasts, and his dwelling was with the wild donkeys, and he ate hay like an ox, and his body was drenched with the dew of heaven, until he realized that the Most High holds power over the kingdom of men, and that whoever he wishes, he will set over it.
{5:22} Likewise, you, his son Belshazzar, have not humbled your heart, though you knew all these things. {5:23} But you have lifted yourself up against the Lord of heaven. And the vessels of his house have been presented before you. And you, your nobles, and your wives, and your concubines, have drunk wine from them. Likewise, you have praised the gods of silver, and gold, and brass, iron, and wood and stone, who neither see, nor hear, nor feel, yet you have not glorified the God who holds your breath and all your ways in his hand.
{5:24} Therefore, he has sent the part of the hand which has written this, which has been inscribed. {5:25} But this is the writing that has been decreed: MANE, THECEL, PHARES.
{5:26} And this is the interpretation of the words. MANE:
God has numbered your kingdom and has finished it.
{5:27} THECEL: you have been weighed on the scales and found lacking. {5:28} PHARES: your kingdom has been divided and has been given to the Medes and the Persians.
{5:29} Then, by the king’s command, Daniel was dressed with purple, and a chain of gold was placed around his neck, and it was proclaimed of him that he held power as the third in the kingdom. {5:30} That same night, king Belshazzar the Chaldean was killed. {5:31} And Darius the Mede succeeded to the kingdom, at the age of sixty-two years.

[Daniel 6] {6:1} It pleased Darius, and so he appointed over the kingdom one hundred twenty governors, to be placed throughout his whole kingdom. {6:2} And over these, three leaders, of whom Daniel was one, so that the governors would be accountable to them and the king would have no trouble. {6:3} And so Daniel excelled above all the leaders and governors, because a greater spirit of God was in him.
{6:4} Furthermore, the king considered setting him over the entire kingdom; whereupon the leaders and the governors sought to find a complaint against Daniel and in favor of the king. And they could find no case, or even suspicion, because he was faithful, and no fault or suspicion was found in him.
{6:5} Therefore, these men said, “We will not find any complaint against this Daniel, unless it is against the law of his God.” {6:6} Then the leaders and governors took the king aside privately and spoke to him in this way: “King Darius, live forever. {6:7} All the leaders of your kingdom, the magistrates and governors, the senators and judges, have taken counsel that an imperial decree and edict should be published, so that all who ask any petition of any god or man for thirty days, except of you, O king, will be cast into the den of lions. {6:8} Now, therefore, O king, confirm this judgment and write the decree, so that what is established by the Medes and Persians may not be altered, nor will any man be allowed to transgress it.” {6:9} And so king Darius set forth the decree and established it. {6:10} Now when Daniel learned of this, namely, that the law had been established, he entered his house, and, opening the windows in his upper room towards Jerusalem, he knelt down three times a day, and he adored and gave thanks before his God, as he had been acustomed to do previously. {6:11} Therefore, these men, inquiring diligently, discovered that Daniel was praying and making supplication to his God. {6:12} And they approached and spoke to the king about the edict. “O king, did you not decree that every man who makes a request to any of the gods or men for thirty days, except to yourself, O king, would be cast into the den of lions?” To which the king replied, saying, “The sentence is true, and according to the decree of the Medes and Persians, it is not lawful to violate it.” {6:13} Then they answered and said before the king, “Daniel, of the sons of the captivity of Judah, is not concerned about your law, nor about the decree that you have established, but three times a day he prays his supplication.” {6:14} Now when the king had heard these words, he was greatly grieved, and, on behalf of Daniel, he set his heart to free him, and he labored even until sunset to rescue him. {6:15} But these men, knowing the king, said to him, “You know, O king, that the law of the Medes and Persians is that every decree which the king has established may not be altered.” {6:16} Then the knight commanded, and they brought Daniel and cast him into the den of lions. And the king said to Daniel, “Your God, whom you always serve, he himself will free you.” {6:17} And a stone was brought, and it was placed over the mouth of the den, which the king sealed with his own ring, and with the ring of his nobles, so that no one would act against Daniel. {6:18} And the king departed into his house, and he went to bed without eating, and food was not set before him, moreover, even sleep fled from him. {6:19} Then the king, getting himself up at first light, went quickly to the den of lions. {6:20} And coming near to the den, he cried out with a tearful voice to Daniel and spoke to him. “Daniel, servant of the living God, your God, whom you serve always, do you believe he has prevailed to free you from the lions?”
{6:21} And Daniel, answering the king, said, “O king, live forever. {6:22} My God has sent his angel, and he has closed the mouths of the lions, and they have not harmed me, because before him justice has been found in me, and, even before you, O king, I have committed no offense.” {6:23} Then was the king exceedingly glad for him, and he commanded that Daniel should be taken out of the den. And Daniel was taken out of the den, and no wound was found in him, because he believed in his God. {6:24} Moreover, by order of the king, those men were brought who had accused Daniel, and they were cast into the lions’ den, they, and their sons, and their wives, and they did not reach the bottom of the den before the lions seized them and crushed all their bones. {6:25} Then king Darius wrote to all peoples, tribes, and languages dwelling in all the land. “May peace be increased with you. {6:26} It is hereby established by my decree that, in all my empire and my kingdom, they shall begin to tremble and fear the God of Daniel. For he is the living and eternal God forever, and his kingdom will not be destroyed, and his power will last forever. {6:27} He is the liberator and the savior, performing signs and wonders in heaven and on earth, who has freed Daniel from the lions’ den.” {6:28} Thereafter, Daniel continued through the reign of Darius until the reign of Cyrus, the Persian.

[Daniel 7] {7:1} In the first year of Belshazzar, king of Babylon, Daniel saw a dream and a vision in his head on his bed. And, writing down the dream, he understood it in a concise manner, and so, summarizing it tersely, he said: {7:2} I saw in my vision at night, and behold, the four winds of the heavens fought upon the great sea. {7:3} And four great beasts, different from one another, ascended from the sea. {7:4} The first was like a lioness and had the wings of an eagle. I watched as its wings were plucked off, and it was raised from the earth and stood on its feet like a man, and the heart of a man was given to it. {7:5} And behold, another beast, like a bear, stood to one side, and there were three rows in its mouth and in its teeth, and they spoke to it in this way: “Arise, devour much flesh.” {7:6} After this, I watched, and behold, another like a leopard, and it had wings like a bird, four upon it, and four heads were on the beast, and power was given to it. {7:7} After this, I watched in the vision of the night, and behold, a fourth beast, terrible yet wondrous, and exceedingly strong; it had great iron teeth, eating yet crushing, and trampling down the remainder with his feet, but it was unlike the other beasts, which I had seen before it, and it had ten horns. {7:8} I considered the horns, and behold, another little horn rose out of the midst of them. And three of the first horns were rooted out by its presence. And behold, eyes like the eyes of a man were in this horn, and a mouth speaking unnatural things. {7:9} I watched until thrones were set up, and the ancient of days sat down. His garment was radiant like snow, and the hair of his head like clean wool; his throne was flames of fire, its wheels had been set on fire. {7:10} A river of fire rushed forth from his presence. Thousands upon thousands ministered to him, and ten thousand times hundreds of thousands attended before him. The trial began, and the books were opened. {7:11} I watched because of the voice of the great words which that horn was speaking, and I saw that the beast had been destroyed, and its body was ruined and had been handed over to be burnt with fire. {7:12} Likewise, the power of the other beasts was taken away, and a limited time of life was appointed to them, until one time and another. {7:13} I watched, therefore, in the vision of the night, and behold, with the clouds of heaven, one like a son of man arrived, and he approached all the way to the ancient of days, and they presented him before him. {7:14} And he gave him power, and honor, and the kingdom, and all peoples, tribes, and languages will serve him. His power is an eternal power, which will not be taken away, and his kingdom, one which will not be corrupted. {7:15} My spirit was terrified. I, Daniel, was fearful at these things, and the visions of my head disturbed me. {7:16} I approached one of the attendants and asked the truth from him about all these things. He told me the interpretation of the words, and he instructed me: {7:17} “These four great beasts are four kingdoms, which will rise from the earth. {7:18} Yet it is the saints of the Most High God who will receive the kingdom, and they will hold the kingdom from this generation, and forever and ever.” {7:19} After this, I wanted to learn diligently about the fourth beast, which was very different from all, and exceedingly terrible; his teeth and claws were of iron; he devoured and crushed, and the remainder he trampled with his feet; {7:20} and about the ten horns, which he had on his head, and about the other, which had sprung up, before which three horns fell, and about that horn which had eyes and a mouth speaking great things, and which was more powerful than the rest. {7:21} I watched, and behold, that horn made war against the holy ones and prevailed over them, {7:22} until the Ancient of days came and gave judgment to the holy ones of the Supreme One, and the time arrived, and the holy ones obtained the kingdom. {7:23} And thus he said, “The fourth beast will be the fourth kingdom on earth, which will be greater than all the kingdoms, and will devour the whole earth, and will trample and crush it. {7:24} Moreover, the ten horns of the same kingdom will be ten kings, and another will rise up after them, and he will be mightier than the ones before him, and he will bring down three kings. {7:25} And he will speak words against the Supreme One, and will exhaust the holy ones of the Most High, and he will think about what it would take to change the times and the laws, and they will be given into his hand until a time, and times, and half a time. {7:26} And a trial will begin, so that his power may be taken away, and be crushed, and be undone all the way to the end. {7:27} Yet the kingdom, and the power, and the greatness of that kingdom, which is under all of heaven, shall be given to the people of the holy ones of the Most High, whose kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all kings will serve and obey him.” {7:28} And here is the end of the message. I, Daniel, was greatly disturbed by my thoughts, and my mood was changed in me, but I preserved the message in my heart.

[Daniel 8] {8:1} In the third year of the reign of Belshazzar the king, a vision appeared to me. After that which I had seen in the beginning, I, Daniel, {8:2} saw in my vision, that I was in the capital city of Susa, which is in the region of Elam, yet I saw in the vision that I was over the gate of Ulai. {8:3} And I lifted up my eyes and saw, and behold, a single ram stood before the marsh, having two high horns, and one was higher than the other and growing higher still. {8:4} After this, I saw the ram brandishing his horns against the West, and against the North, and against the Meridian, and all the beasts could not withstand him, nor be freed from his hand, and he did many, and he will rise up against the Lord of lords, and he will be inflated, and by the abundance of everything he will kill treachery will be guided by his hand. And his heart will be able to trust, everything will be eradicated, and he will

and the people of the saints, {8:25} according to his will, and he will not by his kind of force, and other than what he will be negotiations. {8:24} And his advantage will be strengthened, there will arise a king of shameless face and understanding {8:23} And after their reign, when iniquities will be increased, the king of the Greeks, and the great horn, which was earlier tribulation, for the time has its end. {8:20} The ram, when he spoke to me, I fell forward onto the ground, and so saw to have horns, is the king of the Medes and Persians. {8:21} Furthermore, the he-goat among she-goats became exceedingly great, and when he had prospered, the great horn was shattered, and four horns were rising up beneath it by means of the four winds of heaven. {8:9} But from one of them came forth one little horn, and it became great against the Meridian, and against the East, and against the strength. {8:10} And it was magnified even towards the strength of heaven, and it threw down those of the strength and of the stars, and it trampled them. {8:11} And it was magnified, even to the leader of the strength, and it took away from him the continual sacrifice, and cast down the place of his sanctuary. {8:12} And the advantage was given to him against the continual sacrifice, because of the sins, and truth will be struck down to the ground, and he will act, and he will prosper. {8:13} And I heard one of the holy ones speaking, and one sain t said to another, (I know not to whom he was speaking,) "What is the extent of the vision, and the continual sacrifice, and the sin of the desolation, which has happened, and of the sanctuary and the strength, which will be trampled?" {8:14} And he said to him, "From evening until morning, two thousand three hundred days, and so the sanctuary will be cleansed." {8:15} But it came to pass, when I, Daniel, saw the vision and sought understanding that, behold, there stood in my sight something like the appearance of a man. {8:16} And I heard the voice of a man within Ulai, and he called out and said, "Gabriel, make this one understand the vision." {8:17} And he came and stood next to where I was standing, and when he approached, I fell on my face, trembling, and he said to me, "Understand, son of man, for in the time of the end the vision will be fulfilled." {8:18} And when he spoke to me, I fell forward onto the ground, and so he touched me and stood me upright. {8:19} And he said to me, "I will reveal to you what the future things are in the earlier tribulation, for the time has its end. {8:20} The ram, which you saw to have horns, is the king of the Medes and Persians. {8:21} Furthermore, the he-goat among she-goats is the king of the Greeks, and the great horn, which was between his eyes, is the same one, the first king. {8:22} And since, having been shattered, there grew four in its place, four kings will rise up from his people, but not in his strength. {8:23} And after their reign, when iniquities will be increased, there will arise a king of shameless face and understanding negotiations. {8:24} And his advantage will be strengthened, but not by his kind of force, and other than what he will be able to trust, everything will be eradicated, he will prosper, and he will act. And he will execute the successful and the people of the saints, {8:25} according to his will, and treachery will be guided by his hand. And his heart will be inflated, and by the abundance of everything he will kill many, and he will rise up against the Lord of lords, and he will be knocked down without a hand. {8:26} And the vision of the evening and the morning, which was told, is true. Therefore, you must seal the vision, because, after many days, it will occur." {8:27} And I, Daniel, languished and was sick for some days, and when I had lifted myself up, I performed the king's works, and I was astonished at the vision, and there was none who could interpret it.

[Daniel 9] [9:1] In the first year of Darius, the son of Ahasuerus, of the offspring of the Medes, who ruled over the kingdom of the Chaldeans, {9:2} in year one of his reign, I, Daniel, understood in the books the number of the years, concerning the word of the Lord which came to Jeremiah, the prophet, that the desolation of Jerusalem would be completed in seventy years. {9:3} And I set my face to the Lord, my God, to ask and make supplication with fasting, and sackcloth, and ashes. {9:4} And I prayed to the Lord, my God, and I confessed, and I said, "I beg you, O Lord God, great and terrible, preserving the covenant and mercy for those who love you and keep your commandments. {9:5} We have sinned, we have committed iniquity, we acted impiously and have withdrawn, and we have turned aside from your commandments as well as your judgments. {9:6} We have not obeyed your servants, the prophets, who have spoken in your name to our kings, our leaders, our fathers, and all the people of the land. {9:7} To you, O Lord, is justice, but to us is confusion of face, just as it is on this day for the men of Judah, and the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and all Israel, for those who are near and those who are far off, in all the lands to which you have driven them, because of their iniquities by which they have sinned against you. {9:8} O Lord, to us belongs confusion of face: to our kings, our leaders, and our fathers, who have sinned. {9:9} But to you, the Lord our God, is mercy and atonement, for we have withdrawn from you, {9:10} and we have not listened to the voice of the Lord, our God, so as to walk in his law, which he established for us by his servants, the prophets. {9:11} And all Israel has transgressed your law and has turned away, not listening to your voice, and so the condemnation and the curse, which is written in the book of Moses, servant of God, has rained down upon us, because we have sinned against him. {9:12} And he has fulfilled his words, which he has spoken over us and over our leaders who judged us, that he would lead over us a great evil, such as has never before existed under all of heaven, according to what has been done in Jerusalem. {9:13} Just as it has been written in the law of Moses, all this evil has come upon us, and we did not entreat your face, O Lord our God, so that we might turn back from our iniquities and consider your truth. {9:14} And the Lord kept watch over the evil and has led it over us; the Lord, our God, is just in all his works, which he has accomplished, for we have not listened to his voice. {9:15} And now, O Lord, our God, who has led your people out of the land of Egypt with a strong hand and has made yourself a name in accordance with this day: we have sinned, we have done wrong. {9:16} O Lord, for all your righteousness, turn away, I beg you, your anger and your fury from your city, Jerusalem, and from your holy mountain. For, because of our sins and the iniquities of our fathers, Jerusalem and your people are a reproach to all who surround us. {9:17} Now, therefore, heed, O God, the prayer of your servant and his requests, and reveal your face over your sanctuary, which is but an exceedingly great terror rushed over them, and they saw the vision, for the men who were with me did not see it, was like the voice of a multitude. {10:7} But I, Daniel, alone and his arms and all that is downward all the way to the feet and appearance of lightning, and his eyes that of a burning lamp, and his waist was wrapped with the finest gold, {10:6} and up my eyes, and I saw, and behold, one man clothed in linen, and the appearance of fire was in his hand, and out of his mouth was something that looked like a mountain of fire. And when he spoke it was as though the fire of Mount Horeb threw its burning weight upon him, or as though he was covered with it. {10:7} And my strength left me, and I stood trembling until I heard the voice of one man speaking to me, and my spirit was restored in me. {10:8} And when I had heard all this, I fell down upon my face, and behold, a hand touched me, and raised me onto my knees and the knuckles of my hands. {10:11} And he said to me, “Daniel, man of longing, understand the words that I speak to you, and stand yourself upright, for I am now sent to you.” And when he had said these words to me, I stood trembling. {10:12} And he said to me, “Do not be afraid, Daniel, because from the first day that you set your heart to understand, by afflicting yourself in the sight of your God, your words have been heeded, and I have arrived because of your words. {10:13} But the leader of the kingdom of the Persians resisted me for twenty-one days, and behold, Michael, one of the primary leaders, came to help me, and I remained there next to the king of the Persians. {10:14} But I have come to teach you what will happen to your people in the latter days, because the vision is for a long time from now.” {10:15} And while he was speaking words to me in this way, I cast my face down to the ground and was silent. {10:16} And behold, something in the likeness of a son of man touched my lips. Then, opening my mouth, I spoke and said to him who stood before me, “My lord, at the sight of you, my limbs became weak and no strength has remained in me. {10:17} And so, how can the servant of my lord speak with my lord? For no strength remains in me; and even my breathing is hindered.” {10:18} Therefore, he who looked like a man, touched me again and strengthened me. {10:19} And he said, “Fear not, O man of longing. May peace be with you. Take courage and be strong.” And when he spoke to me, I recovered, and I said, “Speak, my lord, for you have strengthened me.” {10:20} And he said, “Do you not know why I have come to you? And next I will return, to fight against the leader of the Persians. When I was leaving, there appeared the leader of the Greeks arriving. {10:21} But, in truth, I announce to you what is expressed in the scripture of truth. And no one is my helper in all these things, except Michael your leader.”

[Daniel 10] {10:1} In the third year of Cyrus, king of the Persians, a message was revealed to Daniel, called Belteshazzar, and a true word, and great strength. And he understood the message, for understanding is needed in a vision. {10:2} In those days, I, Daniel, mourned for three weeks of days. {10:3} I ate no desirable bread, and neither meat, nor wine, entered my mouth, neither was I anointed with ointment, until the three weeks of days were completed. {10:4} But on the twenty-fourth day of the first month, I was next to the great river, which is the Tigris. {10:5} And I lifted up my eyes, and I saw, and behold, one man clothed in linen, and his waist was wrapped with the finest gold, and his body was like the golden stone, and his face had the appearance of lightning, and his eyes that of a burning lamp, and his arms and all that is downward all the way to the feet had the appearance of glowing brass, and his speaking voice was like the voice of a multitude. {10:7} But I, Daniel, alone saw the vision, for the men who were with me did not see it, but an exceedingly great terror rushed over them, and they fled into hiding. {10:8} And I, having been left alone, saw this great vision, and there remained no strength in me, moreover, my appearance was altered, and I languished, not having any strength. {10:9} And I heard the voice of his words, and when I heard, I lay down in confusion on my face, and my face was close to the ground. {10:10} And behold, a hand touched me, and raised me onto my knees and the knuckles of my hands. {10:11} And he said to me, “Daniel, man of longing, understand the words that I speak to you, and stand yourself upright, for I am now sent to you.” And when he had said these words to me, I stood trembling. {10:12} And he said to me, “Do not be afraid, Daniel, because from the first day that you set your heart to understand, by afflicting yourself in the sight of your God, your words have been heeded, and I have arrived because of your words. {10:13} But the leader of the kingdom of the Persians resisted me for twenty-one days, and behold, Michael, one of the primary leaders, came to help me, and I remained there next to the king of the Persians. {10:14} But I have come to teach you what will happen to your people in the latter days, because the vision is for a long time from now.” {10:15} And while he was speaking words to me in this way, I cast my face down to the ground and was silent. {10:16} And behold, something in the likeness of a son of man touched my lips. Then, opening my mouth, I spoke and said to him who stood before me, “My lord, at the sight of you, my limbs became weak and no strength has remained in me. {10:17} And so, how can the servant of my lord speak with my lord? For no strength remains in me; and even my breathing is hindered.” {10:18} Therefore, he who looked like a man, touched me again and strengthened me. {10:19} And he said, “Fear not, O man of longing. May peace be with you. Take courage and be strong.” And when he spoke to me, I recovered, and I said, “Speak, my lord, for you have strengthened me.” {10:20} And he said, “Do you not know why I have come to you? And next I will return, to fight against the leader of the Persians. When I was leaving, there appeared the leader of the Greeks arriving. {10:21} But, in truth, I announce to you what is expressed in the scripture of truth. And no one is my helper in all these things, except Michael your leader.”

[Daniel 11] {11:1} “And so, from the first year of Darius the Mede, I stood firm, so that he might be reinforced and strengthened. {11:2} And now I will announce to you the truth. Behold, up to a certain point, three kings will stand in Persia, and the fourth will be exceedingly enriched in power above them all. And when he has grown strong by his resources, he will stir up all against the kingdom of Greece. {11:3} But there will rise up a strong king, and he will rule with great power, and he will do what he pleases. {11:4} And when he has been firmly established, his kingdom will be shattered and will be divided towards the four winds of the heaven, but not to his posterity, nor according to his power with which he ruled. For his kingdom will be torn to pieces, even for the outsiders who have been expelled from these. {11:5} And the king of the South will be reinforced, yet one of his leaders will prevail over him, and he will rule with riches, for great is his domain. {11:6} And after the end of years, they will form a federation, and the daughter of the king of the South will come to the king of the North to make friendship, but she will not obtain the strength of arms, neither will her offspring stand firm, and she will be handed over, along with those who brought her, her young men, and those who comforted her in these times. {11:7} And a transplant from the germination of her roots will stand up, and he will come with an army, and will enter into the province of the king of the North, and he will abuse them, and will hold it fast. {11:8} And, in addition, he will carry away captive into Egypt their gods, and their graven images, and likewise their precious vessels of gold and silver. He will prevail against the king of the North. {11:9} And the king of the South will enter into the kingdom, and will return to his own land. {11:10} But his sons will be challenged, and they will assemble a multitude of very many forces. And he will arrive rushing and overflowing. And he will be turned back, and he will be enraged, and he will join the battle in his redness. {11:11} And the king of the South, having being challenged, will go forth and will fight against the king of the North, and he will prepare an exceedingly great multitude, and a multitude will be given into his hand. {11:12} And he will seize a multitude, and his heart will be exalted, and he will cast down many thousands, but he will not prevail. {11:13} For the king of the North will change strategy and will prepare a multitude much greater than before, and at the end of times and years, he will rush forward with a great army and exceedingly great resources. {11:14} And in those times, many will rise up against the king of the South. And likewise the sons of the deceivers among your people will extol themselves, so as to fulfill the vision, and they will collapse. {11:15} And the king of the North will arrive and will transport siege works, and he will seize the most fortified cities. And the arms of the South will not withstand him, and his elect will rise up to resist, but the strength will not. {11:16} And when he arrives, he will do just as he pleases, and there will be none who stand against his face. And he will stand in the illustrious land, and it will be consumed by his hand. {11:17} And he will set his face to strive to hold his entire kingdom, and he will make fair conditions with him. And he will give him a daughter among women, so as to overthrow it. But she will not stand, neither will she be for him. {11:18} And he will turn his face towards the islands, and he will seize many. And he will cause the leader of his reproach to cease, and his reproach will be turned around for him. {11:19} And he will turn his face to the empire of his own land, and he will strike, and will overthrow, but he will not succeed. {11:20} And there will stand up in his place one who is most worthless and unworthy of kingly honor. And in a short time, he will be worn out, but not in fury, nor in battle. {11:21} And there will stand up in his place the despicable one, and he will not be assigned the honor of a king. And he will arrive in secret, and he will obtain the kingdom by deceitfulness. {11:22} And the arms of the fighting will be assaulted before his face and will be shattered, and, in addition, the leader of the federation. {11:23} And, after making friends, he will trick him, and he will go up and will overcome with a small people. {11:24} And he will enter into rich and resourceful cities, and he will do what his fathers never did, nor his fathers' fathers. He will scatter their spoils, and their prey, and their riches, and will form a plan against the most steadfast, and this until a time. {11:25} And his strength and his heart will be enraged against the king of the South with a great army. And the king of the South will be provoked into going to war by having many allies and exceedingly good circumstances, and yet these will not stand, for they will form plans against him. {11:26} And those who eat bread with him will crush him, and his army will be suppressed, and very many will die, having been executed. {11:27} And the heart of two kings will be similar, to do harm, and they will speak lies at one table, but they will not succeed, because as yet the end is for another time. {11:28} And he will return to his land with many resources. And his heart will be against the holy testament, and he will act, and he will return to his own land. {11:29} At the appointed time, he will return, and he will approach the South, but the latter time will not be like the former. {11:30} And the Greek warships and the Romans will come upon him, and he will be pierced, and will retreat, and will have scorn against the testament of the sanctuary, and he will act. And he will return and will consult their adversaries, who have forsaken the covenant of the sanctuary. {11:31} And arms will take his side, and they will pollute the sanctuary of the strength, and they will take away the continual sacrifice and will replace it with the abomination of desolation. {11:32} And the impious within the testament will imitate deceitfully, but the people, knowing their God, will persevere and will act. {11:33} And the teachers among the people will teach many, but they will be ruined by the sword, and by fire, and by captivity, and by assaults for many days. {11:34} And when they have fallen, they will be supported with a little help, but many will apply to them deceitfully. {11:35} And some of the learned will be ruined, that they may be kindled and chosen and purified, up to the predetermined time, because there will be still another time. {11:36} And the king will act according to his will, and he will be lifted up and will be extolled against every god. And he will speak great things against the God of gods, and he will control, until the passion is completed. Once accomplished, the limit is reached with certainty. {11:37} And he will give no thought to the God of his fathers, and he will be in the desire of women, and he will not attend to any gods, because he will rise up against all things. {11:38} But he will do homage to the god Maozim in his place, and, a god whom his fathers did not know, he will worship with gold, and silver, and precious stones, and costly things. {11:39} And he will act to reinforce Maozim with an alien god, of whom he has become aware, and he will increase their glory, and will give them power over many, and he will distribute land for free. {11:40} And, at the predetermined time, the king of the South will fight against him, and the king of the North will come against him like a tempest, with chariots, and with horsemen, and with a great fleet, and he will enter into the lands, and will crush and pass through. {11:41} And he will enter into the glorious land, and many will fall. But only these will be saved from his hand: Edom, and Moab, and the first part of the sons of Ammon. {11:42} And he will cast his hand upon the lands, and the land of Egypt will not escape. {11:43} And he will rule over the treasure chests of gold, and silver, and all the precious things of Egypt, and likewise he will pass through Libya and Ethiopia. {11:44} And rumors from the East and from the North will trouble him. And he will arrive with a great multitude to destroy and to execute many. {11:45} And he will fasten his tabernacle, Apadno, between the seas, upon an illustrious and holy mountain, and he will come even to its summit, and no one will help him.”

[Daniel 12] {12:1} “But at that time Michael will rise up, the great leader, who stands up for the sons of your people. And a time will come, such as has not been from the time that nations began, even until that time. And, at that time, your people will be saved, all who will be found written in the book. {12:2} And many of those who sleep in the dust of the earth will awaken: some to everlasting life, and others to a reproach that they will always see. {12:3} But those who have taught will shine like the brightness of the firmament, and those who instruct many towards justice, like the stars for unending eternity. {12:4} But you, Daniel, close the message and seal the book, until the established time. Many will pass through, and knowledge will be increased.” {12:5} And I, Daniel, looked, and behold, similarly two others stood up, one over here, on the bank of the river, and the other over there, on the other bank of the river. {12:6} And I said to the man, who was clothed in linen, who stood over the waters of the river, “How long will it be until the end of these wonders?” {12:7} And I heard the man, who was clothed in linen, who stood over the waters of the river, when he had lifted his right hand and his left hand up to heaven, and had sworn by He who lives forever, that it would be for a time, and times, and half a time. And when the dispersion of the hand of the holy people is completed, all these things will be completed. {12:8} And I heard and did not understand. And I said, “My lord, what will be after these things?” {12:9} And he said, “Go, Daniel, for the words are closed and sealed until the predetermined time. {12:10} Many will be chosen and purified, and, as if by fire, they will be tested, and the impious will act impiously, and none of the impious will understand, yet the teachers will understand. {12:11} And from the time when the continual sacrifice will be taken away and the abomination of desolation will be set up, there will be one thousand two hundred ninety days. {12:12} Blessed is he who waits and reaches until one thousand three hundred thirty-five days. {12:13} But you, go, until the predetermined time, and you will rest and will stand in your allotted place at the end of days.

[Daniel 13] {13:1} And there was a man living in Babylon, and his name was Joakim. {13:2} And he received a wife named Susanna, the daughter of Hilkiah, who was very beautiful and God-fearing. {13:3} For her parents, because they were righteous, had educated their daughter according to the law of Moses. {13:4} But Joakim was very wealthy, and he had an orchard near his house, and the Jews flocked to the law of Moses. {13:5} And two elder judges had been appointed among the people that year, about whom the Lord has said, “Iniquity has come out of Babylon, from the elder judges, who seemed to govern the people.” {13:6} These frequented the house of Joakim, and all came to them, who had need of judgment. {13:7} But when the people departed at noontime, Susanna went in and walked around in her husband's orchard. {13:8} And the elders saw her entering and walking around every day, and they were inflamed with desire towards her. {13:9} And they perverted their reason and turned away their eyes, so that they would not look to heaven, nor call to mind just judgments. {13:10} And so they were both wounded by the love of her, yet they did not reveal their grief to one another. {13:11} For they were ashamed to reveal to each other their desire, wanting to lie with her. {13:12} And so they watched carefully every day to see her. And one said to the other, {13:13} “Let us go home, for it is lunch time.” And going out, they departed one from another. {13:14} And returning again, they came to the same place, and, each asking the other the reason, they admitted their desire. And then they agreed to set a time when they would be able to find her alone. {13:15} But it happened, while they watched for an opportune day, that she entered at a particular time, just as yesterday and the day before, with only two maids, and she wanted to wash in the orchard, because it was so hot. {13:16} And there was no one there, except the two elders in hiding, and they were studying her. {13:17} And so she said to the maids, “Bring me oil and ointments, and shut the doors of the orchard, so that I may wash.” {13:18} And they did as she ordered them. And they shut the doors of the orchard and left through a back door to fetch what she required, and they did not know that the elders were hiding within. {13:19} But when the maids had departed, the two elders arose and hurried to her, and they said, {13:20} “Behold, the doors of the orchard are closed, and no one can see us, and we are in desire for you. Because of these things, consent to us and lie with us. {13:21} But if you will not, we will bear witness against you that a young man was with you and, for this reason, you sent your maids away from you.” {13:22} Susanna sighed and said, “I am closed in on every side. For if I do this thing, it is death to me; yet if I do not do it, I will not escape your hands. {13:23} But it is better for me to fall unavoidably into your hands, than to sin in the sight of the Lord.” {13:24} And Susanna cried out with a loud voice, but the elders also cried out against her. {13:25} And one of them hurried to the door of the orchard and opened it. {13:26} And so, when the servants of the house heard the outcry in the orchard, they rushed in by the back door to see what was happening. {13:27} But after the old men had spoken, the servants were greatly ashamed, for there had never been anything of this kind said about Susanna. And it happened on the next day, {13:28} when the people came to Joakim her husband, that the two appointed elders also came, full of wicked plans against Susanna, in order to put her to death. {13:29} And they said before the people, “Send for Susanna, daughter of Hilkiah, the wife of Joakim.” And immediately they sent for her. {13:30} And she arrived with her parents, and sons, and all her relatives. {13:31} Moreover, Susanna was exceedingly delicate and beautiful in appearance. {13:32} But those wicked ones commanded that her face should be uncovered, (for she was covered,) so that at least they might be satisfied with her beauty. {13:33} Therefore, her own and all who knew her wept. {13:34} Yet the two appointed elders, rising up in the midst of the people, set their hands upon her head. {13:35} And weeping, she gazed up to heaven, for her heart had faith in the Lord. {13:36} And the appointed elders said, “While we were talking a walk in the orchard alone, this one came in with two maids, and she shut the doors of the orchard, and she sent the maids away from her. {13:37} And a young man came to her, who was in hiding, and he lay down with her. {13:38} Furthermore, since we were in a corner of the orchard, seeing this wickedness, we ran up to them, and we saw them consorting together. {13:39} And, indeed, we were unable to catch him, because he was stronger than us, and opening the doors, he leaped out. {13:40} But, since we had apprehended this one, we demanded to know who the young man was, but she was unwilling to tell us. On this matter, we are witnesses.”

You are so foolish, sons of Israel, that without judging and without knowing what the truth is, you have condemned a daughter of Israel? Return to judgment, because they have spoken false witness against her.” Therefore, the people returned with haste, and the old men said to him, “Come and sit down in our midst and show us, since God has given you the honor of old age.” And Daniel said to them, “Separate these at a distance from one another, and I will judge between them.” And so, when they were divided, one from the other, he called one of them, and he said to him, “You are so foolish, sons of Israel, that without judging and without knowing what the truth is, you have condemned a daughter of Israel? Return to judgment, because they have spoken false witness against her.”
Eternal God, who knows what is hidden, who knows all things before they happen, you know that the angel of God, having received the sentence declare under which tree you saw them conversing together.” He said, “Under an evergreen mastic tree.” But Daniel said, “Truly, you have lied against your own head. For behold, the angel of God, having received the sentence from him, will split you down the middle. And, having put him aside, he commanded the other to approach, and he said to him, “You are so foolish, sons of Israel, that without judging and without knowing what the truth is, you have condemned a daughter of Israel? Great are you, O Bel, and long live you! How great you are, O Bel! And Daniel said, smiling, “O king, do not make a mistake, for this one is clay on the inside and brass on the outside, and he has never eaten.” And the king, being angry, called for his priests and said to them, “If you do not tell me who it is that has eaten these expenses, you will die. But if you can show that Bel has eaten these, Daniel will die, because he has blasphemed against Bel.” And Daniel said to the king, “Let it be according to your word.” Now the priests of Bel were seventy, besides their wives, and little ones, and sons. And the king went with Daniel into the temple of Bel. And the priests of Bel said, “Behold, we are going out, and you, O king, set out the meats, and mix the wine, and close the door, and seal it with your ring. And when you have entered in the morning, if you have not found that Bel has consumed all, we will suffer death, or else Daniel will, who has lied against us.” But they had no concern because they had made a secret entrance under the table, and they always went in through it and devoured those things. And so it happened, after they had departed, that the king set the foods before Bel, and Daniel commanded his servants, and they brought ashes, and he sifted them throughout the temple in the sight of the king, and, as they left, they shut the door, and after sealing it with the king’s ring, they departed.
I ad ore the Lord, my God, for he cannot say that this is not a living god; therefore, adore him.”
And so Daniel became great in the sight of the people from that day, and thereafter.
said, “I give it to you.” {14:26} And so Daniel took pitch, and fat, and hair, and cooked them together. And he made lumps and put them into the dragon's mouth, and the dragon burst open. And he said, “Behold, this is what you worship.” {14:27} When the Babylonians had heard this, they were greatly indignant. And gathering together against the king, they said, “The king has become a Jew. He has destroyed Bel, he has executed the dragon, and he has slaughtered the priests.” {14:28} And when they came to the king, they said, “Deliver Daniel to us, otherwise we will execute you and your house.” {14:29} Thus the king saw that they pressured him vehemently, and so, being compelled by necessity, he delivered Daniel to them. {14:30} And they cast him into the den of lions, and he was there for six days. {14:31} Furthermore, in the den there were seven lions, and they had given to them two carcasses every day, and two sheep, but then they were not given to them, so that they would devour Daniel. {14:32} Now there was in Judea a prophet called Habakkuk, and he had cooked a small meal and had broken bread in a bowl, and he was going into the field, to bring it to the harvesters. {14:33} And the angel of the Lord said to Habakkuk, “Carry the meal that you have into Babylon, to Daniel, who is in the lions' den.” {14:34} And Habakkuk said, “Lord, I have not seen Babylon, and I do not know the den.” {14:35} And the angel of the Lord seized him by the top of his head, and carried him by the hair of his head, and set him in Babylon, over the den, by the force of his spirit. {14:36} And Habakkuk shouted, saying, “Daniel, servant of God, take the dinner that God has sent.” {14:37} And Daniel said, “You have remembered me, O God, and you have not abandoned those who love you.” {14:38} And Daniel arose and ate. And then the angel of the Lord immediately returned Habakkuk to his place. {14:39} And so, on the seventh day, the king came to mourn Daniel. And he came to the den, and gazed in, and behold, Daniel was sitting in the midst of the lions. {14:40} And the king cried out with a loud voice, saying, “Great are you, O Lord, the God of Daniel.” And he pulled him out of the lions' den. {14:41} Furthermore, those who had been the cause of his downfall, he hurled into the den, and they were devoured in a moment before him. {14:42} Then the king said, “Let all the inhabitants of the whole earth fear the God of Daniel. For he is the Savior, working signs and miracles on earth, who has freed Daniel from the lions' den.”

The Prophecy of Hosea

[Hosea 1] [1:1] The word of the Lord that came to Hosea, the son of Beeri, in the days of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam, the son of Joash, king of Israel. [1:2] The beginning of the Lord's conversation with Hosea. And the Lord said to Hosea: “Go, take to yourself a wife of fornications, and make for yourself sons of fornications, because, by fornicating, the land will fornicate away from the Lord.” [1:3] And he went out and took Gomer the daughter of Diblaim; and she conceived and bore him a son. [1:4] And the Lord said to him: “Call his name Jezebel because, after a little while, I will visit the blood of Jezebel upon the house of Jezu, and I will put the kingdom of the house of Israel to rest. [1:5] And in that day, I will crush the stronghold of Israel in the valley of Jezreel.”

[Hosea 2] [2:1] “Say to your brothers, ‘You are my people,’ and to your sister, ‘You have obtained mercy.’ [2:2] Judge your mother, judge: for she is not my wife, and I am not her husband. Let her remove her fornications from before her face and her adulteries from between her breasts. [2:3] Otherwise, I may expose her nakedness and set her as on the day of her birth, and I may establish her as a wilderness and set her as an impassable land, and I may execute her with thirst. [2:4] And I will not have mercy on her sons, for they are the sons of fornications. [2:5] For their mother has been fornicating; she who conceived them has been brought to ruin. For she said, ‘I will go after my lovers, who give me my bread and my water, my wool and my flax, my oil and my drink.’ [2:6] Because of this, behold, I will fence in your way with thorns, and I will surround it with a wall, and she will not find her paths. [2:7] And she will pursue her lovers, but she will not obtain them, and she will seek them, but she will not find them, and she will say, ‘I will go and return to my first husband, because it was to some extent better for me then, than it is now.’ [2:8] And she did not know that I gave her grain and wine and oil, and that I increased her silver and gold, which they made into Baal. [2:9] For this reason, I will turn back, and I will take away my grain in its time and my wine in its time, and I will set free my wool and my flax, which had covered her disgrace. [2:10] And now, I will reveal her foolishness by the eyes of her lovers, and no man will rescue her from my hand. [2:11] And I will cause all her joy to cease: her solemnities, her new moons, her sabbaths, and all her feast dates. [2:12] And I will corrupt her vines and her fig trees, about which she said, ‘These rewards, they are mine, my lovers have given them to me.’ And I will place her in a narrow forest, and the beasts of the field will devour her. [2:13] And I will inflict on her the days of the Baals, for whom she burned incense, and ornamented herself with earrings and necklace, and went after her lovers, and forgot about me,” says the Lord. [2:14] “Because of this, behold, I will attract her, and I will lead her into the wilderness, and I will speak to her heart. [2:15] And I will give to her, from the same place, her vinesdressers, and the valley of Achor as a passage of hope. And she will sing there as in the days of her youth, and as in the days of her ascension from the land of Egypt. [2:16] And it will be in that day,” says the Lord, “that she will call me,
'My Husband,' and she will no longer call me, 'My Baal.' {2:17} And I will remove the names of the Baals from her mouth, and she will no longer remember their name. {2:18} And in that day, I will strike a deal with them, with the beasts of the field, and with the birds of the sky, and with the creatures of the earth. And I will crush the bow and the sword, and I will wipe away war from the earth. And I will let them sleep securely. {2:19} And I will betroth you to me forever, and I will betroth you to me in justice and judgment, and in mercy and compassion. {2:20} And I will wed you to me in faith, and you will know that I am the Lord. {2:21} And this will happen in that day: I will listen closely,” says the Lord. “I will hear the heavens, and they will hear the earth. {2:22} And the land will pay attention to the grain, and the wine, and the oil; and these will hear Jezreel. {2:23} And I will plant her for me in the land, and I will have mercy on her, though she had been called Without Mercy. {2:24} And I will say to Not My People, ‘You are my people,’ and they will say, ‘You are my God.’ ”

[Hosea 3] {3:1} And the Lord said to me: “Go yet again, and love a woman, beloved by a friend, yet an adulteress, for so does the Lord love the sons of Israel, yet they look to strange gods, and love the seeds of grapes.” {3:2} And I contracted her to me for fifteen silver coins, and for a basket of barley, and half a basket of barley. {3:3} And I said to her, “You will wait for me for many days. You will not commit fornication, and you will not be with a man. But I also will wait for you.” {3:4} For the sons of Israel will sit for many days without a king, and without a leader, and without sacrifice, and without altar, and without priestly vestments, and without religious symbols. {3:5} And after this, the sons of Israel will return, and they will seek the Lord their God and David their king, and they will be terrified by the Lord and by his goodness, in the last days.

[Hosea 4] {4:1} Listen to the word of the Lord, sons of Israel, for the Lord is judge of the inhabitants of the land. Yet there is no truth, and there is no mercy, and there is no knowledge of God, in the land. {4:2} Slander, and lying, and killing, and theft, and adultery have overflowed, and bloodshed has brought more bloodshed. {4:3} Because of this, the land will mourn, and all who dwell in it will languish, with the beasts of the field and the birds of the air. And the fishes of the sea also will be gathered together. {4:4} So, truly, let each and every one not judge, and let no man be accused, for your people are just like those who speak against the priesthood. {4:5} And you will be ruined on this day, and now the prophet will be ruined with you. In the night, I have made your mother to be silent. {4:6} My people have become silent because they had no knowledge. Since you have rejected knowledge, I will drive you away; you do not perform the duties of the priesthood for me, and you have forgotten the law of your God, and so I will forget your sons.

{4:7} According to the multitude of them, so have they sinned against me. I will change their glory into disgrace. {4:8} They will devour the sins of my people, and they will lift up their souls towards their iniquity. {4:9} And, just as it is with the people, so will it be with the priest; and I will visit their ways upon them, and I will repay them for their intentions. {4:10} And they will eat and not be satisfied. They have been committing fornication, and they did not cease. Since they have abandoned the Lord, they will not be safeguarded. {4:11} Fornication, and wine, and drunkenness, have taken away their heart. {4:12} My people have inquired of their stave, and their staff has announced to them. For the spirit of fornication has deceived them, and they have been fornicating before their God. {4:13} They have offered sacrifice on the tops of the mountains and burnt incense on the hills, under the oak, and the poplar, and the terebinth tree, because its shadow was good; therefore, your daughters will commit fornication and your spouses will be adulteresses. {4:14} I will not send afflictions on your daughters, when they will commit fornication, nor on your spouses, when they will commit adultery, because you yourselves have associated with harlots and have offered sacrifice with the effeminate, and because the people who do not understand will be defeated. {4:15} If you commit fornication, Israel, at least let Judah not commit offenses; and do not be willing to enter into Gilgal, nor to ascend to Bethaven, and neither should you swear, “As the Lord lives.” {4:16} For Israel has gone astray like a wanton heifer, so now the Lord will pasture them like a young lamb in a wide expanse. {4:17} Ephraim participates in idolatry, so send him away. {4:18} Their feasting has been set aside; they have committed fornication after fornication. They love to bring disgrace to their protectors. {4:19} The wind has fastened them to its wings, and they will be confounded because of their sacrifices.

[Hosea 5] {5:1} Hear this, priests, and pay attention, house of Israel, and listen closely, house of the king. For there is a judgment against you, because you have become a trap for those you watched over, and a net stretched out over Tabor. {5:2} And you have led astray victims into the depths, though I am the teacher of them all. {5:3} I know Ephraim, and Israel has not been hidden from me, yet now Ephraim has committed fornication, and Israel has been contaminated. {5:4} They will not set their thoughts to return to their God, for the spirit of fornication is in the midst of them, and they have not known the Lord. {5:5} And the arrogance of Israel will answer to his face. And Israel and Ephraim will fall in their iniquity, and even Judah will fall with them. {5:6} With their flocks and their herds, they will go to seek the Lord, and they will not find him. He has taken himself away from them. {5:7} They have sinned against the Lord. For they have conceived sons that are strangers. Now one month will devour them with all their own. {5:8} Sound the bugle in Gibeah, the trumpet in Ramah. Shout in Bethaven, behind your back, O Benjamin. {5:9} Ephraim will be in desolation on the day of correction, for within the tribes of Israel, I have revealed faith. {5:10} The leaders of Judah have become like those who assume the end. I will pour my wrath over them like water. {5:11} Ephraim has been enduring malicious slander and broken judgment, because he began to go after filth. {5:12} And I will be like a moth to Ephraim, and like decay to the house of Judah. {5:13} And Ephraim saw his own weakness, and Judah his chains. And Ephraim went to Assur, and he sent to the Avenging king. But he will not be able to heal you, nor is he able to release you from your chains. {5:14} For I will be like a lioness to Ephraim, and like a lion’s offspring to the house of Judah. I myself will seize and go forth. I will take away, and there is no one who can rescue. {5:15} I will go and return to my place, until you shall grow faint and seek my face.
[Hosea 6] {6:1} In their tribulation, they will arise early to me. Come, let us return to the Lord. {6:2} For he has seized us, and he will heal us. He will strike, and he will cure us. {6:3} He will revive us after two days; on the third day he will raise us up, and we will live in his sight. We will understand, and we will continue on, so that we may know the Lord. His landing place has been prepared like the first light of morning, and he will come to us like the early and the late rains of the land. {6:4} What am I to do with you, Ephraim? What am I to do with you, Judah? Your mercy is like the morning mist, and like the dew passing away in the morning. {6:5} Because of this, I have cut them with the prophets, I have slain them with the words of my mouth; and your opinions will depart like the light. {6:6} For I desired mercy and not sacrifice, and knowledge of God more than holocausts. {6:7} But they, like Adam, have transgressed the covenant; in this, they have been dishonest with me. {6:8} Gilead is a city that manufactures idols; it has been tripped up by family relations. {6:9} And, like those who rob with skillful words, they, by conspiring with the priests, bring a death sentence to travelers on a pilgrimage from Shechem; for they have been performing evil deeds. {6:10} I have seen horrible things in the house of Israel; the fornications of Ephraim are there. Israel has been contaminated. {6:11} But you, Judah, set a harvest for yourself, while I reverse the captivity of my people.

[Hosea 7] {7:1} When I was willing to heal Israel, the iniquity of Ephraim was discovered, and the malice of Samaria, for they had been manufacturing lies. And the thief devoured his strength, and he did not know it. And grey hairs with ashes, that has not been turned over. {7:9} Strangers have treated like strangers. {7:10} They have reigned, but not by me. Leaders have emerged, and I did not recognize them. Their silver and their gold, they have made into idols for themselves, so that they might cross over. {8:5} Your calf, Samaria, has been rejected. My fury has been enraged against them. How long will they be incapable of being cleansed? {8:6} For it is itself also from Israel: a workman made it, and it is not God. For the calf of Samaria will be used for the webs of spiders. {8:7} For they will sow wind and reap a whirlwind. It does not have a firm stalk; the bud will yield no grain. But if it does yield, strangers will eat it. {8:8} Israel has been devoured. Now, among the nations, it has become like an unclean vessel. {8:9} For they have gone up to Assur, a wild ass alone by himself. Ephraim has given presents to his lovers. {8:10} But even when they will have brought the nations together for the sake of money, now I will assemble them. And they will rest for a little while from the burden of the king and the leaders. {8:11} For Ephraim multiplied altars to sin, and sanctuaries have become an offense for him. {8:12} I will write to him my intricate laws, which have been against me. {8:13} They will offer victims, they will immolate flesh and will eat, and the Lord will not accept their sacrifices. {8:14} And Israel has forgotten his Maker and has built shrines. And Judah has increased its fortified cities. And I will send fire upon his cities, and it will devour its structures.

[Hosea 8] {8:1} Let there be a trumpet in your throat, like an eagle over the house of the Lord, on behalf of those who have transgressed my covenant and violated my law. {8:2} They will call on me: “O my God, we, Israel, know you.” {8:3} Israel has thrown away goodness; the enemy will overtake him. {8:4} They have reigned, but not by me. Leaders have emerged, and I did not recognize them. Their silver and their gold, they have made into idols for themselves, so that they might cross over. {8:5} Your calf, Samaria, has been rejected. My fury has been enraged against them. How long will they be incapable of being cleansed? {8:6} For it is itself also from Israel: a workman made it, and it is not God. For the calf of Samaria will be used for the webs of spiders. {8:7} For they will sow wind and reap a whirlwind. It does not have a firm stalk; the bud will yield no grain. But if it does yield, strangers will eat it. {8:8} Israel has been devoured. Now, among the nations, it has become like an unclean vessel. {8:9} For they have gone up to Assur, a wild ass alone by himself. Ephraim has given presents to his lovers. {8:10} But even when they will have brought the nations together for the sake of money, now I will assemble them. And they will rest for a little while from the burden of the king and the leaders. {8:11} For Ephraim multiplied altars to sin, and sanctuaries have become an offense for him. {8:12} I will write to him my intricate laws, which have been against me. {8:13} They will offer victims, they will immolate flesh and will eat, and the Lord will not accept their sacrifices. {8:14} And Israel has forgotten his Maker and has built shrines. And Judah has increased its fortified cities. And I will send fire upon his cities, and it will devour its structures.

[Hosea 9] {9:1} Do not choose to rejoice, Israel; do not celebrate as the crowds do. For you have been committing fornication against your God; you have loved a prize upon every threshing floor of wheat. {9:2} The threshing floor and the oil press will not feed them, and the wine will deceive them. {9:3} They will not dwell in the land of the Lord. Ephraim has been returned to Egypt, and he has eaten polluted things among the Assyrians. {9:4} They will not offer a libation of wine to the Lord, and they will not please him. Their sacrifices will be like the bread of mourners. All those who eat it will be defiled. For their bread is of their soul; it will not enter into the house of the Lord. {9:5} What will you do on the solemn day, on the day of the feast of the Lord? {9:6} For, behold, they have been sent away by devastation. Egypt will gather them together; Memphis will bury them. Nettles will inherit their desired silver; the burr will be in their tabernacles. {9:7} The days of visitation have arrived; the days of retribution are here. Know this, Israel: that the prophet was foolish, the spiritual man was mad, because of the multitude of your iniquities and the great extent of your foolishness. {9:8} The watcher of Ephraim was with my God. The prophet has become a snare of ruin over all his ways; insanity is in the house of his God. {9:9} They have sinned profoundly, just as in the days of Gibeah. He will remember their iniquity, and he will repay their sin. {9:10} I discovered Israel like grapes in the desert. Like the first fruits of the fig tree, I saw their fathers on the end of its branches. But they went in to Baal-peor, and they have been estranged by intermingling, and they have become abominable, just like the things that they chose to love. {9:11} Ephraim has chased away their glory like a bird: from birth, and from the womb, and from conception. {9:12} And even if they should nurture their sons, I will make them without children among men. Yes, and woe to them, when I have withdrawn from them. {9:13} Ephraim, as I see it, was a Tyre, founded by beauty. And Ephraim will lead his sons to execution. {9:14} Give them, O Lord. What will you give them? Give them a womb without children, and dry breasts. {9:15} All their wickedness is in Gilgal, for I held them there, in their hatred. Because of the malice of their inventions, I will expel them from my house. I will no longer say that I love them; all their leaders have retreated. {9:16} Ephraim has been struck; their root has been dried out: by no means will they yield fruit. And even if they should conceive, I will execute the most beloved of their womb. {9:17} My God will cast them aside because they have not listened to him; and they will be wanderers among the nations.

[ Hosea 10 ] {10:1} Israel is a leafy vine, its fruit has been suitable to him. According to the multitude of his fruit, he has multiplied altars; according to the fertility of his land, he has abounded with graven images. {10:2} His heart has been divided, so now they will cross the divide. He will break apart their images; he will plunder their sanctuaries. {10:3} For now they will say, ‘We have no king. For we do not fear the Lord. And what would a king do for us?’ {10:4} You speak words about a useless vision, and you will strike a deal. And judgment will spring up like bitterness in the furrows of the field. {10:5} The inhabitants of Samaria have worshipped the calf of Bethaven. For the keepers of its temple, who had exulted over it in its glory, and its people, have mourned over it because it migrated from there. {10:6} If, indeed, it also has been offered to Assur, as a gift for the Avenging king, confusion will seize Ephraim, and Israel will be confounded by his own will. {10:7} Samaria has required her king to pass by, like foam on the face of the water. {10:8} And the heights of the idol, the sin of Israel, will be utterly destroyed. The burre and the thistle will rise up over their altars. And they will say to the mountains, ‘Cover us,’ and to the hills, ‘Fall on us.’ {10:9} From the days of Gibeah, Israel has sinned; in this, they remained firm. The battle in Gibeah against the sons of iniquity will not take hold of them. {10:10} According to my desire, I will correct them. And the peoples will be gathered together over them, while they are chastised for their two iniquities. {10:11} Ephraim is a heifer that has been taught to love treading out the grain, but I passed over the beauty of her neck. I will rise over Ephraim. Judah will plough; Jacob will break up the soil for himself. {10:12} Sow for yourselves in justice, and harvest in the mouth of mercy; renew your fallow land. But the time when you will seek the Lord is the time when he will arrive who will teach you justice. {10:13} You have ploughed impiety; you have harvested iniquity; you have eaten the fruit of lies. For you had confidence in your ways, in the multitude of your good fortunes. {10:14} A tumult will arise among your people. And all your fortifications will be laid waste, just as Sal man was destroyed by the house of him that judged Baal on the day of the battle, the mother having been crushed against her sons. {10:15} So has Bethel done to you, before the face of your malicious wickedness.

[ Hosea 11 ] {11:1} Just as the morning passes, so has the king of Israel passed by. For Israel was a child and I loved him; and out of Egypt I called my son. {11:2} They called them, and so they departed before their face. They offered victims to the Baals, and they sacrificed to graven images. {11:3} And I was like a foster father to Ephraim. I carried them in my arms. And they did not know that I healed them. {11:4} I will draw them with the cords of Adam, with the bands of love. And I will be to them like one who raises the yoke over their jaws. And I will reach down to him so that he may eat. {11:5} He will not return to the land of Egypt, but Assur himself will be the king over him, because they were not willing to be converted. {11:6} The sword has begun in his cities, and it will consume his elect and devour their heads. {11:7} And my people will long for my return. But a yoke will be imposed on them together, which will not be taken away. {11:8} How will I provide for you, Ephraim; how will I protect you, Israel? How will I provide for you as for Adam; will I set you like Zeboiim? My heart has changed within me; together with my regret, it has been stirred up. {11:9} I will not act on the fury of my wrath. I will not turn back to utterly destroy Ephraim. For I am God, and not man, the Divine in your midst, and I will not advance upon the city. {11:10} They will walk after the Lord; he will roar like a lion. For he himself will roar, and the sons of the sea will dread. {11:11} And they will fly like a bird out of Egypt, and like a dove from the land of the Assyrians. And I will arrange them in their own houses, says the Lord. {11:12} Ephraim has besieged me with denials, and the house of Israel with deceit. But Judah went down as a witness before God and the holy ones of faith.

[ Hosea 12 ] {12:1} Ephraim feeds on wind and follows burning heat; all day long he multiplies lies and desolation. And he has entered into a pact with the Assyrians, and he has carried oil into Egypt. {12:2} Therefore, the judgment of the Lord is with Judah and a visitation is upon Jacob. He will repay him according to his ways and according to his inventions. {12:3} In the womb, he supplanted his brother; for in his good fortune, he had been guided by an angel. {12:4} And he prevailed over an angel, for he had been strengthened. He wept and petitioned him. He found him in Bethel, and there he has spoken to us. {12:5} And the Lord God of hosts, the Lord is his memorial. {12:6} And so, you should convert to your God. Keep mercy and judgment, and have hope in your God always. {12:7} Canaan, in his hand is a deceitful balance, he has chosen false accusations. {12:8} And Ephraim has said, “Nevertheless, I have become rich; I have found an idol for myself. All of my labors will not reveal to me the iniquity that I have committed.” {12:9} And I, the Lord your God from the land of Egypt, nevertheless will cause you to dwell in tabernacles, just as during the days of the feast. {12:10} And I have spoken through the prophets, and I have multiplied visions, and I have used parables through the hands of the prophets. {12:11} If Gilead is an idol, then they have been sacrificing cattle in Gilgal to no purpose. For even their altars are like clutter on the soil of the field. {12:12} Jacob fled into the region of Syria, and Israel served like a wife, and was served by a wife. {12:13} Yet by a prophet the Lord led Israel out of Egypt, and he was served by a prophet. {12:14} Ephraim has provoked me to wrath with his bitterness, and his blood will overcome him, and his Lord will requite him for his shamefulness.

[Hosea 13] {13:1} While Ephraim was speaking, a horror entered Israel, and he offended by Baal, and he died. {13:2} And now they add that they will be sinning more. And they have made themselves an image cast from their silver, just like the image of idols; but the whole thing has been made by craftsmen. These say to them, “Sacrifice men, you who adore calves.” {13:3} For this reason, they will be like the morning clouds, and like the morning dew that passes away, just like the dust that is driven by a whirlwind away from the threshing floor, and like the smoke from a chimney. {13:4} But I am the Lord your God from the land of Egypt, and you will not know God apart from me, and there is no Savior except me. {13:5} I knew you in the desert, in the land of solitude. {13:6} According to their pastures, they have been filled up and have been satisfied. And they have lifted up their heart, and they have forgotten me. {13:7} And I will be to them like a lioness, like a leopard in the way of the Assyrians. {13:8} I will run to meet them like a bear that has been robbed of her young, and I will split open the middle of their liver. And I will devour them there like a lion; the beast of the field will tear them apart. {13:9} Perdition is yours, Israel. Your help is only in me. {13:10} Where is your king? Now, especially, let him save you in all your cities, and from your judges, about whom you said, “Give me kings and princes.” {13:11} I will give you a king in my wrath, and I will take him away in my indignation. {13:12} The iniquity of Ephraim has been bound; his sin has been engulfed. {13:13} The pains of giving birth will reach him. He is an unwise son. For now he will not remain firm during the contrition of his sons. {13:14} I will free them from the hand of death; from death I will redeem them. Death, I will be your death. Hell, I will be your deadly wound. Consolation is hidden from my eyes. {13:15} For he will make a division among brothers. The Lord will bring a burning wind, rising up from the desert, and it will dry up his streams, and it will make his fountain desolate, and he will tear apart every collection of desirable useful things.

[Hosea 14] {14:1} Let Samaria perish, because she has urged her God towards bitterness. Let them perish by the sword, let their little ones be thrown down, and let their pregnant women be cut in two. {14:2} Israel, convert to the Lord your God. For you have been ruined by your own iniquity. {14:3} Take these words with you and return to the Lord. And say to him, “Remove all iniquity and accept the good. And we will repay the calves of our lips. {14:4} Assur will not save us; we will not ride on horses. Neither will we say any more, ‘The works of our hands are our gods,’ for those that are in you will have mercy on the orphan.” {14:5} I will heal their contrition; I will love them spontaneously. For my wrath has been turned away from them. {14:6} I will be like the dew; Israel will spring forth like the lily, and his root will spread out like that of the cedars of Lebanon. {14:7} His branches will advance, and his glory will be like the olive tree, and his fragrance will be like that of the cedars of Lebanon. {14:8} They will be converted, sitting in his shadow. They will live on wheat, and they will grow like a vine. His memorial will be like the wine of the cedars of Lebanon. {14:9} Ephraim will say, “What are idols to me any more?” I will listen to him, and I will set him straight like a healthy spruce tree. Your fruit has been found by me. {14:10} Who is wise and will understand this? Who has understanding and will know these things? For the ways of the Lord are straight, and the just will walk in them, but truly, the traitors will fall in them.

 The Prophecy of Joel **

[Joel 1] {1:1} The word of the Lord that came to Joel, the son of Pethuel. {1:2} Listen to this, elders, and pay close attention, all inhabitants of the land. Did this ever happen in your days or in the days of your fathers? {1:3} Talk this over with your sons, and your sons with their sons, and their sons with another generation. {1:4} The locust has eaten what the caterpillar has left, and the beetle has eaten what the locust has left, and the mildew has eaten what the beetle has left. {1:5} Rouse yourselves, you drunkards, and weep and wail, all you who delight in drinking wine; for it has been cut off from your mouth. {1:6} For a nation has ascended over my land: strong and without number. His teeth are like the teeth of a lion, and his molars are like that of a lion’s young. {1:7} He has put my vineyard into desolation, and he has pulled off the bark of my fig tree. He has stripped it bare and cast it away; its branches have become white. {1:8} Lament like a betrothed virgin, wrapped in sackcloth at the loss of the husband of her youth. {1:9} Sacrifice and libation have perished from the house of the Lord; the priests who are ministers of the Lord have mourned. {1:10} The region has been depopulated, the soil has mourned. For the wheat has been devastated, the wine has been disfigured, the oil has languished. {1:11} The farmers have been confounded, the vineyard workers have wailed over the crop and the barley, because the harvest of the field has perished. {1:12} The vineyard is in ruin, and the fig tree has languished. The pomegranate tree, and the palm tree, and the fruit tree, and all the trees of the field have withered. For joy has been thrown into disorder before the sons of men. {1:13} Priests, gird yourselves and lament. Ministers of the altars, wail. Enter, ministers of my God, lie in sackcloth. For sacrifice and libation have passed away from the house of your God. {1:14} Sanctify a fast, call an assembly, gather the elders and say to the Lord:

And cry out to the Lord: {1:15} “Ah, ah, ah, the day!” For the day of the Lord is near, and it will arrive, like a devastation, before the powerful. {1:16} Has not your nourishment perished from before your eyes, joy and gladness from the house of our God? {1:17} The mules have rotted in their own manure, the barns have been demolished, the wine cellars have been destroyed, because the grain has been ruined. {1:18} Why have the animals groaned, the herds
And the Lord responded, and he said to his people: “Behold, I will send you grain and wine and oil, and you will again be filled with them. And I will no longer give you disgrace among the Gentiles. And he who is from the North, I will drive far from you. And I will expel him into an impassable land, and into the desert, with his face opposite the Eastern sea, and his furthest part towards the furthest sea. And his stench will ascend, and his rottenness will ascend, because he has acted arrogantly. Earth, do not be afraid. Exult and rejoice. For the Lord has great esteem for what he has done. Animals of the countryside, do not be afraid. For the beauty of the wilderness has sprung forth. For the tree has borne its fruit. The fig tree and the vine have bestowed their virtue. And you, sons of Zion, exult and rejoice in the Lord your God. For he has given you a teacher of justice, and he will make the early and the late rains descend to you, just as it was in the beginning. And the threshing floors will be filled with grain, and the presses will overflow with wine and oil. And I will repay you for the years which the locust, and the beetle, and the mildew, and the caterpillar consumed: my great strength which I sent upon you. And you will eat with enjoyment, and you will be satisfied, and you will praise the name of the Lord your God, who has worked miracles with you, and my people will not be confounded forever. And you will know that I am in the midst of Israel, and I am the Lord your God, and there is no other, and my people will not be confounded forever. And after this, it will happen that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters will prophesy; your elders will dream dreams, and your youths will see visions. Moreover, in those days I will pour out my spirit upon my servants and handmaids. And I will grant wonders in the sky and on earth: blood and fire and the vapor of smoke. The sun will be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and terrible day of the Lord shall arrive. And it will happen that everyone who will call upon the name of the Lord will be saved. For on Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and in the remnant whom the Lord will call, there will be salvation, just as the Lord has said.

(2:1) Blow the trumpet in Zion, wail on my holy mountain, let all the inhabitants of the land be stirred up. For the day of the Lord is on its way; for it is near:
(2:2) a day of darkness and gloom, a day of clouds and whirlwinds. Like the morning reaching over the mountains, they are a numerous and strong people. Nothing like them has existed since the beginning, nor will exist after them, even in the years of generation upon generation. Before their face is a devouring fire, and behind them is a burning flame. The land before them is like a lush garden, and behind them is a desolate desert, and there is no one who can escape them.
(2:4) Their appearance is like the appearance of horses, and they will rush forward like horsemen. Like the sound of a four-horse chariot, they will leap over the tops of the mountains. Like the sound of a burning flame devouring stubble, they are as a strong people prepared for battle.
(2:6) Before their face, the people will be tortured; each one’s appearance will retreat, as if into a jar. They will rush forward, as if they were strong. Like valiant warriors, they will ascend the wall. The men will advance, each one on his own way, and they will not turn aside from their path.
(2:8) And each one will not hem in his brother; every one will walk in his own rough path. Moreover, they will drop through the breach and not be harmed. They will advance into the city; they will rush through the wall. They will scale the houses; they will go in through the windows, like a thief.
(2:10) Before their face, the earth has trembled, the heavens have been moved. The sun and moon have been obscured, and the stars have retracted their splendor.
(2:11) And the Lord has bestowed his voice before the face of his army. For its military camps are very numerous; for they are strong and they carry out his word. For the day of the Lord is great and so very terrible, and who can withstand it?
(2:12) Now, therefore, the Lord says: “Be converted to me with your whole heart, in fasting and weeping and mourning.”
(2:13) And rend your hearts, and not your garments, and convert to the Lord your God. For he is gracious and merciful, patient and full of compassion, and steadfast despite ill will.
(2:14) Who knows if he might convert and forgive, and bequeath a blessing after him, a sacrifice and a libation to the Lord your God? Moreover, in those days I will pour out my spirit upon my servants and handmaids. And I will grant wonders in the sky and on earth: blood and fire and the vapor of smoke.
(2:21) The sun will be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before the great and terrible day of the Lord shall arrive.
(2:22) Animals of the countryside, do not be afraid. For the beauty of the wilderness has sprung forth. For the tree has borne its fruit. The fig tree and the vine have bestowed their virtue. And you, sons of Zion, exult and rejoice in the Lord your God. For he has given you a teacher of justice, and he will make the early and the late rains descend to you, just as it was in the beginning. And the threshing floors will be filled with grain, and the presses will overflow with wine and oil.
(2:25) And I will repay you for the years which the locust, and the beetle, and the mildew, and the caterpillar consumed: my great strength which I sent upon you.
(2:26) And you will eat with enjoyment, and you will be satisfied, and you will praise the name of the Lord your God, who has worked miracles with you, and my people will not be confounded forever.
(2:27) And you will know that I am in the midst of Israel, and I am the Lord your God, and there is no other, and my people will not be confounded forever.
(2:28) And after this, it will happen that I will pour out my spirit upon all flesh, and your sons and your daughters will prophesy; your elders will dream dreams, and your youths will see visions.
(2:29) Moreover, in those days I will pour out my spirit upon my servants and handmaids.
(2:30) And I will grant wonders in the sky and on earth: blood and fire and the vapor of smoke.
(2:32) And it will happen that everyone who will call upon the name of the Lord will be saved. For on Mount Zion, and in Jerusalem, and in the remnant whom the Lord will call, there will be salvation, just as the Lord has said.

Joel 3

(3:1) For, behold, in those days and in that time, when I will have converted the captivity of Judah and Jerusalem, I will gather all the Gentiles, and will lead them into the valley of Jehoshaphat. And there I will dispute with them over my people, and over Israel, my inheritance, for they have scattered them among the nations and have divided my land.
(3:2) And they have cast lots over my people; and the boy they have placed in the brothel, and the girl they have sold for wine, so that they might drink.
(3:3) Truly, what is there between you and me, Tyre and Sidon and all the distant places of the Philistines? How will you take vengeance on me? And if you were to revenge yourselves against me, I would deliver a repayment to you, quickly and soon, upon your head.
(3:5) For you have carried away my silver and gold. And my desirable and most beautiful, you have taken into your shrines.
(3:6) And you, sons of Judah and sons of Jerusalem, you have sold the sons of the Greeks, so that you might drive them far from their own territory.
(3:7) Behold, I will raise them up from the place into which you have sold them, and I will turn back your retribution on your own head.
(3:8) And I will sell your sons and your daughters into the hands of the sons of Judah, and they will sell them to the Sabians, a distant nation, for the Lord has spoken.
{3:9} Proclaim this among the Gentiles: “Sanctify a war, raise up the strong. Approach, all men of war.
{3:10} Cut your ploughs into swords and your hoes into spears. Let the weak say, ‘For I am strong.’
{3:11} Break out and advance, all nations of the world, and gather together. There the Lord will cause all your strong ones to meet death.”
{3:12} Let them arise and ascend to the valley of Jehoshaphat. For there I will sit, so as to judge all the nations of the world.
{3:13} Send forth the sickles, because the harvest has matured. Advance and descend, for the press is full, the pressing room is overflowing. For their malice has been increasing.
{3:14} Nations, nations in the valley of being cut to pieces: for the day of the Lord fittingly takes place in the valley of being cut to pieces.
{3:15} The sun and the moon have been darkened, and the stars have withdrawn their splendor.
{3:16} And the Lord will roar from Zion and utter his voice from Jerusalem. And the heavens and the earth will be moved. And the Lord will be the hope of his people and the strength of the sons of Israel.
{3:17} And you will know that I am the Lord your God, dwelling on Zion, my holy mountain. And Jerusalem will be holy, and strangers will not cross through it anymore.
{3:18} And it will happen, in that day, that the mountains will drip sweetness, and the hills will flow with milk. And the waters will pass through all the rivers of Judah. And a fountain will go forth from the house of the Lord, and it will irrigate the desert of thorns.
{3:19} Egypt will be in desolation, and Edom will be a wilderness destroyed, because of what they have unfairly done to the sons of Judah, and because they have shed innocent blood in their land.
{3:20} And Judea will be inhabited forever, and Jerusalem for generation upon generation.
{3:21} And I will cleanse their blood, which I had not cleansed. And the Lord will remain in Zion.

 The Prophecy of Amos **

[Amos 1]
{1:1} The words of Amos, who was among the shepherds of Tekoa, which he saw about Israel in the days of Uzziah king of Judah, and in the days of Jeroboam the son of Joash king of Israel, two years before the earthquake.
{1:2} And he said: The Lord will roar from Zion, and from Jerusalem he will utter his voice. And the beautiful pastures have mourned, and the top of Carmel has become dry.
{1:3} Thus says the Lord: For three wicked deeds of Damascus, and for four, I will not convert it, in so far as they have thresher Gilead into iron wagons.
{1:4} And I will send fire onto the house of Hazael, and it will devour the houses of Ben-hadad.
{1:5} And I will shatter the crowbar of Damascus, and I will destroy the inhabitants of the camp of the idol and the holder of the scepter of the house of pleasure; and the people of Syria will be transferred to Cyrene, says the Lord.
{1:6} Thus says the Lord: For three wicked deeds of Gaza, and for four, I will not convert it, in so far as they have carried out an excellent captivity, so as to enclose them in Idumea.
{1:7} And I will send a fire onto the wall of Gaza, and it will devour its buildings.
{1:8} And I will destroy the inhabitant from Ashdod, and the holder of the scepter of Ashkelon. And I will turn my hand against Ekron, and the remainder of the Philistines will perish, says the Lord God.
{1:9} Thus says the Lord: For three wicked deeds of Tyre, and for four, I will not convert it, in so far as they have completed an excellent captivity in Idumea and have not considered the bond among brothers.
{1:10} And I will send a fire onto the wall of Tyre, and it will devour its buildings.
{1:11} Thus says the Lord: For three wicked deeds of Edom, and for four, I will not convert him, in so far as he has been pursuing his brother with the sword and has outraged his brother’s compassion, and he has gone beyond his anger and has held onto his indignation until the end.
{1:12} I will send a fire onto Teman, and it will devour the buildings of Bozrah.
{1:13} Thus says the Lord: For three wicked deeds of the sons of Ammon, and for four, I will not convert him, in so far as he has cut up the pregnant women of Gilead, so as to expand his limits.
{1:14} And I will ignite a fire on the wall of Rabbah. And it will devour its buildings, with wailing on the day of war, and with a whirlwind on the day of commotion.
{1:15} And Melchom will go into captivity, he and his leaders together, says the Lord.

{2:1} Thus says the Lord: For three wicked deeds of Moab, and for four, I will not convert him, in so far as he has burned the bones of the king of Idumea, all the way to ashes.
{2:2} And I will send a fire onto Moab, and it will devour the buildings of Kerioth. And Moab will die with a noise, with the blare of a trumpet.
{2:3} And I will destroy the judge in their midst, and I will execute all his leaders with him, says the Lord.
{2:4} Thus says the Lord: For three wicked deeds of Judah, and for four, I will not convert him, in so far as he has rejected the law of the Lord and has not kept his commandments. For their idols, which their fathers followed, have deceived them.
{2:5} And I will send a fire onto Judah, and it will devour the buildings of Jerusalem.
{2:6} Thus says the Lord: For three wicked deeds of Israel, and for four, I will not convert him, in so far as he has sold the just for silver and the poor for shoes.
{2:7} They grind the heads of the poor into the dust of the earth, and they divert the way of the humble. And the son, as well as his father, have gone to the same girl, so that they outrage my holy name.
{2:8} And they have lain on garments taken in pledge to the Nazirites, and you would command the prophets, saying: “Do not prophesy.”
{2:9} Behold, I will creak under you, just as a wagon creaks that is laden with hay.
{2:10} And flight will perish from the swift, and the strong will not maintain his strength, and the healthy will not save his life.
{2:11} And one holding the bow will not stand firm, and the healthy will not save his life.
{2:12} Yet you would offer wine to the Nazirites, and you would command the prophets, saying: “Do not prophesy.”
{2:13} Behold, I will creak under you, just as a wagon creaks that is laden with hay.
{2:14} And flight will perish from the swift, and the strong will not maintain his strength, and the healthy will not save his life.
{2:15} And I will send a fire onto Teman, and it will devour the buildings of Bozrah.
[Amos 3] 3:1 Listen to the word which the Lord has spoken about you, sons of Israel, concerning the whole family that I led out of the land of Egypt, saying: 3:2 I have known only you in such a way, out of all the families of the earth. For this reason, I will visit upon you all your iniquities. 3:3 Will two walk together, unless they have agreed to do so? 3:4 Will a lion roar in the forest, unless he has prey? Will the lion's young cry out from his den, unless he has taken something? 3:5 Will a bird fall into a snare on the ground, if there is no bird-catcher? Will a snare be taken away from the ground, before it has caught something? 3:6 Will the trumpet sound in a city, and the people not become frightened? Will there be disaster in a city, which the Lord has not done? 3:7 For the Lord God does not fulfill his word, unless he has revealed his secret to his servants the prophets. 3:8 The lion will roar, who will not fear? The Lord God has spoken, who will not prophesy? 3:9 Let it be heard in the buildings of Ashod and in the buildings of the land of Egypt, and say: Gather together across the mountains of Samaria, and see the many absurdities in its midst, and those who are suffering false accusations in its innermost places. 3:10 And they do not know how to make it right, says the Lord, storing up iniquity and plunder in their buildings. 3:11 Because of these things, thus says the Lord God: The land will be encircled and squeezed together. And your strength will be drawn away from you, and your buildings will be torn apart. 3:12 Thus says the Lord: Just as if a shepherd had rescued two legs from the mouth of a lion, or the tip of an ear, so also will the sons of Israel be rescued, who dwell in the sick bed of Samaria, and in the cot of Damascus. 3:13 Listen and give testimony in the house of Jacob, says the Lord God of hosts: 3:14 that in the day, when I will begin to visit the betrayals of Israel, I will visit upon him and upon the altars of Bethel. And the horns of the altars will be cut off and will fall to the ground. 3:15 And I will strike the winter house with the summer house; and the houses of ivory will perish, and many buildings will be torn apart, says the Lord.

[Amos 4] 4:1 Listen to this word, you fat cows that are on the mountain of Samaria, you who make false accusations against the destitute and crush the poor, who say to your nobles, “Bring, and we will drink.” 4:2 The Lord God has sworn in his holiness: behold, the days that will overcome you and that will impale you on poles, and that will place what remains of you in boiling pots. 4:3 And you will go out through the breaches, one over another, and you will be cast out into Harmon, says the Lord. 4:4 Come to Bethel and behave impiously, to Gilgal and increase betrayals. And bring daybreak to your victims, your tithes in three days. 4:5 And offer a sacrifice of praise with leaven. And call for voluntary oblations, and announce it. For such is your will, sons of Israel, says the Lord God. 4:6 Therefore, because of this, I have given you dull teeth in every one of your cities, and a lack of bread in all your places. And you have not been turned back towards me, says the Lord. 4:7 Therefore, I have withheld the rains from you, when there were still three months left until the harvest. And I rained on one city, and I did not rain on another city; one part was rained on, and the part on which I did not rain, dried out. 4:8 And two and three cities went to one city, in order to drink water, and they were not satisfied. And you did not return to me, says the Lord. 4:9 I struck you with a burning wind and with yellowing; the caterpillar has consumed your many gardens and your vineyards, your olive groves and your fig groves. And you did not return to me, says the Lord. 4:10 I sent death to you by way of Egypt; I struck your youths with the sword, even bringing captivity to your horses. And I made the stench of your camp ascend into your nostrils. And you did not return to me, says the Lord. 4:11 I overturned you, just as God overturned Sodom and Gomorrah, and you became like an ember seized from the fire. And you did not return to me, says the Lord. 4:12 Because of this, I will do these things to you, Israel. But after I have done these things to you, Israel, be prepared to meet your God. 4:13 For behold, he who forms the mountains and creates the wind and announces his speech to man, who makes the morning mist and steps over the heights of the earth: the Lord God of hosts is his name.

[Amos 5] 5:1 Listen to this word, which I lift over you in lamentation. The house of Israel has fallen, and it will no longer rise again. 5:2 The virgin of Israel has been thrown onto her land, there is no one who can raise her up. 5:3 For thus says the Lord God: In the city from which a thousand departed, a hundred will remain, and in that from which a hundred departed, ten will remain, in the house of Israel. 5:4 For thus says the Lord to the house of Israel: Seek me and you will live. 5:5 But do not be willing to seek Bethel, and do not be willing to enter Gilgal, and you will not cross into Beer-sheba. For Gilgal will be led into captivity, and Bethel will be useless. 5:6 Seek the Lord and live. Otherwise, the house of Joseph may be destroyed with fire, and it will devour, and there will be no one who can extinguish Bethel. 5:7 You turn judgment into wormwood, and you abandon justice on earth. 5:8 The Maker of Arcturus and Orion, who turns darkness into daybreak and who changes day into night; who calls forth the waters of the sea and who pours them out over the face of the earth: The Lord is his name. 5:9 It is he who smites destruction on the healthy, and who brings pillaging upon the powerful. 5:10 They held hatred for the one who corrects at the gate, and they have-abhorred the one who speaks perfectly. 5:11 Therefore, on his behalf, because you have torn apart the poor and stolen choice prey from him: you will build houses with square stones and you will not dwell in them; you will plant the most delightful vineyards, and you will not drink wine from them. 5:12 For I know your many wicked deeds and the strength of your sins, you enemies of the just, accepting bribes, and depriving the poor at the gate. 5:13 Therefore, the prudent will be silent at that time, for it is an evil time. 5:14 Seek good and not evil, so that you may live. And the Lord God of hosts will be with you, just as you have asked. 5:15 Hate evil and love good, and establish judgment at the gate. Perhaps then the Lord God of hosts may have mercy on the remnant of Joseph. 5:16 Therefore, thus says the Lord God of hosts, the Sovereign: In all the streets, there will be wailing. And in every place where they are outdoors, they will say, “Woe, woe!” And they will call the farmer to mourn, and those who know mourning to lamentation. 5:17 And in all the vineyards there will be wailing. For I will cross through your midst, says the Lord. 5:18 Woe to those who desire the day of the Lord. What is it to you? The day of the Lord is this:
darkness and not light. {5:19} It is as if a man flees from the face of a lion, only to have a bear meet him; or, he enters a house and leans with his hand against the wall, only to have a snake bite him. {5:20} Will not the day of the Lord be darkness and not light, and gloom with no brightness in it? {5:21} I hate and have rejected your feasts; and I will not accept the odor from your gatherings. {5:22} For if you offer me holocausts and your gifts, I will not receive them; and I will not look upon the vows of your fatness. {5:23} Take away from me the tumult of your songs, and I will not listen to the canticles of your lyre. {5:24} And judgment will be revealed like water, and justice like a mighty torrent. {5:25} Was it you who offered victims and sacrifices to me in the desert for forty years, house of Israel? {5:26} And you carried a tabernacle for your Moloch and the image of your idols: the star of your god, which you made for yourselves. {5:27} And I will cause you to go into captivity across Damascus, says the Lord. The God of hosts is his name.

[Amos 6] {6:1} Woe to you who have been wealthy in Zion, and to you who have confidence in the mountain of Samaria: aristocrats, heads of the people, who advance with a retinue into the house of Israel. {6:2} Cross over to Calneh and see, and go from there into Hamath the great, and descend into Gath of the Philistines, and to the best kingdoms of these; if their limits are wider than your limits. {6:3} You have been set aside for the day of disaster, and you approach the throne of iniquity. {6:4} You sleep on beds of ivory, and you are lustful on your couches. You devour lambs from the flock and calves from the midst of the herd. {6:5} You sing to the sound of stringed instruments; they consider themselves to have the musical abilities of David. {6:6} You drink wine in bowls, and you anoint with the best ointments; and they consider themselves to have the musical abilities of David. And calves from the midst of the herd. {6:5} You sing to the sound of stringed instruments; they consider themselves to have the musical abilities of David. {6:6} You drink wine in bowls, and you anoint with the best ointments; and they consider themselves to have the musical abilities of David. {6:7} Because of this, now they will depart at the head of those who go into captivity; and the faction of the lustful will be removed. {6:8} The Lord God has sworn by his own soul, the Lord God of hosts says: I detest the arrogance of Jacob, and I hate the house and leans with his hand against the wall, only to have a snake bite him. {5:20} Will not the day of the Lord be darkness and not light, and gloom with no brightness in it? {5:21} I hate and have rejected your feasts; and I will not accept the odor from your gatherings. {5:22} For if you offer me holocausts and your gifts, I will not receive them; and I will not look upon the vows of your fatness. {5:23} Take away from me the tumult of your songs, and I will not listen to the canticles of your lyre. {5:24} And judgment will be revealed like water, and justice like a mighty torrent. {5:25} Was it you who offered victims and sacrifices to me in the desert for forty years, house of Israel? {5:26} And you carried a tabernacle for your Moloch and the image of your idols: the star of your god, which you made for yourselves. {5:27} And I will cause you to go into captivity across Damascus, says the Lord. The God of hosts is his name.

[Amos 7] {7:1} These things the Lord God has revealed to me. And behold, the locust was formed at the beginning of the germination during the latter rains, and behold, the latter rains came after the thundering of the king. {7:2} And it happened, when they had finally eaten all the grass in the land, that I said, “Lord God, be gracious, I beg you. Who will raise up Jacob, for he is little?” {7:3} The Lord has been merciful about this. “It will not be,” said the Lord. {7:4} These things the Lord God has revealed to me. And behold, the Lord God called for judgment unto fire, and it devoured the manifold abyss, and it consumed simultaneously in every direction. {7:5} And I said, “Lord God, cease, I beg you. Who will raise up Jacob, for he is little?” {7:6} The Lord has been merciful about this. “And even this will not be,” said the Lord God. {7:7} These things the Lord revealed to me. And behold, the Lord was standing near a plastered wall, and in his hand was a mason's trowel. {7:8} And the Lord said to me, “What do you see, Amos?” And I said, “A mason's trowel.” And the Lord said, “Behold, I will place the trowel in the midst of my people Israel. I will no longer plaster over them. {7:9} And the heights of the idol will be demolished, and the sanctuaries of Israel will be desolate. And I will rise up against the house of Jeroboam with the sword.” {7:10} And Amaziah, the priest of Bethel, sent to Jeroboam king of Israel, saying: “Amos has rebelled against you in the midst of the house of Israel. The land is not able to withstand all his sermons. {7:11} For Amos says this: ‘Jeroboam will die by the sword, and Israel will be taken captive out of their own land.’ ” {7:12} And Amaziah said to Amos, “You, seer, go out and flee into the land of Judah, and eat bread there, and prophesy there. {7:13} And in Bethel, do not prophesy any longer, because it is the king's sanctuary, and it is the house of the kingdom.” {7:14} And Amos responded, and he said to Amazias, “I am not a prophet, and I am not the son of a prophet, but I am a herdsman plucking wild fig trees. {7:15} And the Lord took me, when I was following the flock, and the Lord said to me, ‘Go, prophesy to my people Israel.’ ” {7:16} And now, hear the word of the Lord: You say, “You will not prophesy about Israel, and you will not rain your words upon the house of the idol.” {7:17} Because of that, the Lord says this: “Your wife will fornicate in the city, and your sons and your daughters will fall by the sword, and your soil will be measured with a string. And you will die on polluted land, and Israel will be taken into captivity out of their land.”

[Amos 8] {8:1} These things the Lord has revealed to me. And behold, a hook to draw down fruit. {8:2} And he said, “What do you see, Amos?” And I said, “A hook to draw down fruit.” And the Lord said to me, “The end has come for my people Israel. I will no longer pass through them.” {8:3} And the hinges of the temple will creak in that day, says the Lord God. Many will die. Silence will be thrown away in all places. {8:4} Hear this, you who crush the poor and who make those in need of land to do without. {8:5} You say, “When will the first day of the month be over, so we can sell our wares, and the sabbath, so we can open the grain: in order that we may decrease the measure, and increase the price, and substitute deceitful scales, {8:6} in order that we may possess the destitute with money, and the poor for a pair of shoes, and may sell even the refuse of the grain?” {8:7} The Lord has sworn by the arrogance of Jacob: I will not forget, even to the end, all their works. {8:8} Will not the earth shudder over this, and all its inhabitants mourn, and all rise up like a river, and be cast out, and flow away like the river of Egypt? {8:9} And it will be in that day, says the Lord God, that the sun will decline at midday, and I will cause the earth to become dark on the day of light. {8:10} And I will turn your feasts into mourning, and all your hymns into lamentation. And I will put sackcloth over every one of your backs, and baldness on every head. And I will begin it like the mourning for an only-begotten son, and complete it like a bitter day. {8:11} Behold, the days pass, says the Lord, and I will send a famine on the earth: not a famine of bread, nor of thirst for water, but for hearing the word of the Lord. {8:12} And they will move even from sea to sea, and from the North all the way to the East. They will wander around seeking the word of the Lord, and they will not find it. {8:13} In that day, beautiful virgins, and young men, will fall because of thirst. {8:14} They swear by the offense of Samaria, and they say, “As your God lives, Dan,” and “The way of Beer-sheba lives.” And they will fall, and they will not rise up any more.

[Amos 9] {9:1} I saw the Lord standing over an altar, and he said: “Strike the hinges, and let the lintels be shaken. For there is avarice at the head of them all, and I will execute the very last of them with the sword. There will be no escape for them. They will flee, and he who flees from among them will not be saved. {9:2} If they descend even to the underworld, from there my hand will draw them out; and if they ascend even to the sky, from there will I pull them down. {9:3} And if they were hiding at the top of Carmel, when searching there, I would steal them away, and if they conceal themselves from my eyes in the depths of the sea, I will command the serpent there and he will bite them. {9:4} And if they go into captivity in the sight of their enemies, there I will command the sword, and it will kill them. And I will set my eyes over them for harm and not for good.” {9:5} And the Lord God of hosts, he touches the earth and it will melt. And all who dwell in it will mourn. And everyone will rise up like a river, and will flow away like the river of Egypt. {9:6} He establishes his ascension into heaven, and he has founded his bundle on the earth. He calls the waters of the ocean, and pours them over the face of the earth. The Lord is his name. {9:7} Sons of Israel, are you not like the sons of the Ethiopians to me, says the Lord? Did I not cause Israel to rise up out of the land of Egypt, and the Philistines out of Cappadocia, and the Syrians out of Cyrene? {9:8} Behold, the eyes of the Lord God are on the sinning kingdom, and I will wipe it from the face of the earth. Though truly, when destroying, I will not wipe away the house of Jacob, says the Lord. {9:9} For behold, I will command, and I will sift the house of Israel among all the nations, as wheat is sifted in a sieve. And not even one small stone will fall to the ground. {9:10} All the sinners of my people will die by the sword. They say, “Disaster will not come near us, and it will not overcome us.” {9:11} In that day, I will raise up the tabernacle of David, which is fallen. And I will repair the breaches in its walls, and I will restore that which collapsed. And I will rebuild it, just as in the days of antiquity, {9:12} so that they may possess the remnant of Idumea and all the nations, for my name has been invoked over them, says the Lord who does this. {9:13} Behold, the days pass, says the Lord, and the plower will overtake the harvester, and the treader of grapes will overtake the sower of seed. And the mountains will drip sweetness, and every hill will be cultivated. {9:14} And I will turn back the captivity of my people Israel. And they will rebuild the desert cities and inhabit them. And they will plant vineyards and drink their wine. And they will create gardens and eat their fruits. {9:15} And I will plant them on their own soil. And I will no longer root them out of their own land, which I have given them, says the Lord your God.

 The Prophecy of Obadiah **

[Obadiah 1] {1:1} The vision of Obadiah. Thus says the Lord God to Edom: We have heard a report from the Lord, and he has sent an envoy to the nations: “Arise, and let us together rise up in battle against him.” {1:2} Behold, I have made you little among the nations. You are greatly contemptible. {1:3} The arrogance of your heart has lifted you up, living in the clefts of the rocks, exalting your throne. You say in your heart, “Who will pull me down to the ground?” {1:4} Though you have been lifted high like an eagle, and though you have placed your nest among the stars, from there I will pull you down, says the Lord. {1:5} If thieves had approached you, if robbers by night, how would you have remained unnoticed? Would they not have stolen all that they wanted? If the grape-pickers had approached you, would they not have left you at least a cluster? {1:6} In what way have they been examining Esau? They investigated his secrets. {1:7} They have sent you out all the way to the limit. All the men of your alliance have deceived you. Your men of peace have prevailed against you. Those who eat with you will place snares under you. There is no foresight in him. {1:8} Shall I not, in that day, says the Lord, wipe away understanding from Idumea and foresight from the mount of Esau? {1:9} And your strong from the Meridian will be afraid, so that man may perish from the mount of Esau. {1:10} Because of the execution, and because of the iniquity against your brother Jacob, confusion will cover you, and you will pass away into eternity. {1:11} In the day when you stood against him, when strangers seized his army, and foreigners entered into his gates, and they cast lots over Jerusalem: you also were just like one of them. {1:12} But you shall not show disdain for the day of your brother in the day of his sojourn. And you shall not rejoice over the sons of Judah in the day of their perdition. And you shall not magnify your mouth in the day of anguish. {1:13} And neither shall you enter into the gate of my people in the day of their ruin. And neither shall you also show disdain for his troubles in the day of his desolation. And you shall not send out against his army in the day of his desolation. {1:14} Neither shall you stand at the exits to execute those who will flee. And you shall not enclose their remnant in the day of their destruction. {1:15} For the day of the Lord is near, over all nations. Just as you have done, so will it be done to you. He will turn back your retribution on your own head. {1:16} For in the manner that you drank on my holy mountain, so shall all nations drink continually. And they will drink, and they will absorb, and they will be as if they were not. {1:17} And on mount Zion there will be salvation, and it will be holy. And the house of Jacob will possess those who had possessed them. {1:18} And the house of Jacob will be a fire, and the house of Joseph a flame, and the house of Esau stubble. And they will be set on fire among them, and they will devour them. And there will be no remnant of the house of Esau, for the Lord has spoken. {1:19} And those who are towards the South, and who are in the camps of the Philistines, will inherit the mount of Esau. And they will possess the region of Ephraim, and the region of Samaria. And Benjamin will possess Gilead. {1:20} And the exiles of this army of the sons of Israel, all the places of the Canaanites all the way to Sarepta, and the exiles of Jerusalem who are in Bosphoro, will possess the cities of the South. {1:21} And the saviors will ascend to mount Zion to judge the mount of Esau. And the kingdom will be for the Lord.

 The Prophecy of Jonah **

[Jonah 1] {1:1} And the word of the Lord came to Jonah the son of Amittai, saying: {1:2} Rise and go to Nineveh, the great city, and preach in it. For its malice has ascended before my eyes. {1:3} And Jonah rose in order to flee from the face of the Lord to Tarshish. And he went down to Joppa and found a ship bound for Tarshish. And he paid its fare, and he went down into it, in order to go with them to Tarshish from the face of the Lord. {1:4} But the Lord sent a great wind into the sea. And a great tempest took place in the sea, and the ship was in danger of being crushed. {1:5} And the mariners were afraid, and the men cried out to their god. And they threw the containers that were in the ship into the sea in order to lighten it of them. And Jonah went down into the interior of the ship, and he fell into a painful deep sleep. {1:6} And the helmsman approached him, and he said to him, “Why are you weighed down with sleep? Rise, call upon your God, so perhaps God will be mindful of us and we might not perish.” {1:7} And a man said to his shipmate, “Come, and let us cast lots, so that we may know why this disaster is upon us.” And they cast lots, and the lot fell upon Jonah. {1:8} And they said to him: “Explain to us what is the reason that this disaster is upon us. What is your work? Which is your country? And where are you going? Or which people are you from?” {1:9} And he said to them, “I am Hebrew, and I fear the Lord God of heaven, who made the sea and the dry land.” {1:10} And the men were greatly afraid, and they said to him, “Why have you done this?” (For the men knew that he was fleeing from the face of the Lord, because he had told them.) {1:11} And they said to him, “What are we to do with you, so that the sea will cease for us?” For the sea flowed and swelled. {1:12} And he said to them, “Take me, and cast me into the sea, and the sea will cease for you. For I know that it is because of me that this great tempest has come upon you.” {1:13} And the men were rowing, so as to return to dry land, but they did not succeed. For the sea flowed and swelled against them. {1:14} And they cried out to the Lord, and they said, “We beseech you, Lord, do not let us perish for this man’s life, and do not attribute to us innocent blood. For you, Lord, have done just as it pleased you.” {1:15} And they took Jonah and cast him into the sea. And the sea was stilled from its fury. {1:16} And the men feared the Lord greatly, and they sacrificed victims to the Lord, and they made vows.

[Jonah 2] {2:1} And the Lord prepared a great fish to swallow Jonah. And Jonah was in the belly of the fish for three days and three nights. {2:2} And Jonah prayed to the Lord, his God, from the belly of the fish. {2:3} And he said: “I cried out to the Lord from my tribulation, and he heeded me. From the belly of hell, I cried out, and you heeded my voice. {2:4} And you have thrown me into the deep, in the heart of the sea, and a flood has encircled me. All your whirlpools and your waves have passed over me. {2:5} And I said: I am expelled from the sight of your eyes. Yet, truly, I will see your holy temple again. {2:6} The waters surrounded me, even to the soul. The abyss has walled me in. The ocean has covered my head. {2:7} I descended to the base of the mountains. The bars of the earth have enclosed me forever. And you will raise up my life from corruption, Lord, my God. {2:8} When my soul was in anguish within me, I called to mind the Lord, so that my prayer might come to you, to your holy temple. {2:9} Those who in vain observe vanities, abandon their own mercy. {2:10} But I, with a voice of praise, will sacrifice to you. I will repay whatever I have vowed to the Lord, because of my salvation.” {2:11} And the Lord spoke to the fish, and it vomited Jonah onto dry land.

[Jonah 3] {3:1} And the word of the Lord came to Jonah a second time, saying: {3:2} Rise, and go to Nineveh, the great city. And preach in it the preaching that I say to you. {3:3} And Jonah rose, and he went to Nineveh in accordance with the word of the Lord. And Nineveh was a great city of three days’ journey. {3:4} And Jonah began to enter into the city one day’s journey. And he cried out and said, “Forty days more and Nineveh shall be destroyed.” {3:5} And the men of Nineveh believed in God. And they proclaimed a fast, and they put on sackcloth, from the greatest all the way to the least. {3:6} And word reached the king of Nineveh. And he rose from his throne, and he threw off his robe from himself and was clothed in sackcloth, and he sat in ashes. {3:7} And he cried out and spoke: “In Nineveh, from the mouth of the king and of his princes, let it be said: Men and beasts and oxen and sheep may not taste anything. Neither shall they feed or drink water. {3:8} And let men and beasts be covered with sackcloth, and let them cry out to the Lord with strength, and may man be converted from his evil way, and from the iniquity that is in their hands. {3:9} Who knows if God may turn and forgive, and may turn away from his furious wrath, so that we might not perish?” {3:10} And God saw their works, that they had been converted from their evil way. And God took pity on them, concerning the harm that he had said he would do to them, and he did not do it.

[Jonah 4] {4:1} And Jonah was afflicted with a great affliction, and he was angry. {4:2} And he prayed to the Lord, and he said, “I beg you, Lord, was this not my word, when I was still in my own land? Because of this, I knew beforehand to flee into Tarshish. For I know that you are a lenient and merciful God, patient and great in compassion, and forgiving despite ill will. {4:3} And now, Lord, I ask you to take my life from me. For it is better for me to die than to live.” {4:4} And the Lord said, “Do you really think you are right to be angry?” {4:5} And Jonah went out of the city, and he sat opposite the east of the city. And he made himself a shelter there, and he was sitting under it in the shadow, until he might see what would befall the city. {4:6} And the Lord God prepared an ivy, and it ascended over the head of Jonah so as to be a shadow over his head, and to protect him (for he had labored hard). And Jonah rejoiced because of the ivy, with great rejoicing. {4:7} And God prepared a worm, when dawn approached on the next day, and it struck the ivy, and it dried up. {4:8} And when the sun had risen, the Lord ordered a hot and burning wind. And the sun beat down on the head of Jonah, and he burned. And he petitioned for his soul that he might die, and he said, “It is better for me to die than to live.” {4:9} And the Lord said to Jonah, “Do you really think that you are right to be angry because of the ivy?” And he said, “I am right to be angry even unto death.”

{4:10} And the Lord said, “You grieve for the ivy, for which you have not labored and which you did not cause to grow, though it had been born during one night, and during one night perished. {4:11} And shall I not spare Nineveh, the great city, in which there are more than one hundred and twenty thousand men, who do not know the difference between their right and their left, and many beasts?”

The Prophecy of Micah

[Micah 1] {1:1} The word of the Lord that came to Micah the Moreshethite, in the days of Jotham, Ahaz, and Hezekiah, kings of Judah, which he saw about Samaria and Jerusalem. {1:2} All peoples, listen. And may the earth and its fullness pay attention. And may the Lord God be a witness to you, the Lord from his holy temple. {1:3} For behold, the Lord will go forth from his place. And he will descend, and he will trample over the high places of the earth. {1:4} And the mountains will be consumed under him, and the valleys will be torn apart, like wax before the face of fire, and like waters that rush swiftly downward. {1:5} All this is for the wickedness of Jacob and for the sins of the house of Israel. What is the wickedness of Jacob? Is it not Samaria? And what is the loftiness of Judah? Is it not Jerusalem? {1:6} And I will place Samaria like a pile of stones in the field, when a vineyard is planted. And I will pull down its stones into the valley, and I will reveal her foundations. {1:7} And all her graven images will be cut to pieces, and all her rewards will be burned with fire, and I will place all her idols in perdition. For they have been gathered together from the pay of a kept woman, and even to the pay of a kept woman, they will return. {1:8} I will lament and wail about this. I will go out despoiled and naked. I will make a howl like the dragons, and a mourning like the ostriches. {1:9} For her wound has been in despair. For it has come even to Judah. It has touched the gate of my people, even to Jerusalem. {1:10} Do not be willing to announce it in Gath; may you not lament with tears. In the house of Dust, besprinkle yourselves with dust. {1:11} And cross over to your dwelling place, Beauty, bewildered by disgrace. She did not depart, who dwells at the place of departure. The House nearby, which remained firm by herself, will receive mourning from you. {1:12} For she has been weakened in goodness, who dwells in bitterness. For disaster has descended from the Lord to the gate of Jerusalem. {1:13} A tumult of four-horse chariots has stupefied the inhabitants of Lachish. The beginning has been sin for the daughter of Zion, because in you have been found the evil deeds of Israel. {1:14} Because of this, she will send emissaries to the inheritance of Gath: the house of Lying in order to deceive the kings of Israel. {1:15} Nevertheless, I will lead an heir to you, who dwell in Mareshah: the glory of Israel will reach all the way to Adullam. {1:16} Become bald and shaved for your delicate sons. Increase your baldness like the eagle. For they have been carried into captivity from you.

[Micah 2] {2:1} Woe to you who devise useless things and who work evil in your beds. In the morning light, they undertake it, because their hand is against God. {2:2} And they have desired fields and have taken them by violence, and they have stolen houses. And they have made false accusations against a man and his house, a man and his inheritance. {2:3} For this reason, thus says the Lord: Behold, I devise an evil against this family, from which you will not steal away your necks. And you will not walk in arrogance, because this is a most wicked time. {2:4} In that day, a parable will be taken up about you, and a song will be sung with sweetness, saying: “We have been devastated by depopulation.” The fate of my people has been altered. How can he withdraw from me, when he might be turned back, he who might tear apart our country? {2:5} Because of this, there will be for you no casting of the cord of fate in the assembly of the Lord. {2:6} Do not speak by saying, “It will not drop on these ones; shame will not embrace them.” {2:7} The house of Jacob says, “Has the Spirit of the Lord been weakened, or are such things his thoughts?” Are not my words good for him who walks uprightly? {2:8} But, to the contrary, my people have risen up in opposition. You have lifted the cover from the undergarment, and those who passed by harmlessly, you have converted into war. {2:9} You have evicted the women among my people from their delicate houses. You have taken my praise forever from their little ones. {2:10} Rise and depart, for there is no relief for you here. Because of its uncleanness, it will be corrupted with a most wicked decay. {2:11} I wish that I were not a man who has breath, and that I rather spoke a lie. I will drop it down to you in wine and in drunkenness. And it will be this people on whom it will rain down. {2:12} I will gather together in a congregation all of you, Jacob. I will lead together as one, the remnant of Israel. I will set them together like a flock in the fold, like a sheep in the midst of the sheep pen. They will cause a tumult before the multitude of men. {2:13} For he will ascend, opening the way before them. They will separate, and they will cross the gate and enter through it. And their king will pass by, before their very eyes, and the Lord will be at their head.

[Micah 3] {3:1} And I said: Listen, leaders of Jacob and chiefs of the house of Israel. Does it not belong to you to know judgment, {3:2} you who hold hatred for good, and love evil, who violently steal their skins from over them and their flesh from over their bones? {3:3} They have devoured the flesh of my people, and have stripped their skin from over them, and they have shattered and chopped their bones, as if for the kettle, and like flesh in the middle of the pot. {3:4} Then they will cry out to the Lord, and he will not heed them. And he will hide his face from them in that time, just as they have acted wickedly with their inventions. {3:5} Thus says the Lord about the prophets who seduce my people: They bite with their teeth and preach peace, and if anyone does not give something to their mouth, they sanctify a battle against him. {3:6} Because of this, night will be yours for vision, and darkness yours for divination, and the sun will meet with death over the prophets, and the day will be darkened over them. {3:7} And those who see visions will be confounded, and the diviners will be confounded. And they will all cover their faces, because there is no response from God. {3:8} Nevertheless, truly I have been filled with the strength of the Spirit of the Lord, with judgment and virtue, in order to announce to Jacob his wickedness and to Israel his sin. {3:9} Hear this, leaders of the house of Jacob and judges of the house of Israel, you who abominate judgment and who pervert all that is right. {3:10} You build up Zion with blood, and Jerusalem with iniquity. {3:11} Her leaders have judged for tributes, and her priests have taught for payment, and her prophets divined for money. And they leaned upon the Lord, saying: “Is not the Lord in our midst? No disaster will overcome us.” {3:12} For this reason, because of you, Zion will be plowed under like a field, and Jerusalem will become like a pile of stones, and the mountain of the temple like the high places of the forests.

[Micah 4] {4:1} And this shall be: In the last days, the mountain of the house of the Lord will be prepared at the top of the mountains and high above the hills. And the people will flow to it. {4:2} And many nations will hurry, and will say: “Come, let us ascend to the mountain of the Lord and to the house of the God of Jacob. And he will teach us about his ways, and we will walk in his paths.” For the law will go forth from Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem.

{4:3} And he will judge among the many peoples, and he will correct strong nations, even from afar. And they will cut up their swords into plows, and their spears into hoes. Nation will not take up the sword against nation, and they will no longer learn to wage war. {4:4} And a man will sit under his vine and under his fig tree, and there will be no one to fear, for the mouth of the Lord of hosts has spoken. {4:5} For all people will walk, each one in the name of his god. But we will walk in the name of the Lord our God, forever and ever. {4:6} In that day, says the Lord, I will gather together the remnant, and she who had been in distress, within a healthy people. And the Lord will reign over them on Mount Zion, from the present time and even unto eternity.

{4:8} And you, cloudy tower of the flock of the daughter of Zion, from the present time and even unto eternity. And the Lord will reign over them on Mount Zion, from the present time and even unto eternity.

[Micah 5] {5:1} Now you will be devastated, you daughter of a robber. They have placed a blockade against us, with a rod they will strike the jaw of the judge of Israel. {5:2} And you, Bethlehem Ephrata, are a little one among the thousands of Judah. From you will go forth he who shall be the ruler in Israel, and his landing place has been set from the beginning, from the days of eternity. {5:3} Because of this, he will provide for them, even until the time in which she who bears him gives birth. And the remnant of his brothers will be converted to the sons of Israel. {5:4} And he will stand firm and feed on the strength of the Lord, according to the sublime name of the Lord his God. And they will be converted, for now he will be magnified, even to the ends of the earth. {5:5} And this man will be our peace, when the Assyrian will come into our land, and when he will trample on our houses; and we will raise against him seven shepherds and eight principal men. {5:6} And they will graze on the land of Assur with the sword, and the land of Nimrod with its spears; and he will free us from Assur, when he will come into our land, and when he will trample our borders. {5:7} And there will be a remnant of Jacob in the midst of many peoples, like a dew from the Lord and like drops upon the grass, which awaits no man and does not stand before the sons of men.

{5:8} And there will be a remnant of Jacob within the Gentiles, in the midst of many peoples, like a lion among the beasts of the forests, and like a young lion among the flocks of sheep, who, when he will pass through and trample down and seize, there is none who can rescue. {5:9} Your hand will be exalted over your enemies, and all your adversaries will pass away. {5:10} And it will be in that day, says the Lord: I will take away your horses from your midst, and I will utterly ruin your four-horse chariots. {5:11} And I will destroy the cities of your land, and I will pull down all your fortifications, and I will cut up your graven images to perish, and your statues, from your midst. And you will no longer adore the works of your hands. {5:13} And I will root out your sacred groves from your midst, and I will crush your cities. {5:14} And I will exact vengeance, in fury and in indignation, among all the nations which have not listened.
Lord requires from you, and how to act with judgment, and to love mercy, and to walk carefully with your God.

{6:9} The voice of the Lord cries out to the city, “Listen, you tribes,” and who will confirm it? And salvation will be for those who fear your name. {6:10} Nevertheless, there is a fire in the house of the impious, the treasury of iniquity, and a small measure, filled with wrath. {6:11} Shall I justify unfaithful balances, and the deceitful weighing of a small bag? {6:12} By this, her wealthy have been filled with iniquity, and her inhabitants have spoken lies, and their tongue was deceitful in their mouth. {6:13} And I, therefore, began to strike you with perdition because of your sins. {6:14} You will consume and not be satisfied, and your humiliation will be in your midst. And you will take hold, and not save, and those whom you will save, I will deliver to the sword. {6:15} You will sow, and not reap. You will tread the olives, and not be anointed with oil, and crush the grapes, and not drink the wine. {6:16} For you have kept the precepts of Omri, and all the works of the house of Ahab. And you have walked according their wills, so that I should give you over to perdition and its hissing inhabitants, and you would carry the disgrace of my people.

The Prophecy of Nahum

[Nahum 1] {1:1} The burden of Nineveh. The book of the vision of Nahum the Elkoshite. {1:2} God is a rival, and the Lord is avenging. The Lord is avenging, and one who applies wrath. The Lord is avenging with his enemies, and he becomes angry with his adversaries. {1:3} The Lord is patient and great in strength, and those who are not clean, he makes innocent. The Lord is in a tempest, and his way is a whirlwind, and the clouds are dust at his feet. {1:4} He is the one who rebukes the sea, and who dries it up, and who leads all the rivers to the desert. Basan has been weakened, and also Carmel, and the flower of Lebanon has languished.

{1:5} The mountains have trembled before him, and the hills have become desolate, and the earth has quaked before his face, both the world and all that dwells in it. {1:6} Who can stand firm before the face of his indignation? And who can continue against the fury of his wrath? His indignation has broken out like a fire, and the rocks have been dissolved before him. {1:7} The Lord is good, and a comforter in the day of tribulation, and he knows those who hope in him. {1:8} And in the flood that passes over, he brings to consummation the end of his place. And darkness shall pursue his adversaries. {1:9} What are you thinking up against the Lord? He will accomplish the consummation. There shall not rise up a double tribulation. {1:10} For just as thorns entwine one another, so also, while they are feasting and drinking together, they will be consumed like stubble that is completely dry. {1:11} Out of you will go forth one who thinks up evil against the Lord, dragging betrayals through his mind. {1:12} Thus says the Lord: If they had been perfect, and many of them so, yet still they would be pruned, and it will cross through them. I have afflicted you, and I shall afflict you no more. {1:13} And now I will shatter his rod from your back, and I will break open your bonds. {1:14} And the Lord will place a commandment over you; nothing more from your name will be sown. From the house of your God, I will order destroyed the graven image and the molten image. I will prepare your grave, because you are not honorable. {1:15} Behold, over the mountains, the feet of the Evangelizer and the Announcer of peace. Judah, celebrate your festivals and keep your vows. For Belial will never again pass through you; he has completely passed away.

[Nahum 2] {2:1} He ascends, who would scatter before your eyes, who would maintain the blockade. Contemplate the way, fortify your back, reinforce virtue greatly. {2:2} For the Lord has repaid the arrogance of Jacob, just like the arrogance of Israel. For the despoilers have scattered them, and they have corrupted their procreation. {2:3} The shield of his strong ones is fire, the men of war are in scarlet. The reins of the chariot are fiery in the day of his preparation, and the drivers have been drugged. {2:4} They have become confused on their journey. The four-horse chariots have collided in the streets. Their appearance is like torches, like lightning dashing around. {2:5} He will call to mind his strong ones; they will destroy along their journey. They will quickly ascend its walls, and a shelter will be prepared. {2:6} The gates of the rivers have been opened, and the temple has been pulled down to the ground. {2:7} And the foot soldier has been led away captive, and her handmaids were driven away, mourning like doves, murmuring in their hearts. {2:8} And Nineveh, her waters are like a fish pond. Yet truly, they have fled away: "Stand, stand!" But there is no one who will turn back. {2:9} Despoil the silver, despoil the gold. And there is no end to all the riches of desirable equipment. {2:10} She has been scattered, and cut, and torn apart. And the heart melts, and the knees buckle, and weakness is in every temperament. And the faces of them all are like a black kettle. {2:11} Where is the dwelling place of the lions, and the feeding ground of the young lions, to which the lion went, so as to open a way for the young lion, and so that there would be none to make them afraid? {2:12} The lion seized enough for his young, and killed enough for his lionesses, and he filled his caves with prey, and his den with spoils. {2:13} Behold, I will come to you, says the Lord of hosts, and I will burn your chariots even to smoke, and the sword will devour your young lions. And I will exterminate your prey from the land, and the voice of your messengers shall no longer be heard.

[Nahum 3] {3:1} Woe to the city of blood, filled with all manner of lies and violence. Crime shall not depart from you: {3:2} the voice of the whip, and the voice of the turning wheels, and of the neighing horse, and the burning chariot, and the horsemen who ride, {3:3} and of the flashing sword and the shining spear, and of a multitude executed and a grievous ruination. Neither is there an end to the dead bodies, and they will fall down upon their dead bodies. {3:4} Because of the multitude of fornications of the kept woman, beautiful and pleasing and practicing evil deeds, who sold nations by her fornications, and families by her evil doing: {3:5} behold, I will come to you, says the Lord of hosts, and I will reveal your shame to your face, and I will show your nakedness to the Gentiles, and your disgrace to kingdoms. {3:6} And I will cast abominations over you, and I will afflict you with abuse, and I will make an example of you. {3:7} And this shall be: everyone who sees you, will recoil from you, and he will say: "Nineveh has been devastated." Who will shake his head over you? Where might I seek consolation for you? {3:8} Are you better than the populous Alexandria, which dwells along the rivers? Waters encircle it: the sea, with its riches. The waters are its walls. {3:9} Ethiopia and Egypt were its strength, and there is no limit. Africa and Northern Africa have been your helpers. {3:10} Nevertheless, she has been led away with the transmigration into captivity. Her little ones have been dashed in pieces at the top of every street, and they have cast lots over her celebrities, and all her elite have been fastened together in shackles. {3:11} Therefore, you also will become inebriated, and you will be despised, and you will seek help from the one who devours. {3:12} All your fortresses will be like fig trees with their green figs. If they are shaken violently, they will fall into the mouth of the one who devours. {3:13} Behold, women are at the center of your people. The gates of your land will be opened wide for your enemies; fire will devour your bars. {3:14} Draw in water because of the blockade; build up your fortresses. Go into the clay and tread; work it to make brick. {3:15} There, fire will devour you. You will perish by the sword; it will devour you like the beetle. Gather together like the beetle. Multiply like the locust. {3:16} You have made more negotiations than there are stars in the sky. The beetle has spread out and flown away. {3:17} Your guardians are like locusts, and your little ones are like locusts among locusts, which alight on hedges on a cold day. The sun rose up, and they flew away, and there was no way to know the place where they had been. {3:18} Your shepherds have become drowsy, king Assur. Your princes will be buried. Your people have remained hidden in the mountains, and there is no one to gather them. {3:19} Your destruction is not hidden; your wound is grievous. All who have heard of your fame have clenchd their hands over you, because over whom has your wickedness not trampled continually?

The Prophecy of Habakkuk

[Habakkuk 1] {1:1} The burden that Habakkuk the prophet saw. {1:2} How long, O Lord, shall I cry out, and you will not heed? Shall I shout to you while suffering violence, and you will not save? {1:3} Why have you revealed to me iniquity and hardship, to see plunder and injustice opposite me? And there has been judgment, but the opposition is more powerful. {1:4} Because of this, the law has been torn apart, and judgment does not persevere to its conclusion. For the impious prevail against the just. Because of this, a perverse judgment is issued. {1:5} Gaze among the nations, and see. Admire, and be astounded. For a work has been done in your days, which no one will believe when it is told. {1:6} For behold, I will raise up the Chaldeans, a bitter and swift people, marching across the width of the earth, to possess tabernacles not their own. {1:7} It is dreadful and terrible. From themselves, judgment and their burden will issue. {1:8} Their horses are more nimble than leopards and swifter than wolves in the evening; their horsemen will spread out. And then their horsemen will approach from far away; they will fly like the eagle, hurrying to devour. {1:9} They will all approach towards the prey; their face is like a burning wind. And they will gather captives together like sand. {1:10} And concerning kings, he will triumph, and sovereign rulers will be his laughingstock, and he will laugh over every fortress, and he will transport a rampart and seize it. {1:11} Then his spirit will be altered, and he will cross over and fall. Such is his strength from his god. {1:12} Have you not existed from the beginning, Lord my God, my holy one, and so we shall not die? Lord, you have stationed him for judgment, and you have establish that his strength will be swept away. {1:13} Your eyes are pure, you do not behold evil, and you cannot look towards iniquity. Why do you look upon the agents of iniquity, and remain silent, while the impious is devouring one who is more just than himself? {1:14} And you will make men like the fish of the sea and like the creeping things that have no ruler. {1:15} He lifted up everything with his hook. He drew them in with his dragnet, and gathered them into his netting. Over this, he will rejoice and exult. {1:16} For this reason, he will offer victims to his dragnet, and he will sacrifice to his netting. For through them, his portion has been made fat, and his meals elite. {1:17} Because of this, therefore, he expands his dragnet and will not be lenient in continually putting to death the peoples.

[Habakkuk 2] {2:1} I will stand firm during my watch, and fix my position over the fortification. And I will observe carefully, to see what might be said to me and what I might respond to my opponent. {2:2} And the Lord responded to me and said: Write the vision and explain it on tablets, so that he who reads it may run through it. {2:3} For as yet the vision is far off, and it will appear in the end, and it will not lie. If it expresses any delay, wait for it. For it is arriving and it will arrive, and it will not be hindered. {2:4} Behold, he who is unbelieving, his soul will not be right within himself; but he who is just shall live in his faith. {2:5} And in the manner that wine deceives the heavy drinker, so will the arrogant man be deceived, and he will not be honored. He has enlarged his life like hellfire, and himself like death, and his portion has been made fat, and his meals elite. {2:6} Shall not all these take up a parable against him, and an enigmatic utterance about him? And it will be said, “Woe to him who increases what is not his own.” How long, then, will he lay down dense clay against himself? {2:7} Shall they not suddenly rise up, who would bite you, and be stirred up, who would tear you, so that you will be a prey for them? {2:8} Because you have despoiled many peoples, all those who are left of the people shall despoil you, because of the blood of men, and the iniquity of the earth, of the city and all who dwell therein. {2:9} Woe to him who gathers together an evil greed for his house, so that his nest may be exalted, and thinking that he might free himself from the hand of evil. {2:10} You have devised confusion for your house, you have cut to pieces many peoples, and your soul has sinned. {2:11} For the stone will cry out from the wall, and the wood that is between the joints of the building will respond. {2:12} Woe to him who builds a town with blood and prepares a city by iniquity. {2:13} Are not these things before the Lord of hosts? For the people will labor amid a great fire, and the nations will labor in emptiness, and they will fail. {2:14} For the earth shall be filled, that they might know the glory of the Lord, like the waters spreading over the sea. {2:15} Woe to anyone who gives a drink to a friend, releasing a drug and inebriating, so as to look upon their nakedness. {2:16} You are filled with disgrace in place of glory. So then, drink and fall fast asleep, for the cup of the right hand of the Lord will surround you, and a disgraceful vomit will cover your glory. {2:17} For the iniquity of Lebanon will cover you, and the devastation of animals which will deter them from the blood of men, and the iniquity of the earth and the city, and of all who dwell therein. {2:18} Of what benefit is the graven image? For its maker has formed it, a molten and imaginary deception. For its maker has hoped in a figment of his own creation, so as to make a dumb likeness. {2:19} Woe to him who says to wood, “Awaken,” to the silent stone, “Arise.” Is it able to teach? Behold, it has been entirely covered with gold and silver; and there is no spirit at all in its inner workings. {2:20} But the Lord is in his holy temple. May all the earth be silent before his face.

[Habakkuk 3] {3:1} A Prayer of Habakkuk the Prophet on Behalf of Those Who Are Ignorant. {3:2} Lord, I heard what has been said about you, and I was afraid. Lord, your work, in the midst of years, revive it. In the midst of years, you will make it known. When you have become angry, you will remember mercy. {3:3} God will come from the south, and the Holy One from mount Pharan. His glory has covered the heavens, and the earth is full of his praise. {3:4} His brightness shall be like the light; horns are in his hands. There, his strength has been hidden. {3:5} Death will go forth before his face. And the devil shall depart before his feet. {3:6} He stood, and measured the earth. He looked, and dissolved the Gentiles. And the mountains of ages past have been shattered. The hills of the world became curved by the journeys of his eternity. {3:7} I saw the tents of Ethiopia for their iniquity; the tent-skins of the land of Midian will be thrown into confusion. {3:8} Could you have been angry with the rivers, Lord? Or was your fury within the rivers, or your indignation in the sea? He will ascend upon your horses, and your four-horse chariots are salvation. {3:9} Being stirred up, you will take up your bow, the oaths you have spoken to the tribes. You will split apart the Rivers of the earth. {3:10} They saw you, and the mountains grieved. The great body of waters crossed over. The abyss uttered its voice. The pinnacle lifted up its hands. {3:11} The sun and the moon have stood firm in their dwelling place; with the light of your arrows, they shall go forth in the splendor of your flashing spear. {3:12} With a roar, you will trample the earth. In your fury, you will cause the nations to be stupefied. {3:13} You have gone forth for the salvation of your people, for salvation with your Christ. You struck the head of the house of the impious. You have laid bare his foundation all the way to the neck. {3:14} You have cursed his scepters, the head of his warriors, those who approached like a whirlwind so as to scatter me. Their exultation was like one who devours the poor in secret. {3:15} You made a way in the sea for your horses, in the mud of great waters. {3:16} I heard, and my stomach became troubled. My lips trembled at the voice. Let decay enter into my bones and gush forth from within me. Then I may rest in the day of tribulation, so that I may ascend to our people well-prepared. {3:17} For the fig tree will not flower, and there will be no bud on the vines. The labor of the olive tree will be misleading, and the farmland will produce no food. The sheep will be cut off from the sheepfold, and there will be no herd at the manger. {3:18} But I will rejoice in the Lord; and I will exult in God my Jesus. {3:19} The Lord God is my strength. And he will set my feet like those of the stag. And he, the victor, will lead me beyond my high places while singing psalms.

 The Prophecy of Zephaniah **

[Zephaniah 1] {1:1} The word of the Lord that came to Zephaniah the son of Cushi, the son of Gedaliah, the son of Amariah, the son of Hezekiah, in the days of Josiah the son of Amon, king of Judah. {1:2} While gathering, I will gather together all things from the face of the earth, says the Lord. {1:3} I will gather man and cattle; I will gather the flying things of the air and the fish of the sea. And the impious will be a catastrophe. And I will disperse men before the face of the earth, says the Lord. {1:4} And I will extend my hand over Judah and over all the inhabitants of Jerusalem. And I will disperse from this place the remnant of Baal, and the names of the administrators along with the priests, {1:5} and those who adore the military campaign over the ceiling of the sky, both those who adore and swear by the Lord, and those who swear by Melchom, {1:6} both those who turn aside from following after the Lord, and those who have not sought the Lord, nor inquired about him. {1:7} Be silent before the face of the Lord God. For the day of the Lord is near; for the Lord has prepared a victim, he has sanctified those he has called. {1:8} And this shall be: in the day of the victim of the Lord, I will visit upon the leaders, and upon the sons of the king, and upon all who have been clothed with strange garments. {1:9} And I will visit upon all who enter arrogantly over the threshold in that day, those who fill the house of the Lord their God with iniquity and deceit. {1:10} And this shall be in that day, says the Lord: the voice of an outcry from the fish gate, and a howling from the Second, and a great contrition from the hills. {1:11} Howl, inhabitants of the Pillar. All the people of Canaan have fallen silent. All were ruined who had been wrapped in silver. {1:12} And this shall be in that time: I will scrutinize Jerusalem with lamps, and I will visit upon the men who have become stuck in the dregs, who say in their hearts, “The Lord will not do good, and he will not do evil.” {1:13} And their strength will be in plundering, and their houses in the desert. And they will build houses and not dwell in them, and they will plant vineyards and not drink their wine. {1:14} The great day of the Lord is near; it is near and exceedingly swift. The voice of the day of the Lord is bitter; the strong will be tested there. {1:15} That day is a day of wrath, a day of tribulation and anguish, a day of calamity and misery, a day of darkness and gloom, a day of clouds and whirlwinds, {1:16} a day of the trumpet and the trumpet blast over fortified cities and over exalted ramparts. {1:17} And I will trouble men, and they will walk like the blind, because they have sinned against the Lord. And their blood will be poured out like soil, and their bodies like manure. {1:18} Neither their silver, nor their gold, will be able to free them in the day of the wrath of the Lord. All the land will be devoured in the fire of his zeal, for with all speed, he will bring to consummation every inhabitant of the land.

[Zephaniah 3] {3:1} Woe to the provocatrix and the redeemed city, the dove. {3:2} She has not heeded the voice, nor has she accepted discipline. She has not trusted in the Lord; she did not draw near to her God. {3:3} Her leaders are in her midst like roaring lions. Her judges are evening wolves; they leave nothing for the morning. {3:4} Her prophets are crazed; men without faith. Her priests have polluted what is holy; they have acted unjustly against the law. {3:5} The just Lord is in their midst; he will not do iniquity. In the morning, in the morning, he will bring his judgment into the light, and it will not be hidden. But the impious one has not known shame. {3:6} I have dispersed the nations, and their towers have been torn down. I have made their ways deserts, until there were none who passed through. Their cities have become desolate, with no man remaining, nor any inhabitant. {3:7} I said: Nevertheless, you will fear me; you will accept discipline. And her dwelling place will not perish, despite all the things about which I have visited her. Yet truly, they arose with the dawn and corrupted all their thoughts. {3:8} Because of this, expect me, says the Lord, in the day of my resurrection in the future, for my judgment is to gather together the Gentiles, and to collect the kingdoms, and to pour out over them my indignation, all the fury of my anger. For by the fire of my zeal, all the earth will be devoured. {3:9} For then I will restore to the people a chosen lip, so that all may invoke the name of the Lord and may serve him with one shoulder. {3:10} From beyond the rivers of Ethiopia, my supplicants, the sons of my diaspora, will carry a gift to me. {3:11} In that day, you will not be ashamed over all of your inventions, by which you have transgressed against me. For then I will take away from your midst your arrogant boasters, and you will no longer be exalted on my holy mountain. {3:12} And I will bequeath over into your midst a poor and needy people, and they will hope in the name of the Lord. {3:13} The remnant of Israel will not do iniquity, nor speak lies, and a deceitful tongue will not be found in their mouth. For they will pasture and will recline, and there will be no one to strike them with terror. {3:14} Give praise, daughter of Zion. Shout joyfully, Israel. Rejoice and exult with all your heart, daughter of Jerusalem. {3:15} The Lord has taken away your judgment; he has turned aside your foes. The king of Israel, the Lord, is in your midst; you shall no longer fear evil. {3:16} In that day, it will be said to Jerusalem, “Do not be afraid,” and to Zion, “Do not let your hands be weakened.” {3:17} The Lord your God is the strength in your midst; he will save. He will rejoice over you with gladness. In his love, he will be silent. He will exult over you with praise. {3:18} The triflers who withdrew from the law, I will gather together, because they were from you, so that you may no longer suffer disgrace over them. {3:19} Behold, I will execute all who have afflicted you in that time, and I will save those who are lame, and I will gather together her who had been cast out. And I will place them in praise and in renown, in all the land where they had been put to shame, {3:20} in that time, when I will lead to you, and in the time when I will gather for you. For I will deliver you into renown and into praise, among all the peoples of the earth, when I will have converted your captivity before your very eyes, says the Lord.

The Prophecy of Haggai

[Haggai 1] {1:1} In the second year of king Darius, in the sixth month, on the first day of the month, the word of the Lord came, by the hand of Haggai the prophet, to Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and to Jesus the son of Jehozadak, the high priest, saying: {1:2} Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, to Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah: {1:3} Thus says the Lord of hosts, the God of Israel, to Zerubbabel, saying: {1:4} Is it time for you to dwell in paneled houses, while this house is desolated? {1:5} And now, thus says the Lord of hosts: Set your hearts upon your ways. {1:6} You sowed much and have brought in little. You consumed and have not been satisfied. You drank and have not been warmed. And whoever gathered wages, has put them in a bag with holes. {1:7} Thus says the Lord of hosts: Set your hearts upon your ways. {1:8} Ascend to the mountain, bring wood and build the house, and it shall be acceptable to me, and I shall be glorified, says the Lord. {1:9} You have looked for more, and beheld, it became less, and you brought it home, and I blew it away. What is the cause of this, says the Lord of hosts? It is because my house is desolate, yet you have hurried, each one to his own house. {1:10} Because of this, the heavens over you have been prohibited from giving dew, and the earth has been prohibited from giving her sprouts. {1:11} And I called a drought over the land, and over the mountains, and over the wheat, and over the wine, and over the oil, and whatever the soil would bring forth, and over men, and over beasts of burden, and over all the labor of hands. {1:12} And Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, and Jesus the son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and all the remnant of the people heeded the voice of the Lord their God, and the words of Haggai the prophet, just as the Lord their God sent them to them. And the people were fearful before the face of the Lord. {1:13} And Haggai, a messenger of the Lord among messengers of the Lord, spoke to the people, saying: the Lord says, “I am with you.” {1:14} And the Lord stirred the spirit of Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, governor of Judah, and the spirit of Jesus the son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and the spirit of the remainder of all the people. And they entered and performed work in the house of the Lord of hosts their God,

[Haggai 2] {2:1} on the twenty-fourth day of the month, in the sixth month, in the second year of king Darius. {2:2} And in the seventh month, on the twenty-first of the month, the word of the Lord came, by the hand of Haggai the prophet, saying: {2:3} Speak to Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, the governor of Judah, and to Jesus the son of Jehozadak, the high priest, and to the remainder of the people, saying: {2:4} Who is left among you, who saw this house in its first glory? And how do you see it now? Is it not, in comparison to that, as nothing in your eyes? {2:5} And now be strengthened, Zerubbabel, says the Lord. And be strengthened, Jesus the son of Jehozadak, the high priest. And be strengthened, all people of the land, says the Lord of hosts. For I am with you, says the Lord of hosts. {2:6} And act according to the word that I planted with you when you departed from the land of Egypt. And my Spirit will be in your midst. Do not be afraid. {2:7} For thus says the Lord of hosts: There is yet one brief time, and I will move heaven and earth, and the sea and the dry land. {2:8} And I will move all nations. And the Desired of all nations will arrive. And I will fill this house with glory, says the Lord of hosts. {2:9} Mine is the silver, and mine is the gold, says the Lord of hosts. {2:10} Great shall be the glory of this house, the last more than the first, says the Lord of hosts. And in this place, I will bestow peace, says the Lord of hosts. {2:11} On the twenty-fourth of the ninth month, in the second year of king Darius, the word of the Lord came to Haggai the prophet, saying: {2:12} Thus says the Lord of hosts: the priests question the law, saying: {2:13} If a man will have carried sanctified flesh in the pocket of his garment, and the top of it touches his bread, or appetizer, or wine, or oil, or any food, shall it be sanctified? But the priests responded by saying, “No.” {2:14} And Haggai said, “If the polluted in soul will have touched any of all these things, shall it be contaminated?” And the priests responded and said, “It shall be contaminated.” {2:15} And Haggai answered and he said: Such is this people, and such is this nation before my face, says the Lord, and such is all the work of their hands. And so all that they have offered there has been contaminated. {2:16} And now, consider in your hearts, from this day and beyond, before stone may be placed upon stone in the temple of the Lord: {2:17} when you approached a pile of twenty measures, and they became ten, and you entered to the press, to press out fifty bottles, and they became twenty, {2:18} how I struck you with a burning wind, and a mildew, and a hailstorm, all the works of your hand, yet there was no one among you who returned to me, says the Lord. {2:19} Set your hearts from this day and into the future, from the twenty-fourth day of the ninth month, from the day that the foundations of the temple of the Lord have been uttered, and place it upon your heart. {2:20} Has the seed been germinated yet? And has the vine, and the fig tree, and the pomegranate, and the olive tree still not flourished? From this day on, I will bless you. {2:21} And the word of the Lord came a second time to Haggai, on the twenty-fourth of the month, saying: {2:22} Speak to Zerubbabel the governor of Judah, saying: I will move both heaven and earth. {2:23} And I will overturn the throne of kingdoms, and I will crush the strength of the kingdom of the Gentiles. And I will overturn the four-horse chariot, and its rider; and the horses and their riders shall be brought down, a man by the sword of his brother. {2:24} In that day, says the Lord of hosts, I will take you, Zerubbabel the son of Shealtiel, my servant, says the Lord, and will set you like a seal, for I have chosen you, says the Lord of hosts.

 The Prophecy of Zechariah **

[Zechariah 1] {1:1} In the eighth month, in the second year of king Darius, the word of the Lord came to Zechariah the son of Berechiah, the son of Iddo, the prophet, saying: {1:2} The Lord has become angry over the resentful anger of your fathers. {1:3} And you shall say to them: Thus says the Lord of hosts: Turn to me, says the Lord of hosts, and I will turn to you, says the Lord of hosts. {1:4} Do not be like your fathers, with whom the former prophets cried out, saying: Thus says the Lord of hosts: Turn from your evil ways and from your wicked thoughts. But they did not heed, and neither did they pay attention to me, says the Lord. {1:5} Your fathers, where are they? And will the prophets live unceasingly? {1:6} Yet truly my words and my lawfulness, which I entrusted to my servants the prophets, were indeed comprehended by your fathers, and so they were converted, and they said: Just as the Lord of hosts decided to do to us, according to our ways and according to our inventions, so has he done to us. {1:7} On the twenty-fourth day of the eleventh month, which is called Shevat, in the second year of Darius, the word of the Lord came to Zechariah the son of Berechiah, the son of Iddo, the prophet, saying: {1:8} I saw by night, and behold, a man riding on a red horse, and he stood among the myrtle trees, which were in the chasm. And behind him were horses: red, speckled, and white. {1:9} And I said, “What are these, my lord?” And the angel, who was speaking with me, said to me, “I will reveal to you what these are.” {1:10} And the man that stood among the myrtle trees answered and said, “These are they, whom the Lord has sent in order to walk through the earth.” {1:11} And those who stood among the myrtle trees answered the angel of the Lord, and they said, “We have walked through the earth, and behold, all the earth is inhabited and is at rest.” {1:12} And the angel of the Lord answered and said, “Lord of hosts, how long will you not have mercy on Jerusalem and on the cities of Judah, with which you have been angry? This is now the seventyeth year.” {1:13} And the Lord answered the angel, who had been speaking with me, good words, consoling words. {1:14} And the angel, who was speaking with me, said to me: Cry out, saying: Thus says the Lord of hosts: I have been zealous for Jerusalem and for Zion with a great zeal. {1:15} And, with a great anger, I am angry with the wealthy nations. Though I had been angry a little, truly they advanced further in evil. {1:16} Because of this, thus says the Lord: I will be turned back, towards Jerusalem, with mercies; and my house will be built upon this, says the Lord of hosts. And the building line will be extended over Jerusalem. {1:17} Until then, cry out saying: Thus says the Lord of hosts: Until then, my cities will flow with good things, and, until then, the Lord will comfort Zion, and, until then, he will single out Jerusalem. {1:18} And I lifted up my eyes, and I saw. And behold: four horns. {1:19} And I said to the angel, who was speaking with me, “What are these?” And he said to me, “These are the horns that have winnowed Judah and Israel and Jerusalem.” {1:20} And the Lord showed me four workmen. {1:21} And I said, “What have these come to do?” He spoke, saying, “These are the horns that have winnowed Judah, through every single man, and none of them lifted up his head. And these have come to frighten them away, so as to cast down the horns of the Gentiles, which have lifted up a horn over the land of Judah, so as to scatter it.”

[Zechariah 2] {2:1} And I lifted up my eyes, and I saw, and behold, a man, and in his hand was a measuring line. {2:2} And I said, “Where are you going?” And he said to me, “To measure Jerusalem, so that I may see how great its width and how great its length may be.” {2:3} And behold, the angel, who had been speaking with me, departed, and another angel went out to meet him. {2:4} And he said to him: Hurry, speak to this young man, saying: Jerusalem will be inhabited without walls, because of the multitude of men and beasts of burden in its midst. {2:5} And I will be to it, says the Lord, a wall of fire all around. And in glory, I will be in its midst. {2:6} O, O flee from the land of the North, says the Lord, for I have scattered you into the four winds of heaven, says the Lord. {2:7} O Zion, flee, you who dwell with the daughter of Babylon. {2:8} For thus says the Lord of hosts: After the glory, he has sent me to the Gentiles, which have despised you. For he who touches you, touches the pupil of my eye. {2:9} For behold, I lift up my hand over them, and they will be a prey to those who had served them. And you will know that the Lord of hosts has sent me. {2:10} Sing praise and rejoice, daughter of Zion. For behold, I approach, and I will dwell in your midst, says the Lord. {2:11} And many nations will be joined to the Lord in that day, and they will be my people, and I will dwell in your midst. And you will know that the Lord of hosts has sent me to you. {2:12} And the Lord will possess his portion, Judah, in the sanctified land, and still he will single out Jerusalem. {2:13} Let all flesh be silent before the face of the Lord: for he has arisen from his holy dwelling place.

[Zechariah 3] {3:1} And the Lord revealed to me: Jesus the high priest, standing in the sight of the angel of the Lord. And Satan stood before his right hand, so as to be his adversary. {3:2} And the Lord said to Satan, “May the Lord rebuke you, Satan! And may the Lord, who chose Jerusalem, rebuke you! Are you not a firebrand plucked from the fire?” {3:3} And Jesus was clothed with filthy garments. And he stood before the face of an angel. {3:4} He answered and spoke to those who stood before him, saying, “Take away the filthy garments from him.” And he said to him, “Behold, I have taken away from you your iniquity, and I have clothed you with a change of clothing." {3:5} And he said, "Place a clean diadem on his head." And they placed a clean diadem on his head, and they clothed him with garments. And the angel of the Lord remained standing. {3:6} And the angel of the Lord contended with Jesus, saying: {3:7} Thus says the Lord of hosts: If you will walk in my ways and keep my charge, you likewise will judge my house and will keep my courts, and I will give you some of those who now attend here to walk with you. {3:8} Listen, Jesus the high priest, you and your friends, who dwell before you, who have been portending to men. For behold, I will lead my servant to the East. {3:9} For behold, the stone that I have bestowed before Jesus. Upon one stone, there are seven eyes. Behold, I will carve its engraving, says the Lord of hosts. And I will take away the iniquity of that land in one day. {3:10} On that day, says the Lord of hosts, every man will call his friend from under the vine and from under the fig tree.

[Zechariah 4] {4:1} And the angel who had been speaking with me returned, and he awakened me, like a man who is awakened from his sleep. {4:2} And he said to me, "What do you see?" And I said, "I looked, and behold, a candlestick entirely in gold, and its lamp was at its top, and seven oil lamps of it were upon it, and there were seven funnels for the oil lamps that were at its top. {4:3} And there were two olive trees upon it: one to the right of the lamp, and one to its left." {4:4} And I answered and spoke to the angel who was speaking with me, saying, "What are these, my lord?" {4:5} And the angel who was speaking with me answered, and he said to me, "Do you not know what these are?" And I said, "No, my lord." {4:6} And he answered and spoke to me, saying: This is the word of the Lord to Zerubbabel, saying: Not by an army, nor by might, but in my spirit, says the Lord. And you will know that the Lord of hosts sent me to you. Yet this shall be only if, when hearing, you will have heeded the voice of the Lord your God. {4:7} What are you, great mountain, in the sight of the Lord, which roam quickly through all the earth. {4:8} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: {4:9} The hand of Zerubbabel has founded this house, and his hands will complete it. And you will know that the Lord of hosts has sent me to you. {4:10} For who has despised the little days? And they will rejoice and will see the silver and lead stone in the hand of Zerubbabel. These are the seven eyes of the Lord, which roam quickly through all the earth. {4:11} And I responded and said to him, "What are these two olive trees to the right of the candlestick, and to its left?" {4:12} And I responded a second time and said to him, "What are the two olive branches, which are next to the two golden ridges, in which are the pouring spouts of gold?" {4:13} And he spoke to me, saying, "Do you not know what these are?" And I said, "No, my lord." {4:14} And he said, "These are the two sons of oil, who attend before the Sovereign of all the earth."

[Zechariah 5] {5:1} And I turned and lifted up my eyes. And I saw, and behold, a book flying. {5:2} And he said to me, "What do you see?" And I said, "I see a book flying. Its length is twenty cubits, and its width is ten cubits." {5:3} And he said to me, "This is the curse that goes forth over the face of the whole earth. For every thief will be judged, just as it has been written there, and everyone who swears by this, will be judged in like manner." {5:4} I will bring it forth, says the Lord of hosts, and it will approach to the house of the thief, and to the house of him who swears falsely by my name, and it will remain in the midst of his house and will consume it, with its wood and its stones. {5:5} And the angel had departed, who was speaking with me. And he said to me, "Lift up your eyes, and see what this is, that goes forth." {5:6} And I said, "What, then, is it?" And he said, "This is a container going forth." And he said, "This is their eye in all the earth." {5:7} And behold, a talent of lead was being carried; and behold, one woman sitting in the middle of the container. {5:8} And he said, "This is impiety." And he cast her into the middle of the container, and he sent the weight of lead into its mouth. {5:9} And I lifted up my eyes and I saw. And behold, two women were departing, and a spirit was in their wings, and they had wings like the wings of a kite, and they lifted up the container between earth and heaven. {5:10} And I said to the angel who was speaking with me, "Where are they taking the container?" {5:11} And he said to me, "To a house that may be built for it in the land of Shinar, and so that it may be established and set there upon its own base."

[Zechariah 6] {6:1} And I turned, and I lifted up my eyes and I saw. And behold, four four-horse chariots went out from the middle of two mountains. And the mountains were mountains of brass. {6:2} In the first chariot were red horses, and in the second chariot were black horses, {6:3} and in the third chariot were white horses, and in the fourth chariot were speckled horses, and they were strong. {6:4} And I responded and said to the angel who was speaking with me, "What are these, my lord?" {6:5} And the angel answered and said to me, "These are the four winds of heaven, which go forth to stand in the presence of the Sovereign of all the earth." {6:6} The one with the black horses was departing into the land of the North, and the white went forth after them, and the speckled went forth towards the land of the South. {6:7} Yet those who were the most strong, went out, and sought to go and to roam quickly through all the earth. And he said, "Go, walk throughout the earth." And they walked throughout the earth. {6:8} And he called me and spoke with me, saying, "Behold, those who go forth to the land of the North, have quieted my spirit in the land of the North." {6:9} And the word of the Lord came to me, saying: From those of the captivity, take from Heldai, and from Tobijah, and from Jediah. You will approach in that day, and you will go into the house of Josiah, the son of Zephaniah, who came from Babylon. {6:11} And you will take gold and silver; and you will make crowns, and you will set them on the head of Jesus the son of Jehozadak, the high priest. {6:12} And you will speak to him, saying: Thus says the Lord of hosts, saying: Behold, a man; the Rising is his name. And under him, he will rise up, and he will build a temple to the Lord. {6:13} And he will raise a temple to the Lord. And he will carry the glory, and he will sit and rule upon his throne. And he will be a priest upon his throne, and a counsel of peace will be between the two of them. {6:14} And the crowns will be to Heldai, and Tobijah, and Jedaiah, as well as to Hem, the son of Zephaniah, as a memorial in the temple of the Lord. {6:15} And those who are far away, will approach, and will build in the temple of the Lord. And you will know that the Lord of hosts sent me to you. Yet this shall be only if, when hearing, you will have heeded the voice of the Lord your God.
[Zechariah 7] 7:1 And it happened, in the fourth year of king Darius, that the word of the Lord came to Zechariah, on the fourth day of the ninth month, which is Kislev. 7:2 And Sharezer and Regemmelech, and the men who were with them, sent to the house of God, to entreat the face of the Lord, 7:3 to speak to the priests of the house of the Lord of hosts and to the prophets, saying: “Must there be weeping with me in the fifth month, and must I sanctify myself, as I have now done for many years?” 7:4 And the word of the Lord of hosts came to me, saying: 7:5 Speak to all the people of the land, and to the priests, saying: Although you may have fasted and mourned in the fifth and the seventh month for these seventy years, did you indeed keep a fast unto me? 7:6 And when you did eat and drink, did you not eat for yourselves, and drink only for yourselves? 7:7 Are not these the words that the Lord has spoken by the hand of the former prophets, when Jerusalem was still inhabited, so that it would prosper, itself and the cities around it, and those inhabitants towards the South and in the plains? 7:8 And the word of the Lord came to Zechariah, saying: 7:9 Thus says the Lord of hosts, saying: Judge with true judgment, and act with mercy and compassion, each and every one with his brother. 7:10 And do not find fault with the widow, and the orphan, and the newcomer, and the poor. And let not a man consider evil in his heart towards his brother. 7:11 But they were not willing to pay attention, and they turned aside their shoulder to depart, and they pressed upon their ears, so that they would not hear. 7:12 And they set their heart like the hardest stone, so that they would not hear the law and the words that the Lord of hosts has sent with his Spirit by the hand of the former prophets. And so a great indignation came from Lord of hosts. 7:13 And it happened, just as he had spoken, and they did not pay attention. So then, they shall cry out, and I will not heed, says the Lord of hosts. 7:14 And I dispersed them throughout all the kingdoms that they did not know. And the land was left desolate behind them, so that no one was passing through or returning. And they made the desirable land into a deserted place.

[Zechariah 8] 8:1 And the word of the Lord of hosts came, saying: 8:2 Thus says the Lord of hosts: I have been zealous for Zion with a great zeal, and with a great indignation have I been zealous for her. 8:3 Thus says the Lord of hosts: I have been turned back towards Zion, and I will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem. And Jerusalem will be called: “The City of Truth,” and “The Mountain of the Lord of Hosts, the Sanctified Mountain.” 8:4 Thus says the Lord of hosts: Then elderly men and elderly women will dwell in the streets of Jerusalem, and every man will be with his walking stick in his hand, because of the multitude of days. 8:5 And the streets of the city will be filled with toddlers and children, playing in its streets. 8:6 Thus says the Lord of hosts: If it seems difficult in the eyes of the remnant of this people in those days, could it indeed be difficult in my eyes, says the Lord of hosts? 8:7 Thus says the Lord of hosts: Behold, I will save my people from the land of the East, and from the land of the setting of the sun. 8:8 And I will lead them, and they will dwell in the midst of Jerusalem. And they will be my people, and I will be their God, in truth and in justice. 8:9 Thus says the Lord of hosts: Let your hands be strengthened, you who, in those days, are listening to these words by the mouth of the prophets, in the day that the house of the Lord of hosts has been founded, so that the temple may be built. 8:10 Indeed, before those days, there was no pay for men, nor was there pay for beasts of burden, and neither was there peace for those entering, nor for those exiting, because of the tribulation. And I had dismissed all men, each one against his neighbor. 8:11 But now, I will not act towards the remnant of this people according to the former days, says the Lord of hosts. 8:12 But there will be a seed of peace: the vine will give her fruit, and the earth will give her seedlings, and the heavens will give their dew. And I will cause the remnant of this people to possess all these things. 8:13 And this shall be: just as you were a curse among the Gentiles, O house of Judah and house of Israel, so will I save you, and you will be a blessing. Do not be afraid. Let your hands be strengthened. 8:14 For thus says the Lord of hosts: Just as I intended to afflict you, when your fathers had provoked me to wrath, says the Lord, 8:15 and I did not show mercy, so have I turned back, thinking in these days to do good to the house of Judah and to Jerusalem. Do not be afraid. 8:16 Therefore, these are the words that you shall do: Speak the truth, each one to his neighbor. With truth and a judgment of peace, judge at your gates. 8:17 And let not anyone think up evil against his friend in your hearts. And do not choose to swear falsely. For all these are things that I hate, says the Lord. 8:18 And the word of the Lord of hosts came to me, saying: 8:19 Thus says the Lord of hosts: The fast of the fourth, and the fast of the fifth, and the fast of the seventh, and the fast of the tenth will be for the house of Judah in joy and gladness and with bright solemnities. So then, love truth and peace. 8:20 Thus says the Lord of hosts, then the people may arrive and dwell in many cities, 8:21 and the inhabitants may hurry, one saying to another: “Let us go and entreat the face of the Lord, and let us seek the Lord of hosts. I will go also.” 8:22 And many peoples and strong nations will approach, seeking the Lord of hosts in Jerusalem, and to entreat the face of the Lord. 8:23 Thus says the Lord of hosts: In those days, then, ten men from every language of the Gentiles will grasp and cling to the hem of one man of Judea, saying: “We will go with you. For we have heard that God is with you.”

[Zechariah 9] 9:1 The burden of the word of the Lord in the land of Hadrach and its respite in Damascus. For the eye of man and of all the tribes of Israel is of the Lord. 9:2 Hamath also is at its limits, and Tyre and Sidon. For, of course, they have assumed themselves to be exceedingly wise. 9:3 And Hamath will pass away from Gaza, and Ashkelon will not be inhabited. 9:6 And the divider will sit in Ashdod, and I will scatter the arrogance of the Philistines. 9:7 And I will take away his blood from his mouth, and his abominations from between his teeth, and yet he will be left for our God, and he will be like a governor in Judah, and Ekrion will be like a Jebusite. 9:8 And I will encircle my house with those who serve me in war, going and returning, and the exactor will no longer pass over them. For now I have seen with my eyes. (9:9) Rejoice well, daughter of Zion, shout for joy, daughter of Jerusalem. Behold, your King will come to you: the Just One, the Savior. He is poor and riding upon a donkey, and upon a colt, the son of a donkey. (9:10) And I will scatter the four-horse chariot out of Ephraim and the horse from Jerusalem, and the bow of war will be destroyed. And he will speak peace to the Gentiles, and his power will be from sea to sea, and from the rivers even to the end of the earth. (9:11) You, likewise, by the blood of your testimony, have sent forth your prisoners from the pit, in which there is no water. (9:12) Turn back to the fortress, prisoners of hope. Today, I also announce that I will repay you double, (9:13) because I have stretched out Judah for myself, like a bow; I have filled Ephraim. And I will raise up your sons, Zion, above your sons, Greece. And I will set you as the sword of the strength. (9:14) And the Lord God will be seen over them, and his arrow will go forth like lightning. And the Lord God will sound the trumpet, and he will go forth into the whirlwind of the South. (9:15) The Lord of hosts will protect them. And they will devour and subdue with the stones of the sling. And, when drinking, they will become inebriated, as if with wine, and they will be filled like bowls and like the horns of the altar. (9:16) And in that day, the Lord their God will save them as the flock of his people. For holy stones will be lifted up over his land. (9:17) For what is his goodness and what is his beauty, other than grain among the elect and wine springing forth virgins?

[Zechariah 10] {10:1} Petition before the Lord for rain in the latter time, and the Lord will produce snows and will give showers of rain to them, to each blade in the field. {10:2} For the images have been speaking what is useless, and the diviners have seen a lie, and the dreamers have been speaking false hope: they have comforted in vain. For this reason, they have been led away like a flock; they will be afflicted, because they have no shepherd. (10:3) My fury has been kindled over the shepherds, and I will visit upon the he-goats. For the Lord of hosts has visited his flock, the house of Judah, and he has set them like the horse of his glory in the war. (10:4) From him will go forth the angle, from him the wooden peg, from him the bow of battle, from him every exactor at the same time. (10:5) And they will be like the strong, trampling the mud of the ways in battle. And they will fight, for the Lord is with them. And the riders of the horses will be confounded. (10:6) And I will strengthen the house of Judah, and I will save the house of Joseph, and I will convert them, because I will have mercy on them. And they will be as they were when I had not cast them away. For I am the Lord their God, and I will hear them. (10:7) And they will be like the strong of Ephraim, and their heart will rejoice as if by wine, and their sons will see and will rejoice, and their heart will exult in the Lord. (10:8) I will whistle for them, and I will gather them together, because I have redeemed them. And I will multiply them, as they had been multiplied before. (10:9) And I will sow them among the peoples, and from far away they will remember me. And they will live with their sons, and they will return. (10:10) And I will lead them back from the land of Egypt, and I will gather them from among the Assyrians, and I will lead them to the land of Gilead and Lebanon, and no place will be left that has not been found by them. (10:11) And he will pass over the narrow passage of the sea, and he will strike the waves of the sea, and all the depths of the river will be confounded, and the arrogance of Assyria will be brought low, and the scepter of Egypt will withdraw. (10:12) I will strengthen them in the Lord, and they will walk in his name, says the Lord.

[Zechariah 11] {11:1} Open your gates, Lebanon, and let fire consume your cedars. {11:2} Howl, you fir tree, for the cedar has fallen, because the magnificent have been devastated. Howl, you oaks of Bashan, because the secure forest passage has been cut down. (11:3) The voice of the howling of the shepherds: for their magnificence has been devastated. The voice of the roaring of the lions: because the arrogance of the Jordan has been devastated. (11:4) Thus says the Lord my God: Feed the flock of the slaughter, (11:5) which those who possessed them cut down, and they did not feel sorrow, and they sold them, saying: "Blessed be the Lord; we have become wealthy. Even their shepherds did not spare them."

(11:6) And so, I will no longer spare the inhabitants upon the earth, says the Lord. Behold, I will deliver men, each one into the hand of his neighbor and into the hand of his king. And they will cut down the land, and I will not rescue it from their hand. (11:7) And I will pasture the flock of the slaughter, because of this, O poor of the flock. And I took to myself two staffs: the one I called Handsome, and the other I called Rope, and I pastured the flock. (11:8) And I cut down three shepherds in one month. And my soul became contracted concerning them, just as their soul also varied concerning me. (11:9) And I said: I will not pasture you. Whatever dies, let it die. And whatever is cut down, let it be cut down. And let the rest of them devour, each one the flesh of his neighbor. (11:10) And I took my staff, which was called Handsome, and I tore it apart, so as to invalidate my pact, which I had struck with all of the people. (11:11) And it became invalid in that day. And so they understood, just like the poor of the flock who stay close to me, that this is the word of the Lord. (11:12) And I said to them: If it is good in your eyes, bring me my wages. And if not, remain still. And they weighed for my wages thirty silver coins. (11:13) And the Lord said to me: Cast it towards the statuary, the handsome price at which I have been valued by them. And I took the thirty silver coins, and I cast them into the house of the Lord, towards the statuary. (11:14) And I cut short my second staff, which was called Rope, so that I might dissolve the brotherhood between Judah and Israel. (11:15) And the Lord said to me: Still they are to you the equipment of a foolish shepherd. (11:16) For behold, I will raise up a shepherd in the land, who will not visit what is forsaken, nor seek what is scattered, nor heal what is broken, nor nourish what remains standing, and he will consume the flesh of the fatted ones and break their hoofs. (11:17) O shepherd and idol, abandoning the flock, with a sword upon his arm and over his right eye: his arm will be withered by drought, and his right eye will be obscured by darkness.

[Zechariah 12] {12:1} The burden of the word of the Lord upon Israel. The Lord, stretching forth the heavens and founding the earth and forming the spirit of man within him, says: {12:2} Behold, I will set Jerusalem as a lintel against Jerusalem. {12:3} And this shall be: In that day, I will set Jerusalem as a burdensome stone to every people. All who will lift it up will be torn to pieces. And all the kingdoms of the earth will be gathered together against her. {12:4} In that day, says the Lord, I will strike every horse with stupor and his rider with madness. And I will open my eyes upon the house of Judah, and I will strike every horse of the people with blindness. {12:5} And the governors of Judah will say in their heart, “Let the inhabitants of Jerusalem be strengthened for me, in the Lord of hosts, their God.” {12:6} In that day, I will set the governors of Judah like a flaming furnace among wood, and like a flaming torch among hay. And they will devour, to the right and to the left, all the surrounding peoples. And Jerusalem will be inhabited again, in her own place, in Jerusalem. {12:7} And the Lord will save the tabernacles of Judah, just as in the beginning, so that the house of David and the glory of the inhabitants of Jerusalem may not glorify themselves boastfully against Judah. {12:8} In that day, the Lord will protect the inhabitants of Jerusalem, and even he who will have offended from them, in that day, will be like David, and the house of David will be like that of God, just like an angel of the Lord in their sight. {12:9} And this shall be in that day: I will seek to crush all the Gentiles that come against Jerusalem. {12:10} And I will pour out upon the house of David and upon the inhabitants of Jerusalem, the spirit of grace and of prayers. And they will look upon me, whom they have pierced, and they will mourn for him as one mourns for an only son, and they will feel sorrow over him, as one would be sorrowful at the death of a firstborn. {12:11} In that day, there will be a great lamentation in Jerusalem, like the lamentation of Hadadrimmon in the plain of Megiddo. {12:12} And the earth will mourn: families and families separately; the families of the house of David separately, and their women separately; {12:13} the families of the house of Nathan separately, and their women separately; the families of the house of Levi separately, and their women separately; the families of Shimei separately, and their women separately; {12:14} all the rest of the families, families and families separately, and their women separately.

[Zechariah 13] {13:1} In that day, there will be a fountain open to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem, for the washing of the transgressor and of the defiled woman. {13:2} And this shall be in that day, says the Lord of hosts: I will disperse the names of the idols from the earth, and they will not be remembered any longer. And I will take away the false prophets and the unclean spirit from the earth. {13:3} And this shall be: when any devotee will continue to prophesy, his father and his mother, who conceived him, will say to him, “You shall not live, because you have been speaking a lie in the name of the Lord.” And his father and his mother, his own parents, will pierce him, when he will prophesy. {13:4} And this shall be: In that day, the prophets will be confounded, each one by his own vision, when he will prophesy. Neither will they be covered with a garment of sackcloth in order to deceive. {13:5} But he will say, “I am not a prophet; I am a man of agriculture. For Adam has been my example from my youth.” {13:6} And they will say to him, “What are these wounds in the middle of your hands?” And he will say, “I was wounded with these in the house of those who love me.” {13:7} Awake, O spear, against my shepherd and against the man that clings to me, says the Lord of hosts. Strike the shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered. And I will turn my hand to the little ones. {13:8} And there will be in all the earth, says the Lord, two parts in it will be scattered and will pass away, and the third part will be left behind. {13:9} And I will lead the third part through fire, and I will burn them just as silver is burned, and I will test them just as gold is tested. They will call on my name, and I will heed them. I will say, “You are my people.” And they will say, “The Lord is my God.”

[Zechariah 14] {14:1} Behold, the days of the Lord will arrive, and your spoils will be divided in your midst. {14:2} And I will gather all the Gentiles in battle against Jerusalem, and the city will be captured, and the houses will be ravaged, and the women will be violated. And the central part of the city will go forth into captivity, and the remainder of the people will not be taken away from the city. {14:3} Then the Lord will go forth, and he will fight against those Gentiles, just as when he fought in the day of conflict. {14:4} And his feet will stand firm, in that day, upon the Mount of Olives, which is opposite Jerusalem towards the East. And the mount of Olives will be divided down its center part, towards the East and towards the West, with a very great ruckus, and the center of the mountain will be separated towards the North, and its center towards the Meridian. {14:5} And you will flee to the valley of those mountains, because the valley of the mountains will be joined all the way to the next. And you will flee, just as you fled from the face of the earthquake in the days of Uzziah king of Judah. And the Lord my God will arrive, and all the saints with him. {14:6} And this shall be in that day: there will not be light, only cold and frost. {14:7} And there will be one day, which is known to the Lord, not day and not night. And in the time of the evening, there will be light. {14:8} And this shall be in that day: the living waters will go out from Jerusalem, half of them towards the East sea, and half of them towards the furthest sea. They will be in summer and in winter. {14:9} And the Lord will be King over all the earth. In that day, there will be one Lord, and his name will be one. {14:10} And all the land will return even to the desert, from the hill of Rimmon to the South of Jerusalem. And she will be exalted, and she will dwell in her own place, from the gate of Benjamin even to the place of the former gate, and even to the gate of the corners, and from the tower of Hananel even to the pressing room of the king. {14:11} And they will dwell in it, and there will be no further anathema, but Jerusalem shall sit securely. {14:12} And this will be the plague by which the Lord will strike all the Gentiles that have fought against Jerusalem. The flesh of each one will waste away while they are standing on their feet, and their eyes will be consumed in their sockets, and their tongue will be consumed in their mouth. {14:13} In that day, there will be a great tumult from the Lord among them. And a man will take the hand of his neighbor, and his hand will be clasped upon the hand of his neighbor. {14:14} And even Judah will fight against Jerusalem. And the riches of all the Gentiles will be gathered together around them: gold, and silver, and more than enough garments. {14:15} And, like the ruin of the horse, and the mule, and the camel, and the donkey, and all the beasts of burden, which will have been in those encampments, so will be this ruination. {14:16} And all those who will be the remnant of all the Gentiles that came against Jerusalem, will go up, from year to year, to adore the King, the Lord of hosts, and to celebrate the feast of tabernacles.

And this shall be: whoever will not go up, from the families of the earth to Jerusalem, so as to adore the King, the Lord of hosts, there will be no showers upon them.

But if even the family of Egypt will go not up, nor approach, neither will it be upon them, but there will be ruin, by which the Lord will strike all the Gentiles, who will not go up to celebrate the feast of tabernacles.

This will be the sin of Egypt, and this will be the sin of all the Gentiles, who will not go up to celebrate the feast of tabernacles.

In that day, that which is on the bridle of the horse will be holy to the Lord. And even the cooking pots in the house of the Lord will be like holy vessels before the altar.

And every cooking pot in Jerusalem and Judah will be sanctified to the Lord of hosts. And all those who make sacrifices will come and take from them, and will cook with them. And the merchant will no longer be in the house of the Lord of hosts, in that day.

 The Prophecy of Malachi **

[Malachi 1] 1:1 The burden of the word of the Lord to Israel by the hand of Malachi.

1:2 I have loved you, says the Lord, and you have said, “In what way have you loved us?” Was not Esau brother to Jacob, says the Lord? And have I not loved Jacob?

1:3 But held hatred for Esau? And have I set his mountains in solitude, and his inheritance with the serpents of the desert?

1:4 But if Idumea will say, “We have been destroyed, but when we return, we will build up what has been destroyed,” thus says the Lord of hosts: They will build up, and I will destroy. And they will be called “The limits of impiety,” and, “The people with whom the Lord has been angry, even to eternity.”

1:5 And your eyes will see. And you will say, “May the Lord be magnified beyond the limits of Israel.”

1:6 The son honors the father, and the servant his master. If, therefore, I am Father, where is my honor? And if I am Master, where is my fear? says the Lord of hosts to you, O priests, who despise my name. And you have said, “In what way, have we despised you?”

1:7 You offer polluted bread upon my altar, and you say, “In what way, have we polluted you?” In that you say, “The table of the Lord has been despised.”

1:8 If you offer the blind for sacrifice, is this not evil? And if you offer the lame and the sick, is this not evil? Offer it to your leader, if he will be pleased with it, or if he will accept your face, says the Lord of hosts.

1:9 And now, beseech the face of God, so that he may have mercy on you (for by your hand has this been done) if, in any way, he might accept your faces, says the Lord of hosts.

1:10 Who is there among you that would close the doors and enflame my altar without pay? I have no favor in you, says the Lord of hosts. And I will not accept a gift from your hand.

1:11 For, from the rising of the sun even to its setting, my name is great among the Gentiles, and in every place, a clean oblation is being sacrificed and offered to my name. For my name is great among the Gentiles, says the Lord of hosts.

1:12 And you have polluted it, in that you say, “The table of the Lord has been contaminated; and that which is placed upon it is contemptible, compared with the fire that devours it.”

1:13 And you have said, “Behold our labor,” and you have exhaled it away, says the Lord of hosts. And you brought in by plunder the lame, and the sick, and brought it in as a gift. How can I receive this from your hand, says the Lord?

1:14 Cursed is the deceitful, who holds in his flock a male, and, when making a vow, offers in sacrifice that which is feeble to the Lord. For I am a great King, says the Lord of hosts, and my name is dreadful among the Gentiles.

[Malachi 2] 2:1 And now, O priests, this command is to you.

2:2 If you will refuse to listen, and if you will refuse to take it to heart, so as to give glory to my name, says the Lord of hosts, I will send destitution upon you, and I will curse your blessings; yes, I will curse them. For you have not taken it to heart.

2:3 Behold, I will cast forth an arm to you, and I will scatter across your face the dung of your solemnities, and it will take you to itself.

2:4 And you will know that I sent this commandment, so that my covenant might be with Levi, says the Lord of hosts.

2:5 My covenant was with him for life and peace. And I gave him fear, and he feared me, and he was afraid before the face of my name.

2:6 The law of truth was in his mouth, and iniquity was not found on his lips. He walked with me in peace and integrity, and he turned away many from iniquity.

2:7 For the lips of the priests will keep knowledge, and they will request the law from his lips. He walked with me in peace and integrity, and he turned away many from iniquity.

2:8 But you have withdrawn from the way, and you have scandalized very many in the law. You have nullified the covenant of Levi, says the Lord of hosts.

2:9 Because of this, I also have made you contemptible and debased to all the people, just as you have not served my ways, and you have accepted a face in the law.

2:10 Is there not one Father of us all? Did not one God create us? Why, then, does each one of us despise his brother, violating the covenant of our fathers?

2:11 Judah has transgressed, and abomination has been committed in Israel and in Jerusalem. For Judah has contaminated the sanctified of the Lord, which he loved, and has held the daughter of a strange god.

2:12 The Lord will drive away the man who has done this, both the teacher and the disciple, from the tabernacles of Jacob and from those offering a gift to the Lord of hosts.

2:13 And you have done this repeatedly: you have covered the altar of the Lord with tears, with weeping and bellowing, to such an extent that I no longer have respect towards the sacrifice, nor do I accept any appeasement that is from your hands.

2:14 And you have said, “What is the reason for this?” It is because the Lord has been a witness between you and the wife of your youth, whom you have despised. Yet she was your partner, and the wife of your covenant.

2:15 Did not One make her, and is not she the remainder of his spirit? And what does one seek, except offspring of God? So then, preserve your spirit, and do not despise the wife of your youth.

2:16 If you would hold hatred, dismiss her, says the Lord, the God of Israel. But iniquity will cover his garment, says the Lord of hosts, who will not go up to celebrate the feast of tabernacles.

2:17 You have wearied the Lord with your speeches, and you have said, “In what way, have we wearied him?” In that you say, “Everyone who does evil is good in the sight of the Lord, and such as these please him,” or certainly, “Where is the God of judgment?”

[Malachi 3] 3:1 Behold, I send my angel, and he will prepare the way before my face. And presently the Sovereign, whom you seek, and the angel of testimony, whom you desire, will arrive at his temple. Behold, he approaches, says the Lord of hosts. {3:2} And who will be able to consider the day of his advent, and who will stand firm in order to see him? For he is like a refining fire, and like the fuller's herb. {3:3} And he will sit refining and cleansing the silver, and he will purge the sons of Levi, and he will gather them like gold and like silver, and they will offer sacrifices to the Lord in justice. {3:4} And the sacrifice of Judah and of Jerusalem will please the Lord, just as in the days of past generations, and as in the ancient years. {3:5} And I will approach you in judgment, and I will be a swift witness against evil-doers, and adulterers, and perjurers, and those who cheat the hired hand in his wages, the widows and the orphans, and who oppress the traveler, and who have not feared me, says the Lord of hosts. {3:6} For I am the Lord, and I do not change. And you, the sons of Jacob, have not been consumed. {3:7} For, from the days of your fathers, you have withdrawn from my ordinances and have not kept them. Return to me, and I will return to you, says the Lord of hosts. And you have said, “In what way, shall we return?” {3:8} If a man will afflict God, then you greatly afflict me. And you have said, “In what way, do we afflict you?” In tithes and in first-fruits. {3:9} And you have been cursed with privation, and you greatly afflict me, even your entire people. {3:10} Bring all the tithes into the storehouse, and let there be food in my house. And test me, even your entire people. {3:11} If tithes are put aside, says the Lord of hosts, and if the land is sown with justice, the Lord will bless the storehouse, and the land. Neither will the vine in the field be barren, says the Lord of hosts. {3:12} And all nations will call you blessed. Your words have gathered strength over me, says the Lord of hosts. {3:13} And you have said, “What have we spoken about this, says the Lord, as to whether I will not open to you the storehouse, and let there be food in my house. And test me, even your entire people. {3:14} Bring all the tithes into the storehouse, and let there be food in my house. And test me, even your entire people. {3:15} Therefore, we now call the arrogant blessed, as if those who work impiety have been built up, and as if they have tempted God and been saved.” {3:16} Then those who fear the Lord spoke, each one with his neighbor. And the Lord paid attention and heeded. And a book of remembrance was written in his sight, for those who fear the Lord and for those who consider his name. {3:17} And they will be my special possession, says the Lord of hosts, on the day that I act. And I will spare them, just as a man spares his son who serves him. {3:18} And you shall be converted, and you will see the difference between the just and the impious, and between those who serve God and those who do not serve him.

[Malachi 4] {4:1} For, behold, the day will arrive, kindled like a furnace, and all the arrogant and all those who act impiously will be stubble. And the approaching day will inflame them, says the Lord of hosts; it will leave behind for them neither root, nor sprout. {4:2} But unto you, who fear my name, the Sun of justice will arise, and health will be in his wings. And you will go forth and leap like the calves of the herd. {4:3} And you will trample the impious, while they will be ashes under the sole of your foot, on the day that I act, says the Lord of hosts. {4:4} Remember the law of Moses my servant, which I commanded him on Horeb for all Israel, the precepts and the judgments. {4:5} Behold, I will send to you Elijah the prophet, before the arrival of the great and terrible day of the Lord. {4:6} And he will turn the heart of the fathers to the sons, and the heart of the sons to their fathers, lest I come and strike the earth with anathema.

 The First Book of Maccabees **

[1 Maccabees 1] {1:1} And it happened afterwards that Alexander, the son of Philip the Macedonian, who first reigned in Greece having come from the land of Kittim, struck Darius the king of the Persians and the Medes. {1:2} He appointed many battles, and he took hold of all the fortifications, and he executed the kings of the earth. {1:3} And he passed through even to the ends of the earth. And he received the spoils of many nations. And the earth was silenced in his sight. {1:4} And he gathered together power, and an exceedingly strong army. And he was exalted, and his heart was lifted up. {1:5} And he captured the regions of nations and of sovereign leaders, and they became tributaries to him. {1:6} And after these things, he fell down on his bed, and he knew that he would die. {1:7} And he called his servants, nobles who were raised with him from his youth. And he divided his kingdom to them, while he was still alive. {1:8} And Alexander reigned twelve years, and then he died. {1:9} And his servants obtained his kingdom, each one in his place. {1:10} And they all put diadems on themselves after his death, and their sons after them, for many years; and evils were multiplied on the earth. {1:11} And there went forth from among them a sinful root, Antiochus the illustrious, the son of king Antiochus, who had been a hostage at Rome. And he reigned in the one hundred and thirty-seventh year of the kingdom of the Greeks. {1:12} In those days, there went forth from Israel sons of iniquity, and they persuaded many, saying: “Let us go and negotiate a covenant with the Gentiles that are all around us. For since we have withdrawn from them, many evils have found us.” {1:13} And the word seemed good in their eyes. {1:14} And some of the people determined to do this, and they went to the king. And he gave them the power to act according to the justice of the Gentiles. {1:15} And they built a sports arena in Jerusalem, according to the laws of the Nations. {1:16} And they made themselves uncircumcised, and they withdrew from the holy covenant, and they were joined to the nations, and they were sold into evil-doing. {1:17} And the kingdom was ready in the sight of Antiochus, and he began to reign over the land of Egypt, so that he might reign over two kingdoms. {1:18} And he entered into Egypt with an oppressive multitude, with swift chariots, and elephants, and horsemen, and a great abundance of ships. {1:19} And he appointed a war against Ptolemy, the king of Egypt, and Ptolemy was filled with dread before his face, and he fled, and many fell down wounded. {1:20} And he took hold of the fortified cities in the land of Egypt, and he received the spoils of the land of Egypt. {1:21} And Antiochus turned back, after he struck Egypt, in the one hundred and forty-third year, and he ascended against Israel. {1:22} And he ascended to Jerusalem, with an oppressive multitude. {1:23} And he entered into the sanctuary with arrogance, and he took the golden altar, and the lampstand of light, and all the vessels, and the table for the bread of the Presence, and the vessels of libation, and the vials, and the little mortars of gold, and the veil, and the crowns, and the golden ornament, which was at the face of the temple. And he crushed them all. {1:24} And he took the silver and gold, and the precious vessels, and he took the hidden treasures, which he found. And having taken all these things away, he departed into his own land. {1:25} And he caused a massacre of men, and he was speaking with great arrogance. {1:26} And there was great wailing in Israel and in all of their places. {1:27} And the leaders and elders mourned, and the virgins and young men became weak, and the splendor of the women was changed. {1:28} Every bridegroom took up lamentation, and those who sat in the marriage bed mourned. {1:29} And the land shook on behalf of the inhabitants in it, and the entire house of Jacob was clothed with confusion. {1:30} And after two years of days, the king sent the prince of his tributes to the cities of Judah, and he came to Jerusalem with a great crowd. {1:31} And he spoke peaceful words to them, in deceitfulness; and they believed him. {1:32} And he rushed upon the city suddenly, and he struck it with a great scourging, and he destroyed many of the people of Israel. {1:33} And he took the spoils of the city, and he burned it with fire, and he destroyed its houses and the walls around it. {1:34} And they led away the women as captives, and they possessed the children and the cattle. {1:35} And they built up the city of David with a great and strong wall, and with strong towers, and it became a stronghold for them. {1:36} And they set up in that place a sinful people, wicked men, and together they grew strong in it. And they stored up weapons and provisions. And they gathered together the spoils of Jerusalem, {1:37} and deposited them in that place. And they became a great snare. {1:38} And this became a place of ambush against the sanctuary and a diabolical evil in Israel. {1:39} And they poured out innocent blood around the sanctuary, and they contaminated the sanctuary. {1:40} And the inhabitants of Jerusalem fled because of them, and the city became the dwelling place of outsiders, and she became a stranger to her own offspring, and her own children abandoned her. {1:41} Her sanctuary was desolate, like a place of solitude, her feast days were turned into mourning, her sabbaths into disgrace, her honors into nothing. {1:42} Her shame was multiplied according to her glory, and her loftiness was turned into lamentation. {1:43} And king Antiochus wrote to all his kingdom, that all the people must be one, and that each one should relinquish his own law. {1:44} And all Gentiles consented, according to the word of king Antiochus. {1:45} And many out of Israel consented to his servitude, and they sacrificed to idols, and they polluted the Sabbath. {1:46} And the king sent letters, by the hand of messengers, to Jerusalem and to all the cities of Judah: that they should follow the law of the Nations of the earth, {1:47} and that they should prohibit holocausts and sacrifices and atonements to be made in the temple of God, {1:48} and that they should prohibit the celebration of the Sabbath and the solemn days. {1:49} And he ordered the holy places to be defiled, along with the holy people of Israel. {1:50} And he ordered altars to be built, and temples, and idols, and he ordered the immolation of the flesh of swine and of unclean cattle, {1:51} and that they should leave their sons uncircumcised, and defile their souls with all that is unclean, and with abominations, so that they would forget the law and would alter all the justifications of God, {1:52} and that whoever would not act according to the word of king Antiochus should be put to death. {1:53} According to all these words, he wrote to all his kingdom. And he appointed leaders over the people, who would compel them to do these things. {1:54} And these ordered the cities of Judah to sacrifice. {1:55} And many from the people, who had abandoned the law of the Lord, were gathered together by them. And they committed evils upon the land. {1:56} And they drove the people of Israel into hiding and into the secret places of fugitives. {1:57} On the fifteenth day of the month of Kislev, in the one hundred and forty-fifth year, king Antiochus set up the abominable idol of desolation on the altar of God, and they built altars throughout all the surrounding cities of Judah. {1:58} And they burned frankincense, and they sacrificed before the doors of houses and in the streets. {1:59} And they cut up the books of the law of God and destroyed them with fire. {1:60} And all those who were found with the books of the testament of the Lord, and whoever observed the law of the Lord, they butchered, according to the edict of the king. {1:61} By their power, they did these things to the people of Israel, as they were discovered in the cities, month after month. {1:62} And on the twenty-fifth day of the month, they sacrificed on that altar which was opposite the high altar. {1:63} And the women who circumcised their sons were butchered, according to the order of king Antiochus. {1:64} And they suspended the children by their necks in all their houses, and those who had circumcised them, they butchered. {1:65} And many of the people of Israel decided within themselves that they would not eat unclean things. And they chose to die, rather than to be defiled with unclean foods. {1:66} And they were not willing to infringe upon the holy law of God, and they were butchered. {1:67} And there was a very great wrath upon the people.

[1 Maccabees 2] [2:1] In those days, there rose up Mattathias, the son of John, the son of Simeon, a priest of the sons of Joarib from Jerusalem, and he settled on the mountain of Modin. [2:2] And he had five sons: John, who was surnamed Gaddi, [2:3] and Simon, who was surnamed Thassi, [2:4] and Judas, who was called Maccabeus, [2:5] and Eleazar, who was surnamed Avaran, and Jonathan, who was surnamed Apphus. [2:6] These saw the evils that were done among the people of Judah and in Jerusalem. [2:7] And Mattathias said: “Woe to me, for why was I born that we still live?” [2:8] And those who had been butchered, or had caused butchery, or had transgressed in Jerusalem, [2:9] and those who had been butchered, or had caused butchery, or had transgressed in Jerusalem, [2:10] What nation has not inherited her kingdom and taken from her spoils? [2:11] All her beauty has been taken away. She who was free, has become a slave. [2:12] And behold, our sanctuary, and our beauty, and our splendor has been desolated, and the Gentiles have defiled them. [2:13] Therefore, what is it to us that we still live?” [2:14] And Mattathias and his sons tore their garments, and they covered themselves with haircloth, and they lamented greatly. [2:15] And those who had been sent from king Antiochus came to that place, to compel those... who fled into the city of Modin to immolate, and to burn frankincense, and to depart from the law of God. {2:16} And many of the people of Israel consented and came to them. But Mattathias and his sons stood firm. {2:17} And those who had been sent from Antiochus, responding, said to Mattathias: “You are a ruler, and very splendid and great in this city, and you are adorned with sons and brothers. {2:18} Therefore, approach first, and carry out the order of the king, as all the nations have done, and the men of Judah, and those who remained in Jerusalem. And you and your sons will be among the friends of the king, and enriched with gold and silver and many gifts.” {2:19} And Mattathias responded, and he said with a loud voice: “Even if all nations obey king Antiochus, so that each one departs from the service of the law of his fathers and consents to his commandments, {2:20} I and my sons and my brothers will obey the law of our fathers. {2:21} May God be forgiving to us. It is not useful for us to abandon the law and the justices of God. {2:22} We will not listen to the words of king Antiochus, nor will we sacrifice, transgressing the commandments of our law, so as to set out on another way.” {2:23} And, as he ceased speaking these words, a certain Jew approached in the sight of all to sacrifice to the idols upon the altar in the city of Modin, according to the order of the king. {2:24} And Mattathias saw, and he grieved, and his temperament trembled, and his fury was enkindled according to the judgment of the law, and leaping up, he slaughtered him on the altar. {2:25} Moreover, the man whom king Antiochus had sent, who compelled them to immolate, he killed at the same time, and he destroyed the altar. {2:26} and he was zealous for the law, just as Phinehas did to Zimri, the son of Salomi. {2:27} And Mattathias exclaimed with a loud voice in the city, saying, “All who hold zeal for the law, maintaining the covenant, let them follow me.” {2:28} And he and his sons fled to the mountains, and they left behind whatever they had in the city. {2:29} Then many who sought judgment and justice went down into the desert. {2:30} And they camped there, with their sons, and their wives, and their herds, because evils had overwhelmed them. {2:31} And it was reported to the king’s men, and to the army that was in Jerusalem, in the city of David, that certain men, who had cast aside the commandment of the king, had departed into the hidden places in the desert, and that many had followed after them. {2:32} And immediately, they went out to them, and they arranged a battle against them, on the day of the Sabbath. {2:33} And they said to them: “And now, do you still resist? Go out and act according to the word of king Antiochus, and you will live.” {2:34} And they said, “We will not go out, and we will not do the king’s word, so as to profane the day of the Sabbath.” {2:35} And they rushed against them in battle. {2:36} But they did not respond, nor did they cast a stone at them, nor did they barricade the hidden places. {2:37} for they said, “Let us all die in our simplicity. And heaven and earth will testify for us, that you destroyed us unjustly.” {2:38} So they carried out a battle on the Sabbath. And they were put to death, with their wives, and their sons, and their cattle, even to the number of a thousand souls of men. {2:39} And Mattathias and his friends heard of it, and they held a very great lamentation for them. {2:40} And every man said to his neighbor, “If we all do just as our brothers have done, and if we do not fight against the Gentiles for the sake of our lives and our justifications, then they will quickly eradicate us from the earth.” {2:41} And they decided, on that day, saying: “Every man, who will come against us in warfare on the day of the Sabbath, we will fight against him. And we will not all die, like our brothers who were put to death in the hidden places.” {2:42} Then there was assembled before them the synagogue of the Hasideans, strong men from Israel, each one with a will for the law. {2:43} And all those who fled from the evils added themselves to them, and they became a firmament to them. {2:44} And they gathered together an army, and they struck down the sinners in their wrath and the wicked men in their indignation. And the others fled to the nations, so as to escape. {2:45} And Mattathias and his friends traveled around, and they destroyed the altars. {2:46} And they circumcised all the uncircumcised boys, whom they found within the limits of Israel, and they acted with fortitude. {2:47} And they pursued the sons of arrogance, and the work was prosperous in their hands. {2:48} And they obtained the law from the hands of the Gentiles, and from the hands of the kings. And they did not surrender the horn to the sinner. {2:49} Then the days drew near when Mattathias would die, and he said to his sons: “Now arrogance and chastisement have been strengthened, and it is a time of overturning and of the wrath of indignation. {2:50} Now therefore, O sons, be imitators of the law, and give your lives for the sake of the covenant of your fathers. {2:51} And call to mind the works of the fathers, which they have done in their generations. And you will receive great glory and an eternal name. {2:52} Was not Abraham found to be faithful in temptation, and so it was accounted to him as justice? {2:53} Joseph, in the time of his anguish, kept the commandment, and he was made ruler of Egypt. {2:54} Phinehas our father, being zealous in the zeal of God, received the covenant of an eternal priesthood. {2:55} Jesus, since he fulfilled the word, was made a commander in Israel. {2:56} Caleb, since he testified in the assembly, received an inheritance. {2:57} David, in his mercy, obtained the throne of a kingdom for all generations. {2:58} Elijah, since he was zealous with a zeal for the law, was received into heaven. {2:59} Hananiah and Azariah and Mishael, by believing, were delivered from the flame. {2:60} Daniel, in his simplicity, was delivered from the mouth of the lions. {2:61} And so, consider that, through generation after generation of all those who trusted in him, none have failed in strength. {2:62} And fear not the words of a sinful man, for his glory is dung and worms. {2:63} Today he is extolled, and tomorrow he will not be found, because he has returned into his earth and his thinking has perished. {2:64} Therefore, you sons, be strengthened and act manfully in the law. For by it, you shall become glorious. {2:65} And behold, I know that your brother Simon is a man of counsel. Heed him always, and he will be a father to you. {2:66} And Judas Maccabeus, who has been strong and resourceful from his youth, let him be the leader of your militia, and he will manage the war of the people. {2:67} And you shall add to yourselves all who observe the law, and you shall claim the vindication of your people. {2:68} Render to the Gentiles their retribution, and pay attention to the precepts of the law.” {2:69} And he blessed them, and he was added to his fathers. {2:70} And he passed away in the one hundred and forty-sixth year, and he was buried by his sons in the
And his name reached even to the utmost part of the earth, and he gathered together those who were perishing. And Apollonius gathered together the Gentiles, with a numerous and great army from Samaria, to make war against Israel.

And Judas knew about it, and he went forth to meet him. And he struck him and killed him. And many fell down wounded, and the rest fled away. And he took away their spoils. And Judas took possession of the sword of Apollonius, and he fought with it during all his days.

And Seron, the leader of the army of Syria, heard that Judas had gathered together a company of the faithful and an assembly with him. And he said, “I will make a name for myself, and I will be glorified in the kingdom, and I will defeat Judas in warfare, and those who are with him, who have spurned the word of the king.” And he prepared himself. And the camp of the impious went up with him, with strong auxiliaries, so as to act with vengeance upon the sons of Israel. And they approached even as far as Bethhoron. And Judas went forth to meet him, with a few men.

But when they saw the army coming to meet them, they said to Judas, “How will we few be able to fight against so great and so strong a multitude, even though we are weakened by fasting today?” And Judas said: “It is easy for many to be enclosed in the hands of a few, for there is no difference in the sight of the God of heaven to liberate by means of many, or by means of few.

For victory in warfare is not in the multitude of the army, but in the strength from heaven.

They come to us with a contemptuous multitude and with arrogance, in order to destroy us, with our wives and our sons, and to despoil us.

In truth, we will fight on behalf of our souls and our laws. And the Lord himself will crush them before our face. But as for you, do not fear them.” And as soon as he had ceased speaking, he attacked them suddenly. And Seron and his army were crushed in his sight.

And he pursued him from the descent of Bethhoron, even to the plains. And eight hundred of their men were cut down, but the rest fled into the land of the Philistines.

And the fear and dread of Judas, as well as his brothers, fell upon all the nations around them. And his name reached even to the king, and all the nations told stories of the battles of Judas.

But when king Antiochus heard these accounts, he was angry to his very soul. And he sent and gathered together forces from his entire kingdom, a very strong army.

And he opened his treasury, and he gave out stipends to the army for a year. And he commanded them to make ready for all things.

And he saw that the money from his treasuries had failed, and that the tributes of the country were small, because of the dissension and the scourging that he had caused on earth in order to take away the legitimate laws, which had been since the first days.

And he feared, lest he not have enough the second time as the first, for expenses and gifts, which he had given before with a liberal hand. For his excesses were more than the kings who had been before him.

And he was alarmed to his very soul, and he intended to go into Persia, and to take tributes from the regions, and to gather together much money.

And he left behind Lysias, a nobleman of royal family, to preside over the kingdom from the river Euphrates, even to the river of Egypt, and to raise his son, Antiochus, until he would return.

And he handed over to him half of the army, and the elephants. And he commanded him concerning all that he wanted, and concerning the inhabitants of Judea and Jerusalem:

so that he would send an army against them to crush and to root out the virtue of Israel and the remnant of Jerusalem, and to take away the memory of them from that place.

And so that he would establish dwelling places for the sons of foreigners in all their parts, and would distribute their land by lot.

And so, the king took the remaining part of the army, and he went forth from Antioch, the city of his kingdom, in the one hundred and forty-seventh year. And he crossed over the river Euphrates, and he traveled through the upper regions.

Then Lysias chose Ptolemy, the son of Dorymenes, and Nicanor and Gorgias, powerful men from among the king’s friends.

And he sent them with forty thousand men, and seven thousand horsemen, to enter into the land of Judah, and to destroy it, according to the word of the king.

And so, they proceeded with all their power, and they arrived and took a position near Emmaus, in the land of the plains.

And the merchants of the regions heard of their arrival and took a position near Emmaus, in the land of the plains.

they clothed themselves with haircloth, and they placed ashes on their heads, and they tore their garments. {3:48} And they laid open the books of the law, in which the Gentiles searched for the likeness of their idols. {3:49} And they brought the priestly ornaments, and the first fruits and tithes, and they roused the Nazirites, who had fulfilled their days. {3:50} And they cried out with a loud voice toward heaven, saying: “What shall we do with these, and where shall we take them? {3:51} For your holy things have been trampled and defiled, and your priests have been in mourning and in humiliation. {3:52} And behold, the Nations gather together against us, to destroy us. You know what they intend against us. {3:53} How shall we be able to stand before their face, unless you, O God, assist us?” {3:54} Then they sounded the trumpets with a loud call. {3:55} And after this, Judas appointed commanders over the people: over thousands, and over hundreds, and over fifties, and over tens. {3:56} And he said to those who were building houses, or who had betrothed wives, who were planting vineyards, or who were terribly afraid, that they should return, each one to his own house, according to the law. {3:57} So they moved the camp, and relocated to the south of Emmaus. {3:58} And Judas said: “Gird yourselves, and be sons of power, and be ready in the morning, so that you may fight against these nations that have assembled against us, so as to destroy us and our sacred things. {3:59} For it is better for us to die in battle, than to see evils come to our nation and to the sacred places. {3:60} Nevertheless, as it shall be willed in heaven, so let it be.”

[1 Maccabees 4] {4:1} Then Gorgias took five thousand men and a thousand chosen horsemen, and they moved out of the camp by night. {4:2} so that they might set upon the camp of the Jews and strike them suddenly. And the sons who were from the stronghold were their guides. {4:3} And Judas heard of it, and he rose up, with his powerful men, to strike the force from the king’s army that was in Emmaus. {4:4} For the army was still dispersed from the camp. {4:5} And Gorgias came by night, into the camp of Judas, and found no one, and he sought them in the mountains. For he said, “These men flee from us.” {4:6} And when it had become day, Judas appeared in the plain with only three thousand men, who had neither armor nor swords. {4:7} And they saw the strength of the camp of the Gentiles, and the men in armor, and the horsemen surrounding them, and that these were trained to fight. {4:8} And Judas said to the men who were with him: “Do not be afraid of their multitude, and do not dread their attack. {4:9} Remember in what way salvation came to our fathers in the Red Sea, when Pharaoh pursued them with a great army. {4:10} And now, let us cry out to heaven, and the Lord will have mercy on us, and he will remember the covenant of our fathers, and he will crush this army before our face this day. {4:11} And all nations shall know that there is One who redeems and frees Israel.” {4:12} And the foreigners lifted up their eyes, and they saw them coming against them. {4:13} And they went out of the camp into battle, and those who were with Judas sounded the trumpet. {4:14} And they came together. And the Gentiles were crushed, and they fled into the plains. {4:15} But the last of them all fell by the sword, and they pursued them even to Gazara, and even to the plains of Idumea, and Azotus, and Jamnia. And there fell from them as many as three thousand men. {4:16} And Judas returned, with his army following him. {4:17} And he said to the people: “Do not desire the spoils; for there is war before us. {4:18} And Gorgias and his army are near us on the mountain. But stand firm now against our enemies, and fight against them, and you shall take the spoils afterwards, securely.” {4:19} And while Judas was speaking these words, behold, a certain part of them appeared, looking out from the mountain. {4:20} And Gorgias saw that his men were put to flight, and that they had set fire to the camp. For the smoke that he saw declared what had happened. {4:21} When they had seen this, they became very afraid, seeing at the same time both Judas and his army in the plains prepared to do battle. {4:22} So they all fled away into the encampment of the foreigners. {4:23} And Judas returned to take the spoils of the camp, and they obtained much gold and silver, and hyacinth, and purple of the sea, and great riches. {4:24} And returning, they sang a canticle, and they blessed God in heaven, because he is good, because his mercy is with every generation. {4:25} And so, a great salvation occurred in Israel in that day. {4:26} But those among the foreigners who escaped went and reported to Lysias all that had happened. {4:27} And when he heard these things, he was discouraged, being alarmed to his very soul. For things had not occurred in Israel according to his wishes, nor as the king had commanded. {4:28} And, in the following year, Lysias gathered together sixty thousand chosen men and five thousand horsemen, so that he might defeat them in warfare. {4:29} And they came into Judea, and they positioned their camp in Bethzur, and Judas met them with ten thousand men. {4:30} And they saw the strength of the army, and so he prayed, and he said: “Blessed are you, Savior of Israel, who crushed the assault of the powerful by the hand of your servant David, and who delivered up the camp of the foreigners into the hand of Jonathan, the son of Saul, and his armor bearer. {4:31} Enclose this army in the hand of your people Israel, and let them be confounded in their soldiers and their horsemen. {4:32} Strike them with dread, and melt away the boldness of their strength, and let them shudder in their grief. {4:33} Cast them down with the sword of those who love you, and let all who know your name praise you with hymns.” {4:34} And they went forth to battle, and there fell from the army of Lysias five thousand men. {4:35} But Lysias, seeing their flight and the boldness of the Jews, and that they were prepared either to live or to die with fortitude, went to Antioch and chose soldiers, so that they might come back to Judea with greater numbers. {4:36} Then Judas and his brothers said: “Behold, our enemies have been crushed. Let us go up now to cleanse and renew the holy places.” {4:37} And all the army gathered together, and they ascended to Mount Zion. {4:38} And they saw the sanctuary deserted, and the altar profaned, and the gates burned, and weeds growing up in the courts, as in a forest or as on the mountains, and the adjoining chambers demolished. {4:39} And they rent their garments, and they made a great wailing, and they placed ashes on their heads. {4:40} And they fell to the ground on their faces, and they sounded the trumpets of alarm, and they cried out toward heaven. {4:41} Then Judas numbered men to fight against those who were in the stronghold, until they had cleansed the holy places. {4:42} And he chose priests without blemish, whose will held to the law of God. {4:43} And they cleansed the sacrifices of salvation and praise. {4:57} And they adorned the altar for eight days, and they offered holocausts with joy, and prospered them. {4:56} And they kept the dedication of the altar, and they blessed, toward heaven, him that had been renewed with canticles, and lutes, and lyres, and cymbals. which the Gentiles had contaminated it, on the same day, it was renewed with canticles, and lutes, and lyres, and cymbals. {4:53} And they offered sacrifice, according to the law, on the new altar of holocausts that they made. {4:54} According to the time and according to the day, on which the Gentiles had contaminated it, on the same day, it was renewed with canticles, and lutes, and lyres, and cymbals. {4:55} And all the people fell upon their faces, and they lit the lamps, which were on the lampstand, and they gave light in the temple. {4:51} And they placed the bread on the table, and they hung up the veils, and they completed all the works which they had begun. {4:52} And they arose before the morning, on the twenty-fifth day of the ninth month, (which is the month of Kislev) in the one hundred and forty-eighth year. {4:53} And they offered sacrifice, according to the law, on the new altar of holocausts that they made. {4:54} According to the time and according to the day, on which the Gentiles had contaminated it, on the same day, it was renewed with canticles, and lutes, and lyres, and cymbals. {4:55} And all the people fell upon their faces, and they adored, and they blessed, toward heaven, him that had prospered them. {4:56} And they kept the dedication of the altar for eight days, and they offered holocausts with joy, and sacrifices of salvation and praise. {4:57} And they adorned the face of the temple with crowns of gold and small shields. And they dedicated the gates and the adjoining chambers, and they set up doors on them. {4:58} And there was very great rejoicing among the people, and the disgrace of the Gentiles was averted. {4:59} And Judas, and his brothers, and all the assembly of Israel decreed that the day of the dedication of the altar must be kept in its time, from year to year, for eight days, from the twenty-fifth day of the month of Kislev, with joy and gladness. {4:60} And they built up, at that time, Mount Zion, with high walls and strong towers all around, lest the Gentiles should at any time come and trample upon it, as they did before. {4:61} And he stationed a garrison there, to keep it, and he fortified it, in order to guard Bethzur, so that the people might have a fortification opposite the face of Idumea.

[1 Maccabees 5] {5:1} And it happened that, when the surrounding nations heard that the altar and the sanctuary had been rebuilt as before, they were very angry. {5:2} And they intended to destroy the people of Jacob that were among them, and they began to kill some of the people, and to persecute them. {5:3} Then Judas defeated in warfare the sons of Esau in Idumea, and those who were in Akrabatene, because they besieged the Israelites, and he struck them with a great scourging. {5:4} And he remembered the malice of the sons of Baean, who were a snare and a scandal to the people, lying in ambush for them in the way. {5:5} And they were trapped by him in the towers, and he took up a position near them, and he anathematized them, and he burned their towers with fire, along with all who were in them. {5:6} Then he crossed over to the sons of Ammon, and he found a strong hand, and an abundant people, and Timothy was their commander. {5:7} And he engaged in many battles with them, and they were crushed in their sight, and he struck them down. {5:8} And he seized the city of Jazer, and her sister cities, and he returned to Judea. {5:9} And the Gentiles, who were in Gilead, gathered together against the Israelites, who were within their borders, to take them away, and so they fled into the fortress of Dathema. {5:10} And they sent letters to Judas and his brothers, saying: “The Gentiles all around have been gathering together against us to carry us away. {5:11} And they are preparing to come and occupy the fortress into which we have fled. And Timothy is the commander of their army. {5:12} Now, therefore, come and rescue us from their hands, for many of us have fallen. {5:13} And all our brothers, who were in the places of Tob, have been put to death. And they have led away as captives their wives, and their children, and their spoils. And they have slain nearly a thousand men in that place.” {5:14} And while they were still reading these letters, behold, there arrived from Galilee other messengers, with torn garments, who announced according to these words: {5:15} saying that those of Ptolemais and Tyre and Sidon have assembled against them, “and all of Galilee has been filled with foreigners, in order to consume us.” {5:16} So then, when Judas and the people heard these words, a great assembly came together, to consider what they should do for their brothers who were in trouble and were being assailed by them. {5:17} And Judas said to Simon his brother: “Choose men for yourself, and go, and free your brothers in Galilee. But I and my brother Jonathan, will go into the country of Gilead.” {5:18} And he left behind Joseph, son of Zachariah, and Azariah, as commanders of the people, with the remainder of the army, in Judea, to guard it. {5:19} And he instructed them, saying, “Take charge of this people, but do not go to war against the Gentiles, until we return.” {5:20} Now three thousand men were divided to Simon, to go into Galilee, but eight thousand were divided to Judas, to go into the land of Gilead. {5:21} And Simon went into Galilee, and he engaged in many battles with the Gentiles, and the Gentiles were crushed before his face, and he pursued them even to the gates of Ptolemais. {5:22} And there fell of the Gentiles nearly three thousand men, and he took their spoils. {5:23} And he took with him those who were in Galilee and in Arbatta, with their wives and children, and all that was theirs, and he led them into Judea with great rejoicing. {5:24} And Judas Maccabeus, and Jonathan his brother, crossed over the Jordan, and they traveled three days' journey through the desert. {5:25} And the Nabateans met them, and they accepted them peacefully, and they described to them all that had happened to their brothers in the land of Gilead, {5:26} and that many of them were trapped in Bozrah, and Bosor, and Alema, and in Chaspho, and Maked, and Carnaim. All these are large and fortified cities. {5:27} Moreover, they were held in their grasp in the other cities of Gilead, and they had arranged to move their army, on the next day, to these cities, and to seize them, and to destroy them all in one day. {5:28} Then Judas and his army unexpectedly turned their path into the desert, to Bosor, and they occupied the city. And he killed every male by the edge of the sword, and took all their spoils, and burned it with fire. {5:29} And they arose from there by night, and they went forth all the way to the fortress. {5:30} And it happened that, at first light, when they lifted up their eyes, behold, there was a multitude of people, which could not be numbered, bringing ladders and machines, in order to seize the fortress, and to assault them. {5:31} And Judas saw that the fight had begun, and the cry of the battle went up to heaven like a trumpet, and a great cry went out of the city. {5:32} And he said to his army, “Fight today on behalf of your brothers.” {5:33} And he came, with three companies behind them, and they sounded the trumpets, and they cried out in prayer. {5:34} And the camp of Timothy knew that it was Maccabeus, and they took flight before his face. And they struck them with a great scourging. And there fell from them in that day nearly eight thousand men. {5:35} And Judas diverted to Mizpah, and he fought and seized it. And he killed all of its males, and he took its spoils, and he burned it with fire. {5:36} From there, he continued on, and he seized Chaspho, and Maked, and Bosor, and the rest of the cities of Gilead. {5:37} But after these events, Timothy gathered together another army, and he positioned his camp opposite Raphon, across the torrent. {5:38} And Judas sent men to catch sight of the army. And they reported back to him, saying: “All the nations that surround us have assembled before him, with an exceedingly great army. {5:39} And they have brought the Arabians as auxiliaries to them, and they have set up camp across the torrent, in preparation to come against you in battle.” And Judas went to meet them. {5:40} And Timothy said to the leaders of his army: “When Judas and his army approach, close to the torrent of water, if he crosses over to us first, we will not be able to withstand him. For he will be able to prevail against us. {5:41} If, truly, he is afraid to cross over, and so he sets up camp across the river, we will cross over to them, and we will prevail against him.” {5:42} But when Judas approached, close to the torrent of water, he stationed the scribes of the people near the torrent, and he commanded them, saying, “Permit no man to stay behind, but let all come into the battle.” {5:43} And he crossed over to them first, and all the people after him. And all the Gentiles were crushed before their face, and they threw away their weapons, and they fled to the temple that was in Carmain. {5:44} And he occupied that city, and he burned the temple with fire, along with all the things that were in it. And Carmain was subdued, and it could not stand against the face of Judas. {5:45} And Judas gathered together all the Israelites who were in the land of Gilead, from the least even to the greatest, with their wives and children, and a very great army, to come into the land of Judah. {5:46} And they came as far as Ephron. And this was a great city, positioned at the entrance, strongly fortified, and there was no way to go around it on the right or on the left, but the path was through the midst of it. {5:47} And those who were in the city shut themselves in and barricaded the gates with stones. And so Judas sent to them with words of peace, {5:48} saying, “Let us cross through your land, to go into our own land, and no one will harm you; we will only cross through on foot.” But they were not willing to open to them. {5:49} Then Judas instructed a proclamation to be made in the camp, that they would engage them, each one from the place where he was. {5:50} And the men of the army drew close. And he assaulted that city all day and all night. And the city was delivered into his hand. {5:51} And they destroyed every male with the edge of the sword, and he eradicated the city, and he took its spoils, and he crossed through the entire city, over those who had been slain. {5:52} Then they crossed over the Jordan to the great plain that is opposite the face of Bethshan. {5:53} And Judas was gathering the stragglers and exhorting the people, throughout the entire way, until they came into the land of Judah. {5:54} And they ascended to mount Zion with joy and gladness, and they offered holocausts, because not one of them had fallen, until they had returned in peace. {5:55} Now in the days that Judas and Jonathan were in the land of Gilead, and Simon his brother was in Galilee against the face of Ptolemais: {5:56} Joseph, the son of Zachariah, and Azariah, the leader of the army, heard good things about the battles that were fought. {5:57} And he said, “Let us also make a name for ourselves, and let us go to fight against the Gentiles that are all around us.” {5:58} And he gave orders to those who were in his army, and they went out towards Jamnia. {5:59} And Gorgias and his men exited the city, to meet them in the fight. {5:60} And Joseph and Azariah were forced to flee, even to the borders of Judea. And there fell on that day, from the people of Israel, up to two thousand men, and it was a great defeat for the people. {5:61} For they did not listen to Judas and his brothers, supposing that they should act boldly. {5:62} But these were not of the offspring of those men by whom salvation was brought to Israel. {5:63} And the men of Judah were magnified greatly in the sight of all Israel and of all the nations where their name was heard. {5:64} And the people gathered to them with favorable acclamations. {5:65} And so Judas and his brothers went out and assailed the sons of Esau, in the land that is toward the south, and he struck Hebron and her sister cities, and he burned its walls and the towers all around it with fire. {5:66} And he moved his camp to go into the land of the foreigners, and he traveled through Samaria. {5:67} In that day, some priests fell in battle. Since they desired to act boldly, they went out, without counsel, into the battle. {5:68} And Judas turned aside to Azotus, into the land of the foreigners, and he destroyed their altars, and he burned the statues of their gods with fire. And he seized the spoils of the cities, and he returned to the land of Judah.

[1 Maccabees 6] {6:1} And king Antiochus was traveling through the upper regions, and he heard that the city of Elymais in Persia was very noble and abundant in silver and gold, {6:2} and that the temple in it was very opulent, and that there were, in that place, coverings of gold, and statues of their gods with fire. And he seized the spoils of the foreigners, and he destroyed their altars, and he burned the abomination, which he had established on the altar that was in Jerusalem, and that the sanctuary, just as before, had been encircled with high walls, along with Bethzur, his city. {6:8} And it happened that, when the king heard these words, he was terrified and very moved. And he fell down on his bed, and he fell into feebleness out of grief. For it had not happened to him as he had intended. {6:9} And he was in that place through many days. For a great grief was renewed in him, and he concluded that he would die. {6:10} And he called all his friends, and he said to them: “Sleep has withdrawn from my eyes, and I am declining, and my heart has collapsed out of anxiety. {6:11} And I said in my heart: How much trouble has come to me, and what floods of sorrow there are, where I am now! I used to be cheerful and beloved in my power! {6:12} Truly, now, I remember the evils that I did in Jerusalem, from which place I also took away all the spoils of gold and silver that were in it, and I sent to carry away the inhabitants of Judah without cause. {6:13} Therefore, I know that it is because of this that these evils have found me. And behold, I perish with great sorrow in a foreign land.” {6:14} Then he called Philip, one of his friends, and he placed him first over all his kingdom. {6:15} And he gave him the diadem, and his robe, and his ring, so that he would guide Antiochus, his son, and raise him, and so that he would reign. {6:16} And king Antiochus died there, in the one hundred and forty-ninth year. {6:17} And Lysias knew that the king was dead, and he appointed Antiochus, his son, to reign, whom he had raised from adolescence. And he called his name Eupator. {6:18} And those who were in the stronghold had enclosed the Israelites by surrounding the holy places. And they continually sought to do evil to them and to support the Gentiles. {6:19} And Judas intended to disperse them. And he called together all the people, in order to besiege them. {6:20} And they came together and besieged them in the one hundred and fiftieth year, and they made catapults and other machines. {6:21} And certain ones of these, who were besieged, escaped. And some of the impious out of Israel joined themselves to them. {6:22} And they went to the king, and they said: “How long will you not act with judgment and vindicate our brothers? {6:23} We resolved to serve your father, and to walk according to his precepts, and to obey his edicts. {6:24} And because of this, the sons of our people have alienated themselves from us, and they have put to death as many of us as they could find, and they have torn apart our inheritances. {6:25} And they have not extended their hand against us only, but also against all within our borders. {6:26} And behold, this day they have taken a position near the stronghold of Jerusalem to occupy it, and they have fortified the stronghold of Bethzur. {6:27} And, unless you quickly act to prevent them, they will do greater things than these, and you will not be able to subdue them.” {6:28} And the king was angry when he heard this. And he called together all his friends, and the leaders of his army, and those who were over the horsemen. {6:29} But there even came to him mercenary armies from other kingdoms and from the islands of the sea. {6:30} And the number of his army was one hundred thousand footmen, and twenty thousand horsemen, and thirty-two elephants trained for battle. {6:31} And they traveled through Idumea, and they took a position near Bethzur. And they fought for many days, and they made machines of war. But they came out and burnt them with fire, and they fought manfully. {6:32} And Judas departed from the stronghold, and he moved the camp to Bethzechariah, opposite the camp of the king. {6:33} And the king rose up, before it was light, and he forced his troops to march toward the way of Bethzechariah. And the armies prepared themselves for battle, and they sounded the trumpets. {6:34} And they showed the elephants the blood of grapes and mulberries, to provoke them to fight. {6:35} And they divided the beasts by the legions, and there stood by every elephant a thousand men, with shields joined together and with brass helmets on their heads. And five hundred well-ordered horsemen were chosen for every beast. {6:36} These were ready beforehand, and wherever the beast was, they were there; and whenever it moved, they moved, and they did not depart from it. {6:37} Moreover, upon them there were strong wooden turrets, watching over every beast, with machines upon them, and on them were thirty-two valiant men, who fought from above, and an Indian to rule each beast. {6:38} And the rest of the horsemen, he stationed here and there, in two parts, with trumpets to stir up the army and to urge on those who were slow to move within its legions. {6:39} And so, when the sun reflected off the shields of gold and of brass, the mountains were resplendent from them, and they glowed like lamps of fire. {6:40} And part of the king’s army was divided to the high mountains, and the other part to the low places. And they went forth with order and caution. {6:41} And all the inhabitants of the land were shaken at the voice of their multitude, and at the advance of the company, and at the clash of the armor. For the army was very great and strong. {6:42} And Judas and his army drew near for battle. And there fell off the king’s army six hundred men. {6:43} And Eleazar, the son of Saura, saw one of the beasts shielded with the king’s shield, and it was higher than the other beasts. So it seemed to him that the king must be on it. {6:44} And he gave himself for the freedom of his people, and to obtain for himself a name in eternity. {6:45} And he ran up to it boldly in the midst of the legion, killing on the right and on the left, and they fell down before him on this side and that. {6:46} And he went between the feet of the elephant, and put himself under it, and he killed it. And it fell to the ground upon him, and he died there. {6:47} And, seeing the strength of the king and the forcefulness of his army, they turned themselves away from them. {6:48} But the king’s camp went up against them in Jerusalem. And the king’s camp took up a position near Judea and Mount Zion. {6:49} And he made peace with those who were in Bethzur. And they went out of the city, because they had no provisions in their confinement, for it was the Sabbath of the land. {6:50} And the king captured Bethzur, and he stationed a garrison there to keep it. {6:51} And he turned his camp against the place of sanctification for many days. And he stationed there catapults and other machines: machines to cast fire, and windlasses to cast stones and darts, and small catapults to cast arrows and metal. {6:52} But they also made machines against their machines, and they fought for many days. {6:53} But there were no foods in the city, because it was the seventh year. And those who had remained in Judea were from the Gentiles, so they consumed all that they had left from what had been stored up. {6:54} And there remained in the holy places a few men, for the famine had prevailed over them. And they were scattered, each one to his own place. {6:55} Then Lysias heard that Philip, whom king Antiochus had appointed, when he was still alive, to raise his son, Antiochus, and to reign, {6:56} had returned from Persia and Media, with the army that went with him, and that he sought to take upon himself the affairs of the kingdom. {6:57} He hurried to go and to say to the king and the commanders of the army: “We are weakened everyday, and our food is limited, and the place that we besiege is strong, and it is incumbent upon us to put the kingdom in order. {6:58} And so now, let us bestow a pledge to these men, and make peace with them and with all their nation. {6:59} And let us establish for them that they may walk according to their own laws, just as before. For, because of their laws, which we despised, they have become angry and have done all these things.” {6:60} And the idea was pleasing in the sight of the king and the leaders. And he sent to them to make peace. And they accepted it. {6:61} And the king and the leaders swore to them. And they went out of the stronghold. {6:62} Then the king entered into Mount Zion, and saw the fortifications of the place, and so he abruptly broke the oath that he had sworn, and he commanded the surrounding wall to be destroyed. {6:63} And he departed in haste and returned to Antioch, where he found Philip ruling the city. And he fought against him and occupied the city.

[1 Maccabees 7] {7:1} In the one hundred and fifty-first year, Demetrius, the son of Seleucus, departed from the city of Rome, and he went up with a few men to a maritime city, and he reigned there. {7:2} And it happened that, as he entered into the house of the kingdom of his fathers, the army captured Antiochus and Lysias, to bring them to him. {7:3} And the matter became known to him, and he said, “Do not show me their face.” {7:4} And so the army killed them. And Demetrius sat upon the throne of his kingdom. {7:5} And there came to him iniquitous and impious men from Israel. And Alcimus was their leader, who wanted to be made a priest. {7:6} And they accused the people to the king, saying: “Judas and his brothers have destroyed all your friends, and he has scattered us from our land. {7:7} Now, therefore, send a man, whom you trust, and let him go and see all the destruction he has done to us and to the regions of the king. And let him punish all his friends and their helpers.” {7:8} And so the king chose, from among his friends, Bacchides, who ruled across the great river in the kingdom, and who was faithful to the king. And he sent him {7:9} to see the destruction that Judas had done. Moreover, he appointed the wicked Alcimus to the priesthood, and he commanded him to take revenge on the sons of Israel. {7:10} And they rose up and came forth with a great army into the land of Judah. And they sent messengers, who spoke to Judas and his brothers with words of peace, in deceitfulness. {7:11} But they did not heed their words, for they saw that they arrived with a great army. {7:12} Then there assembled to Alcimus and Bacchides, a congregation of scribes, to seek just terms. {7:13} And first, the Hasideans, who were among the sons of Israel, also sought peace from them. {7:14} For they said, “A man who is a priest from the offspring of Aaron has arrived; he will not deceive us.” {7:15} And he spoke to them peaceful words, and he swore to them, saying, “We will not carry out any evil against you or your friends.” {7:16} And they believed him. And he captured sixty of their men and killed them in one day, according to the word that is written: {7:17} The flesh of your saints, and their blood, they have poured out all around Jerusalem, and there was no one who would bury them. {7:18} Then fear and trembling hovered over all the people. For they said: “There is no truth or judgment among them. For they have transgressed the agreement and the oath that they swore.” {7:19} And Bacchides moved the camp from Jerusalem, and he took up a position at Bethzaiith. And he sent and captured many of those who had fled from him, and some of the people he killed in sacrifice, and he threw them into a great pit. {7:20} Then he committed the country to Alcimus, and he left behind troops with him to assist him. And so Bacchides went away to the king. {7:21} And Alcimus did what he pleased by means of his leadership of the priesthood. {7:22} And all those who disturbed the people assembled before him, and they obtained the land of Judah, and they caused a great scourging in Israel. {7:23} And Judas saw all the evils that Alcimus, and those who were with him, did to the sons of Israel, even more than the Gentiles did. {7:24} And he went out into all the parts surrounding Judea, and he took vengeance on the men who had rebelled, and they ceased to go forth into the region any longer. {7:25} But Alcimus saw that Judas, and those who were with him, prevailed. And he knew that he was not able to withstand them. And so he returned to the king, and he accused them of many crimes. {7:26} And the king sent Nicanor, one of his principal noblemen, who was a cultivator of hostility against Israel. And he commanded him to overthrow the people. {7:27} And Nicanor came to Jerusalem with a great army, and he went to Judas and his brothers words of peace, with deceitfulness, {7:28} saying: “Let there be no fighting between me and you. I will come with a few men, to see your faces with peace.” {7:29} And he came to Judas, and they greeted one another in turns, peaceably. And the enemies were prepared to abduct Judas. {7:30} And the plan became known to Judas, that he came to him with deceit. And so he became very afraid of him, and he was no longer willing to see his face. {7:31} And Nicanor knew that his plan had been exposed, and he went out to meet Judas in battle near Capharsalama. {7:32} And there fell of the army of Nicanor nearly five thousand men, and they fled into the city of David. {7:33} And after these events, Nicanor ascended to mount Zion. And some of the priests of the people went out to greet him in peace, and to show him the holocausts that were offered for the king. {7:34} But he mocked and despised them, and he defiled them. And he spoke arrogantly, {7:35} and he swore with anger, saying, “Unless Judas and his army have been delivered into my hands, when I return in peace, I will burn this house.” And he went out with great anger. {7:36} And the priests went in and stood before the face of the altar and the temple. And weeping, they said: {7:37} “You, O Lord, have chosen this house so that your name may be invoked in it, so that it may be a house of prayer and supplication for your people. {7:38} Accomplish vindication with this man and his army, and let them fall by the sword. Remember their blasphemies, and do not allow them to continue.” {7:39} Then Nicanor departed from Jerusalem, and he positioned his camp near Bethhoron, and an army of Syria met him there. {7:40} And Judas took a position in Adasa with three thousand men. And Judas prayed, and he said: {7:41} “O Lord, when those who were sent by king Sennacherib blasphemed against you, an angel went out and struck one hundred and eighty-five thousand of them. {7:42} Just so, crush this army in our sight today, and so let the others know that he has spoken evil against your sanctuary. And judge him according to his wickedness.” {7:43} And the armies were sent into battle together on the thirteenth day of the month of Adar. And the camp of Nicanor was crushed, and he himself was among the first slain in the battle. {7:44} So then, when his army saw that Nicanor had fallen, they threw away their weapons and fled. {7:45} And they pursued them for one day’s journey from Adasa, even until one comes into Gazara, and they sounded the trumpets after them with signals. {7:46} And they went forth from all of the towns all around Judea. And they herded them with the horns, and they turned back again to them, and they were all felled with the sword, and there was not so much as one of them left behind. {7:47} And they took their spoils like a prey, and they cut off the head of Nicanor, and his right hand, which he had extended arrogantly, and they brought it, and hung it up opposite Jerusalem. {7:48} And the people rejoiced exceedingly, and they spent that day in great joy. {7:49} And he established that this day should be kept every year, on the thirteenth day of the month of Adar. {7:50} And the land of Judah was quieted for a brief time.

[1 Maccabees 8] {8:1} And Judas heard of the fame of the Romans, that they are powerful and strong, and that they willingly agree to all things that are asked of them; and that, whoever was agreeable to them, they established a friendship with them, and so they are powerful and resourceful. {8:2} And they heard of their battles, and the successful works that they had accomplished in Galatia, how they had subdued them and brought them under tribute, {8:3} and what great things they had accomplished in the region of Spain, and that they had driven under their power the mines of silver and gold which are there, and that they had obtained possession of the entire place by their counsel and patience, {8:4} and that they had overcome places that were very far from them, and kings, who came against them from the ends of the earth, and had crushed them and struck them with a great scourging, while the rest pay tribute to them every year, {8:5} and that they had defeated in battle Philip, and Perses the king of the Ceteans, and the others who had taken up arms against them, and had crushed them in warfare and subdued them, {8:6} and how Antiochus, the great king of Asia, who brought a fight against them, having one hundred and twenty elephants, with horsemen, and swift chariots, and a very great army, was crushed by them, {8:7} and how they had captured him alive and had decreed to him that both he and those who would reign after him would pay a great tribute, and that he should provide hostages bound to an agreement, {8:8} and that regions from the Indians, and from the Medes, and from the Lydians, from among their best regions, with those whom they had taken from them, gave to king Eumenes. {8:9} And those who were in Greece wanted to go out and defeat them, but they became aware of this plan. {8:10} And so they sent one general to them, and he fought against them, and many of them fell, and they led into captivity their wives, and their sons, and they despoiled them and took possession of their land, and they destroyed their walls and drove them into servitude, even to this day. {8:11} And the remaining kingdoms and islands, which at any time had resisted them, they destroyed and drove under their power. {8:12} But with their friends, and with those who remained at peace with them, they maintained friendship and conquered kingdoms: those that were near, and those that were far off. For all those who heard of their name were afraid of them. {8:13} In fact, whomever they wanted to help become ruler, these reigned, but whomever they wanted, they deposed from the kingdom. And they were greatly exalted. {8:14} And of all these, none wore a diadem or was clothed in purple, to be magnified in this. {8:15} And also, they had made themselves a senate house, and they consulted daily with three hundred and twenty men, continually acting as a counsel for the multitude, so that they would do the things that were right. {8:16} And they commit their government to one man each year, to rule over their entire land, and they all obey this one, and there is no envy or jealousy among them. {8:17} And so Judas chose Eupolemus, the son of John, the son of Jacob, and Jason, the son of Eleazar, and he sent them to Rome to make an agreement of friendship and an alliance with them, {8:18} and so that they would take away from them the yoke of the Grecians, for they saw that they oppressed the kingdom of Israel with servitude. {8:19} And they went to Rome, a very long journey, and they entered the senate house, and they said, {8:20} “Judas Maccabeus, and his brothers, and the people of the Jews, have sent us to you to establish with you an alliance and peace, and so that we may be registered among your associates and friends.” {8:21} And the word was pleasing in their sight. {8:22} And this is a copy of the writing, which they rewrote on tablets of brass and sent to Jerusalem, so that it would be with them in that place as a memorial of the peace and alliance: {8:23} “May all be well with the Romans and with the nation of the Jews, at sea and on land, forever, and may sword and enemy be far away from them. {8:24} But if a war is instituted against the Romans first, or against any of their allies in all their dominions, {8:25} the nation of the Jews will bring help to them, just as the situation shall direct, whole-heartedly. {8:26} And those who do battle, they need not provide with supplies of wheat, or arms, or money, or ships, just as it seems good to the Romans, and they shall obey their orders, while taking nothing from them. {8:27} But in like manner also, if war will have fallen upon the nation of the Jews first, the Romans shall help them willingly, just as the situation permits them. {8:28} And those who give assistance will not be provided with wheat, or arms, or money, or ships, just as it seems good to the Romans, and they shall obey their orders without deceit. {8:29} According to these words, the Romans have made an agreement with the people of the Jews. {8:30} And, if after these words, one or another would want to add anything to, or take anything from these, they may do as they propose. And whatever they add or take away, it shall be ratified. {8:31} Moreover, concerning the evils that king Demetrius did to them, we have written to him, saying, ‘Why have you made your yoke heavy upon our friends and allies, the Jews?’ {8:32} If, therefore, they come again to us against you, we will render judgment for them, and we will make war against you by sea and by land.’ ”

[1 Maccabees 9] {9:1} Meanwhile, when Demetrius heard that Nicanor and his army had fallen in battle, he again positioned Bacchides and Alcimus in Judea, and the right horn of his army with them. {9:2} And they traveled by the way that leads to Gilgal, and they set up camp in Mesaloth, which is in Arbela. And they occupied it, and they destroyed the lives of many men. {9:3} In the first month of the one hundred and fifty-second year, they stationed the army near Jerusalem. {9:4} And they rose up and went to Berea, with twenty thousand men and two thousand horsemen. {9:5} Now Judas had stationed his camp in Elasa, and three thousand chosen men were with him. {9:6} And they saw the multitude of the army, that they were many, and they became very afraid. And many withdrew themselves from the camp, and there remained of them no more than eight hundred men. {9:7} And Judas saw that his army had slipped away and that the battle pressed upon him, and his heart was shattered, because he did not have time to gather them together, and he was very discouraged. {9:8} And so, he said to those who were remaining, “Let us rise up and go against our enemies, perhaps we may be able to fight against them.” {9:9} But they dissuaded him, saying: “We will not be able, but let us try to save our lives and return to our brothers, and then we will fight against them. For we are but few.” {9:10} And Judas said: “Far be it from us, to do this thing, so as to flee away from them. But if our time has drawn near, let us die with virtue, on behalf of our brothers, and let us not inflict guilt upon our glory.” {9:11} And the army moved from the camp, and they stood to meet them. And the horsemen were divided into two parts, and the stone-slingers and archers went before the army, and the first ones were all powerful men, experienced in combat. {9:12} Moreover, Bacchides was with the right horn, and the legion drew near on both sides, and they sounded the trumpets. {9:13} But those also who were from the side of Judas, these also now cried out, and the earth shook at the noise of the armies. And the battle was joined from morning, even until evening. {9:14} And Judas saw that the stronger part of the army of Bacchides was on the right side, and all the steadfast in heart came together with him. {9:15} And the right part was crushed by them, and he pursued them even to Mount Azotus. {9:16} And those who were with the left horn saw that the right horn was crushed, and so they followed after Judas, and those who were with him, at their back. {9:17} And the battle was hard fought, and there fell many wounded from one side and the other. {9:18} And Judas fell, and the others fled away. {9:19} And Jonathan and Simon carried Judas, their brother, and they buried him in the sepulcher of their fathers, in the city of Modin. {9:20} And all the people of Israel wept for him with a great wailing, and they mourned him for many days. {9:21} And they said, “Such a powerful man has fallen, who accomplished the salvation of the people of Israel!” {9:22} But the rest of the words, about the wars of Judas, and the virtuous acts that he did, and his magnitude, have not been written. For they were very many. {9:23} And it happened that, after the death of Judas, the iniquitous began to emerge in all the parts of Israel, and they began to encourage all those who worked iniquity. {9:24} In those days, there occurred a very great famine, and the entire region handed itself over to Bacchides. {9:25} And Bacchides chose impious men, and he appointed them as rulers of the region. {9:26} And they sought out and persecuted the friends of Judas, and they led them to Bacchides, and he took vengeance on them and abused them. {9:27} And there occurred a great tribulation in Israel, such as had never been, since the day that there was no prophet seen in Israel. {9:28} And all the friends of Judas gathered together, and they said to Jonathan: {9:29} “Since your brother Judas has fallen away, there is not a man like him to go forth against our enemies, against Bacchides and those who are the enemies of our nation. {9:30} And so now, we have chosen you in his place, on this day, to be our leader and commander in order to wage our wars.” {9:31} And so, at that time, Jonathan took upon himself the leadership, and he rose up in the place of Judas, his brother. {9:32} And Bacchides knew of it, and he sought to kill him. {9:33} And Jonathan and his brother Simon knew of this, and so did all who were with them. And they fled into the desert of Tekoa, and they settled by the water of lake Asphar. {9:34} And Bacchides knew of it, and on the day of the Sabbath, he himself arrived, with all his army, across the Jordan. {9:35} And Jonathan sent his brother, a commander of the people, to ask the Nabateans, his friends, to lend them their equipment, which was abundant. {9:36} And the sons of Jambri went forth from Medeba, and they captured John, and all that he had, and they went away in possession of these. {9:37} After these events, it was reported to Jonathan and his brother Simon that the sons of Jambri were having a great marriage celebration, and that they would be leading the bride, a daughter of one of the great leaders of Canaan, out of Medeba with great fanfare. {9:38} And they remembered the blood of John, their brother. And they went up and hid themselves under the cover of the mountain. {9:39} And they lifted up their eyes and saw. And behold, a tumult and a well-prepared multitude. And the bridegroom proceeded, with his friends and his brothers, to meet them with timbrels, and musical instruments, and many weapons. {9:40} And they rose up against them out of ambush, and they killed them, and there fell many wounded, and the remainder fled into the mountains, and they took all their spoils. {9:41} And the marriage celebration was turned into mourning, and the voice of their musical instruments into lamentation. {9:42} And they took revenge for the blood of their brother, and they returned to the bank of the Jordan. {9:43} And Bacchides heard about this, and he came on the day of the Sabbath all the way to the coast of the Jordan, with a great force. {9:44} And Jonathan said to his own: “Let us rise up and fight against our enemies. For it is not today, as it was yesterday, or the day before. {9:45} For behold, the war is before us, and truly, with the water of the Jordan here and there, and the banks, and the marshes, and the woods: there is no place for us to turn aside. {9:46} Therefore, cry out now to heaven so that you may be freed from the hand of your enemies.” And they joined together in warfare. {9:47} And Jonathan extended his hand to strike Bacchides, but he turned away from him in retreat. {9:48} And Jonathan, and those who were with him, leaped forward into the Jordan, and they swam across the Jordan to them. {9:49} And there fell from the side of Bacchides on that day one thousand men. And they returned to Jerusalem. {9:50} And they built fortified cities in Judea: the fortification that was in Jericho, and in Emmaus, and in Bethhoron, and in Bethel, and Timnath, and Pharathon, and Tephon, with high walls, and gates, and bars. {9:51} And he stationed garrisons in them, so that those in Israel became trained in warfare. {9:52} And he fortified the city of Bethzur, and of Gazara, and the stronghold, and he stationed auxiliaries in them, with supplies of rations. {9:53} And he took the sons of the leaders of the region for hostages, and put them in the stronghold in Jerusalem under guard. {9:54} Now in the second month of the one hundred and fifty-third year, Alcimus instructed that the walls of the inner court of the sanctuary be destroyed, and that the works of the prophets be destroyed. And he began to destroy them. {9:55} At that time, Alcimus was struck, and his works were hindered, and his mouth was closed shut, and he was weakened with paralysis, so that he was no longer able speak a word, nor to give orders concerning his house. {9:56} And Alcimus died at that time, in great torment. {9:57} And Bacchides saw that Alcimus was dead. And he returned to the king. And the land was quiet for two years. {9:58} And all the iniquitous considered together, saying, “Behold, Jonathan, and those who are with him, live in quietude and confidence. Now, therefore, let us bring forth Bacchides, and he will capture them all, in one night.” {9:59} So they went and gave counsel to him. {9:60} And he rose up, so as to advance with a great army. And he secretly sent letters to his associates who were in Judea, to seize Jonathan and those who were with him. But they were not able, for their plan became known to them. {9:61} And he apprehended, from the men of the region, those who were the leaders of this malice, fifty men. And he killed them. {9:62} And Jonathan, and Simon, and those who were with him, withdrew into Bethbasi, which is in the desert. And he repaired its breaches, and they fortified it. {9:63} And Bacchides knew about it, and he gathered together all his multitude. And he reported it to those who were from Judea. {9:64} And he came and made camp above Bethbasi, and he fought against it for many days, and he made machines of war. {9:65} But Jonathan left behind his brother Simon in the city, and he went out into the country, and he approached with a number of men, {9:66} and he struck Odomera and his brothers, and the sons of Phasiron, in their tents. And he began to slaughter and to increase in forces. {9:67} In truth, Simon, and those who were with him, went forth from the city and burned the machines of war, {9:68} and they fought against Bacchides, and he was crushed by them. And they afflicted him greatly, because his counsel and his meetings were in vain. {9:69} And he was angry with the men of iniquity who had given him counsel to come into their region, and he killed many of them. But he decided to depart with the remainder into their country. {9:70} And Jonathan knew of it, and he sent ambassadors to him to arrange a peace with him, and to restore the captives to him. {9:71} And he accepted it willingly, and he acted according to his words, and he swore that he would do him no evil all the days of his life. {9:72} And he restored to him the captives which he previously had been given from the land of Judah. And he turned back and went away into his own land, and he no longer drew near, in order to enter into their borders. {9:73} And so the sword ceased from Israel. And Jonathan lived in Michmash, and, in that place, Jonathan began to judge the people, and he destroyed the impious out of Israel.

[1 Maccabees 10] {10:1} And in the one hundred and sixty-sixth year, Alexander, the son of Antiochus, who was surnamed the illustrious, came up and occupied Ptolemais, and they received him, and he reigned there. {10:2} And king Demetrius heard of it, and he gathered together an exceedingly great army, and he went forth to meet him in battle. {10:3} And Demetrius sent a letter to Jonathan, with peaceful words, to magnify him. {10:4} For he said, “Let us first make a peace with him, before he makes one with Alexander against us. {10:5} For he will remember all the evils that we have done to him, and to his brother, and to his nation.” {10:6} And he gave him the authority to gather together an army, and to fabricate weapons, so that he would be his associate. And the hostages who were in the stronghold, he ordered to be handed over to him. {10:7} And Jonathan came to Jerusalem, and he read the letters in the hearing of all the people and of those who were in the stronghold. {10:8} And they were struck with a great fear, because they heard that the king gave him the authority to gather together an army. {10:9} And the hostages were handed over to Jonathan, and he restored them to their parents. {10:10} And Jonathan lived in Jerusalem, and he began to rebuild and repair the city. {10:11} And he told those doing the work to build up the walls, and mount Zion, all around, with square stones, as a fortification. And they did so. {10:12} Then the foreigners, who were in the fortifications that Bacchides had built, fled away. {10:13} And each one abandoned his place and departed into his own land. {10:14} Only in Bethzur did there remain some others of these, who had forsaken the law and the precepts of God. For this was a refuge for them. {10:15} And king Alexander heard of the promises that Demetrius promised to Jonathan. And they described the battles to him, and the virtuous deeds that he and his brothers had done, and the hardships that they had endured. {10:16} And he said: “Would we ever find another such man? And so now, let us make him our friend and our associate.” {10:17} And so, he wrote a letter, and he sent it to him, according to these words, saying: {10:18} “King Alexander to his brother, Jonathan: greetings. {10:19} We have heard of you, that you are a man of power and strength, and that you are fit to be our friend. {10:20} And so now, on this day, we appoint that you be our friend, (and he sent him a purple robe, and a crown of gold,) and that you be of one mind with us in our affairs, and that you keep friendship with us.” {10:21} Then Jonathan clothed himself with the holy vestment, in the seventh month, in the one hundred and sixtieth year, on the solemn day of the Feast of Tabernacles. And he gathered together an army, and he made an abundance of weapons. {10:22} And Demetrius heard these words, and he was exceedingly sorrowful, and he said: {10:23} “What have we done in this, that Alexander has gone before us to obtain the friendship of the Jews to strengthen himself? {10:24} I also will write to them words of petition, and offer positions of rank and gifts, so that they may act in assistance to me.” {10:25} And he wrote to them in these words: “King Demetrius to the nation of the Jews: greetings. {10:26} Since you have kept the peace with us, and have remained in our friendship, and have not made agreements with our enemies, we have heard of this, and we are glad. {10:27} And so now, persevere still to remain faithful to us, and we will reward you with good things for what you have done for us. {10:28} And we will repay you for your many expenses, and we will give you gifts. {10:29} And now, I release you, and all the Jews, from tributes, and I grant to you the payments of salt, and I send back the crowns and the thirds of the seed. {10:30} And the one half portion of the fruit from the trees, which is my share, I relinquish to you from this day and hereafter, so that it shall not be taken from the land of Judah, nor from the three cities that have been added to it from Samaria and Galilee, from this day and for all time. {10:31} And let Jerusalem be holy and free within its borders, and let the tenths and tributes be for itself. {10:32} And I even return authority over the stronghold, which is in Jerusalem, and I give it to the high priest, in order to appoint in it any such men as he will choose, who will guard it. {10:33} And every soul of the Jews who were taken captive from the land of Judah in all my kingdom, I set at liberty without charge, so that they are all released from tributes, even of their cattle. {10:34} And all the days of solemnities, and the Sabbaths, and the new moons, and the decreed days, and the three days before the solemn day, and three days after the solemn day, shall all be days of immunity and remission for all the Jews who are in my kingdom. {10:35} And no one will have the authority to do anything, or to incite any plots, against any of them, in all cases. {10:36} And let there be enrolled from the Jews, into the army of the king, up to thirty thousand men. And allowances shall be given to them, just as is due to all the king's army. And some of them shall be appointed to be in the fortresses of the great king. {10:37} And some of them shall be set over the affairs of the kingdom, those who act with faith, and let the leaders be from them, and let them walk by their own laws, just as the king has commanded in the land of Judah. {10:38} And the three cities that have been added to Judea from the region of Samaria, let them be counted with Judea, so that they may be united as one, and so that they may obey no other authority, except the high priest. {10:39} Ptolemais and its confines, I give as a free gift to the holy places that are in Jerusalem, for the necessary expenses of the holy things. {10:40} And I give, every year, fifteen thousand shekels of silver from the allotment of the king, from what belongs to me. {10:41} And all that has been left over, which those who were set over the affairs in prior years have not paid: from this time, they will give it to the works of the house. {10:42} And beyond this, they shall receive five thousand shekels of silver from the allotment of the holy places each year, and this will belong to the priests who perform the ministry. {10:43} And whoever will flee into the temple that is in Jerusalem, or in any of its parts, being liable before the king in any matter, let them be released, and all that is theirs in my kingdom, let them have it freely. {10:44} And as to the works of rebuilding and repairing the holy places, the expenses shall be given from the king's revenues. {10:45} And as to the raising of the walls of Jerusalem and the fortifications all around it, the expenses shall be given from the king's revenues, as also for the building of the walls in Judea." {10:46} So when Jonathan and the people heard these words, they did not believe or accept them, because they remembered the great malice that he had done in Israel, for he had troubled them greatly. {10:47} And so they were pleased with Alexander, because he had been to them a leader with words of peace, and they were of assistance to him every day. {10:48} And so king Alexander gathered together a great army, and he moved his camp against Demetrius. {10:49} And the two kings joined together in battle, and the army of Demetrius fled away, and Alexander followed after him, and he closed in on them. {10:50} And the battle was hard fought, until the sun went down. And Demetrius was slain on that day. {10:51} And Alexander sent ambassadors to Ptolemy, the king of Egypt, according to these words, saying: {10:52} "Know that I have returned to my kingdom, and I am seated upon the throne of my fathers, and I have obtained the leadership, and I have crushed Demetrius, and I have taken possession of our country, and I have joined battle with him, and both he and his camp have been crushed by us, and we are seated on the throne of his kingdom. {10:54} And now, let us establish a friendship with one with another. And give me your daughter as a wife, and I will be your son-in-law, and I will give gifts that are worthy of you, to both you and her.” {10:55} And king Ptolemy responded by saying: "Happy is the day on which you were returned to the land of your fathers, and you sat on the throne of their kingdom. {10:56} And now, I will do for you as you have written. But meet with me at Ptolemais, so that we may see one another, and so that I may espouse her to you, just as you have said.” {10:57} And so Ptolemy departed from Egypt, both he and his daughter Cleopatra, and he arrived at Ptolemais in the one hundred and sixty-second year. {10:58} And king Alexander met him, and he gave him Cleopatra, his daughter. And he celebrated her marriage at Ptolemais with great glory, just as befits kings. {10:59} And king Alexander wrote to Jonathan, that he should come to meet him. {10:60} And he went forth with glory to Ptolemais, and he met the two kings there, and he gave them much silver, and gold, and gifts. And he found favor in their sight. {10:61} And some of the pestilent men of Israel, men of iniquity, came together against him, interrupting with objections against him. And the king did not attend to them. {10:62} And he ordered that Jonathan's garments be taken away from him, and that he be clothed in purple. And they did so. And the king arranged for him to sit with him. {10:63} And he said to his princes, “Go out with him into the midst of the city, and make a proclamation, so that no one may raise objections against him in any matter, and so that no one may bother him for any reason.” {10:64} And so it happened that, when his accusers saw his glory being proclaimed, and him clothed in purple, they all fled away. {10:65} And the king magnified him, and he enrolled him among his foremost friends, and he gave him a position as governor and as a participant in his dominion. {10:66} And Jonathan returned to Jerusalem with peace and joy. {10:67} In the one hundred and sixty-fifth year, Demetrius, the son of Demetrius, came from Crete into the land of his fathers. {10:68} And king Alexander heard of it, and he was very sorrowful, and he returned to Antioch. {10:69} And king Demetrius appointed Apollonius as his general, who was in charge of Cœlesyria. And he gathered together a great army, and he drew near to Jamnia. And he sent to Jonathan, the high priest, {10:70} saying: “You alone resist us, and so I have been brought to derision and disgrace, because you exercise your power against us in the mountains. {10:71} Now, therefore, if you trust in your forces, descend to us in the plains, and there let us contest one another. For the power of war is with me. {10:72} Inquire, and learn who I am, and the others, who are auxiliaries to me, who also say that your feet cannot stand before our face, for your fathers have twice been put to flight in their own land. {10:73} And now, how will you be able to withstand the horsemen, and so great an army in the plains, where there is no stone, or rock, or place to flee?” {10:74} But when Jonathan heard the words of Apollonius, he was moved in his soul. And he chose ten thousand men, and he departed from Jerusalem, and Simon, his brother, met him to help him. {10:75} And they positioned their tents near Joppa, but they excluded him from behind them in the camp a thousand horsemen. And Apollonius secretly left them, because a garrison from Apollonius was in Joppa. And he went toward Azotus, like one making a journey, but he suddenly departed into the plains, because he had a great number of horsemen, and he trusted in them. And Jonathan followed after him to Azotus, and they joined together in battle. And Apollonius secretly left behind them in the camp a thousand horsemen. And Jonathan realized that there was an ambush behind him, and they surrounded his camp, and they cast darts at the people from morning until evening. But the people stood firm, just as Jonathan had instructed them, and their horses suffered hardships. Then Simon drew forth his army, and he sent them against the legion. For the horsemen were wearied. And they were crushed by him, and they fled. And those who were scattered throughout the plains fled to Azotus, and they entered into Bethdagon, so that, by their idol in that place, they might save themselves. But Jonathan set fire to Azotus and to the cities that were all around it, and he captured their spoils and the temple of Dagon. And he burned with fire all those who had fled into it. And so it was that those who fell by the sword, with those who were burned, were nearly eight thousand men. And Jonathan, removed his encampment from there, and he took up a position against Askalon. And they went out of the city to meet him with great glory. And Jonathan returned to Jerusalem with his own, having many spoils. And it happened that, when king Alexander heard these words, he added still more glory to Jonathan. And he sent him a clasp of gold, as is customary to be given to those who are of royal lineage. And he gave him Ekron, and all its borders, as a possession.

[1 Maccabees 11] And the king of Egypt gathered together an army, like the sand that is along the shore of the sea, and many ships. And he sought to obtain the kingdom of Alexander by deceit, and to add it to his own kingdom. And he departed into Syria with words of peace, and they opened the cities to him, and they were meeting with him. For king Alexander had commanded them to go out to meet him, because he was his father-in-law. But when Ptolemy entered a city, he placed garrisons of soldiers in each of the cities. And when he drew near to Azotus, they revealed to him that the temple of Dagon had been burned with fire, and Azotus and its suburbs had been demolished, and bodies had been abandoned, and that, for those who had been cut to pieces in the war, they had made a tomb along the way. And they told the king that Jonathan had done these things, so as to make him hated. But the king remained silent. And Jonathan went to meet the king at Joppa with glory, and they greeted one another, and they stayed there. And Jonathan went with the king as far as the river, which is called Eleutherus. And he returned to Jerusalem. But king Ptolemy obtained the dominion of the coastal cities, as far as Seleucia, and he devised evil plans against Alexander. And he sent ambassadors to Demetrius, saying: “Come, let us compose a pact between us, and I will give you my daughter, whom Alexander had, and you will reign in the kingdom of your father.” For I regret that I have given him my daughter. For he has sought to kill me.” And he slandered him, because he coveted his kingdom. And he took away his daughter, and he gave her to Demetrius, and he alienated himself from Alexander, and his hostilities were made manifest. And Ptolemy entered Antioch, and he placed two diadems upon his head, that of Egypt, and that of Asia. Now king Alexander was in Cilicia at that time, because the people of those places were rebelling. And when Alexander heard of it, he came against him in warfare. And king Ptolemy led forth his army, and he met him with a strong hand, and he put him to flight. And king Ptolemy was exalted. And Zabdiel the Arab took off the head of Alexander, and he sent it to Ptolemy. And king Ptolemy died on the third day, and those who were in the strongholds were destroyed by those who were in the camp. And Demetrius reigned in the one hundred and sixty-seventh year. In those days, Jonathan gathered together those who were in Judea, in order to fight against the stronghold that was in Jerusalem. And they made many machines of war against it. And so, certain men of iniquity, who hated their own people, went forth to king Demetrius, and they reported to him that Jonathan was besieging the stronghold. And when he heard it, he became angry. And immediately he came to Ptolemais, and he wrote to Jonathan that he should not besiege the stronghold, but that he should meet with him promptly, for a discussion. But when Jonathan heard this, he ordered them to besiege it. And he chose some from the elders of Israel and from the priests, and he put himself in danger. And he took gold, and silver, and vestments, and many other presents, and he went to the king at Ptolemais, and he found favor in his sight. And some of the iniquitous from his nation came forward with objections against him. And the king treated him just as those who were before him had treated him. And he exalted him in the sight of all his friends. And he confirmed him in the high priesthood and in all the other honors that he held before, and he made him the leader of his friends. And Jonathan requested of the king that he would make Judea free from tribute, along with the three districts, and Samaria, and its confines. And he promised him three hundred talents. And the king consented. And he wrote letters to Jonathan about all these things, continuing in this way: “King Demetrius to his brother Jonathan, and to the nation of the Jews: greetings. We are sending you a copy of the letter that we wrote to Lasthenes, our parent, about you, so that you will know. ‘King Demetrius to Lasthenes, his parent: greetings. We have determined to do good to the people of the Jews, who are our friends and who keep to what is just with us, because of their good will, which they hold toward us. Therefore, we have assigned to them all the parts of Judea, and the three cities, Lydda and Ramatha, which were added to Judea from Samaria, and all their confines, to be set apart for all those sacrificing in Jerusalem, in place of that which the king previously received from them each year, and in place of the fruits of the land and of the fruit trees. And, as for the rest of that which pertains to us from tithes and tributes, from this time forward, we release them from these, as well as from the drying areas of salt and the crowns that were presented to us. {11:36} All these, we concede to them, and nothing of these shall be revoked, from this time forward and for all time. {11:37} Now, therefore, take care to make a copy of these things, and let it be given to Jonathan and set upon the holy mountain, in an honorable place.' " {11:38} And king Demetrius, seeing that the land was quieted in his sight and that nothing resisted him, sent all his forces away, each one to his own place, except the foreign army, which he had drawn together from the islands of the nations. And so all the troops of his fathers were hostile to him. {11:39} But there was a certain one, Trypho, who was previously on Alexander's side. And he said that all the army murmured against Demetrius, and so he went to Imalkue the Arab, who raised Antiochus, the son of Alexander. {11:40} And he persuaded him to deliver him to him, so that he would reign in his father's place. And he reported to him what Demetrius had done, and that his army was hostile to him. And he remained there for many days. {11:41} And Jonathan sent to king Demetrius, so that he would cast out those who were in the stronghold in Jerusalem and those who were with the garrisons, because they fought against Israel. {11:42} And Demetrius sent to Jonathan, saying: "I will not only do this for you and your people, but I will elevate your glory and your nation, when opportunity shall serve. {11:43} Now, therefore, you will do well if you send men as auxiliaries to me. For all my army has withdrawn from me." {11:44} And Jonathan sent three thousand strong men to him to Antioch. And they came to the king, and the king was delighted at their arrival. {11:45} And those who were of the city gathered together, one hundred and twenty thousand men, and they wanted to execute the king. {11:46} And the king fled into the royal court. And those who were of the city, occupied the passageways of the city, and they began to fight. {11:47} And the king called the Jews to his assistance. And they came together before him at the same time, and then they all dispersed themselves throughout the city. {11:48} And they killed, in that day, one hundred thousand men, and they set fire to the city, and they seized many spoils in that day, and they freed the king. {11:49} And those who were of the city saw that the Jews had taken the city, just as they wanted, and they were weakened in their resolve, and they cried out to the king with supplication, saying, {1:50} "Grant us a pledge, and let the Jews cease from assailing us and the city." {11:51} And they threw down their arms, and they made peace. And the Jews were glorified in the sight of the king and in the sight of all who were in his realm. And they became renowned in the kingdom, and they returned to Jerusalem, holding many spoils. {11:52} And so king Demetrius sat on the throne of his kingdom. And the land was quieted in his sight. {11:53} And he falsified everything whatsoever that he had said. And he alienated himself from Jonathan, and he did not repay him according to the benefits that he had received in tribute from him. And he vexed him greatly. {11:54} But after this, Trypho returned, and with him was Antiochus, the adolescent boy, and he reigned, and he put a diadem on himself. {11:55} And there assembled before him all the troops, which Demetrius had dispersed, and they fought against him. And he turned his back and fled. {11:56} And Trypho took the elephants, and he obtained Antioch. {11:57} And young Antiochus wrote to Jonathan, saying: "I confirm you in the priesthood, and I appoint you over the four cities, so as to be among the king's friends." {11:58} And he sent him vessels of gold for his ministry, and he gave him the authority to drink from gold, and to be clothed in purple, and to have a golden clasp. {11:59} And he appointed his brother Simon as governor, from the borders of Tyre, all the way to the borders of Egypt. {11:60} Then Jonathan went out, and he passed through the cities across the river. And all the armies of Syria were gathered together in assistance to him, and he came to Askalon, and those from the city met him honorably. {11:61} And he went from there to Gaza. And those who were in Gaza closed themselves in. And so he besieged it, and he burned all that was around the city, and he plundered it. {11:62} And those of Gaza petitioned Jonathan, and he pledged to them with his right hand, and he accepted their sons as hostages and sent them to Jerusalem. And he traveled through the country, as far as Damascus. {11:63} And Jonathan heard that the leaders of Demetrius were acting treacherously at Kadesh, which is in Galilee, with a great army, intending to remove him from the affairs of the kingdom. {11:64} And he went to meet them. But he left his brother Simon behind in the countryside. {11:65} And Simon took a position against Bethzur, and he assailed it for many days, and he closed them in. {11:66} And they asked him to accept a pledge, and he granted this to them. And he cast them out of there, and he seized the city, and he placed a garrison in it. {11:67} And Jonathan and his camp took a position by the water of Gennesaret, and, before first light, they were standing watch in the plains of Hazor. {11:68} And behold, an army of foreigners met him in the plains. And they set up an ambush against him in the mountains. But he met them from the opposite direction. {11:69} Yet those lying in ambush then rose up from their places and joined them in combat. {11:70} And all those who were from Jonathan's side fled, and not one of them was left, except Mattathias, the son of Absalom, and Judas, the son of Chalphi, the leader of military training. {11:71} And so Jonathan tore his garments, and he placed dirt on his head, and he prayed. {11:72} And Jonathan turned back toward them in battle, and he put them to flight, and they fought. {11:73} And when those from his side, who had fled, saw this, they returned to him, and with him they all pursued them, even to Kadesh, to their camp, and they even passed beyond there. {11:74} And there fell from the foreigners on that day three thousand men. And Jonathan returned to Jerusalem.
high priest from Arius, who reigned then among you, so that you would be our brothers, just as the copy that is written below states. 12:8 And Onias received the man whom you had sent with honor. And he received the letters, in which was conveyed the alliance and peace treaty. 12:9 We, though, have no need of these things, having for our solace the sacred books, which are in our hands. 12:10 We prefer to send to you, so as to renew the brotherhood and friendship, lest we should, in effect, become a stranger to you, for much time has passed since you sent to us. 12:11 Therefore, we will remember you, at all times without ceasing, in our solemnities and other days, when it is fitting, in the sacrifices that we offer, and in our observances, just as it is fitting and right to remember brothers. 12:12 And so, we rejoice at your glory. 12:13 But many tribulations and many wars have surrounded us, and the kings who are around us have fought against us. 12:14 But we are not willing to trouble you, nor the rest of our allies and friends, about these battles. 12:15 For we have assistance from heaven, and we have been delivered, and our enemies have been humbled. 12:16 And so, we have chosen Numenius, the son of Antiochus, and Antipater, the son of Jason, and we have sent them to the Romans, to renew the former peace treaty and alliance with them. 12:17 And so, we have commanded them to also come to you, and to greet you, and to deliver our letters to you, about the renewal of our brotherhood. 12:18 And now, you would do well to respond to us about these things.” 12:19 And this is a copy of the letters that he sent to Onias: 12:20 “Arius, king of the Spartans, to Onias, the great priest: greetings. 12:21 It is found in scripture, about the Spartans and the Jews, that they are brothers, and that they are of the family of Abraham. 12:22 And since we know these things, you would do well to write to us about your peace. 12:23 But we also have written back to you that our cattle and our possessions are yours, and yours are ours. And so, we have commanded that these things should be announced to you.” 12:24 And Jonathan heard that the leaders from Demetrius had returned again with a greater army than before, so as to fight against him. 12:25 And so, he departed from Jerusalem, and he met them in the region of Hamath. For he did not give them time to enter into his own region. 12:26 And he sent spies into their camp, and, returning, they reported that they planned to come upon them in the night. 12:27 And when the sun had set, Jonathan instructed his men to stand watch, and to be in arms, ready to fight, all night long, and he stationed guards around the camp. 12:28 And the adversaries heard that Jonathan was prepared, with his own, for warfare. And they were struck with fear and dread in their heart. And they kindled fires in their camp. 12:29 But Jonathan, and those who were with him, did not know about it until morning. For they saw the lights burning. 12:30 And Jonathan pursued them, but did not overtake them. For they had crossed the river Eleutherus. 12:31 And Jonathan diverted toward the Arabians, who are called Zabadeans. And he struck them and took their spoils. 12:32 And he regrouped and came to Damascus, and he passed through all that region. 12:33 But Simon went forth and came as far as Askalon, and the nearby fortresses, but he turned aside to Joppa and occupied it, 12:34 (for he had heard that they intended to hand over the fortress that was on the side of Demetrius) and he stationed a guard there to keep it. 12:35 And Jonathan returned, and he called together the elders of the people, and he decided with them to build fortresses in Judea, 12:36 and to build up the walls in Jerusalem, and to raise a great height between the stronghold and the city, in order to separate it from the city, so that it would stand alone and would have neither buying, nor selling there. 12:37 And they came together to build up the city. And the wall that was over the brook, toward the rising of the sun, was fallen. And he repaired that which is called Chaphenatha. 12:38 And Simon rebuilt Adida in Shephelah, and he fortified it, and he set up gates and bars. 12:39 And so, when Trypho had decided to reign over Asia, and to assume the diadem, and to extend his hand against king Antiochus, 12:40 he was afraid, lest Simon might not permit him, but might fight against him. So he sought to seize him and to kill him. And he rose up and went to Bethshan. 12:41 And Jonathan went out to meet him with forty thousand men chosen for battle, and he came to Bethshan. 12:42 And when Trypho saw that Jonathan came with a great army to extend his hand against him, he was afraid. 12:43 And so he received him with honor, and he commended him to all his friends, and he gave him gifts. And he instructed his troops to obey him, just as himself. 12:44 And he said to Jonathan: “Why have you troubled all the people, when there is no war between us? 12:45 And now, send them back to their houses, but choose for yourself a few men, who may remain with you, and come with me to Ptolemais, and I will deliver it to you, and the rest of the fortresses, and the army, and all who are in charge of governing, and I will turn and go away. For this is the reason that I came.” 12:46 And Jonathan believed him, and he did as he said. And he sent away his army, and they departed into the land of Judah. 12:47 But he retained with him three thousand men, of whom he sent two thousand into Galilee, and one thousand came with him. 12:48 But when Jonathan entered into Ptolemais, those of Ptolemais closed the gates of the city, and they captured him. And all those who entered with him, they executed with the sword. 12:49 And Trypho sent an army and horsemen into Galilee, and into the great plain, to destroy all the associates of Jonathan. 12:50 But, when they had thought that Jonathan had been captured and slain, along with all who were with him, they encouraged one another, and they went out prepared for battle. 12:51 Then those who had pursued them, seeing that they stood for their lives, were turned back. 12:52 And so, they all came into the land of Judah with peace. And they bewailed Jonathan, and those who had been with him, exceedingly. And Israel mourned with great lamentation. 12:53 Then all the nations that were all around them sought to crush them. For they said: 12:54 “They have no leader or helper. Now therefore, let us fight against them and take away the memory of them from among men.”
of Israel, and I have been left alone. {13:5} And now, it is not necessary for me to spare my life in any time of tribulation. For I am not better than my brothers. {13:6} And so, I will vindicate my people and the sanctuary, and likewise our children and wives. For all the Gentiles have gathered together to crush us, solely out of malice.” {13:7} And the spirit of the people was immediately enkindled, when they heard these words. {13:8} And they responded with a loud voice, saying: “You are our leader in place of Judas and of Jonathan, your brother. {13:9} Fight our battles, and we will do whatever you tell us to do.” {13:10} And so, gathering together all the men of war, he accelerated the completion of all the walls of Jerusalem, and he fortified it all around. {13:11} And he sent Jonathan, the son of Absalom, and with him a new army, into Joppa, and he cast out those who were in it, and he himself remained there. {13:12} And Trypho moved from Ptolemais, with a great army, to come into the land of Judah, and Jonathan was with him in custody. {13:13} But Simon took up a position at Addus, opposite the face of the plains. {13:14} And when Trypho realized that Simon rose up in the place of his brother, Jonathan, and that he would be joining in battle with him, he sent messengers to him, {13:15} saying: “We have detained your brother, Jonathan, because of the money that he owed to the king’s account, because of the matters for which he was responsible. {13:16} And now, send a hundred talents of silver, and two of his sons for hostages, so that when he is dismissed, he may not flee from us. And then we will release him.” {13:17} And Simon knew that he was speaking deceitfully to him. Yet he ordered the money and the boys to be given, lest he should bring upon himself a great hostility from the people of Israel, who might have said, {13:18} “It is because he did not send the money and the boys that he perished.” {13:19} So he sent the boys and one hundred talents. And he was lying and did not dismiss Jonathan. {13:20} And after this, Trypho came into the country, to crush it. And they circled around by the way that leads to Adora. And Simon and his camp marched into every place, wherever they went. {13:21} But those who were in the stronghold sent messengers to Trypho, so that he would hurry to come through the desert, and to send them provisions. {13:22} And Trypho prepared all his horsemen to arrive on that night. But there was a very great snowfall, and he did not come into Gilead. {13:23} And when he approached toward Baskama, he killed Jonathan and his sons there. {13:24} And Trypho turned back and went into his own land. {13:25} And Simon sent and took the bones of Jonathan, his brother, and he buried them in Modin, the city of his fathers. {13:26} And all Israel bewailed him with great lamentation. And they mourned him for many days. {13:27} And Simon built, over the sepulcher of his father and of his brothers, a building, lofty to see, of polished stone, front and back. {13:28} And he set up seven pyramids, one against another, for his father, and his mother, and his four brothers. {13:29} And around these he placed great columns; and upon the columns, weapons, as a continual memorial; and beside the weapons, carvings of ships, which might be seen by all those who sail the sea. {13:30} This is the sepulcher that he made in Modin, even to this day. {13:31} But Trypho, when he was on a journey with the young king, Antiochus, killed him by deceit. {13:32} And he reigned in his place, and he put on the diadem of Asia, and he caused great scourges upon the land. {13:33} And Simon built up the strongholds of Judea, fortifying them with high towers, and great walls, and gates and bars. And he placed provisions in the fortresses. {13:34} And Simon chose men, and he sent to king Demetrius, so that he would grant a remission to the region, for all that Trypho did was to carry out plundering. {13:35} And king Demetrius responded to this word, and he wrote a letter in this manner: {13:36} “King Demetrius to Simon, the high priest and friend of kings, and to the elders, and to the people of the Jews: greetings. {13:37} The golden crown and the bahem that you sent, we have received. And we are prepared to make a great peace with you, and to write to the officers of the king to remit to you the things that we have released. {13:38} For whatever we have established remains in force for you. The strongholds that you have built, let them be yours. {13:39} Likewise, any oversight or fault, even to this day, we forgive it, along with the crown that you owed. And if anything else was taxed in Jerusalem, now let it not be taxed. {13:40} And if any of you is fit to be enrolled among our own, let them be enrolled. And let there be peace between us.” {13:41} In the one hundred and seventieth year, the yoke of the Gentiles was taken away from Israel. {13:42} And the people of Israel began to write in the tablets and the public records, in the first year under Simon: high priest, great commander, and leader of the Jews. {13:43} In those days, Simon took up a position at Gaza, and he encamped around it, and he made machines of war, and he applied them to the city, and he struck one tower and captured it. {13:44} And those who were within the machine broke forth into the city. And a great commotion occurred in the city. {13:45} And those who were in the city ascended upon the wall, with their wives and children, having torn their tunics. And they cried out with a loud voice, asking Simon to grant them a pledge. {13:46} And they said, “Do not repay us according to our malice, but according to your mercy.” {13:47} And weeping, Simon did not destroy them. Yet he cast them out of the city, and he cleansed the buildings, in which there had been idols. And then he entered into it with hymns, blessing the Lord. {13:48} And, having cast out of it all uncleanness, he placed in it men who would observe the law. And he fortified it and made it his dwelling place. {13:49} But those who were in the stronghold of Jerusalem were prohibited from going out and entering the region, and from buying and selling. And they were very hungry, and many of them perished through famine. {13:50} And they cried out to Simon, that they might receive a pledge, and he granted it to them. And he cast them out of there, and he cleansed the stronghold from contaminations. {13:51} And they entered into it on the twenty-third day of the second month, in the one hundred and seventy-first year, with thanksgiving, and palm branches, and lyres, and cymbals, and psalteries, and hymns, and canticles, because a great enemy had been crushed out of Israel. {13:52} And he established that these days should be kept every year with rejoicing. {13:53} And he fortified the mountain of the temple, which was near the stronghold, and he lived there himself, along with those who were with him. {13:54} And Simon saw that John, his son, was a valiant man in battle. And so he appointed him as commander of all the forces. And he lived in Gazara.
he went into Media to obtain auxiliaries to fight against Trypho. [14:2] And Arsaces, the king of Persia and Media, heard that Demetrius entered his confides, and so he sent one of his princes to capture him alive and to bring him to him. [14:3] And he went out and struck the camp of Demetrius. And captured him and brought him to Arsaces, and he placed him under guard. [14:4] And the entire land of Judah was quiet during all the days of Simon, and he sought what was good for his people. And his power and his glory pleased them through all his days. [14:5] And, with all his glory, he accepted Joppa as a port, and he made it an entrance to the islands of the sea. [14:6] And he enlarged the boundaries of his nation, and he controlled the countryside. [14:7] And he gathered together many captives, and he was the ruler of Gazara and Bethzur, and the stronghold. And he took uncleanness away from it, and there was no one who could withstand him. [14:8] And each one cultivated his land in peace, and the land of Judah produced its fruits, and the trees of the fields their fruit. [14:9] All the elders sat in the streets, and they discussed what was good for the country, and the youths clothed themselves in glory and in the robes of war. [14:10] And he gave tributes of provisions to the cities, and he decreed that they would have equipment for fortification, so that the fame of his glory was renowned, even to the ends of the earth. [14:11] He caused there to be peace over the land, and Israel was rejoicing with great joy. [14:12] And each one sat under his vine and under his fig tree. And there was no one who would terrify them. [14:13] There was nothing left of those who might fight against them in the land; kings had been crushed in those days. [14:14] And he confirmed all the humble of his people, and he sought the law, and he took away every iniquity and evil. [14:15] He glorified the sanctuary, and he multiplied the vessels of the holy places. [14:16] And it was heard at Rome, and even in Sparta, that Jonathan had passed away. And they were very sorrowful. [14:17] But when they heard that Simon, his brother, had been made high priest in his place, and that he obtained the entire country and the cities in it, [14:18] they wrote to him on tablets of brass, so as to renew the friendship and alliance, which they had made with Judas and with Jonathan, his brothers. [14:19] And they were read in the sight of the assembly at Jerusalem. And this is a copy of the letters that the Spartans sent: [14:20] "The leaders and the council of the people, and the leaders of the Spartans, to Simon, the great priest, and to the elders, and the priests, and the rest of the people of the Jews, their brothers: greetings. [14:21] The ambassadors who were sent to our people have reported to us of your glory, and honor, and rejoicing. And we were glad at their arrival. [14:22] And we wrote down what was said by them in the councils of the people, as follows: 'Numenius, the son of Antiochus, and Antipater, the son of Jason, ambassadors of the Jews, came to us to renew the former friendship with us. [14:23] And it pleased the people to receive the men gloriously, and to place a copy of their words in a section of the public books, so as to be a memorial for the people of the Spartans. Furthermore, we have written a copy of them to Simon, the great priest.' " [14:24] But after this, Simon sent Numenius to Rome, in possession of a great shield of gold, weighing over a thousand pounds, to confirm the association with them. [14:25] But when the people of Rome had heard these words, they said: "With what deeds of thanksgiving shall we repay Simon and his sons? [14:26] For he has vindicated his brothers, and he has fought off the enemies of Israel from them." And so, they decreed him free, and they registered it on tablets of brass and placed it in an inscription on mount Zion. [14:27] And this is a copy of the writing: "On the eighteenth day of the month Elul, in the one hundred and seventy-second year, the third year under Simon, the great priest at Asaramel, [14:28] in a great convocation of the priests, and the people, and the leaders of the nation, and the elders of the country, these things were noted: 'Now there have often been battles in our country. [14:29] And Simon, the son of Mattathias, of the sons of Judah, his brothers, have put themselves in danger, and have withstood the enemies of their nation, so as to establish their holy places and the law. And they have glorified their people with great glory. [14:30] And Jonathan gathered together his nation, and he was made their great priest, and he was laid to rest among his people. [14:31] And their enemies wanted to trample and lay waste to their country, and to extend their hands against their holy places. [14:32] Then Simon resisted, and he fought for his nation, and he requested much money, and he armed the valiant men of his nation and gave them wages. [14:33] And he fortified the cities of Judea and Bethzur, which are along the borders of Judea, where the weaponry of the enemies was before. And he placed a garrison of Jewish men there. [14:34] And he fortified Joppa, which is by the sea, and Gazara, which is on the border of Azotus, where the enemies stayed before, and he placed Jews there. And he positioned with them whatever was fitting for their preparations. [14:35] And the people saw the acts of Simon, and the glory that he intended to bring to his nation, and they made him their commander and first priest, because he had done all these things, and because of the justice and faith that he maintained for his nation, and because he sought to exalt his people by all means. [14:36] And in his days, there was prosperity by his hands, so that the Gentiles were taken away from their country, and also those who were in the city of David, in Jerusalem, in the stronghold, from which they went out and contaminated all the places that were around the sanctuary, and from which they brought a great scourging against chastity. [14:37] And he placed in it Jewish men, as a means of protection for the region and the city, and he raised the walls of Jerusalem. [14:38] And king Demetrius confirmed him in the high priesthood. [14:39] According to these things, he made him his friend, and he glorified him with great glory. [14:40] For he heard that the Romans had called the Jews their friends, and associates, and brothers, and that they received the ambassadors of Simon with glory, [14:41] and that the Jews and their priests had consented that he should be their governor and high priest unceasingly, until there should arise a faithful prophet, [14:42] and that he should be the commander over them, and that he should take care of the sanctuary, and that he should appoint foremen over their works, and over the country, and over the weapons, and over the strongholds, [14:43] and that he should take care of the holy places, and that he should be obeyed by all, and that all the records in the country should be recorded in his name, and that he should be clothed in purple and gold, [14:44] and that it should not be lawful for any of the people or the priests to make void any of these things, nor to contradict things that are said by him, nor to call together an assembly in the country without him, nor to be clothed in purple, nor to use a
And whoever will do otherwise, or who will make void any of these things, shall be guilty. {14:45} And it pleased all the people to appoint Simon, and to act according to these words. {14:47} And Simon accepted it, and he was pleased to perform the office of the high priesthood, and to be the commander and leader of the people of the Jews, and of the priests, and to be foremost over them all. {14:48} And they asked that this writing be placed on tablets of brass, and be placed within the precinct of the sanctuary in a celebrated place, {14:49} and that a copy of these be placed in the treasury, so that Simon and his sons may have it. "

[1 Maccabees 15] {15:1} And king Antiochus, the son of Demetrius, sent letters from the islands of the sea to Simon, the priest and leader of the nation of the Jews, and to all the people. {15:2} And these continued in this way: "King Antiochus to Simon, the great priest, and to the people of the Jews: greetings. {15:3} Since certain pestilent persons have obtained the kingdom of our fathers, it is my will, then, to vindicate the kingdom and to restore it, just as it was before. And so, I have chosen a great army, and I have built ships of war. {15:4} Furthermore, I intend to pass through the region, so that I may take revenge on those who have corrupted our country and who have desolated many cities in my kingdom. {15:5} Now, therefore, I confirm to you all the oblations that all the kings before me have remitted to you, and whatever country and who have desolated many cities in my kingdom. {15:6} And I permit you to make a striking of your own coins for your country. {15:7} Moreover, let Jerusalem be holy and free. And all the weapons that have been made, and the fortresses that you have constructed, or that you hold, let them remain with you. {15:8} And all that is owed to the king, and what should belong to the king in the future, from this time and for all time, is remitted to you. {15:9} Yet, when we have obtained our kingdom, we will glorify you, and your nation, and the temple with great glory, so much so that your glory shall be made manifest in all the earth." {15:10} In the one hundred and seventy-fourth year, Antiochus went into the land of his fathers, and all the armies came over to him, so that few were left with Trypho. {15:11} And king Antiochus followed him as he fled along the sea coast and came to Dora. {15:12} For he knew that evils had gathered together upon him, and that his troops had forsaken him. {15:13} And Antiochus took up a position above Dora, with one hundred and twenty thousand men of warfare and eight thousand horsemen. {15:14} And he encircled the city, and the ships drew near by sea. And they assailed the city by land and by sea, and they permitted no one to go in or out. {15:15} But Numenius, and those who had been with him, came from the city of Rome, having letters written to the kings and the regions, in which was contained these things: {15:16} "Lucius, consul of the Romans, to king Ptolemy: greetings. {15:17} The ambassadors of the Jews, our friends, came to us, to renew the former friendship and alliance, having been sent from Simon, the leader of the priests and the people of the Jews. {15:18} And they also brought a shield of gold of over a thousand pounds. {15:19} And so, it was pleasing to us to write to the kings and the regions, that they should do no harm to them, nor fight against them, and their cities, and their regions, and that they should bear no assistance to those fighting against them. {15:20} And it seemed good to us to receive the shield from them. {15:21} If, therefore, those who are pestilent have taken refuge with you from their region, hand them over to Simon, the leader of the priests, so that he may give a verdict to them according to their law." {15:22} These same things were written to king Demetrius, and to Attalus, and to Ariarathes, and to Arsaces, {15:23} and to all the regions, and to Lampsacus and to the Spartans, and to Delos, and Myndos, and Sicyon, and Caria, and Samos, and Pamphylia, and Lycia, and Halicarnassus, and Cos, and Side, and Aradus, and Rhodes, and Phaselis, and Gortyna, and Gnidus, and Cyprus, and Cyrene. {15:24} Moreover, they wrote a copy of these things to Simon, the leader of the priests and the people of the Jews. {15:25} But king Antiochus positioned his camp near Dora a second time, moving his hand against it continually, and making machines of war. And he enclosed Trypho, lest he escape. {15:26} And Simon sent two thousand chosen men to him as auxiliaries, and silver, and gold, and an abundance of equipment. {15:27} And he was not willing to receive them, but he broke all of the pact that he made with him before, and he alienated himself from him. {15:28} And he sent to him Athenobius, one of his friends, to deal with him, saying: "You hold Joppa and Gazara, and the stronghold that is in Jerusalem, which are cities of my kingdom. {15:29} You have desolated their parts, and you have caused a great scourging in the land, and you have become ruler throughout many places in my kingdom. {15:30} Now, therefore, hand over the cities that you occupy, and the tributes of the places where you have become ruler beyond the borders of Judea. {15:31} But if not, give me for them five hundred talents of silver, and for the destruction that you have caused, and for the tributes of the cities, another five hundred talents. But if not, we will come and fight against you." {15:32} So Athenobius, the friend of the king, came to Jerusalem and saw the glory of Simon, and his splendor in gold and silver, and his abundance of equipment, and he was astonished. And he repeated the words of the king to him. {15:33} And Simon responded to him, and he said to him: "We have not taken foreign land, nor do we hold anything foreign, but we hold the inheritance of our fathers, which was for some time unjustly possessed by our enemies. {15:34} In truth, since we have the opportunity, we claim the inheritance of our fathers. {15:35} And as to Joppa and Gazara, which you demand, they brought a great scourging on the people and our country. For these, we will give one hundred talents." And Athenobius did not respond a word to him. {15:36} But, returning with anger to the king, he reported to him these words, and the glory of Simon, and all that he had seen. And the king became angry with a great anger. {15:37} But Trypho fled by ship to Orthosia. {15:38} And the king appointed Cendebeus as commander of the seacoast, and he gave him an army of foot soldiers and horsemen. {15:39} And he commanded him to move with his camp against the face of Judea. And he commanded him to build up Kedron, and to barricade the gates of the city, and to make war against the people. But the king pursued Trypho. {15:40} And Cendebeus passed through to Jamnia, and he began to provoke the populace, and to trample Judea, and to take the people captive, and to execute, and to build up Kedron. {15:41} And he stationed horsemen and an army there, so that they could go out and travel through the ways of Judea, as the king appointed him to do.
[1 Maccabees 16] {16:1} And so, John came up from Gazara, and he reported to Simon, his father, what Cendebeus had done against their people. {16:2} And Simon called his two eldest sons, Judas and John, and he said to them: "I and my brothers, and my father's house, have fought against the enemies of Israel from our youth, even to this day. And this work has prospered in our hands, so that we have delivered Israel several times. {16:3} And now that I am old, you must act in place of me and my brothers, and go out to fight for our nation. Truly, may the help of heaven be with you."

{16:4} Then he chose from the region twenty thousand men of warfare, and horsemen; and they started out toward Cendebeus. And they rested in Modin. {16:5} And they rose up in the morning and went out into the plains. And behold, an abundant army of foot soldiers and horsemen was there to meet them, and there was a river flowing between them. {16:6} And he and his people moved their camp opposite their face, and he saw the trepidation of the people to cross over the river, and so he crossed over first. And seeing him, the men also crossed after him. {16:7} And he divided the people and the horsemen into the midst of the foot soldiers. But the horsemen of the adversary were exceedingly numerous. {16:8} And they sounded the holy trumpets. And Cendebeus and his army were turned back. And many of them fell wounded. But the rest fled into the fortress. {16:9} Then Judas, the brother of John, was wounded. But John pursued them, until he came to Kedron, which he had built. {16:10} And they fled all the way to the towers that were in the fields of Azotus, and he burnt them with fire. And there fell of them two thousand men, and he returned to Judea in peace. {16:11} Now Ptolemy, the son of Abubus, was appointed commander over the plain of Jericho, and he held much silver and gold. {16:12} For he was the son-in-law of the high priest. {16:13} And his heart was exalted, and he wanted to obtain the region, and he devised treachery against Simon and his sons, so as to destroy them. {16:14} Now when Simon was traveling through the cities that were in the region of Judea, and acting with concern for them, he went down to Jericho, and he and Mattathias and Judas, his sons, in the one hundred and seventy-seventh year, in the eleventh month; this is the month of Shevat. {16:15} And the son of Abubus received them, with deceitfulness, into a little fortress, which is called Dok, that he had built. And he made them a great feast, and he hid men there. {16:16} And when Simon and his sons became inebriated, Ptolemy and his men rose up, and took their weapons, and entered into the gathering. And they killed him, and his two sons, and some of his servants. {16:17} And he committed a great treachery in Israel, and he repaid good with evil. {16:18} And Ptolemy wrote about these things, and he sent to the king, so that he would send him an army to assist him, and he could deliver to him the region, and their cities and tributes. {16:19} And he sent others to Gazara to destroy John. And he sent letters to the tribunes to come to him, and he would give them silver, and gold, and gifts. {16:20} And he sent others to occupy Jerusalem and the mountain of the temple. {16:21} Now a certain one, running ahead, reported to John in Gazara, that his father and his brothers perished, and that “he sent to kill you also.” {16:22} But when he heard it, he was very afraid, and he apprehended the men who came to destroy him, and he killed them. For he knew that they sought to destroy him. {16:23} And the rest of the stories about John, and his wars, and the virtuous deeds that he performed with fortitude, and the building of the walls that he raised, and the things that he did, {16:24} behold, these have been written in the book of the days of his priesthood, from the time that he became high priest, after his father.

 The Second Book of Maccabees **

[2 Maccabees 1] {1:1} To the brothers, the Jews, who are throughout Egypt: the brothers, the Jews, who are in Jerusalem and in the region of Judea, send greetings and good peace. {1:2} May God be gracious to you, and may he remember his covenant, which was spoken to Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob, his faithful servants. {1:3} And may he give all of you the heart to worship him, and to do his will, with a great heart and a willing soul. {1:4} May he throw open your heart with his law and with his precepts, and may he create peace. {1:5} May he heed your prayers and be reconciled to you, and may he not forsake you in the evil time. {1:6} And now, in this place, we are praying for you. {1:7} When Demetrius reigned, in the one hundred and sixty-ninth year, we Jews wrote to you during the tribulation and assaults which overcame us in those years, from the time that Jason withdrew from the holy land and from the kingdom. {1:8} They burnt the gate, and they shed innocent blood. And we prayed to the Lord and were heard, and we brought forth sacrifices and fine wheat flour, and we kindled the lamps and set forth the loaves. {1:9} And now, celebrate the days of shelters in the month of Kislev. {1:10} In the one hundred and eighty-eighth year, from the people who are at Jerusalem and in Judea, and from the Senate and Judas: to Aristobulus, the magistrate of king Ptolemy, who is of the ancestry of anointed priests, and to those Jews who are in Egypt: greetings and good health. {1:11} Having been freed by God from great peril, we give thanks to him greatly, in as much as we have been struggling against so great a king. {1:12} For he caused those who fought against us and against the holy city to burst forth from Persia. {1:13} For when the commander himself was in Persia, and with him an immense army, he fell in the temple of Nanea, having been deceived by the counsel of the priests of Nanea. {1:14} For Antiochus also came to the place with his friends, as if to live with her, and so that he would receive much money in the name of a dowry. {1:15} And when the priests of Nanea had made the proposal, and he had entered with a few men into the vestibule of the shrine, they closed the temple, {1:16} after Antiochus had entered. And throwing open a hidden entrance to the temple, they cast stones, and they struck the leader and those who were with him. And, having severed their limbs and cut off their heads, they threw them outside. {1:17} Blessed be God through all things, who has delivered up the impious. {1:18} Therefore, establishing the purification of the temple on the twenty-fifth day of the month of Kislev, we considered it necessary to signify this to you, so that you, likewise, may keep the day of shelters, and the day of the fire that was given when Nehemiah offered sacrifice, after the temple and the altar had been built. {1:19} For when our fathers were led into Persia, the priests, who at that time were worshippers of God, secretly took the fire from the altar, and they kept it hidden in a valley, where there was a deep and dry pit, and they kept it safe in that place, in such a way that the place would be unknown to all. {1:20} But when many years had passed, and it pleased God that Nehemiah should be sent by the king of Persia, he sent some of the sinner of those priests who had hidden it to seek the fire. And, just as they told us, they did not find fire, but only deep water. {1:21} Then he ordered them to draw it up and to carry it to him. And the priest, Nehemiah, ordered the sacrifices, which had been set out, to be sprinkled with the same water, both the wood and those things that were placed on it. {1:22} And when this was done, and the time came when the sun shined brightly, which before was in a cloud, there was kindled a great fire, so much so that all were filled with wonder. {1:23} But all the priests were reciting prayer, while the sacrifice was being consumed, with Jonathan beginning and the rest answering. {1:24} And the prayer of Nehemiah was held in this way: “O Lord God, Creator of all, terrible and strong, just and merciful, you alone are the good King. {1:25} You alone are excellent, you alone are just, and all-powerful, and eternal, who frees Israel from all evil, who created the chosen fathers and sanctified them. {1:26} Receive the sacrifice on behalf of all of your people Israel, and preserve and sanctify your portion. {1:27} Gather together our dispersion, free those who are despised and abhorred, so that the Gentiles may know that you are our God. {1:28} Afflict those who, in their arrogance, are oppressing us and treating us abusively. {1:29} Establish your people in your holy place, just as Moses said.” {1:30} And so the priests sang hymns until the sacrifice had been consumed. {1:31} But when the sacrifice had been consumed, Nehemiah ordered the remainder of the water to be poured upon the great stones. {1:32} When this had been done, a flame was kindled from them, but it was consumed by the light that shined brightly from the altar. {1:33} In truth, when this thing became known, it was reported to the king of Persia that in the place where the fire had been hidden by those priests who had been led away, water appeared, by which Nehemiah, and those who were with him, purified the sacrifices. {1:34} But the king, considering and examining the matter diligently, made a temple for it, so that he might study what had happened. {1:35} And when he had studied it, he gave the priests many goods and presents, of one kind or another, and using his own hands, he distributed these. {1:36} And Nehemiah called this place Nephthar, which is interpreted as Purification. But with many it is called Nephi.

[2 Maccabees 2] {2:1} Now it is found in the descriptions of the prophet Jeremiah that he ordered those who transmigrated to take the fire, just as it was signified and as he ordered, into the transmigration. {2:2} And he gave them the law, so that they would never forget the commandments of the Lord, and so that they would not go astray in their minds, seeing the idols of gold and silver, and their ornaments. {2:3} And in this manner, with other sayings, he exhorted them, lest they remove the law from their heart. {2:4} Furthermore, it was in the same writing, how the prophet, by divine response, ordered that the tabernacle and the ark be made to accompany him, until he exited from the mountain, where Moses ascended and saw the inheritance of God. {2:5} And arriving there, Jeremiah found a place in a cave. And he brought both the tabernacle, and the ark, and the altar of incense into that place, and he obstructed opening. {2:6} And certain ones of those who followed him, approached to make note of the location, but they were not able to find it. {2:7} But when Jeremiah knew of it, he blamed them, saying: “The place shall be unknown, until God shall gather together the congregation of the people, and until he may be favorably inclined. {2:8} And then the Lord will reveal these things, and the majesty of the Lord shall appear, and there will be a cloud, just as it was also manifested to Moses, and just as he manifested these when Solomon petitioned that the place should be sanctified to the great God. {2:9} For he also drew upon wisdom magnificently, and so, having wisdom, he offered the sacrifice of the dedication and the consummation of the temple. {2:10} And, just as Moses prayed to the Lord, and fire descended from heaven and consumed the holocaust, so also Solomon prayed and fire descended from heaven and consumed the holocaust. {2:11} And Moses said that it was consumed because the sin offering was not eaten. {2:12} And similarly, Solomon also celebrated the eight days of the dedication. {2:13} Moreover, these same things were put into the descriptions and commentaries of Nehemiah, including how, when constructing a library, he gathered together from the regions the books of the Prophets, and of David, and the epistles of the kings, and from the holy gifts. {2:14} And, similarly, Judas also gathered together all the things that were destroyed by the war that befell us, and these are with us. {2:15} Therefore, if you desire these things, send those who may carry them to you. {2:16} And so, since we will be celebrating the purification, we wrote to you. Therefore, you will do well, if you keep these days. {2:17} But we hope that God, who has freed his people and has rendered to all the inheritance, and the kingdom, and the priesthood, and sanctification, {2:18} just as he promised in the law, will quickly have mercy on us and will gather us together from under heaven into the holy place. {2:19} For he has rescued us from great perils, and he has purged the place. {2:20} The truth about Judas Maccabeus, and his brothers, and the purification of the great temple, and the dedication of the altar, {2:21} and also about the battles, which pertain to Antiochus the illustrious, and his son, Eupator, {2:22} and about the illuminations, which came from heaven to those who acted on behalf of the Jews with fortitude, was such that they, though few, vindicated the entire region and put to flight a multitude of the barbarous, {2:23} and recovered the most famous temple in the whole world, and freed the city, and restored the laws that were abolished. For the Lord, with all tranquility, was acting favorably toward them. {2:24} And similar things as have been comprised in five books by Jason the Cyrenean, we have attempted to abridge into one volume. {2:25} For, considering the multitude of the books, and the difficulty that those who are willing to undertake the narrations of histories find, due to the multitude of events, {2:26} we have taken care, so that, indeed, those who are willing to read may have delights of the mind, and so that, in truth, the studious may more easily be able to commit it to memory, and also so that all readers may find it useful. {2:27} And indeed, we ourselves, who have taken up the task of abridging this work, have no easy labor. For, in truth, more correctly, we have assumed an activity full of vigilance and sweat. {2:28} Just as those who prepare a feast also seek to be attentive to the will of others, for the sake of the gratitude of many, we willingly undertake the labor. {2:29} Indeed, leaving to the authors the truths about particular details, we instead have been devoted to this form, striving to be brief. {2:30} For, just as the architect of a new house will have concern for the entire structure, and, in truth, he who takes care to paint it will seek out what is fitting to adorn it, so also should such things be considered by us. {2:31} Moreover, to collect knowledge, and to order words, and to discuss every particular point attentively, is the duty of the author of a history. {2:32} Yet truly, to pursue brevity of speech, and to shun the extension of matters, is conceded to an abbreviator. {2:33} Therefore, here we will begin the narration. Let so much be sufficient to say in preface. For it is foolish to go on and on before the account, when the account itself is succinct.

[2 Maccabees 3] {3:1} Therefore, when the holy city was inhabited with all peace, and also the laws were still being kept very well because of the piety of Onias, the high priest, and the hatred that his soul held for evil, {3:2} it happened that even the kings and princes themselves considered the place worthy of the highest honor, and so they glorified the temple with very great gifts, {3:3} so much so that Seleucus, king of Asia, furnished from his revenues all of the expenses for the ministry pertaining to the sacrifices. {3:4} But Simon, from the tribe of Benjamin, having been appointed as overseer of the temple, obstructed the chief priest, in order to undertake some kind of iniquity in the city. {3:5} But when he was not able to overcome Onias, he went to Apollonius, the son of Tarsus, who at that time was governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia, {3:6} and he announced to him that the treasury in Jerusalem was full of innumerable sums of money, and that the common storehouse, which did not pertain to the allotment for the sacrifices, was immense, and that it would be possible for all of this to fall under the power of the king. {3:7} And when he had presented the news that he brought back to king Apollonius about the money, he summoned Heliodorus, who was in charge of this matter, and he sent him with orders, in order to transport the aforesaid money. {3:8} And immediately Heliodorus set forth on the way, indeed, appearing as if sojourning to the cities of Coelesyria and Phoenicia, but in truth the reason was to complete the proposition of the king. {3:9} But, when he had arrived at Jerusalem and had been kindly accepted into the city by the high priest, he explained to him the information that had been provided concerning the money. And he freely disclosed the cause for which he was present. But he questioned whether these things were truly so. {3:10} Then the high priest revealed to him that these things had been deposited, along with provisions for the widows and the orphans. {3:11} In truth, a certain part of that which impious Simon had reported belonged to Hycanus, son of Tobias, a very eminent man. But the entire amount was four hundred talents of silver and two hundred of gold. {3:12} For in truth, to deceive those who had trusted in the place and the temple that is honored throughout the whole world for its veneration and sanctity would be altogether impossible. {3:13} But because of those things that he held as orders from the king, he said that by all means the money must be transferred to the king. {3:14} And so, on the appointed day, Heliodorus entered to set these things in order. Yet truly, there was no small amount of trepidation throughout the entire city. {3:15} And so the priests threw themselves before the altar in their priestly vestments, and they called upon him from heaven, who had established the law about deposits, such that those with whom they had deposited it would keep it safe. {3:16} Now truly, whoever saw the countenance of the high priest was wounded in mind. For his face and the changing of its color declared the inner sorrow of the soul. {3:17} For this one man was so immersed in grief and in physical dread that it was clear to those who beheld him that sorrow had affected his heart. {3:18} And now, others flowed together in flocks from the houses, pleading and making public supplication, on behalf of the place, which soon might be brought into contempt. {3:19} And the women, wrapped with haircloth around the chest, flowed together through the streets. And even the virgins, who were cloistered, rushed forth to Onias, and others rushed to the walls, and, truly, certain ones looked through the windows. {3:20} But every one of them, stretching forth their hands toward heaven, made supplication. {3:21} For the expectation of the mixed multitude, and of the great priest in agony, would have endowed anyone with pity. {3:22} And indeed, these called upon almighty God, so that the trust that had been entrusted to them would be preserved with all integrity. {3:23} But Heliodorus completed the same thing that had been decreed, being himself present in the place, with his attendants, near the treasury. {3:24} Then the Spirit of Almighty God made a great manifestation of his presence, so much so that all who had presumed to yield to him were turned aside by fainting and dread, falling by the power of God. {3:25} For there appeared to them a certain horse, having a terrible rider, adorned with the best covering, and he rushed forth and assailed Heliodorus with his front hooves. And he who sat upon him seemed to have armor of gold. {3:26} Moreover, there appeared two other youths with the appearance of power, the glory of nobility, and the apparel of splendor. These stood near him on each side, and they scourged him without ceasing, striking with many scourges. {3:27} Then Heliodorus suddenly fell to the ground, and they quickly took him up, draped by a great darkness, and, having placed him onto a stretcher, they rushed him away. {3:28} And so, he who had approached the aforesaid treasury, with so many officials and attendants, was carried away, with no one to bring help to him, the manifest power of God being made known. {3:29} And indeed, through divine power, he lay mute and also was deprived of all hope of recovery. {3:30} But they blessed the Lord, because he had magnified his place, and because the temple, which a little while before was filled with confusion and fear, became filled with joy and gladness, when the all-powerful Lord appeared. {3:31} Then, truly, certain friends of Heliodorus came forth to petition Onias, so that he would call upon the Most High to grant life to him who was appointed to breathe his last breath. {3:32} But the high priest, considering that the king might perhaps suspect that some malice against Heliodorus had been completed by the Jews, offered a beneficial sacrifice for the health of the man. {3:33} And when the high priest was praying, the same youths, dressed in the same clothing, were standing by Heliodorus, and they said: "Give thanks to Onias the priest, for it is on his behalf that the Lord has granted life to you. {3:34} But, having been scourged by God, you must announce to all the great things of God and his power." And having said this, they disappeared. {3:35} Then Heliodorus offered sacrifice to God and made great vows to him who had permitted him to live. And he gave thanks to Onias. And, gathering his troops, he returned to the king. \(4:36\) But he testified to all about the works of the great God, which he had seen with his own eyes. \(4:37\) And so, when the king questioned Heliodorus as to who might be fit to be sent once more to Jerusalem, he said: \(4:38\) “If you have any enemy, or a traitor to your kingdom, send him there, and he will return to you scourged, if he even escapes. For truly, in that place, there is a certain power of God. \(4:39\) Yes, he who has his dwelling in the heavens is the visitor and protector of that place, and he strikes and destroys those arriving to do evil.” \(3:40\) Thus, the things about Heliodorus and the preservation of the treasury happened in this way.

[2 Maccabees 4] \(4:1\) But the aforementioned Simon, who was a betrayer of the money and of his nation, spoke evil about Onias, as if he had instigated Heliodorus to do these things and as if he had been the inciter of evils. \(4:2\) And he dared to say that he was a traitor to the kingdom, though he provided for the city, and defended his people, and was zealous for the law of God. \(4:3\) But when the hostilities had proceeded to such an extent that even murders were committed by certain close associates of Simon, \(4:4\) Onias, considering the peril of this contention, and Apollonius to be mad, though he was governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia, which only augmented the malice of Simon, he brought himself before the king, \(4:5\) not so as to be an accuser of a citizen, but in view of his own consideration for the common good of the entire multitude. \(4:6\) For he saw that, without royal providence, it would be impossible to provide peace to events, nor would Simon ever cease from his foolishness. \(4:7\) But after the life of Seleucus expired, when Antiochus, who was called the illustrious, had assumed the kingdom, Jason, the brother of Onias, was ambitions for the high priesthood. \(4:8\) He went to the king, promising him three hundred and sixty talents of silver, and from other revenues eighty talents, \(4:9\) and beyond these, he promised also one hundred and fifty more, if he would be granted the authority to establish a sports arena, and a school for boys, and to enroll those who were at Jerusalem as Antiochians. \(4:10\) When the king had assented, and he had obtained the leadership, he immediately began to transfer his subjects to the rituals of the heathens. \(4:11\) And taking away those things that had been established by the kings, by reason of the humanitarianism of the Jews, through John, the father of Eupolemus, who formed a friendship and alliance with the Romans, he discharged the legitimate legislations, voiding the oaths of the citizens, and he sanctioned depraved customs. \(4:12\) For he even had the audacity to set up, below the very stronghold, a sports arena, and to place all of the best adolescent boys in brothels. \(4:13\) Now this was not the beginning, but a certain increase and progression of heathenism and foreign practices, due to the nefarious and unheard of wickedness of the impious non-priest Jason, \(4:14\) so much so that now the priests were not devoted to the concerns of services at the altar, but, despising the temple and neglecting the sacrifices, they hurried to become participants of the wrestling school, and of its prohibited injustices, and of the training of the discus. \(4:15\) And, even holding the honors of their fathers to be nothing, they esteemed the glories of the Greeks as best. \(4:16\) For the sake of these, they held a dangerous competition, and were imitators of their practices, and so, in all things, they desired to be similar to those who had been their enemies and destroyers. \(4:17\) But acting impiously against the divine laws does not go unpunished, as these subsequent events will reveal. \(4:18\) But when the competition that was celebrated every fifth year was at Tyre, the king being present, \(4:19\) the villainous Jason sent sinful men from Jerusalem, carrying three hundred didrachmas of silver for the sacrifice of Hercules. But those who transported it asked that it might not be paid out for the sacrifices, because it was not needed, but might be used for other expenses. \(4:20\) So, even though this was offered by him who sent it for the sacrifice of Hercules, it was instead given over to the manufacture of Greek warships, because of those presenting it. \(4:21\) Then Apollonius, the son of Menestheus, was sent into Egypt because of the nobles of king Philometor of Ptolemy. But when Antiochus realized that he had been effectively alienated from the affairs of the kingdom, consulting his own interests, he started out from there and came to Joppa, and from there to Jerusalem. \(4:22\) And he was received magnificently by Jason and the city, and he entered with the lights of little torches and with praises. And from there he turned back with his army to Phoenicia. \(4:23\) And, after three years, Jason sent Menelaus, the brother of the above mentioned Simon, carrying money to the king, and bearing responses about essential matters. \(4:24\) And he, being recommended to the king, when he had magnified the appearance of his power, usurped the high priesthood for himself, outbidding Jason by three hundred talents of silver. \(4:25\) And so, having received orders from the king, he returned, holding nothing at all worthy of the priesthood, in truth, having the soul of a cruel tyrant and the rage of a wild beast. \(4:26\) And indeed, Jason, who had taken captive his own brother, was himself deceived, and was expelled to become a fugitive in the region of the Ammonites. \(4:27\) Then Menelaus, indeed, obtained the principality, but truly, concerning the money that he had promised to the king, nothing was done. Although Sostratus, who was first over the stronghold, attempted to collect it, \(4:28\) since the collection of certain taxes pertained to him. For this reason, they were both called before the king. \(4:29\) And Menelaus was removed from the priesthood, being succeeded by Lysimachus, his brother. Then Sostratus was appointed over the Cyprians. \(4:30\) And while these things were occurring, it happened that those from Tarsus and Mallus incited a sedition, because they had been given as a gift to Antiochidi, the concubine of the king. \(4:31\) And so, the king hurried to come and calm them, leaving behind Andronicus, one of his associates, as his deputy. \(4:32\) Then Menelaus, believing that he had reached an opportune time, having stolen certain gold vessels out of the temple, gave them to Andronicus, along with others he had gained at Tyre and throughout the neighboring cities. \(4:33\) But when Onias had realized this with certainty, he accused him, keeping himself in a safe place at Antioch beside Daphne. \(4:34\) Meanwhile, Menelaus met with Andronicus, asking him to execute Onias. So he then went to Onias, and he gave him his right hand with an oath, and, even though he was suspicious of him, he persuaded him to venture out of asylum, and he immediately killed him, with no respect for justice. \(4:35\) For this reason, not only the Jews, but also the other nations, were ignominious.
and bore much grief for the unjust killing of so great a man.
4:36 But when the king returned from the places of Cilicia, the Jews at Antioch, and similarly the Greeks, went to him, complaining of the iniquitous killing of Onias. 4:37 And so Antiochus was grieved in his mind because of Onias, and, being moved to compassion, he shed tears, remembering the sobriety and modesty of the deceased. 4:38 And, being inflamed in soul, he ordered the purple to be torn from Andronicus, and that he be led around, throughout the entire city, and that, in the same place where he had committed the impiety against Onias, the sacrilegious man should be deprived of his life, as his fitting punishment rendered by the Lord. 4:39 But when many sacrileges were committed by Lysimachus in the temple through the counsel of Menelaus, and the news was divulged, the multitude gathered together against Lysimachus, though a great quantity of gold had been exported already. 4:40 But when the multitude stirred up an insurrection, and their minds were filled with anger, Lysimachus armed about three thousand, who began to act with hands of iniquity. A certain tyrant was their leader, a man advanced both in age and in madness. 4:41 But when they perceived the attempt of Lysimachus, some took hold of stones, others strong clubs, and, in truth, certain ones threw ashes upon Lysimachus. 4:42 And indeed, many were wounded, and some were struck down; however, all were put to flight. And, as for the sacrilegious man, they executed him beside the treasury. 4:43 Therefore, about these things, a judgment began to be stirred up against Menelaus.
4:44 And when the king had arrived at Tyre, three men were sent from the elders to bring the matter to him.
4:45 But when Menelaus was overcome, he promised to give much money to Ptolemmy to persuade the king.
4:46 And so, Ptolemmy went to the king in a certain court where he was, as if merely to refresh himself, and he influenced him away from the sentence. 4:47 And so Menelaus, though indeed guilty of all malice, was absolved of the crimes. Moreover, these pitiable men, who, even if they had pleaded their case before Scythians, would have been judged innocent, he condemned to death. 4:48 Therefore, those who brought the case on behalf of the city, and the people, and the sacred vessels were quickly given an unjust punishment. 4:49 For this reason, even the Tyrians, being inignorant, proved to be very liberal toward their burial.
4:50 Thus, because of the greed of those who were in power, Menelaus remained in authority, increasing in malice, to the betrayal of the citizens.

[2 Maccabees 5] 5:1 At the same time, Antiochus prepared for a second journey into Egypt. 5:2 But it happened, throughout the entire city of Jerusalem, that there were seen, for forty days, horsemen rushing through the air, having golden robes, and armed with spears, like a cohort of soldiers, 5:3 and horses, set in order by ranks, running, coming together to engage in close combat, and the shaking of shields, and a helmeted multitude stretching forth swords, and the casting of darts, and the splendor of golden armor, and all kinds of breastplates. 5:4 Because of this, everyone begged that these prodigies might be turned to good. 5:5 But when a false rumor went out, as though the life of Antiochus had expired, Jason, taking with him no less than one thousand men, suddenly assaulted the city. And, though the citizens together rushed to the wall, the city at last was taken, and Menelaus fled into the stronghold. 5:6 Truly, Jason did not spare his citizens from the slaughter; not realizing that success at the expense of kin is a very great evil, he thought those over whom he was victorious to be enemies, and not citizens. 5:7 And so, he certainly did not obtain the leadership, but truly, in the end, received confusion for his betrayals, and he departed again to take refuge among the Ammonites. 5:8 In the end, to his ruin, he was enclosed by Aretas, the sovereign of the Arabs. And then, fleeing from city to city, hated by all as a detestable fugitive from the laws, and as an enemy of his own nation and citizens, he was expelled into Egypt. 5:9 And he who had expelled many from their native land perished abroad, starting out toward the Lacedaemonians, as if, for the sake of kinship, he should have refuge there. 5:10 And he who cast out many, unburied, was himself also cast out, both unmarrried and unburied, and without having use of either foreign burial or a share of the sepulcher of his fathers. 5:11 And so, when these things were done, the king suspected that the Jews would desert the alliance. And because of this, departing from Egypt with a raging soul, he indeed took the city by force. 5:12 Moreover, he ordered the military to execute, and not to spare, anyone they met, and to ascend through the houses to slay. 5:13 Therefore, a massacre occurred of youths and elders, an extermination of women and children, a killing of virgins and little ones. 5:14 And so, over three whole days, eighty thousand were executed, forty thousand were imprisoned, and no small number were sold. 5:15 But, as if this were not enough, he even presumed to enter into the most holy temple in the entire world, with Menelaus, that traitor to the law and to his own nation, as his guide.
5:16 And, taking in his wicked hands the holy vessels, which were given by other kings and cities for the adornment and glory of the place, he unworthily handled and contaminated them. 5:17 So Antiochus, having gone astray in mind, did not consider that, because of the sins of the habitants of the city, God had become angry for a while,
and so, for this reason, contempt had fallen upon the.
5:18 Otherwise, if it had not happened that they were volved in so many sins, as with Heliodorus, who was sent by king Seleucus to plunder the treasury, so also this one, as soon as he had arrived, certainly would have been scourged and driven away from his audacity. 5:19 Truly, God did not choose the people because of the place, but the place because of the people. 5:20 And therefore, the place itself also became a participant in the evils of the people. But afterwards, it shall be a companion to what is good. And she who was abandoned to the wrath of Almighty God shall be exalted again with the greatest glory, at the reconciliation of the great Lord. 5:21 Therefore, when Antiochus had taken away from the temple one thousand eight hundred talents, he quickly returned to Antioch, thinking, in his arrogance, to navigate the earth, even by finding a passage leading across the open ocean: such was the elation of his mind. 5:22 Yet he left behind rulers to afflict the people. In fact, at Jerusalem, Philip was by birth a Phrygian, but he was in manners more cruel than he who had appointed him. 5:23 Yet Andronicus and Menelaus hung a heavier weight over the citizens at Garizim than the others. 5:24 And when he had been appointed over the Jews, he sent that hateful leader, Apollonius, with an army of twenty-two thousand, instructing him to execute all men in the prime of life, and to sell the women and the youths. {5:25} When he had arrived at Jerusalem, feigning peace, he remained quiet until the holy day of the Sabbath. And then, when the Jews were taking rest, he instructed his own to take up arms. {5:26} And he slaughtered all those who were seen going out. And rushing throughout the city with armed men, he destroyed a vast multitude. {5:27} But Judas Maccabeus, who was the tenth, had withdrawn himself to a deserted place, and there he lived among the wild beasts in the mountains, with his own. And they remained there, consuming herbs as food, lest they be partakers in the defilement.

[2 Maccabees 6] {6:1} But not much time later, the king sent a certain elder of Antioch, who compelled the Jews to transfer themselves from the laws of God and of their fathers, {6:2} and also to contaminate the temple that was in Jerusalem, and to name it 'Jupiter of Olympus,' and in Garizim, 'Jupiter of Hospitality,' exactly like those who inhabited the place. {6:3} Yet the worst and most grievous thing of all was the onrush of evils. {6:4} For the temple was full of the luxuries and carousings of the Gentiles, and of consorting with promiscuous women. And the women hurried themselves unreservedly into the sacred buildings, bringing in things that were not lawful. {6:5} And even the altar was filled with illicit things, which were prohibited by the laws. {6:6} And also the sabbaths were not kept, and the solemn days of the fathers were not observed, neither did anyone simply confess himself to be a Jew. {6:7} And so, they were led by bitter necessity, on the birthday of the king, to the sacrifices. And, when the holy things of Liber were celebrated, they were forced to go around crowned with the ivy of Liber. {6:8} Then a decree went out to the neighboring cities of the Gentiles, suggested by the Ptolemeans, that they too should act in a similar manner against the Jews, to oblige them to sacrifice, {6:9} and that those who were not willing to conform to the institutions of the Gentiles should be executed. Therefore, there was misery to be seen. {6:10} For two women were denounced for having had their boys circumcised. These, with the infants suspended at their breasts, when they had publicly led them around the city, they cast down from the walls. {6:11} Truly, others, meeting together in nearby caves and celebrating the Sabbath day secretly, when they had been discovered by Philip, were burned with fire, because they showed reverence to the observances of religion, deciding to help themselves by their own hand. {6:12} So then, I beg those who will read this Book, let them not be repelled by these adverse events, but let them consider that these things happened, not for the destruction, but for the correction, of our people. {6:13} For it is also an indication of great benefits that sinners are not permitted to continue in their ways for a long time, but are promptly brought to punishment. {6:14} For, as it is with other nations, (whom the Lord patiently awaits, so that, when the day of Judgment will arrive, he may punish them according to the plentitude of their sins,) {6:15} not so does he also deal with us, as if to put off our sins until the end, so as to punish us for them eventually. {6:16} Because of this, he certainly would never take away his mercy from us. Yet truly, chastising his people in adversity, he does not abandon them. {6:17} But these few things have been spoken by us as a reminder to the reader. For now we have arrived at the narration. {6:18} And so, Eleazar, one of the chief scribes, a man advanced in years and of stately countenance, was compelled to open his mouth wide to consume the flesh of swine. {6:19} Yet he, embracing a most glorious death as greater than a detestable life, went forward voluntarily to the torments. {6:20} And so, thinking over the manner by which he ought to approach it, enduring patiently, he was determined not to permit, due to a love for life, any unlawful things. {6:21} Yet those who stood near, being moved by an iniquitous pity because of long friendship with the man, taking him aside privately, asked that flesh be brought which was lawful for him to eat, so that he could pretend to have eaten, just as the king had commanded, from the flesh of the sacrifice. {6:22} So then, by doing this, he might be freed from death. And it was because of their old friendship with the man that they performed this kindness for him. {6:23} But he began to consider the eminent dignity of his stage of life and old age, and the natural honor of gray hair, as well as his exemplary words and deeds from childhood. And he responded quickly, according also to the ordinances of the sacred law preserved by God, saying, that he would first be sent to the underworld. {6:24} “For it is not worthy for those of our age,” he said, “to deceive, so that many adolescents might think that Eleazar, at ninety years, had converted to the life of the foreigners. {6:25} And so, they, because of my pretense and for the sake of a brief time of a corruptible life, would be misled, and, through this stain and desecration, I would defile my last years. {6:26} But if, in the present time, I were rescued from the torments of men, I would then not escape the hand of the Almighty, neither in life, nor in death. {6:27} For this reason, by departing life with fortitude, I will show myself to be clearly worthy of my long life. {6:28} And so, I will bequeath an example of fortitude to youths, if, with a ready soul and constancy, I carry out an honest death, for the sake of the most serious and most holy laws.” And having said this, he was immediately dragged away to execution. {6:29} But those who led him, and who were more mild a little before, were turned to anger because of the words spoken by him, which they considered to have been brought forth by way of arrogance. {6:30} But when he was ready to perish by the scourges, he groaned, and he said: “O Lord, who holds all holy knowledge, you clearly understand that, although I could be freed from death, I suffer grievous pains in body. Truly, according to the soul, I willingly endure these things, because of your fear.” {6:31} And the way in which this man passed from this life, bequeathed, not only to youths, but also to the entire people, the memory of his death as an example of virtue and fortitude.

[2 Maccabees 7] {7:1} And it happened also that seven brothers, united with their mother, were apprehended and compelled by the king to eat the flesh of swine against divine law, being tormented with scourges and whips. {7:2} But one of them, who was first, spoke in this way: “What would you ask, or what would you want to learn from us? We are ready to die, rather than to betray the laws that our fathers received from God.” {7:3} And so the king, being angry, ordered fying pans and bronze caldrons to be heated. When these were presently heated, {7:4} he ordered the tongue of him who had spoken first to be cut off, and, once the skin of his head had been pulled off, likewise his hands and feet to be cut off at the top, while the rest of his brothers and his mother were watching. {7:5} And when now he had been made helpless in all parts, he commanded him to be moved to the fire, and, while still breathing, to be fried in the frying pan. As he was suffering long torments therein, the rest, united with the mother, exhorted one another to die with fortitude, {7:6} saying: “The Lord God will perceive the truth, and he will be consoled in us, in the way that Moses declared in the profession of the canticle: ‘And in his servants, he will be consoled.’ ” {7:7} And so, when the first had died in this way, they led in the next one, so as to ridicule him. And when the skin of his head was pulled off with the hair, they asked him if he would eat, instead of being punished throughout the whole body in every limb. {7:8} But responding in the language of his fathers, he said, “I will not do it.” Because of this, he also, in the next place, received the torments of the first. {7:9} And when he had reached his last breath, he spoke in this way: “You, indeed, O most wicked man, are destroying us in this present life. But the King of the world will raise us up, in eternal life at the resurrection, for we die on behalf of his laws.” {7:10} After this one, the third was ridiculed, and when he was asked, he quickly offered up his tongue, and he resolutely extended his hands. {7:11} And he said with confidence, “I possess these from heaven, but, because of the laws of God, I now despise them, for I hope to receive them again from him.” {7:12} So then, the king and those who were with him, wondered at the soul of this youth, because he considered the torments as if they were nothing. {7:13} And after he had died in this way, they afflicted the fourth with similar tortures. {7:14} And when he was about to die, he spoke in this way: “It is preferable, being put to death by men, to wait for hope from God, so as to be revived again by him. But the resurrection to life will not be for you. {7:15} And when they had brought the fifth, they afflicted him. But he, gazing at him, {7:16} said: “Having power among men, though you are corruptible, you do what you want, but do not think that our nation has been abandoned by God. {7:17} And so, wait patiently for a while, and you will see his great power, by the manner in which he will torture you and your offspring.” {7:18} After this one, they brought the sixth, and he, being about to die, spoke in this way: “Do not go astray in vain. For we suffer because of ourselves, having sinned against our God, yet things worthy of admiration have been accomplished in us. {7:19} But do not consider that you will be without punishment, for you have attempted to fight against God.” {7:20} Now the mother was wonderful beyond measure, and a worthy memorial of the good, for she watched her seven sons perish within the time of one day, and she bore it with a good soul, because of the hope that she had in God. {7:21} And, with fortitude, she exhorted every one of them, in the language of the fathers, being filled with wisdom. And, joining masculine courage with feminine thinking, {7:22} she said to them: “I do not know how you were formed in my womb. For I did not give you spirit, nor soul, nor life; neither did I construct each of your limbs. {7:23} Nevertheless, the Creator of the world, who formed the nativity of man, and who founded the origins of all, will restore both spirit and life to you again, with his mercy, just as you now despise yourselves for the sake of his laws.” {7:24} But Antiochus, thinking himself despised, and at the same time also despising the voice of the reproacher, when only the youngest was still left, not only exhorted him with words, but also assured him with an oath, that he would make him wealthy and happy, and, if he would convert from the laws of his fathers, he would have him as a friend, and he would provide him with necessary things. {7:25} But, when the youth was not swayed by these things, the king called the mother and persuaded her to act toward the youth to save him. {7:26} And so, when he had exhorted her with many words, she promised that she would counsel her son. {7:27} Then, leaning towards him and mocking the cruel tyrant, she said in the language of the fathers: “My son, take pity on me, for I carried you for nine months in my womb, and I gave you milk for three years, and I nourished you and led you through to this stage of life. {7:28} I ask you, child, gaze upon heaven and earth, and all that is in them, and understand that God made them, and the family of man, out of nothing. {7:29} So shall it be that you will not fear this executioner, but, participating worthily with your brothers, you shall accept death, so that, by this mercy, I shall receive you again with your brothers.” {7:30} While she was still saying these things, the youth said: “What are you waiting for? I will not obey the precepts of the king, but the precepts of the law, which was given to us through Moses. {7:31} In truth, you, who have been the inventor of all malice against the Hebrews, will not escape the hand of God. {7:32} For we suffer these things because of our sins. {7:33} And if, for the sake of our chastisement and correction, the Lord our God is angry with us for a little while, yet still he will be reconciled again to his servants. {7:34} But as for you, O wicked and most disgraceful of all men, do be not be extolled over your arrogance. {7:35} For you have not yet escaped the judgment of Almighty God, who examines all things. {7:36} Therefore, my brothers, having now sustained brief sorrow, have been brought under the covenant of eternal life. But, in truth, you, by the judgment of God, will be released into just punishment for your arrogance. {7:37} But I, like my brothers, deliver up my soul and my body for the sake of the laws of the fathers, calling upon God so as to bring forgiveness upon our nation sooner, and so that you, with torments and lashings, may confess that he alone is God. {7:38} Truly, in me and in my brothers, the wrath of the Almighty, which has been led over all our people justly, shall cease.” {7:39} Then the king, burning with anger, raged against this one with cruelty beyond all the rest, bearing it indignantly that he himself was derided. {7:40} And so this one also died in purity, trusting in the Lord through all things. {7:41} Then, last of all, after the sons, the mother also was consumed. {7:42} Therefore, about the sacrifices and about the exceedingly great cruelties, enough has been said.

[2 Maccabees 8] {8:1} In truth, Judas Maccabeus, and those who were with him, went secretly into the villages, and, calling together their relatives and friends, and accepting among them those who persevered in Judaism, they brought six thousand men together. {8:2} And they called upon the Lord: to look upon his people, who were down trodden by all; and to take pity on the temple, which was defiled by the impius; {8:3} and even to take pity on the city by utter destruction, for it was willing to be immediately leveled to the ground; and to hear the voice of the blood that was crying out to him, {8:4} so that he would remember also the most iniquitous deaths of the innocent little ones, and the blasphemies brought upon his name; and to show his indignation over these things.  {8:5} And so Maccabeus, having gathered together a multitude, could not be withstood by the Gentiles. For the wrath of the Lord had turned into mercy.  {8:6} And so, overwhelming the towns and cities unexpectedly, he set them on fire. And, occupying strategic positions, he made no small slaughter of the enemies.  {8:7} Moreover, especially in the nights, he carried out expeditions in this way. And the fame of his virtuous strength was spread abroad everywhere.  {8:8} Then Philip, seeing that the man gained ground little by little, and that things frequently fell out in his favor, wrote to Ptolemy, governor of Coelesyria and Phoenicia, to send auxiliaries to carry out the work of the king.  {8:9} And so, he quickly sent Nicanor, son of Patroclus, from his foremost friends, providing him with no less than twenty thousand armed men from throughout the Gentiles, to wipe out the entire race of the Jews, joining with him Gorgias, a military man with very great experience in the things of warfare.  {8:10} Moreover, Nicanor decided to raise a tribute for the king of two thousand talents, which was to be given to the Romans, and which would be supplied by means of the captivity of the Jews.  {8:11} And immediately he sent to the maritime cities, calling them to the auction of the Jewish slaves, promising them a parcel of ninety slaves for one talent, not reflecting on the vengeance which would befall him subsequently from the Almighty.  {8:12} Then, when Judas learned that Nicanor was approaching, he revealed it to those Jews who were with him.  {8:13} And certain ones among them, being afraid and not trusting in the justice of God, turned and fled away.  {8:14} In truth, others sold all that was in excess, and together beseeched the Lord, that he would rescue them from the impious Nicanor, who had sold them before he even came near them, and if not for their sakes, then for the sake of the covenant which was made with their fathers, and for the sake of the invocation of his holy and magnificent name over them.  {8:16} But Maccabeus, calling together seven thousand who were with him, asked them not to be reconciled to the enemies, and not to fear the multitude of the enemies who came against them unjustly, but to struggle with fortitude, holding before their eyes the contempt that had been brought upon the holy place by them, and likewise the mockery which they held to the injury of the city, even to the extent of overthrowing the institutions of old.  {8:18} For he said that these, indeed, trust in their weapons, as well as in their boldness; but we trust in the Almighty Lord, who is able to wipe out both those coming against us, and even the whole world, with one nod.  {8:19} Moreover, he reminded them also of the assistance of God which their parents had received; and how, under Sennacherb, one hundred and eighty-five thousand had perished; and of the battle by them, which was against the Galatians in Babylonia, how, when the event had arrived and the allies of the Macedonians hesitated, though they were only six thousand in all, yet they slew one hundred and twenty thousand, because of the help provided to them from heaven; and how, for the sake of these things, very many benefits followed.  {8:21} By these words, they were brought to constancy and were prepared to die for the laws and their nation.  {8:22} And so, he appointed his brothers as leaders over each division: Simon, and Joseph, and Jonathan, subjecting one thousand and five hundred men to each of them.  {8:23} And at that point, the holy book having been read to them by Esdras, and having given them a sign of the assistance of God, with himself leading the first point, he joined battle with Nicanor.  {8:24} And, with the Almighty as their helper, they slew over nine thousand men. Furthermore, having wounded and disabled the greater part of the army of Nicanor, they forced them to take flight.  {8:25} In fact, they took away the money from those who came to buy them, and they pursued them everywhere.  {8:26} But they turned back at the close of the hour, for it was before the Sabbath. For this reason, they did not continue the pursuit.  {8:27} But, having gathered together their weapons and spoils, they kept the Sabbath, blessing the Lord who had delivered them in that day, showering the beginning of mercy on them.  {8:28} In truth, after the Sabbath, they divided the spoils to the disabled, and the orphans, and the widows, and the remainder they kept for themselves and their own.  {8:29} And so, when these things were done, and supplication was made by all in common, they asked the merciful Lord to be reconciled to his servants unto the end.  {8:30} And, among those who were fighting against them with Timothy and Bacchides, they slew more than twenty thousand, and they obtained the high fortresses, and they divided many spoils, making equal portions for the disabled, the fatherless, and the widows, and even the aged.  {8:31} And when they had carefully collected their weapons, they stored them all in strategic places, and, in truth, the remainder of the spoils they carried to Jerusalem.  {8:32} And they put to death Philarches, a wicked man, who was with Timothy, who had brought many afflictions upon the Jews.  {8:33} And when they celebrated the song of victory at Jerusalem, they burned him who had set fire to the sacred doors, that is, Callisthenes, when he had taken refuge in a certain house, repaying him a worthy reward for his impieties.  {8:34} But as for that most vicious Nicanor, who had led in a thousand merchants for the sale of the Jews, he was brought low with the help of the Lord, and by those whom he considered to be worthless. Putting aside the glorious vestments, fleeing by an inland route, he arrived alone at Antioch, having been brought to the greatest unhappiness by the destruction of his army.  {8:36} And he who had promised to pay a tribute to the Romans from the captives of Jerusalem, now professed that the Jews had God as their protector, and, for this reason, they were invulnerable, because they followed the laws established by him.

[2 Maccabees 9]  {9:1} At the same time, Antiochus returned in dishonor from Persia.  {9:2} For he had entered into the city called Persepolis, and attempted to rob the temple, and to oppress the city, but the multitude, rushing to arms, turned them to flight, and so it happened that Antiochus, after fleeing, returned in disgrace.  {9:3} And when he had arrived near Ecbatana, he realized what had happened to Nicanor and Timothy.  {9:4} And so, rising up in anger, he thought to turn back upon the Jews the injury done by those who had put him to flight. And, therefore, he ordered his chariot to be driven without stopping along the way, for the judgment of heaven was urging him on, because he had spoken so arrogantly about how he would come to Jerusalem and make it into a mass grave for the Jews.  {9:5} But the Lord God of Israel, who oversees all things, struck him with an incurable and invisible plague. For, as soon as he had finished these words, a dire pain in his abdomen seized him, with bitter internal torments. {9:6} And, indeed, it sprung forth justly, since he had tormented the internal organs of others with many strange and new tortures, yet he in no way ceased from his malice. {9:7} But, beyond this, being filled with arrogance, breathing fire with his soul against the Jews, and instructing the task to be accelerated, it happened that, as he was rushing on forcefully, he fell from the chariot, and his limbs were afflicted with a serious bruising of the body. {9:8} And he, being filled with arrogance beyond human means, seemed to himself to command even the waves of the sea and to weigh even the heights of the mountains in a balance. But now, humbled to the ground, he was carried on a stretcher, calling himself as a witness to the manifest virtue of God. {9:9} So then, worms swarmed from his impious body, and, as he lived on in pain, his flesh fell away, and then his odorous stench oppressed the army. {9:10} And him who, a little before, thought that he could touch the stars of heaven, no one could endure to carry, because of the intolerable stench. {9:11} And so, from then on, being led away from his heavy arrogance by the admonishment of a divine plague, he began to come to an understanding of himself, with his pains increasing through every moment. {9:12} And, when he could not even bear his own stench, he spoke in this way: "It is just to be subject to God, and a mortal should not consider himself equal to God." {9:13} Then this wicked one prayed to the Lord, from whom, subsequently, there might be no mercy. {9:14} And the city, to which he was going in haste to pull it down to the ground and to make it a mass grave, he now wanted to make free. {9:15} And the Jews, whom he had said he certainly did not consider worthy even to be buried, but would deliver them to be torn apart by birds and wild beasts, and would exterminate them with their little ones, he now promised to make equal with the Athenians. {9:16} And even the holy temple, which before he had plundered, he would adorn with the best gifts, and increase the holy vessels, and pay out from his revenues the charges pertaining to the sacrifices. {9:17} Beyond these things, he would even become a Jew himself, and would travel through every place on earth and declare the power of God. {9:18} But, when his pains did not cease, (for the just judgment of God had overwhelmed him,) in despair he wrote to the Jews, in the manner of a supplication, a letter addressing the people of the Jews should keep those days every year. {10:1} But Maccabeus and those who were with him, the Lord protecting them, even recovered the temple and the city. {10:2} Then he demolished the altars, which the foreigners had constructed in the streets, and likewise the shrines. {10:3} And, having purged the temple, they made another altar. And, taking glowing stones from the fire, they began to offer sacrifices again after two years, and they set out incense, and lamps, and the bread of the Presence. {10:4} Having done these things, they petitioned the Lord, lying prostrate on the ground, lest they should fall once more into such evils, but also, if they should at any time sin, that they might be chastised by him more mildly, and not be delivered over to barbarians and blasphemous men. {10:5} Then, on the day that the temple had been polluted by the foreigners, it happened on the same day that the purification was accomplished, on the twenty-fifth day of the month, which was Kislev. {10:6} And they celebrated for eight days with joy, in the manner of the Feast of Tabernacles, remembering that, a little time before, they had celebrated the solemn days of the Feast of Tabernacles in mountains and caves, in the manner of wild beasts. {10:7} Because of this, they now preferred to carry boughs and green branches and palms, for him who had prospered the cleansing of his place. {10:8} And they decreed a common precept and decree, that all the people of the Jews should keep those days every year. {10:9} Now certainly Antiochus, who was called illustrious, held himself to be so at the passing of his life. {10:10} But next we will describe what happened with Eupator, the son of Antiochus, abridging the evils which happened in the wars. {10:11} For when he assumed the kingdom, he appointed, over the affairs of the kingdom, a certain Lysias, leader of the Phoenician and Syrian military. {10:12} For Ptolemy, who was called Macer, decided to be strict in justice toward the Jews, especially because of the iniquity that had been done to them, and to deal with them peacefully. {10:13} But, for this reason, he was accused before Eupator by his friends, and was frequently called a traitor. For he had deserted Cyprus, which Philometor had entrusted to him. And so, transferring to Antiochus the illustrious, he even withdrew from him. And he ended his life by poison. {10:14} But Gorgias, when he was the leader of the places, taking to him new arrivals, frequently made war against the Jews. {10:15} In truth, the Jews, who held the strategic fortresses, took in those who were fleeing from Jerusalem, and they attempted to make war. {10:16} In fact, those who were with Maccabeus, petitioning the Lord through prayers to be their helper, made a forceful attack upon the fortresses of the Idumeans. {10:17} And, persevering with much force, they obtained the places, killing those they met, and cutting down in all no less than twenty thousand. {10:18} Yet certain ones, when they had fled into two well-fortified towers, gave all appearance of fighting back. {10:19} So Maccabeus left behind Simon and Joseph, and likewise Zachaeus, and those who were with them, to fight against them. And since those who were with them were sufficient in number, he turned back to those who attacked more forcefully. {10:20} In truth, those who were with Simon, being led by avarice, were persuaded by money from certain ones who were in the towers. And accepting seventy thousand didrachmas, they allowed certain ones to flee. {10:21} But when what was done had been reported to Maccabeus, gathering together the leaders of the people, he accused those who had sold their brothers for money, having sent away their adversaries. {10:22} Therefore, he executed these who had acted as traitors, and he quickly captured the two towers. {10:23} And so, having success in arms and in all things that he took in hand, he destroyed more than twenty thousand in the two fortresses. {10:24} And Timothy, who had been overcome by the Jews before, calling together a multitude of foreign troops and gathering horsemen from Asia, arrived as if he would capture Judea with arms. {10:25} But Maccabeus, and those who were with him, as he was approaching, beseeched the Lord, sprinkling dirt on their heads and wrapping their waists with haircloth. {10:26} And lying prostrate at the pedestal of the altar, they beseeched him to be forgiving to them, but to be an enemy to their enemies, and an adversary to their adversaries, just as the law says. {10:27} And so, after prayer, taking up arms, they proceeded further from the city, and, reaching close proximity to the enemies, they settled in. {10:28} But, as soon as the sun rose, both sides joined battle: these ones having the guarantee of victory and success by the strength of the Lord, yet the others having courage as their leader in battle. {10:29} But, while they were fighting vehemently, to the adversaries there appeared from heaven five men on horses, which were adorned with brides of gold, providing leadership to the Jews. {10:30} Two of them, having Maccabeus in the middle and surrounding him with their weapons, kept him safe. But, at the enemy, they cast darts and lightning, so that they fell down, being both confused with blindness and filled with disturbances. {10:31} Moreover, there were slain twenty thousand five hundred, along with six hundred horsemen. {10:32} In fact, Timothy fled away to Gazara, to a fortified stronghold, where Chaereas was in charge. {10:33} Then Maccabeus, and those who were with him, joyfully besieged the stronghold for four days. {10:34} But those who were inside, trusting to the strength of the place, spoke evil without limit and cast out nefarious words. {10:35} But when the fifth day began to dawn, twenty youths of those who were with Maccabeus, inflamed in soul because of the blasphemy, manfully approached to the wall, and, advancing with fierce courage, ascended it. {10:36} Moreover, others also getting up after them, went to set fire to the towers and the gates, and to burn the blasphemers alive. {10:37} Then, having continued throughout two days to lay waste to the fortress, they killed Timothy, who was found hiding himself in a certain place. And they also killed his brother Chaereas, and Apollonenses. {10:38} When this was done, they blessed the Lord with hymns and confessions, who had done great things in Israel and had given them the victory. {11:1} But a short time afterwards, Lysias, the procurator of the king and a near relative, who also was in charge of the government, was heavily weighed upon by what had happened. {11:2} Gathering together eight thousand, along with all the horsemen, he came against the Jews, thinking that the city would certainly be captured, making it a dwelling place for the Gentiles. {11:3} In truth, also thinking to make a profit in money from the temple, just as from the other shrines of the Gentiles, and to put the priesthood up for sale every year. {11:4} Never recognizing the power of God, but inflated in mind, he trusted in the multitude of the foot soldiers, and in the thousands of horsemen, and in the eighty elephants. {11:5} And so, he entered Judea, and, approaching Bethzur, which was in a narrow place, at an interval of five stadia from Jerusalem, he laid siege to that stronghold. {11:6} But when Maccabeus and those who were with him realized that the strongholds were besieged, they and all the crowd together petitioned the Lord with weeping and tears, that he would send a good Angel to save Israel. {11:7} And so the leader Maccabeus, taking up arms, exhorted the others, to undergo the peril together with him, and to bring assistance to their brothers. {11:8} And when they together were going forth with a ready spirit, there appeared at Jerusalem a horseman, preceding them in radiant clothing and with weapons of gold, wavin a spear. {11:9} Then they all together blessed the merciful Lord, and strengthened their souls, being prepared to break through not only men, but also the most ferocious beasts and walls of iron. {11:10} Thus, they went forth readily, having a helper from heaven, and with the Lord taking pity on them. {11:11} Then, rushing violently against the enemy, in the manner of lions, they struck down from among them: eleven thousand foot soldiers and one thousand six hundred horsemen. {11:12} And they turned all the rest to flight. But many of them, being wounded, escaped with nothing. And Lysias himself also escaped, fleeing in disgrace. {11:13} And because he was not irrational, thinking to himself about the loss that had happened against him, and understanding the Hebrews to be invincible because they depend upon the help of Almighty God, he sent to them, [11:14] and he promised that he would agree to all things that are just, and that he would persuade the king to be their friend. {11:15} Then Maccabeus assented to the request of Lysias, considering it useful in every way. And whatever Maccabeus wrote to Lysias, concerning the Jews, the king consented to it. {11:16} For there were letters written to the Jews from Lysias, which, indeed, were composed in this way: “Lysias, to the people of the Jews: greetings. {11:17} John and Absalom, who had been sent from you to deliver your writings, requested that I would implement these things that were signified by them. {11:18} Therefore, whatever things could be brought before the king, I have presented them. And he has conceded to those things that are permitted. {11:19} If, therefore, you will keep yourselves faithful in these matters, then, from now on, I will endeavor to be a cause of your good. {11:20} But as for other particulars, I have given orders by word, both to these, and to those who have been sent by me, to confer with you. {11:21} Farewell. In the one hundred forty-eighth year, on the twenty-fourth day of the month of Dioscorus.” {11:22} But the letter of the king contained this: “King Antiochus to Lysias, his brother: greetings. {11:23} Since our father has been transferred among the gods, we are willing that those who are in our kingdom should act without tumult, and should attend diligently to their own concerns. {11:24} We have heard that the Jews would not consent to my father to convert to the rites of the Greeks, but that they chose to keep to their own institutions, and, because of this, that they ask of us to leave them to their own laws. {11:25} Therefore, wanting this nation, likewise, to be at rest, we have reached a judgment that the temple should be restored to them, so that they may act according to the custom of their ancestors. {11:26} You will do well, therefore, if you send to them and grant them a pledge, so that our will becomes known, and they may be of good courage, and may look after their own needs.” {11:27} Truly, the letter of the king to the Jews was such as this: “King Antiochus to the senate of the Jews, and to the rest of the Jews: greetings. {11:28} If you are well, such is what we desire. But we ourselves are also well. {11:29} Menelaus came to us, saying that you wished to come down to your own, who are among us. {11:30} Therefore, we grant a pledge of security to those who come and go, even until the thirtieth day of the month of Xanthicus, {11:31} so that the Jews may make use of their own foods and laws, just as also before, and so that none of them should endure any kind of trouble for things which have been done by ignorance. {11:32} And so, we have also sent Menelaus, who will talk with you. {11:33} Farewell. In the one hundred forty-eighth year, on the fifteenth day of the month of Xanthicus.” {11:34} But the Romans also now sent a letter, having this in it: “Quintus Memmius and Titus Manilius, ambassadors of the Romans, to the people of the Jews: greetings. {11:35} Concerning these things that Lysias, the relative of the king, has conceded to you, we also have conceded. {11:36} But about such things as he judged should be referred to the king, send someone, as soon as you have diligently conferred among yourselves, so that we may make a decree, just as it is agreeable to you. For we are going to Antioch. {11:37} And, therefore, make haste to write back, so that we may know whatever your will may be. {11:38} Farewell. In the one hundred forty-eighth year, on the fifteenth day of the month of Xanthicus.”

[2 Maccabees 12] {12:1} After these pacts were made, Lysias proceeded on to the king, but the Jews undertook the work of agriculture. {12:2} However, those who had withdrawn: Timothy, and Apollonius, the son of Genaes, along with Hieronymus, and Demophon, and, in addition to these, Nicanor, the governor of Cyprus, would not permit them to live in peace and quiet. {12:3} Truly, those of Joppa were also perpetrators of very shameful acts. They asked the Jews, who lived among them, to go up into small boats, which they had prepared, with their wives and sons, as if no underlying hostility was between them. {12:4} And so, according to the common decree of the city, they acquiesced to them, having no suspicions and because there was peace. When they had proceeded out into deep water, they drowned no less than two hundred of them. {12:5} When Judas learned of the cruelty done to the men of his nation, he informed the men who were with him, and, having called upon God, the Just Judge, {12:6} he went against the executors of his brothers, and he even set the port on fire in the night; he burned the boats, but those who took refuge from the fire, he destroyed with the sword. {12:7} And when he had done these things in this way, he departed, as if he would return again to eradicate all those of Joppa. {12:8} But when he also realized those who were of Jamnia wanted to act in a similar way to the Jews living among them, {12:9} he went against those of Jamnia also by night, and he set the port on fire, along with the ships, so much so that the light of the fire was seen at Jerusalem, two hundred and forty stadia away. {12:10} When they had now gone from there nine stadia, and were making their way toward Timothy, they met in battle with those of Arabia: five thousand men and five hundred horsemen. {12:11} And when a strong fight occurred, and, by the help of God, it ceased favorably, the remainder of the Arabians who were overcome petitioned Judas to give them a pledge, promising to give him pastures and to assist him in other things in the future. {12:12} Then Judas, thinking that they truly might be useful in many ways, promised peace. And after receiving the pledge of his right hand, they withdrew to their tents. {12:13} Then he also assaulted a certain strong city, surrounded with bridges and walls, which was inhabited by a crowd from many different nations, the name of which is Casphin. {12:14} In truth, those who were inside, trusting in the strength of the walls and in the preparations of rations, acted irresponsibly, and they challenged Judas with evil words and blaspheming, as well as by speaking what is not lawful. {12:15} But Maccabeus rushed fiercely to the walls, calling upon the great Leader of the world, who, without battering rams or machines of war, had thrown down the walls of Jericho in the time of Joshua. {12:16} And, having captured the city through the will of the Lord, he made a slaughter without number, so much so that an adjoining pool, two stadia in width, was seen to flow with the blood of the slain. {12:17} From there, they withdrew seven hundred and fifty stadia, and they came to Charax, to those Jews who are called Tubianites. {12:18} And Timothy, indeed, they did not find in those places, for he withdrew before he completed any endeavor, having left behind a very strong garrison in a certain place. {12:19} But Dositheus and Sosipater, who were commanders with Maccabeus, destroyed those who were left behind by Timothy in the stronghold: ten thousand men. {12:20} And Maccabeus, having positioned six thousand men around him and having divided them into cohorts, went forth against Timothy, who had with him one hundred twenty thousand foot soldiers, and two thousand five hundred horsemen. {12:21} But when Timothy learned of the arrival of Judas, he sent ahead the women, and the children, and the remainder of the preparations, into a fortress, which is called Cannion. For it was impregnable and difficult to access because of the narrowness of the places. {12:22} And when the first cohort of Judas had appeared, the enemies were struck with fear by the presence of God, who beholds all things, and they were turned to flight, one over another, to such an extent that they were being knocked over by one another and were being wounded with the strokes of their own swords. {12:23} But Judas pursued them vehemently, punishing the profane and striking down thirty thousand of their men. {12:24} In truth, Timothy himself fell to the group under Dositheus and Sosipater. And with much begging, he pleaded with them to release him alive, because he held the parents and brothers of many of the Jews, who, at his death, might happen to be mistreated. {12:25} And when he had given his faith that he would restore them according to the agreement, they released him unharmed, for the sake of their brothers’ well-being. {12:26} Then Judas departed to Carnion, where he slew twenty-five thousand. [12:27] After having put to flight or killed these, he moved his army to Ephron, a fortified city, in which there lived a multitude of diverse peoples. And hardly young men, standing upon the walls, put up a strong fight. Moreover, in this place, there were many machines of war, and equipment for casting darts. [12:28] But when they had called upon the Almighty, who with his power breaks the strength of enemies, they seized the city. And they struck down twenty-five thousand of those who were inside. [12:29] From there, they went to the city of Scythia, which was six hundred stadia away from Jerusalem. [12:30] But the Jews, those who were among the Scythians, testified that they were treated kindly by them, and that, even in the times of unhappiness, they had treated them mildly. [12:31] They gave thanks to them, exhorting them to be kind to their people, now and at other times. And they went to Jerusalem, as the solemn days of the seven weeks were underway. [12:32] And, after Pentecost, they marched against Gorgias, the foremost leader over Idumea. [12:33] And he went out with three thousand foot soldiers and four hundred horsemen. [12:34] And when they came together, it happened that a few of the Jews were overthrown. [12:35] In fact, a certain Dositheus, a horseman of Bacenor, a strong man, took hold of Gorgias. And when he would have captured him alive, a certain horseman of the Thracians rushed upon him and cut off his arm, and so, in this way, Gorgias escaped to Maresa. [12:36] But when those who were with Esdris had fought all day and were fatigued, Judas called upon the Lord to be their helper and leader in the battle. [12:37] Beginning in the language of the fathers, and loudly extolling hymns, he inspired the soldiers of Gorgias to take flight. [12:38] Then Judas, having collected his army, went into the city Adullam. And, when the seventh day came, they purified themselves according to the custom, and they kept the Sabbath in the same place. [12:39] And the following day, Judas came with his own, in order to take away the bodies of the fallen, and to place them in the sepulchers of their fathers with their ancestors. [12:40] But they found, under the tunics of the slain, some of the treasures of the idols that were near Jamnia, which were prohibited to Jews by the law. Therefore, it became manifest that it was for this reason that they had been overthrown. [12:41] And so, they all blessed the just judgment of the Lord, who had made hidden things manifest. [12:42] So then, turning themselves to prayers, they petitioned him that the offense which had been done would be delivered into oblivion. And truly, the very strong Judas exhorted the people to keep themselves without sin, since they had seen with their own eyes what had happened because of the sins of those who were struck down. [12:43] And, calling an assembly, he sent twelve thousand drachmas of silver to Jerusalem, to be offered for a sacrifice for the sins of the dead, thinking well and religiously about the resurrection, and in this way the fallen would be resurrected, it would have seemed superfluous and vain to pray for the dead. [12:45] And because he considered that those who had fallen asleep with piety had great grace stored up for them. [12:46] Therefore, it is a holy and beneficial thought to pray on behalf of those who have passed away, so that they may be released from sins.
who were in Bethzur. He gave his right hand as a pledge, and accepted theirs, and he went away. \{13:23\} He joined battle with Judas; he was overcome. But when he realized that Philip, who had been left out of these events, had rebelled at Antioch, he was in a consternation of mind, and, begging the Jews, and being submissive to them, he swore to all things that seemed just. And, being reconciled, he offered sacrifice, honored the temple, and left gifts. \{13:24\} He embraced Maccabeus, and he made him commander and leader from Ptolemais all the way to the Gerrenians. \{13:25\} But when he arrived at Ptolemais, the Ptolemaians considered the conditions of the alliance burdensome, being indignant lest perhaps they might break the pact. \{13:26\} Then Lysias went up to the tribunal, and explained the reasons, and calmed the people, and so he returned to Antioch. And this is the way things went concerning the journey and return of the king.

\[2\text{ Maccabees 14}\] \{14:1\} But after a time of three years, Judas and those who were with him realized that Demetrius of Seleucus had gone up to strategic places with a very strong multitude and a navy at the port of Tripoli, \{14:2\} and had taken hold of the regions opposite Antiochus, and his commander, Lysias. \{14:3\} Now a certain Alcimus, who had been high priest, but who had willfully defiled himself in the time of the co-mingling, considering there to be no means for his safety, nor access to the altar, \{14:4\} went to king Demetrius in the one hundred and fifth year, offering to him a crown of gold, and a palm, and beyond these, some branches that seemed to belong to the temple. And, indeed, on that day, he was silent. \{14:5\} But, having met with an opportune time for his madness, he was called to a counsel by Demetrius and asked what things the Jews relied upon and what were their counsels. \{14:6\} He responded: “Those among the Jews who are called Hasideans, of whom Judas Maccabeus is foremost, nourish wars, and raise seditions, and will not permit the kingdom to be at peace.” \{14:7\} For I also, being cheated out of the glory of my ancestors (but I speak of the high priesthood), have come here, \{14:8\} first, indeed, in faithful service to the king’s interests, but also as an advisor of the citizens. For our entire nation is no less afflicted by their depravity. \{14:9\} But I beg you, O king, knowing each of these things, look after both the region and our people, according to your humanity, which is publicly known to all. \{14:10\} For, as long as Judas survives, it is impossible for the matter to be at peace.” \{14:11\} Then, having spoken such things before them, the rest of the allies, who held themselves to be enemies against Judas, further inflamed Demetrius. \{14:12\} And immediately he sent Nicanor, the commander over the elephants, into the first position against Judea, \{14:13\} giving him orders to be certain to capture Judas himself, and, truly, to scatter all those who were with him, and to appoint Alcimus as the high priest of the great temple. \{14:14\} Then the Gentiles, who had fled from Judas away from Judea, mingled themselves in flocks with Nicanor, thinking that the miseries and calamities of the Jews would become the cause of their prosperity. \{14:15\} And so, when the Jews heard of Nicanor’s arrival and that the nations were assembled, they, sprinkling dirt on their heads, petitioned him who established his people to preserve them in eternity, and who likewise protected his portion by clear signs. \{14:16\} Then, at the command of their leader, they moved promptly from there, and together assembled at the town of Dessau. \{14:17\} In truth, Simon, the brother of Judas, had joined battle with Nicanor, but he became frightened at the unexpected arrival of the adversaries. \{14:18\} Even so, Nicanor, hearing of the virtue of the companions of Judas, and the great courage with which they struggled on behalf of their country, was afraid to accomplish judgment by the sword. \{14:19\} For this reason, he sent ahead Poseidonius, and Theodotus, and Matthias, so as to give and receive the pledge of right hands. \{14:20\} And when a council was held all day about this, and the commander had brought it before the multitude, they were all of one opinion to consent to an alliance. \{14:21\} And so, they appointed a day, on which they would act among themselves secretly, and seats were brought out and placed for each of them. \{14:22\} But Judas instructed armed men to be in strategic places, lest some kind of malice might unexpectedly spring up from the enemies. And they had an agreeable conference. \{14:23\} Then Nicanor stayed in Jerusalem, and he did no iniquity; he sent away the flocks of the crowds, which had been gathered together. \{14:24\} And Judas always held him dear to the heart, and was favorably inclined toward the man. \{14:25\} And he asked him to consider a wife, and to procreate sons. He got married; he lived quietly, and they all lived in common. \{14:26\} But Alcimus seeing the love that they had for one another, and the agreements, went to Demetrius, and he told him that Nicanor had assented to foreign interests, and that he had chosen Judas, a traitor to the kingdom, as his successor. \{14:27\} And so the king, being exasperated and provoked by this very wicked accusation, wrote to Nicanor, saying that he was certainly overburdened by the agreement of alliance, and he ordered him nevertheless to send Maccabeus quickly to Antioch in chains. \{14:28\} When this was known, Nicanor was in consternation, and he took it grievously that he would make void the things that were agreed, having received no injury from the man. \{14:29\} But, because he was not able to oppose the king, he watched for an opportunity to follow through with the orders. \{14:30\} But Maccabeus, seeing that Nicanor acted more formally with him, and that, when they met together as usual, he exhibited insolence, understood this austerity not to be from goodness. So, gathering together a few men, he hid himself from Nicanor. \{14:31\} But when he realized that he was effectively prevented by the man, he went to the greatest and holiest temple, and he ordered the priests, offering the usual sacrifices, to deliver the man to him. \{14:32\} When these spoke oaths to him that they did not know where he who was being sought was, he extended his hand toward the temple, \{14:33\} and he swore, saying: “Unless you deliver Judas to me in chains, I will reduce this shrine of God to the ground, and I will dig up the altar, and I will consecrate this temple to Liber the father.” \{14:34\} And having said this, he departed. But the priests, extending their hands toward heaven, called upon him who had always fought for his people, saying this: \{14:35\} “O Lord of the universe, who needs nothing, you willed that the temple of your dwelling should be with us.” \{14:36\} And now, O Lord, Holy of all holies, preserve unpolluted, until eternity, this house, which was recently made clean.” \{14:37\} Then Razias, a certain one of the elders from Jerusalem, was brought before Nicanor; the man was of good reputation, and was one who loved the city. For his affection, he was called the father of the Jews. \{14:38\} This one, for a long time, held on to his purpose of... continuing in Judaism, and he was content to hand over body and life, so that he might persevere in it. {14:39} Then Nicanor, being willing to manifest the hatred that he held for the Jews, sent five hundred soldiers to apprehend him. {14:40} For he thought, if he mistreated him, it would bring great disaster upon the Jews. {14:41} Now, as the group sought to rush into his house, and to break open the door, and wanting even to bring in fire, as he was about to be apprehended, he struck himself with the sword: {14:42} choosing to prefer to die nobly rather than to become subject to sinners, or to suffer unworthy injustices against his birth. {14:43} But, since he had, in haste, not obtained the certitude of a decisive wound, and the crowd was breaking in the doors, he, running boldly to the wall, manfully threw himself down upon the crowd. {14:44} But they quickly provided a place for his fall, so he landed at the middle of the neck. {14:45} And, since he was still breathing, and being inflamed in soul, he rose up, and as his blood flowed down in a great stream, being very gravely wounded, he ran through the crowd. {14:46} And standing upon a certain steep rock, in a great stream, being very gravely wounded, he ran through the crowd. {14:47} And, since he was still breathing, and being now almost without blood, grasping his intestines with both hands, he threw himself over the crowd, calling upon the Ruler of life as well as spirit, to restore these to him again. And so he passed away from this life.

[2 Maccabees 15] {15:1} But when Nicanor discovered Judas to be in the places of Samaria, he decided to meet him in warfare with all violence, on the Sabbath day. {15:2} In truth, the Jews who followed him out of necessity were saying: “Do not act so fiercely and barbarously, but give honor to the day of sanctification and reverence to him who beholds all things.” {15:3} That unhappy man asked, “Is there a powerful One in heaven, who commanded the day of the Sabbath to be kept?” {15:4} And they responded to him, “There is the living Lord himself in heaven, the powerful One, who ordered the seventh day to be kept.” {15:5} And so he said: “I also am powerful upon the earth, so I command arms to be taken up and the king’s plans to be fulfilled.” Nevertheless, he did not succeed in accomplishing his plan. {15:6} And Nicanor, being certainly lifted up with the greatest arrogance, had decided to establish a public monument of his victory over Judas. {15:7} But Maccabeus, as always, trusted with all hope that God would be present to help them. {15:8} And he exhorted his own not to fear the arrival of the nations, but to keep in mind the assistance they had received before from heaven, and now to hope for a future victory from the Almighty. {15:9} And speaking to them from the law and the prophets, reminding them even of the conflicts they had fought before, he made them more willing. {15:10} And so, having raised up their courage, at the same time he revealed the deceitful plan of the Gentiles and their betrayal of the oaths. {15:11} Then he armed every one of them, not with the weapons of shield and spear, but with the best speeches and exhortations; and he explained to them a dream, worthy to be believed, in which he rejoiced with them all. {15:12} Now the vision was in this manner: Onias, who had been high priest, a good and kind man, modest in appearance, gentle in manners, and noble in speech, and who from boyhood was trained in the virtues, extending his hands, prayed on behalf of all the people of the Jews. {15:13} After this, there appeared also another man, admirable in age and glory, and with a bearing of great dignity about him. {15:14} In truth, Onias responded by saying: “This one loves his brothers and the people of Israel. This is he who prays greatly for the people and for all the holy city: Jeremiah, the prophet of God.” {15:15} Then Jeremiah extended his right hand, and he gave to Judas a sword of gold, saying: {15:16} “Receive this holy sword as a gift from God, with it you shall cast down the adversaries of my people Israel.” {15:17} And so, having been exhorted by the very good words of Judas, by which the readiness and courage of the young men were able to be raised and strengthened, they resolved to strive and to contend with fortitude, so that virtue would judge the matter, because the holy city and the temple were in peril. {15:18} For their concern was less for their wives and sons, and likewise less for their brothers and relatives; in truth, their greatest and first fear was for the sanctity of the temple. {15:19} But those also who were in the city had no small concern for those who had gathered together. {15:20} And, when all now hoped that judgment would soon occur, and when the enemies were near, and the army was set in order, with the beasts and the horsemen positioned in strategic places, {15:21} Maccabeus, considering the arrival of the multitude, and the various preparations of weapons, and the fierceness of the beasts, extending his hands to heaven, called upon the Lord, who works miracles, who gives victory to those who are worthy, not according to the power of the weapons, but just as it pleases him. {15:22} Then, calling out in this way, he said: “You, O Lord, who sent your Angel under Hezekiah, king of Judah, and who killed one hundred and eighty-five thousand from the camp of Sennacherib, {15:23} now also, O Ruler of the heavens, send your good Angel before us, who are in fear and trembling at the greatness of your arm, {15:24} so that those who approach against your holy people with blasphemy may be afraid.” And in this way, indeed, he concluded his prayer. {15:25} But Nicanor, and those who were with him, advanced with trumpets and songs. {15:26} In truth, Judas, and those who were with him, calling upon God through prayers, came together against them. {15:27} Indeed, fighting with their hands, but praying to the Lord with their hearts, they struck down no less than thirty-five thousand, being delighted by the presence of God. {15:28} And when they had ceased and were returning with gladness, they realized, by his armor, that Nicanor had been slain. {15:29} And so, making a loud noise and inciting a disturbance, they blessed the Almighty Lord in the language of the fathers. {15:30} But Judas, who was prepared throughout all his body and soul to die for his citizens, instructed that Nicanor’s head, and his hand with the arm, should be cut off and carried through to Jerusalem. {15:31} When it arrived, having called together his fellow tribesmen, and the priests to the altar, he summoned those also who were in the stronghold. {15:32} And he displayed the head of Nicanor, and his nefarious hand, which he had extended against the holy house of Almighty God with magnificent boasting. {15:33} He even ordered now that the tongue of the impious Nicanor should be cut up and given in pieces to the birds, but that the hand of this demented man should be suspended opposite the temple. {15:34} Therefore, they all blessed the Lord of heaven, saying, “Blessed is he who has kept his own place uncontaminated.” {15:35} Then he suspended Nicanor’s head at the top of the stronghold, so that it would be an evident and manifest sign of the assistance of God. {1:36} And so, they all decreed by common counsel in no way to let this day pass without celebration. {1:37} but to hold a celebration on the thirteenth day of the month of Adar, which was called in the Syrian language: the day before Mardochias’ day. {1:38} Therefore, these things were accomplished concerning Nicanor, and from that time the city was possessed by the Hebrews. And so, I will bring an end to my narration here. {1:39} And, indeed, if I have done well, so as to have made an adequate history, this also is what I wanted. But if it is less than worthy, may it be permitted me. {1:40} For, just as it is adverse to drink always wine, or always water, so also it is pleasant to use sometimes the one, and sometimes the other. So, if the words were always exact, it would not be pleasing to the readers. Therefore, here it shall be completed.

 The Gospel of Matthew **

[Matthew 1] {1:1} The book of the lineage of Jesus Christ, the son of David, the son of Abraham. {1:2} Abraham conceived Isaac. And Isaac conceived Jacob. And Jacob conceived Judah and his brothers. {1:3} And Judah conceived Perez and Zerah by Tamar. And Perez conceived Hezron. And Hezron conceived Ram. {1:4} And Ram conceived Amminadab. And Amminadab conceived Nahshon. And Nahshon conceived Salmon. {1:5} And Salmon conceived Boaz by Rahab. And Boaz conceived Obed by Ruth. And Obed conceived Jesse. {1:6} And Jesse conceived king David. And king David conceived Solomon, by her who had been the wife of Uriah. {1:7} And Solomon conceived Rehoboam. And Rehoboam conceived Abijah. And Abijah conceived Asa. {1:8} And Asa conceived Jehoshaphat. And Jehoshaphat conceived Joram. And Joram conceived Uzziah. {1:9} And Uzziah conceived Jotham. And Jotham conceived Ahaz. And Ahaz conceived Hezekiah. {1:10} And Hezekiah conceived Manasseh. And Manasseh conceived Amos. And Amos conceived Josiah. {1:11} And Josiah conceived Jechoniah and his brothers in the transmigration of Babylon. {1:12} And after the transmigration of Babylon, Jechoniah conceived Shealtiel. And Shealtiel conceived Zerubbabel. {1:13} And Zerubbabel conceived Abiud. And Abiud conceived Eliakim. And Eliakim conceived Azor. {1:14} And Azor conceived Zadok. And Zadok conceived Achim. And Achim conceived Eliud. {1:15} And Eliud conceived Eleazar. And Eleazar conceived Matthias. And Matthias conceived Jacob. {1:16} And Jacob conceived Joseph, the husband of Mary, of whom was born Jesus, who is called Christ. {1:17} And so, all the generations from Abraham to David are fourteen generations; and from David to the transmigration of Babylon, fourteen generations; and from the transmigration of Babylon to the Christ, fourteen generations. {1:18} Now the procreation of the Christ occurred in this way. After his mother Mary had been betrothed to Joseph, before they lived together, she was found to have conceived in her womb by the Holy Spirit. {1:19} Then Joseph, her husband, since he was just and was not willing to hand her over, preferred to send her away secretly. {1:20} But while thinking over these things, behold, an Angel of the Lord appeared to him in his sleep, saying: “Joseph, son of David, do not be afraid to accept Mary as your wife. For what has been formed in her is of the Holy Spirit. {1:21} And she shall give birth to a son. And you shall call his name JESUS. For he shall accomplish the salvation of his people from their sins.” {1:22} Now all this occurred in order to fulfill what was spoken by the Lord through the prophet, saying: {1:23} “Behold, a virgin shall conceive in her womb, and she shall give birth to a son. And they shall call his name Emmanuel, which means: God is with us.” {1:24} Then Joseph, arising from sleep, did just as the Angel of the Lord had instructed him, and he accepted her as his wife. {1:25} And he knew her not, yet she bore her son, the firstborn. And he called his name JESUS.

[Matthew 2] {2:1} And so, when Jesus had been born in Bethlehem of Judah, in the days of king Herod, behold, Magi from the east arrived in Jerusalem, {2:2} saying: “Where is he who was born king of the Jews? For we have seen his star in the east, and we have come to adore him.” {2:3} Now king Herod, hearing this, was disturbed, and all Jerusalem with him. {2:4} And gathering together all the leaders of the priests, and the scribes of the people, he consulted with them as to where the Christ would be born. {2:5} And they said to him: “In Bethlehem of Judea. For so it has been written by the prophet: {2:6} ‘And you, Bethlehem, the land of Judah, are by no means least among the leaders of Judah. For from you shall go forth the ruler who shall guide my people Israel.’ ” {2:7} Then Herod, quietly calling the Magi, diligently learned from them the time when the star appeared to them. {2:8} And sending them into Bethlehem, he said: “Go and diligently ask questions about the boy. And when you have found him, report back to me, so that I, too, may come and adore him.” {2:9} And when they had heard the king, they went away. And behold, the star that they had seen in the east went before them, even until, arriving, it stood still above the place where the child was. {2:10} Then, seeing the star, they were gladdened by a very great joy. {2:11} And entering the home, they found the boy with his mother Mary. And so, falling prostrate, they adored him. And opening their treasures, they offered him gifts: gold, frankincense, and myrrh. {2:12} And having received a response in sleep that they should not return to Herod, they went back by another way to their own region. {2:13} And after they had gone away, behold, an Angel of the Lord appeared in sleep to Joseph, saying: “Rise up, and take the boy and his mother by night, and withdraw into Egypt. And remain there until I tell you. For it will happen that Herod will seek the boy to destroy him.” {2:14} And getting up, he took the boy and his mother by night, and withdrew into Egypt. {2:15} And he remained there, until the death of Herod, in order to fulfill what was spoken by the Lord through the prophet, saying: “Out of Egypt, I called my son.” {2:16} Then Herod, seeing that he had been fooled by the Magi, was very angry. And so he sent to kill all the boys who were in Bethlehem, and in all its borders, from two years of age and under, according to the time that he had learned by questioning the Magi. {2:17} Then what was spoken through the prophet Jeremiah was fulfilled, saying: {2:18} “A voice has been heard in Ramah, great weeping and wailing: Rachel crying for her sons. And she was not willing to be consoled, because they were no more." [2:19] Then, when Herod had passed away, behold, an Angel of the Lord appeared in sleep to Joseph in Egypt, [2:20] saying: "Rise up, and take the boy and his mother, and go into the land of Israel. For those who were seeking the life of the boy have passed away." [2:21] And rising up, he took the boy and his mother, and he went into the land of Israel. [2:22] Then, hearing that Archelaus reigned in Judea in place of his father Herod, he was afraid to go there. And being warned in sleep, he withdrew into parts of Galilee. [2:23] And arriving, he lived in a city which is called Nazareth, in order to fulfill what was spoken through the prophets: "For he shall be called a Nazarene."

[Matthew 3] [3:1] Now in those days, John the Baptist arrived, preaching in the desert of Judea, [3:2] and saying: "Repent. For the kingdom of heaven has drawn near." [3:3] For this is the one who was spoken of through the prophet Isaiah, saying: "A voice crying out in the desert: Prepare the way of the Lord. Make straight his paths."

[Matthew 4] [4:1] Then Jesus was led by the Spirit into the desert, in order to be tempted by the devil. [4:2] And when he had fasted for forty days and forty nights, afterwards he was hungry. [4:3] And approaching, the tempter said to him, "If you are the Son of God, tell these stones to become bread." [4:4] And in response he said, "It has been written: 'Not by bread alone shall man live, but by every word that proceeds from the mouth of God.' " [4:5] Then the devil took him up, into the holy city, and set him on the pinnacle of the temple, [4:6] and said to him: "If you are the Son of God, cast yourself down. For it has been written: 'For he has given charge of you to his angels, and they shall take you into their hands, lest perhaps you may hurt your foot against a stone.' " [4:7] Jesus said to him, "Again, it has been written: 'You shall not tempt the Lord your God.' " [4:8] Again, the devil took him up, onto a very high mountain, and showed him all the kingdoms of the world and their glory, [4:9] and said to him, "All these things I will give to you, if you will fall down and adore me." [4:10] Then Jesus said to him: "Go away, Satan. For it has been written: 'You shall adore the Lord your God, and him only shall you serve.' " [4:11] Then the devil left him. And behold, Angels approached and ministered to him. [4:12] And when Jesus had heard that John had been handed over, he withdrew into Galilee. [4:13] And leaving behind the city of Nazareth, he went and lived in Capernaum, near the sea, at the borders of Zebulun and of Naphtali, [4:14] in order to fulfill what was said through the prophet Isaiah: [4:15] "Land of Zebulun and land of Naphtali, the way of the sea across the Jordan, Galilee of the Gentiles: [4:16] A people who were sitting in darkness have seen a great light. And unto those sitting in the region of the shadow of death, a light has risen." [4:17] From that time, Jesus began to preach, and to say: "Repent. For the kingdom of heaven has drawn near." [4:18] And Jesus, walking near the Sea of Galilee, saw two brothers, Simon who is called Peter, and his brother Andrew, casting a net into the sea (for they were fishermen). [4:19] And he said to them: "Follow me, and I will make you fishers of men." [4:20] And at once, leaving behind their nets, they followed him. [4:21] And continuing on from there, he saw another two brothers, James of Zebedee, and his brother John, in a ship with their father Zebedee, repairing their nets. And he called them. [4:22] And immediately, leaving their nets and their father behind, they followed him. [4:23] And Jesus traveled throughout all of Galilee, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the Gospel of the kingdom, and healing every sickness and every infirmity among the people. [4:24] And reports of him went out to all of Syria, and they brought to him all those who had maladies, those who were in the grasp of various sicknesses and torments, and those who were in the hold of demons, and the mentally ill, and paralytics. And he cured them. [4:25] And a great crowd followed him from Galilee, and from the Ten Cities, and from Jerusalem, and from Judea, and from across the Jordan.

[Matthew 5] [5:1] Then, seeing the crowds, he ascended the mountain, and when he had sat down, his disciples drew near to him, [5:2] and opening his mouth, he taught them, saying: [5:3] "Blessed are the poor in spirit, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. [5:4] Blessed are the meek, for they shall possess the earth. [5:5] Blessed are those who mourn, for they shall be consoled. [5:6] Blessed are those who hunger and thirst for justice, for they shall be satisfied. [5:7] Blessed are the merciful, for they shall obtain mercy. [5:8] Blessed are the pure in heart, for they shall see God. [5:9] Blessed are the peacemakers, for they shall be called sons of God. [5:10] Blessed are those who endure persecution for the sake of justice, for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. [5:11] Blessed are you when they have slandered you, and persecuted you, and spoken all kinds of evil against you, falsely, for my sake:
{5:12} be glad and exult, for your reward in heaven is plentiful. For so they persecuted the prophets who were before you.
{5:13} You are the salt of the earth. But if salt loses its saltiness, with what will it be salted? It is no longer useful at all, except to be cast out and trampled under by men.
{5:14} You are the light of the world. A city set on a mountain cannot be hidden.
{5:15} And they do not light a lamp and put it under a basket, but on a lampstand, so that it may shine to all who are in the house.
{5:16} So then, let your light shine in the sight of men, so that they may see your good works, and may glorify your Father, who is in heaven.
{5:17} Do not think that I have come to loosen the law or the prophets. I have not come to loosen, but to fulfill.
{5:18} Amen I say to you, certainly, until heaven and earth pass away, not one iota, not one dot shall pass away from the law, until all is done.
{5:19} Therefore, whoever will have loosened one of the least of these commandments, and have taught men so, shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven. But whoever will have done and taught these, such a one shall be called great in the kingdom of heaven.
{5:20} For I say to you, that unless your justice has surpassed that of the scribes and the Pharisees you shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven.
{5:21} You have heard that it was said to the ancients: 'You shall not murder; whoever will have murdered shall be liable to judgment.'
{5:22} But I say to you, that anyone who becomes angry with his brother shall be liable to judgment. But whoever will have called his brother, 'Idiot,' shall be liable to the council. Then, whoever will have called him, 'Worthless,' shall be liable to the fires of Hell.
{5:23} Therefore, if you offer your gift at the altar, and there you remember that your brother has something against you,
{5:24} leave your gift there, before the altar, and go first to be reconciled to your brother, and then you may approach and offer your gift.
{5:25} Be reconciled with your adversary quickly, while you are still on the way with him, lest perhaps the adversary may hand you over to the judge, and the judge may hand you over to the officer, and you will be thrown in prison.
{5:26} Amen I say to you, that you shall not go forth from there, until you have repaid the last quarter.
{5:27} You have heard that it was said to the ancients: 'You shall not commit adultery.'
{5:28} But I say to you, that anyone who will have looked at a woman, so as to lust after her, has already committed adultery with her in his heart.
{5:29} And if your right eye causes you to sin, root it out and cast it away from you. For it is better for you that one of your members perish, than that your whole body be cast into Hell.
{5:30} And if your right hand causes you to sin, cut it off and cast it away from you. For it is better for you that one of your members perish, than that your whole body go into Hell.
{5:31} And it has been said: 'Whoever would dismiss his wife, let him give her a bill of divorce.'
{5:32} But I say to you, that anyone who will have dismissed his wife, except in the case of fornication, causes her to commit adultery; and whoever will have married her who has been dismissed commits adultery.
{5:33} Again, you have heard that it was said to the ancients: 'You shall not swear falsely. For you shall repay your oaths to the Lord.'
{5:34} But I say to you, do not swear an oath at all, neither by heaven, for it is the throne of God,
{5:35} nor by earth, for it is his footstool, nor by Jerusalem, for it is the city of the great king.
{5:36} Neither shall you swear an oath by your own head, because you are not able to cause one hair to become white or black.
{5:37} But let your word 'Yes' mean 'Yes,' and 'No' mean 'No.' For anything beyond that is of evil.
{5:38} You have heard that it was said: 'An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth.'
{5:39} But I say to you, do not resist one who is evil, but if anyone will have struck you on your right cheek, offer to him the other also.
{5:40} And anyone who wishes to contend with you in judgment, and to take away your tunic, release to him your cloak also.
{5:41} And whoever will have compelled you for one thousand steps, go with him even for two thousand steps.
{5:42} Whoever asks of you, give to him. And if anyone would borrow from you, do not turn away from him.
{5:43} You have heard that it was said, 'You shall love your neighbor, and you shall have hatred for your enemy.'
{5:44} But I say to you: Love your enemies. Do good to those who hate you. And pray for those who persecute and slander you.
{5:45} In this way, you shall be sons of your Father, who is in heaven. He causes his sun to rise upon the good and the bad, and he causes it to rain upon the just and the unjust.
{5:46} For if you love those who love you, what reward will you have? Do not even tax collectors behave this way?
{5:47} And if you greet only your brothers, what more have you done? Do not even the pagans behave this way?
{5:48} Therefore, be perfect, even as your heavenly Father is perfect."

[Matthew 6]  {6:1} "Pay attention, lest you perform your justice before men, in order to be seen by them; otherwise you shall not have a reward with your Father, who is in heaven.
{6:2} Therefore, when you give alms, do not choose to sound a trumpet before you, as the hypocrites do in the synagogues and in the towns, so that they may be honored by men.
{6:3} But when you give alms, do not let your left hand know what your right hand is doing,
{6:4} so that your almsgiving may be in secret, and your Father, who sees in secret, will repay you.
{6:5} And when you pray, you should not be like the hypocrites, who love standing in the synagogues and at the corners of the streets to pray, so that they may be seen by men.
{6:6} But you, when you pray, enter into your room, and having shut the door, pray to your Father in secret, and your Father, who sees in secret, will repay you.
{6:7} And when praying, do not choose many words, as the pagans do. For they think that by their excess of words they might be heeded.
{6:8} Therefore, do not choose to imitate them. For your Father knows what your needs may be, even before you ask him.
{6:9} Therefore, you shall pray in this way: Our Father, who is in heaven: May your name be kept holy.
{6:10} May your kingdom come. May your will be done, as in heaven, so also on earth.
{6:11} Give us this day our life-sustaining bread.
{6:12} And forgive us our debts, as we also forgive our debtors.
{6:13} And lead us not into temptation, in order to be seen by them; otherwise you shall not have a reward with your Father, who is in heaven.
{6:14} For if you will forgive men their sins, your heavenly Father also will forgive you your offenses.
{6:15} But if you will not forgive men, neither will your Father forgive you your sins.
{6:16} And when you fast, do not choose to become gloomy, like the hypocrites. For they alter their faces, so that their fasting may be apparent to men.
{6:17} But as for you, when you fast, anoint your head and wash your face, {6:18} so that your fasting will not be apparent to men, but to your Father, who is in secret. And your Father, who sees in secret, will repay you. {6:19} Do not choose to store up for yourselves treasures on earth:
where rust and moth consume, and where thieves break in and steal. {6:20} Instead, store up for yourselves treasures in heaven: where neither rust nor moth consumes, and where thieves do not break in and steal. {6:21} For where your treasure is, there also is your heart. {6:22} The lamp of your body is your eye. If your eye is wholesome, your entire body will be filled with light. {6:23} But if your eye has been corrupted, your entire body will be darkened. If then the light that is in you is darkness, how great will that darkness be!
{6:24} No one is able to serve two masters. For either he will have hatred for the one, and love the other, or he will persevere with the one, and despise the other. You cannot serve God and wealth. {6:25} And so I say to you, do not be anxious about your life, as to what you will eat, nor about your body, as to what you will wear. Is not life more than food, and the body more than clothing? {6:26} Consider the birds of the air, how they neither sow, nor reap, nor gather into barns, and yet your heavenlyFather feeds them. Are you not of much greater value than they are? {6:27} And which of you, by thinking, is able to add one cubit to his stature?
{6:28} And as for clothing, why are you anxious? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they neither work nor weave. {6:29} But I say to you, that not even Solomon, in all his glory, was arrayed like one of these. {6:30} So if God so clothes the grass of the field, which is here today, and cast into the oven tomorrow, how much more will he care for you, O little in faith? {6:31} Therefore, do not choose to be anxious, saying: 'What shall we eat, and what shall we drink, and with what shall we be clothed?' {6:32} For the Gentiles seek all these things. Yet your Father knows that you need all these things. {6:33} Therefore, seek first the kingdom of God and his justice, and all these things shall be added to you as well. {6:34} Therefore, do not be anxious about tomorrow; for the future day will be anxious for itself. Sufficient for the day is its evil."

[Matthew 7] {7:1} “Do not judge, so that you may not be decided. {7:2} For with whatever judgment you judge, so shall you be judged; and with whatever measure you measure out, so shall it be measured back to you. {7:3} And how can you see the splinter in your brother’s eye, and not see the board in your own eye? {7:4} Or how can you see to your brother, ‘Let me take the splinter from your eye,’ while, behold, a board is in your own eye? {7:5} Hypocrite, first remove the board from your own eye, and then you will see clearly enough to remove the splinter from your brother’s eye.
{7:6} Do not give what is holy to dogs, and do not cast your pearls before swine, lest perhaps they may trample them under their feet, and then, turning, they may tear you apart.
{7:7} Ask, and it shall be given to you. Seek, and you shall find. Knock, and it shall be opened to you. {7:8} For everyone who asks, receives; and whoever seeks, finds; and to anyone who knocks, it will be opened. {7:9} Or what man is there among you, who, if his son were to ask him for bread, would offer him a stone; {7:10} or if he were to ask him for a fish, would offer him a snake? {7:11} Therefore, if you, though you are evil, know how to give good gifts to your sons, how much more will your Father, who is in heaven, give good things to those who ask him? {7:12} Therefore, all things whatsoever that you wish that men would do to you, do so also to them. For this is the law and the prophets.
{7:13} Enter through the narrow gate. For wide is the gate, and broad is the way, which leads to perdition, and many there are who enter through it. {7:14} How narrow is the gate, and how straight is the way, which leads to life, and few there are who find it! {7:15} Beware of false prophets, who come to you in sheep’s clothing, but inwardly are ravenous wolves.
{7:16} You shall know them by their fruits. Can grapes be gathered from thorns, or figs from thistles? {7:17} So then, every good tree produces good fruit, and the evil tree produces evil fruit. {7:18} A good tree is not able to produce evil fruit, and an evil tree is not able to produce good fruit.
{7:19} Every tree which does not produce good fruit shall be cut down and cast into the fire. {7:20} Therefore, by their fruits you will know them. {7:21} Not all who say to me, ‘Lord, Lord,’ will enter into the kingdom of heaven. But whoever does the will of my Father, who is in heaven, the same shall enter into the kingdom of heaven. {7:22} Many will say to me in that day, ‘Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy in your name, and cast out demons in your name, and perform many powerful deeds in your name?’ {7:23} And then will I disclose to them: ‘I have never known you. Depart from me, you workers of iniquity.’ {7:24} Therefore, everyone who hears these words of mine and does them shall be compared to a wise man, who built his house upon the rock. {7:25} And the rains descended, and the floods rose up, and the winds blew, and rushed upon that house, but it did not fall, for it was founded on the rock. {7:26} And everyone who hears these words of mine and does not do them shall be like a foolish man, who built his house upon the sand.
{7:27} And the rains descended, and the floods rose up, and the winds blew, and rushed upon that house, and it did fall,and great was its ruin.” {7:28} And it happened, when Jesus had completed these words, that the crowds were astonished at his doctrine. {7:29} For he was teaching them as one who has authority, and not like their scribes and Pharisees.

[Matthew 8] {8:1} And when he had descended from the mountain, great crowds followed him. {8:2} And behold, a leper, drawing near, adored him, saying, “Lord, if you are willing, you are able to cleanse me.” {8:3} And Jesus, extending his hand, touched him, saying: “I am willing. Be cleansed.” And immediately his leprosy was cleansed.
{8:4} And Jesus said to him: “See to it that you tell no one.
But go, show yourself to the priest, and offer the gift that Moses instructed, as a testimony for them.” {8:5} And when he had entered into Capernaum, a centurion approached, petitioning him, {8:6} and saying, “Lord, my servant lies at home paralyzed and badly tormented.” {8:7} And Jesus said to him, “I will come and heal him.” {8:8} And responding, the centurion said: “Lord, I am not worthy that you should enter under my roof, but only say the word, and my servant shall be healed. {8:9} For I, too, am a man placed under authority, having soldiers under me. And I say to one, ‘Go,’ and he goes, and to another, ‘Come,’ and he comes, and to my servant, ‘Do this,’ and he does it.” {8:10} And, hearing this, Jesus wondered. And he said to those following him:
“Amen I say to you, I have not found so great a faith in Israel.
{8:11} For I say to you, that many shall come from the east and the west, and they shall sit at table with Abraham, and Isaac, and Jacob in the kingdom of heaven. {8:12} But the sons of the kingdom shall be cast into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.” {8:13} And Jesus said to the centurion, “Go, and just as you have believed, so let it be done for you.” And the servant was healed at that very hour. {8:14} And when Jesus had arrived at the house of Peter, he saw his mother-in-law lying ill with a fever. {8:15} And he touched her hand, and the fever left her, and she rose up and ministered to them. {8:16} And when evening arrived, they brought to him many who had demons, and he cast out the spirits with a word. And he healed all those having maladies, {8:17} in order to fulfill what was spoken through the prophet Isaiah, saying, “He took our infirmities, and he carried away our diseases.” {8:18} Then Jesus, seeing the great crowds encircling him, gave orders to go across the sea. {8:19} And one scribe, approaching, said to him, “Teacher, I will follow you wherever you will go.” {8:20} And Jesus said to him, “Foxes have dens, and the birds of the air have nests, but the Son of man has nowhere to rest his head.” {8:21} Then another of his disciples said to him, “Lord, permit me first to go and bury my father.” {8:22} But Jesus said to him, “Follow me, and allow the dead to bury their dead.” {8:23} And climbing into a boat, his disciples followed him. {8:24} And behold, a great tempest occurred in the sea, so much so that the boat was covered with waves; yet truly, he was sleeping. {8:25} And his disciples drew near to him, and they awakened him, saying: “Lord, save us, we are perishing.” {8:26} And Jesus said to them, “Why are you afraid, O little faith?” Then rising up, he commanded the winds, and the sea. And a great tranquility occurred. {8:27} Moreover, the men wondered, saying: “What kind of man is this? For even the winds and the sea obey him.” {8:28} And when he had arrived across the sea, into the region of the Gerasenes, he was met by two who had demons, who were so exceedingly savage, as they went out from among the tombs, that no one was able to cross by that way. {8:29} And behold, they cried out, saying: “What are we to you, O Jesus, the Son of God? Have you come here to torment us before the time?” {8:30} Now there was, not far from them, a herd of many swine feeding. {8:31} Then the demons petitioned him, saying: “If you cast us from here, send us into the herd of swine.” {8:32} And he said to them, “Go.” And they, going out, went into the swine. And behold, the entire herd suddenly rushed along a steep place into the sea. And they died in the waters. {8:33} Then the shepherds fled, and arriving in the city, they reported on all this, and on those who had had the demons. {8:34} And behold, the entire city went out to meet Jesus. And having seen him, they petitioned him, so that he would cross from their borders.

[Matthew 9] {9:1} And climbing into a boat, he crossed the sea, and he arrived at his own city. {9:2} And behold, they brought to him a paralytic, lying on a bed. And Jesus, seeing their faith, said to the paralytic, “Be strengthened in faith, son; your sins are forgiven you.” {9:3} And behold, some of the scribes said within themselves, “He is blaspheming.” {9:4} And when Jesus had perceived their thoughts, he said: “Why do you think such evil in your hearts? {9:5} Which is easier to say, ‘Your sins are forgiven you,’ or to say, ‘Rise up and walk?’ {9:6} But, so that you may know that the Son of man has authority on earth to forgive sins,” he then said to the paralytic, “Rise up, take up your bed, and go into your house.” {9:7} And he arose and went into his house. {9:8} Then the crowd, seeing this, was frightened, and they glorified God, who gave such power to men. {9:9} And when Jesus passed on from there, he saw, sitting at the tax office, a man named Matthew. And he said to him, “Follow me.” And rising up, he followed him. {9:10} And it happened that, as he was sitting down to eat in the house, behold, many tax collectors and sinners arrived, and they sat down to eat with Jesus and his disciples. {9:11} And the Pharisees, seeing this, said to his disciples, “Why does your Teacher eat with tax collectors and sinners?” {9:12} But Jesus, hearing this, said: “It is not those who are healthy who are in need of a physician, but those who have maladies. {9:13} So then, go out and learn what this means: ‘I desire mercy and not sacrifice.’ For I have not come to call the just, but sinners.” {9:14} Then the disciples of John drew near to him, saying, “Why do we and the Pharisees fast frequently, but your disciples do not fast?” {9:15} And Jesus said to them: “How can the sons of the groom mourn, while the groom is still with them? But the days will arrive when the groom will be taken away from them. And then they shall fast. {9:16} For no one would sew a patch of new cloth onto an old garment. For it pulls its fullness away from the garment, and the tear is made worse. {9:17} Neither do they pour new wine into old wineskins. Otherwise, the wineskins rupture, and the wineskins are destroyed. Instead, they pour new wine into new wineskins. And so, both are preserved.” {9:18} As he was speaking these things to them, behold, a certain ruler approached and adored him, saying: “Lord, my daughter has recently passed away. But come and impose your hand upon her, and she will live.” {9:19} And Jesus, rising up, followed him, with his disciples. {9:20} And behold, a woman, who had suffered from a flow of blood for twelve years, approached from behind and touched the hem of his garment. {9:21} For she said within herself, “If I will touch even his garment, I shall be saved.” {9:22} But Jesus, turning and seeing her, said: “Be strengthened in faith, daughter; your faith has made you well.” And the woman was made well from that hour. {9:23} And when Jesus had arrived in the house of the ruler, and he had seen the musicians and the tumultuous crowd, {9:24} he said, “Depart. For the girl is not dead, but asleep.” And they derided him. {9:25} And when the crowd had been sent away, he entered. And he took her by the hand. And the girl rose up. {9:26} And the news of this went out to that entire land. {9:27} And as Jesus passed from there, two blind men followed him, crying out and saying, “Take pity on us, Son of David.” {9:28} And when he had arrived at the house, the blind men approached him. And Jesus said to them, “Do you trust that I am able to do this for you?” They say to him, “Certainly, Lord.” {9:29} Then he touched their eyes, saying, “According to your faith, so let it be done for you.” {9:30} And their eyes were opened. And Jesus warned them, saying, “See to it that no one knows of this.” {9:31} But going out, they spread the news of it to all that land. {9:32} Then, when they had departed, behold, they brought him a man who was mute, having a demon. {9:33} And after the demon was cast out, the mute man spoke. And the crowds wondered, saying, “Never has anything like this been seen in Israel.” {9:34} But the Pharisees said, “By the prince of demons does he cast out demons.” {9:35} And Jesus traveled throughout all of the cities and towns, teaching in their synagogues, and preaching the Gospel of the kingdom, and healing every illness and every infirmity. 9:36 Then, seeing the multitudes, he had compassion on them, because they were distressed and were reclining, like sheep without a shepherd. 9:37 Then he said to his disciples: "The harvest indeed is great, but the laborers are few. 9:38 Therefore, petition the Lord of the harvest, so that he may send out laborers to his harvest."

[Matthew 10] 10:1 And having called together his twelve disciples, he gave them authority over unclean spirits, to cast them out and to cure every sickness and every infirmity. 10:2 Now the names of the twelve Apostles are these: the First, Simon, who is called Peter, and Andrew his brother, 10:3 James of Zebedee, and John his brother, Philip and Bartholomew, Thomas and Matthew the tax collector, and James of Alphaeus, and Thaddaeus, 10:4 Simon the Canaanite, and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him. 10:5 Jesus sent these twelve, instructing them, saying: "Do not travel by the way of the Gentiles, and do not enter into the city of the Samaritans, 10:6 but instead go to the sheep who have fallen away from the house of Israel. 10:7 And going forth, preach, saying: 'For the kingdom of heaven has drawn near.' 10:8 Cure the infirm, raise the dead, cleanse lepers, cast out demons. You have received freely, so give freely. 10:9 Do not choose to possess gold, nor silver, nor money in your belts, 10:10 nor provisions for the journey, nor two tunics, nor shoes, nor a staff. For the laborer deserves his portion. 10:11 Now, into whatever city or town you will enter, inquire as to who is worthy within it. And stay there until you depart. 10:12 Then, when you enter into the house, greet it, saying, 'Peace to this house.' 10:13 And if, indeed, that house is worthy, your peace will rest upon it. But if it is not worthy, your peace will return to you. 10:14 And whoever has neither received you, nor listened to your words, departing from that house or city, shake off the dust from your feet. 10:15 Amen I say to you, it will be more tolerable for the land of Sodom and Gomorrah in the day of judgment, than for that city. 10:16 Behold, I am sending you like sheep in the midst of wolves. Therefore, be as prudent as serpents and as simple as doves. 10:17 But beware of men. For they will hand you over to councils, and they will scourge you in their synagogues. 10:18 And you shall be led before both rulers and kings for my sake, as a testimony to them and to the Gentiles. 10:19 But when they hand you over, do not choose to think about how or what to speak. For what to speak shall be given to you in that hour. 10:20 For it is not you who will be speaking, but the Spirit of your Father, who will speak in you. 10:21 And brother will hand over brother to death, and father will hand over son. And children will rise up against parents and bring about their deaths. 10:22 And you will be hated by all for the sake of my name. But whoever will have persevered, even to the end, the same shall be saved. 10:23 Now when they persecute you in one city, flee into another. Amen I say to you, you will not have exhausted all the cities of Israel, before the Son of man returns. 10:24 The disciple is not above the teacher, nor is the servant above his master. 10:25 It is sufficient for the disciple that he be like his teacher, and the servant, like his master. If they have called the Father of the family, 'Beelzebub,' how much more those of his household? 10:26 Therefore, do not fear them. For nothing is covered that shall not be revealed, nor hidden that shall not be known. 10:27 What I tell you in darkness, speak in the light. And what you hear whispered in the ear, preach above the rooftops. 10:28 And do not be afraid of those who kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul. But instead fear him who is able to destroy both soul and body in Hell. 10:29 Are not two sparrows sold for one small coin? And yet not one of them will fall to the ground without your Father. 10:30 For even the hairs of your head have all been numbered. 10:31 Therefore, do not be afraid. You are worth more than many sparrows. 10:32 Therefore, everyone who acknowledges me before men, I also will acknowledge before my Father, who is in heaven. 10:33 But whoever will have denied me before men, I also will deny before my Father, who is in heaven. 10:34 Do not think that I came to send peace upon the earth. I came, not to send peace, but the sword. 10:35 For I came to divide a man against his father, and a daughter against her mother, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law. 10:36 And the enemies of a man will be those of his own household. 10:37 Whoever loves father or mother more than me is not worthy of me. And whoever loves son or daughter above me is not worthy of me. 10:38 And whoever does not take up his cross, and follow me is not worthy of me. 10:39 Whoever finds his life, will lose it. And whoever will have lost his life because of me, shall find it. 10:40 Whoever receives you, receives me. And whoever receives me, receives him who sent me. 10:41 Whoever receives a prophet, in the name of a prophet, shall receive the reward of a prophet. And whoever receives the just in the name of the just shall receive the reward of the just. 10:42 And whoever shall give, even to one of the least of these, a cup of cold water to drink, solely in the name of a disciple: Amen I say to you, he shall not lose his reward."

[Matthew 11] 11:1 And it happened that, when Jesus had completed instructing his twelve disciples, he went away from there in order to teach and to preach in their cities. 11:2 Now when John had heard, in prison, about the works of Christ, sending two of his disciples, he said to him, 11:3 "Are you he who is to come, or should we expect another?" 11:4 And Jesus, responding, said to them: "Go and report to John what you have heard and seen. 11:5 The blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead rise again, the poor are evangelized. 11:6 And blessed is he who has found no offense in me." 11:7 Then, after they departed, Jesus began to speak to the crowds about John: "What did you go out to the desert to see? A reed shaken by the wind? 11:8 So what did you go out to see? A man in soft garments? Behold, those who are clothed in soft garments are in the houses of kings. 11:9 Then what did you go out to see? A prophet? Yes, I tell you, and more than a prophet. 11:10 For this is he, of whom it is written: 'Behold, I send my Angel before your face, who shall prepare your way before you.' 11:11 Amen I say to you, among those born of women, there has arisen no one greater than John the Baptist. Yet the least in the kingdom of heaven is greater than he. 11:12 But from the days of John the Baptist, even until now, the kingdom of heaven has endured violence, and the violent carry it away. 11:13 For all the prophets and the law prophesied, even until John.
And if you are willing to accept it, he is the Elijah, who is to come. {11:15} Whoever has ears to hear, let him hear. {11:16} But to what shall I compare this generation? It is like children sitting in the marketplace, {11:17} who, calling out to their companions, say: ‘We played music for you, and you did not dance. We lamented, and you did not mourn.’ {11:18} For John came neither eating nor drinking; and they say, ‘He has a demon.’ {11:19} The Son of man came eating and drinking; and they say, ‘Behold, a man who eats voraciously and who drinks wine, a friend of tax collectors and sinners. But wisdom is justified by her sons.’ {11:20} Then he began to rebuke the cities in which many of his miracles were accomplished, for they still had not repented. {11:21} “Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! For if the miracles that were done in you had been done in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago in haircloth and ashes. {11:22} Yet truly, I say to you, Tyre and Sidon shall be forgiven more than you, on the day of judgment. {11:23} And you, Capernaum, would you be exalted all the way to heaven? You shall descend all the way to Hell. For if the miracles that were done in you had been done in Sodom, perhaps it would have remained, even to this day. {11:24} Yet truly, I say to you, that the land of Sodom shall be forgiven more than you, on the day of judgment.” {11:25} At that time, Jesus responded and said: “I acknowledge you, Father, Lord of Heaven and earth, because you have hidden these things from the wise and the prudent, and have revealed them to little ones. {11:26} Yes, Father, for this was pleasing before you. {11:27} All things have been delivered to me by my Father. And no one knows the Son except the Father, nor does anyone know the Father except the Son, and those to whom the Son is willing to reveal him. {11:28} Come to me, all you who labor and have been burdened, and I will refresh you. {11:29} Take my yoke upon you, and learn from me, for I am meek and humble of heart; and you shall find rest for your souls. {11:30} For my yoke is sweet and my burden is light.”

[Matthew 12] {12:1} At that time, Jesus went out through the rife grain on the Sabbath. And his disciples, being hungry, began to separate the grain and to eat. {12:2} Then the Pharisees, seeing this, said to him, “Behold, your disciples are doing what is not lawful to do on the Sabbaths.” {12:3} But he said to them: “Have you not read what David did, when he was hungry, and those who were with him: {12:4} how he entered the house of God and ate the bread of the Presence, which was not lawful for him to eat, nor for those who were with him, but only for the priests? {12:5} Or have you not read in the law, that on the Sabbaths the priests in the temple violate the Sabbath, and they are without guilt? {12:6} But I say to you, that something greater than the temple is here. {12:7} And if you knew what this means, ‘I desire mercy, and not sacrifice,’ you would never have condemned the innocent. {12:8} For the Son of man is Lord even of the Sabbath.” {12:9} And when he had passed from there, he went into their synagogues. {12:10} And behold, there was a man who had a withered hand, and they questioned him, so that they might accuse him, saying, “Is it lawful to cure on the Sabbaths?” {12:11} But he said to them: “Who is there among you, having even one sheep, if it will have fallen into a pit on the Sabbath, would not take hold of it and lift it up? {12:12} How much better is a man than a sheep? And so, it is lawful to do good on the Sabbaths.” {12:13} Then he said to the man, “Extend your hand.” And he extended it, and it was restored to health, just like the other one. {12:14} Then the Pharisees, departing, took council against him, as to how they might destroy him. {12:15} But Jesus, knowing this, withdrew from there. And many followed him, and he cured them all. {12:16} And he instructed them, lest they make him known. {12:17} Then what was spoken through the prophet Isaiah was fulfilled, saying: {12:18} “Behold, my servant whom I have chosen, my beloved in whom my soul is well pleased. I will place my Spirit over him, and he shall announce judgment to the nations. {12:19} He shall not contend, nor cry out, neither shall anyone hear his voice in the streets. {12:20} He shall not crush the bruised reed, and he shall not extinguish the smoking wick, until he sends forth judgment unto victory. {12:21} And the Gentiles shall hope in his name.” {12:22} Then one who had a demon, who was blind and mute, was brought to him. And he cured him, so that he spoke and saw. {12:23} And all the crowds were stupified, and they said, “Could this be the son of David?” {12:24} But the Pharisees, hearing it, said, “This man does not cast out demons, except by Beelzebub, the prince of the demons.” {12:25} But Jesus, knowing their thoughts, said to them: “Every kingdom divided against itself will become desolate. And every city or house divided against itself will not stand. {12:26} So if Satan casts out Satan, then he is divided against himself. How then will his kingdom stand? {12:27} And if I cast out demons by Beelzebub, by whom do your own sons cast them out? Therefore, they shall be your judges. {12:28} But if I cast out demons by the Spirit of God, then the kingdom of God has arrived among you. {12:29} Or how can anyone enter into the house of a strong man, and plunder his belongings, unless he first restrains the strong man? And then he will plunder his house. {12:30} Whoever is not with me, is against me. And whoever does not gather with me, scatters. {12:31} For this reason, I say to you: Every sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven men, but blasphemy against the Spirit shall not be forgiven. {12:32} And anyone who will have spoken a word against the Son of man shall be forgiven. But whoever will have spoken against the Holy Spirit shall not be forgiven, neither in this age, nor in the future age. {12:33} Either make the tree good and its fruit good, or make the tree evil and its fruit evil. For certainly a tree is known by its fruit. {12:34} Progeny of vipers, how are you able to speak good things while you are evil? For out of the abundance of the heart, the mouth speaks. {12:35} A good man offers good things from a good storehouse. And an evil man offers evil things from an evil storehouse. {12:36} But I say to you, that for every idle word which men will have spoken, they shall render an account in the day of judgment. {12:37} For by your words shall you be justified, and by your words shall you be condemned.” {12:38} Then certain ones from the scribes and the Pharisees responded to him, saying, “Teacher, we want to see a sign from you.” {12:39} And answering, he said to them: “An evil and adulterous generation seeks a sign. But a sign will not be given to it, except the sign of the prophet Jonah. {12:40} For just as Jonah was in the belly of the whale for three days and three nights, so shall the Son of man be in the heart of the earth for three days and three nights. {12:41} The men of Nineveh shall arise in judgment with this generation, and they shall condemn it. For, at the preaching of Jonah, they repented. And behold, there is a greater than Jonah here. {12:42} The Queen of the South shall arise in judgment with this generation, and she shall cansom him it. For she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon. And behold, there is a greater than Solomon here. {12:43} Now when an unclean spirit departs from a man, he walks through dry places, seeking rest, and he does not find it. {12:44} Then he says, 'I will return to my house, from which I departed'. And arriving, he finds it vacant, swept clean, and decorated. {12:45} Then he goes and takes with him seven other spirits more wicked than himself, and they enter in and live there. And in the end, the man becomes worse than he was at first. So, too, shall it be with this most wicked generation." {12:46} While he was still speaking to the crowds, behold, his mother and his brothers were standing outside, seeking to speak with him.
{12:47} And someone said to him: "Behold, your mother and your brothers are standing outside, seeking you." {12:48} But responding to the one speaking to him, he said,
"Which one is my mother, and who are my brothers?"
{12:49} And extending his hand to his disciples, he said:
"Behold: my mother and my brothers. {12:50} For anyone who does the will of my Father, who is in heaven, the same is my brother, and sister, and mother."

[Matthew 13] {13:1} In that day, Jesus, departing from the house, sat down beside the sea. {13:2} And such great crowds were gathered to him that he climbed into a boat and he sat down. And the entire multitude stood on the shore.
{13:3} And he spoke many things to them in parables, saying:
"Behold, a sower went out to sow seed. {13:4} And while he sowed, some fell beside the road, and the birds of the air came and ate it. {13:5} Then others fell in a rocky place, where they did not have much soil. And they sprang up promptly, because they had no depth of soil. {13:6} But when the sun rose up, they were scorched, and because they had no roots, they withered. {13:7} Still others fell among thorns, and the thorns increased and suffocated them. {13:8} Yet some others fell upon good soil, and they produced fruit:
some one hundred fold, some sixty fold, some thirty fold.
{13:9} Whoever has ears to hear, let him hear." {13:10} And his disciples drew near to him and said, "Why do you speak to them in parables?" {13:11} Responding, he said to them:
"Because it has been given to you to know the mysteries of the kingdom of heaven, but it has not been given to them.
{13:12} For whoever has, it shall be given to him, and he shall have in abundance. But whoever has not, even what he has shall be taken away from him. {13:13} For this reason, I speak to them in parables: because seeing, they do not see,
and hearing they do not hear, nor do they understand.
{13:14} And so, in them is fulfilled the prophecy of Isaiah, who said, 'Hearing, you shall hear, but not understand; and seeing, you shall see, but not perceive. {13:15} For the heart of this people has grown fat, and with their ears they hear heavily, and they have closed their eyes, lest at any time they might see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their heart, and be converted, and then I would heal them.' {13:16} But blessed are your eyes, because they see, and your ears, because they hear. {13:17} Amen I say to you, certainly, that many of the prophets and the just desired to see what you see, and yet they did not see it, and to hear what you hear, and yet they did not hear it.

{13:18} Listen, then, to the parable of the sower.
{13:19} With anyone who hears the word of the kingdom and does not understand it, evil comes and carries away what was sown in his heart. This is he who received the seed by the side of the road. {13:20} Then whoever has received the seed upon a rocky place, this is one who hears the word and promptly accepts it with joy. {13:21} But he has no root in himself, so it is only for a time; then, when tribulation and persecution occur because of the word, he promptly stumbles.
{13:22} And whoever has received the seed among thorns, is this is he who hears the word, but the cares of this age and the falseness of riches suffocate the word, and he is effectively without fruit. {13:23} Yet truly, whoever has received the seed into good soil, this is he who hears the word, and understands it, and so he bears fruit, and he produces: some a hundred fold, and another sixty fold, and another thirty told." {13:24} He proposed another parable to them, saying:
"The kingdom of heaven is like a man who sowed good seed in his field. {13:25} But while the men were sleeping, his enemy came and sowed weeds amid the wheat, and then went away. {13:26} And when the plants had grown, and had produced fruit, then the weeds also appeared. {13:27} So the servants of the Father of the family, approaching, said to him: 'Lord, did you not sow good seed in your field? Then how is it that it has weeds?' {13:28} And he said to them, 'A man who is an enemy has done this.' So the servants said to him, 'Is it your will that we should go and gather them up?' {13:29} And he said: 'No, lest perhaps in gathering the weeds, you might also root out the wheat together with it.
{13:30} Permit both to grow until the harvest, and at the time of the harvest, I will say to the reapers: Gather first the weeds, and bind them into bundles to burn, but the wheat gather into my storehouse.' " {13:31} He proposed another parable to them, saying: "The kingdom of heaven is like a grain of mustard seed, which a man took and sowed in his field.
{13:32} It is, indeed, the least of all seeds, but when it has grown, it is greater than all the plants, and it becomes a tree, so much so that the birds of the air come dwell in its branches." {13:33} He spoke another parable to them: "The kingdom of heaven is like leaven, which a woman took and hid in three measures of fine wheat flour, until it was entirely leavened." {13:34} All these things Jesus spoke in parables to the crowds. And he did not speak to them apart from parables, {13:35} in order to fulfill what was spoken through the prophet, saying: "I will open my mouth in parables. I will proclaim what has been hidden since the foundation of the world." {13:36} Then, dismissing the crowds, he went into the house. And his disciples drew near to him, saying,
"Explain to us the parable of the weeds in the field."
{13:37} Responding, he said to them: "He who sows the good seed is the Son of man. {13:38} Now the field is the world. And the good seeds are the sons of the kingdom. But the weeds are the sons of wickedness. {13:39} So the enemy who sowed them is the devil. And truly, the harvest is the consummation of the age; while the reapers are the Angels.
{13:40} Therefore, just as weeds are gathered up and burned with fire, so shall it be at the consummation of the age.
{13:41} The Son of man shall send out his Angels, and they shall gather from his kingdom all who lead astray and those who work iniquity. {13:42} And he shall cast them into the furnace of fire, where there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth. {13:43} Then the just ones shall shine like the sun, in the kingdom of their Father. Whoever has ears to hear, let him hear. {13:44} The kingdom of heaven is like a treasure hidden in a field. When a man finds it, he hides it, and, because of his joy, he goes and sells everything that he has, and he buys that field. {13:45} Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a merchant seeking good pearls. {13:46} Having found one pearl of great value, he went away and sold all that he had, and he bought it. {13:47} Again, the kingdom of heaven is like a net cast into the sea, which gathers together all kinds of fish. {13:48} When it has been filled, drawing it out and sitting beside the shore, they selected the good into vessels, but the bad they threw away. {13:49} So shall it be at the consummation of the age. The Angels shall go forth and separate the bad from the midst of the just. {13:50} And they shall cast them into the furnace of fire, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth. {13:51} Have you understood all these things?" They say to him, "Yes." {13:52} He said to them, "Therefore, every scribe well-taught about the kingdom of heaven, is like a man, the father of a family, who offers from his storehouse both the new and the old." {13:53} And it happened that, when Jesus had completed these parables, he went away from there. {13:54} And arriving in his own country, he taught them in their synagogues, so much so that they wondered and said: "How can such wisdom and power be with this one? {13:55} Is this not the son of a workman? Is not his mother called Mary, and his brothers, James, and Joseph, and Simon, and Jude? {13:56} And his sisters, are they not all with us? Therefore, from where has this one obtained all these things?" {13:57} And they took offense at him. But Jesus said to them, "A prophet is not without honor, except in his own country and in his own house." {13:58} And he did not work many miracles there, because of their unbelief.

[Matthew 14] {14:1} In that time, Herod the Tetrarch heard the news about Jesus. {14:2} And he said to his servants: "This is John the Baptist. He has risen from the dead, and that is why miracles are at work in him." {14:3} For Herod had apprehended John, and bound him, and put him in prison, because of Herodias, the wife of his brother. {14:4} For John was telling him, "It is not lawful for you to have her." {14:5} And though he wanted to kill him, he feared the people, because they held him to be a prophet. {14:6} Then, on Herod's birthday, the daughter of Herodias danced in their midst, and it pleased Herod. {14:7} And so he promised with an oath to give her whatever she would ask of him. {14:8} But, having been advised by her mother, she said, "Give me here, on a platter, the head of John the Baptist." {14:9} And the king was greatly saddened. But because of his oath, and because of those who sat at table with him, he ordered it to be given. {14:10} And he sent and beheaded John in prison. {14:11} And his head was brought on a platter, and it was given to the girl, and she brought it to her mother. {14:12} And his disciples approached and took the body, and they buried it. And arriving, they reported it to Jesus. {14:13} When Jesus had heard it, he withdrew from there by boat, to a deserted place by himself. And when the crowds had heard of it, they followed him on foot from the cities. {14:14} And going out, he saw a great multitude, and he took pity on them, and he cured their sick. {14:15} And when evening had arrived, his disciples approached him, saying: “This is a deserted place, and the hour has now passed. Dismiss the crowds, so that, by going into the towns, they may buy food for themselves.” {14:16} But Jesus said to them: “They have no need to go. Give them something to eat yourselves.” {14:17} They answered him, “We have nothing here, except five loaves and two fish.” {14:18} He said to them, “Bring them here to me.” {14:19} And when he had ordered the multitude to sit down upon the grass, he took the five loaves and the two fish, and gazing up to heaven, he blessed and broke and gave the bread to the disciples, and then the disciples to the multitudes. {14:20} And they all ate and were satisfied. And they took up the remnants: twelve baskets full of fragments. {14:21} Now the number of those who ate was five thousand men, besides women and children. {14:22} And Jesus promptly compelled his disciples to climb into the boat, and to precede him in crossing the sea, while he dismissed the crowds. {14:23} And having dismissed the multitude, he ascended alone onto a mountain to pray. And when evening arrived, he was alone there. {14:24} But in the midst of the sea, the boat was being tossed about by the waves. For the wind was against them. {14:25} Then, in the fourth watch of the night, he came to them, walking upon the sea. {14:26} And seeing him walking upon the sea, they were disturbed, saying: "It must be an apparition." And they cried out, because of fear. {14:27} And immediately, Jesus spoke to them, saying: “Have faith. It is I. Do not be afraid.” {14:28} Then Peter responded by saying, “Lord, if it is you, order me come to you over the waters.” {14:29} And he said, "Come." And Peter, descending from the boat, walked over the water, so as to go to Jesus. {14:30} Yet truly, seeing that the wind was strong, he was afraid. And as he began to sink, he cried out, saying: “Lord, save me.” {14:31} And immediately Jesus extended his hand and took hold of him. And he said to him, "O little in faith, why did you doubt?" {14:32} And when they had ascended into the boat, the wind ceased. {14:33} Then those who were in the boat drew near and adored him, saying: “Truly, you are the Son of God.” {14:34} And having crossed the sea, they arrived in the land of Genesaret. {14:35} And when the men of that place had recognized him, they sent into all that region, and they brought to him all who had maladies. {14:36} And they petitioned him, so that they might touch even the hem of his garment. And as many as touched it were made whole.

[Matthew 15] {15:1} Then the scribes and the Pharisees came to him from Jerusalem, saying: {15:2} "Why do your disciples transgress the tradition of the elders? For they do not wash their hands when they eat bread." {15:3} But responding, he said to them: "And why do you transgress the commandment of God for the sake of your tradition? For God said: {15:4} 'Honor your father and mother,' and, 'Whoever will have cursed father or mother shall die a death.' {15:5} But you say: 'If anyone will have said to father or mother, "It is dedicated, so that whatever is from me will benefit you,"' {15:6} then he shall not honor his father or his mother.' So have you nullified the commandment of God, for the sake of your tradition. {15:7} Hypocrites! How well did Isaiah prophesy about you, saying: {15:8} 'This people honors me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. {15:9} For in vain do they worship me, teaching the doctrines and commandments of men.' " {15:10} And having called the multitudes to him, he said to them: "Listen and understand. {15:11} A man is not defiled by what enters into the mouth, but by what proceeds from the mouth. This is what defiles a man.” {15:12} Then his disciples drew near and said to him, “Do you know that the Pharisees, upon hearing this word, were offended?” {15:13} But in response he said: “Every plant which has not been planted by my heavenly Father shall be uprooted. {15:14} Leave them alone. They are blind, and they lead the blind. But if the blind are in charge of the blind, both will fall into the pit.” {15:15} And responding, Peter said to him, “Explain this parable to us.” {15:16} But he said: “Are you, even now, without understanding? {15:17} Do you not understand that everything that enters into the mouth goes into the gut, and is cast into the sewer? {15:18} But what proceeds from the mouth, goes forth from the heart, and those are the things that defile a man. {15:19} For from the heart go out evil thoughts, murders, adulteries, fornications, thefts, false testimonies, blasphemies. {15:20} These are the things that defile a man. But to eat without washing hands does not defile a man.” {15:21} And departing from there, Jesus withdrew into the areas of Tyre and Sidon. {15:22} And behold, a woman of Canaan, going out from those parts, cried out, saying to him: “Take pity on me, Lord, Son of David. My daughter is badly afflicted by a demon.” {15:23} He did not say a word to her. And his disciples, drawing near, petitioned him, saying: “Dismiss her, for she is crying out after us.” {15:24} And responding, he said, “I was not sent except to the sheep which have fallen away from the house of Israel.” {15:25} But she approached and adored him, saying, “Lord, help me.” {15:26} And responding, he said, “It is not good to take the bread of the children and cast it to dogs.” {15:27} But she said, “Yes, Lord, but the young dogs also eat from the crumbs that fall from the table of their masters.” {15:28} Then Jesus, responding, said to her: “O woman, great is your faith. Let it be done for you just as you wish.” And her daughter was healed from that very hour. {15:29} And when Jesus had passed from there, he arrived beside the sea of Galilee. And ascending onto a mountain, he sat down there. {15:30} And great multitudes came to him, having with them the mute, the blind, the lame, the disabled, and many others. And they cast them down at his feet, and he cured them, {15:31} so much so that the crowds wondered, seeing the mute speaking, the lame walking, the blind seeing. And they magnified the God of Israel. {15:32} And Jesus, calling together his disciples, said: “I have compassion on the crowds, because they have persevered with me now for three days, and they do not have anything to eat. And I am not willing to dismiss them, fasting, lest they faint along the way.” {15:33} And the disciples said to him: “From where, then, in the desert, would we obtain enough bread to satisfy so a great multitude?” {15:34} And Jesus said to them, “How many loaves of bread do you have?” But they said, “Seven, and a few little fish.” {15:35} And he instructed the crowds to recline upon the ground. {15:36} And taking the seven loaves and the fish, and giving thanks, he broke and gave to his disciples, and the disciples gave to the people. {15:37} And they all ate and were satisfied. And, from what was left over of the fragments, they took up seven full baskets. {15:38} But those who ate were four thousand men, plus children and women. {15:39} And having dismissed the crowd, he climbed into a boat. And he went into the coastal region of Magadan.

[Matthew 16] {16:1} And Pharisees and Sadducees approached him to test him, and they asked him to show them a sign from heaven. {16:2} But he responded by saying to them: “When evening arrives, you say, ‘It will be calm, for the sky is red,’ {16:3} and in the morning, ‘Today there will be a storm, for the sky is red and gloomy.’ So then, you know how to judge the appearance of the sky, but you are unable to know the signs of the times? {16:4} An evil and adulterous generation seeks a sign. And a sign shall not be given to it, except the sign of the prophet Jonah.” And leaving them behind, he went away. {16:5} And when his disciples went across the sea, they forgot to bring bread. {16:6} And he said to them, “Consider and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and the Sadducees.” {16:7} But they were thinking within themselves, saying, “It is because we have not brought bread.” {16:8} Then Jesus, knowing this, said: “Why do you consider within yourselves, O little in faith, that it is because you have no bread? {16:9} Do you not yet understand, nor remember, the five loaves among the five thousand men, and how many containers you took up? {16:10} Or the seven loaves among the four thousand men, and how many baskets you took up? {16:11} Why do you not understand that it was not because of bread that I said to you: Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and the Sadducees?” {16:12} Then they understood that he was not saying that they should beware of the leaven of bread, but of the doctrine of the Pharisees and the Sadducees. {16:13} Then Jesus went into parts of Caesarea Philippi. And he questioned his disciples, saying, “Who do men say that the Son of man is?” {16:14} And they said, “Some say John the Baptist, and others say Elijah, still others say Jeremiah or one of the prophets.” {16:15} Jesus said to them, “But who do you say that I am?” {16:16} Simon Peter responded by saying, “You are the Christ, the Son of the living God.” {16:17} And in response, Jesus said to him: “Blessed are you, Simon son of Jonah. For flesh and blood has not revealed this to you, but my Father, who is in heaven. {16:18} And I say to you, that you are Peter, and upon this rock I will build my Church, and the gates of Hell shall not prevail against it. {16:19} And I will give you the keys of the kingdom of heaven. And whatever you shall bind on earth shall be bound, even in heaven. And whatever you shall release on earth shall be released, even in heaven.” {16:20} Then he instructed his disciples that they should tell no one that he is Jesus the Christ. {16:21} From that time, Jesus began to reveal to his disciples that it was necessary for him to go to Jerusalem, and to suffer much from the elders and the scribes and the leaders of the priests, and to be killed, and to rise again on the third day. {16:22} And Peter, taking him aside, began to rebuke him, saying, “Lord, may it be far from you; this shall not happen to you.” {16:23} And turning away, Jesus said to Peter: “Get behind me, Satan; you are an obstacle to me. For you are not behaving according to what is of God, but according to what is of men.” {16:24} Then Jesus said to his disciples: “If anyone is willing to come after me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. {16:25} For whoever would save his life, will lose it. But whoever will have lost his life for my sake, shall find it. {16:26} For how does it benefit a man, if he gains the whole world, yet truly suffers damage to his soul? Or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul? {16:27} For the Son of man will arrive in the glory of his Father, with his Angels. And then he will repay each one according to his works. {16:28} Amen I say to you, there are some among those standing here, who shall not taste death, until they see the Son of man arriving in his reign.”

[Matthew 17]  {17:1} And after six days, Jesus took Peter and James and his brother John, and he led them onto a lofty mountain separately. {17:2} And he was transfigured before them. And his face shined brightly like the sun. And his garments were made white like snow. {17:3} And behold, there appeared to them Moses and Elijah, speaking with him. {17:4} And Peter responded by saying to Jesus: “Lord, it is good for us to be here. If you are willing, let us make three tabernacles here, one for you, one for Moses, and one for Elijah.” {17:5} And while he was still speaking, behold, a shining cloud overshadowed them. And behold, there was a voice from the cloud, saying: “This is my beloved Son, with whom I am well pleased. Listen to him.” {17:6} And the disciples, hearing this, fell prone on their face, and they were very afraid. {17:7} And Jesus drew near and touched them. And he said to them, “Rise up and do not be afraid.” {17:8} And lifting up their eyes, they saw no one, except Jesus alone. {17:9} And as they were descending from the mountain, Jesus instructed them, saying, “Tell no one about the vision, until the Son of man has risen from the dead.” {17:10} And his disciples questioned him, saying, “Why then do the scribes say that it is necessary for Elijah to arrive first?” {17:11} But in response, he said to them: “Elijah, indeed, shall arrive and restore all things. {17:12} But I say to you, that Elijah has already arrived, and they did not recognize him, but they did whatever they wanted to him. So also shall the Son of man suffer from them.” {17:13} Then the disciples understood that he had spoken to them about John the Baptist. {17:14} And when he had arrived at the multitude, a man approached him, falling to his knees before him, saying: “Lord, take pity on my son, for he is an epileptic, and he suffers harm. For he frequently falls into fire, and often also into water. {17:15} And I brought him to your disciples, but they were not able to cure him.” {17:16} Then Jesus responded by saying: “What an unbelieving and perverse generation! How long shall I be with you? How long shall I endure you? Bring him here to me.” {17:17} And Jesus rebuked him, and the demon went out of him, and the boy was cured from that hour. {17:18} Then the disciples approached Jesus privately and said, “Why were we unable to cast him out?” {17:19} Jesus said to them: “Because of your unbelief. Amen I say to you, certainly, if you will have faith like a grain of mustard seed, you will say to this mountain, ‘Move from here to there,’ and it shall move. And nothing will be impossible for you. {17:20} But this kind is not cast out, except through prayer and fasting.” {17:21} And when they were conversing together in Galilee, Jesus said to them: “The Son of man shall be delivered into the hands of men. {17:22} And they will kill him, but he will rise again on the third day.” And they were extremely saddened. {17:23} And when they had arrived at Capernaum, those who collected the half shekel approached Peter, and they said to him, “Doesn’t your Teacher pay the half shekel?” {17:24} He said, “Yes.” And when he had entered into the house, Jesus went before him, saying: “How does it seem to you, Simon? The kings of the earth, from whom do they receive tribute or the census tax: from their own sons or from foreigners?” {17:25} And he said, “From foreigners.” Jesus said to him: “Then the sons are free. {17:26} But so that we may not become an obstacle to them: go to the sea, and cast in a hook, and take the first fish that is brought up, and when you have opened its mouth, you will find a shekel. Take it and give it to them, for me and for you.”

[Matthew 18]  {18:1} In that hour, the disciples drew near to Jesus, saying, “Whom do you consider to be greater in the kingdom of heaven?” {18:2} And Jesus, calling to himself a little child, placed him in their midst. {18:3} And he said: “Amen I say to you, unless you change and become like little children, you shall not enter into the kingdom of heaven. {18:4} Therefore, whoever will have humbled himself like this little child, such a one is greater in the kingdom of heaven. {18:5} And whoever shall accept one such little child in my name, accepts me. {18:6} But whoever will have led astray one of these little ones, who trust in me, it would be better for him to have a great millstone hung around his neck, and to be submerged in the depths of the sea. {18:7} Woe to a world that leads people astray! Although it is necessary for temptations to arise, nevertheless: Woe to that man through whom temptation arises! {18:8} So if your hand or your foot leads you to sin, cut it off and cast it away from you. It is better for you to enter into life disabled or lame, than to be sent into eternal fire having two hands or two feet. {18:9} And if your eye leads you to sin, root it out and cast it away from you. It is better for you to enter into life with one eye, than to be sent into the fires of Hell having two eyes. {18:10} See to it that you do not despise even one of these little ones. For I say to you, that their Angels in heaven continually look upon the face of my Father, who is in heaven. {18:11} For the Son of man has come to save what has been lost. {18:12} How does it seem to you? If someone has one hundred sheep, and if one of them has gone astray, should he not leave behind the ninety-nine in the mountains, and go out to seek what has gone astray? {18:13} And if he should happen to find it: Amen I say to you, that he has more joy over that one, than over the ninety-nine which did not go astray. {18:14} Even so, it is not the will before your Father, who is in heaven, that one of these little ones should be lost. {18:15} But if your brother has sinned against you, go and correct him, between you and him alone. If he listens to you, you will have regained your brother. {18:16} But if he will not listen, invite with you one or two more, so that every word may stand by the mouth of two or three witnesses. {18:17} And if he will not listen to them, tell the Church. But if he will not listen to the Church, let him be to you like the pagan and the tax collector. {18:18} Amen I say to you, whatever you will have bound on earth, shall be bound also in heaven, and whatever you will have released on earth, shall be released also in heaven. {18:19} Again I say to you, that if two of those among you have agreed on earth, about anything whatsoever that they have requested, it shall be done for them by my Father, who is in heaven. {18:20} For wherever two or three are gathered together in my name, accepts me. {18:21} Then Peter, drawing near to him, said: “Lord, how many times shall my brother sin against me, and I forgive him? Even seven times?” {18:22} Jesus said to him: “I do not say to you, even seven times, but even seventy times seven times. {18:23} Therefore, the kingdom of heaven is compared to a man who was king, who wanted to take account of his servants. {18:24} And when he had begun taking account, one was brought to him who owed him ten thousand talents. {18:25} But since he did not have any way to repay it, his lord ordered him to be sold, with his wife and children, and all that he had, in order to repay it. {18:26} But that servant, falling prostrate, begged him, saying, ‘Have patience with me, and I will repay it all to you.’ {18:27} Then the lord of that servant, being moved with pity, released him, and he forgave his debt. {18:28} But when that servant departed, he found one of his fellow servants who owed him one hundred denarius. And taking hold of him, he choked him, saying: ‘Repay what you owe.’ {18:29} And his fellow servant, falling prostrate, petitioned him, saying: ‘Have patience with me, and I will repay it all to you.’ {18:30} But he was not willing. Instead, he went out and had him sent to prison, until he would repay the debt. {18:31} Now his fellow servants, seeing what was done, were greatly saddened, and they went and reported to their lord all that was done. {18:32} Then his lord called him, and he said to him: ‘You wicked servant, I forgive you all your debt, because you pleaded with me.’ {18:33} Therefore, should you not also have had compassion on your fellow servant, just as I also had compassion on you?’ {18:34} And his lord, being angry, handed him over to the torturers, until he repaid the entire debt. {18:35} So, too, shall my heavenly Father do to you, if each one of you will not forgive his brother from your hearts.”

[Matthew 19] {19:1} And it happened that, when Jesus had completed these words, he moved away from Galilee, and he arrived within the borders of Judea, across the Jordan. {19:2} And great crowds followed him, and he healed them there. {19:3} And the Pharisees approached him, testing him, and saying, “Is it lawful for a man to separate from his wife, no matter what the cause?” {19:4} And he said to them in response, “Have you not read that he who made man from the beginning, made them male and female?” And he said: {19:5} “For this reason, a man shall separate from father and mother, and he shall cling to his wife, and these two shall become one flesh. {19:6} And so, now they are not two, but one flesh. Therefore, what God has joined together, let no man separate.” {19:7} They said to him, “Then why did Moses command him to give a bill of divorce, and to separate?” {19:8} He said to them: “Although Moses permitted you to separate from your wives, due to the hardness of your heart, it was not that way from the beginning. {19:9} And I say to you, that whoever will have separated from his wife, except because of fornication, and who will have married another, commits adultery, and whoever will have married her who has been separated, commits adultery.” {19:10} His disciples said to him, “If such is the case for a man with a wife, then it is not expedient to marry.” {19:11} And he said to them: “Not everyone is able to grasp this word, but only those to whom it has been given. {19:12} For there are chaste persons who were born so from their mother’s womb, and there are chaste persons who have been made so by men, and there are chaste persons who have made themselves chaste for the sake of the kingdom of heaven. Whoever is able to grasp this, let him grasp it.” {19:13} Then they brought to him little children, so that he would place his hands upon them and pray. But the disciples rebuked them. {19:14} Yet truly, Jesus said to them: “Allow the little children to come to me, and do not choose to prohibit them. For the kingdom of heaven is among such as these.” {19:15} And when he had imposed his hands upon them, he went away from there. {19:16} And behold, someone approached and said to him, “Good Teacher, what good should I do, so that I may have eternal life?” {19:17} And he said to him: “Why do you question me about what is good? One is good: God. But if you wish to enter into life, observe the commandments.” {19:18} He said to him, “Which?” And Jesus said: “You shall not murder. You shall not commit adultery. You shall not steal. You shall not give false testimony.” {19:19} Honor your father and your mother. And, you shall love your neighbor as yourself.” {19:20} The young man said to him: “All these I have kept from my childhood. What is still lacking for me?” {19:21} Jesus said to him: “If you are willing to be perfect, go, sell what you have, and give to the poor, and then you will have treasure in heaven. And come, follow me.” {19:22} And when the young man had heard this word, he went away sad, for he had many possessions. {19:23} Then Jesus said to his disciples: “Amen, I say to you, that the wealthy shall enter with difficulty into the kingdom of heaven. {19:24} And again I say to you, it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, than for the wealthy to enter into the kingdom of heaven.” {19:25} And upon hearing this, the disciples wondered greatly, saying: “Then who will be able to be saved?” {19:26} But Jesus, gazing at them, said to them: “With men, this is impossible. But with God, all things are possible.” {19:27} Then Peter responded by saying to him: “Behold, we have left behind all things, and we have followed you. So then, what will be for us?” {19:28} And Jesus said to them: “Amen I say to you, that at the resurrection, when the Son of man shall sit on the seat of his majesty, those of you who have followed me shall also sit on twelve seats, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. {19:29} And anyone who has left behind home, or brothers, or sisters, or father, or mother, or wife, or children, or land, for the sake of my name, shall receive one hundred times more, and shall possess eternal life. {19:30} But many of those who are first shall be last, and the last shall be first.”

[Matthew 20] {20:1} “The kingdom of heaven is like the father of a family who went out in early morning to lead workers into his vineyard. {20:2} Then, having made an agreement with the workers for one denarius per day, he sent them into his vineyard. {20:3} And when evening had arrived, he saw others standing idle in the marketplace. {20:4} And he said to them, ‘You may go into my vineyard, too, and what I will give you will be just.’ {20:5} So they went forth. But again, he went out about the sixth, and about the ninth hour, and he acted similarly. {20:6} Yet truly, about the eleventh hour, he went out and found others standing idle, and he said to them, ‘Why have you stood here idle all day?’ {20:7} They say to him, ‘Because no one has hired us.’ He said to them, ‘You also may go into my vineyard.’ {20:8} And when evening had arrived, the lord of the vineyard said to his manager, ‘Call the workers and pay them their wages, beginning from the last, even to the first.’ {20:9} And so, when those who had arrived about the eleventh hour came forward, each received a single denarius. {20:10} Then when the first ones also came forward, they considered that they would receive more. But they, too, received one denarius. {20:11} And upon receiving it, they murmured against the father of the family, {20:12} saying, ‘These last have worked for one hour, and you have made them equal to us, who worked bearing the weight and heat of the day.’ {20:13} But responding to one of them, he said: ‘Friend, I caused you no injury. Did you not agree with me to one denarius? {20:14} Take what is yours and go. But it is my will to give to this last, just as to you. {20:15} And is it not lawful for me to do what I will? Or is your eye wicked because I am good?’ {20:16} So then, the last shall be first, and the first shall be last. For many are called, but few are chosen.” {20:17} And Jesus, ascending to Jerusalem, took the twelve disciples aside in private and said to them: {20:18} “Behold, we are ascending to Jerusalem, and the Son of man shall be handed over to the leaders of the priests and to the scribes. And they shall condemn him to death. {20:19} And they shall hand him over to the Gentiles to be mocked and scourged and crucified. And on the third day, he shall rise again.” {20:20} Then the mother of the sons of Zebedee approached him, with her sons, adoring him, and petitioning something from him. {20:21} And he said to her, “What do you want?” She said to him, “Declare that these, my two sons, may sit, one at your right hand, and the other at your left, in your kingdom.” {20:22} But Jesus, responding, said: “You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink from the chalice, from which I will drink?” They said to him, “We are able.” {20:23} He said to them: “From my chalice, indeed, you shall drink. But to sit at my right or my left is not mine to give to you, but it is for those for whom it has been prepared by my Father.” {20:24} And the ten, upon hearing this, became indignant with the two brothers. {20:25} But Jesus called them to himself and said: “You know that the first ones among the Gentiles are their rulers, and that those who are greater exercise power among them. {20:26} It shall not be this way among you. But whoever will want to be greater among you, let him be your minister. {20:27} And whoever will want to be first among you, he shall be your servant, {20:28} even as the Son of man has not come to be served, but to serve, and to give his life as a redemption for many.” {20:29} And as they were departing from Jericho, a great crowd followed him. {20:30} And behold, two blind men, sitting by the way, heard that Jesus was passing by; and they cried out, saying, “Lord, Son of David, take pity on us.” {20:31} But the crowd rebuked them to be quiet. But they cried out all the more, saying, “Lord, Son of David, take pity on us.” {20:32} And Jesus stood still, and he called them and said, “What do you want, that I might do for you?” {20:33} They said to him, “Lord, that our eyes be opened.” {20:34} Then Jesus, taking pity on them, touched their eyes. And immediately they saw, and they followed him.

[Matthew 21] {21:1} And when they had drawn near to Jerusalem, and had arrived at Bethphage, at the Mount of Olives, then Jesus sent two disciples, {21:2} saying to them: “Go into the town that is opposite you, and immediately you will find a donkey tied, and a colt with her. Release them, and lead them to me. {21:3} And if anyone will have said anything to you, say that the Lord has need of them. And he will promptly dismiss them.” {21:4} Now all this was done in order to fulfill what was spoken through the prophet, saying, {21:5} “Tell the daughter of Zion: Behold, your king comes to you meekly, sitting on a donkey and on a colt, the son of one accustomed to the yoke.” {21:6} Then the disciples, going out, did just as Jesus instructed them. {21:7} And they brought the donkey and the colt, and they laid their garments on them, and they helped him sit upon them. {21:8} Then a very numerous crowd spread their garments on the way. But others cut branches from the trees and scattered them on the way. {21:9} And the crowds that preceded him, and those that followed, cried out, saying: “Hosanna to the Son of David! Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord. Hosanna in the highest!” {21:10} And when he had entered into Jerusalem, the entire city was stirred up, saying, “Who is this?” {21:11} But the people were saying, “This is Jesus, the Prophet from Nazareth of Galilee.” {21:12} And Jesus entered into the temple of God, and he cast out all who were selling and buying in the temple, and he overturned the tables of the money changers and the chairs of the vendors of doves. {21:13} And he said to them: “It is written: ‘My house shall be called a house of prayer. But you have made it into a den of robbers.’ ” {21:14} And the blind and the lame drew near to him in the temple; and he healed them. {21:15} Then the leaders of the priests and the scribes became indignant, seeing the miracles that he wrought, and the children crying out in the temple, saying, “Hosanna to the Son of David!” {21:16} And they said to him, “Do you hear what these ones are saying?” But Jesus said to them, “Certainly. Have you never read: For out of the mouth of babes and infants, you have perfected praise?” {21:17} And leaving them behind, he went out, beyond the city, into Bethania, and he lodged here. {21:18} Then, as he was returning to the city in the morning, he was hungry. {21:19} And seeing a certain fig tree beside the way, he approached it. And he found nothing on it, except only leaves. And he said to it, “May fruit never spring forth from you, for all time.” And immediately the fig tree was dried up. {21:20} And seeing this, the disciples wondered, saying, “How did it dry up so quickly?” {21:21} And Jesus responded to them by saying: “Amen I say to you, if you have faith and do not hesitate, not only shall you do this, concerning the fig tree, but even if you would say to this mountain, ‘Take and cast yourself into the sea,’ it shall be done. {21:22} And all things whatsoever that you shall ask for in prayer: believing, you shall receive.” {21:23} And when he had arrived at the temple, as he was teaching, the leaders of the priests and the elders of the people approached him, saying: “By what authority do you do these things? And who has given this authority to you?” {21:24} In response, Jesus said to them: “I also will question you with one word: if you tell me this, I also will tell you by what authority I do these things. {21:25} The baptism of John, where was it from? Was it from heaven, or from men?” But they thought within themselves, saying: {21:26} “If we say, ‘From heaven,’ he will say to us, ‘Then why did you not believe him?’ But if we say, ‘From men,’ we have the crowd to fear, for they all hold John to be a prophet.” {21:27} And so, they answered Jesus by saying, “We do not know.” So he also said to them: “Neither will I tell you by what authority I do these things. {21:28} But how does it seem to you? A certain man had two sons. And approaching the first, he said: ‘Son, go out today to work in my vineyard.’ {21:29} And responding, he said, ‘I am not willing.’ But afterwards, being moved by repentance, he went. {21:30} And approaching the other, he spoke similarly. And answering, he said, ‘I am going, lord.’ And he did not go. {21:31} Which of the two did the will of the father?” They said to him, “The first.” Jesus said to them: “Amen I say to you, that tax collectors and prostitutes shall precede you, into the kingdom of God. {21:32} For John came to you in the way of justice, and you did not believe him. But the tax collectors and the prostitutes believed him. Yet even after seeing this, you did not repent, so as to believe him. {21:33} Listen to another parable. There was a man, the father of a family, who planted a vineyard, and surrounded it with a hedge, and dug a press in it, and built a tower. And he loaned it out to farmers, and he set out to sojourn abroad. {21:34} Then, when the time of the fruits drew near, he sent his servants to the farmers, so that they might receive its fruits. {21:35} And the farmers apprehended his servants; they struck one, and killed another, and stoned yet another. {21:36} Again, he sent other servants, more than before; and they treated them similarly. {21:37} Then, at the very end, he sent his son to them, saying: ‘They will revere my son.’ {21:38} But the farmers, seeing the son, said among themselves: ‘This is the heir. Come, let us kill him, and then we will have his inheritance.’ {21:39} And apprehending him, they cast him outside the vineyard, and they killed him. {21:40} Therefore, when the lord of the vineyard arrives, what will he do to those farmers?’ {21:41} They said to him: “He will bring those evil men to an evil end, and he will loan out his vineyard to other farmers, who shall repay to him the fruit in its time.” {21:42} Jesus said to them: “Have you never read in the Scriptures: ‘The stone that the builders have rejected has become the cornerstone. By the Lord has this been done, and it is wonderful in our eyes?’ {21:43} Therefore, I say to you, that the kingdom of God will be taken away from you, and it shall be given to a people who shall produce its fruits. {21:44} And whoever will have fallen on this stone shall be broken, yet truly, on whomever it shall fall, it will crush him.” {21:45} And when the leaders of the priests, and the Pharisees had heard his parables, they knew that he was speaking about them. {21:46} And though they sought to take hold of him, they feared the crowds, because they held him to be a prophet.

[Matthew 22] {22:1} And responding, Jesus again spoke to them in parables, saying: {22:2} “The kingdom of heaven is like a man who was king, who celebrated a wedding for his son. {22:3} And he sent his servants to call those who were invited to the wedding. But they were not willing to come. {22:4} Again, he sent other servants, saying, ‘Tell the invited: Behold, I have prepared my meal. My bulls and fatlings have been killed, and all is ready. Come to the wedding.’ {22:5} But they ignored this and they went away. One to his country estate, and another to his business. {22:6} Yet truly, the rest took hold of his servants and, having treated them with contempt, killed them. {22:7} But when the king heard this, he was angry. And sending out his armies, he destroyed those murderers, and he burned their city. {22:8} Then he said to his servants: ‘The wedding, indeed, has been prepared. But those who were invited were not worthy. {22:9} Therefore, go out to the ways, and call whomever you will find to the wedding.’ {22:10} And his servants, departing into the ways, gathered all those whom they found, bad and good, and the wedding was filled with guests. {22:11} Then the king entered to see the guests. And he saw a man there who was not clothed in a wedding garment. {22:12} And he said to him, ‘Friend, how is it that you have entered here without having a wedding garment?’ But he was dumbstruck. {22:13} Then the king said to the ministers: ‘Bind his hands and feet, and cast him into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.’ {22:14} For many are called, but few are chosen.’ ” {22:15} Then the Pharisees, going out, took counsel as to how they might entrap him in speech. {22:16} And they sent their disciples to him, with the Herodians, saying: “Teacher, we know that you are truthful, and that you teach the way of God in truth, and that the influence of others is nothing to you. For you do not consider the reputation of men. {22:17} Therefore, tell us, how does it seem to you? Is it lawful to pay the census tax to Caesar, or not?” {22:18} But Jesus, knowing their wickedness, said: “Why do you test me, you hypocrites? {22:19} Show me the coin of the census tax.” And they offered him a denarius. {22:20} And Jesus said to them, “Whose image is this, and whose inscription?” {22:21} They said to him, “Caesar’s.” Then he said to them, “Then render to Caesar what is Caesar’s, and to God what is of God.” {22:22} And hearing this, they wondered. And having left him behind, they went away. {22:23} In that day, the Sadducees, who say there is to be no resurrection, approached him. And they questioned him, {22:24} saying: “Teacher, Moses said: If anyone will have died, having no son, his brother shall marry his wife, and he shall raise up offspring to his brother. {22:25} Now there were seven brothers with us. And the first, having taken a wife, died. And having no offspring, he left his wife to his brother: {22:26} similarly with the second, and the third, even to the seventh. {22:27} And last of all, the woman also passed away. {22:28} In the resurrection, then, whose wife of the seven will she be? For they all had her.” {22:29} But Jesus responded to them by saying: “You have gone astray by knowing neither the Scriptures, nor the power of God. {22:30} For in the resurrection, they shall neither marry, nor be given in marriage. Instead, they shall be like the Angels of God in heaven. {22:31} But concerning the resurrection of the dead, have you not read what was spoken by God, saying to you: {22:32} ‘I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?’ He is not the God of the dead, but of the living.” {22:33} And when the crowds heard this, they wondered at his doctrine. {22:34} But the Pharisees, hearing that he had caused the Sadducees to be silent, came together as one. {22:35} And one of them, a doctor of the law, questioned him, to test him: {22:36} “Teacher, which is the great commandment in the law?” {22:37} Jesus said to him: “‘You shall love the Lord your God from all your heart, and with all your soul and with all your mind.’” {22:38} This is the greatest and first commandment. {22:39} But the second is similar to it: ‘You shall love your neighbor as yourself.’ {22:40} On these two commandments the entire law depends, and also the prophets.” {22:41} Then, when the Pharisees were gathered together, Jesus questioned them, {22:42} saying: “What do you think about the Christ? Whose son is he?” They said to him, “David’s.” {22:43} He said to them: “Then how can David, in the Spirit, call him Lord, saying: {22:44} ‘The Lord said to my Lord: Sit at my right hand, until I make your enemies your footstool?’” {22:45} So then, if David calls him Lord, how can he be his son?” {22:46} And no one was able to respond to him a word. And neither did anyone dare, from that day forward, to question him.

[Matthew 23] {23:1} Then Jesus spoke to the crowds, and to his disciples, {23:2} saying: ‘The scribes and the Pharisees have sat down in the chair of Moses. {23:3} Therefore, all things whatsoever that they shall say to you, observe and do. Yet truly, do not choose to act according to their works. For they say, but they do not do. {23:4} For they bind up heavy and unbearable burdens, and they impose them on men’s shoulders. But they are not willing to move them with even a finger of their own. {23:5} Truly, they do all their works so that they may be seen by men. For they enlarge their phylacteries and glorify their hems. {23:6} And they love the first places at feasts, and the first chairs in the synagogues, {23:7} and greetings in the marketplace, and to be called Master by men. {23:8} But you must not be called Master. For One is your Master, and you are all brothers. {23:9} And do not choose to call anyone on earth your father. For One is your Father, who is in heaven. {23:10} Neither should you be called teachers. For One is your Teacher, the Christ. {23:11} Whoever is greater among you shall be your minister. {23:12} But whoever has exalted himself, shall be humbled. And whoever has humbled himself, shall be exalted. {23:13} So then: Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, you hypocrites! For you close the kingdom of heaven before men. For you yourselves do not enter, and those who are entering, you would not permit to enter. {23:14} Woe to you scribes and Pharisees, you hypocrites! For you consume the houses of widows, praying long prayers. Because of this, you shall receive the greater judgment. {23:15} Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, you hypocrites! For you travel around by sea and by land, in order to make one convert. And when he has been converted, you make him twice the son of Hell that you are yourselves. {23:16} Woe to you, blind guides, who say: ‘Whoever will have sworn by the temple, it is nothing. But whoever will have sworn by the gold of the temple is obligated.’ {23:17} You are foolish and blind! For which is greater: the gold, or the temple that sanctifies the gold? {23:18} And you say: ‘Whoever will have sworn by the altar, it is nothing. But whoever will have sworn by the gift that is on the altar is obligated.’ {23:19} How blind you are! For which is greater: the gift, or the altar that sanctifies the gift? {23:20} Therefore, whoever swears by the altar, swears by it, and by all that is on it. {23:21} And whoever will have sworn by the temple, swears by it, and by him who dwells in it. {23:22} And whoever swears by heaven, swears by the throne of God, and by him who sits upon it. {23:23} Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, you hypocrites! For you collect tithes on mint and dill and cumin, but you have abandoned the weightier things of the law: judgment and mercy and faith. These you ought to have done, while not omitting the others. {23:24} You blind guides, straining out a gnat, while swallowing a camel! {23:25} Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, you hypocrites! For you clean what is outside the cup and the dish, but on the inside you are full of avarice and impiety. {23:26} You blind Pharisee! First clean the inside of the cup and the dish, and then what is outside becomes clean. {23:27} Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, you hypocrites! For you are like whitewashed sepulchers, which outwardly appear brilliant to men, yet truly, inside, they are filled with the bones of the dead and with all filth. {23:28} So also, you certainly appear to men outwardly to be just. But inwardly you are filled with hypocrisy and iniquity. {23:29} Woe to you, scribes and Pharisees, you hypocrites, who build the sepulchers of the prophets and adorn the monuments of the just. {23:30} And then you say, ‘If we had been there in the days of our fathers, we would not have joined with them in the blood of the prophets.’ {23:31} And so you are witnesses against yourselves, that you are the sons of those who killed the prophets. {23:32} Complete, then, the measure of your fathers. {23:33} You serpents, you brood of vipers! How will you escape from the judgment of Hell? {23:34} For this reason, behold, I send to you prophets and wise men, and scribes. And some of these you will put to death and crucify; and some you will scourge in your synagogues and persecute from city to city, {23:35} so that upon you may fall all the blood of the just, which has been shed upon the earth, from the blood of Abel the just, even to the blood of Zechariah the son of Barachiah, whom you killed between the temple and the altar. {23:36} Amen I say to you, all these things shall fall upon this generation. {23:37} Jerusalem, Jerusalem! You kill the prophets and stone those who have been sent to you. How often I have wanted to gather your children together, in the way that a hen gathers her young under her wings. But you were not willing! {23:38} Behold, your house shall be abandoned to you, having been deserted. {23:39} For I say to you, you shall not see me again, until you say: ‘Blessed is he who comes in the name of the Lord.’”

[Matthew 24] {24:1} And Jesus departed from the temple and went away. And his disciples approached him, so as to show him the buildings of the temple. {24:2} But he said to them in response: “Do you see all these things? Amen I say to you, there shall not remain here stone upon stone, which is not torn down.” {24:3} Then, when he was seated at the Mount of Olives, the disciples drew near to him privately, saying: “Tell us, when will these things be? And what will be the sign of your advent and of the consummation of the age?” {24:4} And answering, Jesus said to them: “Pay attention, lest someone lead you astray. {24:5} For many will come in my name saying, ‘I am the Christ.’ And they will lead many astray. {24:6} For you will hear of battles and rumors of battles. Take care not to be disturbed. For these things must be, but the end is not so soon. {24:7} For nation will rise against nation, and kingdom against kingdom. And there will be pestilences, and famines, and earthquakes in places. {24:8} But all these things are just the beginning of the sorrows. {24:9} Then they will hand you over to tribulation, and they will kill you. And you will be hated by all nations for the sake of my name. {24:10} And then many will be led into sin, and will betray one another, and will have hatred for one another. {24:11} And many false prophets will arise, and they will lead many astray. {24:12} And because iniquity has abounded, the charity of many will grow cold. {24:13} But whoever will have persevered until the end, the same shall be saved. {24:14} And this Gospel of the kingdom shall be preached throughout the entire world, as a testimony to all nations. And then the consummation will occur. {24:15} Therefore, when you will have seen the abomination of desolation, which was spoken of by the prophet Daniel, standing in the holy place, may he who reads understand, {24:16} then those who are in Judea, let them flee to the mountains. {24:17} And whoever is on the roof, let him not descend to take anything from his house. {24:18} And whoever is in the field, let him not turn back to take his tunic.
遂/him has said in his heart, 'My lord has been delayed, and he shall appoint him over all of his goods.' {24:47} But if that evil servant has said in his heart, 'My lord has been delayed in returning,' {24:49} and so, he begins to strike his fellow servants, and he eats and drinks with the inebriated: {24:50} then the lord of that servant will arrive on a day that he does not expect, and at an hour that he does not know. {24:51} And he shall separate him, and he shall place his portion with the hypocrites, where there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth.'

[Matthew 25] {25:1} "Then the kingdom of heaven shall be like ten virgins, who, taking their lamps, went out to meet the groom and the bride. {25:2} But five of them were foolish, and five were prudent. {25:3} For the five foolish, having brought their lamps, did not take oil with them. {25:4} Yet truly, the prudent ones brought the oil, in their containers, with the lamps. {25:5} Since the bridegroom was delayed, they all fell asleep, and they were sleeping. {25:6} But in the middle of the night, a cry went out: 'Behold, the groom is arriving. Go out to meet him.' {25:7} Then all those virgins rose up and trimmed their lamps. {25:8} But the foolish ones said to the wise, ‘Give to us from your oil, for our lamps are being extinguished.’ {25:9} The prudent responded by saying, ‘Lest perhaps there may not be enough for us and for you, it would be better for you to go to the vendors and buy some for yourselves.’ {25:10} But while they were going to buy it, the groom arrived. And those who were prepared entered with him to the wedding, and the door was closed. {25:11} Yet truly, at the very end, the remaining virgins also arrived, saying, ‘Lord, Lord, open to us.’ {25:12} But he responded by saying, ‘Amen I say to you, I do not know you.’ {25:13} And so you must be vigilant, because you do not know the day or the hour. {25:14} For it is like a man setting out on a long journey, who called his servants and delivered to them his goods. {25:15} And to one he gave five talents, and to another two, yet to another he gave one, each according to his own ability. And promptly, he set out. {25:16} Then he who had received five talents went out, and he made use of these, and he gained another five. {25:17} And similarly, he who had received two gained another two. {25:18} But he who had received one, going out, dug into the earth, and he hid the money of his lord. {25:19} Yet truly, after a long time, the lord of those servants returned and he settled accounts with them. {25:20} And when he who had received five talents returned and he settled accounts with him. {25:21} His lord said to him: 'Well done, good and faithful servant. Since you have been faithful over a few things, I will appoint you over many things. Enter into the gladness of your lord.' {25:22} Then he who had received two talents also approached, and he said: 'Lord, you delivered two talents to me. Behold, I have increased it by another five.' {25:23} His lord said to him: 'Well done, good and faithful servant. Since you have been faithful over a few things, I will appoint you over many things. Enter into the gladness of your lord.' {25:24} Then he who had received one talent, approaching, said: 'Lord, I know that you are a hard man. You reap where you have not sown, and gather where you have not scattered. {25:25} And so, being afraid, I went out and hid your talent in the earth. Behold, you have what is yours.' {25:26} But his lord said to him in response: 'You evil and lazy servant! You knew that I reap where I have not sown, and gather where I have not scattered.
Therefore, you should have deposited my money with the bankers, and then, at my arrival, at least I would have received what is mine with interest. {25:28} And so, take the talent away from him and give it to the one who has ten talents. {25:29} For to everyone who has, more shall be given, and he shall have in abundance. But from him who has not, even what he seems to have, shall be taken away. {25:30} And cast that useless servant into the outer darkness, where there will be weeping and gnashing of teeth.' {25:31} But when the Son of man will have arrived in his majesty, and all the Angels with him, then he will sit upon the seat of his majesty. {25:32} And all the nations shall be gathered together before him. And he shall separate them from one another, just as a shepherd separates the sheep from the goats. {25:33} And he shall station the sheep, indeed, on his right, but the goats on his left. {25:34} Then the King shall say to those who will be on his right: ‘Come, you blessed of my Father. Possess the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world. {25:35} For I was hungry, and you gave me to eat; I was thirsty, and you gave me to drink; I was a stranger, and you took me in; {25:36} naked, and you covered me; sick, and you visited me; I was in prison, and you came to me.’ {25:37} Then the just will answer him, saying: ‘Lord, when have we seen you hungry, and fed you; thirsty, and given you drink?’ {25:38} And when have we seen you a stranger, and taken you in? Or naked, and covered you? {25:39} Or when did we see you sick, or in prison, and visit to you?’ {25:40} And in response, the King shall say to them, ‘Amen I say to you, whenever you did this for one of these, the least of my brothers, you did it for me.’ {25:41} Then he shall also say, to those who will be on his left: ‘Depart from me, you accursed ones, into the eternal fire, which was prepared for the devil and his angels. {25:42} For I was hungry, and you did not give me to eat; I was thirsty, and you did not give me to drink; {25:43} I was a stranger and you did not take me in; naked, and you did not cover me; sick and in prison, and you did not visit me.’ {25:44} Then they will also answer him, saying: ‘Lord, when did we see you hungry, or thirsty, or a stranger, or naked, or sick, or in prison, and did not minister to you?’ {25:45} Then he shall respond to them by saying: ‘Amen I say to you, whenever you did not do it to one of these least, neither did you do it to me.’ {25:46} And these shall go into eternal punishment, but the just shall go into eternal life.”

[Matthew 26] {26:1} And it happened that, when Jesus had completed all these words, he said to his disciples, {26:2} “You know that after two days the Passover will begin, and the Son of man will be handed over to be crucified.” {26:3} Then the leaders of the priests and the elders of the people were gathered together in the court of the high priest, who was called Caiaphas. {26:4} And they took counsel so that by deceitfulness they might take hold of Jesus and kill him. {26:5} But they said, “Not on the feast day, lest perhaps there may be a tumult among the people.” {26:6} And when Jesus was in Bethania, in the house of Simon the leper, {26:7} a woman drew near to him, holding an alabaster box of precious ointment, and she poured it over his head while he was reclining at table. {26:8} But the disciples, seeing this, were indignant, saying: “What is the purpose of this waste?” {26:9} For this could have been sold for a great deal, so as to be given to the poor.” {26:10} But Jesus, knowing this, said to them: “Why are you bothering this woman? For she has done a good deed to me. {26:11} For the poor you will always have with you. But you will not always have me. {26:12} For in pouring this ointment on my body, she has prepared for my burial. {26:13} Amen I say to you, wherever this Gospel will be preached in the whole world, what she has done also shall be told, in memory of her.” {26:14} Then one of the twelve, who was called Judas Iscariot, went to the leaders of the priests, {26:15} and he said to them, “What are you willing to give me, if I hand him over to you?” So they appointed thirty pieces of silver for him. {26:16} And from then on, he sought an opportunity to betray him. {26:17} Then, on the first day of Unleavened Bread, the disciples approached Jesus, saying, “Where do you want us to prepare for you to eat the Passover?” {26:18} So Jesus said, “Go into the city, to a certain one, and say to him: The Teacher said: My time is near. I am observing the Passover with you, along with my disciples.’ ” {26:19} And the disciples did just as Jesus appointed to them. And they prepared the Passover. {26:20} Then, when evening arrived, he sat at table with his twelve disciples. {26:21} And while they were eating, he said: “Amen I say to you, that one of you is about to betray me.” {26:22} And being greatly saddened, each one of them began to say, “Surely, it is not I, Lord?” {26:23} But he responded by saying: “He who dips his hand with me into the dish, the same will betray me. {26:24} Indeed, the Son of man goes, just as it has been written about him. But woe to that man by whom the Son of man will be betrayed. It would be better for that man if he had not been born.” {26:25} Then Judas, who betrayed him, responded by saying, “Surely, it is not I, Master?” He said to him, “You have said it.” {26:26} Now while they were eating the meal, Jesus took bread, and he blessed and broke and gave it to his disciples, and he said: “Take and eat. This is my body.” {26:27} And taking the chalice, he gave thanks. And he gave it to them, saying: “Drink from this, all of you. {26:28} For this is my blood of the new covenant, which shall be shed for many as a remission of sins. {26:29} But I say to you, I will not drink again from this fruit of the vine, until that day when I will drink it new with you in the kingdom of my Father.” {26:30} And after a hymn was sung, they went out to the Mount of Olives. {26:31} Then Jesus said to them: “You will all fall away from me in this night. For it has been written: ‘I will strike the shepherd, and the sheep of the flock will be scattered.’” {26:32} But after I have risen again, I will go before you to Galilee.” {26:33} Then Peter responded by saying to him, “Even if everyone else has fallen away from you, I will never fall away.” {26:34} Jesus said to him, “Amen I say to you, that in this night, before the rooster crows, you will deny me three times.” {26:35} Peter said to him, “Even if it is necessary for me to die with you, I will not deny you.” And all the disciples spoke similarly. {26:36} Then Jesus went with them to a garden, which is called Gethsemani. And he said to his disciples, “Sit down here, while I go there and pray.” {26:37} And taking with him Peter and the two sons of Zebedee, he began to be sorrowful and saddened. {26:38} Then he said to them: “My soul is sorrowful, even unto death. Stay here and keep vigil with me.” {26:39} And continuing on a little further, he fell prostrate on his face, praying and saying: “My Father, if it is possible, let this chalice pass away from me. Yet truly, let it not be as I will, but as you will.” {26:40} And he approached his disciples and found them sleeping. And he said to Peter: "So, were you not able to keep vigil with me for one hour? {26:41} Be vigilant and pray, so that you may not enter into temptation. Indeed, the spirit is willing, but the flesh is weak." {26:42} Again, a second time, he went and prayed, saying, "My Father, if this chalice cannot pass away, unless I drink it, let your will be done." {26:43} And again, he went and found them sleeping, for their eyes were heavy. {26:44} And leaving them behind, again he went and prayed for the third time, saying the same words. {26:45} Then he approached his disciples and said to them: "Sleep now and rest. Behold, the hour has drawn near, and the Son of man will be delivered into the hands of sinners." {26:46} Rise up; let us go. Behold, he who will betray me draws near." {26:47} While he was still speaking, behold, Judas, one of the twelve, arrived, and with him was a large crowd with swords and clubs, sent from the leaders of the priests and the elders of the people. {26:48} And he who betrayed him gave them a sign, saying: "Whomever I will kiss, it is he. Take hold of him." {26:49} And quickly drawing close to Jesus, he said, "Hail, Master." And he kissed him. {26:50} And Jesus said to him, "Friend, for what purpose have you come?" Then they approached, and they put their hands on Jesus, and they held him. {26:51} And behold, one of those who were with Jesus, extending his hand, drew his sword and struck the servant of the high priest, cutting off his ear. {26:52} Then Jesus said to him: "Put your sword back in its place. For all who take up the sword shall perish by the sword. {26:53} Or do you think that I cannot ask my Father, so that he would give me, even now, more than twelve legions of Angels? {26:54} How then would the Scriptures be fulfilled, which say that it must be so?" {26:55} In that same hour, Jesus said to the crowds: "You went out, as if to a festival day, while I was with you, teaching in the temple, and you did not take hold of me. {26:56} But all this has happened so that the Scriptures of the prophets may be fulfilled." Then all the disciples fled, abandoning him. {26:57} But those who were holding Jesus led him to Caiaphas, the high priest, where the scribes and the elders had joined together. {26:58} Then Peter followed him from a distance, as far as the court of the high priest. And going inside, he sat down with the servants, for his eyes were heavy. {26:59} Then the leaders of the priests and the entire council sought false testimony against Jesus, so that they might deliver him to death. {26:60} And they did not find any, even though many false witnesses had come forward. Then, at the very end, two false witnesses came forward, {26:61} and they said, "This man said: ‘I am able to destroy the temple of God, and, after three days, to rebuild it.’ " {26:62} And the high priest, rising up, said to him, "Have you nothing to respond to what these ones testify against you?" {26:63} But Jesus was silent. And the high priest said to him, "I bind you by an oath to the living God to tell us if you are the Christ, the Son of God." {26:64} Jesus said to him: "You have said it. Yet truly I say to you, hereafter you shall see the Son of man sitting at the right hand of the power of God, and coming on the clouds of heaven." {26:65} Then the high priest tore his garments, saying: "He has blasphemed. Why do we still need witnesses? Behold, you have now heard the blasphemy. {26:66} How does it seem to you?" So they responded by saying, "He is guilty unto death." {26:67} Then they spit in his face, and they struck him with fists. And others struck his face with the palms of their hands. {26:68} saying: "Prophesy for us, O Christ. Who is the one that struck you?" {26:69} Yet truly, Peter sat outside in the courtyard. And a maid servant approached him, saying, "You also were with Jesus the Galilean." {26:70} But he denied it in the sight of them all, saying, "I do not know what you are saying." {26:71} Then, as he exited by the gate, another maid servant saw him. And she said to those who were there, "This man also was with Jesus of Nazareth." {26:72} And again, he denied it with an oath, "For I do not know the man." {26:73} And after a little while, those who were standing nearby came and said to Peter: "Truly, you also are one of them. For even your manner of speaking reveals you." {26:74} Then he began to curse and to swear that he had not known the man. And immediately the rooster crowed. {26:75} And Peter remembered the words of Jesus, which he had said: "Before the rooster crows, you will deny me three times." And going outside, he wept bitterly.

[Matthew 27] {27:1} Then, when morning arrived, all the leaders of the priests and the elders of the people took counsel against Jesus, so that they might deliver him to death. {27:2} And they led him, bound, and handed him over to Pontius Pilate, the procurator. {27:3} Then Judas, who betrayed him, seeing that he had been condemned, regretting his conduct, brought back the thirty pieces of silver to the leaders of the priests and the elders, {27:4} saying, "I have sinned in betraying just blood." But they said to him: "What is that to us? See to it yourself." {27:5} And throwing down the pieces of silver in the temple, he departed. And going out, he hanged himself with a snare. {27:6} But the leaders of the priests, having taken up the pieces of silver, said, "It is not lawful to put them into the temple offerings, because it is the price of blood." {27:7} Then, having taken counsel, they bought the potter's field with it, as a burying place for sojourners. {27:8} For this reason, that field is called Haceldama, that is, 'The Field of Blood,' even to this very day. {27:9} Then what was spoken by the prophet Jeremiah was fulfilled, saying, "And they took the thirty pieces of silver, the price of the one being appraised, whom they appraised before the sons of Israel, {27:10} and they gave it for the potter's field, just as the Lord appointed to me." {27:11} Now Jesus stood before the procurator, and the procurator questioned him, saying, "You are the king of the Jews?" Jesus said to him, "You are saying so." {27:12} And when he was accused by the leaders of the priests and the elders, he responded nothing. {27:13} Then Pilate said to him, "Do you not hear how much testimony they speak against you?" {27:14} And he did not respond any word to him, so that the procurator wondered greatly. {27:15} Now on the solemn day, the procurator was accustomed to release to the people one prisoner, whomever they wished. {27:16} And at that time, he had a notorious prisoner, who was called Barabbas. {27:17} Therefore, having been gathered together, Pilate said to them, "Who is it that you want me to release to you: Barabbas, or Jesus, who is called Christ?" {27:18} For he knew that it was out of envy they had handed him over. {27:19} But as he was sitting in the place for the tribunal, his wife sent to him, saying: "It is nothing to you, and he is just. For I have experienced many things today through a vision for his sake." {27:20} But the leaders of the priests and the elders persuaded the people, so that they would ask for Barabbas, and so that Jesus would perish. {27:21} Then, in response, the procurator said to them, “Which of the two do you want to be released to you?” But they said to him, “Barabbas.” {27:22} Pilate said to them, “Then what shall I do about Jesus, who is called Christ?” They all said, “Let him be crucified.” {27:23} The procurator said to them, “But what evil has he done?” But they cried out all the more, saying, “Let him be crucified.” {27:24} Then Pilate, seeing that he was able to accomplish nothing, but that a greater tumult was occurring, taking water, washed his hands in the sight of the people, saying: “I am innocent of the blood of this just man. See to it yourselves.” {27:25} And the entire people responded by saying, “May his blood be upon us and upon our children.” {27:26} Then he released Barabbas to them. But Jesus, having been scourged, he handed over to them, so that he would be crucified. {27:27} Then the soldiers of the procurator, taking Jesus up to the praetorium, gathered the entire cohort around him. {27:28} And stripping him, they put a scarlet cloak around him. {27:29} And plaiting a crown of thorns, they placed it on his head, with a reed in his right hand. And genuflecting before him, they mocked him, saying, “Hail, King of the Jews.” {27:30} And spitting on him, they took the reed and struck his head. {27:31} And after they had mocked him, they stripped him of the cloak, and clothed him with his own garments, and they led him away to crucify him. {27:32} But as they were going out, they came upon a man of Cyrene, named Simon, whom they compelled to take up his cross. {27:33} And they arrived at the place which is called Golgotha, which is the place of Calvary. {27:34} And they gave him wine to drink, mixed with gall. And when he had tasted it, he refused to drink it. {27:35} Then, after they had crucified him, they divided his garments, casting lots, in order to fulfill what was spoken by the prophet, saying: “They divided my garments among them, and over my vestment they cast lots.” {27:36} And sitting down, they observed him. {27:37} And they set his accusation above his head, written as: THIS IS JESUS, KING OF THE JEWS. {27:38} Then two robbers were crucified with him: one on the right and one on the left. {27:39} But those passing by blasphemed him, shaking their heads, {27:40} and saying: “Ah, so you would destroy the temple of God and in three days rebuild it! Save your own self. If you are the Son of God, descend from the cross.” {27:41} And similarly, the leaders of the priests, with the scribes and the elders, mocking him, said: {27:42} “He saved others; he cannot save himself. If he is the King of Israel, let him descend now from the cross, and we will believe in him. {27:43} He trusted in God; so now, let God free him, if he wills him. For he said, ‘I am the Son of God.’ ” {27:44} Then, the robbers who were crucified with him also reproached him with the very same thing. {27:45} Now from the sixth hour, there was darkness over the entire earth, even until the ninth hour. {27:46} And about the ninth hour, Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying: “Eli, Eli, lamma sabacthani?” that is, “My God, My God, why have you forsaken me?” {27:47} Then certain ones who were standing and listening there said, “This man calls upon Elijah.” {27:48} And one of them, running quickly, took a sponge and filled it with vinegar, and he set it on a reed and he gave it to him to drink. {27:49} Yet truly, the others said, “Wait. Let us see whether Elijah will come to free him.” {27:50} Then Jesus, crying out again with a loud voice, gave up his life. {27:51} And behold, the veil of the temple was torn into two parts, from top to bottom. And the earth was shaken, and the rocks were split apart. {27:52} And the tombs were opened. And many bodies of the saints, which had been sleeping, arose. {27:53} And going out from the tombs, after his resurrection, they went into the holy city, and they appeared to many. {27:54} Now the centurion and those who were with him, guarding Jesus, having seen the earthquake and the things that were done, were very fearful, saying: “Truly, this was the Son of God.” {27:55} And in that place, there were many women, at a distance, who had followed Jesus from Galilee, ministering to him. {27:56} Among these were Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of James and Joseph, and the mother of the sons of Zebedee. {27:57} Then, when evening had arrived, a certain wealthy man from Arimathea, named Joseph, arrived, who himself was also a disciple of Jesus. {27:58} This man approached Pilate and asked for the body of Jesus. Then Pilate ordered the body to be released. {27:59} And Joseph, taking the body, wrapped it in a clean finely-woven linen cloth, {27:60} and he placed it in his own new tomb, which he had hewn out of a rock. And he rolled a great stone to the door of the tomb, and he went away. {27:61} Now Mary Magdalene and the other Mary were there, sitting opposite the sepulcher. {27:62} Then the next day, which is after the Preparation day, the leaders of the priests and the Pharisees went to Pilate together, {27:63} saying: “Lord, we have remembered that that seducer said, while he was still alive, ‘After three days, I will rise again.’ ” {27:64} Therefore, order the sepulcher to be guarded until the third day, lest perhaps his disciples may come and steal him, and say to the people, ‘He has risen from the dead.’ And this last error would be worse than the first.” {27:65} Pilate said to them: “You have a guard. Go, guard it as you know how.” {27:66} Then, going out, they secured the sepulcher with guards, sealing the stone. [Matthew 28] [28:1] Now on the morning of the Sabbath, when it began to grow light on the first Sabbath, Mary Magdalene and the other Mary went to see the sepulcher. {28:2} And behold, a great earthquake occurred. For an Angel of the Lord descended from heaven, and as he approached, he rolled back the stone and sat down on it. {28:3} Now his appearance was like lightning, and his vestment was like snow. {28:4} Then, out of fear of him, the guards were terrified, and they became like dead men. {28:5} Then the Angel responded by saying to the women: “Do not be afraid. For I know that you are seeking Jesus, who was crucified. {28:6} He is not here. For he has risen, just as he said. Come and see the place where the Lord was placed. {28:7} And then, go quickly, and tell his disciples that he has risen. And behold, he will precede you to Galilee. There you shall see him. Lo, I have told you beforehand.” {28:8} And they went out of the tomb quickly, with fear and in great joy, running to announce it to his disciples. {28:9} And behold, Jesus met them, saying, “Hail!” But they drew near and took hold of his feet, and they adored him. {28:10} Then Jesus said to them: “Do not be afraid. Go, announce it to my brothers, so that they may go to Galilee. There they shall see me.” {28:11} And when they had departed, behold, some of the guards went into the city, and they reported to the leaders of the priests all that had
The Gospel of Mark

[Mark 1] {1:1} The beginning of the Gospel of Jesus Christ, the Son of God. {1:2} As it has been written by the prophet Isaiah: “Behold, I send my Angel before your face, who shall prepare your way before you. {1:3} The voice of one crying out in the desert: Prepare the way of the Lord; make straight his paths.” {1:4} John was in the desert, baptizing and preaching a baptism of repentance, as a remission of sins. {1:5} And there went out to him all the region of Judea and all those of Jerusalem, and they were baptized by him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins. {1:6} And John was clothed with camel’s hair and with a leather belt around his waist. And he ate locusts and wild honey. {1:7} And he preached, saying: “A stronger one comes after me. I am not worthy to reach down and loosen the laces of his shoes. {1:8} I have baptized you with water. Yet truly, he will baptize you with the Holy Spirit.” {1:9} And it happened that, in those days, Jesus arrived from Nazareth of Galilee. And he was baptized by John in the Jordan. {1:10} And immediately, upon ascending from the water, he saw the heavens opened and the Spirit, like a dove, descending, and remaining with him. {1:11} And there was a voice from heaven: “You are my beloved Son; in you I am well pleased.” {1:12} Then Jesus, taking pity on him, reached out his hand. And touching him, he said to him: “I am willing. Be cleansed.” {1:13} And after he had spoken, immediately the Spirit prompted him into the desert. {1:14} And he was in the desert for forty days and forty nights. And he was tempted by Satan. And he was with the wild animals, and the Angels ministered to him. {1:15} Then, after John was handed over, Jesus went into Galilee, preaching the Gospel of the kingdom of God, and saying: “For the time has been fulfilled and the kingdom of God has drawn near. Repent and believe in the Gospel.” {1:16} And passing by the shore of the Sea of Galilee, he saw Simon and his brother Andrew, casting nets into the sea, for they were fishermen. {1:17} And Jesus said to them, “Come after me, and I will make you fishers of men.” {1:18} And at once abandoning their nets, they followed him. {1:19} And continuing on a little ways from there, he saw James of Zebedee and his brother John, and they were mending their nets in a boat. {1:20} And immediately he called them. And leaving behind their father Zebedee in the boat with his hired hands, they followed him. {1:21} And they entered into Capernaum. And entering into the synagogue promptly on the Sabbaths, he taught them. {1:22} And they were astonished over his doctrine. For he was teaching them as one who has authority, and not like the scribes. {1:23} And in their synagogue, there was a man with an unclean spirit; and he cried out, {1:24} saying: “What are we to you, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know who you are: the Holy One of God.” {1:25} And Jesus admonished him, saying, “Be silent, and depart from the man.” {1:26} And the unclean spirit, convulsing him and crying out with a loud voice, departed from him. {1:27} And they were all so amazed that they inquired among themselves, saying: “What is this? And what is this new doctrine? For with authority he commands even the unclean spirits, and they obey him.” {1:28} And his fame went out quickly, throughout the entire region of Galilee. {1:29} And soon after departing from the synagogue, they went into the house of Simon and Andrew, with James and John. {1:30} But the mother-in-law of Simon lay ill with a fever. And at once they told him about her. {1:31} And drawing near to her, he raised her up, taking her by the hand. And immediately the fever left her, and she ministered to them. {1:32} Then, when evening arrived, after the sun had set, they brought to him all who had maladies and those who had demons. {1:33} And the entire city was gathered together at the door. {1:34} And he healed many who were troubled with various illnesses. And he cast out many demons, but he would not permit them to speak, because they knew him. {1:35} And rising up very early, departing, he went out to a desert place, and there he prayed. {1:36} And Simon, and those who were with him, followed after him. {1:37} And when they had found him, they said to him, “For everyone is seeking you.” {1:38} And he said to them: “Let us go into the neighboring towns and cities, so that I may preach there also. Indeed, it was for this reason that I came.” {1:39} And he was preaching in their synagogues and throughout all of Galilee, and casting out demons. {1:40} And a leper came to him, begging him. And kneeling down, he said to him, “If you are willing, you are able to cleanse me.” {1:41} Then Jesus, taking pity on him, reached out his hand. And touching him, he said to him: “I am willing. Be cleansed.” {1:42} And after he had spoken, immediately the leprosy departed from him, and he was cleansed. {1:43} And he admonished him, and he promptly sent him away. {1:44} And he said to him: “See to it that you tell no one. But go and show yourself to the high priest, and offer for your cleansing that which Moses instructed, as a testimony for them.” {1:45} But having departed, he began to preach and to disseminate the word, so that he was no longer able to openly enter a city, but had to remain outside, in deserted places. And they were gathered to him from every direction.
forgiven you.” {2:6} But some of the scribes were sitting in that place and thinking in their hearts: {2:7} “Why is this man speaking in this way? He is blaspheming. Who can forgive sins, but God alone?” {2:8} At once, Jesus, realizing in his spirit that they were thinking this within themselves, said to them: “Why are you thinking these things in your hearts? {2:9} Which is easier, to say to the paralytic, ‘Your sins are forgiven you,’ or to say, ‘Rise up, take up your stretcher, and walk?’ {2:10} But so that you may know that the Son of man has authority on earth to forgive sins,” he said to the paralytic: {2:11} “I say to you: Rise up, take up your stretcher, and go into your house.” {2:12} And immediately he got up, and lifting up his stretcher, he went away in the sight of them all, so that they all wondered. And they honored God, by saying, “We have never seen anything like this.” {2:13} And he departed again to the sea. And the entire crowd came to him, and he taught them. {2:14} And as he was passing by, he saw Levi of Alphaeus, sitting at the customs office. And he said to him, “Follow me.” And rising up, he followed him. {2:15} And it happened that, as he sat at table in his house, many tax collectors and sinners sat at table together with Jesus and his disciples. For those who followed him were many. {2:16} And the scribes and the Pharisees, seeing that he ate with tax collectors and sinners, said to his disciples, “Why does your Teacher eat and drink with tax collectors and sinners?” {2:17} Jesus, having heard this, said to them: “The healthy have no need of a doctor, but those who have maladies do. For I came not to call the just, but sinners.” {2:18} And the disciples of John, and the Pharisees, were fasting. And they arrived and said to him, “Why do the disciples of John and of the Pharisees fast, but your disciples do not fast?” {2:19} And Jesus said to them: “How can the sons of the wedding fast while the groom is still with them? During whatever time they have the groom with them, they are not able to fast. {2:20} But the days will arrive when the groom will be taken away from them, and then they shall fast, in those days. {2:21} No one sews a patch of new cloth onto an old garment. Otherwise, the new addition pulls away from the old, and the tear becomes worse. {2:22} And no one puts new wine into old wineskins. Otherwise, the wine will burst the wineskins, and the wine will pour out, and the wineskins will be lost. Instead, new wine must be put into new wineskins.” {2:23} And again, while the Lord was walking through the ripe grain on the Sabbath, his disciples, as they advanced, began to separate the ears of grains. {2:24} But the Pharisees said to him, “Behold, why are they doing what is not lawful on the Sabbaths?” {2:25} And he said to them: “Have you never read what David did, when he had need and was hungry, both he and those who were with him? {2:26} How he went into the house of God, under the high priest Abiathar, and ate the bread of the Presence, which it was not lawful to eat, except for the priests, and how he gave it to those who were with him?” {2:27} And he said to them: “The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath. {2:28} And so, the Son of man is Lord, even of the Sabbath.”

[Mark 3] {3:1} And again, he entered into the synagogue. And there was a man there who had a withered hand. {3:2} And they observed him, to see if he would cure on the Sabbaths, so that they might accuse him. {3:3} And he said to the man who had the withered hand, “Stand up in the middle.” {3:4} And he said to them: “Is it lawful to do good on the Sabbaths, or to do evil, to give health to a life, or to destroy?” But they remained silent. {3:5} And looking around at them with anger, being very saddened over the blindness of their hearts, he said to the man, “Extend your hand.” And he extended it, and his hand was restored to him. {3:6} Then the Pharisees, going out, immediately took counsel with the Herodians against him, as to how they might destroy him. {3:7} But Jesus withdrew with his disciples to the sea. And a great crowd followed him from Galilee and Judea, {3:8} and from Jerusalem, and from Idumea and across the Jordan. And those around Tyre and Sidon, upon hearing what he was doing, came to him in a great multitude. {3:9} And he told his disciples that a small boat would be useful to him, because of the crowd, lest they press upon him. {3:10} For he healed so many, that as many of them as had wounds would rush toward him in order to touch him. {3:11} And the unclean spirits, when they saw him, fell prostrate before him. And they cried out, saying, {3:12} “You are the Son of God.” And he strongly admonished them, lest they make him known. {3:13} And ascending onto a mountain, he called to himself those whom he willed, and they came to him. {3:14} And he acted so that the twelve would be with him, and so that he might send them out to preach. {3:15} And he gave them authority to cure infirmities, and to cast out demons: {3:16} and he imposed on Simon the name Peter; {3:17} and also he imposed on James of Zebedee, and John the brother of James, the name ‘Boanerges,’ that is, ‘Sons of Thunder;’ {3:18} and Andrew, and Philip, and Bartholomew, and Matthew, and Thomas, and James of Alphaeus, and Thaddeus, and Simon the Canaanite, and Judas Iscariot, who also betrayed him. {3:20} And they went to a house, and the crowd gathered together again, so much so that they were not even able to eat bread. {3:21} And when his own had heard of it, they went out to take hold of him. For they said: “Because he has gone mad.” {3:22} And the scribes who had descended from Jerusalem said, “Because he has Beezlepub, and because by the prince of demons does he cast out demons.” {3:23} And having called them together, he spoke to them in parables: “How can Satan cast out Satan? {3:24} For if a kingdom is divided against itself, that kingdom is not able to stand. {3:25} And if a house is divided against itself, that house is not able to stand. {3:26} And if Satan has risen up against himself, he would be divided, and he would not be able to stand; instead he reaches the end. {3:27} No one is able to plunder the goods of a strong man, having entered into the house, unless he first binds the strong man, and then he shall plunder his house. {3:28} Amen I say to you, that all sins will be forgiven the sons of men, and the blasphemies by which they will have blasphemed. {3:29} But he who will have blasphemed against the Holy Spirit shall not have forgiveness in eternity; instead he shall be guilty of an eternal offense.” {3:30} For they said: “He has an unclean spirit.” {3:31} And his mother and brothers arrived. And standing outside, they sent to him, calling him. {3:32} And the crowd was sitting around him. And they said to him, “Behold, your mother and your brothers are outside, seeking you.” {3:33} And responding to them, he said, “Who is my mother and my brothers?” {3:34} And looking around at those who were sitting all around him, he said: “Behold, my mother and my brothers. {3:35} For whoever has done the will of God, the same is my brother, and my sister and mother."

[Mark 4] {4:1} And again, he began to teach by the sea. And a great crowd was gathered to him, so much so that, climbing into a boat, he was seated on the sea. And the entire crowd was on the land along the sea. {4:2} And he taught them many things in parables, and he said to them, in his doctrine: {4:3} “Listen. Behold, the sower went out to sow. {4:4} And while he was sowing, some fell along the way, and the birds of the air came and ate it. {4:5} Yet truly, others fell upon stony ground, where it did not have much soil. And it rose up quickly, because it had no depth of soil. {4:6} And when the sun was risen, it was scorched. And because it had no root, it withered away. {4:7} And some fell among thorns. And the thorns grew up and suffocated it, and it did not produce fruit. {4:8} And some fell on good soil. And it brought forth fruit that grew up, and increased, and yielded: some thirty, some sixty, and some one hundred.” {4:9} And he said, “Whoever has ears to hear, let him hear.” {4:10} And when he was alone, the twelve, who were with him, questioned him about the parable. {4:11} And he said to them: “To you, it has been given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God. But to those who are outside, everything is presented in parables: {4:12} ‘so that, seeing, they may see, and not perceive; and hearing, they may hear, and not understand; lest at any time they may be converted, and their sins would be forgiven them.’ ” {4:13} And he said to them: “Do you not understand this parable? And so, how will you understand all them.’ ” {4:14} He who sows, sows the word. {4:15} Now there are those who are along the way, where the word is sown. And when they have heard it, Satan quickly comes and takes away the word, which was sown in their hearts. {4:16} And similarly, there are those who were sown upon stony ground. These, when they have heard the word, immediately accept it with gladness. {4:17} But they have no root in themselves, and so they are for a limited time. And when next tribulation and persecution arises because of the word, they quickly fall away. {4:18} And there are others who are sown among thorns. These are those who hear the word, {4:19} but worldly tasks, and the deception of riches, and desires about other things enter in and suffocate the word, and it is effectively without fruit. {4:20} And there are those who are sown upon good soil, who hear the word and accept it; and these bear fruit: some thirty, some sixty, and some one hundred.” {4:21} And he said to them: “Would someone enter with a lamp in order to place it under a basket or under a bed? Would it not be placed upon a lampstand? {4:22} For there is nothing hidden that will not be revealed. Neither was anything done in secret, except that it may be made public. {4:23} If anyone has ears to hear, let him hear.” {4:24} And he said to them: “Consider what you hear. With whatever measure you have measured out, it shall be measured back to you, and more shall be added to you. {4:25} For whoever has, to him it shall be given. And whoever has not, from him even what he has shall be taken away.” {4:26} And he said: “The kingdom of God is like this: it is as if a man were to cast seed on the land. {4:27} And he sleeps and he arises, night and day. And the seed germinates and grows, though he does not know it. {4:28} For the earth bears fruit readily: first the plant, then the ear, next the full grain in the ear. {4:29} And when the fruit has been produced, immediately he sends out the sickle, because the harvest has arrived.” {4:30} And he said: “To what should we compare the kingdom of God? Or to what parable should we compare it? {4:31} It is like a grain of mustard seed which, when it has been sown in the earth, is less than all the seeds which are in the earth. {4:32} And when it is sown, it grows up and becomes greater than all the plants, and it produces great branches, so much so that the birds of the air are able to live under its shadow.” {4:33} And with many such parables he spoke the word to them, as much as they were able to hear. {4:34} But he did not speak to them without a parable. Yet separately, he explained all things to his disciples. {4:35} And on that day, when evening had arrived, he said to them, “Let us cross over.” {4:36} And dismissing the crowd, they brought him, so that he was in one boat, and other boats were with him. {4:37} And a great wind storm occurred, and the waves broke over the boat, so that the boat was being filled. {4:38} And he was in the stern of the boat, sleeping on a pillow. And they woke him and said to him, “Teacher, does it not concern you that we are perishing?” {4:39} And rising up, he rebuked the wind, and he said to the sea: “Silence. Be stillled.” And the wind ceased. And a great tranquility occurred. {4:40} And he said to them: “Why are you afraid? Do you still lack faith?” And they were struck with a great fear. And they said to one another, “Who do you think this is, that both wind and sea obey him?”

[Mark 5] {5:1} And they went across the strait of the sea into the region of the Gerasenes. {5:2} And as he was departing from the boat, he was immediately met, from among the tombs, by a man with an unclean spirit, {5:3} who had his dwelling place with the tombs; neither had anyone been able to bind him, even with chains. {5:4} For having been bound often with shackles and chains, he had broken the chains and smashed the shackles; and no one had been able to tame him. {5:5} And he was always, day and night, among the tombs, or in the mountains, crying out and cutting himself with stones. {5:6} And seeing Jesus from afar, he ran and adored him. {5:7} And crying out with a loud voice, he said: “What am I to you, Jesus, the Son of the Most High God? I beseech you by God, that you not torment me.” {5:8} For he said to him, “Depart from the man, you unclean spirit.” {5:9} And he questioned him: “What is your name?” And he said to him, “My name is Legion, for we are many.” {5:10} And he entreated him greatly, so that he would not expel him from the region. {5:11} And in that place, near the mountain, there was a great herd of swine, feeding. {5:12} And the spirits entreated him, saying: “Send us into the swine, so that we may enter into them.” {5:13} And Jesus promptly gave them permission. And the unclean spirits, departing, entered into the swine. And the herd of about two thousand rushed down with great force into the sea, and they were drowned in the sea. {5:14} Then those who pastured them fled, and they reported it in the city and in the countryside. And they all went out to see what was happening. {5:15} And they came to Jesus. And they saw the man who had been troubled by the demon, sitting, clothed and with a sane mind, and they were afraid. {5:16} And those who had seen it explained to them how he had dealt with the man who had the demon, and about the swine. {5:17} And they began to petition him, so that he would withdraw from their borders. {5:18} And as he was climbing into the boat, the man who had been troubled by the demons began to beg him, so that he might be
Mark 6:1 And departing from there, he went away to his own country; and his disciples followed him. 6:2 And when the Sabbath arrived, he began to teach in the synagogue. And many, upon hearing him, were amazed at his doctrine, saying: “Where did this one get all these things?” and, “What is this wisdom, which has been given to him?” and, “Such powerful deeds, which are wrought by his hands!” 6:3 “Is this not the carpenter, the son of Mary, the brother of James, and Joseph, and Jude, and Simon? Are not his sisters also here with us?” And they took great offense at him. 6:4 And Jesus said to them, “A prophet is not without honor, except in his own country, and in his own house, and among his own kindred.” 6:5 And he was not able to perform any miracles there, except that he cured a few of the infirm by laying his hands on them. 6:6 And he wondered, because of their unbelief, and he traveled around in the villages, teaching. 6:7 And he called the twelve. And he began to send them out in twos, and he gave them authority over unclean spirits. 6:8 And he instructed them not to take anything for the journey, except a staff: no traveling bag, no bread, and no money belt, 6:9 but to wear sandals, and not to wear two tunics. 6:10 And he said to them: “Whenever you have entered into a house, stay there until you depart from that place. 6:11 And whoever will neither receive you, nor listen to you, as you go away from there, shake off the dust from your feet as a testimony against them.” 6:12 And going out, they were preaching, so that people would repent. 6:13 And they cast out many demons, and they anointed many of the sick with oil and healed them. 6:14 And king Herod heard of it, (for his name had become well-known) and he said: “John the Baptist has risen again from the dead, and because of this, miracles are at work in him.” 6:15 But others were saying, “Because it is Elijah.” Still others were saying, “Because he is a prophet, like one of the prophets.” 6:16 When Herod had heard it, he said, “John whom I beheaded, the same has risen again from the dead.” 6:17 For Herod himself had sent to capture John, and had charged him in prison, because of Herodias, the wife of his brother Philip; for he had married her. 6:18 For John was saying to Herod, “It is not lawful for you to have your brother’s wife.” 6:19 Now Herodias was devising treachery against him; and she wanted to kill him, but she was unable. 6:20 For Herod was apprehensive of John, knowing him to be a just and holy man, and so he guarded him. And he heard that he was accomplishing many things, and so he listened to him willingly. 6:21 And when an opportune time had arrived, Herod held a feast on his birthday, with the leaders, and the tribunes, and the first rulers of Galilee. 6:22 And when the daughter of the same Herodias had entered, and danced, and pleased Herod, along with those who were at table with him, the king said to the girl, “Request from me whatever you want, and I will give it to you.” 6:23 And he swore to her, “Anything that you request, I will give to you, even up to half my kingdom.” 6:24 And when she had gone out, she said to her mother, “What shall I request?” But her mother said, “The head of John the Baptist.” 6:25 And immediately, when she had entered with haste to the king, she petitioned him, saying: “I want you to give me at once the head of John the Baptist on a platter.” 6:26 And the king was greatly saddened. But because of his oath, and because of those who were sitting with him at table, he was not willing to disappoint her. 6:27 So, having sent an executioner, he instructed that his head be brought on a platter. 6:28 And he beheaded him in prison, and he brought his head on a platter. And he gave it to the girl, and the girl gave it her mother. 6:29 When his disciples heard about it, they came and took his body, and they placed it in a tomb. {6:30} And the Apostles, returning to Jesus, reported to him everything that they had done and taught. {6:31} And he said to them, “Go out alone, into a deserted place, and rest for a little while.” For there were so many who were coming and going, that they did not even have time to eat. {6:32} And climbing into a boat, they went away to a deserted place alone. {6:33} And they saw them going away, and many knew about it. And together they ran by foot from all the cities, and they arrived before them. {6:34} And Jesus, going out, saw a great multitude. And he took pity on them, because they were like sheep without a shepherd, and he began to teach them many things. {6:35} And when many hours had now passed, his disciples drew near to him, saying: “This is a deserted place, and the hour is now late.” {6:36} Send them away, so that by going out to nearby villages and towns, they might buy provisions for themselves to eat.” {6:37} And responding, he said to them, “Give them something to eat yourselves.” And they said to him, “Let us go out and buy bread for two hundred denarii, and then we will give them something to eat.” {6:38} And he said to them: “How many loaves do you have? Go and see.” And when they had found out, they said, “Five, and two fish.” {6:39} And he instructed them to make them all sit down in groups on the green grass. {6:40} And they sat down in divisions by hundreds and by fifties. {6:41} And having received the five loaves and the two fish, gazing up to heaven, he blessed and broke the bread, and he gave it to his disciples to set before them. And the two fish he divided among them all. {6:42} And they all ate and were satisfied. {6:43} And they brought together the remainder: twelve baskets full of fragments and of fish. {6:44} Now those who ate were five thousand men. {6:45} And without delay he urged his disciples to climb into the boat, so that they might precede him across the sea to Bethsaida, while he dismissed the people. {6:46} And when he had dismissed them, he went to the mountain to pray. {6:47} And when it was late, the boat was in the midst of the sea, and he was alone on the land. {6:48} And seeing them struggling to row, (for the wind was against them,) and about the fourth watch of the night, he came to them, walking upon the sea. And he intended to pass by them. {6:49} But when they saw him walking upon the sea, they thought it was an apparition, and they cried out. {6:50} For they all saw him, and they were very disturbed. And immediately he spoke with them, and he said to them: “Be strengthened in faith. It is I. Do not be afraid.” {6:51} And he climbed into the boat with them, and the wind ceased. And they became even more astonished within themselves. {6:52} For they did not understand about the bread. For their heart had been blinded. {6:53} And when they had crossed over, they arrived in the land of Genesaret, and they reached the shore. {6:54} And when they had disembarked from the boat, the people immediately recognized him. {6:55} And running throughout that entire region, they began to carry on beds those who had maladies, to where they heard that he would be. {6:56} And in whichever place he entered, in towns or villages or cities, they placed the infirm in the main streets, and they pleaded with him that they might touch even the hem of his garment. And as many as touched him were made healthy. {7:2} And when they had seen certain ones from his disciples eating bread with common hands, that is, with unwashed hands, they disparaged them. {7:3} And the Pharisees, and all the Jews, do not eat without repeatedly washing their hands, holding to the tradition of the elders. {7:4} And when returning from the market, unless they wash, they do not eat. And there are many other things which have been handed down to them to observe: the washings of cups, and pitchers, and bronze containers, and beds. {7:5} And so the Pharisees and the scribes questioned him: “Why do your disciples not walk according to the tradition of the elders, but they eat bread with common hands?” {7:6} But in response, he said to them: “So well did Isaiah prophesy about you hypocrites, just as it has been written: This people honors me with their lips, but their heart is far from me. {7:7} And in vain do they worship me, teaching the doctrines and precepts of men.’ {7:8} For abandoning the commandment of God, you hold to the tradition of men, to the washing of pitchers and cups. And you do many other things similar to these.” {7:9} And he said to them: “You effectively nullify the precept of God, so that you may observe your own tradition. {7:10} For Moses said: ‘Honor your father and your mother,’ and, ‘Whoever will have cursed father or mother, let him die a death.’ {7:11} But you say, ‘If a man will have said to his father or mother: Korban, (which is a gift) whatever is from me will be to your benefit,’ {7:12} then you do not release him to do anything for his father or mother, {7:13} rescinding the word of God through your tradition, which you have handed down. And you do many other similar things in this way.” {7:14} And again, calling the crowd to him, he said to them: “Listen to me, all of you, and understand. {7:15} There is nothing from outside a man which, by entering into him, is able to defile him. But the things which proceed from a man, these are what pollute a man. {7:16} Whoever has ears to hear, let him hear.” {7:17} And when he had entered into the house, away from the crowd, his disciples questioned him about the parable. {7:18} And he said to them: “So, are you also without prudence? Do you not understand that everything entering to a man from outside is not able to pollute him? {7:19} For it does not enter into his heart, but into the gut, and it exits into the sewer, purging all foods.” {7:20} “But,” he said “the things which go out from a man, these pollute a man. {7:21} For from within, from the heart of men, proceed evil thoughts, adulteries, fornications, murders, {7:22} thefts, avarice, wickedness, deceitfulness, homosexuality, an evil eye, blasphemy, self-exaltation, foolishness. {7:23} All these evils proceed from within and pollute a man.” {7:24} And rising up, he went from there to the area of Tyre and Sidon. And entering into a house, he intended no one to know about it, but he was not able to remain hidden. {7:25} For a woman whose daughter had an unclean spirit, as soon as she heard about him, entered and fell prostrate at his feet. {7:26} For the woman was a Gentile, by birth a Syro-Phoenician. And she petitioned him, so that he would cast the demon from her daughter. {7:27} And he said to her: “First allow the sons to have their fill. For it is not good to take away the bread of the sons and throw it to the dogs.” {7:28} But she responded by saying to him: “Certainly, Lord. Yet the young dogs also eat, under the table, from the crumbs of the children.” {7:29} And he said to her, “Because of this saying, go; the demon has gone out of your daughter.” {7:30} And when she had gone to her house, she found the girl lying on the bed; and the demon had gone away. {7:31} And again, departing from the borders of Tyre, he went by way of Sidon to the sea of Galilee, through the midst of the area of the Ten Cities. {7:32} And they brought someone who was deaf and mute to him. And they begged him, so that he would lay his hand upon him. {7:33} And taking him away from the crowd, he put his fingers into his ears; and spitting, he touched his tongue. {7:34} And gazing up to heaven, he groaned and said to him: “Ephphatha,” which is, “Be opened.” {7:35} And immediately his ears were opened, and the impediment of his tongue was released, and he spoke correctly. {7:36} And he instructed them not to tell anyone. But as much as he instructed them, so much more did they preach about it. {7:37} And so much more did they wonder, saying: “He has done all things well. He has caused both the deaf to hear and the mute to speak.”

[Mark 8] {8:1} In those days, again, when there was a great crowd, and they did not have anything to eat, calling together his disciples, he said to them: {8:2} “I have compassion for the multitude, because, behold, they have persevered with me now for three days, and they do not have anything to eat. {8:3} And if I were to send them away fasting to their home, they might faint on the way.” For some of them came from far away. {8:4} And his disciples answered him, “From where would anyone be able to obtain enough bread for them in the wilderness?” {8:5} And he questioned them, “How many loaves do you have?” And they said, “Seven.” {8:6} And he instructed the crowd to sit down to eat on the ground. And taking the seven loaves, giving thanks, he broke them. {8:7} And they ate and were satisfied. And they took up what had been leftover from the fragments: seven baskets. {8:9} And those who ate were about four thousand. And he dismissed them. {8:10} And promptly climbing into a boat with his disciples, he went into the parts of Dalmanutha. {8:11} And the Pharisees went out and began to contend with him, seeking from him a sign from heaven, testing him. {8:12} And sighing deeply in spirit, he said: “Why does this generation seek a sign? Amen, I say to you, if only a sign will be given to this generation!” {8:13} And sending them away, he climbed into the boat again, and he went away across the sea. {8:14} And they forgot to take bread. And they did not have any with them in the boat, except one loaf. {8:15} And he instructed them, saying: “Consider and beware of the leaven of the Pharisees and of the leaven of Herod.” {8:16} And they discussed this with one another, saying, “For we have no bread.” {8:17} And Jesus, knowing this, said to them: “Why do you consider that it is because you have no bread? Do you not yet know or understand? Do you still have blindness in your heart? {8:18} Having eyes, do you not see? And having ears, do you not hear? Do you not remember, {8:19} when I broke the five loves among the five thousand, how many baskets full of fragments you took up?” They said to him, “Twelve.” {8:20} “And when the seven loaves were among the four thousand, how many baskets of fragments did you take up?” And they said to him, “Seven.” {8:21} And he said to them, “How is it that you do not yet understand?” {8:22} And they went to Bethsaida. And they brought a blind man to him. And they petitioned him, so that he would touch him. {8:23} And taking the blind man by the hand, he led him beyond the village. And putting spit on his eyes, laying his hands on him, he asked him if he could see anything. {8:24} And looking up, he said, “I see men but they are like walking trees.” {8:25} Next he placed his hands again over his eyes, and he began to see. And he was restored, so that he could see everything clearly. {8:26} And he sent him to his house, saying, “Go into your own house, and if you enter into the town, tell no one.” {8:27} And Jesus departed with his disciples into the towns of Caesarea Philippi. And on the way, he questioned his disciples, saying to them, “Who do men say that I am?” {8:28} And they answered him by saying: “John the Baptist, others Elijah, still others perhaps one of the prophets.” {8:29} Then he said to them, “Yet truly, who do you say that I am?” Peter responded by saying to him, “You are the Christ.” {8:30} And he admonished them, not to tell anyone about him. {8:31} And he began to teach them that the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders, and by the high priests, and the scribes, and be killed, and after three days rise again. {8:32} And he spoke the word openly. And Peter, taking him aside, began to correct him. {8:33} And turning away and looking at his disciples, he admonished Peter, saying, “Get behind me, Satan, for you do not prefer the things that are of God, but the things that are of men.” {8:34} And calling together the crowd with his disciples, he said to them, “If anyone chooses to follow me, let him deny himself, and take up his cross, and follow me. {8:35} For whoever will have chosen to save his life, will lose it. But whoever will have lost his life, for my sake and for the Gospel, shall save it. {8:36} For how does it benefit a man, if he gains the whole world, and yet causes harm to his soul? {8:37} Or, what will a man give in exchange for his soul? {8:38} For whoever has been ashamed of me and of my words, among this adulterous and sinful generation, the Son of man also will be ashamed of him, when he will arrive in the glory of his Father, with the holy Angels.” {8:39} And he said to them, “Amen I say to you, that there are some among those standing here who shall not taste death until they see the kingdom of God arriving in power.”

[Mark 9] {9:1} And after six days, Jesus took with him Peter, and James, and John; and he led them separately to a lofty mountain alone; and he was transfigured before them. {9:2} And his vestments became radiant and exceedingly white like snow, with such a brilliance as no fuller on earth is able to achieve. {9:3} And there appeared to them Elijah with Moses; and they were speaking with Jesus. {9:4} And in response, Peter said to Jesus: “Master, it is good for us to be here. And so let us make three tabernacles, one for you, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah.” {9:5} For he did not know what he was saying. For they were overwhelmed by fear. {9:6} And there was a cloud overshadowing them. And a voice came from the cloud, saying: “This is my most beloved Son. Listen to him.” {9:7} And immediately, looking around, they no longer saw anyone, except Jesus alone with them. {9:8} And as they were descending from the mountain, he instructed them not to relate to anyone what they had seen, until after the Son of man will have risen again from the dead. {9:9} And they kept the word to themselves, arguing about what “after he will have risen from the dead” might mean. {9:10} And they questioned him, saying: “Then why do the Pharisees and the scribes say that Elijah must arrive first?” {9:11} And in response, he said to them: “Elijah, when he will arrive first, shall restore all things. And in the manner that it has been written about the Son of man, so must he suffer many things and be condemned. {9:12} But I say to you, that Elijah also has arrived, (and they have done to him whatever they wanted) just as it has been written about him.” {9:13} And approaching his disciples, he saw a great crowd surrounding them, and the scribes were arguing with them. {9:14} And soon all the people, seeing Jesus, were astonished and struck with fear, and hurrying to him, they greeted him. {9:15} And he questioned them, “What are you arguing about among yourselves?” {9:16} And one from the crowd responded by saying: “Teacher, I have brought to you my son, who has a mute spirit. {9:17} And whenever it takes hold of him, it throws him down, and he foams and gnashes with his teeth, and he becomes unconscious. And I asked your disciples to cast him out, and they could not.” {9:18} And answering them, he said: “O unbelieving generation, how long must I be with you? How long shall I endure you? Bring him to me.” {9:19} And they brought him. And when he had seen him, immediately the spirit disturbed him. And having been thrown to the ground, he rolled around foaming. {9:20} And he questioned his father, “How long has this been happening to him?” But he said: “From infancy. {9:21} And often it casts him into fire or into water, in order to destroy him. But if you are able to do anything, help us and take pity on us.” {9:22} But Jesus said to him, “If you are able to believe: all things are possible to one who believes.” {9:23} And immediately the father of the boy, crying out with tears, said: “I do believe, Lord. Help my unbelief.” {9:24} And when Jesus saw the crowd rushing together, he admonished the unclean spirit, saying to him, “Deaf and mute spirit, I command you, leave him; and do not enter into him anymore.” {9:25} And crying out, and convulsing him greatly, he departed from him. And he became like one who is dead, so much so that many said, “He is dead.” {9:26} But Jesus, taking him by the hand, lifted him up. And he arose. {9:27} And when he had entered into the house, his disciples questioned him privately, “Why were we unable to cast him out?” {9:28} And he said to them, “This kind is able to be expelled by nothing other than prayer and fasting.” {9:29} And setting out from there, they passed through Galilee. And he intended that no one know about it. {9:30} Then he taught his disciples, and he said to them, “For the Son of man shall be delivered into the hands of men, and they will kill him, and having been killed, on the third day he will rise again.” {9:31} But they did not understand the word. And they were afraid to question him. {9:32} And they went to Capernaum. And when they were in the house, he questioned them, “What did you discuss on the way?” {9:33} But they were silent. For indeed, on the way, they had disputed among themselves as to which of them was greater. {9:34} And sitting down, he called the twelve, and he said to them, “If anyone wants to be first, he shall be the last of all and the minister of all.” {9:35} And taking a child, he set him in their midst. And when he had embraced him, he said to them: {9:36} “Whoever receives one such child in my name, receives me. And whoever receives me, receives not me, but him who sent me.” {9:37} John responded to him by saying, “Teacher, we saw someone casting out demons in your name; he does not follow us, and so we prohibited him.” {9:38} But Jesus said: “Do not prohibit him. For there is no one who can act with virtue in my name and soon speak evil about me. {9:39} For whoever is not against you is for you. {9:40} For whoever, in my name, will give you a cup of water to drink, because you belong to Christ: Amen I say to you, he shall not lose his reward. {9:41} And whoever will have scandalized one of these little ones who believe in me: it would be better for him if a great millstone were placed around his neck and he were thrown into the sea. {9:42} And if your hands causes you to sin, cut it off: it is better for you to enter into life disabled, than having two hands to go into Hell, into the unquenchable fire, {9:43} where their worm does not die, and the fire is not extinguished. {9:44} But if your foot causes you to sin, chop it off: it is better for you to enter into eternal life lame, than having two feet to be cast into the Hell of unquenchable fire, {9:45} where their worm does not die, and the fire is not extinguished. {9:46} But if your eye causes you to sin, pluck it out: it is better for you to enter into the kingdom of God with one eye, than having two eyes to be cast into the Hell of fire, {9:47} where their worm does not die, and the fire is not extinguished. {9:48} For all shall be salted with fire, and every victim shall be salted with salt. {9:49} Salt is good: but if the salt has become bland, with what will you season it? Have salt in yourselves, and have peace among yourselves.”
{10:19} You know the precepts: “Do not commit adultery. Do not kill. Do not steal. Do not speak false testimony. Do not deceive. Honor your father and mother.” {10:20} But in response, he said to him, “Teacher, all these I have observed from my youth.” {10:21} Then Jesus, gazing at him, loved him, and he said to him: “One thing is lacking to you. Go, sell whatever you have, and give to the poor, and then you will have treasure in heaven. And come, follow me.” {10:22} But he went away grieving, having been greatly saddened by the word. For he had many possessions. {10:23} And Jesus, looking around, said to his disciples, “How difficult it is for those who have riches to enter into the kingdom of God!” {10:24} And the disciples were astonished at his words. But Jesus, answering again, said to them: “Little sons, how difficult it is for those who trust in money to enter into the kingdom of God! {10:25} It is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, than for the rich to enter into the kingdom of God.” {10:26} And they wondered even more, saying among themselves, “Who, then, can be saved?” {10:27} And Jesus, gazing at them, said: “With men it is impossible; but not with God. For with God all things are possible.” {10:28} And Peter began to say to him, “Behold, we have left all things and have followed you.” {10:29} In response, Jesus said: “Amen I say to you, There is no one who has left behind house, or brothers, or sisters, or father, or mother, or children, or land, for my sake and for the Gospel, {10:30} who will not receive one hundred times as much, now in this time: houses, and brothers, and sisters, and mothers, and children, and land, with persecutions, and in the future age eternal life. {10:31} But many of the first shall be last, and the last shall be first.” {10:32} Now they were on the way ascending to Jerusalem. And Jesus went ahead of them, and they were astonished. And those following him were afraid. And again, taking aside the twelve, he began to tell them what was about to happen to him. {10:33} “For behold, we are going up to Jerusalem, and the Son of man will be handed over to the leaders of the priests, and to the scribes, and the elders. And they will condemn him to death, and they will hand him over to the Gentiles. {10:34} And they will mock him, and spit on him, and scourge him, and put him to death. And on the third day, he will rise again.” {10:35} And James and John, the sons of Zebedee, drew near to him, saying, “Teacher, we wish that whatever we will ask, you would do for us.” {10:36} But he said to them, “What do you want me to do for you?” {10:37} And they said, “Grant to us that we may sit, one at your right and the other at your left, in your glory.” {10:38} But Jesus said to them: “You do not know what you are asking. Are you able to drink from the chalice from which I drink, or to be baptized with the baptism with which I am to be baptized?” {10:39} But they said to him, “We can.” Then Jesus said to them: “Indeed, you shall drink from the chalice, from which I drink; and you shall be baptized with the baptism, with which I am to be baptized. {10:40} But to sit at my right, or at my left, is not mine to give to you, but it is for those for whom it has been prepared.” {10:41} And the ten, upon hearing this, began to be indignant toward James and John. {10:42} But Jesus, calling them, said to them: “You know that those who seem to be leaders among the Gentiles dominate them, and their leaders exercise authority over them. {10:43} But it is not to be this way among you. Instead, whoever would become greater shall be your minister; {10:44} and whoever will be first among you shall be the servant of all. {10:45} So, too, the Son of man has not come so that they would minister to him, but so that he would minister and would give his life as a redemption for many.” {10:46} And they went to Jericho. And as he was setting out from Jericho with his disciples and a very numerous multitude, Bartimaeus, the son of Timaeus, a blind man, sat begging beside the way. {10:47} And when he had heard that it was Jesus of Nazareth, he began to cry out and to say, “Jesus, Son of David, take pity on me.” {10:48} And many admonished him to be quiet. But he cried out all the more, “Son of David, take pity on me.” {10:49} And Jesus, standing still, instructed him to be called. And they called the blind man, saying to him: “Be at peace. Arise. He is calling you.” {10:50} And casting aside his garment, he leapt up and went to him. {10:51} And in response, Jesus said to him, “What do you want, that I should do for you?” And the blind man said to him, “Master, that I may see.” {10:52} Then Jesus said to him, “Go, your faith has made you whole.” And immediately he saw, and he followed him on the way.

[Mark 11] {11:1} And as they were approaching Jerusalem and Bethania, toward the mount of Olives, he sent two of his disciples, {11:2} and he said to them: “Go into the village that is opposite you, and immediately upon entering there, you will find a colt tied, on which no man has yet sat. Release him and bring him. {11:3} And if anyone will say to you: ‘What are you doing?’ Say that the Lord has need of it. And he will immediately send him here.” {11:4} And going out, they found the colt tied before the outer gate, at the meeting of two ways. And they untied it. {11:5} And some of those who were standing there said to them, “What are you doing by releasing the colt?” {11:6} And they spoke to them just as Jesus had instructed them. And they permitted them. {11:7} And they led the colt to Jesus. And they placed their garments on it; and he sat upon it. {11:8} Then many spread their garments along the way; but others cut down leafy branches from trees and scattered them on the way. {11:9} And those who went ahead, and those who followed, cried out saying: “Hosanna! Blessed is he who has arrived in the name of the Lord. {11:10} Blessed is the advent of the kingdom of our father David. Hosanna in the highest!” {11:11} And he entered into Jerusalem, into the temple. And having looked around at everything, since it was now the evening hour, he went out to Bethania with the twelve. {11:12} And the next day, as they were departing from Bethania, he was hungry. {11:13} And when he had seen a fig tree with leaves in the distance, he went to it, in case he might find something on it. And when he had gone to it, he found nothing but leaves. For it was not the season for figs. {11:14} And in response, he said to it, “From now on and forever, may no one eat fruit from you again!” And his disciples heard this. {11:15} And they went to Jerusalem. And when he had entered into the temple, he began to cast out the sellers and the buyers in the temple. And he overturned the tables of the moneychangers and the chairs of the vendors of doves. {11:16} And he would not permit anyone to carry goods through the temple. {11:17} And he taught them, saying: “Is it not written: ‘For my house shall be called the house of prayer for all nations?’ But you have made it into a den of robbers.” {11:18} And when the leaders of the priests, and the scribes, had heard this, they sought a means by which they might destroy him. For they feared him, because the entire multitude was in admiration over his doctrine. {11:19} And when evening had arrived, he departed from the city. {11:20} And when they passed by in the morning, they saw that the fig tree had dried up from the roots. {11:21} And Peter, remembering, said to him, “Master, behold, the fig tree that you cursed has withered.” {11:22} And in response, Jesus said to them: “Have the faith of God. {11:23} Amen I say to you, that whoever will say to this mountain, ‘Be taken up and cast into the sea,’ and who will not have hesitated in his heart, but will have believed: then whatever he has said be done, it shall be done for him. {11:24} For this reason, I say to you, all things whatsoever that you ask for when praying: believe that you will receive them, and they will happen for you. {11:25} And when you stand to pray, if you hold anything against anyone, forgive them, so that your Father, who is in heaven, may also forgive you your sins. {11:26} But if you will not forgive, neither will your Father, who is in heaven, forgive you your sins.” {11:27} And they went again to Jerusalem. And when he was walking in the temple, the leaders of the priests, and the scribes, and the elders approached him. {11:28} And they said to him: “By what authority do you do these things? And who has given you this authority, so that you do these things?” {11:29} But in response, Jesus said to them: “I also will ask you one word, and if you answer me, I will tell you by what authority I do these things. {11:30} The baptism of John: was it from heaven or from men? Answer me.” {11:31} But they discussed it among themselves, saying: “If we say, ‘From heaven,’ he will say, ‘Then why did you not believe him?’ {11:32} If we say, ‘From men,’ we fear the people. For they all hold that John was a true prophet.” {11:33} And answering, they said to Jesus, “We do not know.” And in response, Jesus said to them, “Neither will I tell you by what authority I do these things.”

[Mark 12] {12:1} And he began to speak to them in parables: “A man dug a vineyard, and surrounded it with a hedge, and dug a pit, and built a tower, and he loaned it out to farmers, and he set out on a long journey. {12:2} And in time, he sent a servant to the farmers, in order to receive some of the fruit of the vineyard from the farmers. {12:3} But they, having apprehended him, beat him and sent him away empty. {12:4} And again, he sent another servant to them. And they wounded him on the head, and they treated him with contempt. {12:5} And again, he sent another, and him they killed, and many others: some they beat, but others they killed. {12:6} Therefore, having still one son, most dear to him, he sent him also to them, at the very end, saying, ‘For they will reverence my son,’ {12:7} But the settlers said one to another: ‘This is the heir. Come, let us kill him. And then the inheritance will be ours.’ {12:8} And apprehending him, they killed him. And they cast him out of the vineyard. {12:9} Therefore, what will the lord of the vineyard do? ‘He will come and destroy the settlers. And he will give the vineyard to others.’ {12:10} “And so, have you not read this scripture?: ‘The stone which the builders have rejected, the same has been made the head of the corner.’ {12:11} By the Lord has this been done, and it is wondrous in our eyes.” {12:12} And they sought to take hold of him, but they feared the crowd. For they knew that he had spoken this parable about them. And leaving him behind, they went away. {12:13} And they sent some of the Pharisees and Herodians to him, so that they might trap him with words. {12:14} And these, arriving, said to him: “Teacher, we know that you are truthful and that you do not favor anyone; for you do not consider the appearance of men, but you teach the way of God in truth. Is it lawful to give the tribute to Caesar, or should we not give it?” {12:15} And knowing their skill in deception, he said to them: “Why do you test me? Bring me a denarius, so that I may see it.” {12:16} And they brought it to him. And he said to them, “Whose image and inscription is this?” They said to him, “Caesar’s.” {12:17} So in response, Jesus said to them, “Then render to Caesar, the things that are of Caesar; and to God, the things that are of God.” And they wondered over him. {12:18} And the Sadducees, who say there is no resurrection, approached him. And they questioned him, saying: {12:19} “Teacher, Moses wrote for us that if any man’s brother will have died and left behind a wife, and not have left behind sons, his brother should take his wife to himself and should raise up offspring for his brother. {12:20} So then, there were seven brothers. And the first took a wife, and he died without leaving behind offspring. {12:21} And the second took her, and he died. And neither did he leave behind offspring. And the third acted similarly. {12:22} And in like manner, each of the seven received her and did not leave behind offspring. Last of all, the woman also died. {12:23} Therefore, in the resurrection, when they will rise again, to which of them will she be a wife? For each of the seven had her as wife.” {12:24} And Jesus responded by saying to them: “But have you not gone astray, by knowing neither the scriptures, nor the power of God? {12:25} For when they will be resurrected from the dead, they shall neither marry, nor be given in marriage, but they are like the Angels in heaven. {12:26} But concerning the dead who rise again, have you not read in the book of Moses, how God spoke to him from the bush, saying: ‘I am the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob?’ {12:27} He is not the God of the dead, but of the living. Therefore, you have gone far astray.” {12:28} And one of the scribes, who had heard them arguing, drew near to him. And seeing that he had answered them well, he questioned him as to which was the first commandment of all. {12:29} And Jesus answered him: “For the first commandment of all is this: ‘Listen, O Israel. The Lord your God is one God. {12:30} And you shall love the Lord your God from your whole heart, and from your whole soul, and from your whole mind, and from your whole strength. This is the first commandment.’ {12:31} But the second is similar to it: ‘You shall love your neighbor as yourself.’ There is no other commandment greater than these.” {12:32} And the scribe said to him: Well said, Teacher. You have spoken the truth that there is one God, and there is no other beside him; {12:33} and that he should be loved from the whole heart, and from the whole understanding, and from the whole soul, and from the whole strength. And to love one’s neighbor as one’s self is greater than all holocausts and sacrifices.” {12:34} And Jesus, seeing that he had responded wisely, said to him, “You are not far from the kingdom of God.” And after that, no one dared to question him. {12:35} And while teaching in the temple, Jesus said in answer: “How is it that the scribes say that the Christ is the son of David? {12:36} For David himself said in the Holy Spirit: ‘The Lord said to my Lord: Sit at my right hand, until I set your enemies as your footstool." {12:37} Therefore, David himself calls him Lord, and so how can he be his son?" And a great multitude listened to him willingly. {12:38} And he said to them in his doctrine: “Beware of the scribes, who prefer to walk in long robes and to be greeted in the marketplace, {12:39} and to sit in the first chairs in the synagogues, and to have the first seats at feasts, {12:40} who devour the houses of widows under the pretense of long prayers. These shall receive the more extensive judgment.” {12:41} And Jesus, sitting opposite the offertory box, considered the way in which the crowd cast coins into the offertory, and that many of the wealthy cast in a great deal. {12:42} But when one poor widow had arrived, she put in two small coins, which is a quarter. {12:43} And calling together his disciples, he said to them: "Amen I say to you, that this poor widow has put in more than all those who contributed to the offertory. {12:44} For they all gave from their abundance, yet truly, she gave from her scarcity, even all that she had, her entire living."

[Mark 13] {13:1} And as he was departing from the temple, one of his disciples said to him, “Teacher, observe these fine stones and fine structures.” {13:2} And in response, Jesus said to him: “Do you see all these great buildings? There shall not be left stone upon stone, which is not torn down.” {13:3} And as he sat at the Mount of Olives, opposite the temple, Peter, and James, and John, and Andrew questioned him privately. {13:4} “Tell us, when will these things be, and what will be the sign when all these things will begin to be fulfilled?” {13:5} And Jesus, answering, began to say to them: “See to it that no one leads you astray. {13:6} For many will come in my name, saying, ‘For I am he,’ and they will lead many astray. {13:7} But when you will have heard of wars and rumors of wars, you should not be afraid. For these things must be, but the end is not so soon. {13:8} For nation will rise up against nation, and kingdom over kingdom, and there shall be earthquakes in various places, and famines. These are but the beginning of the sorrows. {13:9} But see to yourselves. For they will hand you over to councils, and in the synagogues you will be beaten, and you shall stand before governors and kings because of me, as a testimony for them. {13:10} And the Gospel must first be preached to all nations. {13:11} And when they have seized you and handed you over, do not consider in advance what to say. But whatever will be given you in that hour, say that. For you will not be speaking, but the Holy Spirit. {13:12} Then brother will betray brother to death, and the father, a son; and children will rise up against their parents and will bring about their death. {13:13} And you will be hated by all for the sake of my name. But whoever will have persevered unto the end, the same will be saved. {13:14} Then, when you have seen the abomination of desolation, standing where it ought not to be, let the reader understand: then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains. {13:15} And let whoever is on the rooftop not descend to the house, nor enter so as to take anything from the house. {13:16} And let whoever may be in the field not return to take his garment. {13:17} But woe to those who are pregnant or nursing in those days. {13:18} Truly, pray that these things may not happen in winter. {13:19} For those days shall have such tribulations as have not been since the beginning of the creation that God founded, even until now, and shall not be. {13:20} And unless the Lord had shortened the days, no flesh would be saved. But, for the sake of the elect, whom he has chosen, he has shortened the days. {13:21} And then, if anyone will have said to you: ‘Behold, here is the Christ. Behold, in that place.’ Do not believe it. {13:22} For false Christs and false prophets will rise up, and they will present signs and wonders, so as to lead astray, if it were possible, even the elect. {13:23} Therefore, you must take heed. Behold, I have foretold all to you. {13:24} But in those days, after that tribulation, the sun will be darkened, and the moon will not give her splendor. {13:25} And the stars of heaven will be falling down, and the powers that are in heaven will be moved. {13:26} And then they shall see the Son of man arriving on the clouds, with great power and glory. {13:27} And then he will send his Angels, and gather together his elect, from the four winds, from the limits of the earth, to the limits of heaven. {13:28} Now from the fig tree discern a parable. When its branch becomes tender and the foliage has been formed, you know that summer is very near. {13:29} So also, when you will have seen these things happen, know that it is very near, even at the doors. {13:30} Amen I say to you, that this lineage shall not pass away, until all these things have happened. {13:31} Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my word shall not pass away. {13:32} But concerning that day or hour, no one knows, neither the Angels in heaven, nor the Son, but only the Father. {13:33} Take heed, be vigilant, and pray. For you do not know when the time may be. {13:34} It is like a man who, setting out on a sojourn, left behind his house, and gave his servants authority over every work, and instructed the doorkeeper to stand watch. {13:35} Therefore, be vigilant, for you do not know when the lord of the house may arrive: in the evening, or in the middle of the night, or at first light, or in the morning. {13:36} Otherwise, when he will have arrived unexpectedly, he may find you sleeping. {13:37} But what I say to you, I say to all: Be vigilant.”

[Mark 14] {14:1} Now the feast of Passover and of Unleavened Bread was two days away. And the leaders of the priests, and the scribes, were seeking a means by which they might deceitfully seize him and kill him. {14:2} But they said, “Not on the feast day, lest perhaps there may be a tumult among the people.” {14:3} And when he was in Bethania, in the house of Simon the leper, and was reclining to eat, a woman arrived having an alabaster container of ointment, of precious spikenard. And breaking open the alabaster container, she poured it over his head. {14:4} But they were there who became indignant within themselves and who were saying: “What is the reason for this waste of the ointment?” {14:5} For this ointment could have been sold for more than three hundred denarii and been given to the poor.” And they murmured against her. {14:6} But Jesus said: “Permit her. What is the reason that you trouble her? She has done a good deed for me. {14:7} For the poor, you have with you always. And whenever you wish, you are able to do good to them. But you do not have me always. {14:8} But she has done what she could. She has arrived in advance to anoint my body for burial. {14:9} Amen I say to you, wherever this Gospel shall be preached throughout the entire world, the things she has done also shall be told, in memory of her.” {14:10} And Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, went away, to the leaders of the priests, in order to betray him to them.
{14:11} And they, upon hearing it, were gladdened. And they promised him that they would give him money. And he sought an opportune means by which he might betray him. {14:12} And on the first day of Unleavened Bread, when they immolate the Passover, the disciples said to him, "Where do you want us to go and prepare for you to eat the Passover?" {14:13} And he sent two of his disciples, and he said to them: "Go into the city. And you will meet a man carrying a pitcher of water; follow him. {14:14} And wherever he will have entered, say to the owner of the house, 'The Teacher says: Where is my dining room, where I may eat the Passover with my disciples?'" {14:15} And he will show you a large cenacle, fully furnished. And there, you shall prepare it for us." {14:16} And his disciples departed and went into the city. And they found it just as he had told them. And they prepared the Passover. {14:17} Then, when evening came, he arrived with the twelve. {14:18} And while reclining and eating with them at table, Jesus said, "Amen I say to you, that one of you, who eats with me, will betray me." {14:19} But they began to be sorrowful and to say to him, one at a time: "Is it I?" {14:20} And he said to them: "It is one of the twelve, who dips his hand with me in the dish. {14:21} And indeed, the Son of man goes, just as it has been written of him. But woe to that man by whom the Son of man will be betrayed. It would be better for that man if he had never been born." {14:22} And while eating with them, Jesus took bread. And blessing it, he broke it and gave it to them, and he said: "Take. This is my body." {14:23} And having taken the chalice, giving thanks, he gave it to them. And they all drank from it. {14:24} And he said to them: "This is my blood of the new covenant, which shall be shed for many. {14:25} Amen I say to you, that I will no longer drink from this fruit of the vine, until that day when I will drink it new in the kingdom of God." {14:26} And having sung a hymn, they went out to the Mount of Olives. {14:27} And Jesus said to them: "You will all fall away from me in this night. For it has been written: 'I will strike the shepherd, and the sheep will be scattered.'" {14:28} But after I have risen again, I will go before you to Galilee." {14:29} Then Peter said to him, "Even if all will have fallen away from you, yet I will not." {14:30} And Jesus said to him, "Amen I say to you, that this day, this night, before the rooster has uttered its voice twice, you will deny me three times." {14:31} But he spoke further, "Even if I must die along with you, I will not deny you." And they all spoke similarly. {14:32} And they went to a country estate, by the name of Gethsemani. And he said to his disciples, "Sit here, while I pray." {14:33} And he took Peter, and James, and John with him. And he began to be afraid and wearied. {14:34} And he said to them: "My soul is sorrowful, even unto death. Remain here and be vigilant." {14:35} And when he had proceeded on a little ways, he fell prostrate on the ground. And he prayed that, if it were possible, the hour might pass away from him. {14:36} And he said: "Abba, Father, all things are possible to you. Take this chalice from me. But let it be, not as I will, but as you will." {14:37} And he went and found them sleeping. And he said to Peter: "Simon, are you sleeping? Were you not able to be vigilant for one hour?" {14:38} Watch and pray, so that you may not enter into temptation. The spirit indeed is willing, but the flesh is weak." {14:39} And going away again, he prayed, saying the same words. {14:40} And upon returning, he found them sleeping yet again, (for their eyes were heavy) and they did not know how to respond to him. {14:41} And he arrived for the third time, and he said to them: "Sleep now, and take rest. It is enough. The hour has arrived. Behold, the Son of man will be betrayed into the hands of sinners." {14:42} Rise up, let us go. Behold, he who will betray me is near." {14:43} And while he was still speaking, Judas Iscariot, one of the twelve, arrived, and with him was a large crowd with swords and clubs, sent from the leaders of the priests, and the scribes, and the elders. {14:44} Now his betrayer had given them a sign, saying: "He whom I shall kiss, it is he. Take hold of him, and lead him away cautiously."

{14:45} And when he had arrived, immediately drawing near to him, he said: "Hail, Master!" And he kissed him. {14:46} But they laid hands on him and held him. {14:47} Then a certain one of those standing near, drawing a sword, struck a servant of the high priest and cut off his ear. {14:48} And in response, Jesus said to them: "Have you set out to apprehend me, just as if to a robber, with swords and clubs? {14:49} Daily, I was with you in the temple teaching, and you did not take hold of me. But in this way, the scriptures are fulfilled." {14:50} Then his disciples, leaving him behind, all fled away. {14:51} Now a certain young man followed him, having nothing but a fine linen cloth over himself. And they took hold of him. {14:52} But he, rejecting the fine linen cloth, escaped from them naked. {14:53} And they led Jesus to the high priest. And all the priests and the scribes and the elders came together. {14:54} But Peter followed him from a distance, even into the court of the high priest. And he sat with the servants at the fire and warmed himself. {14:55} Yet truly, the leaders of the priests and the entire council sought testimony against Jesus, so that they might deliver him to death, and they found none. {14:56} For many spoke false testimony against him, but their testimony did not agree. {14:57} And certain ones, rising up, bore false witness against him, saying: {14:58} "For we heard him say, 'I will destroy this temple, made with hands, and within three days I will build another, not made with hands.'" {14:59} And their testimony did not agree. {14:60} And the high priest, rising up in their midst, questioned Jesus, saying, "Do you have nothing to say in answer to the things that are brought against you by these ones?" {14:61} But he was silent and gave no answer. Again, the high priest questioned him, and he said to him, "Are you the Christ, the Son of the Blessed God?" {14:62} Then Jesus said to him: "I am. And you shall see the Son of man sitting at the right hand of the power of God and arriving with the clouds of heaven." {14:63} Then the high priest, rending his garments, said: "Why do we still require witnesses?" {14:64} You have heard the blasphemy. How does it seem to you?" And they all condemned him, as guilty unto death. {14:65} And some began to spit on him, and to cover his face with clubs? And to say to him, "Prophesy." And the servants struck him with the palms their hands. {14:66} And while Peter was in the court below, one of the maidservants of the high priest arrived. {14:67} And when she had seen Peter warming himself, she stared at him, and she said: "You also were with Jesus of Nazareth." {14:68} But he denied it, saying, "I neither know nor understand what you saying." And he went outside, in front of the court; and a rooster crowed. {14:69} Then again, when a maidservant had seen him, she began to say to the bystanders, "For this is one of them." {14:70} But he denied it again. And after a little while, again those standing near said to Peter: "In truth, you are one of them. For you, too, are a Galilean." {14:71} Then he began to curse and to swear, saying, "For I do not know this man, about whom you are speaking." {14:72} And immediately the rooster crowed again. And Peter remembered the word that Jesus had said to him, "Before the rooster crows twice, you will deny me three times." And he began to weep.

[Mark 15] {15:1} And immediately in the morning, after the leaders of the priests had taken counsel with the elders and the scribes and the entire council, binding Jesus, they led him away and delivered him to Pilate. {15:2} And Pilate questioned him, "You are the king of the Jews?" But in response, he said to him, "You are saying it." {15:3} And the leaders of the priests accused him in many things. {15:4} Then Pilate again questioned him, saying: "Do you not have any response? See how greatly they accuse you." {15:5} But Jesus continued to give no response, so that Pilate wondered. {15:6} Now on the feast day, he was accustomed to release to them one of the prisoners, whomever they requested. {15:7} But there was one called Barabbas, who had committed murder in the sedition, who was confined with those of the sedition. {15:8} And when the crowd had ascended, they began to petition him to do as he always did for them. {15:9} But Pilate answered them and said, "Do you want me to release to you the king of the Jews?" {15:10} For he knew that it was out of envy that the leaders of the priests had betrayed him. {15:11} Then the chief priests incited the crowd, so that he would release Barabbas to them instead. {15:12} But Pilate, responding again, said to them: "Then what do you want me to do with the king of the Jews?" {15:13} But again they cried out, "Crucify him." {15:14} Yet truly, Pilate said to them: "Why? What evil has he done?" But they cried out all the more, "Crucify him." {15:15} Then Pilate, wishing to satisfy the people, released Barabbas to them, and he delivered Jesus, having severely scourged him, to be crucified. {15:16} Then the soldiers led him away to the court of the praetorium. And they called together the entire cohort. {15:17} And they clothed him with purple. And platting a crown of thorns, they placed it on him. {15:18} And they began to salute him: "Hail, king of the Jews." {15:19} And they struck his head with a reed, and they spit on him. And kneeling down, they reverenced him. {15:20} And after they had mocked him, they stripped him of the purple, and they clothed him in his own garments. And they led him away, so that they might crucify him. {15:21} And they compelled a certain passerby, Simon the Cyrenian, who was arriving from the countryside, the father of Alexander and Rufus, to take up his cross. {15:22} And they led him through to the place called Golgotha, which means, 'the Place of Calvary.' {15:23} And they gave him wine with myrrh to drink. But he did not accept it. {15:24} And while crucifying him, they divided his garments, casting lots over them, to see who would take what. {15:25} Now it was the third hour. And they crucified him. {15:26} And the title of his case was written as: THE KING OF THE JEWS. {15:27} And with him they crucified two robbers: one at his right, and the other at his left. {15:28} And the scripture was fulfilled, which says: "And with the iniquitous he was reputed." {15:29} And the passersby blasphemed him, shaking their heads and saying, "Ah, you who would destroy the temple of God, and in three days rebuild it, {15:30} save yourself by descending from the cross." {15:31} And similarly the leaders of the priests, mocking him with the scribes, said to one another: "He saved others. He is not able to save himself. {15:32} Let the Christ, the king of Israel, descend now from the cross, so that we may see and believe." Those who were crucified with him also insulted him. {15:33} And when the sixth hour arrived, a darkness occurred over the entire earth, until the ninth hour. {15:34} And at the ninth hour, Jesus cried out with a loud voice, saying, "Eloi, Eloi, lamma sabacthani?" which means, "My God, My God, why have you forsaken me?" {15:35} And some of those standing near, upon hearing this, said, "Behold, he is calling Elijah." {15:36} Then one of them, running and filling a sponge with vinegar, and placing it around a reed, gave it to him to drink, saying: "Wait. Let us see if Elijah will come to take him down." {15:37} Then Jesus, having emitted a loud cry, expired. {15:38} And the veil of the temple was torn in two, from the top to the bottom. {15:39} Then the centurion who stood opposite him, seeing that he had expired while crying out in this way, said: " Truly, this man was the Son of God." {15:40} Now there were also women watching from a distance, among whom were Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James the younger and of Joseph, and Salome, {15:41} (and while he was in Galilee, they followed him and ministered to him) and many other women, who had ascended along with him to Jerusalem. {15:42} And when evening had now arrived (because it was the Preparation Day, which is before the Sabbath) {15:43} there arrived Joseph of Arimathea, a noble council member, who himself was also awaiting the kingdom of God. And he boldly entered to Pilate and petitioned for the body of Jesus. {15:44} But Pilate wondered if he had already died. And summoning a centurion, he questioned him as to whether he was already dead. {15:45} And when he had been informed by the centurion, he gave the body to Joseph. {15:46} Then Joseph, having bought a fine linen cloth, and taking him down, wrapped him in the fine linen and laid him in a sepulcher, which was hewn from a rock. And he rolled a stone to the entrance of the tomb. {15:47} Now Mary Magdalene and Mary the mother of Joseph observed where he was laid.

[Mark 16] {16:1} And when the Sabbath had passed, Mary Magdalene, and Mary the mother of James, and Salome bought aromatic spices, so that when they arrived they could anoint Jesus. {16:2} And very early in the morning, on the first of the Sabbaths, they went to the tomb, the sun having now risen. {16:3} And they said to one another, “Who will roll back the stone for us, away from the entrance of the tomb?” {16:4} And looking, they saw that the stone was rolled back. For certainly it was very large. {16:5} And upon entering the tomb, they saw a young man sitting on the right side, covered with a white robe, and they were astonished. {16:6} And he said to them, "Do not become frightened. You are seeking Jesus of Nazareth, the Crucified One. He has risen. He is not here. Behold, the place where they laid him. {16:7} But go, tell his disciples and Peter that he is going before you into Galilee. There you shall see him, just as he told you." {16:8} But they, going out, fled from the tomb. For trembling and fear had overwhelmed them. And they said nothing to anyone. For they were afraid. {16:9} But he, rising early on the first Sabbath, appeared first to Mary Magdalene, from whom he had cast out seven demons. {16:10} She went and announced it to those who had been with him, while they were mourning and weeping. {16:11} And they, upon hearing that he was alive and that he had been seen by her, did not believe it. {16:12} But after these events, he was shown in another likeness to two of them walking, as they were going out to the countryside. {16:13} And they, returning, reported it to the others; neither did they believe them. {16:14} Finally, he appeared to the eleven, as they sat at table. And he rebuked them for their incredulity and hardness of heart, because they did not believe those who had seen that he had risen again. {16:15} And he said to them: “Go forth to the whole world and preach the Gospel to every creature. {16:16} Whoever will have believed and been baptized will be saved. Yet truly, whoever will not have believed will be condemned. {16:17} Now these signs will accompany those who believe. In my name, they shall cast out demons. They will speak in new languages. {16:18} They will take up serpents, and, if they drink anything deadly, it will not harm them. They shall lay their hands upon the sick, and they will be well.” {16:19} And indeed, the Lord Jesus, after he had spoken to them, was taken up into heaven, and he sits at the right hand of God. {16:20} Then they, setting out, preached everywhere, with the Lord cooperating and confirming the word by the accompanying signs.

The Gospel of Luke

[Luke 1] {1:1} Since, indeed, many have attempted to set in order a narrative of the things that have been completed among us, {1:2} just as they have been handed on to those of us who from the beginning saw the same and were ministers of the word, {1:3} so it seemed good to me also, having diligently followed everything from the beginning, to write to you, in an orderly manner, most excellent Theophilus, {1:4} so that you might know the truthfulness of those words by which you have been instructed. {1:5} There was, in the days of Herod, king of Judea, a certain priest named Zechariah, of the section of Abijah, and his wife was of the daughters of Aaron, and her name was Elizabeth. {1:6} Now they were both just before God, progressing in all of the commandments and the justifications of the Lord without blame. {1:7} And they had no child, because Elizabeth was barren, and they both had become advanced in years. {1:8} Then it happened that, when he was exercising the priesthood before God, in the order of his section, {1:9} according to the custom of the priesthood, the lot fell so that he would offer incense, entering into the temple of the Lord. {1:10} And the entire multitude of the people was praying outside, at the hour of incense. {1:11} Then there appeared to him an Angel of the Lord, standing at the right of the altar of incense. {1:12} And upon seeing him, Zechariah was disturbed, and fear fell over him. {1:13} But the Angel said to him: “Do not be afraid, Zechariah, for your prayer has been heard, and your wife Elizabeth shall bear a son to you. And you shall call his name John. {1:14} And there will be joy and exultation for you, and many will rejoice in his nativity. {1:15} For he will be great in the sight of the Lord, and he will not drink wine or strong drink, and he will be filled with the Holy Spirit, even from his mother’s womb. {1:16} And he will convert many of the sons of Israel to the Lord their God. {1:17} And he will go before him with the spirit and power of Elijah, so that he may turn the hearts of the fathers to the sons, and the incredulous to the prudence of the just, so as to prepare for the Lord a completed people.” {1:18} And Zechariah said to the Angel: “How may I know this? For I am elderly, and my wife is advanced in years.” {1:19} And in response, the Angel said to him: “I am Gabriel, who stands before God, and I have been sent to speak to you, and to proclaim these things to you. {1:20} And behold, you will be silent and unable to speak, until the day on which these things shall be, because you have not believed my words, which will be fulfilled in their time.” {1:21} And the people were waiting for Zechariah. And they wondered why he was being delayed in the temple. {1:22} Then, when he came out, he was unable to speak to them. And they realized that he had seen a vision in the temple. And he was making signs to them, but he remained mute. {1:23} And it happened that, after the days of his office were completed, he went away to his house. {1:24} Then, after those days, his wife Elizabeth conceived, and she hid herself for five months, saying: {1:25} “For the Lord did this for me, at the time when he decided to take away my reproach among men.” {1:26} Then, in the sixth month, the Angel Gabriel was sent by God, to a city of Galilee named Nazareth, {1:27} to a virgin betrothed to a man whose name was Joseph, of the house of David; and the name of the virgin was Mary. {1:28} And upon entering, the Angel said to her: “Hail, full of grace. The Lord is with you. Blessed are you among women.” {1:29} And when she had heard this, she was disturbed by his words, and she considered what kind of greeting this might be. {1:30} And the Angel said to her: “Do not be afraid, Mary, for you have found grace with God. {1:31} Behold, you shall conceive in your womb, and you shall bear a son, and you shall call his name: JESUS. {1:32} He will be great, and he will be called the Son of the Most High, and the Lord God will give him the throne of David his father. And he will reign in the house of Jacob for eternity. {1:33} And his kingdom shall have no end.” {1:34} Then Mary said to the Angel, “How shall this be done, since I do not know man?” {1:35} And in response, the Angel said to her: “The Holy Spirit will pass over you, and his power will overshadow you, and to the fruit of your womb. {1:36} And indeed, the Holy One who will be born of you shall be called the Son of God. {1:37} For no word will be impossible with God.” {1:38} Then Mary said: “Behold, I am the handmaid of the Lord. Let it be done to me according to your word.” And the Angel departed from her. {1:39} And in those days, Mary, rising up, traveled quickly into the hill country, to a city of Judah. {1:40} And she entered into the house of Zechariah, and she greeted Elizabeth. {1:41} And it happened that, as Elizabeth heard the greeting of Mary, the infant leaped in her womb, and Elizabeth was filled with the Holy Spirit. {1:42} And she cried out with a loud voice and said: “Blessed are you among women, and blessed is the fruit of your womb. {1:43} And how does this concern me, so that the mother of my Lord would come to me? {1:44} For behold, as the voice of your greeting came to my ears, the infant in my womb leaped for joy. {1:45} And blessed are you who believed, for the things that were spoken to you by the Lord shall be accomplished.” {1:46} And Mary said: “My soul magnifies the Lord. {1:47} And my spirit leaps for joy in God my Saviour. {1:48} For he has looked with favor on the humility of his handmaid. For behold, from this time, all generations shall call me blessed. {1:49} For he who is great has done great things for me, and holy is his name. {1:50} And his mercy is from generation to generations for those who fear him. {1:51} He has accomplished powerful deeds with his arm. He has scattered the arrogant in the intentions of their heart. {1:52} He has deposed the powerful from their seat, and he has exalted the humble. {1:53} He has filled the hungry with good things, and the rich he has sent away empty. {1:54} He has taken up his servant Israel, mindful of his mercy, {1:55} just as he spoke to our fathers: to Abraham and to his offspring forever.” {1:56} Then Mary stayed with her for about three months. And she returned to her own house. {1:57} Now the time for Elizabeth to give birth arrived, and she brought forth a son. {1:58} And her neighbors and relatives heard that the Lord had magnified his mercy with her, and so they congratulated her. {1:59} And it happened that, on the eighth day, they arrived to circumcise the boy, and they called him by his father’s name, Zechariah. {1:60} And in response, his mother said: “Not so. Instead, he shall be called John.” {1:61} And they said to her, “But there is no one among your relatives who is called by that name.” {1:62} Then they made signs to his father, as to what he wanted him to be called. {1:63} And requesting a writing tablet, he wrote, saying: “His name is John.” And they all wondered. {1:64} Then, at once, his mouth was opened, and his tongue loosened, and he spoke, blessing God. {1:65} And fear fell upon all of their neighbors. And all these words were made known throughout all the hill country of Judea. {1:66} And all those who heard it stored it up in their heart, saying: “What do you think this boy will be?” And indeed, the hand of the Lord was with him. {1:67} And his father Zechariah was filled with the Holy Spirit. And he prophesied, saying: {1:68} “Blessed is the Lord God of Israel. For he has visited and has wrought the redemption of his people. {1:69} And he has raised up a horn of salvation for us, in the house of David his servant, {1:70} just as he spoke by the mouth of his holy Prophets, who are from ages past: {1:71} salvation from our enemies, and from the hand of all those who hate us, {1:72} to accomplish mercy with our fathers, and to call to mind his holy testament, {1:73} the oath, which he swore to Abraham, our father, that he would grant to us, {1:74} so that, having been freed from the hand of our enemies, we may serve him without fear, {1:75} in holiness and in justice before him, throughout all our days. {1:76} And you, child, shall be called the prophet of the Most High. For you will go before the face of the Lord: to prepare his ways, {1:77} to give knowledge of salvation to his people for the remission of their sins, {1:78} through the heart of the mercy of our God, by which, descending from on high, he has visited us, {1:79} to illuminate those who sit in darkness and in the shadow of death, and to direct our feet in the way of peace.” {1:80} And the child grew, and he was strengthened in spirit. And he was in the wilderness, until the day of his manifestation to Israel.

[Luke 2] {2:1} And it happened in those days that a decree went out from Caesar Augustus, so that the whole world would be enrolled. {2:2} This was the first enrollment; it was made by the ruler of Syria, Quirinius. {2:3} And all went to be declared, each one to his own city. {2:4} Then Joseph also ascended from Galilee, from the city of Nazareth, into Judea, to the city of David, which is called Bethlehem, because he was of the house and family of David, {2:5} in order to be declared, with Mary his espoused wife, who was with child. {2:6} Then it happened that, while they were there, the days were completed, so that she would give birth. {2:7} And she brought forth her firstborn son. And she wrapped him in swaddling clothes and laid him in a manger, because there was no room for them at the inn. {2:8} And there were shepherds in the same region, being vigilant and keeping watch in the night over their flock. {2:9} And behold, an Angel of the Lord stood near them, and the brightness of God shone around them, and they were struck with a great fear. {2:10} And the Angel said to them: “Do not be afraid. For, behold, I proclaim to you a great joy, which will be for all the people. {2:11} For today a Saviour has been born for you in the city of David: he is Christ the Lord. {2:12} And this will be a sign for you: you will find the infant wrapped in swaddling clothes and lying in a manger.” {2:13} And suddenly there was with the Angel a multitude of the celestial army, praising God and saying, {2:14} “Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace to men of good will.” {2:15} And it happened that, when the Angels had departed from them into heaven, the shepherds said to one another, “Let us cross over to Bethlehem and see this word, which has happened, which the Lord has revealed to us.” {2:16} And they went quickly. And they found Mary and Joseph; and the infant was lying in a manger. {2:17} Then, upon seeing this, they understood the word that had been spoken to them about this boy. {2:18} And all who heard it were amazed by this, and by those things which were told to them by the shepherds. {2:19} But Mary kept all these words, pondering them in her heart. {2:20} And the shepherds returned, glorifying and praising God for all the things that they had heard and seen, just as it was told to them. {2:21} And after eight days were ended, so that the boy would be circumcised, his name was called JESUS, just as he was called by the Angel before he was conceived in the womb. {2:22} And after the days of her purification were fulfilled, according to the law of Moses, they brought him to Jerusalem, in order to present him to the Lord, {2:23} just as it is written in the law of the Lord, “For every male opening the womb shall be called holy to the Lord,” {2:24} and in order to offer a sacrifice, according to what is said in the law of the Lord, “a pair of turtledoves or two young pigeons.” {2:25} And behold, there was a man in Jerusalem, whose name was Simeon, and this man was just and God-fearing, awaiting the consolation of Israel. And the Holy Spirit was with him. {2:26} And he had received an answer from the Holy Spirit: that he would not see his own death before he had seen the Christ of the Lord. {2:27} And he went with the Spirit to the temple. And when the child Jesus was brought in by his parents, in order to act on his behalf according to the custom of the law, {2:28} he also took him up, into his arms, and he blessed God and said: {2:29} “Now you may dismiss your servant in peace, O Lord, according to your word. {2:30} For my eyes have seen your salvation, {2:31} which you have prepared before the face of all peoples: {2:32} the light of revelation to the nations and the glory of your people Israel.” {2:33} And his father and mother were wondering over these things, which were spoken about him. {2:34} And Simeon blessed them, and he said to his mother Mary: “Behold, this one has been set for the ruin and for the resurrection of many in Israel, and as a sign which will be contradicted. {2:35} And a sword will pass through your own soul, so that the thoughts of many hearts may be revealed.” {2:36} And there was a prophetess, Anna, a daughter of Phanuel, from the tribe of Asher. She was very advanced in years, and she had lived with her husband for seven years from her virginity. {2:37} And then she was a widow, even to her eighty-fourth year. And without departing from the temple, she was a servant to fasting and prayer, night and day. {2:38} And entering at the same hour, she confessed to the Lord. And she spoke about him to all who were awaiting the redemption of Israel. {2:39} And after they had performed all things according to the law of the Lord, they returned to Galilee, to their city, Nazareth. {2:40} Now the child grew, and he was strengthened with the fullness of wisdom. And the grace of God was in him. {2:41} And his parents went every year to Jerusalem, at the time of the solemnity of Passover. {2:42} And when he had become twelve years old, they ascended to Jerusalem, according to the custom of the feast day. {2:43} And having completed the days, when they returned, the boy Jesus remained in Jerusalem. And his parents did not realize this. {2:44} But, supposing that he was in the company, they went a day's journey, seeking him among their relatives and acquaintances. {2:45} And not finding him, they returned to Jerusalem, seeking him. {2:46} And it happened that, after three days, they found him in the temple, sitting in the midst of the doctors, listening to them and questioning them. {2:47} But all who listened to him were astonished over his prudence and his responses. {2:48} And upon seeing him, they wondered. And his mother said to him: “Son, why have you acted this way toward us? Behold, your father and I were wondering over these things, which were spoken about him.” {2:49} And he said to them: “How is it that you were seeking me? For did you not know that it is necessary for me to be in these things which are of my Father?” {2:50} And they did not understand the word that he spoke to them. {2:51} And he descended with them and went to Nazareth. And he was subordinate to them. And his mother kept all these words in her heart. {2:52} And Jesus advanced in wisdom, and in age, and in grace, with God and men.

[Luke 3] {3:1} Then, in the fifteenth year of the reign of Tiberius Caesar, Pontius Pilate being procurator of Judea, and Herod tetrarch of Galilee, and his brother Philip tetrarch of Ituraea and of the region of Trachonitis, and Lysanias tetrarch of Abilene, {3:2} under the high priests Annas and Caiaphas; the word of the Lord came to John, the son of Zechariah, in the wilderness. {3:3} And he went into the entire region of the Jordan, preaching a baptism of repentance for the remission of sins, {3:4} just as it has been written in the book of the sermons of the prophet Isaiah: “The voice of one crying out in the wilderness: Prepare the way of the Lord. Make straight his paths. {3:5} Every valley shall be filled, and every mountain and hill shall be brought low. And what is crooked shall be made straight. And the rough paths shall be made into level ways. {3:6} And all flesh shall see the salvation of God.” {3:7} Therefore, he said to the crowd that went out in order to be baptized by him: “You progeny of vipers! Who told you to flee from the approaching wrath? {3:8} So then, produce fruits worthy of repentance. And do not begin to say, ‘We have Abraham as our father.’ For I tell you that God has the power to raise up sons to Abraham from these stones. {3:9} For even now the axe has been placed at the root of the trees. Therefore, every tree that does not produce good fruit shall be cut down and cast into the fire.” {3:10} And the crowd was questioning him, saying, “What then should we do?” {3:11} But in response, he said to them: “Whoever has two coats, let him give to those who do not have. And whoever has food, let him act similarly.” {3:12} Now the tax collectors also came to be baptized, and they said to him, “Teacher, what should we do?” {3:13} But he said to them, “You should do nothing more than what has been appointed to you.” {3:14} Then the soldiers also questioned him, saying, “And what should we do?” And he said to them: “You should strike no one, and you should not make false accusations. And be content with your pay.” {3:15} Now all were thinking about John in their hearts, and the people were supposing that perhaps he might be the Christ. {3:16} John responded by saying to everyone: “Indeed, I baptize you with water. But there will arrive one stronger than me, the laces of whose shoes I am not worthy to loosen. He will baptize you in the Holy Spirit, and with fire. {3:17} His winnowing fan is in his hand. And he will purify his threshing floor. And he will gather the wheat into the barn. But the chaff he will burn with unquenchable fire.” {3:18} Indeed, he also proclaimed many other things, exhorting the people. {3:19} But Herod the tetrarch, when he was corrected by him concerning Herodias, his brother's wife, and concerning all the evils that Herod had done, {3:20} added this also, above all else: that he confined John to prison. {3:21} Now it happened that, when all the people were being baptized, Jesus was baptized; and as he was praying, heaven was opened. {3:22} And the Holy Spirit, in a corporeal appearance like a dove, descended upon him. And a voice came from heaven: “You are my beloved Son. In you, I am well pleased.” {3:23} And Jesus himself was beginning to be about thirty years old, being (as it was supposed) the son of Joseph, who was of Heli, who was of Matthath, {3:24} who was of Levi, who was of Melchi, who was of Jannai, who was of Joseph, {3:25} who was of Mattathias, who was of Amos, who was of Nahum, who was of Esli, who was of Naggai, {3:26} who was of Maath, who was of Mattathias, who was of Semein, who was of Josech, who was of Joda, {3:27} who was of Joanan, who was of Rhesa, who was of Zerubbabel, who was of Shealtiel, who was of Neri, {3:28} who was of Melchi, who was of Addi, who was of Cosam, who was of Elmadam, who was of Er, {3:29} who was of Joshua, who was of Eliezer, who was of Jorim, who was of Matath, who was of Levi, {3:30} who was of Simeon, who was of Judah, who was of Joseph, who was of Jonam, who was of Eliakim, {3:31} who was of Melea, who was of Menna, who was of Mattatha, who was of Nathan, who was of David, {3:32} who was of Jesse, who was of Obed, who was of Boaz, who was of Salmon, who was of Nahshon, {3:33} who was of Amminadab, who was of Aram, who was of Hezron, who was of Perez, who was of Judah, {3:34} who was of Jacob, who was of Isaac, who was of Abraham, who was of Terah, who was of Nahor, {3:35} who was of Serug, who was of Reu, who was of Peleg, who was of Eber, who was of Shelah, {3:36} who was of Cainan, who was of Arphaxad, who was of Shem, who was Of Noah, who was of Lamech, {3:37} who was of Methuselah, who was of Enoch, who was of Jared, who was of Mahalalel, who was of Cainan, {3:38} who was of Enos, who was of Seth, who was of Adam, who was of God.

[Luke 4] {4:1} And Jesus, filled with the Holy Spirit, returned from the Jordan. And he was urged by the Spirit into the wilderness {4:2} for forty days, and he was tested by the devil. And he ate nothing in those days. And when they were completed, he was hungry. {4:3} Then the devil said to him, “If you are the Son of God, speak to this stone, so that it may be made into bread.” {4:4} And Jesus answered him, “It is written: ‘Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word of God.’ ” {4:5} And the devil led him onto a high mountain, and he showed him all the kingdoms of the world in a moment of time, {4:6} and he said to him: “To you, I will give all this power, and its glory. For they have been handed over to me, and I give them to whomever I wish.” {4:7} Therefore, if you will worship before me, all will be yours.” {4:8} And in response, Jesus said to him: “It is written: ‘You shall worship the Lord your God, and you shall serve him alone.’ ” {4:9} And he brought him to Jerusalem, and he set him on the parapet of the temple, and he said to him: “If you are the Son of God, cast yourself down from here. {4:10} For it is written that he has given his Angels charge over you, so that they may guard you, {4:11} and so that they may take you into their hands, lest perhaps you may hurt your foot against a stone.” {4:12} And in response, Jesus said to him, “It is said: ‘You shall not tempt the Lord your God.’ ” {4:13} And when all the temptation was completed, the devil withdrew from him, until a time. {4:14} And Jesus returned, in the power of the Spirit, into Galilee. And his fame spread throughout the entire region. {4:15} And he taught in their synagogues, and he was magnified by everyone. {4:16} And he went to Nazareth, where he had been raised. And he entered into the synagogue, according to his custom, on the Sabbath day. And he rose up to read. {4:17} And the book of the prophet Isaiah was handed to him. And as he unrolled the book, he found the place where it was written: {4:18} “The Spirit of the Lord is upon me; because of this, he has anointed me. He has sent me to evangelize the poor, to heal the contrite of heart, {4:19} to preach forgiveness to captives and sight to the blind, to release the broken into forgiveness, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord and the day of retribution.” {4:20} And when he had rolled up the book, he returned it to the minister, and he sat down. And the eyes of everyone in the synagogue were fixed on him. {4:21} Then he began to say to them, “On this day, this scripture has been fulfilled in your hearing.” {4:22} And everyone gave testimony to him. And they wondered at the words of grace that proceeded from his mouth. And they said, “Is this not the son of Joseph?” {4:23} And he said to them: “Certainly, you will recite to me this saying, ‘Physician, heal yourself.’ ” The many great things that we have heard were done in Capernaum, do here also in your own country.” {4:24} Then he said: “Amen I say to you, that no prophet is accepted in his own country. {4:25} In truth, I say to you, there were many widows in the days of Elijah in Israel, when the heavens were closed for three years and six months, when a great famine had occurred throughout the entire land. {4:26} And to none of these was Elijah sent, except to Zarephath of Sidon, to a woman who was a widow. {4:27} And there were many lepers in Israel under the prophet Elisha. And none of these was cleansed, except Naaman the Syrian.” {4:28} And all those in the synagogue, upon hearing these things, were filled with anger. {4:29} And they rose up and drove him beyond the city. And those of Nazareth, upon hearing these things, were filled with anger. {4:30} And when the demon had thrown him into their midst, he went away. {4:31} And he descended to Capernaum, a city of Galilee. And there he taught them on the Sabbaths. {4:32} And they were astonished at his doctrine, for his word was spoken with authority. {4:33} And in the synagogue, there was a man who had an unclean demon, and he cried out with a loud voice, {4:34} saying: “Let us alone. What are we to you, Jesus of Nazareth? Have you come to destroy us? I know you who you are: the Holy One of God.” {4:35} And Jesus rebuked him, saying, “Be silent and depart from him.” And when the demon had thrown him into their midst, he departed from him, and he no longer harmed him. {4:36} And fear fell over them all. And they discussed this among themselves, saying: “What is this word? For with authority and power he commands the unclean spirits, and they depart.” {4:37} And his fame spread to every place in the region. {4:38} Then Jesus, rising up from the synagogue, entered into the house of Simon. Now Simon’s mother-in-law was in the grip of a severe fever. And they petitioned him on her behalf. {4:39} And standing over her, he commanded the fever, and it left her. And promptly rising up, she ministered to them. {4:40} Then, when the sun had set, all those who had anyone afflicted with various diseases brought them to him. Then, laying his hands on each one of them, he cured them. {4:41} Now demons departed from many of them, crying out and saying, “You are the son of God.” And rebuking them, he would not permit them to speak. For they knew him to be the Christ. {4:42} Then, when it was daytime, going out, he went to a deserted place. And the crowds sought him, and they went all the way to him. And they detained him, so that he would not depart from them. {4:43} And he said to them, “I must also preach the kingdom of God to other cities, because it was for this reason that I was sent.” {4:44} And he was preaching in the synagogues of Galilee.

[Luke 5] {5:1} Now it happened that, when the crowds pressed toward him, so that they might hear the word of God, he was standing beside the lake of Genesaret. {5:2} And he saw two boats standing beside the lake. But the fishermen had climbed down, and they were washing their nets. {5:3} And so, climbing into one of the boats, which belonged to Simon, he asked him to draw back a little from the land. And sitting down, he taught the crowds from the boat. {5:4} Then, when he had ceased speaking, he said to Simon, “Lead us into deep water, and release your nets for a catch.” {5:5} And in response, Simon said to him: “Teacher, working throughout the night, we caught nothing. But on your word, I will release the net.” {5:6} And when they had done this, they enclosed such a copious multitude of fish that their net was rupturing. {5:7} And they signaled to their associates, who were in the other boat, so that they would come and help them. And they came and filled both boats, so that they were nearly submerged. {5:8} But when Simon Peter had seen this, he fell down at the knees of Jesus, saying, "Depart from me, Lord, for I am a sinful man." {5:9} For astonishment had enveloped him, and all who were with him, at the catch of fish that they had taken. {5:10} Now the same was true of James and John, the sons of Zebedee, who were associates of Simon. And Jesus said to Simon: "Do not be afraid. From now on, you will be catching men." {5:11} And having led their boats to land, leaving behind everything, they followed him. {5:12} And it happened that, while he was in a certain city, behold, there was a man full of leprosy who, upon seeing Jesus and falling to his face, petitioned him, saying: "Lord, if you are willing, you are able to cleanse me." {5:13} And extending his hand, he touched him, saying: "I am willing. Be cleansed." And at once, the leprosy departed from him. {5:14} And he instructed him that he should tell no one, "But go, show yourself to the priest, and make the offering for your cleansing, just as Moses has commanded, as a testimony for them." {5:15} Yet word of him traveled around all the more. And great crowds came together, so that they might listen and be cured by him from their infirmities. {5:16} And he withdrew into the desert and prayed. {5:17} And it happened, on a certain day, that he again sat down, teaching. And there were Pharisees and doctors of the law sitting nearby, who had come from every town of Galilee and Judea and Jerusalem. And the power of the Lord was present, to heal them. {5:18} And behold, some men were carrying in the bed of a man who was paralyzed. And they sought a way to bring him in, and to place him before him. {5:19} And not finding a way by which they might bring him in, because of the crowd, they climbed up to the roof, and let him down through the roof tiles with his bed, into their midst, in front of Jesus. {5:20} And when he saw his faith, he said, "Man, your sins are forgiven you." {5:21} And the scribes and Pharisees began to think, saying: "Who is this, who is speaking blasphemies? Who is able to forgive sins, except God alone?" {5:22} But when Jesus realized their thoughts, responding, he said to them: "What are you thinking in your hearts? {5:23} Which is easier to say: 'Your sins are forgiven you,' or to say, 'Rise up and walk'? {5:24} But so that you may know that the Son of man has authority on earth to forgive sins," he said to the paralytic, "I say to you: Rise up, take up your bed, and go into your house." {5:25} And at once, rising up in their sight, he took up the bed on which he was lying, and he went away to his own house, magnifying God. {5:26} And astonishment took hold of everyone, and they were magnifying God. And they were filled with fear, saying: "For we have seen miracles today." {5:27} And after these things, he went out, and he saw a tax collector named Levi, sitting at the customs office. And he said to him, "Follow me." {5:28} And leaving behind everything, rising up, he followed him. {5:29} And Levi made a great feast for him in his own house. And there was a large crowd of tax collectors and others, who were sitting at table with them. {5:30} But the Pharisees and scribes were murmuring, saying to his disciples, "Why do you eat and drink with tax collectors and sinners?" {5:31} And responding, Jesus said to them: "It is not those who are well who need a doctor, but those who have maladies. {5:32} I have not come to call the just, but sinners to repentance." {5:33} But they said to him, "Why do the disciples of John fast frequently, and make supplications, and those of the Pharisees act similarly, while yours eat and drink?" {5:34} And he said to them: "How can you cause the sons of the groom to fast, while the groom is still with them? {5:35} But the days will come when the groom will be taken away from them, and then they will fast, in those days." {5:36} Then he also made a comparison for them: "For no one sews a patch from a new garment onto an old garment. Otherwise, he both disrupts the new one, and the patch from the new one does not join together with the old one. {5:37} And no one puts new wine into old wineskins. Otherwise, the new wine ruptures the wineskins, and it will be poured out, and the wineskins will be lost. {5:38} Instead, the new wine is put into new wineskins, and both are preserved. {5:39} And no one is drinking the old, soon wishes for the new. For he says, 'The old is better.' "

[Luke 6] {6:1} Now it happened that, on the second first Sabbath, as he passed through the grain field, his disciples were separating the ears of grain and eating them, by rubbing them in their hands. {6:2} Then certain Pharisees said to them, "Why are you doing what is not lawful on the Sabbaths?" {6:3} And responding to them, Jesus said: "Have you not read this, what David did when he was hungry, and those who were with him? {6:4} How he entered into the house of God, and took the bread of the Presence, and ate it, and gave it to those who were with him, though it is not lawful for anyone to eat it, except the priests alone?" {6:5} And he said to them, "For the Son of man is Lord, even of the Sabbath." {6:6} And it happened that, on another Sabbath, he entered into the synagogue, and he taught. And there was a man there, and his right hand was withered. {6:7} And the scribes and Pharisees observed whether he would heal on the Sabbath, so that they might thereby find an accusation against him. {6:8} Yet truly, he knew their thoughts, and so he said to the man who had the withered hand, "Rise up and stand in the middle." And rising up, he stood still. {6:9} Then Jesus said to them: "I ask you if it is lawful on the Sabbaths to do good, or to do evil? To give health to a life, or to destroy it?" {6:10} And looking around at everyone, he said to the man, "Extend your hand." And he extended it. And his hand was restored. {6:11} Then they were filled with madness, and they discussed with one another, what, in particular, they might do about Jesus. {6:12} And it happened that, in those days, he went out to a mountain to pray. And he was in the prayer of God throughout the night. {6:13} And when daylight had arrived, he called his disciples. And he chose twelve out of them (whom he also named Apostles): {6:14} Simon, whom he surnamed Peter, and Andrew his brother, James and John, Philip and Bartholomew, {6:15} Matthew and Thomas, James of Alphaeus, and Simon who is called the Zealot, {6:16} and Jude of James, and Judas Iscariot, who was a traitor. {6:17} And descending with them, he stood in a level place with a multitude of his disciples, and a copious multitude of people from all of Judea and Jerusalem and the seacoast, and Tyre and Sidon, {6:18} who had come so that they might listen to him and be healed of their diseases. And those who were troubled by unclean spirits were cured. {6:19} And the entire crowd was trying to touch him, because power went out from him and healed all. {6:20} And lifting up his eyes to his disciples, he said: "Blessed are you poor, for yours is the kingdom of God. {6:21} Blessed are you who are hungry now, for you shall be satisfied. Blessed are you who are weeping now, for you shall laugh. {6:22} Blessed shall you be when men will have hated you, and when they will have separated you and reproached you, and thrown out your name as if evil, because of the Son of man. {6:23} Be glad in that day and exult. For behold, your reward is great in heaven. For these same things their fathers did to the prophets. {6:24} Yet truly, woe to you who are wealthy, for you have your consolation. {6:25} Woe to you who are satisfied, for you will be hungry. Woe to you who laugh now, for you will mourn and weep. {6:26} Woe to you when men will have blessed you. For these same things their fathers did to the false prophets. {6:27} But I say to you who are listening: Love your enemies. Do good to those who hate you. {6:28} Bless those who curse you, and pray for those who slander you. {6:29} And to him who strikes you on the cheek, offer the other also. And from him who takes away your coat, do not withhold even your tunic. {6:30} But distribute to all who ask of you. And do not ask again of him who takes away what is yours. {6:31} And exactly as you would want people to treat you, treat them also the same. {6:32} And if you love those who love you, what credit is due to you? For even sinners love those who love them. {6:33} And if you will do good to those who do good to you, what credit is due to you? Indeed, even sinners behave this way. {6:34} And if you will loan to those from whom you hope to receive, what credit is due to you? For even sinners lend to sinners, in order to receive the same in return. {6:35} So truly, love your enemies. Do good, and lend, hoping for nothing in return. And then your reward will be great, and you will be sons of the Most High, for he himself is kind to the ungrateful and to the wicked. {6:36} Therefore, be merciful, just as your Father is also merciful. {6:37} Do not judge, and you will not be judged. Do not condemn, and you will not be condemned. Forgive, and you will be forgiven. {6:38} Give, and it will be given to you: a good measure, pressed down and shaken together and overflowing, they will place upon your lap. Certainly, the same measure that you use to measure out, will be used to measure back to you again." {6:39} Now he told them another comparison: "How can the blind lead the blind? Would they not both fall into a pit? {6:40} The disciple is not above his teacher. But each one will be perfected, if he is like his teacher. {6:41} And why do you see the straw that is in your brother's eye, while the log that is in your own eye, you do not consider? {6:42} Or how can you say to your brother, 'Brother, allow me to remove the straw from your eye,' while you yourself do not see the log in your own eye? Hypocrite, first remove the log from your own eye, and then will you see clearly, so that you may lead out the straw from your brother's eye. {6:43} For there is no good tree which produces bad fruit, nor does an evil tree produce good fruit. {6:44} For each and every tree is known by its fruit. For they do not gather figs from thorns, nor do they gather the grape from the bramble bush. {6:45} A good man, from the good storehouse of his heart, offers what is good. And an evil man, from the evil storehouse, offers what is evil. For out of the abundance of the heart, the mouth speaks. {6:46} But why do you call me, 'Lord, Lord,' and not do what I say? {6:47} Anyone who comes to me, and listens to my words, and does them: I will reveal to you what he is like. {6:48} He is like a man building a house, who has dug deep and has laid the foundation upon the rock. Then, when the floodwaters came, the river was rushing against that house, and it was not able to move it. For it was founded upon the rock. {6:49} But whoever hears and does not do: he is like a man building his house upon the soil, without a foundation. The river rushed against it, and it soon fell down, and the ruin of that house was great."

[Luke 7] {7:1} And when he had completed all his words in the hearing of the people, he entered Capernaum. {7:2} Now the servant of a certain centurion was dying, due to an illness. And he was very dear to him. {7:3} And when he had heard about Jesus, he sent elders of the Jews to him, petitioning him, so that he would come and heal his servant. {7:4} And when they had come to Jesus, they petitioned him anxiously, saying to him: "He is worthy that you should provide this to him. {7:5} For he loves our nation, and he has built a synagogue for us."

{7:6} Then Jesus went with them. And when he was now not far from the house, the centurion sent friends to him, saying: "Lord, do not trouble yourself. For I am not worthy that you should enter under my roof. {7:7} Because of this, I also did not consider myself worthy to come to you. But say the word, and my servant shall be healed. {7:8} For I also am a man placed under authority, having soldiers under me. And I say to one, 'Go,' and he goes; and to another, 'Come,' and he comes; and to my servant, 'Do this,' and he does it." {7:9} And upon hearing this, Jesus was amazed. And turning to the multitude following him, he said, "Amen I say to you, not even in Israel have I found such great faith." {7:10} And those who had been sent, upon returning to the house, found that the servant, who had been sick, was now healthy. {7:11} And it happened afterwards that he went to a city, which is called Nain. And his disciples, and an abundant crowd, went with him. {7:12} Then, when he had drawn near to the gate of the city, behold, a deceased person was being carried out, the only son of his mother, and she was a widow. And a large crowd from the city was with her. {7:13} And when the Lord had seen her, being moved by mercy over her, he said to her, "Do not weep." {7:14} And he drew near and touched the coffin. Then those who carried it stood still. And he said, "Do not weep." {7:15} And the dead youth sat up and began to speak. And he gave him to his mother. {7:16} Then fear fell over all of them. And they magnified God, saying: "For a great prophet has risen up among us," and, "For God has visited his people." {7:17} And this word about him went out to all of Judea and to the entire surrounding region. {7:18} And the disciples of John reported to him concerning all these things. {7:19} And John called two of his disciples, and he sent them to Jesus, saying, "Are you he who is to come, or should we wait for another?" {7:20} But when the men had come to him, they said: "John the Baptist has sent us to you, saying: 'Are you he who is to come, or should we wait for another?'" {7:21} Now in that same hour, he cured many of their diseases and wounds and evil spirits; and to many of the blind, he gave sight. {7:22} And responding, he said to them: "Go and report to John what you have heard and seen: that the blind see, the lame walk, the lepers are cleansed, the deaf hear, the dead rise again, the poor are evangelized. {7:23} And blessed is anyone who has not taken offense at me." {7:24} And when the messengers of John had withdrawn, he began to speak about John to the crowds. “What did you go out to the desert to see? A reed shaken by the wind? {7:25} Then what did you go out to see? A man clothed in soft garments? Behold, those who are in costly apparel and finery are in the houses of kings. {7:26} Then what did you go out to see? A prophet? Certainly, I tell you, and more than a prophet. {7:27} This is he of whom it is written: “Behold, I send my Angel before your face, who shall prepare your way before you.” {7:28} For I say to you, among those born of women, no one is greater than the prophet John the Baptist. But he who is least in the kingdom of God is greater than he.” {7:29} And upon hearing this, all the people and the tax collectors justified God, by being baptized with the baptism of John. {7:30} But the Pharisees and the experts in the law despised the counsel of God concerning themselves, by not being baptized by him. {7:31} Then the Lord said: “Therefore, to what shall I compare the men of this generation? And to what are they similar? {7:32} They are like children sitting in the marketplace, talking with one another, and saying: ‘We sang to you, and you did not dance. We lamented, and you did not weep.’ {7:33} For John the Baptist came, neither eating bread nor drinking wine, and you say, ‘He has a demon.’ {7:34} The Son of man came, eating and drinking, and you say, ‘Behold, a voracious man and a drinker of wine, a friend of tax collectors and of sinners.’ {7:35} But wisdom is justified by all her children.” {7:36} Then certain Pharisees petitioned him, so that they might eat with him. And he went into the house of the Pharisee, and he reclined at table. {7:37} And behold, a woman who was in the city, a sinner, found out that he was reclining at table in the house of the Pharisee, so she brought an alabaster container of ointment. {7:38} And standing behind him, beside his feet, she began to wash his feet with tears, and she wiped them with the hair of her head, and she kissed his feet, and she anointed them with ointment. {7:39} Then the Pharisee, who had invited him, upon seeing this, spoke within himself, saying, “This man, if he were a prophet, would certainly know who and what kind of woman is this, who is touching him: that she is a sinner.” {7:40} And in response, Jesus said to him, “Simon, I have something to say to you.” So he said, “Speak, Teacher.” {7:41} “A certain creditor had two debtors: one owed five hundred denarii, and the other fifty. {7:42} And since they did not have the ability to repay him, he forgave them both. So then, which of them loves him more?” {7:43} In response, Simon said, “I suppose that it is he to whom he forgave the most.” And he said to him, “You have judged correctly.” {7:44} And turning to the woman, he said to Simon: “Do you see this woman? I entered into your house. You gave me no water for my feet. But she has washed my feet with tears, and has wiped them with her hair. {7:45} You gave no kiss to me. But she, from the time that she entered, has not ceased to kiss my feet. {7:46} You did not anoint my head with oil. But she has anointed my feet with ointment. {7:47} Because of this, I tell you: many sins are forgiven her, because she has loved much. But he who is forgiven less, loves less.” {7:48} Then he said to her, “Your sins are forgiven you.” {7:49} And those who sat at table with him began to say within themselves, “Who is this, who even forgives sins?” {7:50} Then he said to the woman: “Your faith has brought you salvation. Go in peace.”

[Luke 8] {8:1} And it happened afterwards that he was making a journey through the cities and towns, preaching and evangelizing the kingdom of God. And the twelve were with him, {8:2} along with certain women who had been healed of evil spirits and infirmities: Mary, who is called Magdalene, from whom seven demons had departed, {8:3} and Joanna, the wife of Chuza, Herod’s steward, and Susanna, and many other women, who were ministering to him from their resources. {8:4} Then, when a very numerous crowd was gathering together and hurrying from the cities to him, he spoke using a comparison: {8:5} “The sower went out to sow his seed. And as he sowed, some fell beside the way; and it was trampled and the birds of the air devoured it. {8:6} And some fell upon rock; and having sprung up, it withered away, because it had no moisture. {8:7} And some fell among thorns; and the thorns, rising up with it, suffocated it. {8:8} And some fell upon good soil; and having sprung up, it produced fruit one hundredfold.” As he said these things, he cried out, “Whoever has ears to hear, let him hear.” {8:9} Then his disciples questioned him as to what this parable might mean. {8:10} And he said to them: “To you it has been given to know the mystery of the kingdom of God. But to the rest, it is in parables, so that: seeing, they may not perceive, and hearing, they may not understand. {8:11} Now the parable is this: The seed is the word of God. {8:12} And those beside the way are those who hear it, but then the devil comes and takes the word from their heart, lest by believing it they may be saved. {8:13} Now those upon rock are those who, when they hear it, accept the word with joy, but these have no roots. So they believe for a time, but in a time of testing, they fall away. {8:14} And those which fell among thorns are those who have heard it, but as they go along, they are suffocated by the concerns and riches and pleasures of this life, and so they do not yield fruit. {8:15} But those which were on good soil are those who, upon hearing the word with a good and noble heart, retain it, and they bring forth fruit in patience. {8:16} Now no one, lighting a candle, covers it with a container, or sets it under a bed. Instead, he places it on a lampstand, so that those who enter may see the light. {8:17} For there is nothing secret, which will not be made clear, nor is there anything hidden, which will not be known and be brought into plain sight. {8:18} Therefore, take care how you listen. For whoever has, it will be given to him; and whoever does not have, even what he thinks he has will be taken away from him.” {8:19} Then his mother and brothers came to him; but they were not able to go to him because of the crowd. {8:20} And it was reported to him, “Your mother and your brothers are standing outside, wanting to see you.” {8:21} And in response, he said to them, “My mother and my brothers are those who hear the word of God and do it.” {8:22} Now it happened, on a certain day, that he climbed into a little boat with his disciples. And he said to them, “Let us make a crossing over the lake.” And they embarked. {8:23} And as they were sailing, he slept. And a windstorm descended over the lake. And they were taking on water and were in danger. {8:24} Then, drawing near, they awakened him, saying, “Teacher, we are perishing.” But as he rose up, he rebuked the wind and the raging water, and they ceased. And a tranquility occurred. {8:25} Then he said to them, “Where is your faith?” And they, being afraid, were amazed, saying to one another, “Who do you think this is, so that he commands both wind and sea, and they obey him?" | 8:26 | And they sailed to the region of the Gerasenes, which is opposite Galilee. | 8:27 | And when he had gone out to the land, a certain man met him, who had now had a demon for a long time. And he did not wear clothes, nor did he stay in a house, but among the sepulchers. | 8:28 | And when he saw Jesus, he fell down before him. And crying out in a loud voice, he said: "What is there between me and you, Jesus, Son of the Most High God? I beg you not to torture me." | 8:29 | For he was ordering the unclean spirit to depart from the man. For on many occasions, it would seize him, and he was bound with chains and held by fetters. But breaking the chains, he was driven by the demon into desert ed places. | 8:30 | Then Jesus questioned him, saying, "What is your name?" And he said, "Legion," because many demons had entered into him. | 8:31 | And they petitioned him not to order them to go into the abyss. | 8:32 | And in that place, there was a herd of many swine, pasturing on the mountain. And they petitioned him to permit them to enter into them. And he permitted them. | 8:33 | Therefore, the demons departed from the man, and they entered into the swine. And the herd rushed violently down a precipice into the lake, and they were drowned. | 8:34 | And when those who were pasturing them had seen this, they fled and reported it in the city and the villages. | 8:35 | Then they went out to see what was happening, and they came to Jesus. And they found the man, from whom the demons had departed, sitting at his feet, clothed as well as in a sane mind, and they were afraid. | 8:36 | Then those who had seen this also reported to them how he had been healed from the legion. | 8:37 | And the entire multitude from the region of the Gerasenes pleaded with him to depart from them. For they were seized by a great fear. Then, climbing into the boat, he went back again. | 8:38 | And the man from whom the demons had departed pleaded with him, so that he might be with him. But Jesus sent him away, saying, | 8:39 | "Return to your house and explain to them what great things God has done for you." And he traveled through the entire city, preaching about the great things that Jesus had done for him. | 8:40 | Now it happened that, when Jesus had returned, the crowd received him. For they were all waiting for him. | 8:41 | And behold, a man came, whose name was Jairus, and he was a leader of the synagogue. And he fell down at the feet of Jesus, asking him to enter into his house. | 8:42 | For he had an only daughter, nearly twelve years old, and she was dying. And it happened that, as he was going there, he was hemmed in by the crowd. | 8:43 | And there was a certain woman, with a flow of blood for twelve years, who had paid out all her substance on physicians, and she was unable to be cured by any of them. | 8:44 | She approached him from behind, and she touched the hem of his garment. And at once the flow of her blood stopped. | 8:45 | And Jesus said, "Who is it that touched me?" But as everyone was denying it, Peter, and those who were with him, said: "Teacher, the crowd hemmed you in and presses upon you, and yet you say, 'Who touched me?'" | 8:46 | And Jesus said: "Someone has touched me. For I know that power has gone out from me." | 8:47 | Then the woman, upon seeing that she was not hidden, came forward, trembling, and she fell down before his feet. And she declared before all the people the reason that she had touched him, and how she had been immediately healed. | 8:48 | But he said to her: "Daughter, your faith has saved you. Go in peace." | 8:49 | While he was still speaking, someone came to the ruler of the synagogue, saying to him: "Your daughter is dead. Do not trouble him." | 8:50 | Then Jesus, upon hearing this word, replied to the father of the girl: "Do not be afraid. Only believe, and she will be saved." | 8:51 | And when he had arrived at the house, he would not permit anyone to enter with him, except Peter and James and John, and the father and mother of the girl. | 8:52 | Now all were weeping and mourning for her. But he said: "Do not weep. The girl is not dead, but only sleeping." | 8:53 | And they derided him, knowing that she had died. | 8:54 | But he, taking her by the hand, cried out, saying, "Little girl, arise." | 8:55 | And her spirit returned, and she immediately rose up. And he ordered them to give her something to eat. | 8:56 | And her parents were stupefied. And he instructed them not to tell anyone what had happened. | [Luke 9] | 9:1 | Then calling together the twelve Apostles, he gave them power and authority over all demons and to cure diseases. | 9:2 | And he sent them to preach the kingdom of God and to heal the infirm. | 9:3 | And he said to them: "You should take nothing for the journey, neither staff, nor traveling bag, nor bread, nor money; and you should not have two tunics. | 9:4 | And into whatever house you shall enter, lodge there, and do not move away from there. | 9:5 | And whoever will not have received you, upon departing from that city, shake off even the dust on your feet, as a testimony against them." | 9:6 | And going forth, they traveled around, through the towns, evangelizing and curing everywhere. | 9:7 | Now Herod the tetrarch heard about all the things that were being done by him, but he doubted, because it was said | 9:8 | by some, "For John has risen from the dead," yet truly, by others, "For Elijah has appeared," and by still others, "For one of the prophets from of old has risen again." | 9:9 | And Herod said: "I beheaded John. So then, who is this, about whom I hear such things?" And he sought to see him. | 9:10 | And when the Apostles returned, they explained to him all the things that they had done. And taking them with him, he withdrew to a deserted place apart, which belongs to Bethsaida. | 9:11 | But when the crowd had realized this, they followed him. And he received them and spoke to them about the kingdom of God. And those who were in need of cures, he healed. | 9:12 | Then the day began to decline. And drawing near, the twelve said to him: "Dismiss the crowds, so that, by going into the surrounding towns and villages, they may separate and find food. For we are here in a deserted place." | 9:13 | But he said to them, "You give them something to eat." And they said, "There is with us no more than five loaves and two fish, unless perhaps we are to go and buy food for this entire multitude." | 9:14 | Now there were about five thousand men. So he said to his disciples, "Have them recline to eat in groups of fifty." | 9:15 | And they did so. And they caused them all to recline to eat. | 9:16 | Then, taking the five loaves and the two fish, he gazed up to heaven, and he blessed and broke and distributed them to his disciples, in order to set them before the crowd. | 9:17 | And they all ate and were satisfied. And twelve baskets of fragments were taken up, which were left over from them. | 9:18 | And it happened that, when he was praying alone, his disciples also were with him, and he questioned them, saying: "Who do the multitudes say that I am?" | 9:19 | But they answered by saying: "John the Baptist.
But some say Elijah. Yet truly, others say that one of the prophets from before has risen again." {9:20} Then he said to them, "But who do you say that I am?" In response, Simon Peter said, "The Christ of God." {9:21} But speaking sharply to them, he instructed them not to tell this to anyone, {9:22} saying, "For the Son of man must suffer many things, and be rejected by the elders and the leaders of the priests and the scribes, and be killed, and on the third day rise again.” {9:23} Then he said to everyone: "If anyone is willing to come after me: let him deny himself, and take up his cross every day, and follow me. {9:24} For whoever will have saved his life, will lose it. Yet whoever will have lost his life for my sake, will save it. {9:25} For how does it benefit a man, if he were to gain the whole world, yet lose himself, or cause himself harm? {9:26} For whoever will be ashamed of me and of my words: of him the Son of man will be ashamed, when he will have arrived in his majesty and that of his Father and of the holy Angels. {9:27} And yet, I tell you a truth: There are some standing here who shall not taste death, until they see the kingdom of God.” {9:28} And it happened that, about eight days after these words, he took Peter and James and John, and he ascended onto a mountain, so that he might pray. {9:29} And while he was praying, the appearance of his countenance was altered, and his vestment became white and shining. {9:30} And behold, two men were talking with him. And these were Moses and Elijah, appearing in majesty. {9:31} And they spoke of his departure, which he would accomplish at Jerusalem. {9:32} Yet truly, Peter and those who were with him were weighed down by sleep. And becoming alert, they saw his majesty and the two men who were standing with him. {9:33} And it happened that, as these were departing from him, Peter said to Jesus: “Teacher, it is good for us to be here. And so, let us make three tabernacles: one for you, and one for Moses, and one for Elijah.” For he did not know what he was saying. {9:34} Then, as he was saying these things, a cloud came and overshadowed them. And as these were entering into the cloud, they were afraid. {9:35} And a voice came from the cloud, saying: “This is my beloved son. Listen to him.” {9:36} And while the voice was being uttered, Jesus was found to be alone. And they were silent and told no one, in those days, any of these things, which they had seen. {9:37} But it happened on the following day that, as they were descending from the mountain, a great crowd met him. {9:38} And behold, a spirit takes hold of him, and he foams. And though it tears him apart, it suddenly cries out, and it throws him down and convulses him. {9:39} And behold, a spirit takes hold of him, and he is my only son. {9:39} And behold, a spirit takes hold of him, and he suddenly cries out, and it throws him down and convulses him, so that he foams. And though it tears him apart, it leaves him only with difficulty. {9:40} And I asked your disciples to cast him out, and they were unable.” {9:41} And in response, Jesus said: “O unfaithful and perverse generation! How long will I be with you and endure you? Bring your son here.” {9:42} And as he was approaching him, the demon threw him down and convulsed him. {9:43} And Jesus rebuked the unclean spirit, and he healed the boy, and he restored him to his father. {9:44} And all were astonished at the greatness of God. And as everyone was wondering over all that he was doing, he said to his disciples: “You must set these words in your hearts. For it shall be that the Son of man will be delivered into the hands of men.” {9:45} But they did not understand this word, and it was concealed from them, so that they did not perceive it. And they were afraid to question him about this word. {9:46} Now an idea entered into them, as to which of them was greater. {9:47} But Jesus, perceiving the thoughts of their hearts, took a child and stood him beside him. {9:48} And he said to them: “Whoever will receive this child in my name, receives me; and whoever receives me, receives him who sent me. For whoever is the lesser among you all, the same is greater.” {9:49} And responding, John said: “Teacher, we saw a certain one casting out demons in your name. And we prohibited him, for he does not follow with us.” {9:50} And Jesus said to him: “Do not prohibit him. For whoever is not against you, is for you.” {9:51} Now it happened that, while the days of his dissipation were being completed, he steadfastly set his face to go to Jerusalem. {9:52} And he sent messengers before his face. And going on, they entered into a city of the Samaritans, to prepare for him. {9:53} And they would not receive him, because his face was going toward Jerusalem. {9:54} And when his disciples, James and John, had seen this, they said, “Lord, do you want us to call for fire to descend from heaven and consume them?” {9:55} And turning, he rebuked them, saying: “Do you not know of whose spirit you are? {9:56} The Son of man came, not to destroy lives, but to save them.” And they went into another town. {9:57} And it happened that, as they were walking along the way, someone said to him, “I will follow you, wherever you will go.” {9:58} Jesus said to him: “Foxes have dens, and the birds of the air have nests. But the Son of man has nowhere to lay his head.” {9:59} Then he said to another, “Follow me.” But he said, “Lord, permit me first to go and bury my father.” {9:60} And Jesus said to him: “Let the dead bury their dead. But you go and announce the kingdom of God.” {9:61} And another said: “I will follow you, Lord. But permit me first to explain this to those of my house.” {9:62} Jesus said to him, “No one who puts his hand to the plow, and then looks back, is fit for the kingdom of God.”

[Luke 10] {10:1} Then, after these things, the Lord also designated another seventy-two. And he sent them in pairs before his face, into every city and place where he was to arrive. {10:2} And he said to them: “Certainly the harvest is great, but the workers are few. Therefore, ask the Lord of the harvest to send workers into his harvest. {10:3} Go forth. Behold, I send you out like lambs among wolves. {10:4} Do not choose to carry a purse, nor provisions, nor shoes; and you shall greet no one along the way. {10:5} Into whatever house you will have entered, first say, ‘Peace to this house.’ {10:6} And if a son of peace is there, your peace will rest upon him. But if not, it will return to you. {10:7} And remain in the same house, eating and drinking the things that are with them. For the worker is worthy of his pay. Do not choose to pass from house to house. {10:8} And into whatever city you have entered and they have received you, eat what they set before you. {10:9} And cure the sick who are in that place, and proclaim to them, ‘The kingdom of God has drawn near to you.’ {10:10} But into whatever city you have entered and they have not received you, going out into its main streets, say: {10:11} ‘Even the dust which clings to us from your city, we wipe away against you. Yet know this: the kingdom of God has drawn near.’ {10:12} I say to you, that in that day, Sodom will be forgiven more than that city will be. {10:13} Woe to you, Chorazin! Woe to you, Bethsaida! For if the miracles that have been wrought in you, had been wrought in Tyre and Sidon, they would have repented long ago, sitting in haircloth and ashes. {10:14} Yet truly, Tyre and Sidon will be forgiven more in the judgment than you will be. {10:15} And as for you, Capernaum, who would be exalted even up to Heaven: you shall be submerged into Hell. {10:16} Whoever hears you, hears me. And whoever despises you, despises me. And whoever despises me, despises him who sent me.” {10:17} Then the seventy-two returned with gladness, saying, “Lord, even the demons are subject to us, in your name.” {10:18} And he said to them: “I was watching as Satan fell like lightning from heaven. {10:19} Behold, I have given you authority to tread upon serpents and scorpions, and upon all the powers of the enemy, and nothing shall hurt you. {10:20} Yet truly, do not choose to rejoice in this, that the spirits are subject to you; but rejoice that your names are written in heaven.” {10:21} In the same hour, he exulted in the Holy Spirit, and he said: “I confess to you, Father, Lord of heaven and earth, because you have hidden these things from the wise and the prudent, and have revealed them to little ones. It is so, Father, because this way was pleasing before you. {10:22} All things have been delivered to me by my Father. And no one knows who the Son is, except the Father, and who the Father is, except the Son, and those to whom the Son has chosen to reveal him.” {10:23} And turning to his disciples, he said: “Blessed are the eyes that see what you see. {10:24} For I say to you, that many prophets and kings wanted to see the things that you see, and they did not see them, and to hear the things that you hear, and they did not hear them.” {10:25} And behold, a certain expert in the law rose up, testing him and saying, “Teacher, what must I do to possess eternal life?” {10:26} But he said to him: “What is written in the law? How do you read it?” {10:27} In response, he said: “You shall love the Lord your God from your whole heart, and from your whole soul, and from all your strength, and from all your mind, and your neighbor as yourself.” {10:28} And he said to him: “You have answered correctly. Do this, and you will live.” {10:29} But since he wanted to justify himself, he said to Jesus, “And who is my neighbor?” {10:30} Then Jesus, taking this up, said: “A certain man descended from Jerusalem to Jericho, and he happened upon robbers, who now also plundered him. And inflicting him with wounds, they went away, leaving him behind, half-alive. {10:31} And it happened that a certain priest was descending along the same way. And seeing him, he passed by. {10:32} And similarly a Levite, when he was near the place, also saw him, and he passed by. {10:33} But a certain Samaritan, being on a journey, came near him. And seeing him, he was moved by mercy. {10:34} And approaching him, he bound up his wounds, pouring oil and wine on them. And setting him on his pack animal, he brought him to an inn, and he took care of him. {10:35} And the next day, he took out two denarii, and he gave them to the proprietor, and he said: 'Take care of him. And whatever extra you will have spent, I will repay to you at my return.' {10:36} Which of these three, does it seem to you, was a neighbor to him who fell among the robbers?” {10:37} Then he said, “The one who acted with mercy toward him.” And Jesus said to him, “Go, and act similarly.” {10:38} Now it happened that, while they were traveling, he entered into a certain town. And a certain woman, named Martha, received him into her home. {10:39} And she had a sister, named Mary, who, while sitting beside the Lord’s feet, was listening to his word. {10:40} Now Martha was continually busying herself with serving. And she stood still and said: “Lord, is it not a concern to you that my sister has left me to serve alone? Therefore, speak to her, so that she may help me.” {10:41} And the Lord responded by saying to her: “Martha, Martha, you are anxious and troubled over many things. {10:42} And yet only one thing is necessary. Mary has chosen the best portion, and it shall not be taken away from her.”

[Luke 11] {11:1} And it happened that, while he was in a certain place praying, when he ceased, one of his disciples said to him, “Lord, teach us to pray, as John also taught his disciples.” {11:2} And he said to them: “When you are praying, say: Father, may your name be kept holy. May your kingdom come. {11:3} Give us this day our daily bread. {11:4} And forgive us our sins, since we also forgive all who are indebted to us. And lead us not into temptation.” {11:5} And he said to them: “Which of you will have a friend and will go to him in the middle of the night, and will say to him: ‘Friend, lend me three loaves, {11:6} because a friend of mine has arrived from a journey to me, and I do not have anything to set before him.’ {11:7} And from within, he would answer by saying: ‘Do not disturb me. The door is closed now, and my children and I are in bed. I cannot get up and give it to you.’ {11:8} Yet if he will persevere in knocking, I tell you that, even though he would not get up and give it to him because he is a friend, yet due to his continued insistence, he will get up and give him whatever he needs. {11:9} And so I say to you: Ask, and it shall be given to you. Seek, and you shall find. Knock, and it shall be opened to you. {11:10} For everyone who asks, receives. And whoever seeks, finds. And whoever knocks, it shall be opened to him. {11:11} So then, who among you, if he asks his father for bread, he would give him a stone? Or if he asks for a fish, he would give him a serpent, instead of a fish? {11:12} Or if he will ask for an egg, he would offer to him a scorpion? {11:13} Therefore, if you, being evil, know how to give good things to your sons, how much more will your Father give, from heaven, a spirit of goodness to those who ask him?” {11:14} And he was casting out a demon, and the man was mute. But when he had cast out the demon, the mute man spoke, and so the crowds were amazed. {11:15} But some of them said, “It is by Beelzebub, the leader of demons, that he casts out demons.” {11:16} And others, testing him, required a sign from heaven of him. {11:17} But when he perceived their thoughts, he said to them: “Every kingdom divided against itself will become desolate, and house will fall upon house. {11:18} So then, if Satan is also divided against himself, how will his kingdom stand? For you say that it is by Beelzebub that I cast out demons. {11:19} But if I cast out demons by Beelzebub, by whom do your own sons cast them out? Therefore, they shall be your judges. {11:20} Moreover, if it is by the finger of God that I cast out demons, then certainly the kingdom of God has overtaken you. {11:21} When a strong armed man guards his entrance, the things that he possesses are at peace. {11:22} But if a stronger one, overwhelming him, has defeated him, he will take away all his weapons, in which he trusted, and he will distribute his spoils. {11:23} Whoever is not with me, is against me. And whoever does not gather with me, scatters. {11:24} When an unclean spirit has departed from a man, he walks through waterless places, seeking rest. And not finding any, he says: 'I will return to my house, from which I departed.' {11:25} And when he has arrived, he finds it swept clean and decorated. {11:26} Then he goes, and he takes in seven other spirits with him, more wicked than himself, and they enter and live there. And so, the end of that man is made worse the beginning." {11:27} And it happened that, when he was saying these things, a certain woman from the crowd, lifting up her voice, said to him, "Blessed is the womb that bore you and the breasts that nursed you." {11:28} Then he said, "Yes, but moreover: blessed are those who hear the word of God and keep it." {11:29} Then, as the crowds were quickly gathering, he began to say: "This generation is a wicked generation: it seeks a sign. But no sign will be given to it, except the sign of the prophet Jonah. {11:30} For just as Jonah was a sign to the Ninevites, so also will the Son of man be to this generation. {11:31} The queen of the South will rise up, at the judgment, with the men of this generation, and she will condemn them. For she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon. And behold, more than Solomon is here. {11:32} The men of Nineveh will rise up, at the judgment, with this generation, and they will condemn it. For at the preaching of Jonah, they repented. And behold, more than Jonah is here. {11:33} No one lights a candle and places it in hiding, nor under a bushel basket, but upon a lampstand, so that those who enter may see the light. {11:34} Your eye is the light of your body. If your eye is wholesome, your entire body will be filled with light. But if it is wicked, then even your body will be darkened. {11:35} Therefore, take care, lest the light that is within you become darkness. {11:36} So then, if your entire body becomes filled with light, not having any part in darkness, then it will be entirely light, and, like a shining lamp, it will illuminate you." {11:37} And as he was speaking, a certain Pharisee asked him to eat with him. And going inside, he sat down to eat. {11:38} But the Pharisee began to say, thinking within himself: "Why might it be that he has not washed before eating?" {11:39} And the Lord said to him: "You Pharisees today clean what is outside the cup and the plate, but what is inside of you is full of plunder and iniquity. {11:40} Fools! Did not he who made what is outside, indeed also make what is inside? {11:41} Yet truly, give what is above as alms, and behold, all things are clean for you. {11:42} But woe to you, Pharisees! For you tithe mint and rue and every herb, but you ignore judgment and the charity of God. But these things you ought to have done, without omitting the others. {11:43} Woe to you, Pharisees! For you love the first seats in the synagogues, and greetings in the marketplace. {11:44} Woe to you! For you are like graves that are not noticeable, so that men walk over them without realizing it." {11:45} Then one of the experts in the law, in response, said to him, "Teacher, in saying these things, you bring an insult against us as well." {11:46} So he said: "And woe to you experts in the law! For you weigh men down with burdens which they are not able to bear, but you yourselves do not touch the weight with even one of your fingers. {11:47} Woe to you, who build the tombs of the prophets, while it is your fathers who killed them! {11:48} Clearly, you are testifying that you consent to the actions of your fathers, because even though they killed them, you build their sepulchers. {11:49} Because of this also, the wisdom of God said: I will send to them Prophets and Apostles, and some of these they will kill or persecute, {11:50} so that the blood of all the Prophets, which has been shed since the foundation of the world, may be charged against this generation: {11:51} from the blood of Abel, even to the blood of Zachariah, who perished between the altar and the sanctuary. So I say to you: it will be required of this generation! {11:52} Woe to you, experts in the law! For you have taken away the key of knowledge. You yourselves do not enter, and those who were entering, you would have prohibited." {11:53} Then, while he was saying these things to them, the Pharisees and the experts in the law began to insist strongly that he restrain his mouth about many things. {11:54} And waiting to ambush him, they sought something from his mouth that they might seize upon, in order to accuse him.

[Luke 12] {12:1} Then, as great crowds were standing so close that they were stepping on one another, he began to say to his disciples: "Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy. {12:2} For there is nothing covered, which will not be revealed, nor anything hidden, which will not be known. {12:3} For the things that you have spoken in darkness will be declared in the light. And what you have said in the ear in bedrooms will be proclaimed from the housetops. {12:4} So I say to you, my friends: Do not be fearful of those who kill the body, and afterwards have no more that they can do. {12:5} But I will reveal to you whom you should fear. Fear him who, after he will have killed, has the power to cast into Hell. So I say to you: Fear him. {12:6} Are not five sparrows sold for two small coins? And yet not one of these is forgotten in the sight of God. {12:7} But even the very hairs of your head have all been numbered. Therefore, do not be afraid. You are worth more than many sparrows. {12:8} But I say to you: Everyone who will have confessed me before men, the Son of man will also confess him before the Angels of God. {12:9} But everyone who will have denied me before men, he will be denied before the Angels of God. {12:10} And everyone who speaks a word against the Son of man, it will be forgiven of him. But of him who will have blasphemed against the Holy Spirit, it will not be forgiven. {12:11} And when they will lead you to the synagogues, and to magistrates and authorities, do not choose to be worried about how or what you will answer, or about what you might say. {12:12} For the Holy Spirit will teach you, in the same hour, what you must say." {12:13} And someone from the crowd said to him, "Teacher, tell my brother to share the inheritance with me." {12:14} But he said to him, "Man, who has appointed me as judge or arbitrator over you?" {12:15} So he said to them: "Be cautious and wary of all avarice. For a person's life is not found in the abundance of the things that he possesses." {12:16} Then he spoke to them using a comparison, saying: "The fertile land of a certain wealthy man produced crops. {12:17} And he thought within himself, saying: 'What should I do? For I have nowhere to gather together my crops.' {12:18} And he said: 'This is what I will do. I will tear down my barns and build larger ones. And into these, I will gather all the things that have been grown for me, as well as my goods. {12:19} And I will say to my soul: Soul, you have many goods, stored up for many years. Relax, eat, drink, and be cheerful.' {12:20} But God said to him: 'Foolish one, this very night they require your soul of you. To whom, then, will those things belong, which you have prepared?

{12:21} So it is with him who stores up for himself, and is not wealthy with God."  {12:22} And he said to his disciples: "And so I say to you: Do not choose to be anxious about your life, as to what you may eat, nor about your body, as to what you will wear.  {12:23} Life is more than food, and the body is more than clothing.  {12:24} Consider the ravens. For they neither sow nor reap; there is no storehouse or barn for them. And yet God pastures them. How much more are you, compared to them?  {12:25} But which of you, by thinking, is able to add one cubit to his stature?  {12:26} Therefore, if you are not capable, in what is so little, why be anxious about the rest?

{12:27} Consider the lilies, how they grow. They neither work nor weave. But I say to you, not even Solomon, in all his glory, was clothed like one of these.  {12:28} Therefore, if God so clothes the grass, which is in the field today and thrown into the furnace tomorrow, how much more you, O little in faith?  {12:29} And so, do not choose to inquire as to what you will eat, or what you will drink. And do not choose to be lifted up on high.  {12:30} For all these things are sought by the Gentiles of the world. And your Father knows that you have need of these things.  {12:31} Yet truly, seek first the kingdom of God, and his justice, and all these things shall be added to you.  {12:32} Do not be afraid, little flock; for it has pleased your Father to give you the kingdom.  {12:33} Sell what you possess, and give alms. Make for yourselves purses that will not wear out, a treasure that will not fall short, in heaven, where no thief approaches, and no moth corrupts.  {12:34} For where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.  {12:35} Let your waists be girded, and let lamps be burning in your hands.  {12:36} And let you yourselves be like men awaiting their lord, when he will return from the wedding; so that, when he arrives and knocks, they may open to him promptly.  {12:37} Blessed are those servants whom the Lord, when he returns, will find being vigilant. Amen I say to you, that he will gird himself and have them sit down to eat, while he, continuing on, will minister to them.  {12:38} And if he will return in the second watch, or if in the third watch, and if he will find them to be so: then blessed are those servants.  {12:39} But know this: that if the father of the family knew at what hour the thief would arrive, he would certainly stand watch, and he would not permit his house to be broken into.  {12:40} You also must be prepared. For the Son of man will return at an hour that you will not realize."

{12:41} Then Peter said to him, "Lord, are you telling this parable to us, or also to everyone?"  {12:42} So the Lord said: "Who do you think is the faithful and prudent steward, whom his Lord has appointed over his family, in order to give them their measure of wheat in due time?  {12:43} Blessed is that servant if, when his Lord will return, he will find him acting in this manner.  {12:44} Truly I say to you, that he will appoint him over all that he possesses.  {12:45} But if that servant will have said in his heart, 'My Lord has made a delay in his return,' and if he has begun to strike the men and women servants, and to eat and drink, and to be inebriated,  {12:46} then the Lord of that servant will return on a day which he hoped not, and at an hour which he knew not. And he will separate him, and he will place his portion with that of the unfaithful.  {12:47} And that servant, who knew the will of his Lord, and who did not prepare and did not act according to his will, will be beaten many times over.  {12:48} Yet he who did not know, and who acted in a way that deserves a beating, will be beaten fewer times. So then, of all to whom much has been given, much will be required. And of those to whom much has been entrusted, even more will be asked.  {12:49} I have come to cast a fire upon the earth. And what should I desire, except that it may be kindled?  {12:50} And I have a baptism, with which I am to be baptized. And how I am constrained, even until it may be accomplished!  {12:51} Do you think that I have come to give peace to the earth? No, I tell you, but division.  {12:52} For from this time on, there will be five in one house: divided as three against two, and as two against three.  {12:53} A father will be divided against a son, and a son against his father; a mother against a daughter and a daughter against a mother; a mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law, and a daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law."  {12:54} And he also said to the crowds: "When you see a cloud rising from the setting of the sun, immediately you say, 'A rain cloud is coming.' And so it does.  {12:55} And when a south wind is blowing, you say, 'It will be hot.' And so it is.  {12:56} You hypocrites! You discern the face of the heavens, and of the earth, yet how is it that you do not discern this time?

{12:57} And why do you not, even among yourselves, judge what is just?  {12:58} So, when you are going with your adversary to the ruler, while you are on the way, make an effort to be freed from him, lest perhaps he may lead you to the judge, and the judge may deliver you to the officer, and the officer may cast you into prison.  {12:59} I tell you, you will not depart from there, until you have paid the very last coin."

[Luke 13]  {13:1} And there were present, at that very time, some who were reporting about the Galileans, whose blood Pilate mixed with their sacrifices.  {13:2} And responding, he said to them: "Do you think that these Galileans must have sinned more than all the Galileans, because they suffered so much?  {13:3} No, I tell you. But unless you repent, you will all perish similarly.  {13:4} And those eighteen upon whom the tower of Siloam fell and killed them, do you think that they also were greater transgressors than all the men living in Jerusalem?  {13:5} No, I tell you. But if you do not repent, you will all perish similarly."  {13:6} And he also told this parable: "A certain man had a fig tree, which was planted in his vineyard. And he came seeking fruit on it, but found none.  {13:7} Then he said to the cultivator of the vineyard: 'Behold, for these three years I came seeking fruit on this fig tree, and I have found none. Therefore, cut it down. For why should it even occupy the land?'  {13:8} But in response, he said to him: 'Lord, let it be for this year also, during which time I will dig around it and add fertilizer.  {13:9} And, indeed, it should bear fruit. But if not, in the future, you shall cut it down.'

{13:10} Now he was teaching in their synagogue on the Sabbaths.  {13:11} And behold, there was a woman who had a spirit of infirmity for eighteen years. And she was bent over; and she was unable to look upwards at all.  {13:12} And when Jesus saw her, he called her to himself, and he said to her, "Woman, you are released from your infirmity."

{13:13} And he laid his hands upon her, and immediately she was straightened, and she glorified God.  {13:14} Then, as a result, the ruler of the synagogue became angry that Jesus had cured on the Sabbath, and he said to the crowd: "There are six days on which you ought to work. Therefore, come and be cured on those, and not on the day of the
And he said, "Which of you will have a donkey or an ox fall into a pit, and will not promptly pull him out, on the day of the Sabbath?" {14:6} And they were unable to respond to him about these things. {14:7} Then he also told a parable, noticing how they chose the first seats at the table, saying to them: {14:8} "When you are invited to a wedding, do not sit down in the first place, lest perhaps someone more honored than yourself may have been invited by him. {14:9} And then he who called both you and him, approaching, may say to you, 'Give this place to him.' And then you would begin, with shame, to take the last place. {14:10} But when you are invited, go, sit down in the lowest place, so that, when he who invited you arrives, he may say to you, 'Friend, go up higher.' Then you will have glory in the sight of those who sit at table together with you.

{14:11} For everyone who exalts himself shall be humbled, and whoever humbles himself shall be exalted." {14:12} Then he also said to the one who had invited him: "When you prepare a lunch or dinner, do not choose to call your friends, or your brothers, or your relatives, or your wealthy neighbors, lest perhaps they might then invite you in return and repayment would made to you. {14:13} But when you prepare a feast, call the poor, the disabled, the lame, and the blind. {14:14} And you will be blessed because they do not have a way to repay you. So then, your recompense will be in the resurrection of the just." {14:15} When someone sitting at table with him had heard these things, he said to him, "Blessed is he who will eat bread in the kingdom of God." {14:16} So he said to him: "A certain man prepared a great feast, and he invited many. {14:17} And he sent his servant, at the hour of the feast, to tell the invited to come; for now everything was ready. {14:18} And at once they all began to make excuses. The first said to him: 'I bought a farm, and I need to go out and see it. I ask you to excuse me.' {14:19} And another said: 'I bought five oxen of oxen, and I am going to examine them. I ask you to excuse me.' {14:20} And another said, 'I have taken a wife, and therefore I am not able to go.' {14:21} And returning, the servant reported these things to his lord. Then the father of the family, becoming angry, said to his servant: 'Go out quickly into the streets and neighborhoods of the city. And lead here the poor, the disabled, the lame, and the blind.' {14:22} And he said to the servant: 'Go out quickly into the streets and neighborhoods of the city. And lead here the poor, the disabled, the lame, and the blind.' {14:23} And the lord said to the servant: 'It has been done, just as you ordered, lord, and there is still room.' {14:24} And the lord said to the servant: 'It has been done, just as you ordered, lord, and there is still room.'

And turning around, he said to them: {14:26} "If anyone comes to me, and does not hate his father, and mother, and wife, and children, and brothers, and sisters, and yes, even his own life, he is not able to be my disciple. {14:27} And whoever does not bear his cross and come after me, is not able to be my disciple. {14:28} For who among you, wanting to build a tower, would not first sit down and determine the costs that are required, to see if he has the means to complete it? {14:29} Otherwise, after he will have laid the foundation and not been able to finish it, everyone who sees it may begin to mock him, {14:30} saying: 'This man began to build what he was not able to finish.' {14:31} Or, what king, advancing to engage in war against another king, would not first sit down and consider whether he may be able, with ten thousand, to meet one who comes against him with twenty thousand? "

[Luke 14] {14:1} And it happened that, when Jesus entered the house of a certain leader of the Pharisees on the Sabbath to eat bread, they were observing him. {14:2} And behold, a certain man before him was afflicted with edema. {14:3} And responding, Jesus spoke to the experts in the law and to the Pharisees, saying, "Is it lawful to cure on the Sabbath?" {14:4} But they kept silent. Yet truly, taking hold of him, he healed him and sent him away. {14:5} And responding to them, he said, "Which of you will have a donkey or an ox fall..."
Luke 15

15:1 Now tax collectors and sinners were drawing near to him, so that they might listen to him.

15:2 And the Pharisees and the scribes murmured, saying, ‘This one accepts sinners and eats with them.’

15:3 And he told this parable to them, saying:

15:4 “What man among you, if he has one hundred sheep, and if he will have lost one of them, would not leave the ninety-nine in the desert and go after the one whom he had lost, until he finds it?

15:5 And when he has found it, he places it on his shoulders, rejoicing.

15:6 And returning home, he calls together his friends and neighbors, saying to them: ‘Rejoice with me! For I have found my sheep, which had been lost.’

15:7 I say to you, that there will be so much more joy in heaven over one sinner repenting, than over the ninety-nine just, who do not need to repent.

15:8 Or what woman, having ten drachmas, if she will have lost one drachma, would not light a candle, and sweep the house, and diligently search until she finds it?

15:9 And when she has found it, she calls together her friends and neighbors, saying: ‘Rejoice with me! For I have found the drachma, which I had lost.’

15:10 So I say to you, there will be joy before the Angels of God over even one sinner who is repentant.

15:11 And he said: ‘A certain man had two sons.

15:12 And the younger of them said to the father, ‘Father, give me the portion of your estate which would go to me.’ And he divided the estate between them.

15:13 And after not many days, the younger son, gathering it all together, set out on a long journey to a distant region. And there, he dissipated his substance, living in luxury.

15:14 And after he had consumed it all, a great famine occurred in that region, and he began to be in need.

15:15 And he went and attached himself to one of the citizens of that region. And he sent him to his farm, in order to feed the swine.

15:16 And he wanted to fill his belly with the scraps that the swine ate. But no one would give it to him.

15:17 And returning to his senses, he said: ‘How many hired hands in my father’s house have abundant bread, while I perish here in famine! I shall rise up and go to my father, and I will say to him: Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you.

15:18 I am not worthy to be called your son. Make me one of your hired hands.’

15:19 And rising up, he went to his father. But while he was still at a distance, his father saw him, and he was moved with compassion, and running to him, he embraced him.

15:20 Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you. Now I am not worthy to be called your son.’

15:21 And the son said to him: ‘Father, I have sinned against heaven and before you. But the father said to his servants: ‘Quickly! Bring out the best robe, and clothe him with it. And put a ring on his hand and shoes on his feet. And bring the fatted calf here, and kill it. And let us eat and hold a feast. For this son of mine was dead, and has revived; he was lost, and is found.’ And they began to feast.

15:22 But his elder son was in the field. And when he returned and drew near to the house, he heard music and dancing.

15:23 And he called one of the servants, and he questioned him as to what these things meant.

15:24 And he said to him: ‘Your brother has returned, and your father has killed the fatted calf, because he has received him safely.’

15:25 Then he became indignant, and he was unwilling to enter. Therefore, his father, going out, began to plead with him.

15:26 And in response, he said to his father: ‘Behold, I have been serving you for so many years. And I have never transgressed your commandment. And yet, you have never given me even a young goat, so that I might feast with my friends.

15:27 And he to the father, who has devoured his substance with loose women, you have killed the fatted calf for him.’

15:28 But he said to him: ‘Son, you are with me always, and all that I have is yours.

15:29 But it was necessary to feast and to rejoice. For this brother of yours was dead, and has revived; he was lost, and is found.’

Luke 16

16:1 And he also said to his disciples: “A certain man was wealthy, and he had a steward of his estate. And this man was accused to him of having dissipated his goods.

16:2 And he called him and said to him: ‘What is this that I hear about you? Give an account of your stewardship.

16:3 And the steward said within himself: ‘What shall I do? For my lord is taking the stewardship away from me. I am not strong enough to dig. I am too ashamed to beg.

16:4 I know what I will do so that, when I have been removed from the stewardship, they may receive me into their houses.’

16:5 And so, calling together each one of his lord’s debtors, he said to the first, ‘How much do you owe my lord?’

16:6 So he said, ‘One hundred measures of wheat.’ He said to him, ‘Take your record books, and write eighty.’

16:7 Next, he said to another, ‘In truth, how much do you owe?’ And he said, ‘One hundred jars of oil.’

16:8 He said to him, ‘Take your record books, and write eighteen.’

16:9 And the lord praised the iniquitous steward, in that he had acted prudently. For the sons of this age are more prudent with their generation than are the sons of light.

16:10 And so I say to you, make friends for yourself using iniquitous mammon, so that, when you have passed away, they may receive you into the eternal tabernacles.

16:11 So then, if you have not been faithful with iniquitous mammon, who will trust you with what is true?

16:12 And if you have not been faithful with what belongs to another, who will give you what is yours?

16:13 No servant is able to serve two lords. For either he will hate the one and love the other, or he will cling to the one and despise the other. You cannot serve God and mammon.”

16:14 But the Pharisees, who were greedy, were listening to all these things. And they ridiculed him.

16:15 And he said to them: “You are the ones who justify yourselves in the sight of men. But God knows your hearts. For what is lifted up by men is an abomination in the sight of God.

16:16 The law and the prophets were until John. Since then, the kingdom of God is being evangelized, and everyone acts with violence toward it.

16:17 But it is easier for heaven and earth to pass away, than for one dot of the law to fall away.

16:18 Everyone who divorces his wife and marries another commits adultery. And whoever marries her who has been divorced by her thousand? If not, then while the other is still far away, sending a delegation, he would ask him for terms of peace.

14:33 Therefore, everyone of you who does not renounce all that he possesses is not able to be my disciple.

14:34 Salt is good. But if the salt has lost its flavor, with what will it be seasoned?

14:35 It is useful neither in soil, nor in manure, so instead, it shall be thrown away. Whoever has ears to hear, let him hear.”
husband commits adultery. {16:19} A certain man was wealthy, and he was clothed in purple and in fine linen. And he feasted splendidly every day. {16:20} And there was a certain beggar, named Lazarus, who lay at his gate, covered with sores, {16:21} wanting to be filled with the crumbs which were falling from the wealthy man's table. But no one gave it to him. And even the dogs came and licked his sores. {16:22} Then it happened that the beggar died, and he was carried by the Angels into the bosom of Abraham. Now the wealthy man also died, and he was entombed in Hell. {16:23} Then lifting up his eyes, while he was in torments, he saw Abraham far away, and Lazarus in his bosom. {16:24} And crying out, he said: 'Father Abraham, take pity on me and send Lazarus, so that he may dip the tip of his finger in water to refresh my tongue. For I am tormented in this fire.' {16:25} And Abraham said to him: 'Son, recall that you received good things in your life, and in comparison, Lazarus received bad things. But now he is consoled, and truly you are tormented.' {16:26} And besides all this, between us and you a great chasm has been established, so that those who might want to cross from here to you are not able, nor can someone cross from there to here.' {16:27} And he said: 'Then, father, I beg you to send him to my father's house, for I have five brothers, {16:28} so that he may testify to them, lest they also come into this place of torments.' {16:29} And Abraham said to him: 'They have Moses and the prophets. Let them listen to them.' {16:30} So he said: 'No, father Abraham. But if someone were to go to them from the dead, they would repent.' {16:31} But he said to him: 'If they will not listen to Moses and the prophets, neither will they believe even if someone has resurrected from the dead.' "

[Luke 17] {17:1} And he said to his disciples: "It is impossible for scandals not to occur. But woe to him through whom they come! {17:2} It would be better for him if a millstone were placed around his neck and he were thrown into the sea, than to lead astray one of these little ones. {17:3} Be attentive to yourselves. If your brother has sinned against you, correct him. And if he has repented, forgive him. {17:4} And if he has sinned against you seven times a day, and seven times a day has turned back to you, saying, 'I am sorry,' then forgive him." {17:5} And the Apostles said to the Lord, "Increase our faith." {17:6} But the Lord said: "If you have faith like a grain of mustard seed, you may say to this mulberry tree, 'Be uprooted, and be transplanted into the sea.' And it would obey you. {17:7} But which of you, having a servant plowing or feeding cattle, would say to him, as he was returning from the field, 'Come in immediately; sit down to eat,' {17:8} and would not say to him: 'Prepare my dinner; gird yourself and minister to me, while I eat and drink; and after these things, you shall eat and drink?' {17:9} Would he be grateful to that servant, for doing what he commanded him to do? {17:10} I think not. So too, when you have done all these things that have been taught to you, you should say: 'We are useless servants. We have done what we should have done.' " {17:11} And it happened that, while he was traveling to Jerusalem, he passed through the midst of Samaria and Galilee. {17:12} And as he was entering a certain town, ten leprous men met him, and they stood at a distance. {17:13} And they lifted up their voice, saying, "Jesus, Teacher, take pity on us." {17:14} And when he saw them, he said, "Go, show yourselves to the priests." And it happened that, as they were going, they were cleansed. {17:15} And one of them, when he saw that he was cleansed, returned, magnifying God with a loud voice. {17:16} And he fell face down before his feet, giving thanks. And this one was a Samaritan. {17:17} And in response, Jesus said: "Were not ten made clean? And so where are the nine? {17:18} Was no one found who would return and give glory to God, except this foreigner?" {17:19} And he said to him: "Rise up, go forth. For your faith has saved you." {17:20} Then he was questioned by the Pharisees: "When does the kingdom of God arrive?" And in response, he said to them: "The kingdom of God arrives unobserved. {17:21} And so, they will not say, 'Behold, it is here,' or 'Behold, it is there.' For behold, the kingdom of God is within you." {17:22} And he said to his disciples: "The time will come when you will desire to see one day of the Son of man, and you will not see it. {17:23} And they will say to you, 'Behold, he is here,' and 'Behold, he is there.' Do not choose to go out, and do not follow them. {17:24} For just as lightning flashes from under heaven and shines to whatever is under heaven, so also will the Son of man be in his day. {17:25} But first he must suffer many things and be rejected by this generation. {17:26} And just as it happened in the days of Noah, so also will it be in the days of the Son of man. {17:27} They were eating and drinking; they were taking wives and being given in marriage, even until the day that Noah entered the ark. And the flood came and destroyed them all. {17:28} It shall be similar to what happened in the days of Lot. They were eating and drinking; they were buying and selling; they were planting and building. {17:29} Then, on the day that Lot departed from Sodom, it rained fire and brimstone from heaven, and it destroyed them all. {17:30} According to these things, so shall it be in the day when the Son of man will be revealed. {17:31} In that hour, whoever will be on the rooftop, with his goods in the house, let him not descend to take them. And whoever will be in the field, similarly, let him not turn back. {17:32} Remember Lot's wife. {17:33} Whoever has sought to save his life, will lose it; and whoever has lost it, will bring it back to life. {17:34} I say to you, in that night, there will be two in one bed. One will be taken up, and the other will be left behind. {17:35} Two will be at the grindstone together. One will be taken up, and the other will be left behind. Two will be in the field. One will be taken up, and the other will be left behind." {17:36} Responding, they said to him, "Where, Lord?" {17:37} And he said to them, "Wherever the body will be, in that place also, the eagles shall be gathered together."
vindication to them. Yet truly, when the Son of man returns, do you think that he will find faith on earth?"

And when he heard the multitude passing by, he asked what this was.

And they told him that Jesus of Nazareth was passing by.

And he cried out, saying, "Jesus, Son of David, take pity on me!"

And those who were passing by rebuked him, so that he would be silent. Yet truly, he cried out all the more, "Son of David, take pity on me!"

Then Jesus, standing still, ordered him to be brought to him. And when he had drawn near, he questioned him, saying, "What do you want, that I might do for you?" So he said, "Lord, that I may see."

And Jesus said to him: "Look around. Your faith has saved you."

And immediately he saw. And he followed him, magnifying God. And all the people, when they saw this, gave praise to God.

[Luke 19]

And having entered, he walked through Jericho.

And behold, there was a man named Zacchaeus. And he was the leader of the tax collectors, and he was wealthy.

And he sought to see Jesus, to see who he was. But he was unable to do so, because of the crowd, for he was small in stature.

And running ahead, he climbed up a sycamore tree, so that he might see him. For he was to pass near there.

When he had arrived at the place, Jesus looked up and saw him, and he said to him: "Zacchaeus, hurry down. For today, I should lodge in your house."

And hurrying, he came down, and he received him joyfully.

And when they all saw this, they murmured, saying that he had turned aside to a sinful man.

But Zacchaeus, standing still, said to the Lord: "Behold, Lord, one half of my goods I give to the poor. And if I have cheated anyone in any matter, I will repay him fourfold."

Jesus said to him: "Today, salvation has come to this house; because of this, he too is a son of Abraham."

For the Son of man has come to seek and to save what was lost."

As they were listening to these things, continuing on, he spoke a parable, because he was nearing Jerusalem, and because they guessed that the kingdom of God might be manifested without delay.

Therefore, he said: "A certain man of nobility traveled to a far away region, to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return.

And calling his ten servants, he ordered the one to reign over us."

Therefore, he said: "A certain man of nobility traveled to a far away region, to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return.

And calling his ten servants, he ordered the one to reign over us."

When the disciples saw this, they rebuked them.

And when the people brought little children to him, so that he might touch them.

Whoever will not accept the kingdom of God like a child, will not enter into it,"

And a certain leader questioned him, saying: "Good teacher, what should I do to possess eternal life?"

Then Jesus said to him: "Why do you call me good? No one is good except God alone. You shall not commit adultery. You shall not steal. You shall not give false testimony. Honor your father and mother.

And he said, "I have kept all these things from my youth."

And when Jesus heard this, he said to him: "One thing is still lacking for you. Sell all the things that you have, and give to the poor. And then you will have treasure in heaven. And come, follow me."

When he heard this, he became very sorrowful. For he was very rich.

Then Jesus, seeing him brought to sorrow, said: "How difficult it is for those who have money to enter into the kingdom of God!

For it is easier for a camel to pass through the eye of a needle, than for a wealthy man to enter into the kingdom of God."

And those who were listening to this said, "Then who is able to be saved?"

He said to them, "Things that are impossible with men are possible with God."

And Peter said, "Behold, we have left everything, and we have followed you."

And he said to them: "Amen, I say to you, there is no one who has left behind home, or parents, or brothers, or a wife, or children, for the sake of the kingdom of God."

Who will not receive much more in this time, and in the age to come eternal life."

Then Jesus took the twelve aside, and he said to them: "Behold, we are ascending to Jerusalem, and everything shall be completed which was written by the prophets about the Son of man.

For he will be handed over to the Gentiles, and he will be mocked and scourged and spit upon.

And after they have scourged him, they will kill him. And on the third day, he will rise again."

But they understood none of these things. For this word was concealed from them, and they did not understand the things that were said.

Now it happened that, as he was approaching Jericho, a certain blind man was sitting beside the way, begging.

And when he heard the multitude passing by, he asked what this was.

And they told him that Jesus of Nazareth was passing by.

And he cried out, saying, "Jesus, Son of David, take pity on me!"

And those who were passing by rebuked him, so that he would be silent. Yet truly, he cried out all the more, "Son of David, take pity on me!"

Then Jesus, standing still, ordered him to be brought to him. And when he had drawn near, he questioned him, saying, "What do you want, that I might do for you?" So he said, "Lord, that I may see."

And immediately he saw. And he followed him, magnifying God. And all the people, when they saw this, gave praise to God.
the bank, so that, upon my return, I might have withdrawn it with interest?" {19:24} And he said to the bystanders, 'Take the pound away from him, and give it to him who has ten pounds.' {19:25} And they said to him, 'Lord, he has ten pounds.' {19:26} So then, I say to you, that to all who have, it shall be given, and he will have in abundance. And from him who does not have, even what he has will be taken from him. {19:27} Yet truly, as for those enemies of mine, who did not want me to reign over them, bring them here, and put them to death before me.' " {19:28} And having said these things, he went ahead, ascending to Jerusalem. {19:29} And it happened that, when he had drawn near to Bethphage and Bethania, to the mount which is called Olivet, he sent two of his disciples, {19:30} saying: "Go into the town which is opposite you. Upon entering it, you will find the colt of a donkey, tied, on which no man has ever sat. Untie it, and lead it here. {19:31} And if anyone will ask you, 'Why are you untying it?' you shall say this to him: 'Because the Lord has requested its service.' " {19:32} And those who were sent went out, and they found the colt standing, just as he told them. {19:33} Then, as they were untying the colt, its owners said to them, "Why are you untying the colt?" {19:34} So they said, "Because the Lord has need of it." {19:35} And they led it to Jesus. And casting their garments on the colt, they helped Jesus onto it. {19:36} Then, as he was traveling, they were laying down their garments along the way. {19:37} And when he was now drawing near to the descent of Mount Olivet, the entire crowd of his disciples began to praise God joyfully, with a loud voice, over all the powerful works which they had seen, {19:38} saying: "Blessed is the king who has arrived in the name of the Lord! Peace in heaven and glory on high!" {19:39} And certain Pharisees within the crowd said to him, "Teacher, rebuke your disciples." {19:40} And he said to them, "I tell you, that if these will keep silent, the stones themselves will cry out." {19:41} And when he drew near, seeing the city, he wept over it, saying: {19:42} "If only you had known, indeed even in this your day, which things are for your peace. But now they are hidden from your eyes. {19:43} For the days will overtake you. And your enemies will encircle you with a valley. And they will surround you and hem you in on every side. {19:44} And they will knock you down to the ground, with your sons who are in you. And they will not leave stone upon stone within you, because you did not recognize the time of your visitation." {19:45} And entering into the temple, he began to cast out those who sold in it, and those who bought, {19:46} saying to them: "It is written: 'My house is a house of prayer.' But you have made it into a den of robbers." {19:47} And he was teaching in the temple daily. And the leaders of the priests, and the scribes, and the leaders of the people were seeking to destroy him. {19:48} But they could not find what to do to him. For all the people were listening to him attentively.
also died. {20:33} In the resurrection, then, whose wife will she be? For certainly all seven had her as a wife.” {20:34} And so, Jesus said to them: “The children of this age marry and are given in marriage. {20:35} Yet truly, those who shall be held worthy of that age, and of the resurrection from the dead, will neither be married, nor take wives. {20:36} For they can no longer die. For they are equal to the Angels, and they are children of God, since they are children of the resurrection. {20:37} For in truth, the dead do rise again, as Moses also showed beside the bush, when he called the Lord: 'The God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.' {20:38} And so he is not the God of the dead, but of the living. For all are alive to him.” {20:39} Then some of the scribes, in response, said to him, “Teacher, you have spoken well.” {20:40} And they no longer dared to question him about anything. {20:41} But he said to them: “How can they say that the Christ is the son of David? {20:42} Even David himself says, in the book of Psalms: ‘The Lord said to my Lord, sit at my right hand, until I set your enemies as your footstool.’ {20:44} Therefore, David calls him Lord. So how can he be his son?” {20:45} Now in the hearing of all the people, he said to his disciples: {20:46} “Be cautious of the scribes, who choose to walk in long robes, and who love greetings in the marketplace, and the first chairs in the synagogues, and the first places at table during feasts, {20:47} who devour the houses of widows, feigning long prayers. These will receive the greater damnation.”

[Luke 21] {21:1} And looking around, he saw the wealthy putting their donations into the offertory. {21:2} Then he also saw a certain widow, a pauper, putting in two small brass coins. {21:3} And he said: “Truly, I say to you, that this poor widow has put in more than all the others. {21:4} For all these, out of their abundance, have added to the gifts for God. But she, out of what she needed, has put in all that she had to live on.” {21:5} And when some of them were saying, about the temple, that it was adorned with excellent stones and gifts, he said, {21:6} “These things that you see, the days will arrive when there will not be left behind stone upon stone, which is not thrown down.” {21:7} Then they questioned him, saying: “Teacher, when will these things be? And what will be the sign when these things will happen?” {21:8} And he said: “Be cautious, lest you be seduced. For many will come in my name, saying: ‘For I am he,’ and, ‘The time has drawn near.’ And so, do not choose to go after them. {21:9} And when you will have heard of battles and seditions, do not be terrified. These things must happen first. But the end is not so soon.” {21:10} Then he said to them: “People will rise up against people, and kingdom against kingdom. {21:11} And there will be great earthquakes in various places, and pestilences, and famines, and terrors from heaven; and there will be great signs. {21:12} But before all these things, they will lay their hands on you and persecute you, dragging you over to synagogues and into custody, dragging you before kings and governors, because of my name. {21:13} And this will be an opportunity for you to give testimony. {21:14} Therefore, set this in your hearts: that you should not consider in advance how you might respond. {21:15} For I will give to you a mouth and wisdom, which all your adversaries will not be able to resist or contradict. {21:16} And you will be handed over by your parents, and brothers, and relatives, and friends. And they will bring about the death of some of you. {21:17} And you will be hated by all because of my name. {21:18} And yet, not a hair of your head will perish. {21:19} By your patience, you shall possess your souls. {21:20} Then, when you will have seen Jerusalem encircled by an army, know then that its desolation has drawn near. {21:21} Then let those who are in Judea flee to the mountains, and those who are in its midst withdraw, and those who are in the countryside not enter into it. {21:22} For these are the days of retribution, so that all things may be fulfilled, which have been written. {21:23} Then woe to those who are pregnant or nursing in those days. For there will be great distress upon the land and great wrath upon this people. {21:24} And they will fall by the edge of the sword. And they will be led away as captives into all nations. And Jerusalem will be trampled by the Gentiles, until the times of the nations are fulfilled. {21:25} And there will be signs in the sun and the moon and the stars. And there will be, on earth, distress among the Gentiles, out of confusion at the roaring of the sea and of the waves: {21:26} men withering away out of fear and out of apprehension over the things that will overwhelm the whole world. For the powers of the heavens will be moved. {21:27} And then they will see the Son of man coming on a cloud, with great power and majesty. {21:28} But when these things begin to happen, lift up your heads and look around you, because your redemption draws near.” {21:29} And he told them a comparison: “Take notice of the fig tree and of all the trees. {21:30} When presently they produce fruit from themselves, you know that summer is near. {21:31} So you also, when you will have seen these things happen, know that the kingdom of God is near. {21:32} Amen I say to you, this lineage shall not pass away, until all these things happen. {21:33} Heaven and earth shall pass away. But my words shall not pass away. {21:34} But be attentive to yourselves, lest perhaps your hearts may be weighed down by self-indulgence and inebriation and the cares of this life. And then that day may overwhelm you suddenly. {21:35} For like a snare it will overwhelm all those who sit upon the face of the entire earth. {21:36} And so, be vigilant, praying at all times, so that you may be held worthy to escape from all these things, which are in the future, and to stand before the Son of man.” {21:37} Now in the daytime, he was teaching in the temple. But truly, departing in the evening, he lodged on the mount that is called Olivet. {21:38} And all the people arrived in the morning to listen to him in the temple.

[Luke 22] {22:1} Now the days of the Feast of Unleavened Bread, which is called Passover, were approaching. {22:2} And the leaders of the priests, and the scribes, were seeking a way to execute Jesus. Yet truly, they were afraid of the people. {22:3} Then Satan entered into Judas, who was surnamed Iscariot, one of the twelve. {22:4} And he went out and was speaking with the leaders of the priests, and the magistrates, as to how he might hand him over to them. {22:5} And they were glad, and so they made an agreement to give him money. {22:6} And he made a promise. And he was seeking an opportunity to hand him over, apart from the crowds. {22:7} Then the day of Unleavened Bread arrived, on which it was necessary to kill the Pascal lamb. {22:8} And he sent Peter and John, saying, “Go out, and prepare the Passover for us, so that we may eat.” {22:9} But they said, “Where do you want us to prepare it?” {22:10} And he said to them: “Behold, as you are entering into the city, a certain man will meet you, carrying a pitcher of water. Follow him to the house into which he enters. {22:11} And you shall say to the father of the household: ‘The Teacher says to you: Where is the guestroom, where I may eat the Passover with my disciples?’ {22:12} And he will show you a large cenacle, fully furnished. And so, prepare it there.” {22:13} And going out, they found it to be just as he had told them. And they prepared the Passover. {22:14} And when the hour had arrived, he sat down at table, and the twelve Apostles with him. {22:15} And he said to them: “With longing have I desired to eat this Passover with you, before I suffer. {22:16} For I say to you, that from this time, I will not eat it, until it is fulfilled in the kingdom of God.” {22:17} And having taken the chalice, he gave thanks, and he said: “Take this and share it among yourselves. {22:18} For I say to you, that I will not drink from the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God arrives.” {22:19} And taking bread, he gave thanks and broke it and gave it to them, saying: “This is my body, which is given for you. Do this as a commemoration of me.” {22:20} Similarly also, he took the chalice, after he had eaten the meal, saying: “This chalice is the new covenant in my blood, which will be shed for you. {22:21} But in truth, behold, the hand of my betrayer is with me at table. {22:22} And indeed, the Son of man goes according to what has been determined. And yet, woe to that man by whom he will be betrayed.” {22:23} And they began to inquire among themselves, as to which of them might do this. {22:24} Now there was also a contention among them, as to which of them seemed to be the greater. {22:25} And he said to them: “The kings of the Gentiles dominate them; and those who hold authority over them are called beneficent. {22:26} But it must not be so with you. Instead, whoever is greater among you, let him become the lesser. And whoever is the leader, let him become the server. {22:27} For who is greater: he who sits at table, or he who serves? Is not he who sits at table? Yet I am in your midst as one who serves. {22:28} But you are those who have remained with me during my trials. {22:29} And I dispose to you, just as my Father has disposed to me, a kingdom, {22:30} so that you may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and so that you may sit upon thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel.” {22:31} And the Lord said: “Simon, Simon! Behold, Satan has asked for you, so that he may sift you like wheat. {22:32} But I have prayed for you, so that your faith may not fail, and so that you, once converted, may confirm your brothers.” {22:33} And he said to him, “Lord, I am prepared to go with you, even to prison and to death.” {22:34} And he said, “I say to you, Peter, the rooster will not crow this day, until you have three times denied that you know me.” And he said to them, {22:35} “When I sent you without money or provisions or shoes, did you lack anything?” {22:36} And they said, “Nothing.” Then he said to them: “But now, let whoever has money take it, and likewise with provisions. And whoever does not have these, let him sell his coat and buy a sword. {22:37} For I say to you, that what has been written must still be fulfilled in me: ‘And he was esteemed with the wicked.’ Yet even these things about me have an end.” {22:38} So they said, “Lord, behold, there are two swords here.” But he said to them, “It is sufficient.” {22:39} And departing, he went out, according to his custom, to the Mount of Olives. And his disciples also followed him. {22:40} And when he had arrived at the place, he said to them: “Pray, lest you enter into temptation.” {22:41} And he was separated from them by about a stone’s throw. And kneeling down, he prayed, {22:42} saying: “Father, if you are willing, take this chalice away from me. Yet truly, let not my will, but yours, be done.” {22:43} Then an Angel appeared to him from heaven, strengthening him. And being in agony, he prayed more intensely; {22:44} and so his sweat became like drops of blood, running down to the ground. {22:45} And when he had risen up from prayer and had gone to his disciples, he found them sleeping out of sorrow. {22:46} And he said to them: “Why are you sleeping? Rise up, pray, lest you enter into temptation.” {22:47} While he was still speaking, behold, a crowd arrived. And he who is called Judas, one of the twelve, went ahead of them and approached Jesus, in order to kiss him. {22:48} And Jesus said to him, “Judas, do you betray the Son of man with a kiss?” {22:49} Then those who were around him, realizing what was about to happen, said to him: “Lord, shall we strike with the sword?” {22:50} And one of them struck the servant of the high priest and cut off his right ear. {22:51} But in response, Jesus said, “Permit even this.” And when he had touched his ear, he healed him. {22:52} Then Jesus said to the leaders of the priests, and the magistrates of the temple, and the elders, who had come to him: “Have you gone out, as if against a thief, with swords and clubs? {22:53} When I was with you each day in the temple, you did not extend your hands against me. But this is your hour and that of the power of darkness.” {22:54} And apprehending him, they led him to the house of the high priest. Yet truly, Peter followed at a distance. {22:55} Now as they were sitting around a fire, which had been kindled in the middle of the atrium, Peter was in their midst. {22:56} And when a certain woman servant had seen him sitting in its light, and had looked at him intently, she said, “This one was also with him.” {22:57} But he denied him by saying, “Woman, I do not know him.” {22:58} And after a little while, another one, seeing him, said, “You also are one of them.” Yet Peter said, “O man, I am not.” {22:59} And after the interval of about one hour had passed, someone else affirmed it, saying: “Truly, this one also was with him. For he is also a Galilean.” {22:60} And Peter said: “Man, I do not know what you are saying.” And at once, while he was still speaking, the rooster crowed. {22:61} And the Lord turned around and looked at Peter. And Peter remembered the word of the Lord that he had said: “For before the rooster crows, you will deny me three times.” {22:62} And going out, Peter wept bitterly. {22:63} And the men who were holding him ridiculed him and beat him. {22:64} And they blindfolded him and repeatedly struck his face. And they questioned him, saying: “Prophesy! Who is it that struck you?” {22:65} And blaspheming in many other ways, they spoke against him. {22:66} And when it was daytime, the elders of the people, and the leaders of the priests, and the scribes convened. And they led him into their council, saying, “If you are the Christ, tell us.” {22:67} And he said to them: “If I tell you, you will not believe me. {22:68} And if I also question you, you will not answer me. Neither will you release me. {22:69} But from this time, the Son of man will be sitting at the right hand of the power of God.” {22:70} Then they all said, “So you are the Son of God?” And he said. “You are saying that I am.” {22:71} And they said: "Why do we still require testimony? For we have heard it ourselves, from his own mouth."

[Luke 23] {23:1} And the entire multitude of them, rising up, led him to Pilate. {23:2} Then they began to accuse him, saying, "We found this one subverting our nation, and prohibiting giving tribute to Caesar, and saying that he is Christ the king." {23:3} And Pilate questioned him, saying: "You are the king of the Jews?" But in response, he said: "You are saying it." {23:4} Then Pilate said to the leaders of the priests and to the crowds, "I find no case against this man." {23:5} But they continued more intensely, saying: "He has stirred up the people, teaching throughout all of Judea, beginning from Galilee, even to this place." {23:6} But Pilate, upon hearing Galilee, asked if the man were of Galilee. {23:7} And when he realized that he was under Herod's jurisdiction, he sent him away to Herod, who was himself also at Jerusalem in those days. {23:8} Then Herod, upon seeing Jesus, was very glad. For he had been wanting to see him for a long time, because he had heard so many things about him, and he was hoping to see some kind of sign wrought by him. {23:9} Then he questioned him with many words. But he gave him no response at all. {23:10} And the leaders of the priests, and the scribes, stood firm in persistently accusing him. {23:11} Then Herod, with his soldiers, scorned him. And he ridiculed him, clothing him in a white garment. And he sent him back to Pilate. {23:12} And Herod and Pilate became friends on that day. For previously they were enemies to one another. {23:13} And Pilate, calling together the leaders of the priests, and the magistrates, and the people, {23:14} said to them: "You have brought before me this man, as one who disturbs the people. And behold, having questioned him before you, I find no case against this man, in those things about which you accuse him. {23:15} And neither did Herod. For I sent you all to him, and behold, nothing deserving of death was recorded about him. {23:16} Therefore, I will chastise him and release him." {23:17} Now he was required to release one person for them on the feast day. {23:18} But the entire crowd exclaimed together, saying: "Take this one, and release to us Barabbas!" {23:19} Now he had been cast into prison because of a certain sedition that occurred in the city and for murder. {23:20} Then Pilate spoke to them again, wanting to release Jesus. {23:21} But they shouted in response, saying: "Crucify him! Crucify him!" {23:22} Then he said to them a third time: "Why? What evil has he done? I find no case against him for death. Therefore, I will chastise him and release him." {23:23} But they persisted, with loud voices, in demanding that he be crucified. And their voices increased in intensity. {23:24} And so Pilate issued a judgment granting their petition. {23:25} Then he released for them the one who had been cast into prison for murder and sedition, whom they were requesting. Yet truly, Jesus he handed over to their will. {23:26} And as they were leading him away, they apprehended a certain one, Simon of Cyrene, as he was returning from the countryside. And they imposed the cross on him to carry after Jesus. {23:27} Then a great crowd of people followed him, with women who were mourning and lamenting him. {23:28} But Jesus, turning to them, said: "Daughters of Jerusalem, do not weep over me. Instead, weep over yourselves and over your children. {23:29} For behold, the days will arrive in which they will say, 'Blessed are the barren, and the wombs that have not borne, and the breasts that have not nursed.' {23:30} Then they will begin to say to the mountains, 'Fall over us,' and to the hills, 'Cover us.' {23:31} For if they do these things with green wood, what will be done with the dry?" {23:32} Now they also led out two other criminals with him, in order to execute them. {23:33} And when they arrived at the place that is called Calvary, they crucified him there, with the robbers, one to the right and the other to the left. {23:34} Then Jesus said, "Father, forgive them. For they know not what they do." And truly, dividing his garments, they cast lots. {23:35} And people were standing near, watching. And the leaders among them derided him, saying: "He saved others. Let him save himself, if this one is the Christ, the elect of God." {23:36} And the soldiers also ridiculed him, approaching him and offering him vinegar, {23:37} and saying, "If you are the king of the Jews, save yourself." {23:38} Now there was also an inscription written over him in letters of Greek, and Latin, and Hebrew: THIS IS THE KING OF THE JEWS. {23:39} And one of those robbers who were hanging blasphemed him, saying, "If you are the Christ, save yourself and us." {23:40} But the other responded by rebuking him, saying: "Do you have no fear of God, since you are under the same condemnation? {23:41} And indeed, it is just for us. For we are receiving what our deeds deserve. But truly, this one has done nothing wrong." {23:42} And he said to Jesus, "Lord, remember me when you come into your kingdom." {23:43} And Jesus said to him, "Amen I say to you, this day you shall be with me in Paradise." {23:44} Now it was nearly the sixth hour, and a darkness occurred over the entire earth, until the ninth hour. {23:45} And the sun was obscured. And the veil of the temple was torn down the middle. {23:46} And Jesus, crying out with a loud voice, said: "Father, into your hands I commend my spirit." And upon saying this, he expired. {23:47} Now, the centurion, seeing what had happened, glorified God, saying, "Truly, this man was the Just One." {23:48} And the entire crowd of those who came together to see this spectacle also saw what had happened, and they returned, striking their breasts. {23:49} Now all those who knew him, and the women who had followed him from Galilee, were standing at a distance, watching these things. {23:50} And behold, there was a man named Joseph, who was a councilman, a good and just man, {23:51} (for he had not consented to their decision or their actions). He was from Arimathea, a city of Judea. And he was himself also anticipating the kingdom of God. {23:52} This man approached Pilate and petitioned for the body of Jesus. {23:53} And taking him down, he wrapped him in a fine linen cloth, and he placed him in a tomb hewn from rock, in which no one had ever been placed. {23:54} And it was the day of Preparation, and the Sabbath was drawing near. {23:55} Now the women who had come with him from Galilee, by following, saw the tomb and the manner in which his body was placed. {23:56} And upon returning, they prepared aromatic spices and ointments. But on the Sabbath, indeed, they rested, according to the commandment.

[Luke 24] {24:1} Then, on the first Sabbath, at very first light, they went to the tomb, carrying the aromatic spices that they had prepared. {24:2} And they found the stone rolled back from the tomb. {24:3} And upon entering, they did not find the body of the Lord Jesus. {24:4} And it happened that, while their minds were still confused about this, behold, two men stood beside them, in shining apparel. {24:5} Then, since they were afraid and were turning their faces toward the ground, these two said to them: “Why do you seek the living with the dead? {24:6} He is not here, for he has risen. Recall how he spoke to you, when he was still in Galilee, {24:7} saying: ‘For the Son of man must be delivered into the hands of sinful men, and be crucified, and on the third day rise again.’ ” {24:8} And they called to mind his words.

{24:9} And returning from the tomb, they reported all these things to the eleven, and to all the others. {24:10} Now it was Mary Magdalene, and Joanna, and Mary of James, and the other women who were with them, who told these things to the Apostles. {24:11} But these words seemed to them a delusion. And so they did not believe them. {24:12} But Peter, rising up, ran to the tomb. And stooping down, he saw the linen cloths positioned alone, and he went away wondering to himself about what had happened. {24:13} And behold, two of them went out, on the same day, to a town named Emmaus, which was the distance of sixty stadia from Jerusalem. {24:14} And they spoke to one another about all of these things that had occurred. {24:15} And it happened that, while they were speculating and questioning within themselves, Jesus himself, drawing near, traveled with them. {24:16} But their eyes were restrained, so that they would not recognize him. {24:17} And he said to them, “What are these words, which you are discussing with one another, as you walk and are sad?” {24:18} And one of them, whose name was Cleopas, responded by saying to him, “Are you the only one visiting Jerusalem who does not know the things that have happened there in these days?” {24:19} And he said to them, “What things?” And they said, “About Jesus of Nazareth, who was a noble prophet, powerful in works and in words, before God and all the people. {24:20} And how our high priests and leaders handed him over to be condemned to death. And they crucified him. {24:21} But we were hoping that he would be the Redeemer of Israel. And now, on top of all this, today is the third day since these things have happened. {24:22} Then, too, certain women from among us terrified us. For before daytime, they were at the tomb, {24:23} and, having not found his body, they returned, saying that they had even seen a vision of Angels, who said that he is alive. {24:24} And some of us went out to the tomb. And they found it just as the women had said. But truly, they did not find him.”

{24:25} And he said to them: “How foolish and reluctant in heart you are, to believe everything that has been spoken by the Prophets! {24:26} Was not the Christ required to suffer these things, and so enter into his glory?” {24:27} And beginning from Moses and all the Prophets, he interpreted for them, in all the Scriptures, the things that were about him. {24:28} And they drew near to the town where they were going. And he conducted himself so as to go on further. {24:29} But they were without him, saying, “Remain with us, because it is toward evening and now daylight is declining.” And so he entered with them. {24:30} And it happened that, while he was at table with them, he took bread, and he blessed and broke it, and he extended it to them. {24:31} And their eyes were opened, and they recognized him. And he vanished from their eyes. {24:32} And they said to one another, “Was not our heart burning within us, while he was speaking on the way, and when he opened the Scriptures to us?” {24:33} And rising up at that same hour, they returned to Jerusalem. And they found the eleven gathered together, and those who were with them, {24:34} saying: “In truth, the Lord has risen, and he has appeared to Simon.” {24:35} And they explained the things that were done on the way, and how they had recognized him at the breaking of the bread. {24:36} Then, while they were talking about these things, Jesus stood in their midst, And he said to them: “Peace be with you. It is I. Do not be afraid.” {24:37} Yet truly, they were very disturbed and terrified, supposing that they saw a spirit.

{24:38} And he said to them: “Why are you disturbed, and why do these thoughts rise up in your hearts? {24:39} See my hands and feet, that it is I myself. Look and touch. For a spirit does not have flesh and bones, as you see that I have.” {24:40} And when he had said this, he showed them his hands and feet. {24:41} Then, while they were still in disbelief and in wonder out of joy, he said, “Do you have anything here to eat?” {24:42} And they offered him a piece of roasted fish and a honeycomb. {24:43} And when he had eaten these in their sight, taking up what was left, he gave it to them. {24:44} And he said to them: “These are the words that I spoke to you when I was still with you, because all things must be fulfilled which are written in the law of Moses, and in the Prophets, and in the Psalms about me.”

{24:45} Then he opened their mind, so that they might understand the Scriptures. {24:46} And he said to them: “For so it is written, and so it was necessary, for the Christ to suffer and to rise up from the dead on the third day, and, in his name, for repentance and the remission of sins to be preached, among all the nations, beginning at Jerusalem. {24:48} And you are witnesses of these things. {24:49} And I am sending the Promise of my Father upon you. But you must stay in the city, until such time as you are clothed with power from on high.” {24:50} Then he led them out as far as Bethania. And lifting up his hands, he blessed them. {24:51} And it happened that, while he was blessing them, he withdrew from them, and he was carried up into heaven. {24:52} And worshiping, they returned to Jerusalem with great joy. {24:53} And they were always in the temple, praising and blessing God. Amen.

 The Gospel of John **

[John 1] {1:1} In the beginning was the Word, and the Word was with God, and God was the Word. {1:2} He was with God in the beginning. {1:3} All things were made through Him, and nothing that was made was made without Him. {1:4} Life was in Him, and Life was the light of men. {1:5} And the light shines in the darkness, and the darkness did not comprehend it. {1:6} There was a man sent by God, whose name was John. {1:7} He arrived as a witness to offer testimony about the Light, so that all would believe through him. {1:8} He was not the Light, but he was to offer testimony about the Light. {1:9} The true Light, which illuminates every man, was coming into this world. {1:10} He was in the world, and the world was made through him, and the world did not recognize him. {1:11} He went to his own, and his own did not accept him. {1:12} Yet whoever did accept him, those who believed in his name, he gave them the power to become the sons of God.
{1:13} These are born, not of blood, nor of the will of flesh, nor of the will of man, but of God.
{1:14} And the Word became flesh, and he lived among us, and we saw his glory, glory like that of an only-begotten son from the Father, full of grace and truth.
{1:15} John offers testimony about him, and he cries out, saying: “This is the one about whom I said: ‘He who is to come after me, has been placed ahead of me, because he existed before me.’ ”
{1:16} And from his fullness, we all have received, even grace for grace.
{1:17} For the law was given though Moses, but grace and truth came through Jesus Christ.
{1:18} No one ever saw God; the only-begotten Son, who is in the bosom of the Father, he himself has described him.
{1:19} And this is the testimony of John, when the Jews sent priests and Levites from Jerusalem to him, so that they might ask him, “Who are you?”
{1:20} And he confessed it and did not deny it; and what he confessed was: “I am not the Christ.”
{1:21} And they questioned him: “Then what are you? Are you Elijah?” And he said, “I am not.” “Are you the Prophet?” And he answered, “No.”
{1:22} Therefore, they said to him: “Who are you, so that we may give an answer to those who sent us? What do you say about yourself?”
{1:23} He said, “I am a voice crying out in the desert, ‘Make straight the way of the Lord,’ just as the prophet Isaiah said.”
{1:24} And some of those who had been sent were from among the Pharisees.
{1:25} And they questioned him and said to him, “Then why do you baptize, if you are not the Christ, and not Elijah, and not the Prophet?”
{1:26} John answered them by saying: “I baptize with water. But in your midst stands one, whom you do not know.
{1:27} The same is he who is to come after me, who has been placed ahead of me, the laces of whose shoes I am not worthy to loosen.”
{1:28} These things happened in Bethania, across the Jordan, where John was baptizing.
{1:29} On the next day, John saw Jesus coming toward him, and so he said: “Behold, the Lamb of God. Behold, he who takes away the sin of the world.
{1:30} This is the one about whom I said, ‘After me arrives a man, who has been placed ahead of me, because he existed before me.’ ”
{1:31} And I did not know him. Yet it is for this reason that I come baptizing with water: so that he may be made manifest in Israel.”
{1:32} And John offered testimony, saying: “For I saw the Spirit descending from heaven like a dove; and he remained upon him.
{1:33} And I did not know him. But he who sent me to baptize with water said to me: ‘He over whom you will see the Spirit descending and remaining upon him, this is the one who baptizes with the Holy Spirit.’ ”
{1:34} And I saw, and I gave testimony: that this one is the Son of God.”
{1:35} The next day again, John was standing with two of his disciples.
{1:36} And catching sight of Jesus walking, he said, “Behold, the Lamb of God.”
{1:37} And two disciples were listening to him speaking. And they followed Jesus.
{1:38} Then Jesus, turning around and seeing them following him, said to them, “What are you seeking?” And they said to him, “Rabbi (which means in translation, Teacher), where do you live?”
{1:39} He said to them, “Come and see.” They went and saw where he was staying, and they stayed with him that day. Now it was about the tenth hour.
{1:40} And Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter, was one of the two who had heard about him from John and had followed him.
{1:41} First, he found his brother Simon, and he said to him, “We have found the Messiah,” (which is translated as the Christ).
{1:42} And he led him to Jesus. And Jesus, gazing at him, said: “You are Simon, son of Jonah. You shall be called Cephas,” (which is translated as Peter).
{1:43} On the next day, he wanted to go into Galilee, and he found Philip. And Jesus said to him, “Follow me.”
{1:44} Now Philip was from Bethsaida, the city of Andrew and Peter.
{1:45} Philip found Nathanael, and he said to him, “We have found the one about whom Moses wrote in the Law and the Prophets: Jesus, the son of Joseph, from Nazareth.”
{1:46} And Nathanael said to him, “Can anything good be from Nazareth?” Philip said to him, “Come and see.”
{1:47} Jesus saw Nathanael coming toward him, and he said about him, “Behold, an Israelite in whom truly there is no deceit.”
{1:48} Nathanael said to him, “From where do you know me?” Jesus responded and said to him, “Before Philip called you, when you were under the fig tree, I saw you.”
{1:49} Nathanael answered him and said: “Rabbi, you are the Son of God. You are the King of Israel.”
{1:50} Jesus responded and said to him: “Because I told you that I saw you under the fig tree, you believe. Greater things than these, you will see.”
{1:51} And he said to him, “Amen, amen, I say to you, you will see heaven opened, and the Angels of God ascending and descending over the Son of man.”

[John 2]
{2:1} And on the third day, a wedding was held in Cana of Galilee, and the mother of Jesus was there.
{2:2} Now Jesus was also invited to the wedding, with his disciples.
{2:3} And when the wine was failing, the mother of Jesus said to him, “They have no wine.”
{2:4} And Jesus said to her: “What is that to me and to you, woman? My hour has not yet arrived.”
{2:5} His mother said to the servants, “Do whatever he tells you.”
{2:6} Now in that place, there were six stone water jars, for the purification ritual of the Jews, containing two or three measures each.
{2:7} Jesus said to them, “Fill the water jars with water.” And they filled them to the very top.
{2:8} And Jesus said to them, “Now draw from it, and carry it to the chief steward of the feast.” And they took it to him.
{2:9} Then, when the chief steward had tasted the water made into wine, since he did not know where it was from, for only the servants who had drawn the water knew, the chief steward called the groom,
{2:10} and he said to him: “Every man offers the good wine first, and then, when they have become inebriated, he offers what is worse. But you have kept the good wine until now.”
{2:11} This was the beginning of the signs that Jesus accomplished in Cana of Galilee, and it manifested his glory, and his disciples believed in him.
{2:12} After this, he descended to Capernaum, with his mother and his brothers and his disciples, but they did not remain there for many days.
{2:13} And the Passover of the Jews was near, and so Jesus ascended to Jerusalem.
{2:14} And he found, sitting in the temple, sellers of oxen and sheep and doves, and the moneychangers.
{2:15} And when he had made something like a whip out of little cords, he drove them all out of the temple, including the sheep and the oxen. And he poured out the brass coins of the moneychangers, and he overturned their tables.
{2:16} And to those who were selling doves, he said: “Take these things out of here, and do not make my Father’s house into a house of commerce.”
{2:17} And truly, his disciples were reminded that it is written: “Zeal for your house consumes me.”
{2:18} Then the Jews responded and said to him, “What sign can you show to us, that you may do these things?” {2:19} Jesus responded and said to them, “Destroy this temple, and in three days I will raise it up.” {2:20} Then the Jews said, “This temple has been built up over forty-six years, and you will raise it up in three days?” {2:21} Yet he was speaking about the Temple of his body. {2:22} Therefore, when he had resurrected from the dead, his disciples were reminded that he had said this, and they believed in the Scriptures and in the word that Jesus had spoken. {2:23} Now while he was at Jerusalem during the Passover, on the day of the feast, many trusted in his name, seeing his signs that he was accomplishing. {2:24} But Jesus did not trust himself to them, because he himself had knowledge of all persons, {2:25} and because he had no need of anyone to offer testimony about a man. For he knew what was within a man.

[John 3] {3:1} Now there was a man among the Pharisees, named Nicodemus, a leader of the Jews. {3:2} He went to Jesus at night, and he said to him: “Rabbi, we know that you have arrived as a teacher from God. For no one would be able to accomplish these signs, which you accomplish, unless God were with him.” {3:3} Jesus responded and said to him, “Amen, amen, I say to you, unless one has been reborn anew, he is not able to see the kingdom of God.” {3:4} Nicodemus said to him: “How could a man be born when he is old? Surely, he cannot enter a second time into his mother’s womb to be reborn?” {3:5} Jesus responded: “Amen, amen, I say to you, unless one has been reborn anew, it is not possible to enter the kingdom of God.” {3:6} What is born of the flesh is flesh, and what is born of the Spirit is spirit. {3:7} You should not be amazed that I said to you: You must be born anew. {3:8} The Spirit inspires where he wills. And you hear his voice, but you do not know where he comes from, or where he is going. So it is with all who are born of the Spirit.” {3:9} Nicodemus responded and said to him, “How are these things able to be accomplished?” {3:10} Jesus responded and said to him: “You are a teacher in Israel, and you are ignorant of these things? {3:11} Amen, amen, I say to you, that we speak about what we know, and we testify about what we have seen. But you do not accept our testimony. {3:12} If I have spoken to you about earthly things, and you have not believed, then how will you believe, if I will speak to you about heavenly things? {3:13} And no one has ascended from heaven, except the one who descended from heaven: the Son of man who is in heaven. {3:14} And just as Moses lifted up the serpent in the desert, so also must the Son of man be lifted up, {3:15} so that whoever believes in him may not perish, but may have eternal life. {3:16} For God so loved the world that he gave his only-begotten Son, so that all who believe in him may not perish, but may have eternal life. {3:17} For God did not send his Son into the world, in order to judge the world, but in order that the world may be saved through him. {3:18} Whoever believes in him is not judged. But whoever does not believe is already judged, because he does not believe in the name of the only-begotten Son of God. {3:19} And this is the judgment: that the Light has come into the world, and men loved darkness more than light. For their works were evil. {3:20} For everyone who does evil hates the Light and does not go toward the Light, so that his works may not be corrected. {3:21} But whoever acts in truth goes toward the Light, so that his works may be manifested, because they have been accomplished in God.”

{3:22} After these things, Jesus and his disciples went into the land of Judea. And he was living there with them and baptizing. {3:23} Now John was also baptizing, at Aenon near Salim, because there was much water in that place. And they were arriving and being baptized. {3:24} For John had not yet been cast into prison. {3:25} Then a dispute occurred between the disciples of John and the Jews, about purification. {3:26} And they went to John and said to him: “Rabbi, the one who was with you across the Jordan, about whom you offered testimony: behold, he is baptizing and everyone is going to him.” {3:27} John responded and said: “A man is not able to receive anything, unless it has been given to him from heaven. {3:28} You yourselves offer testimony for me that I said, ‘I am not the Christ,’ but that I have been sent before him. {3:29} He who holds the bride is the groom. But the friend of the groom, who stands and listens to Him, rejoices joyfully at the voice of the groom. And so, this, my joy, has been fulfilled. {3:30} He must increase, while I must decrease. {3:31} He who comes from above, is above everything. He who is from below, is of the earth, and he speaks about the earth. He who comes from heaven is above everything. {3:32} And what he has seen and heard, about this he testifies. And no one accepts his testimony. {3:33} Whoever has accepted his testimony has certified that God is truthful. {3:34} For he whom God has sent speaks the words of God. For God does not give the Spirit by measure. {3:35} The Father loves the Son, and he has given everything into his hand. {3:36} Whoever believes in the Son has eternal life. But whoever is unbelieving toward the Son shall not see life; instead the wrath of God remains upon him.”

[John 4] {4:1} And so, when Jesus realized that the Pharisees had heard that Jesus made more disciples and baptized more than John, {4:2} (though Jesus himself was not baptizing, but only his disciples) {4:3} he left behind Judea, and he traveled again to Galilee. {4:4} Now he needed to cross through Samaria. {4:5} Therefore, he went into a city of Samaria which is called Sychar, near the estate which Jacob gave to his son Joseph. {4:6} And Jacob’s well was there. And so Jesus, being tired from the journey, was sitting in a certain way on the well. It was about the sixth hour. {4:7} A woman of Samaria arrived to draw water. Jesus said to her, “Give me to drink.” {4:8} For his disciples had gone into the city in order to buy food. {4:9} And so, that Samaritan woman said to him, “How is it that you, being a Jew, are requesting a drink from me, though I am a Samaritan woman?” For the Jews do not associate with the Samaritans. {4:10} Jesus responded and said to her: “If you knew the gift of God, and who it is who is saying to you, ‘Give me to drink,’ perhaps you would have made a request of him, and he would have given you living water.” {4:11} The woman said to him: “Lord, you do not have anything with which to draw water, and the well is deep. From where, then, do you have living water? {4:12} Surely, you are not greater than our father Jacob, who gave us the well and who drank from it, with his sons and his cattle?” {4:13} Jesus responded and said to her: “All who drink from this water will thirst again. But whoever shall drink from the water that I will give to him will not thirst for eternity. {4:14} Instead, the water that I will give to him will become in him a fountain of water, springing up into eternal life.” {4:15} The woman said to him, “Lord, give me this water, so that I may not thirst and may not come here to draw water.” {4:16} Jesus said to her, “Go, call your husband, and return here.” {4:17} The woman responded and said, “I have no husband.” Jesus said to her: “You have spoken well, in saying, ‘I have no husband.’” {4:18} For you have had five husbands, but he whom you have now is not your husband. You have spoken this in truth.” {4:19} The woman said to him: “Lord, I see that you are a Prophet. {4:20} Our fathers worshipped on this mountain, but you say that Jerusalem is the place where one ought to worship,” {4:21} Jesus said to her: “Woman, believe me, the hour is coming when you shall worship the Father, neither on this mountain, nor in Jerusalem. {4:22} You worship what you do not know; we worship what we do know. For salvation is from the Jews. {4:23} But the hour is coming, and it is now, when true worshippers shall worship the Father in spirit and in truth. For the Father also seeks such persons who may worship him. {4:24} God is Spirit. And so, those who worship him must worship in spirit and in truth.” {4:25} The woman said to him: “I know that the Messiah is coming (who is called the Christ). And then, when he will have arrived, he will announce everything to us.” {4:26} Jesus said to her: “I am he, the one who is speaking with you.” {4:27} And then his disciples arrived. And they wondered that he was speaking with the woman. Yet no one said: “What are you seeking?” or, “Why are you talking with her?” {4:28} And so the woman left behind her water jar and went into the city. And she said to the men there: {4:29} “Come and see a man who has told me all the things that I have done. Is he not the Christ?” {4:30} Therefore, they went out of the city and came to him. {4:31} Meanwhile, the disciples petitioned him, saying, “Rabbi, eat.” {4:32} But he said to them, “I have food to eat which you do not know.” {4:33} Therefore, the disciples said to one another, “Could someone have brought him something to eat?” {4:34} Jesus said to them: “My food is to do the will of the One who sent me, so that I may perfect his work.” {4:35} Do you not say, “There are still four months, and then the harvest arrives?” Behold, I say to you: Lift up your eyes and look at the countryside; for it is already ripe for the harvest. {4:36} For he who reaps, receives wages and gathers fruit unto eternal life, so that both he who sows and he who reaps may rejoice together. {4:37} For in this the word is true: that it is one who sows, and it is another who reaps. {4:38} I have sent you to reap that for which you did not labor. Others have labored, and you have entered into their labors.” {4:39} Now many of the Samaritans from that city believed in him, because of the word of the woman who was offering testimony: “For he told me all the things that I have done.” {4:40} Therefore, when the Samaritans had come to him, they petitioned him to lodge there. And he lodged there for two days. {4:41} And many more believed in him, because of his own word. {4:42} And they said to the woman: “Now we believe, not because of your speech, but because we ourselves have heard him, and so we know that he is truly the Savior of the world.” {4:43} Then, after two days, he departed from there, and he traveled into Galilee. {4:44} For Jesus himself offered testimony that a Prophet has no honor in his own country. {4:45} And so, when he had arrived in Galilee, the Galileans received him, because they had seen all that he had done at Jerusalem, in the day of the feast. For they also went to the feast day. {4:46} Then he went again into Cana of Galilee, where he made water into wine. And there was a certain ruler, whose son was sick at Capernaum. {4:47} Since he had heard that Jesus came to Galilee from Judea, he sent him to him and begged him to come down and heal his son. For he was beginning to die. {4:48} Therefore, Jesus said to him, “Unless you have seen signs and wonders, you do not believe.” {4:49} The ruler said to him, “Lord, come down before my son dies.” {4:50} Jesus said to him, “Go, your son lives.” The man believed the word that Jesus spoke to him, and so he went away. {4:51} Then, as he was going down, his servants met him. And they reported to him, saying that his son was alive. {4:52} Therefore, he asked them at which hour he had become better. And they said to him, “Yesterday, at the seventh hour, the fever left him.” {4:53} Then the father realized that it was at the same hour that Jesus said to him, “Your son lives.” And both he and his entire household believed. {4:54} This next sign was the second that Jesus accomplished, after he had arrived in Galilee from Judea.

[John 5] {5:1} After these things, there was a feast day of the Jews, and so Jesus ascended to Jerusalem. {5:2} Now at Jerusalem is the Pool of Evidence, which in Hebrew is known as the Place of Mercy; it has five porticos. {5:3} Along these lay a great multitude of the sick, the blind, the lame, and the withered, waiting for the movement of the water. {5:4} Now at times an Angel of the Lord would descend into the pool, and so the water was moved. And whoever descended first into the pool, after the motion of the water, was healed of whatever infirmity held him. {5:5} And there was a certain man in that place, having been in his infirmity for thirty-eight years. {5:6} Then, when Jesus had seen him reclining, and when he realized that he had been afflicted for a long time, he said to him, “Do you want to be healed?” {5:7} The invalid answered him: “Lord, I do not have any man to put me in the pool, when the water has been stirred. For as I am going, another descends ahead of me.” {5:8} Jesus said to him, “Rise, take up your stretcher, and walk.” {5:9} And immediately the man was healed. And he took up his stretcher and walked. Now this day was the Sabbath. {5:10} Therefore, the Jews said to the one who had been healed: “It is the Sabbath. It is not lawful for you to take up your stretcher.” {5:11} He answered them, “The one who healed me, he said to me, ‘Take up your stretcher and walk.’ ” {5:12} Therefore, they questioned him, “Who is that man, who said to you, ‘Take up your bed and walk?’ ” {5:13} But the one who had been given health did not know who it was. For Jesus had turned aside from the crowd gathered in that place. {5:14} Afterwards, Jesus found him in the temple, and he said to him: “Behold, you have been healed. Do not choose to sin further, otherwise something worse may happen to you.” {5:15} This man went away, and he reported to the Jews that it was Jesus who had given him health. {5:16} Because of this, the Jews were persecuting Jesus, for he was doing these things on the Sabbath. {5:17} But Jesus answered them, “Even now, my Father is working, and I am working.” {5:18} And so, because of this, the Jews were seeking to kill him even more so. For not only did he break the Sabbath, but he even said that God was his Father, making himself equal to God. {5:19} Then Jesus responded and said to them: “Amen, amen, I say to you, the Son is not able to do anything of himself, but only what he has seen the Father doing. For whatever he does, even this does the Son do, similarly. [5:20] For the Father loves the Son, and he shows him all that he himself does. And greater works than these will he show him, so much so that you shall wonder. [5:21] For just as the Father raises the dead and gives life, so also does the Son give life to whomever he wills. [5:22] For the Father does not judge anyone. But he has given all judgment to the Son, [5:23] so that all may honor the Son, just as they honor the Father. Whoever does not honor the Son, does not honor the Father who sent him. [5:24] Amen, amen, I say to you, that whoever hears my word, and believes in him who sent me, has eternal life, and he does not go into judgment, but instead he crosses from death into life. [5:25] Amen, amen, I say to you, that the hour is coming, and it is now, when the dead shall hear the voice of the Son of God; and those who hear it shall live. [5:26] For just as the Father has life in himself, so also has he granted to the Son to have life in himself. [5:27] And he has given him the authority to accomplish judgment. For he is the Son of man. [5:28] Do not be amazed at this. For the hour is coming in which all who are in the grave shall hear the voice of the Son of God. [5:29] And those who have done good shall go forth to the resurrection of life. Yet truly, those who have done evil shall go to the resurrection of judgment. [5:30] I am not able to do anything of myself. As I hear, so do I judge. And my judgment is just. For I do not seek my own will, but the will of him who sent me. [5:31] If I offer testimony about myself, my testimony is not true. [5:32] There is another who offers testimony about me, and I know that the testimony which he offers about me is true. [5:33] You sent to John, and he offered testimony to the truth. [5:34] But I do not accept testimony from man. Instead, I say these things, so that you may be saved. [5:35] He was a burning and shining light. So you were willing, at the time, to exult in his light. [5:36] But I hold a greater testimony than that of John. For the works which the Father has given to me, so that I may complete them, these works themselves that I do, offer testimony about me: that the Father has sent me. [5:37] And the Father who has sent me has himself offered testimony about me. And you have never heard his voice, nor have you beheld his appearance. [5:38] And you do not have his word abiding in you. For the one whom he sent, the same you would not believe. [5:39] Study the Scriptures. For you think that in them you one whom he sent, the same you would not believe. [5:38] And you do not have his word abiding in you. For the one whom he sent, the same you would not believe. [5:39] Study the Scriptures. For you think that in them you have eternal life. And yet they also offer testimony about me. [5:40] And you are not willing to come to me, so that you may have life. [5:41] I do not accept glory from man. [5:42] But I know you, that you do not have the love of God within you. [5:43] I have come in the name of my Father, and you do not accept me. If another will arrive in his own name, him you will accept. [5:44] How are you able to believe, you who accept glory from one another and yet do not seek the glory that is from God alone? [5:45] Do not consider that I might accuse you with the Father. There is one who accuses you, Moses, in whom you hope. [5:46] For if you were believing in Moses, perhaps you would believe in me also. For he wrote about me. [5:47] But if you do not believe by his writings, how will you believe by my words?"

[John 6] [6:1] After these things, Jesus traveled across the sea of Galilee, which is the Sea of Tiberias. [6:2] And a great multitude was following him, for they saw the signs that he was accomplishing toward those who were infirm. [6:3] Therefore, Jesus went onto a mountain, and he sat down there with his disciples. [6:4] Now the Passover, the feast day of the Jews, was near. [6:5] And so, when Jesus had lifted up his eyes and had seen that a very great multitude came to him, he said to Philip, “From where should we buy bread, so that these may eat?” [6:6] But he said this to test him. For he himself knew what he would do. [6:7] Philip answered him, “Two hundred denarii of bread would not be sufficient for each of them to receive even a little.” [6:8] One of his disciples, Andrew, the brother of Simon Peter, said to him: [6:9] “There is a certain boy here, who has five barley loaves and two fish. But what are these among so many?” [6:10] Then Jesus said, “Have the men sit down to eat.” Now, there was much grass in that place. And so the men, in number about five thousand, sat down to eat. [6:11] Therefore, Jesus took the bread, and when he had given thanks, he distributed it to those who were sitting down to eat; similarly also, from the fish, as much as they wanted. [6:12] Then, when they were filled, he said to his disciples, “Gather the fragments that are left over, lest they be lost.” [6:13] And so they gathered, and they filled twelve baskets with the fragments of the five barley loaves, which were left over from those who had eaten. [6:14] Therefore, those men, when they had seen that Jesus had accomplished a sign, they said, “Truly, this one is the Prophet who is to come into the world.” [6:15] And so, when he realized that they were going to come and take him away and make him king, Jesus fled back to the mountain, by himself alone. [6:16] Then, when evening arrived, his disciples descended to the sea. [6:17] And when they had climbed into a boat, they went across the sea to Capernaum. And darkness had now arrived, and Jesus had not returned to them. [6:18] Then the sea was stirred up by a great wind that was blowing. [6:19] And so, when they had rowed about twenty-five or thirty stadia, they saw Jesus walking on the sea, and drawing near to the boat, and they were afraid. [6:20] But he said to them: “It is I. Do not be afraid.” [6:21] Therefore, they were willing to receive him into the boat. But immediately the boat was at the land to which they were going. [6:22] On the next day, the crowd which was standing across the sea saw that there were no other small boats in that place, except one, and that Jesus had not entered into the boat with his disciples, but that his disciples had departed alone. [6:23] Yet truly, other boats came over from Tiberias, next to the place where they had eaten the bread after the Lord gave thanks. [6:24] Therefore, when the crowd had seen that Jesus was not there, nor his disciples, they climbed into the small boats, and they went to Capernaum, seeking Jesus. [6:25] And when they had found him across the sea, they said to him, “Rabbi, when did you come here?” [6:26] Jesus answered them and said: “Amen, amen, I say to you, you seek me, not because you have seen signs, but because you have eaten from the bread and were satisfied. [6:27] Do not work for food that perishes, but for that which endures to eternal life, which the Son of man will give to you. For God the Father has sealed him.” [6:28] Therefore, they said to him, “What should we do, so that we may labor in the works of God?” [6:29] Jesus responded and said to them, “This is the work of God, that you believe in him whom he sent.” [6:30] And so they said to him: “Then what sign will you do, so that we may see it and believe in you? What will you work?” [6:31] Our fathers ate manna in the desert, just as it has been written, ‘He gave spoken to you are spirit and life. {6:65} But there are some among you who do not believe." For Jesus knew from the beginning who were unbelieving and which one would betray him. {6:66} And so he said, "For this reason, I said to you that no one is able to come to me, unless it has been given to him by my Father." {6:67} After this, many of his disciples went back, and they no longer walked with him. {6:68} Therefore, Jesus said to the twelve, "Do you also want to go away?" {6:69} Then Simon Peter answered him: "Lord, to whom would we go? You have the words of eternal life. {6:70} And we have believed, and we recognize that you are the Christ, the Son of God." {6:71} Jesus answered them: "Have I not chosen you twelve? And yet one among you is a devil." {6:72} Now he was speaking about Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon. For this one, even though he was one of the twelve, was about to betray him.

[John 7] {7:1} Then, after these things, Jesus was walking in Galilee. For he was not willing to walk in Judea, because the Jews were seeking to kill him. {7:2} Now the feast day of the Jews, the Feast of Tabernacles, was near. {7:3} And his brothers said to him: "Move away from here and go into Judea, so that your disciples there may also see your works and those that you do. {7:4} Of course, no one does anything in secret, but he himself seeks to be in the public view. Since you do these things, manifest yourself to the world." {7:5} For neither did his brothers believe in him. {7:6} Therefore, Jesus said to them: "My time has not yet come; but your time is always at hand. {7:7} The world cannot hate you. But it hates me, because I offer testimony about it, that its works are evil. {7:8} You may go up to this feast day. But I am not going up to this feast day, because my time has not yet been fulfilled." {7:9} When he had said these things, he himself remained in Galilee. {7:10} But after his brothers went up, then he also went up to the feast day, not openly, but as if in secret. {7:11} Therefore, the Jews were seeking him on the feast day, and they were saying, "Where is he?" {7:12} And there was much murmuring in the crowd concerning him. For certain ones were saying, "He is good." But others were saying, "No, for he seduces the crowds." {7:13} Yet no one was speaking openly about him, out of fear of the Jews. {7:14} Then, about the middle of the feast, Jesus ascended into the temple, and he was teaching. {7:15} And the Jews wondered, saying: "How does this one know letters, though he has not been taught?" {7:16} Jesus responded to them and said: "My doctrine is not of me, but of him who sent me. {7:17} If anyone has chosen to do his will, then he will realize, about the doctrine, whether it is from God, or whether I am speaking from myself. {7:18} Whoever speaks from himself seeks his own glory. But whoever seeks the glory of him who sent him, this one is true, and injustice is not in him. {7:19} Did not Moses give you the law? And yet not one among you keeps the law! {7:20} Why are you seeking to kill me?" The crowd responded and said: "You must have a demon. Who is seeking to kill you?" {7:21} Jesus responded and said to them: "One work have I done, and you all wonder. {7:22} For Moses gave you circumcision, (not that it is of Moses, but of the fathers) and on the Sabbath you circumcise a man. {7:23} If a man can receive circumcision on the Sabbath, so that the law of Moses may not be broken, why are you indignant toward me, because I have made a man whole on the Sabbath? {7:24} Do not judge according to appearances, but instead judge a just judgment." {7:25} Therefore, some of those from Jerusalem said: “Is he not the one whom they are seeking to kill? {7:26} And behold, he is speaking openly, and they say nothing to him. Could the leaders have decided that it is true this one is the Christ? {7:27} But we know him and where he is from. And when the Christ has arrived, no one will know where he is from.” {7:28} Therefore, Jesus cried out in the temple, teaching and saying: “You know me, and you also know where I am from. And I have not arrived of myself, but he who sent me is true, and him you do not know. {7:29} I know him. For I am from him, and he has sent me.” {7:30} Therefore, they were seeking to apprehend him, and yet no one laid hands on him, because his hour had not yet come. {7:31} But many among the crowd believed in him, and they were saying, “When the Christ arrives, will he perform more signs than this man does?” {7:32} The Pharisees heard the crowd murmuring these things about him. And the leaders and the Pharisees sent attendants to apprehend him. {7:33} Therefore, Jesus said to them: “For a brief time, I am still with you, and then I am going to him who sent me. {7:34} You shall seek me, and you will not find me. And where I am, you are not able to go.” {7:35} And so the Jews said among themselves: “Where is this place to which he will go, such that we will not find him? Will he go to those dispersed among the Gentiles and teach the Gentiles? {7:36} What is this word that he spoke, ‘You will seek me and you will not find me; and where I am, you are not able to go?’” {7:37} Then, on the last great day of the feast, Jesus was standing and crying out, saying: “If anyone thirsts, let him come to me and drink: {7:38} whoever believes in him would soon be receiving. For the Spirit had not yet been given, because Jesus had not yet been glorified. {7:39} Now he said this about the Spirit, which those who believe in him would soon be receiving. For the Spirit had not yet been given, because Jesus had not yet been glorified. {7:40} Therefore, some from that crowd, when they had heard these words of his, were saying, “This one truly is the Prophet.” {7:41} Others were saying, “He is the Christ.” Yet certain ones were saying: “Does the Christ come from Galilee? {7:42} Does Scripture not say that the Christ comes from the offspring of David and from Bethlehem, the town where David was?” {7:43} And so there arose a dissension among the multitude because of him. {7:44} Now certain ones among them wanted to apprehend him, but no one laid hands upon him. {7:45} Therefore, the attendants went to the high priests and the Pharisees. And they said to them, “Why have you not brought him?” {7:46} The attendants responded, “Never has a man spoken like this man.” {7:47} And so the Pharisees answered them: “Have you also been seduced? {7:48} Have any of the leaders believed in him, or any of the Pharisees? {7:49} But this crowd, which does not know the law, they are accursed.” {7:50} Nicodemus, the one who came to him by night and who was one of them, said to them, {7:51} “Does our law judge a man, unless it has first heard him and has known what he has done?” {7:52} They responded and said to him: “Are you also a Galilean? Study the Scriptures, and see that a prophet does not arise from Galilee.” {7:53} And each one returned to his own house.

[John 8] {8:1} But Jesus continued on to the Mount of Olives. {8:2} And early in the morning, he went again to the temple; and all the people came to him. And sitting down, he taught them. {8:3} Now the scribes and Pharisees brought forward a woman caught in adultery, and they stood her in front of them. {8:4} And they said to him: “Teacher, this woman was just now caught in adultery. {8:5} And in the law, Moses commanded us to stone such a one. Therefore, what do you say?” {8:6} But they were saying this to test him, so that they might be able to accuse him. Then Jesus bent down and wrote with his finger on the earth. {8:7} And then, when they persevered in questioning him, he stood upright and said to them, “Let whoever is without sin among you be the first to cast a stone at her.” {8:8} And bending down again, he wrote on the earth. {8:9} But upon hearing this, they went away, one by one, beginning with the eldest. And Jesus alone remained, with the woman standing in front of him. {8:10} Then Jesus, raising himself up, said to her: “Woman, where are those who accused you? Has no one condemned you?” {8:11} And she said, “No one, Lord.” Then Jesus said: “Neither will I condemn you. Go, and now do not choose to sin anymore.” {8:12} Then Jesus spoke to them again, saying: “I am the light of the world. Whoever follows me does not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life.” {8:13} And so the Pharisees said to him, “You offer testimony about yourself; your testimony is not true.” {8:14} Jesus responded and said to them: “Even though I offer testimony about myself, my testimony is true, for I know where I came from and where I am going. {8:15} You judge according to the flesh. I do not judge anyone. {8:16} And when I do judge, my judgment is true. For I am not alone, but it is I and he who sent me: the Father. {8:17} And it is written in your law that the testimony of two men is true. {8:18} I am one who offers testimony about myself, and the Father who sent me offers testimony about me.” {8:19} Therefore, they said to him, “Where is your Father?” Jesus answered: “You know neither me, nor my Father. If you did know me, perhaps you would know my Father also.” {8:20} Jesus spoke these words at the treasury, while teaching in the temple. And no one apprehended him, because his hour had not yet come. {8:21} Therefore, Jesus again spoke to them: “I am going, and you shall seek me. And you will die in your sin. Where I am going, you are not able to go.” {8:22} And so the Jews said, “Is he going to kill himself, for he said: ‘Where I am going, you are not able to go?’” {8:23} And he said to them: “You are from below. I am from above. You are of this world. I am not of this world. {8:24} Therefore, I said to you, that you will die in your sins. For if you will not believe that I am, you will die in your sin.” {8:25} And so they said to him, “Who are you?” Jesus said to them: “The Beginning, who is also speaking to you. {8:26} I have much to say about you and to judge. But he who sent me is true. And what I have heard from him, this I speak within the world.” {8:27} And they did not realize that he was calling God his Father. {8:28} And so Jesus said to them: “When you will have lifted up the Son of man, then you shall realize that I am, and that I do nothing of myself, but just as the Father has taught me, so do I speak. {8:29} And he who sent me is with me, and he has not abandoned me alone. For I always do what is pleasing to him.” {8:30} As he was speaking these things, many believed in him. {8:31} Therefore, Jesus said to those Jews who believed in him: “If you will abide in my word, you will truly be my disciples. {8:32} And you shall know the truth, and the truth shall set you free.” {8:33} They answered
“Neither this man nor his parents sinned, but it was so that the works of God would be made manifest in him. [9:4] I must work the works of him who sent me, while it is day; the night is coming, when no one is able to work. [9:5] As long as I am in the world, I am the light of the world.” [9:6] When he had said these things, he spat on the ground, and he made clay from the spittle, and he smeared the clay over his eyes. [9:7] And he said to him: “Go, wash in the pool of Siloam” (which is translated as: one who has been sent). Therefore, he went away and washed, and he returned, seeing. [9:8] And so the bystanders and those who had seen him before, when he was a beggar, said, “Is this not the one who was sitting and begging?” Some said, “This is he.” [9:9] But others said, “Certainly not, but he is similar to him.” Yet truly, he himself said, “I am he.” [9:10] Therefore, they said to him, “How were your eyes opened?” [9:11] He responded: “That man who is called Jesus made clay, and he anointed my eyes and said to me, ‘Go to the pool of Siloam and wash.’ And I went, and I washed, and I see.” [9:12] And they said to him, “Where is he?” He said, “I do not know.” [9:13] They brought the one who had been blind to the Pharisees. [9:14] Now it was the Sabbath, when Jesus made the clay and opened his eyes. [9:15] Therefore, again the Pharisees questioned him as to how he had seen. And he said to them, “He placed clay over my eyes, and I washed, and I see.” [9:16] And so certain Pharisees said: “This man, who does not keep the Sabbath, is not from God.” But others said, “How could a sinful man accomplish these signs?” And there was a schism among them. [9:17] Therefore, they spoke again to the blind man, “What do you say about him who opened your eyes?” Then he said, “He is a Prophet.” [9:18] Therefore, the Jews did not believe, about him, that he had been blind and had seen, until they called the parents of him who had seen. [9:19] And they questioned them, saying: “Is this your son, whom you say was born blind?” Then how is it that he now sees?” [9:20] His parents responded to them and said: “We know that this is our son and that he was born blind. [9:21] But how it is that he now sees, we do not know. And who opened his eyes, we do not know. Ask him. He is old enough. Let him speak for himself.” [9:22] His parents said these things because they were afraid of the Jews. For the Jews had already conspired, so that if anyone were to confess him to be the Christ, he would be expelled from the synagogue. [9:23] It was for this reason that his parents said: “He is old enough. Ask him.” [9:24] Therefore, they again called the man who had been blind, and they said to him: “Give glory to God. We know that this man is a sinner.” [9:25] And so he said to them: “If he is a sinner, I do not know it. One thing I do know, that although I was blind, now I see.” [9:26] Then they said to him: “What did he do to you? How did he open your eyes?” [9:27] He answered them: “I have already told you, and you heard it. Why do you want to hear it again? Do you also want to become his disciples?” [9:28] Therefore, they cursed him and said: “You be his disciple. But we are disciples of Moses. [9:29] We know that God spoke to Moses. But this man, we do not know where he is from.” [9:30] The man responded and said to them: “Now in this is a wonder: that you do not know where he is from, and yet he has opened my eyes. [9:31] And we know that God does not hear sinners. But if anyone is a worshipper of God and does his will, then he heeds him.” [9:32] From ancient times, it has not been heard that anyone has opened the eyes of someone born blind. {9:33} Unless this man were of God, he would not be able to do any such thing.” {9:34} They responded and said to him, “You were born entirely in sins, and you would teach us?” And they cast him out. {9:35} Jesus heard that they had cast him out. And when he had found him, he said to him, “Do you believe in the Son of God?” {9:36} He responded and said, “Who is he, Lord, so that I may believe in him?” {9:37} And Jesus said to him, “You have both seen him, and he is the one who is speaking with you.” {9:38} And he said, “I believe, Lord.” And falling prostrate, he worshiped him. {9:39} And Jesus said, “I came into this world in judgment, so that those who do not see, may see; and so that those who see, may become blind.” {9:40} And certain Pharisees, who were with him, heard this, and they said to him, “Are we also blind?” {9:41} Jesus said to them: ‘If you were blind, you would not have sin. Yet now you say, ‘We see.’ So your sin persists.”

[John 10] {10:1} “Amen, amen, I say to you, he who does not enter through the door into the fold of the sheep, but climbs up by another way, he is a thief and a robber. {10:2} But he who enters through the door is the shepherd of the sheep. {10:3} To him the doorkeeper opens, and the sheep hear his voice, and he calls his own sheep by name, and he leads them out. {10:4} And when he has sent out his sheep, he goes before them, and the sheep follow him, because they know his voice. {10:5} But they do not follow a stranger; instead they flee from him, because they do not know the voice of strangers.” {10:6} Jesus spoke this proverb to them. But they did not understand what he was saying to them. {10:7} Therefore, Jesus spoke to them again: “Amen, amen, I say to you, that I am the door of the sheep. {10:8} All others, as many as have come, are thieves and robbers, and the sheep did not listen to them. {10:9} I am the door. If anyone has entered through me, he will be saved. And he shall go in and go out, and he shall find pastures. {10:10} The thief does not come, except so that he may steal and slaughter and destroy. I have come so that they may have life, and have it more abundantly. {10:11} I am the good Shepherd. The good Shepherd gives his life for his sheep. {10:12} But the hired hand, and whoever is not a shepherd, to whom the sheep do not belong, he sees the wolf approaching, and he departs from the sheep and flees. And the wolf raves and scatters the sheep. {10:13} And the hired hand flees, because he is a hired hand and there is no concern for the sheep within him. {10:14} I am the good Shepherd, and I know my own, and my own know me, {10:15} just as the Father knows me, and I know the Father. And I lay down my life for my sheep. {10:16} And I have other sheep that are not of this fold, and I must lead them. They shall hear my voice, and there shall be one sheepfold and one shepherd. {10:17} For this reason, the Father loves me: because I lay down my life, so that I may take it up again. {10:18} No one takes it away from me. Instead, I lay it down of my own accord. And I have the power to lay it down. And I have the power to take it up again. This is the commandment that I have received from my Father.” {10:19} A dissension occurred again among the Jews because of these words. {10:20} Then many of them were saying: “He has a demon or he is insane. Why do you listen to him?” {10:21} Others were saying: “These are not the words of someone who has a demon. How would a demon be able to open the eyes of the blind?” {10:22} Now it was the Feast of the Dedication at Jerusalem, and it was winter. {10:23} And Jesus was walking in the temple, in the portico of Solomon. {10:24} And so the Jews surrounded him and said to him: “How long will you hold our souls in suspense? If you are the Christ, tell us plainly.” {10:25} Jesus answered them: “I speak to you, and you do not believe. The works that I do in the name of my Father, these offer testimony about me. {10:26} But you do not believe, because you are not of my sheep. {10:27} My sheep hear my voice. And I know them, and they follow me. {10:28} And I give them eternal life, and they shall not perish, for eternity. And no one shall seize them from my hand. {10:29} What my Father gave to me is greater than all, and no one is able to seize from the hand of my Father. {10:30} I and the Father are one.” {10:31} Therefore, the Jews took up stones, in order to stone him. {10:32} Jesus answered them: “I have shown you many good works from my Father. For which of those works do you stone me?” {10:33} The Jews answered him: “We do not stone you for a good work, but for blasphemy and because, though you are a man, you make yourself God.” {10:34} Jesus responded to them: “Is it not written in your law, ‘I said: you are gods?’ {10:35} If he called those to whom the word of God was given gods, and Scripture cannot be broken, {10:36} why do you say, about him whom the Father has sanctified and sent into the world, ‘You have blasphemed,’ because I said, ‘I am the Son of God’? {10:37} If I do not do the works of my Father, do not believe in me. {10:38} But if I do them, even if you are not willing to believe in me, believe the works, so that you may know and believe that the Father is in me, and I am in the Father.” {10:39} Therefore, they sought to apprehend him, but he escaped from their hands. {10:40} And he went again across the Jordan, to that place where John first was baptizing. And he lodged there. {10:41} And many went out to him. And they were saying: “Indeed, John accomplished no signs. {10:42} But all things whatsoever that John said about this man were true.” And many believed in him.

[John 11] {11:1} Now there was a certain sick man, Lazarus of Bethania, from the town of Mary and her sister Martha. {11:2} And Mary was the one who anointed the Lord with ointment and wiped his feet with her hair; her brother Lazarus was sick. {11:3} Therefore, his sisters sent to him, saying: “Lord, behold, he whom you love is sick.” {11:4} Then, upon hearing this, Jesus said to them: “This sickness is not unto death, but for the glory of God, so that the Son of God may be glorified by it.” {11:5} Now Jesus loved Martha, and her sister Mary, and Lazarus. {11:6} Even so, after he heard that he was sick, he then still remained in the same place for two days. {11:7} Then, after these things, he said to his disciples, “Let us go into Judea again.” {11:8} The disciples said to him: “Rabbi, the Jews are even now seeking to stone you. And would you go there again?” {11:9} Jesus responded: “Are there not twelve hours in the day? If anyone walks in the daylight, he does not stumble, because he sees the light of this world. {11:10} But if he walks in the nighttime, he stumbles, because the light is not in him.” {11:11} He said these things, and after this, he said to them: “Lazarus our friend is sleeping. But I am going, so that I may awaken him from sleep.” {11:12} And so his disciples said, “Lord, if he is sleeping, he shall be healthy.”
{11:13} But Jesus had spoken about his death. Yet they thought that he spoke about the repose of sleep. {11:14} Therefore, Jesus then said to them plainly, “Lazarus has died. {11:15} And I am glad for your sake that I was not there, so that you may believe. But let us go to him.” {11:16} And then Thomas, who is called the Twin, said to his fellow disciples, “Let us go, too, so that we may die with him.” {11:17} And so Jesus went. And he found that he had already been in the tomb for four days. {11:18} (Now Bethania was near Jerusalem, about fifteen stadia.) {11:19} And many of the Jews had come to Martha and Mary, so as to console them over their brother. {11:20} Therefore, Martha, when she heard that Jesus was arriving, went out to meet him. But Mary was sitting at home. {11:21} And then Martha said to Jesus: “Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died. {11:22} But even now, I know that whatever you will request from God, God will give to you.” {11:23} Jesus said to her, “Your brother shall rise again.” {11:24} Martha said to him, “I know that he shall rise again, at the resurrection on the last day.” {11:25} Jesus said to her: “I am the Resurrection and the Life. Whoever believes in me, even though he has died, he shall live. {11:26} And everyone who lives and believes in me shall not die for eternity. Do you believe this?” {11:27} She said to him: “Certainly, Lord. I have believed that you are the Christ, the Son of the living God, who has come into this world.” {11:28} And when she had said these things, she went and called her sister Mary quietly, saying, “The Teacher is here, and he is calling you.” {11:29} When she heard this, she rose up quickly and went to him. {11:30} For Jesus had not yet arrived in the town. But he was still at that place where Martha had met him. {11:31} Therefore, the Jews who were with her in the house and who were consoling her, when they had seen that Mary rose up quickly and went out, they followed her, saying, “She is going to the tomb, so that she may weep there.” {11:32} Therefore, when Mary had arrived to where Jesus was, seeing him, she fell down at his feet, and she said to him, “Lord, if you had been here, my brother would not have died.” {11:33} And then, when Jesus saw her weeping, and the Jews who had arrived with her weeping, he groaned in spirit and became troubled. {11:34} And he said, “Where have you laid him?” They said to him, “Lord, come and see.” {11:35} And Jesus wept. {11:36} Therefore, the Jews said, “See how much he loved him!” {11:37} But some of them said, “Would not he who opened the eyes of one born blind have been able to cause this man not to die?” {11:38} Therefore, Jesus, again groaning from within himself, went to the tomb. Now it was a cave, and a stone had been placed over it. {11:39} Jesus said, “Take away the stone.” Martha, the sister of him who had died, said to him, “Lord, by now it will smell, for this is the fourth day.” {11:40} Jesus said to her, “Did I not say to you that if you believe, you shall see the glory of God?” {11:41} Therefore, they took away the stone. Then, lifting up his eyes, Jesus said: “Father, I give thanks to you because you have heard me. {11:42} And I know that you always hear me, but I have said this for the sake of the people who are standing nearby, so that they may believe that you have sent me.” {11:43} When he had said these things, he cried in a loud voice, “Lazarus, come out.” {11:44} And immediately, he who had been dead went forth, bound at the feet and hands with winding bands. And his face was bound with a separate cloth. Jesus said to them, “Release him and let him go.” {11:45} Therefore, many of the Jews, who had come to Mary and Martha, and who had seen the things that Jesus did, believed in him. {11:46} But certain ones among them went to the Pharisees and told them the things that Jesus had done. {11:47} And so, the high priests and the Pharisees gathered a council, and they were saying: “What can we do? For this man accomplishes many signs. {11:48} If we leave him alone, in this way all will believe in him. And then the Romans will come and take away our place and our nation.” {11:49} Then one of them, named Caiaphas, since he was the high priest that year, said to them: “You do not understand anything. {11:50} Nor do you realize that it is expedient for you that one man should die for the people, and that the entire nation should not perish.” {11:51} Yet he did not say this from himself, but since he was the high priest that year, he prophesied that Jesus would die for the nation. {11:52} And not only for the nation, but in order to gather together as one the children of God who have been dispersed. {11:53} Therefore, from that day, they planned to put him to death. {11:54} And so, Jesus no longer walked in public with the Jews. But he went into a region near the desert, to a city which is called Ephraim. And he lodged there with his disciples. {11:55} Now the Passover of the Jews was near. And many from the countryside ascended to Jerusalem before the Passover, so that they might sanctify themselves. {11:56} Therefore, they were seeking Jesus. And they conferred with one another, while standing in the temple: “What do you think? Will he come to the feast day?” {11:57} And the high priests and Pharisees had given an order, so that if anyone would know where he may be, he should reveal it, so that they might apprehend him.

[John 12] {12:1} Then six days before the Passover, Jesus went to Bethania, where Lazarus had died, whom Jesus raised up. {12:2} And they made a dinner for him there. And Martha was ministering. And truly, Lazarus was one of those who were sitting at table with him. {12:3} And then Mary took twelve ounces of pure spikenard ointment, very precious, and she anointed the feet of Jesus, and she wiped his feet with her hair. And the house was filled with the fragrance of the ointment. {12:4} Then one of his disciples, Judas Iscariot, who was soon to betray him, said, {12:5} “Why was this ointment not sold for three hundred denarii and given to the needy?” {12:6} Now he said this, not out of concern for the needy, but because he was a thief and, since he held the purse, he used to carry what was put into it. {12:7} But Jesus said: “Permit her, so that she may keep it against the day of my burial. {12:8} For the poor, you have with you always. But me, you do always not have.” {12:9} Now a great multitude of the Jews knew that he was in that place, and so they came, not so much because of Jesus, but so that they might see Lazarus, whom he had raised from the dead. {12:10} And the leaders of the priests planned to put Lazarus to death also. {12:11} For many of the Jews, because of him, were going away and were believing in Jesus. {12:12} Then, on the next day, the great crowd that had come to the feast day, when they had heard that Jesus was coming to Jerusalem, {12:13} took branches of palm trees, and they went ahead to meet him. And they were crying out: “Hosanna! Blessed is he who arrives in the name of the Lord, the king of Israel!” {12:14} And Jesus found a small donkey, and he sat upon it, just as it is written: {12:15} “Do not be afraid, daughter of Zion. Behold, your king arrives, sitting on the colt of a donkey.” {12:16} At first, his disciples did not realize these things. But when Jesus was glorified, then they remembered that these things were written about him, and that these things happened to him. {12:17} And so the crowd that had been with him, when he called Lazarus from the tomb and raised him from the dead, offered testimony. {12:18} Because of this, too, the crowd went out to meet him. For they heard that he had accomplished this sign. {12:19} Therefore, the Pharisees said among themselves: “Do you see that we are accomplishing nothing? Behold, the entire world has gone after him.” {12:20} Now there were certain Gentiles among those who went up so that they might worship on the feast day. {12:21} Therefore, these approached Philip, who was from Bethsaida of Galilee, and they petitioned him, saying: “Sir, we want to see Jesus.” {12:22} Philip went and told Andrew. Next, Andrew and Philip told Jesus. {12:23} But Jesus answered them by saying: “The hour arrives when the Son of man shall be glorified. {12:24} Amen, amen, I say to you, unless the grain of wheat falls to the ground and dies, it remains alone. But if it dies, it yields much fruit. Whoever loves his life, will lose it. And whoever hates his life in this world, preserves it unto eternal life. {12:26} If anyone serves me, let him follow me. And where I am, there too my minister shall be. If anyone has served me, my Father will honor him. {12:27} Now my soul is troubled. And what should I say? Father, save me from this hour? But it is for this reason that I came to this hour. {12:28} Father, glorify your name!” And then a voice came from heaven, “I have glorified it, and I will glorify it again.” {12:29} Therefore, the crowd, which was standing near and had heard it, said that it was like thunder. Others were saying, “An Angel was speaking with him.” {12:30} Jesus responded and said: “This voice came, not for my sake, but for your sakes. {12:31} Now is the judgment of the world. Now will the prince of this world be cast out. {12:32} And when I have been lifted up from the earth, I will draw all things to myself.” {12:33} (Now he said this, signifying what kind of death he would die.) {12:34} The crowd answered him: “We have heard, from the law, that the Christ remains forever. And how can you say, ‘The Son of man must be lifted up?’ Who is this Son of man?” {12:35} Therefore, Jesus said to them: “For a brief time, the Light is among you. Walk while you have the Light, so that the darkness may not overtake you. But whoever walks in darkness does not know where he is going. {12:36} While you have the Light, believe in the Light, so that you may be sons of the Light.” Jesus spoke these things, and then he went away and hid himself from them. {12:37} And although he had done such great signs in their presence, they did not believe in him, {12:38} so that the word of the prophet Isaiah might be fulfilled, which says: “Lord, who has believed in our hearing? And to whom has the arm of the Lord been revealed?” {12:39} Because of this, they were not able to believe, for Isaiah said again: {12:40} “He has blinded their eyes, and hardened their heart, so that they may not see with their eyes, and understand with their heart, and be converted: and then I would heal them.” {12:41} These things Isaiah said, when he saw his glory and was speaking about him. {12:42} Yet truly, many of the leaders also believed in him. But because of the Pharisees, they did not confess him, so that they would not be cast out of the synagogue. {12:43} For they loved the glory of men more than the glory of God. {12:44} But Jesus cried out and said: “Whoever believes in me, does not believe in me, but in him who sent me. {12:45} And whoever sees me, sees him who sent me. {12:46} I have arrived as a light to the world, so that all who believe in me might not remain in darkness. {12:47} And if anyone has heard my words and not kept them, I do not judge him. For I did not come so that I may judge the world, but so that I may save the world. {12:48} Whoever despises me and does not accept my words has one who judges him. The word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him on the last day. {12:49} For I am not speaking from myself, but from the Father who sent me. He gave a commandment to me as to what I should say and how I should speak. {12:50} And I know that his commandment is eternal life. Therefore, the things that I speak, just as the Father has said to me, so also do I speak.”}

{13:1} Before the feast day of the Passover, Jesus knew that the hour was approaching when he would pass from this world to the Father. And since he had always loved his own who were in the world, he loved them unto the end. {13:2} And when the meal had taken place, when the devil had now put it into the heart of Judas Iscariot, the son of Simon, to betray him, {13:3} knowing that the Father had given all things into his hands and that he came from God and was going to God, {13:4} he rose up from the meal, and he set aside his vestments, and when he had received a towel, he wrapped it around himself. {13:5} Next he put water into a shallow bowl, and he began to wash the feet of the disciples and to wipe them with the towel with which he was wrapped. {13:6} And then he came to Simon Peter. And Peter said to him, “Lord, would you wash my feet?” {13:7} Jesus responded and said to him: “What I am doing, you do not now understand. But you shall understand it afterward.” {13:8} Peter said to him, “You shall never wash my feet!” Jesus answered him, “If I do not wash you, you will have no place with me.” {13:9} Simon Peter said to him, “Then Lord, not only my feet, but also my hands and my head!” {13:10} Jesus said to him: “He who is washed need only wash his feet, and then he will be entirely clean. And you are clean, but not all.” {13:11} For he knew which one would betray him. For this reason, he said, “You are not all clean.” {13:12} And so, after he had washed their feet and received his vestments, when he had sat down at table again, he said to them: “Do you know what I have done for you? {13:13} You call me Teacher and Lord, and you speak well: for so I am. {13:14} Therefore, if I, your Lord and Teacher, have washed your feet, you also ought to wash the feet of one another. {13:15} For I have given you an example, so that just as I have done for you, so also should you do. {13:16} Amen, amen, I say to you, the servant is not greater than his Lord, and the apostle is not greater than he who sent him. {13:17} If you understand this, you shall be blessed if you will do it. {13:18} I am not speaking about all of you. I know those whom I have chosen. But this is so that the Scripture may be fulfilled, ‘He who eats bread with me shall lift up his heel against me.’” {13:19} And I tell you this now, before it happens, so that when it has happened, you may believe that I am. {13:20} Amen, amen, I say to you, whoever receives anyone whom I send, receives me. And whoever receives me, receives him who sent me.” {13:21} When Jesus had said these things, he was troubled in spirit. And he bore witness by saying: "Amen, amen, I say to you, that one among you shall betray me." {13:22} Therefore, the disciples looked around at one another, uncertain about whom he spoke. {13:23} And leaning against the bosom of Jesus was one of his disciples, the one whom Jesus loved. {13:24} Therefore, Simon Peter motioned to this one and said to him, "Who is it that he is speaking about?" {13:25} And so, leaning against the chest of Jesus, he said to him, "Lord, who is it?" {13:26} Jesus responded, "It is he to whom I shall extend the dipped bread." And when he had dipped the bread, he gave it to Judas Iscariot, son of Simon. {13:27} And after the morsel, Satan entered into him. And Jesus said to him, "What you are going to do, do quickly." {13:28} Now none of those sitting at table knew why he had said this to him. {13:29} For some were thinking that, because Judas held the purse, that Jesus had told him, "Buy those things which are needed by us for the feast day," or that he might give something to the needy. {13:30} Therefore, having accepted the morsel, he went out immediately. And it was night. {13:31} Then, when he had gone out, Jesus said: "Now the Son of man has been glorified, and God has been glorified in him. {13:32} If God has been glorified in him, then God will also glorify him in himself, and he will glorify him without delay. {13:33} Little sons, for a brief while, I am with you. You shall seek me, and just as I said to the Jews, 'Where I am going, you are not able to go,' so also I say to you now. {13:34} I give you a new commandment: Love one another. Just as I have loved you, so also must you love one another. {13:35} By this, all shall recognize that you are my disciples: if you will have love for one another." {13:36} Simon Peter said to him, "Lord, where are you going?" Jesus responded: "Where I am going, you are not able to follow me now. But you shall follow afterward." {13:37} Peter said to him: "Why am I unable to follow you now? I will lay down my life for you!" {13:38} Jesus answered him: "You will lay down your life for me? Amen, amen, I say to you, the rooster will not crow, until you deny me three times."
my Father is glorified: that you should bring forth very much fruit and become my disciples. {15:9} As the Father has loved me, so I have loved you. Abide in my love. {15:10} If you keep my precepts, you shall abide in my love, just as I also have kept my Father’s precepts and I abide in his love. {15:11} These things I have spoken to you, so that my joy may be in you, and your joy may be fulfilled. {15:12} This is my precept: that you love one another, just as I have loved you. {15:13} No one has a greater love than this: that he lay down his life for his friends. {15:14} You are my friends, if you do what I instruct you. {15:15} I will no longer call you servants, for the servant does not know what his Lord is doing. But I have called you friends, because everything whatsoever that I have heard from my Father, I have made known to you. {15:16} You have not chosen me, but I have chosen you. And I have appointed you, so that you may go forth and bear fruit, and so that your fruit may last. Then whatever you have asked of the Father in my name, he shall give to you. {15:17} This I command you: that you love one another. {15:18} If the world hates you, know that it has hated me before you. {15:19} If you had been of the world, the world would love what is its own. Yet truly, you are not of the world, but I have chosen you out of the world; because of this, the world hates you. {15:20} Remember my saying that I told you: The servant is not greater than his Lord. If they have persecuted me, they will persecute you also. If they have kept my word, they will keep yours also. {15:21} But all these things they will do to you because of my name, for they do not know him who sent me. {15:22} If I had not come and had not spoken to them, they would not have sin. But now they have no excuse for their sin. {15:23} Whoever hates me, hates my Father also. {15:24} If I had not accomplished among them works that no other person has accomplished, they would not have sin. But now they have both seen me, and they have hated me and my Father. {15:25} But this is so that the word may be fulfilled which was written in their law: ‘For they hated me without cause.’ {15:26} But when the Advocate has arrived, whom I will send to you from the Father, the Spirit of truth who proceeds from the Father, he will offer testimony about me. {15:27} And you shall offer testimony, because you are with me from the beginning.”

[John 16] {16:1} “These things I have spoken to you, so that you would not stumble. {16:2} They will put you out of the synagogues. But the hour is coming when everyone who puts you to death will consider that he is offering an excellent service to God. {16:3} And they will do these things to you because they have not known the Father, nor me. {16:4} But these things I have spoken to you, so that, when the hour for these things will have arrived, you may remember that I told you. {16:5} But I did not tell you these things from the beginning, because I was with you. And now I am going to him who sent me. And no one among you has asked me, ‘Where are you going?’ {16:6} But because I have spoken these things to you, sorrow has filled your heart. {16:7} But I tell you the truth: it is expedient for you that I am going. For if I do not go, the Advocate will not come to you. But when I will have gone away, I will send him to you. {16:8} And when he has arrived, he will argue against the world, about sin and about justice and about judgment: {16:9} about sin, indeed, because they have not believed in me; {16:10} about justice, truly, because I am going to the Father, and you will not see me any longer; {16:11} about judgment, then, because the prince of this world has already been judged. {16:12} I still have many things to say to you, but you are not able to bear them now. {16:13} But when the Spirit of truth has arrived, he will teach the whole truth to you. For he will not be speaking from himself. Instead, whatever he will hear, he will speak. And he will announce to you the things that are to come. {16:14} He shall glorify me. For he will receive from what is mine, and he will announce it to you. {16:15} All things whatsoever that the Father has are mine. For this reason, I said that he will receive from what is mine and that he will announce it to you. {16:16} A little while, and then you will not see me. And again a little while, and you will see me. For I am going to the Father.” {16:17} Then some of his disciples said to one another: “What is this, that he is saying to us: ‘A little while, and you will not see me,’ and ‘Again a little while, and you will see me,’ and, ‘For I am going to the Father?’ ” {16:18} And they said: “What is this, that he is saying, ‘A little while?’ We do not understand what he is saying.” {16:19} But Jesus realized that they wanted to question him, and so he said to them: “Are you inquiring among yourselves about this, that I said: ‘A little while, and you will not see me, and again a little while, and you will see me?’ ” {16:20} Amen, amen, I say to you, that you shall mourn and weep, but the world will rejoice. And you shall be greatly saddened, yet your sorrow shall be turned into joy. {16:21} A woman, when she is giving birth, has sorrow, because her hour has arrived. But when she has given birth to the child, then she no longer remembers the difficulties, because of the joy: for a man has been born into the world. {16:22} Therefore, you also, indeed, have sorrow now. But I will see you again, and your heart shall rejoice. And no one will take away your joy from you. {16:23} And, in that day, you will not petition me for anything. Amen, amen, I say to you, if you ask the Father for anything in my name, he will give it to you. {16:24} Until now, you have not requested anything in my name. Ask, and you shall receive, so that your joy may be full. {16:25} I have spoken these things to you in proverbs. The hour is coming when I will no longer speak to you in proverbs; instead, I will announce to you plainly from the Father. {16:26} In that day, you shall ask in my name, and I do not say to you that I will ask the Father for you. {16:27} For the Father himself loves you, because you have loved me, and because you have believed that I went forth from God. {16:28} I went forth from the Father, and I have come into the world. Next I am leaving the world, and I am going to the Father.” {16:29} His disciples said to him: “Behold, now you are speaking plainly and not reciting a proverb. {16:30} Now we know that you know all things, and that you have no need for anyone to question you. By this, we believe that you went forth from God.” {16:31} Jesus answered them: “Do you believe now? {16:32} Behold, the hour is coming, and it has now arrived, when you will be scattered, each one on his own, and you will leave me behind, alone. And yet I am not alone, for the Father is with me. {16:33} These things I have spoken to you, so that you may have peace in me. In the world, you will have difficulties. But have confidence: I have overcome the world.”

[John 17] {17:1} Jesus said these things, and then, lifting up his eyes toward heaven, he said: “Father, the hour has
When Jesus had said these things, he departed with his disciples across the Torrent of Kidron, where there was a garden, into which he entered with his disciples. {18:2} But Judas, who betrayed him, also knew the place, for Jesus had frequently met with his disciples there. {18:3} Then Judas, when he had received a cohort from both the high priests and the attendants of the Pharisees, approached the place with lanterns and torches and weapons. {18:4} And so Jesus, knowing all that was about to happen to him, advanced and said to them, “Who are you seeking?” {18:5} They answered him, “Jesus the Nazarene.” Jesus said to them, “I am he.” Now Judas, who betrayed him, was also standing with them. {18:6} Then, when he said to them, “I am he,” they moved back and fell to the ground. {18:7} Then again he questioned them: “Who are you seeking?” And they said, “Jesus the Nazarene.” {18:8} Jesus responded: “I told you that I am he. Therefore, if you are seeking me, permit these others to go away.” {18:9} This was so that the word might be fulfilled, which he said, “Of those whom you have given to me, I have not lost any of them.” {18:10} Then Simon Peter, having a sword, drew it, and he struck the servant of the high priest, and he cut off his right ear. Now the name of the servant was Malchus. {18:11} Therefore, Jesus said to Peter: “Set your sword into the scabbard. Should I not drink the chalice which my Father has given to me?” {18:12} Then the cohort, and the tribune, and the attendants of the Jews apprehended Jesus and bound him. {18:13} And they led him away, first to Annas, for he was the father-in-law of Caiaphas, who was the high priest that year. {18:14} Now Caiaphas was the one who had given counsel to the Jews that it was expedient for one man to die for the people. {18:15} And Simon Peter was following Jesus with another disciple. And that disciple was known to the high priest, and so he entered with Jesus into the court of the high priest. {18:16} But Peter was standing outside at the entrance. Therefore, the other disciple, who was known to the high priest, went out and spoke to the woman who was the doorkeeper, and he led in Peter. {18:17} Therefore, the woman servant keeping the door said to Peter, “Are you not also among the disciples of this man?” He said, “I am not.” {18:18} Now the servants and attendants were standing before burning coals, for it was cold, and they were warming themselves. And Peter was standing with them also, warming himself. {18:19} Then the high priest questioned Jesus about his disciples and about his doctrine. {18:20} Jesus responded to him: “I have spoken openly to the world. I have always taught in the synagogue and in the temple, where all the Jews meet. And I have said nothing in secret. {18:21} Why do you question me? Question those who heard what I said to them. {18:22} Then, when he had said this, one of the attendants standing nearby struck Jesus, saying: “Is this the way you answer the high priest?” {18:23} Jesus answered him: “If I have spoken wrongly, offer testimony about the wrong. But if I have spoken correctly, then why do you strike me?” {18:24} And Annas sent him bound to Caiaphas, the high priest. {18:25} Now Simon Peter was standing and warming himself. Then they said to him, “Are you not also one of his disciples?” He denied it and said, “I am not.” {18:26} One of the servants of the high priest (a relative of him whose ear Peter had cut off) said to him, “Did I not see you in the garden with him?” {18:27} Therefore, again, Peter denied it. And immediately the rooster crowed. {18:28} Then they led Jesus from Caiaphas into the praetorium. Now it was morning, and so they did not enter into the praetorium, so that they would not be defiled, but might eat the Passover.

{18:29} Therefore, Pilate went outside to them, and he said, “What accusation are you bringing against this man?”

{18:30} They responded and said to him, “If he were not an evil-doer, we would not have handed him over to you.”

{18:31} Therefore, Pilate said to them, “Take him yourselves and judge him according to your own law.” Then the Jews said to him, “It is not lawful for us to execute anyone.”

{18:32} This was so that the word of Jesus would be fulfilled, which he spoke signifying what kind of death he would die.

{18:33} Then Pilate entered the praetorium again, and he called Jesus and said to him, “You are the king of the Jews?”

{18:34} Jesus responded, “Are you saying this of yourself, or have others spoken to you about me?” {18:35} Pilate responded: “Am I a Jew? Your own nation and the high priests have handed you over to me. What have you done?”

{18:36} Jesus responded: “My kingdom is not of this world. If my kingdom were of this world, my ministers would certainly strive so that I would not be handed over to the Jews. But my kingdom is not now from here.”

{18:37} And so Pilate said to him, “You are a king, then?” Jesus answered, “You are saying that I am a king. For this I was born, and for this I came into the world: so that I may offer testimony to the truth. Everyone who is of the truth hears my voice.”

{18:38} Pilate said to him, “What is truth?” And when he had said this, he went out again to the Jews, and he said to them, “I find no case against him.” {18:39} But you have a custom, that I should release someone to you at the Passover. Therefore, do you want me to release to you the king of the Jews?”

{18:40} Then they all cried out repeatedly, saying: “Not this one, but Barabbas.” Now Barabbas was a robber.

[John 19] {19:1} Therefore, Pilate then took Jesus into custody and scourged him. {19:2} And the soldiers, plaiting a crown of thorns, imposed it on his head. And they put a purple garment around him. {19:3} And they were approaching him and saying, “Hail, king of the Jews!” And they struck him repeatedly. {19:4} Then Pilate went outside again, and he said to them: “Behold, I am bringing him out to you, so that you may realize that I find no case against him.”

{19:5} (Then Jesus went out, bearing the crown of thorns and the purple garment.) And he said to them, “Behold the man.” {19:6} Therefore, when the high priests and the attendants had seen him, they cried out, saying: “ Crucify him! Crucify him!” Pilate said to them: “Take him yourselves and crucify him. For I find no case against him.”

{19:7} The Jews answered him, “We have a law, and according to the law, he ought to die, for he has made himself the Son of God.” {19:8} Therefore, when Pilate had heard this word, he was more fearful. {19:9} And he entered into the praetorium again. And he said to Jesus, “Where are you from?” But Jesus gave him no response. {19:10} Therefore, Pilate said to him: “Will you not speak to me? Do you not know that I have authority to crucify you, and I have authority to release you?”

{19:11} Jesus responded, “You would not have any authority over me, unless it were given to you from above. For this reason, he who has handed me over to you has the greater sin.”

{19:12} And from then on, Pilate was seeking to release him. But the Jews were crying out, saying: “If you release this man, you are no friend of Caesar. For anyone who makes himself a king contradicts Caesar.”

{19:13} Now when Pilate had heard these words, he brought Jesus outside, and he sat down in the seat of judgment, in a place which is called the Pavement, but in Hebrew, it is called the Elevation. {19:14} Now it was the preparation day of the Passover, about the sixth hour. And he said to the Jews, “Behold your king.”

{19:15} But they were crying out: “Take him away! Take him away! Crucify him!” Pilate said to them, “Shall I crucify your king?” The high priests responded, “We have no king except Caesar.” {19:16} Therefore, he then handed him over to them to be crucified. And they took Jesus and led him away.

{19:17} And carrying his own cross, he went forth to the place which is called Calvary, but in Hebrew it is called the Place of the Skull. {19:18} There they crucified him, and with him two others, one on each side, with Jesus in the middle.

{19:19} Then Pilate also wrote a title, and he set it above the cross. And it was written: JESUS THE NAZARENE, KING OF THE JEWS.

{19:20} Therefore, many of the Jews read this title, for the place where Jesus was crucified was close to the city. And it was written in Hebrew, in Greek, and in Latin. {19:21} Then the high priests of the Jews said to Pilate: Do not write, 'King of the Jews,' but that he said, 'I am King of the Jews.'

{19:22} Pilate responded, “What I have written, I have written.”

{19:23} Then the soldiers, when they had crucified him, took his garments, and they made four parts, one part to each soldier, and the tunic. But the tunic was seamless, woven from above throughout the whole. {19:24} Then they said to one another, “Let us not cut it, but instead let us cast lots over it, to see whose it will be.” This was so that the Scripture would be fulfilled, saying: “They have distributed my garments among themselves, and for my vesture they have cast lots.” And indeed, the soldiers did these things.

{19:25} And standing beside the cross of Jesus were his mother, and his mother’s sister, and Mary of Cleophas, and Mary Magdalene.

{19:26} Therefore, when Jesus had seen his mother and the disciple whom he loved standing near, he said to his mother, “Woman, behold your son.” {19:27} Next, he said to the disciple, “Behold your mother.” And from that hour, the disciple accepted her as his own.

{19:28} After this, Jesus knew that all had been accomplished, so in order that the Scripture might be completed, he said, “I thirst.”

{19:29} And there was a container placed there, full of vinegar. Then, placing a sponge full of vinegar around hyssop, they brought it to his mouth.

{19:30} Then Jesus, when he had received the vinegar, said: “It is consummated.” And bowing down his head, he surrendered his spirit.

{19:31} Then the Jews, because it was the preparation day, so that the bodies would not remain upon the cross on the Sabbath (for that Sabbath was a great day), they petitioned Pilate in order that their legs might be broken, and they might be taken away.

{19:32} Therefore, the soldiers approached, and, indeed, they broke the legs of the first one, and of the other who was crucified with him.

{19:33} But after they had approached Jesus, when they saw that he was already dead, they did not break his legs. {19:34} Instead, one of the soldiers opened his side with a lance, and immediately there went out blood and water.

{19:35} And he who saw this has declared: “For these things happened so that the Scripture would be fulfilled: ‘You shall not break a bone of him.’”

{19:36} For anyone who makes himself a king contradicts Caesar.”

these things, Joseph from Arimathea, (because he was a disciple of Jesus, but a secret one for fear of the Jews) petitioned Pilate so that he might take away the body of Jesus. And Pilate gave permission. Therefore, he went and took away the body of Jesus. 19:39 Now Nicodemus also arrived, (who had gone to Jesus at first by night) bringing a mixture of myrrh and aloes, weighing about seventy pounds. 19:40 Therefore, they took the body of Jesus, and they bound it with linen cloths and the aromatic spices, just as it is the manner of the Jews to bury. 19:41 Now in the place where he was crucified there was a garden, and in the garden there was a new tomb, in which no one had yet been laid. 19:42 Therefore, because of the preparation day of the Jews, since the tomb was nearby, they placed Jesus there.

[John 20] 20:1 Then on the first Sabbath, Mary Magdalene went to the tomb early, while it was still dark, and she saw that the stone had been rolled away from the tomb. 20:2 Therefore, she ran and went to Simon Peter, and to the other disciple, whom Jesus loved, and she said to them, “They have taken the Lord away from the tomb, and we do not know where they have laid him.” 20:3 Therefore, Peter departed with the other disciple, and they went to the tomb. 20:4 Now they both ran together, but the other disciple ran more quickly, ahead of Peter, and so he arrived at the tomb first. 20:5 And when he bowed down, he saw the linen cloths lying there, but he did not yet enter. 20:6 Then Simon Peter arrived, following him, and he entered the tomb, and he saw the linen cloths lying there, 20:7 and the separate cloth which had been over his head, not placed with the linen cloths, but in a separate place, wrapped up by itself. 20:8 Then the other disciple, who had arrived first at the tomb, also entered. And he saw and believed. 20:9 For as yet they did not understand the Scripture, that it was necessary for him to rise again from the dead. 20:10 Then the disciples went away again, each by himself. 20:11 But Mary was standing outside the tomb, weeping. Then, while she was weeping, she bowed down and gazed into the tomb. 20:12 And she saw two Angels in white, sitting where the body of Jesus had been placed, one at the head, and one at the feet. 20:13 They say to her, “Woman, why are you weeping?” She said to them, “Because they have taken away my Lord, and I do not know where they have placed him.” 20:14 When she had said this, she turned around and saw Jesus standing there, but she did not know that it was Jesus. 20:15 Jesus said to her: “Woman, why are you weeping? Who are you seeking?” Considering that it was the gardener, she said to him, “Sir, if you have moved him, tell me where you have placed him, and I will take him away.” 20:16 Jesus said to her, “Mary!” And turning, she said to him, “Rabboni!” (which means, Teacher). 20:17 Jesus said to her: “Do not touch me. For I have not yet ascended to my Father. But go to my brothers and tell them: ‘I am ascending to my Father and to your Father, to my God and to your God.’ ” 20:18 Mary Magdalene went, announcing to the disciples, “I have seen the Lord, and these are the things that he said to me.” 20:19 Then, when it was late on the same day, on the first of the Sabbaths, and the doors were closed where the disciples were gathered, for fear of the Jews, Jesus came and stood in their midst, and he said to them: “Peace to you.” 20:20 And when he had said this, he showed them his hands and side. And the disciples were gladdened when they saw the Lord. 20:21 Therefore, he said to them again: “Peace to you. As the Father has sent me, so I send you.” 20:22 When he had said this, he breathed on them. And he said to them: “Receive the Holy Spirit. 20:23 Those whose sins you shall forgive, they are forgiven them, and those whose sins you shall retain, they are retained.” 20:24 Now Thomas, one of the twelve, who is called the Twin, was not with them when Jesus arrived. 20:25 Therefore, the other disciples said to him, “We have seen the Lord.” But he said to them, “Unless I will see in his hands the mark of the nails and place my finger into the place of the nails, and place my hand into his side, I will not believe.” 20:26 And after eight days, again his disciples were within, and Thomas was with them. Jesus arrived, though the doors had been closed, and he stood in their midst and said, “Peace to you.” 20:27 Next, he said to Thomas: “Look at my hands, and place your finger here; and bring your hand close, and place it at my side. And do not choose to be unbelieving, but faithful.” 20:28 Thomas responded and said to him, “My Lord and my God.” 20:29 Jesus said to him: “You have seen me, Thomas, so you have believed. Blessed are those who have not seen and yet have believed.” 20:30 Jesus also accomplished many other signs in the sight of his disciples. These have not been written in this book. 20:31 But these things have been written, so that you may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, and so that, in believing, you may have life in his name.

[John 21] 21:1 After this, Jesus manifested himself again to the disciples at the Sea of Tiberias. And he manifested himself in this way. 21:2 These were together: Simon Peter and Thomas, who is called the Twin, and Nathanael, who was from Cana of Galilee, and the sons of Zebedee, and two others of his disciples. 21:3 Simon Peter said to them, “I am going fishing.” They said to him, “And we are going with you.” And they went and climbed into the ship. And in that night, they caught nothing. 21:4 But when morning arrived, Jesus stood on the shore. Yet the disciples did not realize that it was Jesus. 21:5 Then Jesus said to them, “Children, do you have any food?” They answered him, “No.” 21:6 He said to them, “Cast the net to the right side of the ship, and you will find some.” Therefore, they cast it out, and then they were not able to draw it in, because of the multitude of fish. 21:7 Therefore, the disciple whom Jesus loved said to Peter, “It is the Lord.” Simon Peter, when he had heard that it was the Lord, wrapped his tunic around himself, (for he was naked) and he cast himself into the sea. 21:8 Then the other disciples arrived in a boat, (for they were not far from the land, only about two hundred cubits) dragging the net with the fish. 21:9 Then, when they climbed down to the land they saw burning coals prepared, and fish already placed above them, and bread. 21:10 Jesus said to them, “Bring some of the fish that you have just now caught.” 21:11 Simon Peter climbed up and drew in the net to land: full of large fish, one hundred and fifty-three of them. And although there were so many, the net was not torn. 21:12 Jesus said to them, “Approach and dine.” And not one of them sitting down to eat dared to ask him, “Who are you?” For they knew that it was the Lord. 21:13 And Jesus approached, and he took bread, and he gave it to them, and similarly with the fish. 21:14 This was now the third time that Jesus was manifested to his disciples, after he had resurrected from the dead. {21:15} Then, when they had dined, Jesus said to Simon Peter, “Simon, son of John, do you love me more than these?” He said to him, “Yes, Lord, you know that I love you.” He said to him, “Feed my lambs.” {21:16} He said to him again: “Simon, son of John, do you love me?” He said to him, “Yes, Lord, you know that I love you.” He said to him, “Feed my sheep.” {21:17} He told him a third time, “Simon, son of John, do you love me?” Peter was very grieved that he had asked him a third time, “Do you love me?” And so he said to him: “Lord, you know all things. You know that I love you.” He said to him, “Feed my sheep. {21:18} Amen, amen, I say to you, when you were younger, you girded yourself and walked wherever you wanted. But when you are older, you will extend your hands, and another shall gird you and lead you where you do do not want to go.” {21:19} Now he said this to signify by what time of death he would glorify God. And when he had said dthis, he said to him, “Follow me.” {21:20} Peter, turning around, saw the disciple whom Jesus loved following, the one who also had leaned on his chest at supper and said, “Lord, who is it who shall betray you?” {21:21} Therefore, when Peter had seen him, he said to Jesus, “Lord, but what about this one?” {21:22} Jesus said to him: “If I want him to remain until I return, what is that to you? You follow me.” {21:23} Therefore, the saying went out among the brothers that this disciple would not die. But Jesus did not say to him that he would not die, but only, “If I want him to remain until I return, what is that to you?” {21:24} This is the same disciple who offers testimony about these things, and who has written these things. And we know that his testimony is ture. {21:25} Now there are also many other things that Jesus did, which, if each of these were written down, the world itself, I suppose, would not be able to contain the books that would be written.

The Acts of the Apostles

[Acts 1] {1:1} Certainly, O Theophilus, I composed the first discourse about everything that Jesus began to do and to teach, {1:2} instructing the Apostles, whom he had chosen through the Holy Spirit, even until the day on which he was taken up. {1:3} He also presented himself alive to them, after his Passion, appearing to them throughout forty days and speaking about the kingdom of God with many elucidations.
{1:4} And dining with them, he instructed them that they should not depart from Jerusalem, but that they should wait for the Promise of the Father, “about which you have heard,”
he said, “from my own mouth. {1:5} For John, indeed, baptized with water, but you shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit, not many days from now.” {1:6} Therefore, those who had assembled together questioned him, saying, “Lord, is this the time when you will restore the kingdom of Israel?”
{1:7} But he said to them: “It is not yours to know the times or the moments, which the Father has set by his own authority. {1:8} But you shall receive the power of the Holy Spirit, passing over you, and you shall be witnesses for me in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and even to the ends of the earth.” {1:9} And when he had said these things, while they were watching, he was lifted up, and a cloud took him from their sight. {1:10} And while they were watching him going up to heaven, behold, two men stood near them in white vestments. {1:11} And they said: “Men of Galilee, why do you stand here looking up toward heaven? This Jesus, who has been taken up from you into heaven, shall return in just the same way that you have seen him going up to heaven.” {1:12} Then they returned to Jerusalem from the mountain, which is called Olivet, which is next to Jerusalem, within a Sabbath day’s journey. {1:13} And when they had taken up into the cenacle, they ascended to the place where Peter and John, James and Andrew, Philip and Thomas, Bartholomew and Matthew, James of Alphaeus and Simon the Zealot, and Jude of James, were staying. {1:14} All these were persevering with one accord in prayer with the women, and with Mary, the mother of Jesus, and with his brothers.
{1:15} In those days, Peter, rising up in the midst of the brothers, said (now the crowd of men altogether was about one hundred and twenty): {1:16} “Noble brothers, the Scripture must be fulfilled, which the Holy Spirit predicted by the mouth of David about Judas, who was the leader of those who apprehended Jesus. {1:17} He had been numbered among us, and he was chosen by lot for this ministry.
{1:18} And this man certainly possessed an estate from the wages of iniquity, and so, having been hanged, he burst open in the middle and all his internal organs poured out.
{1:19} And this became known to all the inhabitants of Jerusalem, so that this field was called in their language, Akeldama, that is, ‘Field of Blood.’ {1:20} For it has been written in the book of Psalms: ‘Let their dwelling place be desolate and may there be no one who dwells within it,’ and ‘Let another take his episcopate.’ {1:21} Therefore, it is necessary that, out of these men who have been assembling with us throughout the entire time that the Lord Jesus went in and out among us, {1:22} beginning from the baptism of John, until the day when he was taken up from us, one of these be made a witness with us of his Resurrection.”
{1:23} And they appointed two: Joseph, who was called Barsabbas, who was surnamed Justus, and Matthias.
{1:24} And praying, they said: “May you, O Lord, who knows the heart of everyone, reveal which one of these two you have chosen, {1:25} to take a place in this ministry and apostleship, from which Judas prevaricated, so that he might go to his own place.” {1:26} And they cast lots concerning them, and the lot fell upon Matthias. And he was numbered with the eleven Apostles.

[Acts 2] {2:1} And when the days of Pentecost were completed, they were all together in the same place.
{2:2} And suddenly, there came a sound from heaven, like that of a wind approaching violently, and it filled the entire house where they were sitting. {2:3} And there appeared among them, and he was chosen by lot for this ministry.
{2:4} And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit. And they began to speak in various languages, just as the Holy Spirit bestowed eloquence to them. {2:5} Now there were Jews staying in Jerusalem, pious men from every nation that is under heaven. {2:6} And when this sound occurred, the multitude came together and was confused in mind, because each one was listening to them speaking in his own language. {2:7} Then all were astonished, and they wondered, saying: “Behold, are not all of these who are speaking Galileans? {2:8} And how is it that we have each heard them in our own language, into which we were born?
{2:9} Parthians and Medes and Elamites, and those who
and they said to Peter and to the other Apostles: “What whom you crucified, both Lord and Christ.” {2:37} Now know most certainly that God has made this same Jesus, footstool.’ {2:36} Therefore, may the entire house of Israel heaven. But he himself said: ‘The Lord said to my Lord: Sit now see and hear. {2:34} For David did not ascend into the right hand of God, and having received from the Father

this we are all witnesses. {2:33} Therefore, being exalted to this, he was speaking about the Resurrection of the Christ.

you about the Patriarch David: for he passed away and was life. You will completely fill me with happiness by your corruption. {2:28} You have made known to me the ways of Lord always in my sight, for he is at my right hand, so that I

{2:24} And he whom God has raised up has broken the definitive plan and foreknowledge of God, was delivered in your midst, just as you also know. {2:23} This man, under the miracles and wonders and signs that God accomplished through him in your midst, just as you also know. {2:22} Men of Israel, hear these words: Jesus the Nazarene is a man confirmed by God among you through the miracles
and wonders and signs that God accomplished through him in your midst, just as you also know. {2:21} And this shall be: in the last days, says the Lord, I will pour out, from my Spirit, upon all flesh. And your sons and your daughters shall prophesy. And your youths shall see visions, and your elders shall dream dreams. {2:18} And certainly, upon my men and women servants in those days, I will pour out from my Spirit, and they shall prophesy. {2:19} And I will bestow wonders in heaven above, and signs on earth below: blood and fire and the vapor of smoke. {2:20} The sun shall be turned into darkness and the moon into blood, before the great and manifest day of the Lord arrives. {2:21} And this shall be:
whosoever shall invoke the name of the Lord will be saved.’
{2:22} Men of Israel, hear these words: Jesus the Nazarene is a man confirmed by God among you through the miracles
and wonders and signs that God accomplished through him
in your midst, just as you also know. {2:23} This man, under the decisive plan and foreknowledge of God, was delivered by the hands of the unjust, afflicted, and put to death.
{2:24} And he whom God has raised up has broken the sorrows of Hell, for certainly it was impossible for him to be held by it. {2:25} For David said about him: ‘I foresaw the Lord always in my sight, for he is at my right hand, so that I may not be moved. {2:26} Because of this, my heart has rejoiced, and my tongue has exulted. Moreover, my flesh shall also rest in hope. {2:27} For you will not abandon my soul to Hell, nor will you allow your Holy One to see corruption. {2:28} You have made known to me the ways of life. You will completely fill me with happiness by your presence.’ {2:29} Noble brothers, permit me to speak freely to you about the Patriarch David: for he passed away and was buried, and his sepulcher is with us, even to this very day.
{2:30} Therefore, he was a prophet, for he knew that God had sworn an oath to him about the fruit of his loins, about the One who would sit upon his throne. {2:31} Foreseeing
this, he was speaking about the Resurrection of the Christ.
For he was neither left behind in Hell, nor did his flesh see corruption. {2:32} This Jesus, God raised up again, and of this we are all witnesses. {2:33} Therefore, being exalted to the right hand of God, and having received from the Father the Promise of the Holy Spirit, he poured this out, just as you now see and hear. {2:34} For David did not ascend into heaven. But he himself said: ‘The Lord said to my Lord: Sit at my right hand, {2:35} until I make your enemies your footstool.’ {2:36} Therefore, may the entire house of Israel
know most certainly that God has made this same Jesus, whom you crucified, both Lord and Christ.” {2:37} Now
when they had heard these things, they were contrary in heart, and they said to Peter and to the other Apostles: “What should we do, noble brothers?” {2:38} Yet truly, Peter said to them: “Do penance; and be baptized, each one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of your sins. And you shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit. {2:39} For the Promise is for you and for your sons, and for all who are far away: for whomever the Lord our God will have called.”
{2:40} And then, with very many other words, he testified and he exhorted them, saying, “Save yourselves from this deprieved generation.” {2:41} Therefore, those who accepted his discourse were baptized. And about three thousand souls were added on that day. {2:42} Now they were persevering in the doctrine of the Apostles, and in the communion of the breaking of the bread, and in the prayers. {2:43} And fear developed in every soul. Also, many miracles and signs were accomplished by the Apostles in Jerusalem. And there was a great awe in everyone. {2:44} And then all who believed were together, and they held all things in common.
{2:45} They were selling their possessions and belongings, and dividing them to all, just as any of them had need.
{2:46} Also, they continued, daily, to be of one accord in the temple and to break bread among the houses; and they took their meals with exultation and simplicity of heart, {2:47} praising God greatly, and holding favor with all the people. And every day, the Lord increased those who were being saved among them.

[Acts 3] {3:1} Now Peter and John went up to the temple at the ninth hour of prayer. {3:2} And a certain man, who was lame from his mother's womb, was being carried in. They would lay him every day at the gate of the temple, which is called the Beautiful, so that he might request alms from those entering into the temple. {3:3} And this man, when he had seen Peter and John beginning to enter the temple, was begging, so that he might receive alms. {3:4} Then Peter and John, gazing at him, said, “Look at us.” {3:5} And he looked intently at them, hoping that he might receive something from them. {3:6} But Peter said: “Silver and gold is not mine.
But what I have, I give to you. In the name of Jesus Christ the Nazarene, rise up and walk.” {3:7} And taking him by the right hand, he lifted him up. And immediately his legs and feet were strengthened. {3:8} And leaping up, he stood and walked around. And he entered with them into the temple, walking and leaping and praising God. {3:9} And all the people saw him walking and praising God. {3:10} And they recognized him, that he was the same one who was sitting for alms at the Beautiful Gate of the temple. And they were filled with awe and amazement at what had happened to him. {3:11} Then, as he held on to Peter and John, all the people ran to them at the portico, which is called Solomon's, in astonishment. {3:12} But Peter, seeing this, responded to the people: “Men of Israel, why do you wonder at this? Or why do you stare at us, as if it were by our own strength or power that we caused this man to walk? {3:13} The God of Abraham and the God of Isaac and the God of Jacob, the God of our fathers, has glorified his Son Jesus, whom you, indeed, handed over and denied before the face of Pilate, when he was giving judgment to release him. {3:14} Then you denied the Holy and Just One, and petitioned for a murderous man to be given to you. {3:15} Truly, it was the Author of Life whom you put to death, whom God raised from the dead, to whom we are witnesses. {3:16} And by faith in his name, this man, whom you have seen and known, has confirmed his name. And faith through him has given this man complete health in the sight of you all. [3:17] And now, brothers, I know that you did this through ignorance, just as your leaders also did. [3:18] But in this way God has fulfilled the things that he announced beforehand through the mouth of all the Prophets: that his Christ would suffer. [3:19] Therefore, repent and be converted, so that your sins may be wiped away. [3:20] And then, when the time of consolation will have arrived from the presence of the Lord, he will send the One who was foretold to you, Jesus Christ, [3:21] whom heaven certainly must take up, until the time of the restoration of all things, which God has spoken of by the mouth of his holy prophets, from ages past. [3:22] Indeed, Moses said: ‘For the Lord your God shall raise up a Prophet for you from your brothers, one like me; the same shall you listen to according to everything whatsoever that he shall speak to you. [3:23] And this shall be: every soul who will not listen to that Prophet shall be exterminated from the people.’ [3:24] And all the prophets who have spoken, from Samuel and thereafter, have announced these days. [3:25] You are sons of the prophets and of the testament which God has appointed for our fathers, saying to Abraham: ‘And by your offspring all the families of the earth shall be blessed.’ [3:26] God raised up his Son and sent him first to you, to bless you, so that each one may turn himself away from his wickedness.”

[Acts 4] [4:1] But while they were speaking to the people, the priests and the magistrate of the temple and the Sadducees overwhelmed them, [4:2] being grieved that they were teaching the people and announcing in Jesus the resurrection from the dead. [4:3] And they laid hands on them, and they placed them under guard until the next day. For it was now evening. [4:4] But many of those who had heard the word believed. And the number of men became five thousand. [4:5] And it happened on the next day that their leaders and elders and scribes gathered together in Jerusalem, [4:6] including Annas, the high priest, and Caiaphas, and John and Alexander, and as many as were of the priestly family. [4:7] And stationing them in the middle, they questioned them: “By what power, or in whose name, have you done this?” [4:8] Then Peter, filled with the Holy Spirit, said to them: “Leaders of the people and elders, listen. [4:9] If we today are judged by a good deed done to an infirm man, by which he has been made whole, [4:10] let it be known to all of you and to all of the people of Israel, that in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ the Nazarene, whom you crucified, whom God has raised from the dead, by him, this man stands before you, healthy. [4:11] He is the stone, which was rejected by you, the builders, which has become the head of the corner. [4:12] And there is no salvation in any other. For there is no other name under heaven given to men, by which it is necessary for us to be saved.” [4:13] Then, seeing the constancy of Peter and John, having verified that they were men without letters or learning, they wondered. And they recognized that they had been with Jesus. [4:14] Also, seeing the man who had been cured standing with them, they were unable to say anything to contradict them. [4:15] But they ordered them to withdraw outside, away from the council, and they conferred among themselves, [4:16] saying: “What shall we do to these men? For certainly a public sign has been done through them, before all the inhabitants of Jerusalem. It is manifest, and we cannot deny it. [4:17] But lest it spread farther among the people, let us threaten them not to speak or teach at all in the name of Jesus. [4:18] And calling them in, they warned them not to speak or teach at all in the name of Jesus. [4:19] Yet truly, Peter and John said in response to them: “Judge whether it is just in the sight of God to listen to you, rather than to God. [4:20] For we are unable to refrain from speaking the things that we have seen and heard.” [4:21] But they, threatening them, sent them away, having not found a way that they might punish them because of the people. For all were glorifying the things that had been done in these events. [4:22] For the man in whom this sign of a cure had been accomplished was more than forty years old. [4:23] Then, having been released, they went to their own, and they reported in full what the leaders of the priests and the elders had said to them. [4:24] And when they had heard it, with one accord, they lifted up their voice to God, and they said: “Lord, you are the One who made heaven and earth, the sea and all that is in them, [4:25] who, by the Holy Spirit, through the mouth of our father David, your servant, said: ‘Why have the Gentiles been seething, and why have the people been pondering nonsense? [4:26] The kings of the earth have stood up, and the leaders have joined together as one, against the Lord and against his Christ.’ [4:27] For truly Herod and Pontius Pilate, with the Gentiles and the people of Israel, joined together in this city against your holy servant Jesus, whom you anointed [4:28] to do what your hand and your counsel had decreed would be done. [4:29] And now, O Lord, look upon their threats, and grant to your servants, as you have decreed. [4:30] by extending your hand in cures and signs and miracles, to be done through the name of your holy Son, Jesus.” [4:31] And when they had prayed, the place in which they were gathered was moved. And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit. And they were speaking the Word of God with confidence. [4:32] Then the multitude of believers were of one heart and one soul. Neither did anyone say that any of the things that he possessed were his own, but all things were common to them. [4:33] And with great power, the Apostles were rendering testimony to the Resurrection of Jesus Christ our Lord. And great grace was in them all. [4:34] And neither was anyone among them in need. For as many as were owners of fields or houses, selling these, were bringing the proceeds of the things that they were selling, [4:35] and were placing it before the feet of the Apostles. Then it was divided to each one, just as he had need. [4:36] Now Joseph, who the Apostles surnamed Barnabas (which is translated as ‘son of consolation’), who was a Levite of Cyprian descent, [4:37] since he had land, he sold it, and he brought the proceeds and placed these at the feet of the Apostles.

[Acts 5] [5:1] But a certain man named Ananias, with his wife Sapphira, sold a field, [5:2] and he was deceitful about the price of the field, with his wife’s consent. And bringing only part of it, he placed it at the feet of the Apostles. [5:3] But Peter said: “Ananias, why has Satan tempted your heart, so that you would lie to the Holy Spirit and be deceitful about the price of the land? [5:4] Did it not belong to you alone, and to your wife only, and to no one else? [5:5] Then Ananias, upon hearing these words, fell down and expired. And a great fear overwhelmed all who heard of it. {5:6} And the young men rose up and removed him; and carrying him out, they buried him. {5:7} Then about the space of three hours passed, and his wife entered, not knowing what had happened. {5:8} And Peter said to her, “Tell me, woman, if you sold the field for this amount?” And she said, “Yes, for that amount.” {5:9} And Peter said to her: “Why have you agreed together to test the Spirit of the Lord? Behold, the feet of those who have buried your husband are at the door, and they shall carry you out!” {5:10} Immediately, she fell down before his feet and expired. Then the young men entered and found her dead. And they carried her out and buried her next to her husband. {5:11} And a great fear came over the entire Church and over all who heard these things. {5:12} And through the hands of the Apostles many signs and wonders were accomplished among the people. And they all met with one accord at Solomon’s portico. {5:13} And among the others, no one dared to join himself to them. But the people magnified them. {5:14} Now the multitude of men and women who believed in the Lord was ever increasing, {5:15} so much so that they laid the infirm in the streets, placing them on beds and stretchers, so that, as Peter arrived, at least his shadow might fall upon any one of them, and they would be freed from their infirmities. {5:16} But a multitude also hurried to Jerusalem from the neighboring cities, carrying the sick and those troubled by unclean spirits, who were all healed. {5:17} Then the high priest and all those who were with him, that is, the heretical sect of the Sadducees, rose up and were filled with jealousy. {5:18} And they laid hands on the Apostles, and they placed them in the common prison. {5:19} But in the night, an Angel of the Lord opened the doors of the prison and led them out, saying, {5:20} “Go and stand in the temple, speaking to the people all these words of life.” {5:21} And when they had heard this, they entered the temple at first light, and they were teaching. Then the high priest, and those who were with him, approached, and they called together the council and all the elders of the sons of Israel. And they sent to the prison to have them brought. {5:22} But when the attendants had arrived, and, upon opening the prison, had not found them, they returned and reported to them, {5:23} saying: “We found the prison certainly locked up with all diligence, and the guards standing before the door. But upon opening it, we found no one within.” {5:24} Then, when the magistrate of the temple and the chief priests heard these words, they were uncertain about them, as to what should happen. {5:25} But someone arrived and reported to them, “Behold, the men whom you placed in prison are in the temple, standing and teaching the people.” {5:26} Then the magistrate, with the attendants, went and brought them without force. For they were afraid of the people, lest they be stoned. {5:27} And when they had brought them, they stood them before the council. And the high priest questioned them, {5:28} and said: “We strongly order you not to teach in this name. For behold, you have filled Jerusalem with your doctrine, and you wish to bring the blood of this man upon us.” {5:29} But Peter and the Apostles responded by saying: “It is necessary to obey God, more so than men. {5:30} The God of our fathers has raised up Jesus, whom you put to death by hanging him on a tree. {5:31} It is he whom God has exalted at his right hand as Ruler and Savior, so as to offer repentance and the remission of sins to Israel. {5:32} And we are witnesses of these things, with the Holy Spirit, whom God has given to all who are obedient to him.” {5:33} When they had heard these things, they were deeply wounded, and they were planning to put them to death. {5:34} But someone in the council, a Pharisee named Gamaliel, a teacher of the law honored by all the people, rose up and ordered the men to be put outside briefly. {5:35} And he said to them: “Men of Israel, you should be careful in your intentions about these men. {5:36} For before these days, Theudas stepped forward, asserting himself to be someone, and a number of men, about four hundred, joined with him. But he was killed, and all who believed in him were scattered, and they were reduced to nothing. {5:37} After this one, Judas the Galilean stepped forward, in the days of the enrollment, and he turned the people toward himself. But he also perished, and all of them, as many as had joined with him, were dispersed. {5:38} And now therefore, I say to you, withdraw from these men and leave them alone. For if this counsel or work is of men, it will be broken. {5:39} Yet truly, if it is of God, you will not be able to break it, and perhaps you might be found to have fought against God.” And they agreed with him. {5:40} And calling in the Apostles, having beaten them, they warned them not to speak at all in the name of Jesus. And they dismissed them. {5:41} And indeed, they went forth from the presence of the council, rejoicing that they were considered worthy to suffer insult on behalf of the name of Jesus. {5:42} And every day, in the temple and among the houses, they did not cease to teach and to evangelize Christ Jesus.

[Acts 6] {6:1} In those days, as the number of disciples was increasing, there occurred a murmuring of the Greeks against the Hebrews, because their widows were treated with disdain in the daily ministration. {6:2} And so the twelve, calling together the multitude of the disciples, said: “It is not fair for us to leave behind the Word of God to serve at tables also. {6:3} Therefore, brothers, search among yourselves for seven men of good testimony, filled with the Holy Spirit and with wisdom, whom we may appoint over this work. {6:4} Yet truly, we will be continually in prayer and in the ministry of the Word.” {6:5} And the plan pleased the entire multitude. And they chose Stephen, a man filled with faith and with the Holy Spirit, and Philip and Prochorus and Nicanor and Timon and Parmenas and Nicolas, a new arrival from Antioch. {6:6} These they set before the sight of the Apostles, and while praying, they imposed hands on them. {6:7} And the Word of the Lord was increasing, and the number of disciples in Jerusalem was multiplied exceedingly. And even a large group of the priests were obedient to the faith. {6:8} Then Stephen, filled with grace and fortitude, wrought great signs and miracles among the people. {6:9} But certain ones, from the synagogue of the so-called Libertines, and of the Cyrenians, and of the Alexandrians, and of those who were from Cilicia and Asia rose up and were disputing with Stephen. {6:10} But they were not able to resist the wisdom and the Spirit with which he was speaking. {6:11} Then they suborned men who were to claim that they had heard him speaking words of blasphemy against Moses and against God. {6:12} And thus did they stir up the people and the elders and the scribes. And hurrying together, they seized him and brought him to the council. {6:13} And they set up false witnesses, who said: “This man does not cease to speak words against the holy place and the law. {6:14} For we have heard him saying that this Jesus the Nazarene will destroy this place and will change the traditions, which Moses handed down to us.” {6:15} And all those who were sitting in the council, gazing at him, saw his face, as if it had become the face of an Angel.

Acts 7 {7:1} Then the high priest said, “Are these things so?” {7:2} And Stephen said: “Noble brothers and fathers, listen. The God of glory appeared to our father Abraham, when he was in Mesopotamia, before he stayed in Haran. {7:3} And God said to him, ‘Depart from your country and from your kindred, and go into the land that I will show to you.’ {7:4} Then he went away from the land of the Chaldeans, and he lived at Haran. And later, after his father was dead, God brought him into this land, in which you now dwell. {7:5} And he gave him no inheritance in it, not even the space of one step. But he promised to give it to him as a possession, and to his offspring after him, though he did not have a son. {7:6} Then God told him that his offspring would be a settler in a foreign land, and that they would subjugate them, and treat them badly, for four hundred years. {7:7} ‘And the nation whom they will serve, I will judge,’ said the Lord. ‘And after these things, they shall depart and shall serve me in this place.’ {7:8} And he gave him the covenant of circumcision. And so he conceived Isaac and circumcised him on the eighth day. And Isaac conceived Jacob, and Jacob, the twelve Patriarchs. {7:9} And the Patriarchs, being jealous, sold Joseph into Egypt. But God was with him. {7:10} And he rescued him from all his tribulations. And he gave him grace and wisdom in the sight of Pharaoh, the king of Egypt. And he appointed him as governor over Egypt and over all his house. {7:11} Then a famine occurred in all of Egypt and Canaan, and a great tribulation. And our fathers did not find food. {7:12} But when Jacob had heard that there was grain in Egypt, he sent our fathers first. {7:13} And on the second occasion, Joseph was recognized by his brothers, and his ancestry was made manifest to Pharaoh. {7:14} Then Joseph sent for and brought his father Jacob, with all his kindred, seventy-five souls. {7:15} And Jacob descended into Egypt, and he passed away, and so did our fathers. {7:16} And they crossed over into Shechem, and they were placed in the sepulcher which Abraham bought for a sum of money from the sons of Hamor, the son of Shechem. {7:17} And when the time of the Promise that God had revealed to Abraham drew near, the people increased and were multiplied in Egypt. {7:18} Even until another king, who did not know Joseph, rose up in Egypt. {7:19} This one, encompassing our kindred, afflicted our fathers, so that they would expose their infants, lest they be kept alive. {7:20} In the same time, Moses was born. And he was in the grace of God, and he was nourished for three months in the house of his father. {7:21} Then, having been abandoned, the daughter of Pharaoh took him in, and she raised him as her own son. {7:22} And Moses was instructed in all the wisdom of the Egyptians. And he was mighty in his words and in his deeds. {7:23} But when forty years of age were completed in him, it rose up in his heart that he should visit his brothers, the sons of Israel. {7:24} And when he had seen a certain one suffering injury, he defended him. And striking the Egyptian, he wrought a retribution for him who was enduring the injury. {7:25} Now he supposed that his brothers would understand that God would grant them salvation through his hand. But they did not understand it. {7:26} So truly, on the following day, he appeared before those who were arguing, and he would have reconciled them in peace, saying, ‘Men, you are brothers. So why would you harm one another?’ {7:27} But he who was causing the injury to his neighbor rejected him, saying: ‘Who has appointed you as leader and judge over us? {7:28} Could it be that you want to kill me, in the same way that you killed the Egyptian yesterday?’ {7:29} Then, at this word, Moses fled. And he became a foreigner in the land of Midian, where he produced two sons. {7:30} And when forty years were completed, there appeared to him, in the desert of Mount Sinai, an Angel, in a flame of fire in a bush. {7:31} And upon seeing this, Moses was amazed at the sight. And as he drew near in order to gaze at it, the voice of the Lord came to him, saying: {7:32} ‘I am the God of your fathers: the God of Abraham, the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.’ And Moses, being made to tremble, did not dare to look. {7:33} But the Lord said to him: ‘Loosen the shoes from your feet. For the place in which you stand is holy ground. {7:34} Certainly, I have seen the affliction of my people who are in Egypt, and I have heard their groaning. And so, I am coming down to free them. And now, go forth and I will send you into Egypt.’ {7:35} This Moses, whom they rejected by saying, ‘Who has appointed you as leader and judge?’ is the one God sent to be leader and redeemer, by the hand of the Angel who appeared to him in the bush. {7:36} This man led them out, accomplishing signs and wonders in the land of Egypt, and at the Red Sea, and in the desert, for forty years. {7:37} This is Moses, who said to the sons of Israel: ‘God will raise up for you a prophet like me from your own brothers. You shall listen to him.’ {7:38} This is he who was in the Church in the wilderness, with the Angel who was speaking to him on Mount Sinai, and with our fathers. It is he who received the words of life to give to us. {7:39} It is he whom our fathers were not willing to obey. Instead, they rejected him, and in their hearts they turned away toward Egypt, {7:40} saying to Aaron: ‘Make gods for us, which may go before us. For this Moses, who led us away from the land of Egypt, we do not know what has happened to him.’ {7:41} And so they fashioned a calf in those days, and they offered sacrifices to an idol, and they rejoiced in the works of their own hands. {7:42} Then God turned, and he handed them over, to subservience to the armies of heaven, just as it was written in the Book of the Prophets: ‘Did you not offer victims and sacrifices to me for forty years in the desert, O house of Israel? {7:43} And yet you took up for yourselves the tabernacle of Moloch and the star of your god Rephan, figures which you yourselves formed in order to adore them. And so I will carry you away, beyond Babylon.’ {7:44} The tabernacle of the testimony was with our fathers in the desert, just as God ordained for them, speaking to Moses, so that he would make it according to the form that he had seen. {7:45} But our fathers, receiving it, also brought it, with Joshua, into the land of the Gentiles, whom God expelled before the face of our fathers, even until the days of David, {7:46} who found grace before God and who asked that he might obtain a tabernacle for the God of Jacob. {7:47} But it was Solomon who built a house for him. {7:48} Yet the Most High does not live in houses built by hands, just as he said through the prophet: {7:49} ‘Heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footstool. What kind of house would you build for me? says the Lord. And which is my resting place? {7:50} Has not my hand made all these things? {7:51} Stiff-necked and uncircumcised in heart and ears, you ever resist the Holy Spirit. Just as your fathers did, so also do you do. {7:52} Which of the Prophets have your fathers not persecuted? And they killed those who foretold the advent of the Just One. And you have now become the betrayers and murderers of him. {7:53} You received the law by the actions of Angels, and yet you have not kept it.” {7:54} Then, upon hearing these things, they were deeply wounded in their hearts, and they gnashed their teeth at him. {7:55} But he, being filled with the Holy Spirit, and gazing intently toward heaven, saw the glory of God and Jesus standing at the right hand of God. And he said, “Behold, I see the heavens opened, and the Son of man standing at the right hand of God.” {7:56} Then they, crying out with a loud voice, blocked their ears and, with one accord, rushed violently toward him. {7:57} And driving him out, beyond the city, they stoned him. And witnesses placed their garments beside the feet of a youth, who was called Saul. {7:58} And as they were stoning Stephen, he called out and said, “Lord Jesus, receive my spirit.” {7:59} Then, having been brought to his knees, he cried out with a loud voice, saying, “Lord, do not hold this sin against them.” And when he had said this, he fell asleep in the Lord. And Saul was consenting to his murder.

[Acts 8] {8:1} Now in those days, there occurred a great persecution against the Church at Jerusalem. And they were all dispersed throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the Apostles. {8:2} But God-fearing men arranged for Stephen's funeral, and they made a great mourning over him. {8:3} Then Saul was laying waste to the Church by entering throughout the houses, and dragging away men and women, and committing them to prison. {8:4} Therefore, those who had been dispersed were traveling around, evangelizing the Word of God. {8:5} Now Philip, descending to a city of Samaria, was preaching Christ to them. {8:6} And the crowd was listening intently and with one accord to those things which were being said by Philip, and they were watching the signs which he was accomplishing. {8:7} For many of them had unclean spirits, and, crying out with a loud voice, these departed from them. {8:8} And many of the paralytics and the lame were cured. {8:9} Therefore, there was great gladness in that city. Now there was a certain man named Simon, who formerly had been a magician in that city, seducing the people of Samaria, claiming himself to be someone great. {8:10} And to all those who would listen, from the least even to the greatest, he was saying: “Here is the power of God, which is called great.” {8:11} And they were attentive to him because, for a long time, he had deluded them with his magic. {8:12} Yet truly, once they had believed Philip, who was evangelizing the kingdom of God, both men and women were baptized in the name of Jesus Christ. {8:13} Then Simon himself also believed and, when he had been baptized, he adhered to Philip. And now, seeing also the greatest signs and miracles being wrought, he was amazed and stupefied. {8:14} Now when the Apostles who were in Jerusalem had heard that Samaria had received the Word of God, they sent Peter and John to them. {8:15} And when they had arrived, they prayed for them, so that they might receive the Holy Spirit. {8:16} For he had not yet come to any among them, since they were only baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. {8:17} Then they laid their hands on them, and they received the Holy Spirit. {8:18} But when Simon had seen that, by the imposition of the hands of the Apostles, the Holy Spirit was given, he offered them money, {8:19} saying, “Give this power to me also, so that on whomever I will lay my hands, he may receive the Holy Spirit.” But Peter said to him: {8:20} “Let your money be with you in perdition, for you have supposed that a gift of God might be possessed by money. {8:21} There is no part or place for you in this matter. For your heart is not upright in the sight of God. {8:22} And so, repent from this, your wickedness, and beg God, so that perhaps this plan of your heart might be forgiven you. {8:23} For I perceive you to be in the gall of bitterness and in the bond of iniquity.” {8:24} Then Simon responded by saying, “Pray for me to the Lord, so that nothing of what you have said may happen to me.” {8:25} And indeed, after testifying and speaking the Word of the Lord, they returned to Jerusalem, and they evangelized the many regions of the Samaritans. {8:26} Now an Angel of the Lord spoke to Philip, saying, “Rise up and go toward the south, to the way which descends from Jerusalem into Gaza, where there is a desert.” {8:27} And rising up, he went. And behold, an Ethiopian man, a eunuch, powerful under Candace, the queen of the Ethiopians, who was over all her treasures, had arrived in Jerusalem to worship. {8:28} And while returning, he was sitting upon his chariot and reading from the prophet Isaiah. {8:29} Then the Spirit said to Philip, “Draw near and join yourself to this chariot.” {8:30} And Philip, hurrying, heard him reading from the prophet Isaiah, and he said, “Do you think that you understand what you are reading?” {8:31} And he said, “But how can I, unless someone will have revealed it to me?” And he asked Philip to climb up and sit with him. {8:32} Now the place in Scripture that he was reading was this: “Like a sheep he was led to the slaughter. And like a lamb silent before his shearer, so he opened not his mouth. {8:33} He endured his judgment with humility. Who of his generation shall describe how his life was taken away from the earth?” {8:34} Then the eunuch responded to Philip, saying: “I beg you, about whom is the prophet saying this? About himself, or about someone else?” {8:35} Then Philip, opening his mouth and beginning from this Scripture, evangelized Jesus to him. {8:36} And while they were going along the way, they arrived at a certain water source. And the eunuch said: “There is water. What would prevent me from being baptized?” {8:37} Then Philip said, “If you believe from your whole heart, it is permitted.” And he responded by saying, “I believe the Son of God to be Jesus the Christ.” {8:38} And he ordered the chariot to stand still. And both Philip and the eunuch descended into the water. And he baptized him. {8:39} And when they had ascended from the water, the Spirit of the Lord took Philip away, and the eunuch did not see him anymore. Then he went on his way, rejoicing. {8:40} Now Philip was found in Azotus. And continuing on, he evangelized all the cities, until he arrived in Caesarea.
And as he made the journey, it happened that he was approaching Damascus. And suddenly, a light from heaven shone around him. 9:4 And falling to the ground, he heard a voice saying to him, “Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me?” 9:5 And he said, “Who are you, Lord?” And he: “I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting. It is hard for you to kick against the goad.” 9:6 And he, trembling and astonished, said, “Lord, what do you want me to do?” 9:7 And the Lord said to him, “Rise up and go into the city, and there you will be told what you ought to do.” Now the men who were accompanying him were standing stupefied, hearing indeed a voice, but seeing no one. 9:8 Then Saul rose up from the ground. And upon opening his eyes, he saw nothing. So leading him by the hand, they brought him into Damascus. 9:9 And in that place, he was without sight for three days, and he neither ate nor drank. 9:10 Now there was a certain disciple at Damascus, named Ananias. And the Lord said to him in a vision, “Ananias!” And he said, “Here I am, Lord.” 9:11 And the Lord said to him: “Rise up and go into the street that is called Straight, and seek, in the house of Judas, the one named Saul of Tarsus. For behold, he is praying.” 9:12 (And Paul saw a man named Ananias entering and imposing hands upon him, so that he might receive his sight.) 9:13 But Ananias responded: “Lord, I have heard from many about this man, how much harm he has done to your saints in Jerusalem. 9:14 And he has authority here from the leaders of the priests to bind all who invoke your name.” 9:15 Then the Lord said to him: “Go, for this one is an instrument chosen by me to convey my name before nations and kings and the sons of Israel. 9:16 For I will reveal to him how much he must suffer on behalf of my name.” 9:17 And Ananias departed. And he entered the house. And laying his hands upon him, he said: “Brother Saul, the Lord Jesus, he who appeared to you on the way by which you arrived, sent me so that you would receive your sight and be filled with the Holy Spirit.” 9:18 And immediately, it was as if scales had fallen from his eyes, and he received his sight. And rising up, he was baptized. 9:19 And when he had taken a meal, he was strengthened. Now he was with the disciples who were at Damascus for some days. 9:20 And he was continuously preaching Jesus in the synagogues: that he is the Son of God. 9:21 And all who heard him were astonished, and they said, “Is this not the one who, in Jerusalem, was fighting against those invoking this name, and who came here for this: so that he might lead them away to the leaders of the priests?” 9:22 But Saul was increasing to a greater extent in ability, and so he was confounding the Jews who lived at Damascus, by affirming that he is the Christ. 9:23 And when many days were completed, the Jews took counsel as one, so that they might put him to death. 9:24 But their treachery became known to Saul. Now they were also watching the gates, day and night, so that they might put him to death. 9:25 But the disciples, taking him away by night, sent him over the wall by letting him down in a basket. 9:26 And when he had arrived in Jerusalem, he attempted to join himself to the disciples. And they were all afraid of him, not believing that he was a disciple. 9:27 But Barnabas took him aside and led him to the Apostles. And he explained to them how he had seen the Lord, and that he had spoken to him, and how, in Damascus, he had acted faithfully in the name of Jesus. 9:28 And he was with them, entering and departing Jerusalem, and acting faithfully in the name of the Lord. 9:29 He also was speaking with the Gentiles and disputing with the Greeks. But they were seeking to kill him. 9:30 And when the brothers had realized this, they brought him to Caesarea and sent him away to Tarsus. 9:31 Certainly, the Church had peace throughout all of Judea and Galilee and Samaria, and it was being built up, while walking in the fear of the Lord, and it was being filled with the consolation of the Holy Spirit. 9:32 Then it happened that Peter, as he traveled around everywhere, came to the saints who were living at Lydda. 9:33 But he found there a certain man, named Aeneas, who was a paralytic, who had lain in bed for eight years. 9:34 And Peter said to him: “Aeneas, the Lord Jesus Christ heals you. Rise up and arrange your bed.” And immediately he rose up. 9:35 And all who were living in Lydda and Sharon saw him, and they were converted to the Lord. 9:36 Now in Joppa there was a certain disciple named Tabitha, which in translation is called Dorcas. She was filled with the good works and almsgiving that she was accomplishing. 9:37 And it happened that, in those days, she became ill and died. And when they had washed her, they laid her in an upper room. 9:38 Now since Lydda was close to Joppa, the disciples, upon hearing that Peter was there, sent two men to him, asking him: “Do not be slow in coming to us.” 9:39 Then Peter, rising up, went with them. And when he had arrived, they led him to an upper room. And all the widows were standing around him, weeping and showing him the tunics and garments that Dorcas had made for them. 9:40 And when they had all been sent outside, Peter, kneeling down, prayed. And turning to the body, he said: “Tabitha, arise.” And she opened her eyes and, upon seeing Peter, sat up again. 9:41 And offering her his hand, he lifted her up. And when he had called in the saints and the widows, he presented her alive. 9:42 Now this became known throughout all of Joppa. And many believed in the Lord. 9:43 And it happened that he resided for many days in Joppa, with a certain Simon, a Tanner.

[Acts 10] 10:1] Now there was a certain man in Caesarea, named Cornelius, a centurion of the cohort which is called Italian, 10:2] a devout man, fearing God with all his house, giving many alms to the people, and praying to God continually. 10:3] This man saw in a vision clearly, at about the ninth hour of the day, the Angel of God entering to him and saying to him: “Cornelius!” 10:4] And he, gazing at him, was seized by fear, and he said, “What is it, lord?” And he said to him: “Your prayers and your almsgiving have ascended as a memorial in the sight of God.” 10:5] And now, send men to Joppa and summon a certain Simon, who is surnamed Peter. 10:6] This man is a guest with a certain Simon, a Tanner, whose house is beside the sea. He will tell you what you must do.” 10:7] And when the Angel who was speaking to him had departed, he called, out of those who were subject to him, two of his household servants and a soldier who feared the Lord. 10:8] And when he had explained everything to them, he sent them to Joppa. 10:9] Then, on the following day, while they were making the journey and approaching the city, Peter ascended to the upper rooms, so that he might pray, at about the sixth hour. 10:10] And since he was hungry, he wanted to enjoy some food. Then, as they were preparing it, an ecstasy of mind fell over him. {10:11} And he saw heaven opened, and a certain container descending, as if a great linen sheet were let down, by its four corners, from heaven to earth, {10:12} on which were all four-footed beasts, and the crawling things of the earth and the flying things of the air. {10:13} And a voice came to him: “Rise up, Peter! Kill and eat.” {10:14} But Peter said: “Far be it from me, lord. For I have never eaten anything common or unclean.” {10:15} And the voice, again a second time to him: “What God has purified, you shall not call common.” {10:16} Now this was done three times. And immediately the container was taken up to heaven. {10:17} Now while Peter was still hesitant within himself as to what the vision, which he had seen, might mean, behold, the men who had been sent from Cornelius stood at the gate, inquiring about Simon’s house. {10:18} And when they had called out, they asked if Simon, who is surnamed Peter, was a guest in that place. {10:19} Then, as Peter was thinking about the vision, the Spirit said to him, “Behold, three men seek you. {10:20} And so, rise up, descend, and go with them, doubting nothing. For I have sent them.” {10:21} Then Peter, descending to the men, said: “Behold, I am the one whom you seek. What is the reason for which you have arrived?” {10:22} And they said: “Cornelius, a centurion, a just and God-fearing man, who has good testimony from the entire nation of the Jews, received a message from a holy Angel to summon you to his house and to listen to words from you.” {10:23} Therefore, leading them in, he received them as guests. Then, on following the day, rising up, he set out with them. And some of the brothers from Joppa accompanied him. {10:24} And on the next day, he entered Caesarea. And truly, Cornelius was waiting for them, having called together his family and closest friends. {10:25} And it happened that, when Peter had entered, Cornelius went to meet him. And falling before his feet, he reverenced. {10:26} Yet truly, Peter, lifting him up, said: “Rise up, for I also am only a man.” {10:27} And speaking with him, he entered, and he found many who had gathered together. {10:28} And he said to them: “You know how abominable it would be for a Jewish man to be joined with, or to be added to, a foreign people. But God has revealed to me to call no man common or unclean. {10:29} Because of this and without doubt, I came when summoned. Therefore, I ask you, for what reason have you summoned me?” {10:30} And Cornelius said: “It is now the fourth day, to this very hour, since I was praying in my house at the ninth hour, and behold, a man stood before me in a white vestment, and he said: {10:31} ‘Cornelius, your prayer has been heard and your almsgiving has been remembered in the sight of God.’ {10:32} Therefore, send to Joppa and summon Simon, who is surnamed Peter. This man is a guest in the house of Simon, a tanner, near the sea.’ {10:33} And so, I promptly sent for you. And you have done well in coming here. Therefore, all of us are now present in your sight to hear all the things that were taught to you by the Lord.” {10:34} Then, Peter, opening his mouth, said: “I have concluded in truth that God is not a respecter of persons. {10:35} But within every nation, whoever fears him and works justice is acceptable to him. {10:36} God sent the Word to the sons of Israel, announcing the peace through Jesus Christ, for he is the Lord of all. {10:37} You know that the Word has been made known throughout all Judea. For beginning from Galilee, after the baptism which John preached, {10:38} Jesus of Nazareth, whom God anointed with the Holy Spirit and with power, traveled around doing good and healing all those oppressed by the devil. For God was with him. {10:39} And we are witnesses of all that he did in the region of Judea and in Jerusalem, whom they killed by hanging him on a tree. {10:40} God raised him up on the third day and permitted him to be made manifest, {10:41} not to all the people, but to the witnesses preordained by God, to those of us who ate and drank with him after he rose again from the dead. {10:42} And he instructed us to preach to the people, and to testify that he is the One who was appointed by God to be the judge of the living and of the dead. {10:43} To him all the Prophets offer testimony that through his name all who believe in him receive the remission of sins.” {10:44} While Peter was still speaking these words, the Holy Spirit fell over all of those who were listening to the Word. {10:45} And the faithful of the circumcision, who had arrived with Peter, were astonished that the grace of the Holy Spirit was also poured out upon the Gentiles. {10:46} For they heard them speaking in tongues and magnifying God. {10:47} Then Peter responded, “How could anyone prohibit water, so that those who have received the Holy Spirit would not be baptized, just as we also have been?” {10:48} And he ordered them to be baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. Then they begged him to remain with them for some days.

[Acts 11] {11:1} Now the Apostles and brothers who were in Judea heard that the Gentiles had also received the Word of God. {11:2} Then, when Peter had gone up to Jerusalem, those who were of the circumcision argued against him, {11:3} saying, “Why did you enter to uncircumcised men, and why did you eat with them?” {11:4} And Peter began to explain to them, in an orderly manner, saying: {11:5} “I was in the city of Joppa praying, and I saw, in an ecstasy of mind, a vision: a certain container descending, like a great linen sheet being let down from heaven by its four corners. And it drew near to me. {11:6} And looking into it, I considered and saw the four-footed beasts of the earth, and the wild beasts, and the reptiles, and the flying things of the air. {11:7} Then I also heard a voice saying to me: ‘Rise up, Peter. Kill and eat.’ {11:8} But I said: ‘Never, lord! For what is common or unclean has never entered into my mouth.’ {11:9} Then the voice responded a second time from heaven, ‘What God has cleansed, you shall not call common.’ {11:10} Now this was done three times. And then everything was taken up again into heaven. {11:11} And behold, immediately there were three men standing near the house where I was, having been sent to me from Caesarea. {11:12} Then the Spirit told me that I should go with them, doubting nothing. And these six brothers went with me also. And we entered into the house of the man. {11:13} And he described for us how he had seen an Angel in his house, standing and saying to him: ‘Send to Joppa and summon Simon, who is surnamed Peter. {11:14} And he shall speak to you words, by which you shall be saved with your whole house.’ {11:15} And when I had begun to speak, the Holy Spirit fell upon them, just as upon us also, in the beginning. {11:16} Then I remembered the words of the Lord, just as he himself said: ‘John, indeed, baptized with water, but you shall be baptized with the Holy Spirit.’ {11:17} Therefore, if God gave them the same grace, as also to us, who have believed in the Lord Jesus Christ, who was I, that I would be able to prohibit God?”

{11:18} Having heard these things, they were silent. And they glorified God, saying: “So has God also given to the Gentiles repentance unto life.” {11:19} And some of them, having been dispersed by the persecution that had occurred under Stephen, traveled around, even to Phoenicia and Cyprus and Antioch, speaking the Word to no one, except to Jews only. {11:20} But some of these men from Cyprus and Cyrene, when they had entered into Antioch, were speaking also to the Greeks, announcing the Lord Jesus. {11:21} And the hand of the Lord was with them. And a great number believed and were converted to the Lord. {11:22} Now the news came to the ears of the Church at Jerusalem about these things, and they sent Barnabas as far as Antioch.

{11:23} And when he had arrived there and had seen the grace of God, he was gladdened. And he exhorted them all to continue in the Lord with a resolute heart. {11:24} For he was a good man, and he was filled with the Holy Spirit and with faith. And a great multitude was added to the Lord.

{11:25} Then Barnabas set out for Tarsus, so that he might seek Saul. And when he had found him, he brought him to Antioch. {11:26} And they were conversing there in the Church for an entire year. And they taught such a great multitude, that it was at Antioch that the disciples were first known by the name of Christian.

{11:27} Now in these days, prophets from Jerusalem went over to Antioch. {11:28} And one of them, named Agabus, rising up, signified through the Spirit that there was going to be a great famine over the entire world, which did happen under Claudius. {11:29} Then the disciples declared, according to what each one possessed, what they would offer to be sent to the brothers living in Judea. {11:30} And so they did, sending it to the elders by the hands of Barnabas and Saul.

[Acts 12] {12:1} Now at the same time, king Herod extended his hand, in order to afflict some from the Church. {12:2} Then he killed James, the brother of John, with the sword. {12:3} And seeing that it pleased the Jews, he set out next to apprehend Peter also. Now it was the days of Unleavened Bread. {12:4} So when he had apprehended him, he sent him into prison, handing him over into the custody of four groups of four soldiers, intending to produce him to the people after the Passover. {12:5} And so Peter was detained in prison. But prayers were being made without ceasing, by the Church, to God on his behalf. {12:6} And when Herod was ready to produce him, in that same night, Peter was sleeping between two soldiers, and was bound with two chains. And there were guards in front of the door, guarding the prison. {12:7} And behold, an Angel of the Lord stood near, and a light shined forth in the cell. And tapping Peter on the side, he awakened him, saying, “Rise up, quickly.” And the chains fell from his hands. {12:8} Then the Angel said to him: “Dress yourself, and put on your boots.” And he did so. And he said to him, “Wrap your garment around yourself and follow me.” {12:9} And going out, he followed him. And he did not know this truth: that this was being done by an Angel. For he thought that he was seeing a vision. {12:10} And passing by the first and second guards, they came to the iron gate which leads into the city; and it opened for them by itself. And departing, they continued on along a certain side street. And suddenly the Angel withdrew from him. {12:11} And Peter, returning to himself, said: “Now I know, truly, that the Lord sent his Angel, and that he rescued me from the hand of Herod and from all that the people of the Jews were anticipating.” {12:12} And as he was considering this, he arrived at the house of Mary, the mother of John, who was surnamed Mark, where many were gathered and were praying. {12:13} Then, as he knocked at the door of the gate, a girl went out to answer, whose name was Rhoda. {12:14} And when she recognized the voice of Peter, out of joy, she did not open the gate, but instead, running in, she reported that Peter stood before the gate. {12:15} But they said to her, “You are crazy.” But she reaffirmed that this was so. Then they were saying, “It is his angel.” {12:16} But Peter was persevering in knocking. And when they had opened, they saw him and were astonished.

{12:17} But motioning to them with his hand to be silent, he explained how the Lord had led him away from prison. And he said, “Inform James and those brothers.” And going out, he went away to another place. {12:18} Then, when daylight came, there was no small commotion among the soldiers, as to what had happened concerning Peter. {12:19} And when Herod had requested him and did not obtain him, having had the guards interrogated, he ordered them led away. And descending from Judea into Caesarea, he lodged there. {12:20} Now he was angry with those of Tyre and Sidon. But they came to him with one accord, and, having persuaded Blastus, who was over the bedchamber of the king, they petitioned for peace, because their regions were supplied with food by him. {12:21} Then, on the appointed day, Herod was clothed in kingly apparel, and he sat in the judgment seat, and he gave a speech to them. {12:22} Then the people were crying out, “The voice of a god, and not of a man!” {12:23} And immediately, an Angel of the Lord struck him down, because he had not given honor to God. And having been consumed by worms, he expired. {12:24} But the word of the Lord was increasing and multiplying. {12:25} Then Barnabas and Saul, having completed the ministry, returned from Jerusalem, bringing with them John, who was surnamed Mark.

[Acts 13] {13:1} Now there were, in the Church at Antioch, prophets and teachers, among whom were Barnabas, and Simon, who was called the Black, and Lucius of Cyrene, and Manaen, who was the foster brother of Herod the tetrarch, and Saul. {13:2} Now as they were ministering for the Lord and fasting, the Holy Spirit said to them: “Separate Saul and Barnabas for me, for the work for which I have selected them.” {13:3} Then, fasting and praying and imposing their hands upon them, they sent them away. {13:4} And having been sent by the Holy Spirit, they went to Seleucia. And from there they sailed to Cyprus. {13:5} And when they had arrived at Salamis, they were preaching the Word of God in the synagogues of the Jews. And they also had John in the ministry. {13:6} And when they had traveled throughout the entire island, even to Paphos, they found a certain man, a magician, a false prophet, a Jew, whose name was Bar-Jesu. {13:7} And he was with the proconsul, Sergius Paulus, a prudent man. This man, summoning Barnabas and Saul, wanted to hear the Word of God. {13:8} But Elymas the magician (for so his name is translated) stood against them, seeking to turn the proconsul away from the Faith. {13:9} Then Saul, who is also called Paul, having been filled with the Holy Spirit, looked intently at him, {13:10} and he said: “So full of every deceit and of all falsehoods, son of the devil, enemy of all justice, you never cease to subvert the righteous ways of the Lord! {13:11} And now, behold, the hand of the Lord is upon you. And you will be blinded, not seeing the sun for a length of time." And immediately a fog and a darkness fell over him. And wandering around, he was seeking someone who might lead him by the hand. {13:12} Then the proconsul, when he had seen what was done, believed, being in wonder over the doctrine of the Lord. {13:13} And when Paul and those who were with him had sailed from Paphos, they arrived at Perga in Pamphylia. Then John departed from them and returned to Jerusalem. {13:14} Yet truly, they, traveling on from Perga, arrived at Antioch in Pisidia. And upon entering the synagogue on the Sabbath day, they sat down. {13:15} Then, after the reading from the Law and the Prophets, the leaders of the synagogue sent to them, saying: "Noble brothers, if there is in you any word of exhortation to the people, speak." {13:16} Then Paul, rising up and motioning for silence with his hand, said: "Men of Israel and you who fear God, listen closely. {13:17} The God of the people of Israel chose our fathers, and exalted the people, when they were settlers in the land of Egypt. And with an exalted arm, he led them away from there. {13:18} And throughout a time of forty years, he endured their behavior in the desert. {13:19} And by destroying seven nations in the land of Canaan, he divided their land among them by lot, after about four hundred and fifty years. And after these things, he gave them judges, even until the prophet Samuel. {13:21} And later on, they petitioned for a king. And God gave them Saul, the son of Kish, a man from the tribe of Benjamin, for forty years. {13:22} And having removed him, he raised up for them king David. And offering testimony about him, he said, 'I have found David, the son of Jesse, to be a man according to my own heart, who will accomplish all that I will.' {13:23} From his offspring, according to the Promise, God has brought Jesus the Savior to Israel. {13:24} John was preaching, before the face of his advent, a baptism of repentance to all the people of Israel. {13:25} Then, when John completed his course, he was saying: 'I am not the one you consider me to be. For behold, one arrives after me, the shoes of whose feet I am not worthy to loosen.' {13:26} Noble brothers, sons of the stock of Abraham, and those among you who fear God, it is to you the Word of this salvation has been sent. {13:27} For those who were living in Jerusalem, and its rulers, heeding neither him, nor the voices of the Prophets that are read on every Sabbath, fulfilled these by judging him. {13:28} And although they found no case for death against him, they petitioned Pilate, so that they might put him to death. {13:29} And when they had fulfilled everything that had been written about him, taking him down from the tree, they placed him in a tomb. {13:30} Yet truly, God raised him up from the dead on the third day. {13:31} And he was seen for many days by those who went up with him from Galilee to Jerusalem, who even now are his witnesses to the people. {13:32} And we are announcing to you that the Promise, which was made to our fathers, has been fulfilled by God for our children by raising up Jesus, just as it has been written in the second Psalm also: 'You are my Son. This day I have begotten you.' {13:34} Now, since he raised him from the dead, so as to no longer return to corruption, he has said this: 'I will give to you the holy things of David, the faithful one.' {13:35} And also then, in another place, he says: 'You will not allow your Holy One to see corruption.' {13:36} For David, when he had ministered to his generation in accordance with the will of God, fell asleep, and he was placed next to his fathers, and he saw corruption. {13:37} Yet truly, he whom God has raised from the dead has not seen corruption. {13:38} Therefore, let it be known to you, noble brothers, that through him is announced to you remission from sins and from everything by which you were not able to be justified in the law of Moses. {13:39} In him, all who believe are justified. {13:40} Therefore, be careful, lest what was said by the Prophets may overwhelm you: {13:41} 'You despisers! Look, and wonder, and be scattered! For I am working a deed in your days, a deed which you would not believe, even if someone were to explain it to you.' " {13:42} Then, as they were departing, they asked them if, on the following Sabbath, they might speak these words to them. {13:43} And when the synagogue had been dismissed, many among the Jews and the new worshipers were following Paul and Barnabas. And they, speaking to them, persuaded them to continue in the grace of God. {13:44} Yet truly, on the following Sabbath, nearly the entire city came together to hear the Word of God. {13:45} Then the Jews, seeing the crowds, were filled with envy, and they, blaspheming, contradicted the things that were being said by Paul. {13:46} Then Paul and Barnabas said firmly: "It was necessary to speak the Word of God first to you. But because you reject it, and so judge yourselves unworthy of eternal life, behold, we turn to the Gentiles. {13:47} For so has the Lord instructed us: 'I have set you as a light to the Gentiles, so that you may bring salvation to the ends of the earth.' " {13:48} Then the Gentiles, upon hearing this, were gladdened, and they were glorifying the Word of the Lord. And as many as believed were preordained to eternal life. {13:49} Now the word of the Lord was disseminated throughout the entire region. {13:50} But the Jews incited some devout and honest women, and the leaders of the city. And they stirred up a persecution against Paul and Barnabas. And they drove them away from their parts. {13:51} But they, shaking the dust from their feet against them, went on to Iconium. {13:52} The disciples were likewise filled with gladness and with the Holy Spirit. [Acts 14] {14:1} Now it happened in Iconium that they entered together into the synagogue of the Jews, and they spoke in such a way that a copious multitude of both Jews and Greeks believed. {14:2} Yet truly, the Jews who were unbelieving had incited and enflamed the souls of the Gentiles against the brothers. {14:3} And so, they remained for a long time, acting faithfully in the Lord, offering testimony to the Word of his grace, providing signs and wonders done by their hands. {14:4} Then the multitude of the city was divided. And certainly, some were with the Jews, yet truly others were with the Apostles. {14:5} Now when an assault had been planned by the Gentiles and the Jews with their leaders, so that they might treat them with contempt and stone them, {14:6} they, realizing this, fled together to Lystra and Derbe, cities of Lycaonia, and to the entire surrounding region. And they were evangelizing in that place. {14:7} And a certain man was sitting at Lystra, disabled in his feet, lame from his mother's womb, who had never walked. {14:8} This man heard Paul speaking. And Paul, gazing at him intently, and perceiving that he had faith, so that he might be healed, {14:9} said with a loud voice, "Stand upright upon your feet!" And he leaped up and walked around. {14:10} But when the crowds had seen what Paul had done, they lifted up their voice in the Lycaonian language, saying, "The gods, having taken the likenesses of men, have descended to us!" {14:11} And they called Barnabas, 'Jupiter,' yet truly they called Paul, 'Mercury,' because he was the lead speaker. {14:12} Also, the priest of Jupiter, who was outside the city, in front of the gate, bringing in oxen and garlands, was willing to offer sacrifice with the people. {14:13} And as soon as the Apostles, Barnabas and Paul, had heard this, tearing their tunics, they leapt into the crowd, crying out {14:14} and saying: "Men, why would you do this? We also are mortals, men like yourselves, preaching to you to be converted, from these vain things, to the living God, who made heaven and earth and the sea and all that is in them. {14:15} In previous generations, he permitted all nations to walk in their own ways. {14:16} But certainly, he did not leave himself without testimony, doing good from heaven, giving rains and fruitful seasons, filling their hearts with food and gladness."

{14:17} And by saying these things, they were barely able to restrain the crowds from immolating to them. {14:18} Now certain Jews from Antioch and Iconium arrived there. And having persuaded the crowd, they stoned Paul and dragged him outside of the city, thinking him to be dead. {14:19} But as the disciples were standing around him, he got up and entered the city. And the next day, he set out with Barnabas for Derbe. {14:20} And when they had evangelized that city, and had taught many, they returned again to Lystra and to Iconium and to Antioch, {14:21} strengthening the souls of the disciples, and exhorting them that they should remain always in the faith, and that it is necessary for us to enter into the kingdom of God through many tribulations. {14:22} And when they had established priests for them in each church, and had prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord, in whom they believed. {14:23} And traveling by way of Pisidia, they arrived in Pamphylia. {14:24} And having spoken the word of the Lord in Perga, they went down into Attalia. {14:25} And from there, they sailed to Antioch, where they had been commended to the grace of God for the work which they had now accomplished. {14:26} And when they had arrived and had gathered together the church, they related what great things God had done with them, and how he had opened the door of faith to the Gentiles. {14:27} And they remained for no small amount of time with the disciples.

[Acts 15] {15:1} And certain ones, descending from Judea, were teaching the brothers, "Unless you are circumcised according to the custom of Moses, you cannot be saved." {15:2} Therefore, when Paul and Barnabas made no small uprising against them, they decided that Paul and Barnabas, and some from the opposing side, should go up to the Apostles and priests in Jerusalem concerning this question. {15:3} Therefore, being led by the church, they traveled through Phoenicia and Samaria, describing the conversion of the Gentiles. And they caused great joy among all the brothers. {15:4} And when they had arrived in Jerusalem, they were received by the church and the Apostles and the elders, reporting what great things God had done with them. {15:5} But some from the sect of the Pharisees, those who were believers, rose up saying, "It is necessary for them to be circumcised and to be instructed to keep the Law of Moses." {15:6} And the Apostles and elders came together to take care of this matter. {15:7} And after a great contention had taken place, Peter rose up and said to them: "Noble brothers, you know that, in recent days, God has chosen from among us, by my mouth, Gentiles to hear the word of the Gospel and to believe. {15:8} And God, who knows hearts, offered testimony, by giving the Holy Spirit to them, just as to us. {15:9} And he distinguished nothing between us and them, purifying their hearts by faith. {15:10} Now therefore, why do you tempt God to impose a yoke upon the necks of the disciples, which neither our fathers nor we have been able to bear? {15:11} But by the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, we believe in order to be saved, in the same manner also as them." {15:12} Then the entire multitude was silent. And they were listening to Barnabas and Paul, describing what great signs and wonders God had wrought among the Gentiles through them. {15:13} And after they had been silent, James responded by saying: "Noble brothers, listen to me. {15:14} Simon has explained in what manner God first visited, so as to take from the Gentiles a people to his name. {15:15} And the words of the Prophets are in agreement with this, just as it was written: {15:16} 'After these things, I will return, and I will rebuild the tabernacle of David, which has fallen down. And I will rebuild its ruins, and I will raise it up,' {15:17} so that the rest of men may seek the Lord, along with all the nations over whom my name has been invoked, says the Lord, who does these things.' {15:18} To the Lord, his own work has been known from eternity. {15:19} Because of this, I judge that those who were converted to God from among the Gentiles are not to be disturbed, {15:20} but instead that we write to them, that they should keep themselves from the defilement of idols, and from fornication, and from whatever has been suffocated, and from blood. {15:21} For Moses, from ancient times, has had in each city those who preach him in the synagogues, where he is read on every Sabbath." {15:22} Then it pleased the Apostles and elders, with the whole Church, to choose men from among them, and to send to Antioch, with Paul and Barnabas, and Judas, who was surnamed Barsabbas, and Silas, preeminent men among the brothers, {15:23} what was written by their own hands: "The Apostles and elders, brothers, to those who are at Antioch and Syria and Cilicia, brothers from the Gentiles, greetings. {15:24} Since we have heard that some, going out from among us, have troubled you with words, subverting your souls, to whom we gave no commandment, {15:25} it pleased us, being assembled as one, to choose men and to send them to you, with our most beloved Barnabas and Paul: {15:26} men who have handed over their lives on behalf of the name of our Lord Jesus Christ. {15:27} Therefore, we have sent Judas and Silas, who themselves also will, with the spoken word, reaffirm to you the same things. {15:28} For it has seemed good to the Holy Spirit and to us to impose no further burden upon you, other than these necessary things: {15:29} that you abstain from things immolated to idols, and from blood, and from what has been suffocated, and from fornication. You will do well to keep yourselves from these things. Farewell." {15:30} And so, having been dismissed, they went down to Antioch. And gathering the multitude together, they delivered the epistle. {15:31} And when they had read it, they were gladdened by this consolation. {15:32} But Judas and Silas, being also... prophets themselves, consoled the brothers with many words, and they were strengthened. {15:33} Then, after spending some more time there, they were dismissed with peace, by the brothers, to those who had sent them. {15:34} But it seemed good to Silas to remain there. So Judas alone departed to Jerusalem. {15:35} And Paul and Barnabas remained at Antioch, with many others, teaching and evangelizing the Word of the Lord. {15:36} Then, after some days, Paul said to Barnabas, “Let us return to visit the brothers throughout all the cities in which we have preached the Word of the Lord, to see how they are.” {15:37} And Barnabas wanted to take John, who was surnamed Mark, with them also. {15:38} But Paul was saying that he ought not to be received, since he withdrew from them at Pamphylia, and he had not gone with them in the work. {15:39} And there occurred a dissension, to such an extent that they departed from one another. And Barnabas, indeed taking Mark, sailed to Cyprus. {15:40} Yet truly, Paul, choosing Silas, set out, being delivered by the brothers to the grace of God. {15:41} And he traveled through Syria and Cilicia, confirming the Churches, instructing them to keep the precepts of the Apostles and the elders.

[Acts 16] {16:1} Then he arrived at Derbe and Lystra. And behold, a certain disciple named Timothy was there, the son of a faithful Jewish woman, his father a Gentile. {16:2} The brothers who were at Lystra and Iconium rendered good testimony to him. {16:3} Paul wanted this man to travel with him, and taking him, he circumcised him, because of the Jews who were in those places. For they all knew that his father was a Gentile. {16:4} And as they were traveling through the cities, they delivered to them the dogmas to be kept, which were decreed by the Apostles and elders who were at Jerusalem. {16:5} And certainly, the Churches were being strengthened in faith and were increasing in number every day. {16:6} Then, while crossing through Phrygia and the region of Galatia, they were prevented by the Holy Spirit of speaking the Word in Asia. {16:7} But when they had arrived in Mysia, they attempted to go into Bithynia, but the Spirit of Jesus would not permit them. {16:8} Then, when they had crossed through Mysia, they descended to Troas. {16:9} And a vision in the night was revealed to Paul of a certain man of Macedonia, standing and pleading with him, and saying: “Cross into Macedonia and help us!” {16:10} Then, after he saw the vision, immediately we sought to set out for Macedonia, having been assured that God had called us to evangelize to them. {16:11} And sailing from Troas, taking a direct path, we arrived at Samothrace, and on the following day, at Neapolis, {16:12} and from there to Philippi, which is the preeminent city in the area of Macedonia, a colony. Now we were in this city some days, conferring together. {16:13} Then, on the Sabbath day, we were walking outside the gate, beside a river, where there seemed to be a prayer gathering. And sitting down, we were speaking with the women who had assembled. {16:14} And a certain woman, named Lydia, a seller of purple in the city of Thyatira, a worshiper of God, listened. And the Lord opened her heart to be receptive to what Paul was saying. {16:15} And when she had been baptized, with her household, she pleaded with us, saying: “If you have judged me to be faithful to the Lord, enter into my house and lodge there.” And she convinced us. {16:16} Then it happened that, as we were going out to prayer, a certain girl, having a spirit of divination, met with us. She was a source of great profit to her masters, through her divining. {16:17} This girl, following Paul and us, was crying out, saying: “These men are servants of the Most High God! They are announcing to you the way of salvation!” {16:18} Now she behaved in this way for many days. But Paul, being grieved, turned and said to the spirit, “I command you, in the name of Jesus Christ, to go out from her.” And it went away in that same hour. {16:19} But her masters, seeing that the hope of their profit went away, apprehended Paul and Silas, and they brought them to the rulers at the courthouse. {16:20} And presenting them to the magistrates, they said: “These men are disturbing our city, since they are Jews. {16:21} And they are announcing a way which is not lawful for us to accept or to observe, since we are Romans.” {16:22} And the people rushed together against them. And the magistrates, tearing their tunics, ordered them to be beaten with staffs. {16:23} And when they had inflicted many scourges on them, they cast them into prison, instructing the guard to watch them diligently. {16:24} And since he had received this kind of order, he cast them into the interior prison cell, and he restricted their feet with stocks. {16:25} Then, in the middle of the night, Paul and Silas were praying and praising God. And those who were also in custody were listening to them. {16:26} Yet truly, there was a sudden earthquake, so great that the foundations of the prison were moved. And immediately all the doors were opened, and the bindings of everyone were released. {16:27} Then the prison guard, having been jarred awake, and seeing the doors of the prison open, drew his sword and intended to kill himself, supposing that the prisoners had fled. {16:28} But Paul cried out with a loud voice, saying: “Do no harm to yourself, for we are all here!” {16:29} Then calling for a light, he entered. And trembling, he fell before the feet of Paul and Silas. {16:30} And bringing them outside, he said, “Sirs, what must I do, so that I may be saved?” {16:31} So they said, “Believe in the Lord Jesus, and then you will be saved, with your household.” {16:32} And they spoke the Word of the Lord to him, along with all those who were in his house. {16:33} And he, taking them in the same hour of the night, washed their scourges. And he was baptized, and next his entire household. {16:34} And when he had brought them into his own house, he set a table for them. And he was joyous, with his entire household, believing in God. {16:35} And when daylight had arrived, the magistrates sent the attendants, saying, “Release those men.” {16:36} But the prison guard reported these words to Paul: “The magistrates have sent to have you released. Now therefore, depart. Go in peace.” {16:37} But Paul said to them: “They have beaten us publicly, though we were not condemned. They have cast men who are Romans into prison. And now they would drive us away secretly? Not so. Instead, let them come forward, and present us to the rulers at the courthouse. And now they would drive us away secretly?” Then the attendants reported these words to the magistrates. And upon hearing that they were Romans, they were afraid. {16:39} And arriving, they pleaded with them, and leading them out, they begged them to depart from the city. {16:40} And they went away from the prison and entered into the house of Lydia. And having seen the brothers, they consoled them, and then they set out.
[Acts 17] 17:1 Now when they had walked through Amphipolis and Apollonia, they arrived at Thessalonica, where there was a synagogue of the Jews. 17:2 Then Paul, according to custom, entered to them. And for three Sabbaths he disputed with them about the Scriptures, 17:3 interpreting and concluding that it was necessary for the Christ to suffer and to rise again from the dead, and that “this is the Jesus Christ, whom I am announcing to you.” 17:4 And some of them believed and were joined to Paul and Silas, and a great number of these were from the worshipers and the Gentiles, and not a few were noble women. 17:5 But the Jews, being jealous, and joining with certain evil doers among the common men, caused a disturbance, and they stirred up the city. And taking up a position near the house of Jason, they sought to lead them out to the people. 17:6 And when they had not found them, they dragged Jason and certain brothers to the rulers of the city, crying out: “For these are the ones who have stirred up the city. And they came here, 17:7 and Jason has received them. And all these men act contrary to the decrees of Caesar, saying that there is another king, Jesus.” 17:8 And they incited the people. And the rulers of the city, upon hearing these things, 17:9 and having received an explanation from Jason and the others, released them. 17:10 Yet truly, the brothers promptly sent Paul and Silas away by night to Beroea. And when they had arrived, they entered the synagogue of the Jews. 17:11 But these were more noble than those who were at Thessalonica. They received the Word with all enthusiasm, daily examining the Scriptures to see if these things were so. 17:12 And indeed, many believed among them, as well as not a few among the honorable Gentile men and women. 17:13 Then, when the Jews of Thessalonica had realized that the Word of God was also preached by Paul at Beroea, they went there also, stirring up and disturbing the multitude. 17:14 And then the brothers quickly sent Paul away, so that he might travel by sea. But Silas and Timothy remained there. 17:15 Then those who were leading Paul brought him as far as Athens. And having received an order from him to Silas and Timothy, that they should come to him quickly, they set out. 17:16 Now while Paul waited for them at Athens, his spirit was stirred up within him, seeing the city given over to idolatry. 17:17 And so, he was disputing with the Jews in the synagogue, and with the worshipers, and in public places, throughout each day, with whomever was there. 17:18 Now certain Epicurean and Stoic philosophers were arguing with him. And some were saying, “What does this sower of the Word want to say?” Yet others were saying, “He seems to be an announcer for new demons.” For he was announcing to them Jesus and the Resurrection. 17:19 And apprehending him, they brought him to the Areopagus, saying: “Are we able to know what this new doctrine is, about which you speak? 17:20 For you bring certain new ideas to our ears. And so we would like to know what these things mean.” 17:21 (Now all the Athenians, and arriving visitors, were occupying themselves with nothing other than speaking or hearing various new ideas.) 17:22 But Paul, standing in the middle of the Areopagus, said: “Men of Athens, I perceive that in all things you are rather superstitious. 17:23 For as I was passing by and noticing your idols, I also found an altar, on which was written: TO THE UNKNOWN GOD. Therefore, what you worship in ignorance, this is what I am preaching to you: 17:24 the God who made the world and all that is in it, the One who is the Lord of heaven and earth, who does not live in temples made with hands. 17:25 Neither is he served by the hands of men, as if in need of anything, since it is he who gives to all things life and breath and all else. 17:26 And he has made, out of one, every family of man: to live upon the face of the entire earth, determining the appointed seasons and the limits of their habituation, 17:27 so as to seek God, if perhaps they may consider him or find him, though he is not far from each one of us. 17:28 ‘For in him we live, and move, and exist.’ Just as some of your own poets have said. ‘For we are also of his family.’ 17:29 Therefore, since we are of the family of God, we must not consider gold or silver or precious stones, or the engravings of art and of the imagination of man, to be a representation of what is Divine. 17:30 And indeed, God, having looked down to see the ignorance of these times, has now announced to men that everyone everywhere should do penance. 17:31 For he has appointed a day on which he will judge the world in equity, through the man whom he has appointed, offering faith to all, by raising him from the dead.” 17:32 And when they had heard about the Resurrection of the dead, indeed, some were derisive, while others said, “We will listen to you about this again.” 17:33 So Paul departed from their midst. 17:34 Yet truly, certain men, adhering to him, did believe. Among these were also Dionysius the Areopagite, and a woman named Damaris, and others with them.

[Acts 18] 18:1 After these things, having departed from Athens, he arrived at Corinth. 18:2 And upon finding a certain Jew named Aquila, born in Pontus, who had recently arrived from Italy with Priscilla his wife, (because Claudius had ordered all Jews to depart from Rome,) he met with them. 18:3 And because he was of the same trade, he lodged with them and was working. (Now they were tentmakers by trade.) 18:4 And he was arguing in the synagogue on every Sabbath, introducing the name of the Lord Jesus. And he was persuading Jews and Greeks. 18:5 And when Silas and Timothy had arrived from Macedonia, Paul stood firm in the Word, testifying to the Jews that Jesus is the Christ. 18:6 But since they were contradicting him and blaspheming, he shook out his garments and said to them: “Your blood is on your own heads. I am clean. From now on, I will go to the Gentiles.” 18:7 And moving from that place, he entered into the house of a certain man, named Titus the Just, a worshiper of God, whose house was adjoined to the synagogue. 18:8 Now Crispus, a leader of the synagogue, believed in the Lord, with his entire house. And many of the Corinthians, upon hearing, believed and were baptized. 18:9 Then the Lord said to Paul, through a vision in the night: “Do not be afraid. Instead, speak out and do not be silent. 18:10 For I am with you. And no one will take hold of you, so as to do you harm. For many of the people in this city are with me.” 18:11 Then he settled there for a year and six months, teaching the Word of God among them. 18:12 But when Gallio was proconsul of Achaia, the Jews rose up with one accord against Paul. And they brought him to the tribunal, 18:13 saying, “He persuades men to worship God contrary to the law.” 18:14 Then, when Paul was beginning to open his mouth, Gallio said to the Jews: “If this were some matter of injustice, or a wicked deed, O noble Jews, I would support you, as is proper. {18:15} Yet if truly these are questions about a word and names and your law, you should see to it yourselves. I will not be the judge of such things." {18:16} And he ordered them from the tribunal. {18:17} But they, apprehending Sosthenes, a leader of the synagogue, beat him in front of the tribunal. And Gallio showed no concern for these things. {18:18} Yet truly, Paul, after he had remained for many more days, having said goodbye to the brothers, sailed into Syria, and with him were Priscilla and Aquila. Now he had shaved his head in Cenchreae, for he had made a vow. {18:19} And he arrived at Ephesus, and he left them behind there. Yet truly, he himself, entering into the synagogue, was disputing with the Jews. {18:20} Then, although they were asking him to remain for a longer time, he would not agree. {18:21} Instead, saying goodbye and telling them, "I will return to you again, God willing," he set out from Ephesus. {18:22} And after going down to Caesarea, he went up to Jerusalem, and he greeted the Church there, and then he descended to Antioch. {18:23} And having spent some length of time there, he set out, and he walked in order through the region of Galatia and Phrygia, strengthening all the disciples. {18:24} Now a certain Jew named Apollo, born at Alexandria, an eloquent man who was powerful with the Scriptures, arrived at Ephesus. {18:25} He was learned in the Way of the Lord. And being fervent in spirit, he was speaking and teaching the things that are of Jesus, but knowing only the baptism of John. {18:26} And so, he began to act faithfully in the synagogue. And when Priscilla and Aquila had heard him, they took him aside and expounded the Way of the Lord to him more thoroughly. {18:27} Then, since he wanted to go to Achaia, the brothers wrote an exhortation to the disciples, so that they might accept him. And when he had arrived, he held many discussions with those who had believed. {18:28} For he was vehemently and publicly reproving the Jews, by revealing through the Scriptures that Jesus is the Christ.

[Acts 19] {19:1} Now it happened that, while Apollo was at Corinth, Paul, after he had journeyed through the upper regions, arrived at Ephesus. And he met with certain disciples. {19:2} And he said to them, "After believing, have you received the Holy Spirit?" But they said to him, "We have not even heard that there is a Holy Spirit." {19:3} Yet truly, he said, "Then with what have you been baptized?" And they said, "With the baptism of John." {19:4} Then Paul said: "John baptized the people with the baptism of repentance, saying that they should believe in the One who is to come after him, that is, in Jesus." {19:5} Upon hearing these things, they were baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. {19:6} And when Paul had imposed his hands on them, the Holy Spirit came over them. And they were speaking in tongues and prophesying. {19:7} Now the men were about twelve in all. {19:8} Then, upon entering the synagogue, he was speaking faithfully for three months, disputing and persuading them about the kingdom of God. {19:9} But when certain ones became hardened and would not believe, cursing the Way of the Lord in the presence of the multitude, Paul, withdrawing from them, separated the disciples, disputing daily in a certain school of Tyrannus. {19:10} Now this was done throughout two years, so that all who were living in Asia listened to the Word of the Lord, both Jews and Gentiles. {19:11} And God was accomplishing powerful and uncommon miracles by the hand of Paul, {19:12} so much so that even when small cloths and wrappings were brought from his body to the sick, the illnesses withdrew from them and the wicked spirits departed. {19:13} Then, even some of the traveling Jewish exorcists had attempted to invoke the name of the Lord Jesus over those who had evil spirits, saying, "I bind you by oath through Jesus, whom Paul preaches." {19:14} And there were certain Jews, the seven sons of Sceva, leaders among the priests, who were acting in this way. {19:15} But a wicked spirit responded by saying to them: "Jesus I know, and Paul I know. But who are you?" {19:16} And the man, in whom there was a wicked spirit, leaping at them and getting the better of them both, prevailed against them, so that they fled from that house, naked and wounded. {19:17} And so, this became known to all the Jews and Gentiles who were living at Ephesus. And a fear fell over them all. And the name of the Lord Jesus was magnified. {19:18} And many believers were arriving, confessing, and announcing their deeds. {19:19} Then many of those who had followed odd sects brought together their books, and they burned them in the sight of all. And after determining the value of these, they found the price to be fifty thousand denarii. {19:20} In this way, the Word of God was increasing strongly and was being confirmed. {19:21} Then, when these things were completed, Paul decided in the Spirit, after crossing through Macedonia and Achaia, to go to Jerusalem, saying, "Then, after I have been there, it is necessary for me to see Rome also." {19:22} But sending two of those who were ministering to him, Timothy and Erastus, into Macedonia, he himself remained for a time in Asia. {19:23} Now at that time, there occurred no small disturbance concerning the Way of the Lord. {19:24} For a certain man named Demetrius, a silversmith making silver shrines for Diana, was providing no small profit to craftsmen. {19:25} And calling them together, with those who were employed in the same way, he said: "Men, you know that our income is from this craft. {19:26} And you are seeing and hearing that this man Paul, by persuasion, has turned away a great multitude, not only from Ephesus, but from nearly all of Asia, saying, 'These things are not gods which have been made by hands.' {19:27} Thus, not only is this, our occupation, in danger of being brought into repudiation, but also the temple of the great Diana will be reputed as nothing! Then even her majesty, whom all of Asia and the world worships, will begin to be destroyed." {19:28} Upon hearing this, they were filled with anger, and they cried out, saying, "Great is Diana of the Ephesians!" {19:29} And the city was filled with confusion. And having seized Gaius and Aristarchus of Macedonia, companions of Paul, they rushed violently, with one accord, into the amphitheatre. {19:30} Then, when Paul wanted to enter to the people, the disciples would not permit him. {19:31} And some of the leaders from Asia, who were his friends, also sent to him, requesting that he not present himself in the amphitheatre. {19:32} But others were crying out various things. For the assembly was in confusion, and most did not know the reason they had been called together. {19:33} So they dragged Alexander from the crowd, while the Jews were propelling him forward. And Alexander, gesturing with his hand for silence, wanted to give the people an explanation. {19:34} But as soon as they realized him to be a Jew, all with one voice, for about two hours, were crying out, “Great is Diana of the Ephesians!”  {19:35} And when the scribe had calmed the crowds, he said: “Men of Ephesus, now what man is there who does not know that the city of the Ephesians is in the service of the great Diana and of the offspring of Jupiter?  {19:36} Therefore, since these things are not able to be contradicted, it is necessary for you to be calm and to do nothing rash.  {19:37} For you have brought forward these men, who are neither sacrilegious nor blasphemers against your goddess.  {19:38} But if Demetrius and the craftsmen who are with him have a case against anyone, they can convene in the courts, and there are proconsuls. Let them accuse one another.  {19:39} But if you would inquire about other things, this can be decided in a lawful assembly.  {19:40} For now we are in peril of being convicted of sedition over today's events, since there is no one guilty (against whom we are able to provide evidence) in this gathering.” And when he had said this, he dismissed the assembly.

[Acts 20]  {20:1} Then, after the tumult ceased, Paul, calling the disciples to himself and exhorting them, said farewell. And he set out, so that he might go into Macedonia.  {20:2} And when he had walked through those areas and had exhorted them with many sermons, he went into Greece.  {20:3} After he had spent three months there,treacheries were planned against him by the Jews, just as he was about to sail into Syria. And having been advised of this, he return through Macedonia.  {20:4} Now those accompanying him were Sopater, the son of Pyrrhus from Beroea; and also the Thessalonians, Aristarchus and Secundus; and Gaius of Derbe, and Timothy; and also Tychicus and Trophimus from Asia.  {20:5} These, after they had gone ahead, waited for us at Troas.  {20:6} Yet truly, we sailed from Philippi, after the days of Unleavened Bread, and in five days we went to them at Troas, where we stayed for seven days.  {20:7} Then, on the first Sabbath, when we had assembled together to break bread, Paul discoursed with them, intending to set out the next day. But he prolonged his sermon into the middle of the night.  {20:8} Now there were plenty of lamps in the upper room, where we were gathered.  {20:9} And a certain adolescent named Eutychus, sitting on the window sill, was being weighed down by a heavy drowsiness (for Paul was preaching at length). Then, as he went to sleep, he fell from the third floor room downward. And when he was lifted up, he was dead.  {20:10} When Paul had gone down to him, he laid himself over him and, embracing him, said, “Do not worry, for his soul is still within him.”  {20:11} And so, going up, and breaking bread, and eating, and having spoken well until daylight, he then set out.  {20:12} Now they had brought the boy in alive, and they were more than a little consoled.  {20:13} Then we climbed aboard the ship and sailed to Assos, where we were to take in Paul. For so he himself had decided, since he was making the journey by land.  {20:14} And when he had joined us at Assos, we took him in, and we went to Mitylene.  {20:15} And sailing from there, on the following day, we arrived opposite Chios. And next we landed at Samos. And on the following day we went to Miletus.  {20:16} For Paul had decided to sail past Ephesus, so that he would not be delayed in Asia. For he was hurrying so that, if it were possible for him, he might observe the day of Pentecost at Jerusalem.  {20:17} Then, sending from Miletus to Ephesus, he called those greater by birth in the church.  {20:18} And when they had come to him and were together, he said to them: “You know that from the first day when I entered into Asia, I have been with you, for the entire time, in this manner:  {20:19} serving the Lord, with all humility and despite the tears and trials which befell me from the treacheries of the Jews,  {20:20} how I held back nothing that was of value, how well I have preached to you, and that I have taught you publicly and throughout the houses,  {20:21} testifying both to Jews and to Gentiles about repentance in God and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ.  {20:22} And now, behold, being obliged in spirit, I am going to Jerusalem, not knowing what will happen to me there,  {20:23} except that the Holy Spirit, throughout every city, has cautioned me, saying that chains and tribulations await me at Jerusalem.  {20:24} But I dread none of these things. Neither do I consider my life to be more precious because it is my own, provided that in some way I may complete my own course and that of the ministry of the Word, which I received from the Lord Jesus, to testify to the Gospel of the grace of God.  {20:25} And now, behold, I know that you will no longer see my face, all of you among whom I have traveled, preching the kingdom of God.  {20:26} For this reason, I call you as witnesses on this very day: that I am clean from the blood of all.  {20:27} For I have not turned aside in the least from announcing every counsel of God to you.  {20:28} Take care of yourselves and of the entire flock, over which the Holy Spirit has stationed you as Bishops to rule the Church of God, which he has purchased by his own blood.  {20:29} I know that after my departure ravenous wolves will enter among you, not sparing the flock.  {20:30} And from among yourselves, men will rise up, speaking perverse things in order to entice disciples after them.  {20:31} Because of this, be vigilant, retaining in memory that throughout three years I did not cease, night and day, with tears, to admonish each and every one of you.  {20:32} And now, I commend you to God and to the Word of his grace. He has the power to build up, and to give an inheritance to all who are sanctified.  {20:33} I have coveted neither silver and gold, nor apparel,  {20:34} as you yourselves know. For that which was needed by me and by those who are with me, these hands have provided.  {20:35} I have revealed all things to you, because by laboring in this way, it is necessary to support the weak and to remember the words of the Lord Jesus, how he said, ‘It is more blessed to give than to receive.’ ”  {20:36} And when he had said these things, kneeling down, he prayed with all of them.  {20:37} Then a great weeping occurred among them all. And, falling upon the neck of Paul, they kissed him,  {20:38} being grieved most of all over the word which he had said, that they would never see his face again. And they brought him to the ship.
should not go up to Jerusalem. {21:5} And when the days were completed, setting out, we went on; and they all accompanied us with their wives and children, until we were outside of the city. And we kneeled down at the shore and prayed. {21:6} And when we had said farewell to one another, we climbed aboard the ship. And they returned to their own. {21:7} Yet truly, having completed our journey by boat from Tyre, we descended to Ptolemais. And greeting the brothers, we lodged with them for one day. {21:8} Then, after setting out the next day, we arrived at Caesarea. And upon entering into the house of Philip the evangelist, who was one of the seven, we stayed with him. {21:9} Now this man had four daughters, virgins, who were prophesying.

{21:10} And while we were delayed for some days, a certain prophet from Judea, named Agabus, arrived. {21:11} And he, when he had come to us, took Paul's belt, and binding his own feet and hands, he said: "Thus says the Holy Spirit: The man whose belt this is, the Jews will bind in this way at Jerusalem. And they will deliver him into the hands of the Gentiles." {22:12} And when we had heard this, both we and those who were from that place begged him not to go up to Jerusalem. {21:13} Then Paul responded by saying: "What do you accomplish by weeping and afflicting my heart? For I am prepared, not only to be bound, but also to die in Jerusalem, for the name of the Lord Jesus." {21:14} And since we were not able to persuade him, we quieted, saying: "May the will of the Lord be done." {21:15} Then, after those days, having made preparations, we ascended to Jerusalem. {21:16} Now some of the disciples from Caesarea also went with us, bringing with them a certain Cypriot named Mnason, a very old disciple, whose guests we would be. {21:17} And when we had arrived at Jerusalem, the brothers received us willingly. {21:18} Then, on the following day, Paul entered with us to James. And all the elders were assembled. {21:19} And when he had greeted them, he explained each thing that God had accomplished among the Gentiles through his ministry. {21:20} And they, upon hearing it, magnified God and said to him: "You understand, brother, how many thousands there are among the Jews who have believed, and they are all zealous for the law. {21:21} Now they have heard about you, that you are teaching those Jews who are among the Gentiles to withdraw from Moses, telling them that they should not circumcise their sons, nor act according to custom. {21:22} What is next? The multitude ought to be convened. For they will hear that you have arrived. {21:23} Therefore, do this thing that we ask of you: We have four men, who are under a vow. {21:24} Take these and sanctify yourself with them, and require them to shave their heads. And then everyone will know that the things that they have heard about you are false, but that you yourself walk in keeping with the law. {21:25} But, about those Gentiles who have believed, we have written a judgment that they should keep themselves from what has been immolated to idols, and from blood, and from what has been suffocated, and from fornication." {21:26} Then Paul, taking the men on the next day, was purified with them, and he entered the temple, announcing the process of the days of purification, until an oblation would be offered on behalf of each one of them. {21:27} But when the seven days were reaching completion, those Jews who were from Asia, when they had seen him in the temple, incited all the people, and they laid hands on him, crying out:

{21:28} "Men of Israel, help! This is the man who is teaching, everyone, everywhere, against the people and the law and this place. Furthermore, he has even brought Gentiles into the temple, and he has violated this holy place." {21:29} (For they had seen Trophimus, an Ephesian, in the city with him, and they supposed that Paul had brought him into the temple.) {21:30} And the entire city was stirred up. And it happened that the people ran together. And apprehending Paul, they dragged him outside of the temple. And immediately the doors were closed. {21:31} Then, as they were seeking to kill him, it was reported to the tribune of the cohort: "All Jerusalem is in confusion." {21:32} And so, immediately taking soldiers and centurions, he rushed down to them. And when they had seen the tribune and the soldiers, they ceased to strike Paul. {21:33} Then the tribune, drawing near, apprehended him and ordered that he be bound with two chains. And he was asking who he was and what he had done. {21:34} Then they were crying out various things within the crowd. And since he could not understand anything clearly because of the noise, he ordered him to be brought into the fortress. {21:35} And when he had arrived at the stairs, it happened that he was carried up by the soldiers, because of the threat of violence from the people. {21:36} For the multitude of the people were following and crying out, "Take him away!" {21:37} And as Paul was beginning to be brought into the fortress, he said to the tribune, "Is it permissible for me to say something to you?" And he said, "You know Greek? {21:38} So then, are you not that Egyptian who before these days incited a rebellion and led out into the desert four thousand murderous men?" {21:39} But Paul said to him: "I am a man, indeed a Jew, from Tarsus in Cilicia, a citizen of a well-known city. So I petition you, permit me to speak to the people." {21:40} And when he had given him permission, Paul, standing on the stairs, motioned with his hand to the people. And when a great silence occurred, he spoke to them in the Hebrew language, saying:

[Acts 22] {22:1} "Noble brothers and fathers, listen to the explanation that I now give to you." {22:2} And when they heard him speaking to them in the Hebrew language, they offered a greater silence. {22:3} And he said: "I am a Jewish man, born at Tarsus in Cilicia, but raised in this city beside the feet of Gamaliel, taught according to the truth of the law of the fathers, zealous for the law, just as of all you are to this day. {22:4} I persecuted this Way, even unto death, binding and delivering into custody both men and women, {22:5} just as the high priest and all those greater by birth bear witness to me. Having received letters from them to the brothers, I journeyed to Damascus, so that I might lead them bound from there to Jerusalem, so that they might be punished. {22:6} But it happened that, as I was traveling and was approaching Damascus at midday, suddenly from heaven a great light shone around me. {22:7} And falling to the ground, I heard a voice saying to me, 'Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me?' {22:8} And I responded, 'Who are you, Lord?' And he said to me, 'I am Jesus the Nazarene, whom you are persecuting.' {22:9} And those who were with me, indeed, saw the light, but they did not hear the voice of him who was speaking with me. {22:10} And I said, 'What should I do, Lord?' Then the Lord said to me: 'Rise up, and go to Damascus. And there, you shall be told all that you must do.’ {22:11} And since I could not see, because of the brightness of that light, I was led by the hand by my companions, and I went to Damascus. {22:12} Then a certain Ananias, a man in accord with the law, having the testimony of all the Jews who were living there, {22:13} drawing near to me and standing close by, said to me, 'Brother Saul, see!' And in that same hour, I looked upon him. {22:14} But he said: ‘The God of our fathers has preordained you, so that you would come to know his will and would see the Just One, and would hear the voice from his mouth.’ {22:15} For you shall be his witness to all men about those things which you have seen and heard. {22:16} And now, why do you delay? Rise up, and be baptized, and wash away your sins, by invoking his name.’ {22:17} Then it happened that, when I returned to Jerusalem and was praying in the temple, a mental stupor came over me, {22:18} and I saw him saying to me: ‘Hurry! Depart quickly from Jerusalem! For they will not accept your testimony about me.’ {22:19} And I said: ‘Lord, they know that I am beating and enclosing in prison, throughout every synagogue, those who have believed in you. {22:20} And when the blood of your witness Stephen was poured out, I stood nearby and was consenting, and I watched over the garments of those who put him to death.’ {22:21} And he said to me, ‘Go forth. For I am sending you to far away nations.’ ” {22:22} Now they were listening to him, until this word, and then they lifted up their voice, saying: “Take this kind away from the earth! For it is not fitting for him to live!” {22:23} And while they were shouting, and tossing aside their garments, and casting dust into the air, {22:24} the tribune ordered him to be brought into the fortress, and to be scourged and tortured, in order to discover the reason that they were crying out in this way against him. {22:25} And when they had tied him with straps, Paul said to the centurion who was standing near him, “Is it lawful for you to scourge a man who is a Roman and has not been condemned?” {22:26} Upon hearing this, the centurion went to the tribune and reported it to him, saying: “What do you intend to do? For this man is a Roman citizen.” {22:27} And the tribune, approaching, said to him: “Tell me. Are you a Roman?” So he said, “Yes.” {22:28} And the tribune responded, “I obtained this citizenship at great cost.” And Paul said, “But I was born to it.” {22:29} Therefore, those who were going to torture him, immediately withdrew from him. The tribune was similarly afraid, after he realized that he was a Roman citizen, for he had bound him. {22:30} But on the next day, wanting to discover more diligently what the reason was that he was accused by the Jews, he released him, and he ordered the priests to convene, with the entire council. And, producing Paul, he stationed him among them.

Acts 23 {23:1} Then Paul, gazing intently at the council, said, “Noble brothers, I have spoken with all good conscience before God, even to this present day.” {23:2} And the high priest, Ananias, instructed those who were standing nearby to strike him on the mouth. {23:3} Then Paul said to him: “God shall strike you, you whitewashed wall! For would you sit and judge me according to the law, when, contrary to the law, you order me to be struck?” {23:4} And those who were standing nearby said, “Are you speaking evil about the high priest of God?” {23:5} And Paul said: “I did not know, brothers, that he is the high priest. For it is written: ‘You shall not speak evil of the leader of your people.’ ” {23:6} Now Paul, knowing that one group were Sadducees and the other were Pharisees, exclaimed in the council. “Noble brothers, I am a Pharisee, the son of Pharisies! It is over the hope and resurrection of the dead that I am being judged.” {23:7} And when he had said this, a dissension occurred between the Pharisees and the Sadducees. And the multitude was divided. {23:8} For the Sadducees claim that there is no resurrection, and neither angels, nor spirits. But the Pharisees confess both of these. {23:9} Then there occurred a great clamor. And some of the Pharisees, rising up, were fighting, saying: “We find nothing evil in this man. What if a spirit has spoken to him, or an angel?” {23:10} And since a great dissension had been made, the tribune, fearing that Paul might be torn apart by them, ordered the soldiers to ascend and to seize him from their midst, and to bring him into the fortress. {23:11} Then, on the following night, the Lord stood near him and said: “Be constant. For just as you have testified about me in Jerusalem, so also it is necessary for you to testify at Rome.” {23:12} And when daylight arrived, some of the Jews gathered together and bound themselves with an oath, saying that they would neither eat nor drink until they had killed Paul. {23:13} Now there were more than forty men who had taken this oath together. {23:14} And they approached the leaders of the priests, and the elders, and they said: “We have sworn ourselves by an oath, so that we will taste nothing, until we have killed Paul. {23:15} Therefore, with the council, you should now give notice to the tribune, so that he may bring him to you, as if you intended to determine something else about him. But before he approaches, we have made preparations to put him to death.” {23:16} But when Paul’s sister’s son had heard of this, about their treachery, he went and entered into the fortress, and he reported it to Paul. {23:17} And Paul, calling to him one of the centurions, said: “Lead this young man to the tribune. For he has something to tell him.” {23:18} And indeed, he took him and led him to the tribune, and he said, “Paul, the prisoner, asked me to lead this young man to you, since he has something to say to you.” {23:19} Then the tribune, taking him by the hand, withdrew with him by themselves, and he asked him: “What is it that you have to tell me?” {23:20} Then he said: “The Jews have met to ask you to bring Paul tomorrow to the council, as if they intended to question him about something else. {23:21} But truly, you should not believe them, for they would ambush him with more than forty men from among them, who have bound themselves by an oath neither to eat, nor to drink, until they have put him to death. And they are now prepared, hoping for an affirmation from you.” {23:22} And then the tribune dismissed the young man, instructing him not to tell anyone that he had made known these things to him. {23:23} Then, having called two centurions, he said to them: “Prepare two hundred soldiers, so that they may go as far as Caesarea, and seventy horsemen, and two hundred spearmen, for the third hour of the night. {23:24} And prepare beasts of burden to carry Paul, so that they may lead him safely to Felix, the governor.” {23:25} For he was afraid, lest perhaps the Jews might seize him and kill him, and that afterwards he would be falsely accused, as if he had accepted a bribe. And so he wrote a letter containing the following: {23:26} ‘Claudius Lysias, to the most excellent governor, Felix: greetings. {23:27} This man, having been apprehended by the Jews and being about to be put to death by them, I rescued, overwhelming them with soldiers, since I realized that he is a Roman. 23:28 And wanting to know the reason that they objected to him, I brought him into their council. 23:29 And I discovered him to be accused about questions of their law. Yet truly, nothing deserving of death or imprisonment was within the accusation. 23:30 And when I had been given news of ambushes, which they had prepared against him, I sent him to you, notifying his accusers also, so that they may plead their accusations before you. Farewell." 23:31 Therefore the soldiers, taking Paul according to their orders, brought him by night to Antipatris. 23:32 And the next day, sending the horsemen to go with him, they returned to the fortress. 23:33 And when they had arrived at Caesarea and had delivered the letter to the governor, they also presented Paul before him. 23:34 And when he had read it and had asked which province he was from, realizing that he was from Cilicia, he said: 23:35 "I will hear you, when your accusers have arrived." And he ordered him to be kept in the praetorium of Herod.

[Acts 24] 24:1 Then, after five days, the high priest Ananias came down with some of the elders and a certain Tertullus, a speaker. And they went to the governor against Paul. 24:2 And having summoned Paul, Tertullus began to accuse him, saying: "Most excellent Felix, since we have much peace through you, and many things may be corrected by your providence, 24:3 we acknowledge this, always and everywhere, with acts of thanksgiving for everything. 24:4 But lest I speak at too great a length, I beg you, by your clemency, to listen to us briefly. 24:5 We have found this man to be pestilent, to be inciting seditions among all the Jews in the entire world, and to be the author of the sedition of the sect of the Nazarenes. 24:6 And he has even been attempting to violate the temple. And having apprehended him, we wanted him to be judged according to our law. 24:7 But Lysias, the tribune, overwhelming us with great violence, snatched him away from our hands, ordering his accusers to come to you. From them, you yourself will be able, by judging about all these things, to understand the reason that we accuse him." 24:9 And then the Jews interjected, saying that these things were so. 24:10 Then, since the governor had motioned for him to speak, Paul responded: "Knowing that you have been the judge over this nation for many years, I will give an explanation of myself with an honest soul. 24:11 For, as you may realize, it has only been twelve days since I went up to worship in Jerusalem. 24:12 And they did not find me in the temple arguing with anyone, nor causing a rally of the people: neither in the synagogues, nor in the city. 24:13 And they are not able to prove to you the things about which they now accuse me. 24:14 But I confess this to you, that according to that sect, which they call a heresy, so do I serve my God and Father, believing all that is written in the Law and the Prophets, 24:15 having a hope in God, which these others themselves also expect, that there will be a future resurrection of the just and the unjust. 24:16 And in this, myself always strive to have a conscience that is lacking in any offence toward God and toward men. 24:17 Then, after many years, I went to my nation, bringing alms and offerings and vows, through which I obtained purification in the temple: neither with a crowd, nor with a commotion. 24:19 But certain Jews out of Asia are the ones who should have appeared before you to accuse me, if they have anything against me. 24:20 Or let these ones here say if they have found in me any iniquity, while standing before the council. 24:21 For while standing among them, I spoke out solely about this one matter: about the resurrection of the dead. It is about this that I am being judged today by you." 24:22 Then Felix, after having ascertained much knowledge about this Way, kept them waiting, by saying, "When Lysias the tribune has arrived, I will give you a hearing." 24:23 And he ordered a centurion to guard him, and to take rest, and not to prohibit any of his own from ministering to him. 24:24 Then, after some days, Felix, arriving with his wife Drusilla who was a Jew, called for Paul and listened to him about the faith that is in Christ Jesus. 24:25 And after he discoursed about justice and chastity, and about the future judgment, Felix was trembling, and he responded: "For now, go, but remain under guard. Then, at an opportune time, I will summon you." 24:26 He was also hoping that money might be given to him by Paul, and because of this, he frequently summoned him and spoke with him. 24:27 Then, when two years had passed, Felix was succeeded by Portius Festus. And since Felix wanted to show particular favor to the Jews, he left Paul behind as a prisoner.

[Acts 25] 25:1 And so, when Festus had arrived in the province, after three days, he ascended to Jerusalem from Caesarea. 25:2 And the leaders of the priests, and those first among the Jews, went to him against Paul. And they were petitioning him, 25:3 asking for favor against him, so that he would order him to be led to Jerusalem, where they were maintaining an ambush in order to kill him along the way. 25:4 But Festus responded that Paul was to be kept in Caesarea, and that he himself would soon go there. 25:5 "Therefore," he said, "let those among you who are able, descend at the same time, and if there is any guilt in the man, they may accuse him." 25:6 Then, having stayed among them no more than eight or ten days, he descended to Caesarea. And on the next day, he sat in the judgment seat, and he ordered Paul to be led in. 25:7 And when he had been brought, the Jews who had come down from Jerusalem stood around him, throwing out many serious accusations, none of which they were able to prove. 25:8 Paul offered this defense: "Neither against the law of the Jews, nor against the temple, nor against Caesar, have I offended in any matter." 25:9 But Festus, wanting to show greater favor to the Jews, responded to Paul by saying: "Are you willing to ascend to Jerusalem and to be judged there about these things before me?" 25:10 But Paul said: "I stand in Caesar’s tribunal, which is where I ought to be judged. I have done no harm to the Jews, as you well know. 25:11 For if I have harmed them, or if I have done anything deserving of death, I do not object to dying. But if there is nothing to these things about which they accuse me, no one is able to deliver me to them. I appeal to Caesar." 25:12 Then Festus, having spoken with the council, responded: "You have appealed to Caesar, to Caesar you shall go." 25:13 And when some days had passed, king Agrippa and Bernice descended to Caesarea, to greet Festus. 25:14 And since they remained there for many days, Festus spoke to the king about Paul, saying: "A certain man was left behind as a prisoner by Felix.
When I was at Jerusalem, the leaders of the priests and the elders of the Jews came to me about him, asking for condemnation against him. I answered them that it is not the custom of the Romans to condemn any man, before he who is being accused has been confronted by his accusers and has received the opportunity to defend himself, so as to clear himself of the charges. Therefore, when they had arrived here, without any delay, on the following day, sitting in the judgment seat, I ordered the man to be brought. But when the accusers had stood up, they did not present any accusation about him from which I would suspect evil. Instead, they brought against him certain disputes about their own superstition and about a certain Jesus, who had died, but whom Paul asserted to be alive. Therefore, being in doubt about this kind of question, I asked him if he was willing go to Jerusalem and to be judged there about these things. But since Paul was appealing to be kept for a decision before Augustus, I ordered him to be kept, until I might send him to Caesar. Then Agrippa said to Festus: “I myself also want to hear the man.” “Tomorrow,” he said, “you shall hear him.” And on the next day, when Agrippa and Bernice had arrived with great ostentation and had entered into the auditorium with the tribunes and the principal men of the city, Paul was brought in, at the order of Festus. And Festus said: “King Agrippa, and all who are present together with us, you see this man, about whom all the multitude of the Jews disturbed me at Jerusalem, petitioning and clamoring that he should not be allowed to live any longer. Truly, I have discovered nothing brought forth against him that is worthy of death. But since he himself has appealed to Augustus, it was my judgment to send him. But I have not determined what to write to the emperor about him. Because of this, I have brought him before you all, and especially before you, O king Agrippa, so that, once an inquiry has occurred, I may have something to write. For it seems to me unreasonable to send a prisoner and not to indicate the accusations set against him.”

[Acts 26] Yet truly, Agrippa said to Paul, “It is permitted for you to speak for yourself.” Then Paul, extending his hand, began to offer his defense: “I consider myself blessed, O king Agrippa, that I am to give my defense today before you, about everything of which I am accused by the Jews, especially since you know everything that pertains to the Jews, both customs and questions. Because of this, I beg you to listen to me patiently. And certainly, all the Jews know about my life from my youth, which had its beginning among my own people in Jerusalem. They knew me well from the beginning, (if they would be willing to offer testimony) for I lived according to the most determined sect of our religion: as a Pharisee. And now, it is in the hope of the Promise which was made by God to our fathers that I stand subject to judgment. It is the Promise that our twelve tribes, worshiping night and day, hope to see. About this hope, O king, I am accused by the Jews. Why should it be judged so unbelievable with you all that God might raise the dead? And certainly, I myself formerly considered that I ought to act in many ways which are contrary to the name of Jesus the Nazarene. This is also how I acted at Jerusalem. And so, I enclosed many holy persons in prison, having received authority from the leaders of the priests. And when they were to be killed, I brought the sentence. And in every synagogue, frequently while punishing them, I compelled them to blaspheme. And being all the more maddened against them, I persecuted them, even to foreign cities. Thereafter, as I was going to Damascus, with authority and permission from the high priest, at midday, O king, I and those who were also with me, saw along the way a light from heaven shining around me with a splendor greater than that of the sun. And when we had all fallen down to the ground, I heard a voice speaking to me in the Hebrew language: ‘Saul, Saul, why are you persecuting me? It is hard for you to kick against the goad.’ Then I said, ‘Who are you, Lord?’ And the Lord said, ‘I am Jesus, whom you are persecuting. But rise up and stand on your feet. For I appeared to you for this reason: so that I may establish you as a minister and a witness concerning the things that you have seen, and concerning the things that I will show to you: rescuing you from the people and the nations to which I am now sending you, in order to open their eyes, so that they may be converted from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan to God, so that they may receive the remission of sins and a place among the saints, through the faith that is in me.’ From then on, O king Agrippa, I was not unbelieving to the heavenly vision. But I preached, first to those who are at Damascus and at Jerusalem, and then to the entire region of Judea, and to the Gentiles, so that they would repent and convert to God, doing the works that are worthy of repentance. It was for this reason that the Jews, having apprehended me when I was in the temple, attempted to kill me. But having been aided by the help of God, even to this day, I stand witnessing to the small and the great, saying nothing beyond what the Prophets and Moses have said would be in the future: that the Christ would suffer, and that he would be the first from the resurrection of the dead, and that he would bring light to the people and to the nations.” While he was speaking these things and presenting his defense, Festus said with a loud voice: “Paul, you are insane! Too much studying has turned you to insanity.” And Paul said: “I am not insane, most excellent Festus, but rather I am speaking words of truth and sobriety. For the king knows about these things. To him also, I am speaking with constancy. For I think that none of these things are unknown to him. And neither were these things done in a corner. Do you believe the Prophets, O king Agrippa? I know that you believe.” Then Agrippa said to Paul, “To some extent, you persuade me to become a Christian.” And Paul said, “I hope to God that, both to a small extent and to a great extent, not only you, but also all those who hear me this day will become just as I also am, except for these chains.” And the king rose up, and the governor, and Bernice, and those who were sitting with them. And when they had withdrawn, they were speaking among themselves, saying, “This man has done nothing worthy of death, nor of imprisonment.” Then Agrippa said to Festus, “This man could have been released, if he had not appealed to Caesar.”
delivered to a centurion named Julius, of the cohort of Augusta. [27:2] After climbing aboard a ship from Adramyttium, we set sail and began to navigate along the ports of Asia, with Aristarchus, the Macedonian from Thessalonica, joining us. [27:3] And on the following day, we arrived at Sidon. And Julius, treating Paul humanely, permitted him to go to his friends and to look after himself. [27:4] And when we had set sail from there, we navigated below Cyprus, because the winds were contrary. [27:5] And navigating though the sea of Cilicia and Pamphylia, we arrived at Lystra, which is in Lycia. [27:6] And there the centurion found a ship from Alexandria sailing to Italy, and he transferred us to it. [27:7] And when we had sailed slowly for many days and had barely arrived opposite Cnidus, for the wind was hindering us, we sailed to Crete, near Salmone. [27:8] And barely being able to sail past it, we arrived at a certain place, which is called Good Shelter, next to which was the city of Lasae. [27:9] Then, after much time had passed, and since sailing would no longer be prudent because the Fast Day had now passed, Paul consorted them, [27:10] and he said to them: “Men, I perceive that the voyage is now in danger of injury and much damage, not only to the cargo and the ship, but also to our own lives.” [27:11] But the centurion put more trust in the captain and the navigator of the ship, than in the things being said by Paul. [27:12] And since it was not a fitting port in which to winter, the majority opinion was to sail from there, so that somehow they might be able to arrive at Phoenicia, in order to winter there, at a port of Crete, which looks out toward the southwest and northwest. [27:13] And since the south wind was blowing gently, they thought that they might reach their goal. And after they had set out from Asson, they weighed anchor at Crete. [27:14] But not long afterward, a violent wind came against them, which is called the Northeast Wind. [27:15] And once the ship had been caught in it and was not able to struggle against the wind, giving over the ship to the winds, we were driven along. [27:16] Then, being forced along a certain island, which is called the Tail, we were barely able to hold on to the ship’s lifeboat. [27:17] When this was taken up, they used it to assist in securing the ship. For they were afraid that they might run aground. And having lowered the sails, they were being driven along in this way. [27:18] Then, since we were being tossed about strongly by the tempest, on the following day, they threw the heavy items overboard. [27:19] And on the third day, with their own hands, they threw the equipment of the ship overboard. [27:20] Then, when neither sun nor stars appeared for many days, and no end to the storm was imminent, all hope for our safety was now taken away. [27:21] And after they had fasted for a long time, Paul, standing in their midst, said: “Certainly, men, you should have listened to me and not set out from Crete, so as to cause this injury and loss. [27:22] And now, let me persuade you to be courageous in soul. For there shall be no loss of life among you, but only of the ship. [27:23] For an Angel of God, who is assigned to me and whom I serve, stood beside me this night, [27:24] saying: ‘Do not be afraid, Paul! It is necessary for you to stand before Caesar. And behold, God has given to you all those who are sailing with you.’ [27:25] Because of this, men, be courageous in soul. For I trust God that this will happen in the same way that it has been told to me. [27:26] But it is necessary for us to arrive at a certain island.” [27:27] Then, after the fourteenth night arrived, as we were navigating in the sea of Adria, about the middle of the night, the sailors believed that they saw some portion of the land. [27:28] And upon dropping a weight, they found a depth of twenty paces. And some distance from there, they found a depth of fifteen paces. [27:29] Then, fearing that we might happen upon rough places, they cast four anchors out of the stern, and they were hoping for daylight to arrive soon. [27:30] Yet truly, the sailors were seeking a way to flee from the ship, for they had lowered a lifeboat into the sea, on the pretext that they were attempting to cast anchors from the bow of the ship. [27:31] So Paul said to the centurion and to the soldiers, “Unless these men remain in the ship, you will not be able to be saved.” [27:32] Then the soldiers cut the ropes to the lifeboat, and they allowed it to fall. [27:33] And when it began to be light, Paul requested that they all take food, saying: “This is the fourteenth day that you have been waiting and continuing to fast, taking nothing. [27:34] For this reason, I beg you to accept food for the sake of your health. For not a hair from the head of any of you shall perish.” [27:35] And when he had said these things, taking bread, he gave thanks to God in the sight of them all. And when he had broken it, he began to eat. [27:36] Then they all became more peaceful in soul. And they also took food. [27:37] Truly, we were two hundred and seventy-six souls on the ship. [27:38] And having been nourished with food, they lightened the ship, casting the wheat into the sea. [27:39] And when day had arrived, they did not recognize the landscape. Yet truly, they caught sight of a certain narrow inlet having a shore, into which they thought it might be possible to force the ship. [27:40] And when they had taken up the anchors, they committed themselves to the sea, at the same time loosing the restraints of the rudders. And so, raising the mainsail to the gusting wind, they pressed on toward the shore. [27:41] And when we happened upon a place open to two seas, they ran the ship aground. And indeed, the bow, being immobilized, remained fixed, but truly the stern was broken by the violence of the sea. [27:42] Then the soldiers were in agreement that they should kill the prisoners, lest anyone, after escaping by swimming, might flee. [27:43] But the centurion, wanting to save Paul, prohibited it from being done. And he ordered those who were able to swim to jump in first, and to escape, and to get to the land. [27:44] And as for the others, some they carried on boards, and others on those things that belonged to the ship. And so it happened that every soul escaped to the land.
him, they changed their minds and were saying that he was a god. {28:7} Now among these places were estates owned by the ruler of the island, named Publius. And he, taking us in, showed us kind hospitality for three days. {28:8} Then it happened that the father of Publius lay ill with a fever and with dysentery. Paul entered to him, and when he had prayed and had laid his hands on him, he saved him. {28:9} When this had been done, all who had diseases on the island approached and were cured. {28:10} And then they also presented us with many honors. And when we were ready to set sail, they gave us whatever we needed. {28:11} And so, after three months, we sailed in a ship from Alexandria, whose name was ‘the Castors,’ and which had wintered at the island. {28:12} And when we had arrived at Syracuse, we were delayed there for three days. {28:13} From there, sailing close to the shore, we arrived at Rhegium. And after one day, with the south wind blowing, we arrived on the second day at Puteoli. {28:14} There, after locating the brothers, we were asked to remain with them for seven days. And then we went on to Rome. {28:15} And there, when the brothers had heard of us, they went to meet us as far as the Forum of Appius and the Three Taverns. And when Paul had seen them, giving thanks to God, he took courage. {28:16} And when we had arrived at Rome, Paul was given permission to stay by himself, with a soldier to guard him. {28:17} And after the third day, he called together the leaders of the Jews. And when they had convened, he said to them: “Noble brothers, I have done nothing against the people, nor against the customs of the fathers, yet I was delivered as a prisoner from Jerusalem into the hands of the Romans. {28:18} And after they held a hearing about me, they would have released me, because there was no case for death against me. {28:19} But with the Jews speaking against me, I was constrained to appeal to Caesar, though it was not as if I had any kind of accusation against my own nation. {28:20} And so, because of this, I requested to see you and to speak to you. For it is because of the hope of Israel that I am encircled with this chain.” {28:21} But they said to him: “We have not received letters about you from Judea, nor have any of the other new arrivals among the brothers reported or spoken anything evil against you. {28:22} But we are asking to hear your opinions from you, for concerning this sect, we know that it is being spoken against everywhere.” {28:23} And when they had appointed a day for him, very many persons went to him at his guest quarters. And he discoursed, testifying to the kingdom of God, and persuading them about Jesus, using the law of Moses and the Prophets, from morning until evening. {28:24} And some believed the things that he was saying, yet others did not believe. {28:25} And when they could not agree among themselves, they departed, while Paul was speaking this one word: “How well did the Holy Spirit speak to our fathers through the prophet Isaiah, {28:26} saying: ‘Go to this people and say to them: Hearing, you shall hear and not understand, and seeing, you shall see and not perceive.’ {28:27} For the heart of this people has grown dull, and they have listened with reluctant ears, and they have closed their eyes tightly, lest perhaps they might see with the eyes, and hear with the ears, and understand with the heart, and so be converted, and I would heal them.’ {28:28} Therefore, let it be known to you, that this salvation of God has been sent to the Gentiles, and they shall listen to it.” {28:29} And when he had said these things, the Jews went away from him, though they still had many questions among themselves. {28:30} Then he remained for two whole years in his own rented lodgings. And he received all who went in to him, {28:31} preaching the kingdom of God and teaching the things which are from the Lord Jesus Christ, with all faithfulness, without prohibition.

 The Letter to the Romans **

[Romans 1] {1:1} Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ, called as an Apostle, separated for the Gospel of God, {1:2} which he had promised beforehand, through his Prophets, in the Holy Scriptures, {1:3} about his Son, who was made for him from the offspring of David according to the flesh, {1:4} the Son of God, who was predestined in virtue according to the Spirit of sanctification from the resurrection of the dead, our Lord Jesus Christ, {1:5} through whom we have received grace and Apostleship, for the sake of his name, for the obedience of faith among all the Gentiles, {1:6} from whom you also have been called by Jesus Christ: {1:7} To all who are at Rome, the beloved of God, called as saints. Grace to you, and peace, from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ. {1:8} Certainly, I give thanks to my God, through Jesus Christ, first for all of you, because your faith is being announced throughout the entire world. {1:9} For God is my witness, whom I serve in my spirit by the Gospel of his Son, that without ceasing I have kept a remembrance of you {1:10} always in my prayers, pleading that in some way, at some time, I may have a prosperous journey, within the will of God, to come to you. {1:11} For I long to see you, so that I may impart to you a certain spiritual grace to strengthen you, {1:12} specifically, to be consoled together with you through that which is mutual: your faith and mine. {1:13} But I want you to know, brothers, that I have often intended to come to you, (though I have been hindered even to the present time) so that I might obtain some fruit among you also, just as also among the other Gentiles. {1:14} To the Greeks and to the uncivilized, to the wise and to the foolish, I am in debt. {1:15} So within me there is a prompting to evangelize to you also who are at Rome. {1:16} For I am not ashamed of the Gospel. For it is the power of God unto salvation for all believers, the Jew first, and the Greek. {1:17} For the justice of God is revealed within it, by faith unto faith, just as it was written: “For the just one lives by faith.” {1:18} For the wrath of God is revealed from heaven over every impiety and injustice among those men who fend off the truth of God with injustice. {1:19} For what is known about God is manifest in them. For God has manifested it to them. {1:20} For unseen things about him have been made conspicuous, since the creation of the world, being understood by the things that were made; likewise his everlasting virtue and divinity, so much so that they have no excuse. {1:21} For although they had known God, they did not glorify God, nor give thanks. Instead, they became weakened in their thoughts, and their foolish heart was obscured. {1:22} For, while proclaiming themselves to be wise, they became foolish. {1:23} And they exchanged the glory of the incorruptible God for the likeness of an image of corruptible man, and of flying things, and of four-legged beasts, and of serpents. {1:24} For this reason, God handed them over to the desires of their own heart for impurity, so that they afflicted their own bodies with indignities among themselves. {1:25} And they exchanged the truth of God for a lie. And they worshiped and served the creature, rather than the Creator, who is blessed for all eternity. Amen. {1:26} Because of this, God handed them over to shameful passions. For example, their females have exchanged the natural use of the body for a use which is against nature. {1:27} And similarly, the males also, abandoning the natural use of females, have burned in their desires for one another: males doing with males what is disgraceful, and receiving within themselves the recompense that necessarily results from their error. {1:28} And since they did not prove to have God by knowledge, God handed them over to a morally depraved way of thinking, so that they might do those things which are not fitting: {1:29} having been completely filled with all iniquity, malice, fornication, avarice, wickedness; full of envy, murder, contention, deceit, spite, gossiping; {1:30} slanderous, hateful toward God, abusive, arrogant, self-exalting, devisers of evil, disobedient to parents, {1:31} foolish, disorderly; without affection, without fidelity, without mercy. {1:32} And these, though they had known the justice of God, did not understand that those who act in such a manner are deserving of death, and not only those who do these things, but also those who consent to what is done.

[Romans 2] {2:1} For this reason, O man, each one of you who judges is inexcusable. For by that which you judge another, you condemn yourself. For you do the same things that you judge. {2:2} For we know that the judgment of God is in accord with truth against those who do such things. {2:3} But, O man, when you judge those who do such things as you yourself also do, do you think that you will escape the judgment of God? {2:4} Or do you despise the riches of his goodness and patience and forbearance? Do you not know that the kindness of God is calling you to repentance? {2:5} But in accord with your hard and impenitent heart, you store up wrath for yourself, unto the day of wrath and of revelation by the just judgment of God. {2:6} For he will render to each one according to his works: {2:7} To those who, in accord with patient good works, seek glory and honor and incorruption, certainly, he will render eternal life. {2:8} But to those who are contentious and who do not acquiesce to the truth, but instead trust in iniquity, he will render wrath and indignation. {2:9} Tribulation and anguish are upon every soul of man that works evil: the Jew first, and also the Greek. {2:10} But glory and honor and peace are for all who do what is good: the Jew first, and also the Greek. {2:11} For there is no favoritism with God. {2:12} For whoever had sinned without the law, will perish without the law. And whoever had sinned in the law, will be judged by the law. {2:13} For it is not the hearers of the law who are just before God, but rather it is the doers of the law who shall be justified. {2:14} For when the Gentiles, who do not have the law, do by nature those things which are of the law, such persons, not having the law, are a law unto themselves. {2:15} For they reveal the work of the law written in their hearts, while their conscience renders testimony about them, and their thoughts within themselves also accuse or even defend them, {2:16} unto the day when God shall judge the hidden things of men, through Jesus Christ, according to my Gospel. {2:17} But if you are called by name a Jew, and you rest upon the law, and you find glory in God, {2:18} and you have known his will, and you demonstrate the more useful things, having been instructed by the law: {2:19} you become confident within yourself that you are a guide to the blind, a light to those who are in darkness, {2:20} an instructor to the foolish, a teacher to children, because you have a type of knowledge and truth in the law. {2:21} As a result, you teach others, but you do not teach yourself. You preach that men should not steal, but you yourself steal. {2:22} You speak against adultery, but you commit adultery. You abominate idols, but you commit sacrilege. {2:23} You would glory in the law, but through a betrayal of the law you dishonor God. {2:24} (For because of you the name of God is being blasphemed among the Gentiles, just as it was written.) {2:25} Certainly, circumcision is beneficial, if you observe the law. But if you are a betrayer of the law, your circumcision becomes uncircumcision. {2:26} And so, if the uncircumcised keep the justices of the law, shall not this lack of circumcision be counted as circumcision? {2:27} And that which is by nature uncircumcised, if it fulfills the law, should it not judge you, who by the letter and by circumcision are a betrayer of the law? {2:28} For a Jew is not he who seems so outwardly. Neither is circumcision that which seems so outwardly, in the flesh. {2:29} But a Jew is he who is so inwardly. And circumcision of the heart is in the spirit, not in the letter. For its praise is not of men, but of God.

[Romans 3] {3:1} So then, what more is the Jew, or what is the usefulness of circumcision? {3:2} Much in every way: First of all, certainly, because the eloquence of God was entrusted to them. {3:3} But what if some of them have not believed? Shall their unbelief nullify the faith of God? Let it not be so! {3:4} For God is truthful, but every man is deceitful; just as it was written: “Therefore, you are justified by the works of the law. But if you are a betrayer of the law, your circumcision becomes uncircumcision. {3:5} And so, if the uncircumcised keep the justices of the law, shall not this lack of circumcision be counted as circumcision? {3:6} (I am speaking in human terms.) Let it not be so! Otherwise, how would God judge this world? {3:7} For if the truth of God has abounded, through my falseness, unto his glory, why should I still be judged as such a sinner? {3:8} And should we not do evil, so that good may result? For so we have been slandered, and so some have claimed we said; their condemnation is just. {3:9} What is next? Should we try to excel ahead of them? By no means! For we have accused all Jews and Greeks to be under sin, {3:10} just as it was written: “There is no one who is just. {3:11} There is no one who understands. There is no one who seeks God. {3:12} All have gone astray; together they have become useless. There is no one who does good; there is not even one. {3:13} Their throat is an open sepulcher. With their tongues, they have been acting deceitfully. The venom of asps is under their lips. {3:14} Their mouth is full of curses and bitterness. {3:15} Their feet are swift to shed blood. {3:16} Grief and unhappiness are in their ways. {3:17} And the way of peace they have not known. {3:18} There is no fear of God before their eyes.” {3:19} But we know that whatever the law speaks, it speaks to those who are in the law, so that every mouth may be silenced and the entire world may be subject to God. {3:20} For in his presence no flesh shall be justified by the works of the law. For knowledge of sin is through the law. {3:21} But now, without the law, the justice of God, to which the law and the prophets have testified, has been made manifest. (3:22) And the justice of God, though the faith of Jesus Christ, is in all those and over all those who believe in him. For there is no distinction. (3:23) For all have sinned and all are in need of the glory of God. (3:24) We have been justified freely by his grace through the redemption that is in Christ Jesus, (3:25) whom God has offered as a propitiation, through faith in his blood, to reveal his justice for the remission of the former offenses, (3:26) and by the forbearance of God, to reveal his justice in this time, so that he himself might be both the Just One and the Justifier of anyone who is of the faith of Jesus Christ. (3:27) So then, where is your self-exaltation? It is excluded. Through what law? That of works? No, but rather through the law of faith. (3:28) For we judge a man to be justified by faith, without the works of the law. (3:29) Is God of the Jews only and not also of the Gentiles? On the contrary, of the Gentiles also. (3:30) For One is the God who justifies circumcision by faith and uncircumcision through faith. (3:31) Are we then destroying the law through faith? Let it not be so! Instead, we are making the law stand.

[Romans 4] (4:1) So then, what shall we say that Abraham had achieved, who is our father according to the flesh? (4:2) For if Abraham was justified by works, he would have glory, but not with God. (4:3) For what does Scripture say? “Abram believed God, and it was reckoned to him unto justice.” (4:4) But for he who works, wages are not accounted according to grace, but according to debt. (4:5) Yet truly, for he who does not work, but who believes in him who justifies the impious, his faith is reckoned unto justice, according to the purpose of the grace of God. (4:6) Similarly, David also declares the blessedness of a man, to whom God brings justice without works: (4:7) “Blessed are they whose iniquities have been forgiven and whose sins have been covered. (4:8) Blessed is the man to whom the Lord has not imputed sin.” (4:9) Does this blessedness, then, remain only in the circumcised, or is it even in the uncircumcised? For we say that faith was reckoned to Abraham unto justice. (4:10) But then how was it reckoned? In circumcision or in uncircumcision? Not in circumcision, but in uncircumcision. (4:11) For he received the sign of circumcision as a symbol of the justice of that faith which exists apart from circumcision, so that he might be the father of all those who believe while uncircumcised, so that it might also be reckoned to them unto justice, (4:12) and he might be the father of circumcision, not only for those who are of circumcision, but even for those who follow the footsteps of that faith which is in the uncircumcision of our father Abraham. (4:13) For the Promise to Abraham, and to his posterity, that he would inherit the world, was not through the law, but through the justice of faith. (4:14) For if those who are of the law are the heirs, then faith becomes empty and the Promise is abolished. (4:15) For the law works unto wrath. And where there is no law, there is no law-breaking. (4:16) Because of this, it is from faith according to grace that the Promise is ensured for all posterity, not only for those who are of the law, but also for those who are of the faith of Abraham, who is the father of us all before God, (4:17) in whom he believed, who revives the dead and who calls those things that do not exist into existence. For it is written: “I have established you as the father of many nations.” (4:18) And he believed, with a hope beyond hope, so that he might become the father of many nations, according to what was said to him: “Thus shall your posterity shall be.” (4:19) And he was not weakened in faith, nor did he consider his own body to be dead (though he was then almost one hundred years old), nor the womb of Sarah to be dead. (4:20) And then, in the Promise of God, he did not hesitate out of distrust, but instead he was strengthened in faith, giving glory to God, (4:21) knowing most fully that whatever God has promised, he is also able to accomplish. (4:22) And for this reason, it was reckoned to him unto justice. (4:23) Now this has been written, that it was reckoned to him unto justice, not only for his sake, (4:24) but also for our sake. For the same shall be reckoned to us, if we believe in him who raised up our Lord Jesus Christ from the dead, (4:25) who was handed over because of our offenses, and who rose again for our justification.

[Romans 5] (5:1) Therefore, having been justified by faith, let us be at peace with God, through our Lord Jesus Christ. (5:2) For through him we also have access by faith to this grace, in which we stand firm, and to glory, in the hope of the glory of the sons of God. (5:3) And not only that, but we also find glory in tribulation, knowing that tribulation exercises patience, (5:4) and patience leads to proving, yet truly proving leads to hope, (5:5) but hope is not unfounded, because the love of God is poured forth in our hearts through the Holy Spirit, who has been given to us. (5:6) Yet why did Christ, while we were still infirm, at the proper time, suffer death for the impious? (5:7) Now someone might barely be willing to die for the sake of justice, for example, perhaps someone might dare to die for the sake of a good man. (5:8) But God demonstrates his love for us in that, while we were yet sinners, at the proper time, (5:9) Christ died for us. Therefore, having been justified now by his blood, all the more so shall we be saved from wrath through him. (5:10) For if we were reconciled to God through the death of his Son, while we were still enemies, all the more so, having been reconciled, shall we be saved by his life. (5:11) And not only that, but we also glory in God through our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom we have now received reconciliation. (5:12) Therefore, just as through one man sin entered into this world, and through sin, death; so also death was transferred to all men, to all who have sinned. (5:13) For even before the law, sin was in the world, but sin was not imputed while the law did not exist. (5:14) Yet death reigned from Adam until Moses, even in those who have not sinned, in the likeness of the transgression of Adam, who is a figure of him who was to come. (5:15) But the gift is not entirely like the offense. For though by the offense of one, many died, yet much more so, by the grace of one, Jesus Christ, has the grace and gift of God abounded to many. (5:16) And the sin through one is not entirely like the gift. For certainly, the judgment of one was unto condemnation, but the grace toward many offenses is unto justification. (5:17) For though, by the one offense, death reigned through one, yet so much more so shall those who receive an abundance of grace, both of the gift and of justice, reign in life through the one Jesus Christ. (5:18) Therefore, just as through the offense of one, all men fell under condemnation, so also through the justice of one, all men fall under justification unto life. (5:19) For, just as through the disobedience of one man, many were established as sinners, so also through the obedience of one man, many shall be established as just. 5:20 Now the law entered in such a way that offenses would abound. But where offenses were abundant, grace was superabundant. 5:21 So then, just as sin has reigned unto death, so also may grace reign through justice unto eternal life, through Jesus Christ our Lord.

[Romans 6] 6:1 So what shall we say? Should we remain in sin, so that grace may abound? 6:2 Let it not be so! For how can we who have died to sin still live in sin? 6:3 Do you not know that those of us who have been baptized in Christ Jesus have been baptized into his death? 6:4 For through baptism we have been buried with him into death, so that, in the manner that Christ rose from the dead, by the glory of the Father, so may we also walk in the newness of life. 6:5 For if we have been planted together, in the likeness of his death, so shall we also be, in the likeness of his resurrection. 6:6 For we know this: that our former selves have been crucified together with him, so that the body which is of sin may be destroyed, and moreover, so that we may no longer serve sin. 6:7 For he who has died has been justified from sin. 6:8 Now if we have died with Christ, we believe that we shall also live together with Christ. 6:9 For we know that Christ, in rising up from the dead, can no longer die: death no longer has dominion over him. 6:10 For in as much as he died for sin, he died once. But in as much as he lives, he lives for God. 6:11 And so, you should consider yourselves to be certainly dead to sin, and to be living for God in Christ Jesus our Lord. 6:12 Therefore, let not sin reign in your mortal body, such that you would obey its desires. 6:13 Nor should you offer the parts of your body as instruments of iniquity for sin. Instead, offer yourselves to God, as if you were living after death, and offer the parts of your body as instruments of justice for God. 6:14 For sin should not have dominion over you. For you are not under the law, but under grace. 6:15 What is next? Should we sin because we are not under the law, but under grace? Let it not be so! 6:16 Do you not know to whom you are offering yourselves as servants under obedience? You are the servants of whomever you obey: whether of sin, unto death, or of obedience, unto justice. 6:17 But thanks be to God that, though you used to be the servants of sin, now you have been obedient from the heart to the very form of the doctrine into which you have been received. 6:18 And having been freed from sin, we have become servants of justice. 6:19 I am speaking in human terms because of the infirmity of your flesh. For just as you offered the parts of your body to serve impurity and iniquity, for the sake of iniquity, so also have you now yielded the parts of your body to serve justice, for the sake of sanctification. 6:20 For though you were once the servants of sin, you have become the children of justice. 6:21 But what fruit did you hold at that time, in those things about which you are now ashamed? For the end of those things is death. 6:22 Yet truly, having been freed now from sin, and having been made servants of God, you hold your fruit in sanctification, and truly its end is eternal life. 6:23 For the wages of sin is death. But the free gift of God is eternal life in Christ Jesus our Lord.

[Romans 7] 7:1 Or do you not know, brothers, (now I am speaking to those who know the law) that the law has dominion over a man only so long as he lives? 7:2 For example, a woman who is subject to a husband is obligated by the law while her husband lives. But when her husband has died, she is released from the law of her husband. 7:3 Therefore, while her husband lives, if she has been with another man, she should be called an adulteress. But when her husband has died, she is freed from the law of her husband, such that, if she has been with another man, she is not an adulteress. 7:4 And so, my brothers, you also have become dead to the law, through the body of Christ, so that you may be another one who has risen from the dead, in order that we may bear fruit for God. 7:5 For when we were in the flesh, the passions of sins, which were under the law, operated within our bodies, so as to bear fruit unto death. 7:6 But now we have been released from the law of death, by which we were being held, so that now we may serve with a renewed spirit, and not in the old way, by the letter. 7:7 What should we say next? Is the law sin? Let it not be so! But I do not know sin, except through the law. For example, I would not have known about coveting, unless the law said: “You shall not covet.” 7:8 But sin, receiving an opportunity through the commandment, wrought in me all manner of coveting. For apart from the law, sin was dead. 7:9 Now I lived for some time apart from the law. But when the commandment had arrived, sin was revived, 7:10 and I died. And the commandment, which was unto life, was itself found to be unto death for me. 7:11 For sin, receiving an opportunity through the commandment, seduced me, and, through the law, sin killed me. 7:12 And so, the law itself is indeed holy, and the commandment is holy and just and good. 7:13 Then was what is good made into death for me? Let it not be so! But rather sin, in order that it might be known as sin by what is good, wrought death in me; so that sin, through the commandment, might become sinful beyond measure. 7:14 For we know that the law is spiritual. But I am carnal, having been sold under sin. 7:15 For I do things that I do not understand. For I do not do the good that I want to do. But the evil that I hate is what I do. 7:16 So, when I do what I do not want to do, I am in agreement with the law, that the law is good. 7:17 But I am then acting not according to the law, but according to the sin which lives within me. 7:18 For I know that what is good does not live within me, that is, within my flesh. For the willingness to do good lies close to me, but the carrying out of that good, I cannot reach. 7:19 For I do not do the good that I want to do. But instead, I do the evil that I do not want to do. 7:20 Now if I do what I am not willing to do, it is no longer I who am doing it, but the sin which lives within me. 7:21 And so, I discover the law, by wanting to do good within myself, though evil lies close beside me. 7:22 For I am delighted with the law of God, according to the inner man. 7:23 But I perceive another law within my body, fighting against the law of my mind, and captivating me with the law of sin which is in my body. 7:24 Unhappy man that I am, who will free me from this body of death? 7:25 The grace of God, by Jesus Christ our Lord! Therefore, I serve the law of God with my own mind; but with the flesh, the law of sin.

[Romans 8] 8:1 Therefore, there is now no condemnation for those who are in Christ Jesus, who are not walking
For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus has freed me from the law of sin and death.

For though this was impossible under the law, because it was weakened by the flesh, God sent his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh and because of sin, in order to condemn sin in the flesh, so that the justification of the law might be fulfilled in us. For we are not walking according to the flesh, but according to the spirit.

For those who are in agreement with the flesh are mindful of the things of the flesh. But those who are in agreement with the spirit are mindful of the things of the spirit.

The prudence of the flesh is death. But the prudence of the spirit is life and peace.

And the wisdom of the flesh is inimical to God. For it is not subject to the law of God, nor can it be.

So those who are in the flesh are not able to please God.

And you are not in the flesh, but in the spirit, if it is true that the Spirit of God lives within you. But if anyone does not have the Spirit of Christ, he does not belong to him.

But if Christ is within you, then the body is indeed dead, concerning sin, but the spirit truly lives, because of justification.

But if the Spirit of him who raised up Jesus from the dead lives within you, then he who raised up Jesus Christ from the dead shall also enliven your mortal bodies, by means of his Spirit living within you.

Therefore, brothers, we are not debtors to the flesh, so as to live according to the flesh.

If you live according to the flesh, you will die. But if, by the Spirit, you mortify the deeds of the flesh, you shall live.

For all those who are led by the Spirit of God are the sons of God.

And you have not received, again, a spirit of servitude in fear, but you have received the Spirit of the adoption of sons, in whom we cry out: “Abba, Father!”

For the Spirit himself renders testimony to our spirit that we are the sons of God.

But if we are sons, then we are also heirs: certainly heirs of God, but also co-heirs with Christ, yet in such a way that, if we suffer with him, we shall also be glorified with him.

For I consider that the sufferings of this time are not worthy to be compared with that future glory which shall be revealed in us.

For the anticipation of the creature anticipates the revelation of the sons of God.

For the creature was made subject to emptiness, not willingly, but for the sake of the One who made it subject, unto hope.

For the creature itself shall also be delivered from the servitude of corruption, into the liberty of the glory of the sons of God.

For we know that every creature groans inwardly, as if giving birth, even until now; and not only these, but also ourselves, since we hold the first-fruits of the Spirit. For we also groan within ourselves, anticipating our adoption as the sons of God, and the redemption of our body.

For we have been saved by hope. But a hope which is seen is not hope. But when a man sees something, why would he hope?

But since we hope for what we do not see, we wait with patience.

And similarly, the Spirit also helps our weakness. For we do not know how to pray as we ought, but the Spirit himself asks on our behalf with ineffable sighing.

And he who examines hearts knows what the Spirit seeks, because he asks on behalf of the saints in accordance with God.

And we know that, for those who love God, all things work together unto good, for those who, in accordance with his purpose, are called to be saints.

For those whom he foreknew, he also predestinated, in conformity with the image of his Son, so that he might be the Firstborn among many brothers.

And those whom he predestinated, he also called. And those whom he called, he also justified. And those whom he justified, he also glorified.

So, what should we say about these things? If God is for us, who is against us?

He who did not spare even his own Son, but handed him over for the sake of us all, how could he not also, with him, have given us all things?

Who will make an accusation against the elect of God? God is the One who justifies;

who is the one who condemns? Christ Jesus who has died, and who has indeed also risen again, is at the right hand of God, and even now he intercedes for us.

Then who will separate us from the love of Christ? Tribulation? Or anguish? Or famine? Or nakedness? Or peril? Or persecution? Or the sword?

For it is as it has been written: “For your sake, we are being put to death all day long. We are being treated like sheep for the slaughter.”

But in all these things we overcome, because of him who has loved us.

For I am certain that neither death, nor life, nor Angels, nor Principalities, nor Powers, nor the present things, nor the future things, nor strength, nor the heights, nor the depths, nor any other created thing, will be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord.

me: “Then why does he still find fault? For who can resist his will?” {9:20} O man, who are you to question God? How can the thing that has been formed say to the One who formed him: “Why have you made me this way?” {9:21} And does not the potter have the authority over the clay to make, from the same material, indeed, one vessel unto honor, yet truly another unto disgrace? {9:22} What if God, wanting to reveal his wrath and to make his power known, endured, with much patience, vessels deserving wrath, fit to be destroyed, {9:23} so that he might reveal the wealth of his glory, within these vessels of mercy, which he has prepared unto glory? {9:24} And so it is with those of us whom he has also called, not only from among the Jews, but even from among the Gentiles, {9:25} just as he says in Hosea: “I will call those who were not my people, ‘my people,’ and she who was not beloved, ‘beloved,’ and she who had not obtained mercy, ‘one who has obtained mercy.’”{9:26} And this shall be: in the place where it was said to them, ‘You are not my people,’ there they shall be called the sons of the living God.” {9:27} And Isaiah cried out on behalf of Israel: “When the number of the sons of Israel is like the sand of the sea, a remnant shall be saved. {9:28} For he shall complete his word, while abbreviating it out of equity. For the Lord shall accomplish a brief word upon the earth.” {9:29} And it is just as Isaiah predicted: “Unless the Lord of hosts had bequeathed offspring, we would have become like Sodom, and we would have been made similar to Gomorrah.” {9:30} What should we say next? That the Gentiles who did not follow justice have attained justice, even the justice that is of faith. {9:31} Yet truly, Israel, though following the law of justice, has not arrived at the law of justice. {9:32} Why is this? Because they did not seek it from faith, but as if it were from works. For they stumbled over a stumbling block, {9:33} just as it was written: “Behold, I am placing a stumbling block in Zion, and a rock of scandal. But whoever believes in him shall not be confounded.”

[Romans 11] {11:1} Therefore, I say: Has God driven away his people? Let it not be so! For I, too, am an Israelite of the offspring of Abraham, from the tribe of Benjamin. {11:2} God has not driven away his people, whom he foreknew. And do you not know what Scripture says in Elijah, how he calls upon God against Israel? {11:3} “Lord, they have slain your Prophets. They have overturned your Altars. And I alone remain, and they are seeking my life.” {11:4} But what is the Divine response to him? “I have retained for myself seven thousand men, who have not bent their knees before Baal.” {11:5} Therefore, in the same way, again in this time, there is a remnant that has been saved in accord with the choice of grace. {11:6} And if it is by grace, then it is not now by works; otherwise grace is no longer free. {11:7} What is next? What Israel was seeking, he has not obtained. But the elect have obtained it. And truly, these others have been blinded, {11:8} just as it was written: “God has given them a spirit of reluctance: eyes that do not perceive, and ears that do not hear, even until this very day.” {11:9} And David says: “Let their table become like a snare, and a deception, and a scandal, and a retribution for them. {11:10} Let their eyes be obscured, so that they may not see, and so that they may bow down their backs always.” {11:11} Therefore, I say: Have they stumbled in such a way that they should fall? Let it not be so! Instead, by their offense, salvation is with the Gentiles, so that they may be a rival to them. {11:12} Now if their offense is the riches of the world, and if their diminution is the riches of the Gentiles, how much more is their fullness? {11:13} For I say to you Gentiles: Certainly, as long as I am an Apostle to the Gentiles, I will honor my ministry, {11:14} in such a way that I might provoke to rivalry those who are my own flesh, and so that I may save some of them. {11:15} For if their loss is for the reconcilation of the world, what could their return be for, except life out of death? {11:16} For if the first-fruit has been sanctified, so also has the whole. And if the root is holy, so also are the branches. {11:17} And if some of the branches are broken, and if you, being a wild olive branch, are grafted on to them, and you become a partaker of the root and of the fatness of the olive tree, {11:18} do not glorify yourself above [Romans 10] {10:1} Brothers, certainly the will of my heart, and my prayer to God, is for them unto salvation. {10:2} For I offer testimony to them, that they have a zeal for God, but... the branches. For though you glory, you do not support the root, but the root supports you. {11:19} Therefore, you would say: The branches were broken off, so that I might be grafted on. {11:20} Well enough. They were broken off because of unbelief. But you stand on faith. So do not choose to savor what is exalted, but instead be afraid. {11:21} For if God has not spared the natural branches, perhaps also he might not spare you. {11:22} So then, notice the goodness and the severity of God. Certainly, toward those who have fallen, there is severity; but toward you, there is the goodness of God, if you remain in goodness. Otherwise, you also will be cut off. {11:23} Moreover, if they do not remain in unbelief, they will be grafted on. For God is able to grafted them on again. {11:24} So if you have been cut off from the wild olive tree, which is natural to you, and, contrary to nature, you are grafted on to the good olive tree, how much more shall those who are the natural branches be grafted on to their own olive tree? {11:25} For I do not want you to be ignorant, brothers, of this mystery (lest you seem wise only to yourselves) that a certain blindness has occurred in Israel, until the fullness of the Gentiles has arrived. {11:26} And in this way, all of Israel may be saved, just as it was written: “From Zion shall arrive he who delivers, and he shall turn impiety away from Jacob. {11:27} And this will be my covenant for them, when I will take away their sins.” {11:28} Certainly, according to the Gospel, they are enemies for your sake. But according to the election, they are most beloved for the sake of the fathers. {11:29} For the gifts and the call of God are without regret. {11:30} And just as you also, in times past, did not believe in God, but now you have obtained mercy because of their unbelief, {11:31} so also have these now not believed, for your mercy, so that they might obtain mercy also. {11:32} For God has enclosed everyone in unbelief, so that he may have mercy on everyone. {11:33} Oh, the depths of the richness of the wisdom and knowledge of God! How incomprehensible are his judgments, and how unsearchable are his ways! {11:34} For who has known the mind of the Lord? Or who has been his counselor? {11:35} Or who first gave to him, so that repayment would be owed? {11:36} For from him, and through him, and in him are all things. To him is glory, for all eternity. Amen.

[Romans 12] {12:1} And so, I beg you, brothers, by the mercy of God, that you offer your bodies as a living sacrifice, holy and pleasing to God, with the subservience of your mind. {12:2} And do not choose to be conformed to this age, but instead be afraid. {12:3} For I say, through the grace that has been given to me, that a certain blindness has occurred in Israel, until the fullness of the Gentiles has arrived. {12:4} For just as, to all who are among you: Taste no more than it is necessary to taste, but taste unto sobriety and just as God has distributed a share of the faith to each one. {12:4} For just as, within one body, we have many parts, though all the parts do not have the same role, {12:5} so also we, being many, are one body in Christ, and each one is a part, the one of the other. {12:6} And we each have different gifts, according to the grace that has been given to us: whether prophecy, in agreement with the reasonableness of faith; {12:7} or ministry, in ministering; or he who teaches, in doctrine; {12:8} he who exhorts, in exhortation; he who gives, in simplicity; he who governs, in solicitude; he who shows mercy, in cheerfulness. {12:9} Let love be without falseness: hating evil, clinging to what is good, {12:10} loving one another with fraternal charity, surpassing one another in honor: {12:11} in solicitude, not lazy; in spirit, fervent; serving the Lord; {12:12} in hope, rejoicing; in tribulation, enduring; in prayer, ever-willing; {12:13} in the difficulties of the saints, sharing; in hospitality, attentive. {12:14} Bless those who are persecuting you: bless, and do not curse. {12:15} Rejoice with those who are rejoicing. Weep with those who are weeping. {12:16} Be of the same mind toward one another: not savoring what is exalted, but consenting in humility. Do not choose to seem wise to yourself. {12:17} Render to no one harm for harm. Provide good things, not only in the sight of God, but also in the sight of all men. {12:18} If it is possible, in so far as you are able, be at peace with all men. {12:19} Do not defend yourselves, dearest ones. Instead, step aside from wrath. For it is written: “Vengeance is mine. I shall give retribution, says the Lord.” {12:20} So if an enemy is hungry, feed him; if he is thirsty, give him a drink. For in doing so, you will heap burning coals upon his head. {12:21} Do not allow evil to prevail, instead prevail over evil by means of goodness.
But accept those who are weak in faith, without disputing about ideas. For one person believes that he may eat all things, but if another is weak, let him eat plants. He who eats should not despise him who does not eat. And he who does not eat should not judge him who eats. For God has accepted him. Who are you to judge the servant of another? He stands or falls by his own Lord. But he shall stand. For God is able to make him stand.

For one person discerns one age from the next. But another discerns unto every age. Let each one increase according to his own mind. He who understands the age, understands for the Lord. And he who eats, eats for the Lord; for he gives thanks to God. And he who does not eat, does not eat for the Lord, and he gives thanks to God.

For none of us lives for himself, and none of us dies for himself. For if we live, we live for the Lord, and if we die, we die for the Lord. Therefore, whether we live or die, we belong to the Lord.

For Christ died and rose again for this purpose: that he might be the ruler of both the dead and the living. So then, why do you judge your brother? Or why do you despise your brother? For we shall stand all before the judgment seat of Christ. For it is written: "As I live, says the Lord, every knee shall bend to me, and every tongue shall confess to God." And so, each one of us shall offer an explanation of himself to God.

Therefore, we should no longer judge one another. Instead, judge this to a greater extent: that you should not place an obstacle before your brother, nor lead him astray. I know, with confidence in the Lord Jesus, that nothing is unclean in and of itself. But to him who considers anything to be unclean, it is unclean to him.

For your brother is grieved because of your food, you are not now walking according to love. Do not allow your food to destroy him for whom Christ died. Therefore, what is good for us should not be a cause of blasphemy.

For the kingdom of God is not food and drink, but rather justice and peace and joy, in the Holy Spirit. For he who serves Christ in this, pleases God and is proven before men.

And so, let us pursue the things that are of peace, and let us keep to the things that are for the edification of one another. Do not be willing to destroy the work of God because of food. Certainly, all things are clean. But there is harm for a man who offends by eating. It is good to refrain from eating meat and from drinking wine, and from anything by which your brother is offended, or led astray, or weakened. Do you have faith? It belongs to you, so hold it before God. Blessed is he who does not judge himself in that by which he is tested. But he who discerns, if he eats, is condemned, because it is not of faith. For all that is not of faith is sin.

But we who are stronger must bear with the feebleness of the weak, and not so as to please ourselves. Each one of you should please his neighbor unto good, for edification. For even Christ did not please himself, but as it was written: "The reproaches of those who reproached you fell upon me." For whatever was written, was written to teach us, so that, through patience and the consolation of the Scriptures, we might have hope.

So may the God of patience and solace grant you to be of one mind toward one another, in accord with Jesus Christ, so that, together with one mouth, you may glorify the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ.
refrained with you. {15:33} And may the God of peace be with you all. Amen.

The First Letter to the Corinthians

[1 Corinthians 1] {1:1} Paul, called as an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God; and Sosthenes, a brother: {1:2} to the Church of God which is at Corinth, to those sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints with all who are invoking the name of our Lord Jesus Christ in every place of theirs and of ours. {1:3} Grace and peace to you from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ. {1:4} I give thanks to my God continually for you because of the grace of God that has been given to you in Christ Jesus. {1:5} By that grace, in all things, you have become wealthy in him, in every word and in all knowledge. {1:6} And so, the testimony of Christ has been strengthened in you. {1:7} In this way, nothing is lacking to you in any grace, as you await the revelation of our Lord Jesus Christ. {1:8} And he, too, will strengthen you, even until the end, without guilt, until the day of the advent of our Lord Jesus Christ. {1:9} God is faithful. Through him, you have been called into the fellowship of his Son, Jesus Christ our Lord. {1:10} And so, I beg you, brothers, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that every one of you speak in the same way, and that there be no schisms among you. So may you become perfect, with the same mind and with the same judgment. {1:11} For it has been indicated to me, about you, my brothers, that you are those who are of the household of Narcissus, who are in the Lord. {1:12} Now I say this because each of you is saying: “Certainly, I am of Paul;” “But I am of Apollo;” “Truly, I am of Cephas;” as well as: “I am of Christ.” {1:13} Has Christ been divided? Was Paul crucified for you? Or were you baptized in the name of Paul? {1:14} I give thanks to God that I have baptized none of you, except Crispus and Gaius, {1:15} lest anyone say that you have been baptized in my name. {1:16} And I also baptized the household of Stephanus. Other than these, I do not recall if I baptized any others. {1:17} For Christ did not send me to baptize, but to evangelize: not through the wisdom of words, lest the cross of Christ become empty. {1:18} For the Word of the Cross is certainly foolishness to those who are perishing. But to those who have been saved, that is, to us, it is the power of God. {1:19} For it has been written: “I will perish the wisdom of the wise, and I will reject the discernment of the prudent.” {1:20} Where are the wise? Where are the scribes? Where are the truth-seekers of this age? Has not God made the wisdom of this world into foolishness? {1:21} For the world did not know God through wisdom, and so, in the wisdom of God, it pleased God to accomplish the salvation of believers, through the foolishness of our preaching. {1:22} For the Jews ask for signs, and the Greeks seek wisdom. {1:23} But we are preaching Christ crucified. Certainly, to the Jews, this is a scandal, and to the Gentiles, this is foolishness. {1:24} But to those who have been called, Jews as well as Greeks, the Christ is the virtue of God and the wisdom of God. {1:25} For what is foolishness to God is considered wise by men, and that which is weakness to God is considered strong by men. {1:26} So take care of your vocation, brothers. For not many are wise according to the flesh, not many are powerful, not many are noble. {1:27} But God has chosen the foolish of the world, so that he may confound the wise. And God has chosen the weak of the world, so that he may confound the strong. {1:28} And God has chosen the ignoble and contemptible of the world, those who are nothing, so that he may reduce to nothing those who are something. {1:29} So then, nothing that is of the flesh should glory in his sight. {1:30} But you are of him in Christ Jesus, who was made by God to be our wisdom and justice and sanctification and redemption. {1:31} And so, in the same way, it was written: “Whoever glories, should glory in the Lord.”

[1 Corinthians 2] {2:1} And so, brothers, when I came to you, announcing to you the testimony of Christ, I did not bring exalted words or lofty wisdom. {2:2} For I did not judge myself to know anything among you, except Jesus Christ, and him crucified. {2:3} And I was with you in weakness, and in fear, and with much trembling. {2:4} And my words and preaching were not the persuasive words of human wisdom, but were a manifestation of the Spirit and of virtue, {2:5} so that your faith would not be based on the wisdom of men, but on the virtue of God. {2:6} Now, we do speak wisdom among the perfect, yet truly, this is not the wisdom of this age, nor that of the leaders of this age, which shall be reduced to nothing. {2:7} Instead, we speak of the wisdom of God in a mystery which has been hidden, which God predestined before this age for our glory, {2:8} something that none of the leaders of this world have known. For if they had known it, they would never have crucified the Lord of glory. {2:9} But this is just as it has been written: “The eye has not seen, and the ear has not heard, nor has it entered into the heart of man, what things God has prepared for those who love him.” {2:10} But God has revealed these things to us through his Spirit. For the Spirit searches all things, even the depths of God. {2:11} And who can know the things that are of a man, except the spirit which is within that man? So also, no one knows the things which are of God, except the Spirit of God. {2:12} But we have not received the spirit of this world, but the Spirit who is of God, so that we may understand the things that have been given to us by God. {2:13} And we are also speaking of these things, not in the learned words of human wisdom, but in the doctrine of the Spirit, bringing spiritual things together with spiritual things. {2:14} But the animal nature of man does not perceive these things that are of the Spirit of God. For it is foolishness to him, and he is not able to understand it, because it must be examined spiritually. {2:15} But the spiritual nature of man judges all things, and he himself may be judged by no man. {2:16} For who has known the mind of the Lord, so that he may instruct him? But we have the mind of Christ.

[1 Corinthians 3] {3:1} And so, brothers, I was not able to speak to you as if to those who are spiritual, but rather as if to those who are carnal. For you are like infants in Christ. {3:2} I gave you milk to drink, not solid food. For you were not yet able. And indeed, even now, you are not able; for you are still carnal. {3:3} And since there is still envy and contention among you, are you not carnal, and are you not walking according to man? {3:4} For if one says, “Certainly, I am of Paul,” while another says, “I am of Apollo,” are you not men? But what is Apollo, and what is Paul? {3:5} We are only the ministers of him in whom you have believed, just as the Lord has granted to each of you. {3:6} I planted, Apollo watered, but God provided the growth. {3:7} And so, neither he who plants, nor he who waters, is anything, but only God, who provides the growth. {3:8} Now he who plants, and he who waters, are one. But each shall receive his proper reward, according to his labors. {3:9} For we are God’s assistants. You are God’s cultivation; you are God’s construction. {3:10} According to the grace of God, which has been given to me, I have laid the foundation like a wise architect. But another builds upon it. So then, let each one be careful how he builds upon it. {3:11} For no one is able to lay any other foundation, in place of that which has been laid, which is Christ Jesus. {3:12} But if anyone builds upon this foundation, whether gold, silver, precious stones, wood, hay, or stubble, {3:13} each one’s work shall be made manifest. For the day of the Lord shall declare it, because it will be revealed by fire. And this fire will test each one’s work, as to what kind it is. {3:14} If anyone’s work, which he has built upon it, remains, then he will receive a reward. {3:15} If anyone’s work is burned up, he will suffer its loss, but he himself will still be saved, but only as through fire. {3:16} Do you not know that you are the Temple of God, and that the Spirit of God lives within you? {3:17} But if anyone violates the Temple of God, God will destroy him. For the Temple of God is holy, and you are that Temple. {3:18} Let no one deceive himself. If anyone among you seems to be wise in this age, let him become foolish, so that he may be truly wise. {3:19} For the wisdom of this world is foolishness with God. And so it has been written: “I will catch the wise in their own astuteness.” {3:20} And again: “The Lord knows the thoughts of the wise, that they are vain.” {3:21} And so, let no one glory in men. {3:22} For all is yours: whether Paul, or Apollo, or Cephas, or the world, or life, or death, or the present, or the future. Yes, all is yours. {3:23} But you are Christ’s, and Christ is God’s.
slandered, and so we bless. We suffer and endure persecution. {4:13} We are cursed, and so we pray. We have become like the refuse of this world, like the residue of everything, even until now. {4:14} I am not writing these things in order to confound you, but in order to admonish you, as my dearest sons. {4:15} For you might have ten thousand instructors in Christ, but not so many fathers. For in Christ Jesus, through the Gospel, I have begotten you. {4:16} Therefore, I beg you, be imitators of me, just as I am of Christ. {4:17} For this reason, I have sent you Timothy, who is my dearest son, and who is faithful in the Lord. He will remind you of my ways, which are in Christ Jesus, just as I teach everywhere, in every church. {4:18} Certain persons have become inflated in thinking that I would not return to you. {4:19} But I will return to you soon, if the Lord is willing. And I will consider, not the words of those who are inflated, but the virtue. {4:20} For the kingdom of God is not in words, but in virtue. {4:21} What would you prefer? Should I return to you with a rod, or with charity and a spirit of meekness?

[1 Corinthians 5] {5:1} Above all else, it is being said that there is fornication among you, even fornication of a such kind that is not among the Gentiles, so that someone would have the wife of his father. {5:2} And yet you are inflated, and you have not instead been grieved, so that he who has done this thing would be taken away from your midst. {5:3} Certainly, though absent in body, I am present in spirit. Thus, I have already judged, as if I were present, him who has done this. {5:4} In the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, you have been gathered together with my spirit, in the power of our Lord Jesus, {5:5} to hand over such a one as this to Satan, for the destruction of the flesh, so that the spirit may be saved in the day of our Lord Jesus Christ. {5:6} It is not good for you to glory. Do you not know that a little leaven corrupts the entire mass? {5:7} Purge the old leaven, so that you may become the new bread, for you are unleavened. For Christ, our Passover, has now been immolated. {5:8} And so, let us feast, not with the old leaven, not with the leaven of malice and wickedness, but with the unleavened bread of sincerity and truth. {5:9} As I have written to you in an epistle: “Do not associate with fornicators,” {5:10} certainly not with the fornicators of this world, nor with the greedy, nor with robbers, nor with the servants of idolatry. Otherwise, you ought to depart from this world. {5:11} But now I have written to you: do not associate with anyone who is called a brother and yet is a fornicator, or greedy, or a servant of idolatry, or a slanderer, or inebriated, or a robber. With such a one as this, do not even take food. {5:12} For what have I to do with judging those who are outside? But do not even you yourselves judge those who are inside? {5:13} For those who are outside, God will judge. But send this evil person away from yourselves.

[1 Corinthians 6] {6:1} How is it that anyone of you, having a dispute against another, would dare to be judged before the iniquitous, and not before the saints? {6:2} Or do you not know that the saints from this age shall judge it? And if the world is to be judged by you, are you unworthy, then, to judge even the smallest matters? {6:3} Do you not know that we shall judge angels? How much more the things of this age? {6:4} Therefore, if you have matters to judge concerning this age, why not appoint those who are most contemptible in the Church to judge these things! {6:5} But I am speaking so as to shame you. Is there no one among you wise enough, so that he might be able to judge between his brothers? {6:6} Instead, brother contends against brother in court, and this before the unfaithful! {6:7} Now there is certainly an offense among you, beyond everything else, when you have court cases against one another. Should you not accept injury instead? Should you not endure being cheated instead? {6:8} But you are doing the injuring and the cheating, and this toward brothers! {6:9} Do you not know that the iniquitous will not possess the kingdom of God? Do not choose to wander astray. For neither fornicators, nor servants of idolatry, nor adulterers, {6:10} nor the effeminate, nor males who sleep with males, nor thieves, nor the avaricious, nor the inebriated, nor slanderers, nor the rapacious shall possess the kingdom of God. {6:11} And some of you were like this. But you have been absolved, but you have been sanctified, but you have been justified: all in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ and in the Spirit of our God. {6:12} All is lawful to me, but not all is expedient. All is lawful to me, but I will not be driven back by the authority of anyone. {6:13} Food is for the stomach, and the stomach is for food. But God shall destroy both the stomach and food. And the body is not for fornication, but rather for the Lord; and the Lord is for the body. {6:14} Truly, God has raised up the Lord, and he will raise us up by his power. {6:15} Do you not know that your bodies are a part of Christ? So then, should I take a part of Christ and make it a part of a harlot? Let it not be so! {6:16} And do you not know that whoever is joined to a harlot becomes one body? “For the two,” he said, “shall be as one flesh.” {6:17} But whoever is joined to the Lord is one spirit. {6:18} Flee from fornication. Every sin whatsoever that a man commits is outside of the body, but whoever fornicates, sins against his own body. {6:19} Or do you not know that your bodies are the Temple of the Holy Spirit, who is in you, whom you have from God, and that you are not your own? {6:20} For you have been bought at a great price. Glorify and carry God in your body.

[1 Corinthians 7] {7:1} Now concerning the things about which you wrote to me: It is good for a man not to touch a woman. {7:2} But, because of fornication, let each man have his own wife, and let each woman have her own husband. {7:3} A husband should fulfill his obligation to his wife, and a wife should also act similarly toward her husband. {7:4} It is not the wife, but the husband, who has power over her body. But, similarly also, it is not the husband, but the wife, who has power over his body. {7:5} So, do not fail in your obligations to one another, except perhaps by consent, for a limited time, so that you may empty yourselves for prayer. And then, return together again, lest Satan tempt you by means of your abstinence. {7:6} But I am saying this, neither as an indulgence, nor as a commandment. {7:7} For I would prefer it if you were all like myself. But each person has his proper gift from God: one in this way, yet another in that way. {7:8} But I say to the unmarried and to widows: It is good for them, if they would remain as they are, just as I also am. {7:9} But if they cannot restrain themselves, they should marry. For it is better to marry, than to be burned. {7:10} But to those who have been joined in matrimony, it is not I who commands you, but the Lord: a wife is not to separate from her husband. {7:11} But if she has separated from him, she... must remain unmarried, or be reconciled to her husband. And a husband should not divorce his wife. {7:12} Concerning the rest, I am speaking, not the Lord. If any brother has an unbelieving wife, and she consents to live with him, he should not divorce her. {7:13} And if any woman has an unbelieving husband, and he consents to live with her, she should not divorce her husband. {7:14} For the unbelieving husband has been sanctified through the believing wife, and the unbelieving wife has been sanctified through the believing husband. Otherwise, your children would be unclean, whereas instead they are holy. {7:15} But if the unbeliever departs, let him depart. For a brother or sister cannot be made subject to servitude in this way. For would be unclean, whereas instead they are holy. {7:15} But concerning virgins, I have no commandment from the Lord. {7:24} Brothers, let each one, in whatever state he is free in the Lord. Similarly, any free person who remain in the same calling to which he was called. {7:18} Has any one considered himself to seem anything, he does not yet know in the way that he ought to know. {8:3} For if anyone loves God, he is known by him. {8:4} But as to the foods that are immolated to idols, we know that an idol in the world is nothing, and that no one is God, except One. {8:5} For although there are things that are called gods, whether in heaven or on earth, (if one even considers there to be many gods and many lords) {8:6} yet we know that there is only one God, the Father, from whom all things are, and in whom we are, and one Lord Jesus Christ, through whom all things are, and by whom we are. {8:7} But knowledge is not in everyone. For some persons, even now, with consent to an idol, eat what has been sacrificed to an idol. And their conscience, being infirm, becomes polluted. {8:8} Yet food does not commend us to God. For if we eat, we will not have less sin. {7:36} But if any man considers himself to seem dishonest, concerning a virgin who is of adult age, and so it ought to be, he may do as he wills. If he marries her, he does not sin. {7:37} But if he has decided firmly in his heart, and he does not have any obligation, but only the power of his free will, and if he has judged this in his heart, to let her remain a virgin, he does well. {7:38} And so, who he joins with his virgin in matrimony does well, and he who does not join with her does better. {7:39} A woman is bound under the law for as long as her husband lives. But if her husband has died, she is free. She may marry whomever she wishes, but only in the Lord. {7:40} But she will be more blessed, if she remains in this state, in accord with my counsel. And I think that I, too, have the Spirit of God.

[1 Corinthians 8] {8:1} Now concerning those things that are sacrificed to idols: we know that we all have knowledge. Knowledge puffs up, but charity builds up. {8:2} But if anyone considers himself to know anything, he does not yet know in the way that he ought to know. {8:3} For if anyone loves God, he is known by him. {8:4} But as to the foods that are immolated to idols, we know that an idol in the world is nothing, and that no one is God, except One. {8:5} For although there are things that are called gods, whether in heaven or on earth, (if one even considers there to be many gods and many lords) {8:6} yet we know that there is only one God, the Father, from whom all things are, and in whom we are, and one Lord Jesus Christ, through whom all things are, and by whom we are. {8:7} But knowledge is not in everyone. For some persons, even now, with consent to an idol, eat what has been sacrificed to an idol. And their conscience, being infirm, becomes polluted. {8:8} Yet food does not commend us to God. For if we eat, we will not have less. {8:9} But be careful not to let your liberty become a cause of sin to those who are weak. {8:10} For if anyone sees someone with knowledge sitting down to eat in idolatry, will not his own conscience, being infirm, be emboldened to eat what has been sacrificed to idols? {8:11} And should an infirm brother perish by your knowledge, even though Christ died for him? {8:12} So when you sin in this way against the brothers, and you harm their weakened conscience, then you sin against Christ. {8:13} Because of this, if food leads my brother to sin, I will never eat meat, lest I lead my brother to sin.

[1 Corinthians 9] {9:1} Am I not free? Am I not an Apostle? Have I not seen Christ Jesus our Lord? Are you not my work in the Lord? {9:2} And if I am not an Apostle to others, yet still I am to you. For you are the seal of my Apostleship in the Lord. {9:3} My defense with those who question me is this: {9:4} Do we not have the authority to eat and to drink? {9:5} Do we not have the authority to travel around with a woman who is a sister, just as do the other Apostles, and the brothers of the Lord, and Cephas? {9:6} Or is it only myself and Barnabas who do not have the authority to act in this way? {9:7} Who has ever served as a soldier and paid his own stipend? Who plants a vineyard and does not eat from the milk of the flock? {9:8} Am I saying these things according to man? Or does the law not also say these things? {9:9} For it is written in the law of Moses: “You shall not bind the mouth of an ox, while it is treading out the grain.”
And so, do not take part in idolatry, as some of them did, just as it was written: “The people sat down to eat and to drink, and then they rose up to amuse themselves.”

And let us not commit fornication, as some of them fornicated, and so twenty-three thousand fell on one day. And let us not tempt Christ, as some of them tempted, and so they perished by serpents. And you should not murmur, as some of them murmured, and so they perished by the destroyer. Now all of these things happened to them as an example, and so they have been written for our correction, because the final age has fallen upon us. And so, whosoever considers himself to be standing, let him be careful not to fall. Temptation should not take hold of you, except what is human. For God is faithful, and he will not permit you to be tempted beyond your ability. Instead, he will effect his Providence, even during temptation, so that you may be able to bear it. Because of this, most beloved of mine, flee from the worship of idols. Since I am speaking to those who are prudent, judge what I say for yourselves. The cup of benediction that we bless, is it not a communion in the Blood of Christ? And the bread that we break, is it not a participation in the Body of the Lord? Through the one bread, we, though many, are one body: all of us who are partakers of the one bread. Consider Israel, according to the flesh. Are not those who eat from the sacrifices partakers of the altar? What is next? Should I say that what is immolated to idols is anything? Or that the idol is anything? But the things that the Gentiles immolate, they immolate to demons, and not to God. And I do not want you to become partakers with demons. You cannot drink the cup of the Lord, and the cup of demons. You cannot be partakers of the table of the Lord, and partakers of the table of demons. Or should we provoke the Lord to jealousy? Are we stronger than he is? All is lawful to me, but not all is expedient. All is lawful to me, but not all is edifying. Let no one seek for himself, but for others. Whatever is sold in the market, you may eat, without asking questions for the sake of conscience. “The earth and all its fullness belong to the Lord.” If you are invited by any unbelievers, and you are willing to go, you may eat whatever is set before you, without asking questions for the sake of conscience. But if anyone says, “This has been sacrificed to idols,” do not eat it, for the sake of the one who told you, and for the sake of conscience. But I am referring to the conscience of the other person, not to yours. For why should my liberty be judged by the conscience of another? If I partake with thanksgiving, why should I be slandered over that for which I give thanks? Therefore, whether you eat or drink, or whatever else you may do, do everything for the glory of God. Be without offense toward the Jews, and toward the Gentiles, and toward the Church of God, just as I also, in all things, please everyone, not seeking what is best for myself, but what is best for many others, so that they may be saved.
or prophesying with her head not covered disgraces her head. For it is the same as if her head were shaven. {11:6} So if a woman is not veiled, let her hair be cut off. Truly then, if it is a disgrace for a woman to have her hair cut off, or to have her head shaven, then she should cover her head. {11:7} Certainly, a man ought not to cover his head, for he is the image and glory of God. But woman is the glory of man. {11:8} For man is not of woman, but woman is of man. {11:9} And indeed, man was not created for woman, but woman was created for man. {11:10} Therefore, a woman ought to have a sign of authority on her head, because of the Angels. {11:11} Yet truly, man would not exist without woman, nor would woman exist without man, in the Lord. {11:12} For just as woman came into existence from man, so also does man exist through woman. But all things are from God. {11:13} Judge for yourselves. Is it proper for a woman to pray to God unveiled? {11:14} Does not even nature herself teach you that, indeed, if a man grows his hair long, it is a disgrace for him? {11:15} Yet truly, if a woman grows her hair long, it is a glory for her, because her hair has been given to her as a covering. {11:16} But if anyone has a mind to be contentious, we have no such custom, nor does the Church of God. {11:17} Now I caution you, without praising, about this: that you assemble together, and not for better, but for worse. {11:18} First of all, indeed, I hear that when you assemble together in the church, there are schisms among you. And I believe this, in part. {11:19} For there must also be heresies, so that those who have been tested may be made manifest among you. {11:20} And so, when you assemble together as one, it is no longer in order to eat the Lord’s supper. {11:21} For each one first takes his own supper to eat. And as a result, one person is hungry, while another is inebriated. {11:22} Do you not have houses, in which to eat and drink? Or do you have such contempt for the Church of God that you would confound those who do not have such contempt? What should I say to you? Should I praise you? I am not praising you in this. {11:23} For I have received from the Lord what I have also delivered to you: that the Lord Jesus, on the same night that he was handed over, took bread, {11:24} and giving thanks, he broke it, and said: “Take and eat. This is my body, which shall be given up for you. Do this in remembrance of me.” {11:25} Similarly also, the cup, after he had eaten supper, saying: “This cup is the new covenant in my blood. Do this, as often as you drink it, in remembrance of me.” {11:26} For whenever you eat this bread and drink this cup, you proclaim the death of the Lord, until he returns. {11:27} And so, whoever eats this bread, or drinks from the cup of the Lord, unworthily, shall be liable of the body and blood of the Lord. {11:28} But let a man examine himself, and, in this way, let him eat from that bread, and drink from that cup. {11:29} For whoever eats and drinks unworthily, eats and drinks a sentence against himself, not discerning it to be the body of the Lord. {11:30} As a result, many are weak and sick among you, and many have fallen asleep. {11:31} But if we ourselves were discerning, then certainly we would not be judged. {11:32} Yet when we are judged, we are being corrected by the Lord, so that we might not be condemned along with this world. {11:33} And so, my brothers, when you assemble together to eat, be attentive to one another. {11:34} If anyone is hungry, let him eat at home, so that you may not assemble together unto judgment. As for the rest, I will set it in order when I arrive.

[1 Corinthians 12] {12:1} Now concerning spiritual things, I do not want you to be ignorant, brothers. {12:2} You know that when you were Gentiles, you approached mute idols, doing what you were led to do. {12:3} Because of this, I would have you know that no one speaking in the Spirit of God utters a curse against Jesus. And no one is able to say that Jesus is Lord, except in the Holy Spirit. {12:4} Truly, there are diverse graces, but the same Spirit. {12:5} And there are diverse ministries, but the same Lord. {12:6} And there are diverse works, but the same God, who works everything in everyone. {12:7} However, the manifestation of the Spirit is given to each one toward what is beneficial. {12:8} Certainly, to one, through the Spirit, is given words of wisdom; but to another, according to the same Spirit, words of knowledge; {12:9} to another, in the same Spirit, faith; to another, in the one Spirit, the gift of healing; {12:10} to another, miraculous works; to another, prophecy; to another, the discernment of spirits; to another, different kinds of languages; to another, the interpretation of words. {12:11} But one and the same Spirit works all these things, distributing to each one according to his will. {12:12} For just as the body is one, and yet has many parts, so all the parts of the body, though they are many, are only one body. So also is Christ. {12:13} And indeed, in one Spirit, we were all baptized into one body, whether Jews or Gentiles, whether servant or free. And we all drank in the one Spirit. {12:14} For the body, too, is not one part, but many. {12:15} If the foot were to say, “Because I am not the hand, I am not of the body,” would it then not be of the body? {12:16} And if the ear were to say, “Because I am not the eye, I am not of the body,” would it then not be of the body? {12:17} If the whole body were the eye, how would it hear? If the whole were hearing, how would it smell? {12:18} But instead, God has placed the parts, each one of them, in the body, just as it has pleased him. {12:19} So if they were all one part, how would it be a body? {12:20} But instead, there are many parts, indeed, yet one body. {12:21} And the eye cannot say to the hand, “I have no need for your works.” And again, the head cannot say to the feet, “You are of no use to me.” {12:22} In fact, so much more necessary are those parts of the body which seem to be weaker. {12:23} And though we consider certain parts of the body to be less noble, we surround these with more abundant dignity, and so, those parts which are less presentable end up with more abundant respect. {12:24} However, our presentable parts have no such need, since God has tempered the body together, distributing the more abundant honor to that which has the need, {12:25} so that there might be no schism in the body, but instead the parts themselves might take care of one another. {12:26} And so, if one part suffers anything, all the parts suffer with it. Or, if one part finds glory, all the parts rejoice with it. {12:27} Now you are the body of Christ, and parts like any part. {12:28} And indeed, God has established a certain order in the Church: first Apostles, second Prophets, third Teachers, next miracle-workers, and then the grace of healing, of helping others, of governing, of different kinds of languages, and of the interpretation of words. {12:29} Are all Apostles? Are all Prophets? Are all Teachers? {12:30} Are all workers of miracles? Do all have the grace of healing? Do all speak in tongues? Do all interpret? {12:31} But be zealous for... the better charisms. And I reveal to you a yet more excellent way.

[1 Corinthians 13] {13:1} If I were to speak in the language of men, or of Angels, yet not have charity, I would be like a clanging bell or a cracking cymbal. {13:2} And if I have prophecy, and learn every mystery, and obtain all knowledge, and possess all faith, so that I could move mountains, yet not have charity, then I am nothing. {13:3} And if I distribute all my goods in order to feed the poor, and if I hand over my body to be burned, yet not have charity, it offers me nothing. {13:4} Charity is patient, is kind. Charity does not envy, does not act wrongly, is not inflated. {13:5} Charity is not ambitious, does not seek for itself, is not provoked to anger, devises no evil. {13:6} Charity does not rejoice over iniquity, but rejoices in truth. {13:7} Charity suffers all, believes all, hopes all, endures all. {13:8} Charity is never torn away, even if prophecies pass away, or languages cease, or knowledge is destroyed. {13:9} For we know only in part, and we prophesy only in part. {13:10} But when the perfect arrives, the imperfect passes away. {13:11} When I was a child, I spoke like a child, I understood like a child, I thought like a child. But when I became a man, I put aside the things of a child. {13:12} Now we see through a glass darkly. But then we shall see face to face. Now I know in part, but then I shall know, even as I am known. {13:13} But for now, these three continue: faith, hope, and charity. And the greatest of these is charity.

[1 Corinthians 14] {14:1} Pursue charity. Be zealous for spiritual things, but only so that you may prophesy. {14:2} For whoever speaks in tongues, speaks not to men, but to God. For no one understands. Yet by the Spirit, he speaks mysteries. {14:3} But whoever prophesies speaks to men for edification and exhortation and consolation. {14:4} Whoever speaks in tongues edifies himself. But whoever prophesies edifies the Church. {14:5} Now I want you all to speak in tongues, but more so to prophesy. For he who prophesies is greater than he who speaks in tongues, unless perhaps he interprets, so that the Church may receive edification. {14:6} But now, brothers, if I were to come to you speaking in tongues, how would it benefit you, unless instead I speak to you in revelation, or in knowledge, or in prophecy, or in doctrine? {14:7} Even those things that are without a soul can make sounds, whether it is a wind or a stringed instrument. But unless they present a distinction within the sounds, how will it be known which is from the pipe and which is from the string? {14:8} For example, if the trumpet made an uncertain sound, who would prepare himself for battle? {14:9} So it is with you also, for unless you utter with the tongue in plain speech, how will it be known what is said? For then you would be speaking into the air. {14:10} Consider that there are so many different kinds of languages in this world, and yet none is without a voice. {14:11} Therefore, if I do not understand the nature of the voice, then I shall be like a foreigner to the one with whom I am speaking; and he who is speaking will be like a foreigner to me. {14:12} So it is with you also. And since you are zealous for what is spiritual, seek the edification of the Church, so that you may abound. {14:13} For this reason, too, whoever speaks in tongues, let him pray for the interpretation. {14:14} So, if I pray in tongues, my spirit prays, but my mind is without fruit. {14:15} What is next? I should pray with the spirit, and also pray with the mind. I should sing psalms with the spirit, and also recite psalms with the mind. {14:16} Otherwise, if you have blessed only with the spirit, how can someone, in a state of ignorance, add an “Amen” to your blessing? For he does not know what you are saying. {14:17} In this case, certainly, you give thanks well, but the other person is not edified. {14:18} I thank my God that I speak in tongues for all of you. {14:19} But in the Church, I prefer to speak five words from my mind, so that I may instruct others also, rather than ten thousand words in tongues. {14:20} Brothers, do not choose to have the minds of children. Instead, be free of malice like infants, but be mature in your minds. {14:21} It is written in the law: “I will speak to this people with other tongues and other lips, and even so, they will not heed me, says the Lord.” {14:22} And so, tongues are a sign, not for believers, but for unbelievers; and prophecies are not for unbelievers, but for believers. {14:23} If then, the entire Church were to gather together as one, and if all were to speak in tongues, and then ignorant or unbelieving persons were to enter, would they not say that you were insane? {14:24} But if everyone prophesies, and one who is ignorant or unbelieving enters, he may be convinced by it all, because he understands it all. {14:25} The secrets of his heart are then made manifest. And so, falling to his face, he would adore God, proclaiming that God is truly among you. {14:26} What is next, brothers? When you gather together, each one of you may have a psalm, or a doctrine, or a revelation, or a language, or an interpretation, but let everything be done for edification. {14:27} If anyone is speaking in tongues, let there be only two, or at most three, and then in turn, and let someone interpret. {14:28} But if there is no one to interpret, he should remain silent in the church, then he may speak when he is alone with God. {14:29} And let the prophets speak, two or three, and let the others discern. {14:30} But then, if something is revealed to another who is sitting, let the first one become silent. {14:31} For you are all able to prophesy one at a time, so that all may learn and all may be encouraged. {14:32} For the spirits of the prophets are subject to the prophets. {14:33} And God is not of dissension, but of peace, just as I also teach in all the churches of the saints. {14:34} Women should be silent in the churches. For it is not permitted for them to speak; but instead, they should be subordinate, as the law also says. {14:35} And if they want to learn anything, let them ask their husbands at home. For it is disgraceful for a woman to speak in church. {14:36} So now, did the Word of God proceed from you? Or was it sent to you alone? {14:37} If anyone seems to be a prophet or a spiritual person, he should understand these things which I am writing to you, that these things are the commandments of the Lord. {14:38} If anyone does not recognize these things, he should not be recognized. {14:39} And so, brothers, be zealous to prophesy, and do not prohibit speaking in tongues. {14:40} But let everything be done respectfully and according to proper order.

[1 Corinthians 15] {15:1} And so I make known to you, brothers, the Gospel that I preached to you, which you also received, and on which you stand. {15:2} By the Gospel, too, you are being saved, if you hold to the understanding that I preached to you, lest you believe in vain. {15:3} For I handed on to you, first of all, what I also received: that Christ died for our sins, according to the Scriptures; {15:4} and that he was buried; and that he rose again on the third day, according to the Scriptures; {15:5} and that he was seen by Cephas, and after that by the eleven. {15:6} Next he was seen by more than five hundred brothers at one time, many of whom remain, even to the present time, although some have fallen asleep. {15:7} Next, he was seen by James, then by all the Apostles. {15:8} And last of all, he was seen also by me, as if I were someone born at the wrong time. {15:9} For I am the least of the Apostles. I am not worthy to be called an Apostle, because I persecuted the Church of God. {15:10} But, by the grace of God, I am what I am. And his grace in me has not been empty, since I have labored more abundantly than all of them. Yet it is not I, but the grace of God within me. {15:11} For whether it is I or they: so we preach, and so you have believed. {15:12} Now if Christ is preached, that he rose again from the dead, how is it that some among you say that there is no resurrection of the dead? {15:13} For if there is no resurrection of the dead, then Christ has not risen. {15:14} And if Christ has not risen, then our preaching is useless, and your faith is also useless. {15:15} Then, too, we would be found to be false witnesses of God, because we would have given testimony against God, saying that he had raised up Christ, when he had not raised him up, if, indeed, the dead do not rise again. {15:16} For if the dead do not rise again, then neither has Christ risen again. {15:17} But if Christ has not risen, then your faith is vain; for you would still be in your sins. {15:18} Then, too, those who have fallen asleep in Christ would have perished. {15:19} If we have hope in Christ for this life only, then we are more miserable than all men. {15:20} But now Christ has risen again from the dead, as the first-fruits of those who sleep. {15:21} For certainly, death came through a man. And so, the resurrection of the dead came through a man {15:22} And just as in Adam all die, so also in Christ all will be brought to life, {15:23} but each one in his proper order: Christ, as the first-fruits, and next, those who are of Christ, who have believed in his advent. {15:24} Afterwards is the end, when he will have handed over the kingdom to God the Father, when he will have emptied all principality, and authority, and power. {15:25} For it is necessary for him to reign, until he has set all his enemies under his feet. {15:26} Lastly, the enemy called death shall be destroyed. For he has subjected all things under his feet. And although he says, {15:27} “All things have been subjected to him,” without doubt he does not include the One who has subjected all things to him. {15:28} And when all things will have been subjected to him, then even the Son himself will be subjected to the One who subjected all things to him, so that God may be all in all. {15:29} Otherwise, what will those who are being baptized for the dead do, if the dead do not rise again at all? Why then are they being baptized for them? {15:30} Why also do we endure trials every hour? {15:31} Daily I die, by means of your boasting, brothers: you whom I have in Christ Jesus our Lord. {15:32} If, according to man, I fought with the beasts at Ephesus, how would that benefit me, if the dead do not rise again? “Let us eat and drink, for tomorrow we shall die.” {15:33} Do not be led astray. Evil communication corrupts good morals. {15:34} Be vigilant, you just ones, and do not be willing to sin. For certain persons have an ignorance of God. I say this to you with respect. {15:35} But someone may say, “How do the dead rise again?” or, “What type of body do they return with?” {15:36} How foolish! What you sow cannot be brought back to life, unless it first dies. {15:37} And what you sow is not the body that will be in the future, but a bare grain, such as of wheat, or of some other grain. {15:38} For God gives it a body according to his will, and according to each seed’s proper body. {15:39} Not all flesh is the same flesh. But one is indeed of men, another truly is of beasts, another is of birds, and another is of fish. {15:40} Also, there are heavenly bodies and earthly bodies. But while the one, certainly, has the glory of heaven, the other has the glory of earth. {15:41} One has the brightness of the sun, another the brightness of the moon, and another the brightness of the stars. For even star differs from star in brightness. {15:42} So it is also with the resurrection of the dead. What is sown in corruption shall rise to incorruption. {15:43} What is sown in dishonor shall rise to glory. What is sown in weakness shall rise to power. {15:44} What is sown with an animal body shall rise with a spiritual body. If there is an animal body, there is also a spiritual one. {15:45} Just as it was written that the first man, Adam, was made with a living soul, so shall the last Adam be made with a spirit brought back to life. {15:46} So what is, at first, not spiritual, but animal, next becomes spiritual. {15:47} The first man, being earthly, was of the earth; the second man, being heavenly, will be of heaven. {15:48} Such things as are like the earth are earthly; and such things as are like the heavens are heavenly. {15:49} And so, just as we have carried the image of what is earthly, let us also carry the image of what is heavenly. {15:50} Now I say this, brothers, because flesh and blood is not able to possess the kingdom of God; neither will what is corrupt possess what is incorrupt. {15:51} Behold, I tell you a mystery. Certainly, we shall all rise again, but we shall not all be transformed: {15:52} in a moment, in the twinkling of an eye, at the last trumpet. For the trumpet will sound, and the dead will rise up, incorruptible. And we shall be transformed. {15:53} Thus, it is necessary for this corruptibility to be clothed with incorruptibility, and for this mortality to be clothed with immortality. {15:54} And when this mortality has been clothed with immortality, then the word that was written shall occur: “Death is swallowed up in victory.” {15:55} “O death, where is your victory? O death, where is your sting?” {15:56} Now the sting of death is sin, and the power of sin is the law. {15:57} But thanks be to God, who has given us victory through our Lord Jesus Christ. {15:58} And so, my beloved brothers, be steadfast and unmoving, abounding always in the work of the Lord, knowing that your labor is not useless in the Lord.

[1 Corinthians 16] {16:1} Now concerning the collections which are made for the saints: just as I have arranged for the churches of Galatia, so should it also be done with you. {16:2} On the first day of the week, the Sabbath, let each one of you take from himself, setting aside what will be well-pleasing to him, so that when I arrive, the collections will not have to be made then. {16:3} And when I am present, whomever you shall approve through letters, these I shall send to bear your gifts to Jerusalem. {16:4} And if it is fitting for me to go too, they shall go with me. {16:5} Now I will visit you after I have passed through Macedonia. For I will pass through Macedonia. {16:6} And perhaps I will stay with you, and even spend the winter, so that you may lead me on my way, whenever I depart. {16:7} For I am not willing to see you now only in passing, since I hope that I may remain with you for some length of time, if the Lord permits. {16:8} But I must remain at Ephesus, even until Pentecost. {16:9} For a door, great and unavoidable, has opened to me, as well as many adversaries. {16:10} Now if Timothy arrives, see to it that he may be among you without fear. For he is doing the work of the Lord, just as I also do. {16:11} Therefore, let no one despise him. Instead, lead him on his way in peace, so that he may come to me. For I am awaiting him with the brothers. {16:12} But concerning our brother, Apollo, I am letting you know that I pleaded with him greatly to go to you with the brothers, and clearly it was not his will to go at this time. But he will arrive when there is a space of time for him. {16:13} Be vigilant. Stand with faith. Act manfully and be strengthened. {16:14} Let all that is yours be immersed in charity. {16:15} And I beg you, brothers: You know the house of Stephanus, and of Fortunatus, and of Achaicus, that they are the first-fruits of Achaia, and that they have dedicated themselves to the ministry of the saints. {16:16} So you should be subject also to persons such as this, as well as to all who are cooperating and working with them. {16:17} Now I rejoice in the presence of Stephanus and Fortunatus and Achaicus, because what was lacking in you, they have supplied. {16:18} For they have refreshed my spirit and yours. Therefore, recognize persons such as this. {16:19} The churches of Asia greet you. Aquila and Priscilla greet you greatly in the Lord, with the church of their household, where I also am a guest. {16:20} All the brothers greet you. Greet one another with a holy kiss. {16:21} This is a greeting from my own hand, Paul. {16:22} If anyone does not love our Lord Jesus Christ, let him be anathema! Maran Atha. {16:23} May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. {16:24} My charity is with all of you in Christ Jesus. Amen.

 The Second Letter to the Corinthians **

[2 Corinthians 2] {1:1} Paul, an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and Timothy, a brother, to the church of God which is at Corinth, with all the saints who are in all of Achaia: {1:2} Grace and peace to you from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ. {1:3} Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies and the God of all consolation. {1:4} He consoled us in all our tribulation, so that we too may be able to console those who are in any kind of distress, through the exhortation by which we also are being exhorted by God. {1:5} For just as the Passion of Christ abounds in us, so also, through Christ, does our consolation abound. {1:6} So, if we are in tribulation, it is for your exhortation and salvation, or if we are in consolation, it is for your consolation, or if we are exhorted, it is for your exhortation and salvation, which results in the patience endurance of the same passion which we also endure. {1:7} So may our hope for you be made firm, knowing that, just as you are participants in the suffering, so also shall you be participants in the consolation. {1:8} For we do not want you to be ignorant, brothers, about our tribulation, which happened to us in Asia. For we were weighed down beyond measure, beyond our strength, so that we became weary, even of life itself. {1:9} But we had within ourselves the response to death, so that we would not have faith in ourselves, but in God, who raises the dead. {1:10} He has rescued us, and he is rescuing us, from great peril. In him, we hope that he will continue to rescue us. {1:11} And you are assisting, with your prayers for us, so that from many persons, by that which is a gift in us, thanks may be given through many persons, because of us. {1:12} For our glory is this: the testimony of our conscience, which is found in simplicity of heart and in sincerity toward God. And it is not with worldly wisdom, but in the grace of God, that we have conversed with this world, and more abundantly toward you. {1:13} For we write nothing else to you other than what you have read and understood. And I hope that you will continue to understand, even unto the end. {1:14} And just as you have acknowledged us in our role, that we are your glory, so also you are ours, unto the day of our Lord Jesus Christ. {1:15} And with this confidence, I wanted to come to you sooner, so that you might have a second grace, {1:16} and through you to pass into Macedonia, and to return to you again from Macedonia, and so be led by you on my way to Judea. {1:17} Then, although I had intended this, did I act lightly? Or in the things that I consider, do I consider according to the flesh, so that there would be, with me, both Yes and No? {1:18} But God is faithful, so our word, which was set before you, was not, in him, both Yes and No. {1:19} For the Son of God, Jesus Christ, who was preached among you through us, through myself and Sylvanus and Timothy, was not Yes, and No; but was simply Yes in him. {1:20} For whatever promises are of God are, in him, Yes. For this reason, too, through him: Amen to God for our glory. {1:21} Now the One who confirms us with you in Christ, and who has anointed us, is God. {1:22} And he has sealed us, and he has placed the pledge of the Spirit in our hearts. {1:23} But I call God as a witness to my soul, that I was lenient with you, in that I did not return to Corinth: {1:24} not because we have dominion over your faith, but because we are assistants of your joy. For by faith you stand.  The Second Letter to the Corinthians **

[2 Corinthians 2] {2:1} But I determined this within myself, not to return again to you in sorrow. {2:2} For if I make you sorrowful, then who is it that can make me glad, except the one who is made sorrowful by me? {2:3} And so, I wrote this same thing to you, so that I might not, when I arrive, add sorrow to sorrow for those with whom I ought to rejoice, having confidence in you in all things, so that my joy may be entirely yours. {2:4} For with much tribulation and anguish of heart, I wrote to you with many tears: not so that you would be sorrowful, but so that you might know the charity that I have more abundantly toward you. {2:5} But if anyone has brought sorrow, he has not sorrowed me. Yet, for my part, this is so that I might not burden all of you. {2:6} Let this rebuke be sufficient for someone like this, for it has been brought by many. {2:7} So then, to the contrary, you should be more forgiving and consoling, lest perhaps someone like this may be overwhelmed with excessive sorrow. {2:8} Because of this, I beg you to confirm your charity toward him. {2:9} It was for this reason, also, that I wrote, so that I might know, by testing you, whether you would be obedient in all things. {2:10} But anyone whom you have forgiven of anything, I also forgive. And then, too, anyone I have forgiven, if I have forgiven anything, it was done in the person of Christ for your sakes, {2:11} so that we would not be circumvented by Satan. For we are not ignorant of his intentions. {2:12} And when I had arrived at Troas, because of the Gospel of Christ, and a door had opened to me in the Lord, {2:13} I had no rest within my spirit, because I was not able to find Titus, my brother. So, saying goodbye to them, I set out for Macedonia. {2:14} But thanks be to God, who always brings triumph to us in Christ Jesus, and who manifests the fragrance of his knowledge through us in every place. {2:15} For we are the sweet fragrance of Christ for God, both with those who are being saved and with those who are perishing. {2:16} To the one, certainly, the fragrance is of death unto death. But to the other, the fragrance is of life unto life. And concerning these things, who is so suitable? {2:17} For we are not like many others, adulterating the Word of God. But instead, we speak with sincerity: from God, before God, and in Christ.

[2 Corinthians 3] {3:1} Must we begin again to commend ourselves? Or are we in need (as some are) of epistles of commendation for you, or from you? {3:2} You are our Epistle, written in our hearts, which is known and read by all men. {3:3} It has been made manifest that you are the Epistle of Christ, ministered by us, and written down, not with ink, but with the Spirit of the living God, and not on tablets of stone, but on the fleshy tablets of the heart. {3:4} And we have such faith, through Christ, toward God. {3:5} It is not that we are adequate to think anything of ourselves, as if anything was from us. But our adequacy is from God. {3:6} And he has made us suitable ministers of the New Testament, not in the letter, but in the Spirit. For the letter kills, but the Spirit gives life. {3:7} But if the ministration of death, engraved with letters upon stones, was in glory, (so much so that the sons of Israel were not able to gaze intently upon the face of Moses, because of the glory of his countenance) even though this ministration was ineffective, {3:8} how could the ministration of the Spirit not be in greater glory? {3:9} For if the ministration of condemnation is with glory, so much more is the ministration of justice abundant in glory. {3:10} And neither was it glorified by means of an excellent glory, though it was made illustrious in its own way. {3:11} For if even what was temporary has its glory, then what is lasting has an even greater glory. {3:12} Therefore, having such a hope, we act with much confidence, {3:13} and not as Moses did, in placing a veil over his face, so that the sons of Israel would not gaze intently at his face. This was ineffective, {3:14} for their minds were obtuse. And, even until this present day, the very same veil, in the readings from the Old Testament, remains not taken away (though, in Christ, it is taken away). {3:15} But even until today, when Moses is read, a veil is still set over their hearts. {3:16} But when they will have been converted to the Lord, then the veil shall be taken away. {3:17} Now the Spirit is Lord. And wherever the Spirit of the Lord is, there is liberty. {3:18} Yet truly, all of us, as we gaze upon the unveiled glory of the face of the Lord, are transfigured into the same image, from one glory to another. And this is done by the Spirit of the Lord.

[2 Corinthians 4] {4:1} Therefore, since we have this ministry, and in as much as we have obtained mercy for ourselves, we are not inadequate. {4:2} For we renounce dishonorable and hidden acts, not walking by craftiness, nor by adulterating the Word of God. Instead, by the manifestation of truth, we commend ourselves to the conscience of each man before God. {4:3} But if our Gospel is in some way hidden, it is hidden to those who are perishing. {4:4} As for them, the god of this age has blinded the minds of unbelievers, so that the light of the Gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God, would not shine in them. {4:5} For we are not preaching about ourselves, but about Jesus Christ our Lord. We are merely your servants through Jesus. {4:6} For God, who told the light to shine out of darkness, has shined a light into our hearts, to illuminate the knowledge of the splendor of God, in the person of Christ Jesus. {4:7} But we hold this treasure in earthen vessels, so that what is sublime may be of the power of God, and not of us. {4:8} In all things, we endure tribulation, yet we are not in anguish. We are constrained, yet we are not destitute. {4:9} We suffer persecution, yet we have not been abandoned. We are thrown down, yet we do not perish. {4:10} We ever carry around the mortification of Jesus in our bodies, so that the life of Jesus may also be manifested in our bodies. {4:11} For we who live are ever handed over unto death for the sake of Jesus, so that the life of Jesus may also be manifested in our mortal flesh. {4:12} Therefore, death is at work in us, and life is at work in you. {4:13} But we have the same Spirit of faith. And just as it is written, “I believed, and for that reason I spoke,” so we also believe, and for that reason, we also speak. {4:14} For we know that the One who raised up Jesus will raise us up also with Jesus and will place us with you. {4:15} Thus, all is for you, so that grace, abounding through many in thanksgiving, may abound to the glory of God. {4:16} For this reason, we are not insufficient. But it is as though our outer man is corrupted, while our inner man is renewed from day to day. {4:17} For though our tribulation is, at the present time, brief and light, it accomplishes in us the weight of a sublime eternal glory, beyond measure. {4:18} And we are contemplating, not the things that are seen, but the things that are unseen. For the things that are seen are temporal, whereas the things that are not seen are eternal.

[2 Corinthians 5] {5:1} For we know that, when our earthly house of this habitation is dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in heaven. {5:2} And for this reason also, we groan, desiring to be clothed from above with our habitation from heaven. {5:3} If we are so clothed, then we will not be found to be naked. {5:4} Then too, we who are in this tabernacle groan under the burden, because we do not want to be stripped, but rather to be clothed from above, so that what is mortal may be absorbed by life. {5:5} Now the One who accomplishes this very thing in us is God, who has given us the pledge of the Spirit. {5:6} Therefore, we are ever confident, knowing that, while we are in the body, we are on a pilgrimage in the Lord. {5:7} For we walk by means of faith, and not by sight. {5:8} So we are confident, and we have the good will to be on a pilgrimage in the body, so as to be present to the Lord. {5:9} And thus we struggle, whether absent or present, to please him. {5:10} For it is necessary for us to be manifested before the judgment seat of Christ, so that each one may receive the proper things of the body, according to his behavior, whether it was good or evil. {5:11} Therefore, having knowledge of the fear of the Lord, we appeal to men, but we are made manifest before God. Yet I hope, too, that we may be made manifest in your consciences. {5:12} We are not commending ourselves again to you, but rather we are presenting you with an opportunity to glory because of us, when you deal with those who glory in face, and not in heart. {5:13} For if we are excessive in mind, it is for God; but if we are sober, it is for you. {5:14} For the charity of Christ urges us on, in consideration of this: that if one died for all, then all have died. {5:15} And Christ died for all, so that even those who live might not now live for themselves, but for him who died for them and who rose again. {5:16} And so, from now on, we know no one according to the flesh. And though we have known Christ according to the flesh, yet now we know him in this way no longer. {5:17} So if anyone is a new creature in Christ, what is old has passed away. Behold, all things have been made new. {5:18} But all is of God, who has reconciled us to himself through Christ, and who has given us the ministry of reconciliation. {5:19} For certainly God was in Christ, reconciling the world to himself, not charging them with their sins. And he has placed in us the Word of reconciliation. {5:20} Therefore, we are ambassadors for Christ, so that God is exhorting through us. We beseech you for Christ: be reconciled to God. {5:21} For God made him who did not know sin to be sin for us, so that we might become the justice of God in him.

[2 Corinthians 6] {6:1} But, as a help to you, we exhort you not to receive the grace of God in vain. {6:2} For he says: "In a favorable time, I heeded you; and on the day of salvation, I helped you." Behold, now is the favorable time; behold, now is the day of salvation. {6:3} May we never give offense to anyone, so that our ministry may not be disparaged. {6:4} But in all things, let us exhibit ourselves as ministers of God with great patience: through tribulation, difficulties, and distress; {6:5} despite wounds, imprisonment, and rebellion; with hard work, vigilance, and fasting; {6:6} by chastity, knowledge, and longsuffering; in pleasantness, in the Holy Spirit, and in unfeigned charity; {6:7} with the Word of truth, with the power of God, and with the armor of justice to the right and to the left; {6:8} through honor and dishonor, despite good reports and bad, whether seen as deceivers or truth-tellers, whether ignored or acknowledged; {6:9} as if dying and yet truly alive; as if chastised and yet not subdued; {6:10} as if sorrowful and yet always rejoicing; as if needy and yet enriching many; as if having nothing and possessing everything. {6:11} Our mouth is open to you, O Corinthians; our heart is enlarged. {6:12} You are not narrowed by us, but it is by your own inner selves that you are narrowed. {6:13} But since we have the same recompense, (I am speaking as if to my own sons), you, too, should be enlarged. {6:14} Do not choose to bear the yoke with unbelievers. For how can justice be a participant with iniquity? Or how can the fellowship of light be a participant with darkness? {6:15} And how can Christ join together with Belial? Or what part do the faithful have with the unfaithful? {6:16} And what consensus does the temple of God have with idols? For you are the temple of the living God, just as God says: "I will dwell with them, and I will walk among them. And I will be their God, and they shall be my people." {6:17} Because of this, you must depart from their midst and be separate, says the Lord. And do not touch what is unclean. {6:18} Then I will accept you. And I will be a Father to you, and you shall be sons and daughters to me, says the Lord Almighty.”

[2 Corinthians 7] {7:1} Therefore, having these promises, most beloved, let us cleanse ourselves from all defilement of the flesh and of the spirit, perfecting sanctification in the fear of God. {7:2} Consider us. We have injured no one; we have corrupted no one; we have defrauded no one. {7:3} I am not saying this to your condemnation. For we have told you before that you are in our hearts: to die together and to live together. {7:4} Great is my confidence in you. Great is my glorying over you. I have been filled with consolation. I have a superabundant joy throughout all our tribulation. {7:5} Then, too, when we had arrived in Macedonia, our flesh had no rest. Instead, we suffered every tribulation: exterior conflicts, interior fears. {7:6} But God, who consoles the humble, consoled us by the arrival of Titus, {7:7} and not only by his arrival, but also by the consolation with which he was consoled among you. For he brought to us your desire, your weeping, your zeal for me, so that I rejoiced all the more. {7:8} For though I made you sorrowful by my epistle, I do not repent. And if I did repent, but only for a time, having realized that the same epistle made you sorrowful, {7:9} now I am glad: not because you were sorrowful, but because you were sorrowful unto repentance. For you became sorrowful for God, so that you might not suffer any harm from us. {7:10} For the sorrow that is according to God accomplishes a repentance which is steadfast unto salvation. But the sorrow that is of the world accomplishes death. {7:11} So consider this same idea, being sorrowful according to God, and what great solicitude it accomplishes in you: including protection, and indignation, and fear, and desire, and zeal, and vindication. In all things, you have shown yourselves to be uncorrupted by this sorrow. {7:12} And so, though I wrote to you, it was not because of him who caused the injury, nor because of him who suffered from it, but so as to manifest our solicitude, which we have for you before God. {7:13} Therefore, we have been consoled. But in our consolation, we have rejoiced even more abundantly over the joy of Titus, because his spirit was refreshed by all of you. {7:14} And if I have glared in anything to him about you, I have not been put to shame. But, just as we have spoken all things to you in truth, so also our glorying before Titus has been the truth. {7:15} And his feelings are now more abundant toward you, since he remembers the obedience of you all, and how you received him with fear and trembling. {7:16} I rejoice that in all things I have confidence in you.
also complete in you this same grace. {8:7} But, just as in all things you abound in faith and in word and in knowledge and in all solicitude, and even more so in your charity toward us, so also may you abound in this grace. {8:8} I am speaking, not commanding. But through the solicitude of others, I approve of the good character of your charity. {8:9} For you know the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ, that though he was rich, he became poor for your sakes, so that through his poverty, you might become rich. {8:10} And about this, I give my counsel. For this is useful to those of you who, only a year earlier, had just begun to act, or even to be willing to act. {8:11} So, truly now, accomplish this in deed, so that, in the same manner as your willing mind is prompted, you may also act, out of that which you have. {8:12} For when the will is prompted, it receives according to what that person has, not according to what that person does not have. {8:13} And it is not that others should be relieved, while you are troubled, but that there should be an equality. {8:14} In this present time, let your abundance supply their need, so that their abundance may also supply your need, in order that there may be an equality, just as it was written: {8:15} “He with more did not have too much; and he with less did not have too little.” {8:16} But thanks be to God, who has granted to the heart of Titus, this same solicitude for you. {8:17} For certainly, he accepted the exhortation. But since he was more solicitous, he went to you of his own free will. {8:18} And we have even sent with him a brother whose praise accompanies the Gospel throughout all the churches. {8:19} And not only that, but he was also chosen by the churches to be a companion for our sojourn in this grace, which is ministered by us with our determined will, to the glory of the Lord. {8:20} So let us avoid this, lest anyone disparage us over the abundance that is ministered by us. {8:21} For we provide for what is good, not only in the sight of God, but also in the sight of men. {8:22} And we have also sent with them our brother, whom we have proven to be frequently solicitous in many matters. But now there is a greater solicitousness, which is greatly entrusted to you; {8:23} and whether it concerns Titus, who is a companion to me and a helper to you, or whether it concerns our brothers, the Apostles of the churches, it is to the glory of Christ. {8:24} Therefore, in the sight of the churches, show them the proof of your charity and of our glorying about you.

[2 Corinthians 9] {9:1} Now, concerning the ministry that is done toward the saints, it is not necessary for me to write to you. {9:2} For I know your willing mind. I glory about you, concerning this, to the Macedonians. For Achaia has also been prepared, for the past year. And your example has inspired very many others. {9:3} Now I have sent the brothers, so that what we glory about concerning you might be not be empty in this matter, in order that (as I have explained) you may be prepared. {9:4} Otherwise, if the Macedonians arrive with me and find you unprepared, we (not to mention you) would be ashamed in this matter. {9:5} Therefore, I considered it necessary to ask the brothers to go to you in advance and to prepare this blessing as promised, and in this way, you may be ready as a blessing, not as an excess. {9:6} But I say this: Whoever sows sparingly will also reap sparingly. And whoever sows with blessings shall also reap from blessings: {9:7} each one giving, just as he has determined in his heart, neither out of sadness, nor out of obligation. For God loves a cheerful giver. {9:8} And God is able to make every grace abound in you, so that, always having what you need in all things, you may abound unto every good work, {9:9} just as it was written: “He has distributed widely, he has given to the poor; his justice remains from age to age.” {9:10} And he who ministers seed to the sower will offer you bread to eat, and will multiply your seed, and will increase the growth of the fruits of your justice. {9:11} So then, having been enriched in all things, you may abound in all simplicity, which works thanksgiving to God through us. {9:12} For the ministration of this office not only supplies whatever the saints need, but also abounds through many thanksgivings in the Lord. {9:13} And so, through the evidence of this ministry, you glorify God by the obedience of your confession in the Gospel of Christ, and by the simplicity of your communion with them and with everyone, {9:14} and they offer prayers for you, being solicitous about you, because of the excellent grace of God within you. {9:15} Thanks be to God for his ineffable gift.

[2 Corinthians 10] {10:1} But I myself, Paul, am begging you, through the meekness and modesty of Christ. I am certainly, by appearances, lowly among you, yet I have confidence in you, even while I am absent. {10:2} So I am petitioning you, lest I be bold, when present, with that bold confidence that I am considered to have by certain ones who judge us as if we were walking according to the flesh. {10:3} For though we walk in the flesh, we do not battle according to the flesh. {10:4} For the weapons of our battles are not carnal, yet still they are powerful with God, unto the destruction of fortifications: tearing down every counsel {10:5} and height that extols itself contrary to the wisdom of God, and leading every intellect into the captivity of obedience to Christ, {10:6} and standing ready to repudiate every disobedience, when your own obedience has been fulfilled. {10:7} Consider the things that are in accord with appearances. If anyone trusts that by these things he belongs to Christ, let him reconsider this within himself. For just as he belongs to Christ, so also do we. {10:8} And if I were even to glory somewhat more about our authority, which the Lord has given to us for your edification, and not for your destruction, I should not be ashamed. {10:9} But let it not be said that I am scaring you by means of epistles. {10:10} For they say: “His epistles, indeed, are weighty and strong. But his bodily presence is weak, and his speech is contemptible.” {10:11} Let someone like this realize that whatever we are in word through epistles, while absent: we are much the same in deed, while present. {10:12} For we would not dare to interpose or compare ourselves with certain ones who commend themselves. But we measure ourselves by ourselves, and we compare ourselves with ourselves. {10:13} Thus, we will not glory beyond our measure, but rather according to the measure of the limit which God has measured out to us, a measure which extends even to you. {10:14} For we are not overextending ourselves, as if we are not able to reach as far as you are able. For we have gone even as far as you have in the Gospel of Christ. {10:15} We are not glorying immeasurably over the labors of others. Instead, we hold on to the hope of your growing faith, so as to be magnified in you, according to our own limits, but in abundance, {10:16} and even so as to evangelize in those places that are
[2 Corinthians 11] {11:1} I wish that you would endure a small amount of my foolishness, so as to bear with me.

{11:2} For I am jealous toward you, with the jealousy of God. And I have espoused you to one husband, offering you as a chaste virgin to Christ. {11:3} But I am afraid lest, as the serpent led astray Eve by his cleverness, so your minds might be corrupted and might fall away from the simplicity which is in Christ. {11:4} For if anyone arrives preaching another Christ, one whom we have not preached; or if you receive another Spirit, one whom you have not received; or another Gospel, one which you have not been given: you might permit him to guide you.

{11:5} For I consider that I have done nothing less than the great Apostles. {11:6} For although I may be unskilled in speech, yet I am not so in knowledge. But, in all things, we have been made manifest to you. {11:7} Or did I commit a sin by humbling myself so that you would be exalted? For I preached the Gospel of God to you freely.

{11:8} I have taken from other churches, receiving a stipend from them to the benefit of your ministry. {11:9} And when I was with you and in need, I was burdensome to no one. For the brothers who came from Macedonia supplied whatever was lacking to me. And in all things, I have kept myself, and I will keep myself, from being burdensome to you. {11:10} The truth of Christ is in me, and so this glorying shall not be broken away from me in the regions of Achaia. {11:11} Why so? Is it because I do not love you? God knows I do. {11:12} But what I am doing, I will continue to do, so that I may take away an opportunity from those who desire an opportunity by which they may glory, so as to be considered to be like us.

{11:13} For false apostles, such as these deceitful workers, are presenting themselves as if they were Apostles of Christ. {11:14} And no wonder, for even Satan presents himself as if he were an Angel of light. {11:15} Therefore, it is no great thing if his ministers present themselves as if they were ministers of justice, for their end shall be according to their works.

{11:16} I say again. And let no one consider me to be foolish. Or, at least, accept me as if I were foolish, so that I also may be considered to be like us. {11:17} What I am saying is not said according to God, but as if in foolishness, in this matter of glorying. {11:18} Since so many glory according to the flesh, I will glory also.

{11:19} For you freely accept the foolish, though you yourselves claim to be wise. {11:20} For you permit it when someone guides you into servitude, even if he devours you, even if he takes from you, even if he is extorted, even if he strikes you repeatedly on the face. {11:21} I speak according to disgrace, as if we had been weak in this regard. In this matter, (I speak in foolishness) if anyone dares, I dare also. {11:22} They are Hebrews; so am I. They are Israelites; so am I. They are the offspring of Abraham; so am I. {11:23} They are the ministers of Christ (I speak as if I were less wise); more so am I: with many more labors, with numerous imprisonments, with wounds beyond measure, with frequent mortifications.

{11:24} On five occasions, I received forty stripes, less one, from the Jews. {11:25} Three times, I was beaten with rods. One time, I was stoned. Three times, I was shipwrecked. For a night and a day, I was in the depths of the sea. {11:26} I have made frequent journeys, through dangerous waters, in danger of robbers, in danger from my own nation, in danger from the Gentiles, in danger in the city, in danger in the wilderness, in danger in the sea, in danger from false brothers, with hardships and difficulties, with much vigilance, in hunger and thirst, with frequent fasts, in cold and nakedness.

{11:27} And, in addition to these things, which are external: there is my daily earnestness and solicitude for all the churches. {11:28} Who is weak, and I am not weak? Who is scandalized, and I am not being burned? {11:29} If it is necessary to glory, I will glory of the things that concern my weaknesses.

{11:30} The God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who is blessed forever, knows that I am not lying. {11:31} At Damascus, the governor of the nation under Aretas the king, watched over the city of the Damascenes, so as to apprehend me. {11:32} And, through a window, I was let down along the wall in a basket; and so I escaped his hands.
The Letter to the Galatians

[Galatians 1] {1:1} Paul, an Apostle, not from men and not through man, but through Jesus Christ, and God the Father, who raised him from the dead, {1:2} and all the brothers who are with me: to the churches of Galatia. {1:3} Grace and peace to you from God the Father, and from our Lord Jesus Christ, {1:4} who gave himself on behalf of our sins, so that he might deliver us from this present wicked age, according to the will of God our Father. {1:5} To him be glory forever and ever. Amen. {1:6} I wonder that you have been so quickly transferred, from him who called you into the grace of Christ, over to another gospel. {1:7} For there is no other, except that there are some persons who disturb you and who want to overturn the Gospel of Christ. {1:8} But if anyone, even we ourselves or an Angel from Heaven, were to preach to you a gospel other than the one that we have preached to you, let him be anathema. {1:9} Just as we have said before, so now I say again: If anyone has preached a gospel to you, other than that which you have received, let him be anathema. {1:10} For am I now persuading men, or God? Or, am I seeking to please men? If I still were pleasing men, then I would not be a servant of Christ. {1:11} For I would have you understand, brothers, that the Gospel which has been preached by me is not according to man. {1:12} And I did not receive it from man, nor did I learn it, except through the revelation of Jesus Christ. {1:13} For you have heard of my former behavior within Judaism: that, beyond measure, I persecuted the Church of God and fought against Her. {1:14} And I advanced in Judaism beyond many of my equals among my own kind, having proven to be more abundant in zeal toward the traditions of my fathers. {1:15} But, when it pleased him who, from my mother's womb, had set me apart, and who has called me by his grace, {1:16} to reveal his Son within me, so that I might evangelize him among the Gentiles, I did not next seek the consent of flesh and blood. {1:17} Neither did I go to Jerusalem, to those who were Apostles before me. Instead, I went into Arabia, and next I returned to Damascus. {1:18} And then, after three years, I went to Jerusalem to see Peter; and I stayed with him for fifteen days. {1:19} But I saw none of the other Apostles, except James, the brother of the Lord. {1:20} Now what I am writing to you: behold, before God, I am not lying. {1:21} Next, I went into the regions of Syria and Cilicia. {1:22} But I was unknown by face to the churches of Judea, which were in Christ. {1:23} For they had only heard that: “He, who formerly persecuted us, now evangelizes the faith which he once fought.” {1:24} And they glorified God in me.

[Galatians 2] {2:1} Next, after fourteen years, I went up again to Jerusalem, taking with me Barnabas and Titus. {2:2} And I went up according to revelation, and I debated with them about the Gospel that I am preaching among the Gentiles, but away from those who were pretending to be something, lest perhaps I might run, or have run, in vain. {2:3} But even Titus, who was with me, though he was a Gentile, was not compelled to be circumcised, {2:4} but only because of false brothers, who were brought in unknowingly. They entered secretly to spy on our liberty, which we have in Christ Jesus, so that they might reduce us to servitude. {2:5} We did not yield to them in subjection, even for an hour, in order that the truth of the Gospel would remain with you, {2:6} and away from those who were pretending to be something. (Whatever they might have been once, it means nothing to me. God does not accept the reputation of a man.) And those who were claiming to be something had nothing to offer me. {2:7} But it was to the contrary, since they had seen that the Gospel to the uncircumcised was entrusted to me, just as the Gospel to the circumcised was entrusted to Peter. {2:8} For he who was working the Apostleship to the circumcised in Peter, was also working in me among the Gentiles. {2:9} And so, when they had acknowledged the grace that was given to me, James and Cephas and John, who seemed like pillars, gave to me and to Barnabas the right hand of fellowship, so that we would go to the Gentiles, while they went to the circumcised, {2:10} asking only that we should be mindful of the poor, which was the very thing that I also was solicitous to do. {2:11} But when Cephas had arrived at Antioch, I stood against him to his face, because he was blameworthy. {2:12} For before certain ones arrived from James, he ate with the Gentiles. But when they had arrived, he drew apart and separated himself, fearing those who were of the circumcision. {2:13} And the other Jews consented to his pretense, so that even Barnabas was led by them into that falseness. {2:14} But when I had seen that they were not walking correctly, by the truth of the Gospel, I said to Cephas in front of everyone: “If you, while you are a Jew, are living like the Gentiles and not the Jews, how is it that you compel the Gentiles to keep the customs of the Jews?” {2:15} By nature, we are Jews, and not of the Gentiles, sinners. {2:16} And we know that man is not justified by the works of the law, but only by the faith of Jesus Christ. And so we believe in Christ Jesus, in order that we may be justified by the faith of Christ, and not by the works of the law. For no flesh will be justified by the works of the law. {2:17} But if, while seeking to be justified in Christ, we ourselves are also found to be sinners, would then Christ be the minister of sin? Let it not be so! {2:18} For if I rebuild the things that I have destroyed, I establish myself as a prevaricator. {2:19} For through the law, I have become dead to the law, so that I may live for God. I have been nailed to the cross with Christ. {2:20} I live; yet now, it is not I, but the Lord lives, and I live in the faith of the Son of God, who loved me and gave himself for me. {2:21} I do not reject the grace of God. For if justice is through the law, then Christ died in vain.

[Galatians 3] {3:1} O senseless Galatians, who has so fascinated you that you would not obey the truth, even though Jesus Christ has been presented before your eyes, crucified among you? {3:2} I wish to know only this from you: Did you receive the Spirit by the works of the law, or by the hearing of faith? {3:3} Are you so foolish that, though you began with the Spirit, you would now end with the flesh? {3:4} Have you been suffering so much without a reason? If so, then it is in vain. {3:5} Therefore, does he who distributes the Spirit to you, and who works miracles among you, act by the works of the law, or by the hearing of the faith? {3:6} It is just as it was written: “Abraham believed God, and it was reckoned to him unto justice.” {3:7} Therefore, know that those who are of faith, these are the sons of Abraham. {3:8} Thus Scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the Gentiles by faith, foretold to Abraham: “All nations shall be blessed in you.” {3:9} And so, those who are of faith shall be blessed with faithful Abraham. {3:10} For as many as are of the works of the law are under a curse. For it has been written: “Cursed is everyone who does not continue in all the things that have been written in the book of the Law, so as to do them.” {3:11} And, since in the law no one is justified with God, this is manifest: “For the just man lives by faith.” {3:12} But the law is not of faith; instead, “he who does these things shall live by them.” {3:13} Christ has redeemed us from the curse of the law, since he became a curse for us. For it is written: “Cursed is anyone who hangs from a tree.” {3:14} This was so that the blessing of Abraham might reach the Gentiles through Christ Jesus, in order that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith. {3:15} Brothers (I speak according to man), if a man’s testament has been confirmed, no one would reject it or add to it. {3:16} The promises were made to Abraham and to his offspring. He did not say, “and to descendents,” as if to many, but instead, as if to one, he said, “and to your offspring,” who is Christ. {3:17} But I say this: the testament confirmed by God, which, after four hundred and thirty years became the Law, does not nullify, so as to make the promise empty. {3:18} For if the inheritance is of the law, then it is no longer of the promise. But God bestowed it to Abraham through the promise. {3:19} Why, then, was there a law? It was established because of transgressions, until the offspring would arrive, to whom he made the promise, ordained by Angels through the hand of a mediator. {3:20} Now a mediator is not of one, yet God is one. {3:21} So then, was the law contrary to the promises of God? Let it not be so! For if a law had been given, which was able to give life, truly justice would be of the law. {3:22} But Scripture has enclosed everything under sin, so that the promise, by the faith of Jesus Christ, might be given to those who believe. {3:23} But before the faith arrived, we were preserved by being enclosed under the law, unto that faith which was to be revealed. {3:24} And so the law was our guardian in Christ, in order that we might be justified by faith. {3:25} But now that faith has arrived, we are no longer under a guardian. {3:26} For you are all sons of God, through the faith which is in Christ Jesus. {3:27} For as many of you as have been baptized in Christ have become clothed with Christ. {3:28} There is neither Jew nor Greek; there is neither servant nor free; there is neither male nor female. For you are all one in Christ Jesus. {3:29} And if you are Christ’s, then are you the offspring of Abraham, heirs according to the promise.

[Galatians 4] {4:1} But I say that, during the time an heir is a child, he is no different from a servant, even though he is the owner of everything. {4:2} For he is under tutors and caretakers, until the time which was predetermined by the father. {4:3} So also we, when we were children, were subservient to the influences of the world. {4:4} But when the fullness of time arrived, God sent his Son, formed from a woman, formed under the law, so that he might redeem those who were under the law, in order that we might receive the adoption of sons. {4:6} Therefore, because you are sons, God has sent the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying out: “Abba, Father.” {4:7} And so now he is not a servant, but a son. But if he is a son, then he is also an heir, through God. {4:8} But then, certainly, while ignorant of God, you served those who, by nature, are not gods. {4:9} But now, since you have known God, or rather, since you have been known by God: how can you turn away again, to weak and destitute influences, which you desire to serve anew? {4:10} You serve the days, and months, and times, and years. {4:11} I am afraid for you, lest perhaps I may have labored in vain among you. {4:12} Brothers, I beg you. Be as I am. For I, too, am like you. You have not injured me at all. {4:13} But then, certainly, while ignorant of God, you served those who, by nature, are not gods. {4:9} But now, since you have known God, or rather, since you have been known by God: how can you turn away again, to weak and destitute influences, which you desire to serve anew? {4:10} You serve the days, and months, and times, and years. {4:11} I am afraid for you, lest perhaps I may have labored in vain among you. {4:12} Brothers, I beg you. Be as I am. For I, too, am like you. You have not injured me at all. {4:13} But then, certainly, while ignorant of God, you served those who, by nature, are not gods. {4:9} But now, since you have known God, or rather, since you have been known by God: how can you turn away again, to weak and destitute influences, which you desire to serve anew? {4:10} You serve the days, and months, and times, and years. {4:11} I am afraid for you, lest perhaps I may have labored in vain among you. {4:12} Brothers, I beg you. Be as I am. For I, too, am like you. You have not injured me at all. {4:13} But then, certainly, while ignorant of God, you served those who, by nature, are not gods. {4:9} But now, since you have known God, or rather, since you have been known by God: how can you turn away again, to weak and destitute influences, which you desire to serve anew?
testimony that, if it could be done, you would have plucked out your own eyes and would have given them to me. {4:16} So then, have I become your enemy by telling you the truth? {4:17} They are not imitating you well. And they are willing to exclude you, so that you might imitate them. {4:18} But be imitators of what is good, always in a good way, and not only when I am present with you. {4:19} My little sons, I am giving birth to you again, until Christ is formed in you. {4:20} And I would willingly be present with you, even now. But I would alter my voice: for I am ashamed of you. {4:21} Tell me, you who desire to be under the law, have you not read the law? {4:22} For it is written that Abraham had two sons: one by a servant, and one by a free woman. {4:23} And he who was of the servant was born according to the flesh. But he who was of the free woman was born by the promise. {4:24} These things are said through an allegory. For these represent the two testaments. Certainly the one, on Mount Sinai, gives birth unto servitude, which is Hagar. {4:25} For Sinai is a mountain in Arabia, which is related to the Jerusalem of the present time, and it serves with her sons. {4:26} But that Jerusalem which is above is free; the same is our mother. {4:27} For it was written: “Rejoice, O barren one, though you do not conceive. Burst forth and cry out, though you do not give birth. For many are the children of the desolate, even more than of her who has a husband.” {4:28} Now we, brothers, like Isaac, are sons of the promise. {4:29} But just as then, he who was born according to the flesh persecuted him who was born according to the Spirit, so also it is now. {4:30} And what does Scripture say? “Cast out the woman servant and her son. For the son of a servant women shall not be an heir with the son of a free woman.” {4:31} And so, brothers, we are not the sons of the servant woman, but rather of the free woman. And this is the freedom with which Christ has set us free.

[Galatians 5] {5:1} Stand firm, and do not be willing to be again held by the yoke of servitude. {5:2} Behold, I, Paul, say to you, that if you have been circumcised, Christ will be of no benefit to you. {5:3} For I again testify, about every man circumcising himself, that he is obligated to act according to the entire law. {5:4} You are being emptied of Christ, you who are being justified by the law. You have fallen from grace. {5:5} For in spirit, by faith, we await the hope of justice. {5:6} For in Christ Jesus, neither circumcision nor uncircumcision prevails over anything, but only faith which works through charity. {5:7} You have run well. So what has impeded you, that you would not obey the truth? {5:8} This kind of influence is not from him who is calling you. {5:9} A little leaven corrupts the whole mass. {5:10} I have confidence in you, in the Lord, that you will accept nothing of the kind. However, he who disturbs you shall bear the judgment, whomever he may be. {5:11} And as for me, brothers, if I still preach circumcision, why am I still suffering persecution? For then the scandal of the Cross would be made empty. {5:12} And I wish that those who disturb you would be torn away. {5:13} For you, brothers, have been called to liberty. Only you must not make liberty into an occasion for the flesh, but instead, serve one another through the charity of the Spirit. {5:14} For the entire law is fulfilled by one word: “You shall love your neighbor as yourself.” {5:15} But if you bite and devour one another, be careful that you are not consumed by one another! {5:16} So then, I say: Walk in the spirit, and you will not fulfill the desires of the flesh. {5:17} For the flesh desires against the spirit, and the spirit against the flesh. And since these are against one another, you may not do whatever you want. {5:18} But if you are led by the Spirit, you are not under the law. {5:19} Now the works of the flesh are manifest; they are: fornication, lust, homosexuality, self-indulgence, {5:20} the serving of idols, drug use, hostility, contentiousness, jealousy, wrath, quarrels, dissensions, divisions, {5:21} envy, murder, inebriation, carousing, and similar things. About these things, I continue to preach to you, as I have preached to you: that those who act in this way shall not obtain the kingdom of God. {5:22} But the fruit of the Spirit is charity, joy, peace, patience, kindness, goodness, forbearance, {5:23} meekness, faith, modesty, abstinence, chastity. There is no law against such things. {5:24} For those who are Christ’s have crucified their flesh, along with its vices and desires. {5:25} If we live by the Spirit, we should also walk by the Spirit. {5:26} Let us not become desirous of empty glory, provoking one another, envying one another.

[Galatians 6] {6:1} And, brothers, if a man has been overtaken by any offense, you who are spiritual should instruct someone like this with a spirit of leniency, considering that you yourselves might also be tempted. {6:2} Carry one another’s burdens, and so shall you fulfill the law of Christ. {6:3} For if anyone considers himself to be something, though he may be nothing, he deceives himself. {6:4} So let each one prove his own work. And in this way, he shall have glory in himself only, and not in another. {6:5} For each one shall carry his own burden. {6:6} And let him who is being taught the Word discuss it with him who is teaching it to him, in every good way. {6:7} Do not choose to wander astray. God is not to be ridiculed. {6:8} For whatever a man will have sown, that also shall he reap. For whoever sows in his flesh, from the flesh he shall also reap corruption. But whoever sows in the Spirit, from the Spirit he shall reap eternal life. {6:9} And so, let us not be deficient in doing good. For in due time, we shall reap without fail. {6:10} Therefore, while we have time, we should do good works toward everyone, and most of all toward those who are of the household of the faith. {6:11} Consider what kind of letters I have written to you with my own hand. {6:12} For as many of you as they desire to please in the flesh, they compel to be circumcised, but only so that they might not suffer the persecution of the cross of Christ. {6:13} And yet, neither do they themselves, who are circumcised, keep the law. Instead, they want you to be circumcised, so that they may glory in your flesh. {6:14} But far be it from me to glory, except in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, through whom the world is crucified to me, and I to the world. {6:15} For in Christ Jesus, neither circumcision nor uncircumcision prevails in any way, but instead there is a new creature. {6:16} And whoever follows this rule: may peace and mercy be upon them, and upon the Israel of God. {6:17} Concerning other matters, let no one trouble me. For I carry the stigmata of the Lord Jesus in my body. {6:18} May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit, brothers. Amen.
The Letter to the Ephesians

Ephesians 1 | {1:1} Paul, an Apostle of Jesus Christ through the will of God, to all the saints who are at Ephesus and to the faithful in Christ Jesus. | {1:2} Grace and peace to you from God the Father, and from the Lord Jesus Christ. | {1:3} Blessed be the God and Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, who has blessed us with every spiritual blessing in the heavens, in Christ. | {1:4} just as he chose us in him before the foundation of the world, so that we would be holy and immaculate in his sight, in charity. | {1:5} He has predestined us to adoption as sons, through Jesus Christ, in himself, according to the purpose of his will, for the praise of the glory of his grace, with which he has gifted us in his beloved Son. | {1:7} In him, we have redemption through his blood: the remission of sins in accord with the riches of his grace, which is superabundant in us, with all wisdom and prudence. | {1:9} So does he make known to us the mystery of his will, which he has set forth in Christ, in a manner well-pleasing to him, in the dispensation of the fullness of time, so as to renew in Christ everything that exists through him in heaven and on earth. | {1:11} In him, we too are called to our portion, having been predestined in accord with the plan of the One who accomplishes all things by the counsel of his will. | {1:12} So may we be, to the praise of his glory, we who have hoped beforehand in Christ. | {1:13} In him, you also, after you heard and believed the Word of truth, which is the Gospel of your salvation, were sealed with the Holy Spirit and promise, and being without God in this world. | {1:14} He is the pledge of our inheritance, unto the acquisition of redemption, to the praise of his glory. | {1:15} Because of this, and hearing of your faith that is in the Lord Jesus, and of your love toward all the saints, I have not ceased giving thanks for you, calling you to mind in my prayers, so that the God of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of glory, may give a spirit of wisdom and of revelation to you, in knowledge of him. | {1:18} May the eyes of your heart be illuminated, so that you may know what is the hope of his calling, and the wealth of the glory of his inheritance with the saints, and the preeminent magnitude of his virtue toward us, toward who believe in accord with the work of his powerful virtue, which he wrought in Christ, raising him from the dead and establishing him at his right hand in the heavens, above every principality and power and virtue and dominion, and above every name that is given, not only in this age, but even in the future age. | {1:22} And he has subjected all things under his feet, and he has made him the head over the entire Church, which is his body and which is the fullness of him who accomplishes everything in everyone.

Ephesians 2 | {2:1} And you were once dead in your sins and offenses, in which you walked in times past, according to the age of this world, according to the prince of the power of this sky, the spirit who now works in the sons of distrust. | {2:3} And we too were all conversant in these things, in times past, by the desires of our flesh, acting according to the will of the flesh and according to our own thoughts. And so we were, by nature, sons of wrath, even like the others. | {2:4} Yet still, God, who is rich in mercy, for the sake of his exceedingly great charity with which he loved us, even when we were dead in our sins, has enlivened us together in Christ, by whose grace you have been saved. | {2:6} And he has raised us up together, and he has caused us to sit down together in the heavens, in Christ Jesus, so that he may display, in the ages soon to arrive, the abundant wealth of his grace, by his goodness toward us in Christ Jesus. | {2:8} For by grace, you have been saved through faith. And this is not of yourselves, for it is a gift of God. | {2:9} And this is not of works, so that no one may glory. | {2:10} For we are his handiwork, created in Christ Jesus for the good works which God has prepared and in which we should walk. | {2:11} Because of this, be mindful that, in times past, you were Gentiles in the flesh, and that you were called uncircumcised by those who are called circumcised in the flesh, something done by man, and that you were, in that time, without Christ, being foreign to the way of life of Israel, being visitors to the testament, having no hope of the promise, and being without God in this world. | {2:13} But now, in Christ Jesus, you, who were in times past far away, have been brought near by the blood of Christ. | {2:14} For he is our peace. He made the two into one, by dissolving the intermediate wall of separation, of opposition, by his flesh, emptying the law of commandments by decree, so that he might join these two, in himself, into one new man, making peace and reconciling both to God, in one body, through the cross, destroying this opposition in himself. | {2:17} And upon arriving, he evangelized peace to you who were far away, and peace to those who were near. | {2:18} For by him, we both have access, in the one Spirit, to the Father. | {2:19} Now, therefore, you are no longer visitors and new arrivals. Instead, you are citizens among the saints in the household of God, having been built upon the foundation of the Apostles and of the Prophets, with Jesus Christ himself as the preeminent cornerstone. In him, all that has been built is framed together, rising up into a holy temple in the Lord. | {2:22} In him, you also have been built together into a habitation of God in the Spirit.

Ephesians 3 | {3:1} By reason of this grace, I, Paul, am a prisoner of Jesus Christ, for the sake of you Gentiles. | {3:2} Now certainly, you have heard of the dispensation of the grace of God, which has been given to me among you: that, by means of revelation, the mystery was made known to me, just as I have written above in a few words. | {3:4} Yet, by reading this closely, you might be able to understand my prudence in the mystery of Christ. | {3:5} In other generations, this was unknown to the sons of men, even as it has now been revealed to his holy Apostles and Prophets in the Spirit, so that the Gentiles would be co-heirs, and of the same body, and partners together, by his promise in Christ Jesus, through the Gospel. | {3:7} Of this Gospel, I have been made a minister, according to the gift of the grace of God, which has been given to me by means of the operation of his virtue. | {3:8} Although I am the least of all the saints, I have been given this grace: to evangelize among the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ, and to enlighten everyone concerning the dispensation of the mystery, hidden before the ages in God who created all things, so that the manifold wisdom of God may become well-known to the principalities and powers in the heavens, through the Church, according to that timeless purpose, which he has formed in Christ Jesus our Lord. | {3:12} In him we trust, and so we approach with... confide, through his faith. {3:13} Because of this, I ask you not to be weakened by my tribulations on your behalf; for this is your glory. {3:14} By reason of this grace, I bend my knees to the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, {3:15} from whom all paternity in heaven and on earth takes its name. {3:16} And I ask him to grant to you to be strengthened in virtue by his Spirit, in accord with the wealth of his glory, in the inner man, {3:17} so that Christ may live in your hearts through a faith rooted in, and founded on, charity. {3:18} So may you be able to embrace, with all the saints, what is the width and length and height and depth {3:19} of the charity of Christ, and even be able to know that which surpasses all knowledge, so that you may be filled with all the fullness of God. {3:20} Now to him who is able to do all things, more abundantly than we could ever ask or understand, by means of the virtue which is at work in us: {3:21} to him be glory, in the Church and in Christ Jesus, throughout every generation, forever and ever. Amen.

Ephesians 4 {4:1} And so, as a prisoner in the Lord, I beg you to walk in a manner worthy of the vocation to which you have been called: {4:2} with all humility and meekness, with patience, supporting one another in charity. {4:3} Be anxious to preserve the unity of the Spirit within the bonds of peace. {4:4} One body and one Spirit: to this you have been called by the one hope of your calling: {4:5} one Lord, one faith, one baptism, {4:6} one God and Father of all, who is over all, and through all, and in us all. {4:7} Yet to each one of us there has been given grace according to the measure allotted by Christ. {4:8} Because of this, he says: "Ascending on high, he took captivity itself captive; he gave gifts to men." {4:9} Now that he has ascended, what is left except for him also to descended, first to the lower parts of the earth? {4:10} He who descended is the same one who also ascended above all the heavens, so that he might fulfill everything. {4:11} And the same one granted that some would be Apostles, and some Prophets, yet truly others evangelists, and others pastors and teachers, {4:12} for the sake of the perfection of the saints, by the work of the ministry, in the edification of the body of Christ, {4:13} until we all meet in the unity of faith and in the knowledge of the Son of God, as a perfect man, in the measure of the age of the fullness of Christ. {4:14} So may we then no longer be little children, disturbed and carried about by every wind of doctrine, by the wickedness of men, and by the craftiness which deceives unto error. {4:15} Instead, acting according to truth in charity, we should increase in everything, in him who is the head, Christ himself. {4:16} For in him, the whole body is joined closely together, by every underlying joint, through the function allotted to each part, bringing improvement to the body, toward its edification in charity. {4:17} And so, I testify in the Lord: that from now on you should walk, not as the Gentiles also walk, in the vanity of their mind, {4:18} having their intellect obscured, being alienated from the life of God, through the ignorance that is within them, because of the blindness of their hearts. {4:19} Such as these, despairing, have given themselves over to sexual immorality, carrying out every impurity with rapacity. {4:20} But this is not what you have learned in Christ. {4:21} For certainly, you have listened to him, and you have been instructed in him, according to the truth that is in Jesus: {4:22} to set aside your earlier behavior, the former man, who was corrupted, by means of desire, unto error, {4:23} and so be renewed in the spirit of your mind, {4:24} and so put on the new man, who, in accord with God, is created in justice and in the holiness of truth. {4:25} Because of this, setting aside lying, speak the truth, each one with his neighbor. For we are all part of one another. {4:26} “Be angry, but do not be willing to sin.” Do not let the sun set over your anger. {4:27} Provide no place for the devil. {4:28} Whoever was stealing, let him now not steal, but rather let him labor, working with his hands, doing what is good, so that he may have something to distribute to those who suffer need. {4:29} Let no evil words proceed from your mouth, but only what is good, toward the edification of faith, so as to bestow grace upon those who listen. {4:30} And do not be willing to grieve the Holy Spirit of God, in whom you have been sealed, unto the day of redemption. {4:31} Let all bitterness and anger and indignation and outcry and blasphemy be taken away from you, along with all malice. {4:32} And be kind and merciful to one another, forgiving one another, just as God has forgiven you in Christ.

Ephesians 5 {5:1} Therefore, as most beloved sons, be imitators of God. {5:2} And walk in love, just as Christ also loved us and delivered himself for us, as an oblation and a sacrifice to God, with a fragrance of sweetness. {5:3} But let not any kind of fornication, or impurity, or rapacity so much as be named among you, just as is worthy of the saints, {5:4} nor any indecent, or foolish, or abusive talk, for this is without purpose; but instead, give thanks. {5:5} For know and understand this: no one who is a fornicator, or lustful, or rapacious (for these are a kind of service to idols) holds an inheritance in the kingdom of Christ and of God. {5:6} Let no one seduce you with empty words. For because of these things, the wrath of God was sent upon the sons of unbelief. {5:7} Therefore, do not choose to become participants with them. {5:8} For you were darkness, in times past, but now you are light, in the Lord. So then, walk as sons of the light. {5:9} For the fruit of the light is in all goodness and justice and truth, {5:10} affirming what is well-pleasing to God. {5:11} And so, have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but instead, refuse them. {5:12} For the things that are done by them in secret are shameful, even to mention. {5:13} But all things that are disputed are made manifest by the light. For all that is made manifest is light. {5:14} Because of this, it is said: “You who are sleeping: awaken, and rise up from the dead, and so shall the Christ enlighten you.” {5:15} And so, brothers, see to it that you walk cautiously, not like the foolish, {5:16} but like the wise: atoning for this age, because this is an evil time. {5:17} For this reason, do not choose to be imprudent. Instead, understand what is the will of God. {5:18} And do not choose to be inebriated by wine, for this is self-indulgence. Instead, be filled with the Holy Spirit, {5:19} speaking among yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual canticles, singing and reciting psalms to the Lord in your hearts, {5:20} giving thanks always for everything, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, to God the Father. {5:21} Be subject to one another in the fear of Christ. {5:22} Wives should be submissive to their husbands, as to the Lord. {5:23} For the husband is the head of the wife, just as Christ is the head of the Church. He is the Savior of his body. {5:24} Therefore, just as the Church is subject to Christ, so also should wives be subject to their husbands in all things. {5:25} Husbands, love... your wives, just as Christ also loved the Church and handed himself over for her, {5:26} so that he might sanctify her, washing her clean by water and the Word of life, {5:27} so that he might offer her to himself as a glorious Church, not having any spot or wrinkle or any such thing, so that she would be holy and immaculate. {5:28} So, too, husbands should love their wives as their own bodies. He who loves his wife loves himself. {5:29} For no man has ever hated his own flesh, but instead he nourishes and cherishes it, as Christ also does to the Church. {5:30} For we are a part of his body, of his flesh and of his bones. {5:31} “For this reason, a man shall leave behind his father and mother, and he shall cling to his wife; and the two shall be as one flesh.” {5:32} This is a great Sacrament. And I am speaking in Christ and in the Church. {5:33} Yet truly, each and every one of you should love his wife as himself. And a wife should fear her husband.

[The Letter to the Philippians]

[Philippians 1] {1:1} Paul and Timothy, servants of Jesus Christ, to all the saints in Christ Jesus who are at Philippi, with the bishops and deacons. {1:2} Grace and peace to you, from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ. {1:3} I give thanks to my God, with every remembrance of you, {1:4} always, in all my prayers, making supplication for all of you with joy, {1:5} because of your communion in the Gospel of Christ, from the first day even until now. {1:6} I am confident of this very thing: that he who has begun this good work in you will perfect it, unto the day of Christ Jesus. {1:7} So then, it is right for me to feel this way about all of you, because I hold you in my heart, and because, in my chains and in the defense and confirmation of the Gospel, you all are partakers of my joy. {1:8} For God is my witness how, within the heart of Jesus Christ, I long for each of you. {1:9} And this I pray: that your charity may abound more and more, with knowledge and with all understanding, {1:10} so that you may be confirmed in what is better, in order that you may be sincere and without offense on the day of Christ: {1:11} filled with the fruit of justice, through Jesus Christ, in the glory and praise of God. {1:12} Now, brothers, I want you to know that the things concerning me happened for the advancement of the Gospel, {1:13} in such a way that my chains have become manifest in Christ in every place of judgment and in all other such places. {1:14} And many from among the brothers in the Lord, becoming confident through my chains, are now much bolder in speaking the Word of God without fear. {1:15} Certainly, some do so even because of envy and contention; and others, too, do so because of a good will to preach Christ. {1:16} Some act out of charity, knowing that I have been appointed for the defense of the Gospel. {1:17} But others, out of contention, announce Christ insincerely, claiming that their difficulties lift them up to my chains. {1:18} But what does it matter? As long as, by every means, whether under pretext or in truthfulness, Christ is announced. And about this, I rejoice, and moreover, I will continue to rejoice. {1:19} For I know that this will bring me to salvation, through your prayers and under the ministration of the Spirit of Jesus Christ, {1:20} by means of my own expectation and hope. For in nothing shall I be confounded. Instead, with all confidence, now just as always, Christ shall be magnified in my body, whether by life or by death. {1:21} For to me, to live is Christ, and to die is gain. {1:22} And while I live in the flesh, for me, there is the fruit of works. But I do not know which I would choose. {1:23} For I am constrained between the two: having a desire to be dissolved and to be with Christ, which is the far better thing, {1:24} but then to remain in the flesh is necessary for your sake. {1:25} And having this confidence, I know that I shall remain and that I shall continue to remain with all of you, for your advancement and for your joy in the faith, {1:26} so that your rejoicing may abound in Christ Jesus for me, through my return to you again. {1:27} Only let your behavior be worthy of the Gospel of Christ, so that, whether I return and see you, or whether, being absent, I hear about you, still you may stand firm with one spirit, with one mind, laboring together for the faith of the Gospel. {1:28} And in nothing be terrified by the adversaries. For what is to them is an occasion of perdition, is to you an occasion of salvation, and this is from God. {1:29} For this has been given to you on behalf of Christ, not only so that you may believe in him, but even so that you may suffer with him, {1:30} engaging in the same struggle, of a kind which you also have seen in me, and which you now have heard from me.

Philippians 2 {2:1} Therefore, if there is any consolation in Christ, any solace of charity, any fellowship of the Spirit, any feelings of commiseration: {2:2} complete my joy by having the same understanding, holding to the same charity, being of one mind, with the same sentiment. {2:3} Let nothing be done by contention, nor in vain glory. Instead, in humility, let each of you esteem others to be better than himself. {2:4} Let each of you not consider anything to be your own, but rather to belong to others. {2:5} For this understanding in you was also in Christ Jesus: {2:6} who, though he was in the form of God, did not consider equality with God something to be seized. {2:7} Instead, he emptied himself, taking the form of a servant, being made in the likeness of men, and accepting the state of a man. {2:8} He humbled himself, becoming obedient even unto death, even the death of the Cross. {2:9} Because of this, God has also exalted him and has given him a name which is above every name, {2:10} so that, at the name of Jesus, every knee would bend, of those in heaven, of those on earth, and of those in hell, {2:11} and so that every tongue would confess that the Lord Jesus Christ is in the glory of God the Father. {2:12} And so, my most beloved, just as you have always obeyed, not only in my presence, but even more so now in my absence: work toward your salvation with fear and trembling. {2:13} For it is God who works in you, both so as to choose, and so as to act, in accord with his good will. {2:14} And do everything without murmuring or hesitation. {2:15} So may you be without blame, simple sons of God, without reproof, in the midst of a depraved and perverse nation, among whom you shine like lights in the world, {2:16} holding to the Word of Life, until my glory in the day of Christ. For I have not run in vain, nor have I labored in vain. {2:17} Moreover, if I am to be immolated because of the sacrifice and service of your faith, I rejoice and give thanks with all of you. {2:18} And over this same thing, you also should rejoice and give thanks, together with me. {2:19} Now I hope in the Lord Jesus to send Timothy to you soon, in order that I may be encouraged, when I know the things concerning you. {2:20} For I have no one else with such an agreeable mind, who, with sincere affection, is solicitous for you. {2:21} For they all seek the things that are of themselves, not the things that are of Jesus Christ. {2:22} So know this evidence of him: that like a son with a father, so has he served with me in the Gospel. {2:23} Therefore, I hope to send him to you immediately, as soon as I see what will happen concerning me. {2:24} But I trust in the Lord that I myself will also return to you soon. {2:25} Now I have considered it necessary to send to you Epaphroditus, my brother, and co-worker, and fellow soldier, and an attendant to my needs, but your Apostle. {2:26} For certainly, he has desired all of you, and he was saddened because you had heard that he was sick. {2:27} For he was sick, even unto death, but God took pity on him, and not only on him, but truly on myself also, so that I would not have sorrow upon sorrow. {2:28} Therefore, I sent him more readily, in order that, by seeing him again, you may rejoice, and I may be without sorrow. {2:29} And so, receive him with every joy in the Lord, and treat all those like him with honor. {2:30} For he was brought close even to death, for the sake of the work of Christ, handing over his own life, so that he might fulfill what was lacking from you concerning my service.

Philippians 3 {3:1} Concerning other things, my brothers, rejoice in the Lord. It is certainly not tiresome for me to write the same things to you, but for you, it is not necessary. {3:2} Beware of dogs; beware of those who work evil; beware of those who are divisive. {3:3} For we are the circumcised, who serve God in the Spirit and who glory in Christ Jesus, having no confidence in the flesh. {3:4} Nevertheless, I might have confidence also in the flesh, for if anyone else seems to have confidence in the flesh, more so do I. {3:5} For I was circumcised on the eighth day, of the stock of Israel, from the tribe of Benjamin, a Hebrew among Hebrews. According to the law, I was a Pharisee; {3:6} according to zeal, I persecuted the Church of God; according to the justice that is in the law, I lived without blame. {3:7} But the things which had been to my gain, the same have I considered a loss, for the sake of Christ. {3:8} Yet truly, I consider everything to be a loss, because of the preeminent knowledge of Jesus Christ, my Lord, for whose sake I have suffered the loss of everything, considering it all to be like dung, so that I may gain Christ, {3:9} and so that you may be found in him, not having my justice, which is of the law, but that which is of the faith of Christ Jesus, the justice within faith, which is of God. {3:10} So shall I know him, and the power of his resurrection, and the fellowship of his Passion, having been fashioned according to his death, {3:11} if, by some means, I might attain to the resurrection which is from the dead. {3:12} It is not as though I have already received this, or were already perfect. But rather I pursue, so that by some means I might attain, that in which I have already been attained by Christ Jesus. {3:13} Brothers, I do not consider that I have already attained this. Instead, I do one thing: forgetting those things that are behind, and extending myself toward those things that are ahead, {3:14} I pursue the destination, the prize of the heavenly calling of God in Christ Jesus. {3:15} Therefore, as many of us as are as being perfected, let us agree about this. And if in anything you disagree, God will reveal this to you also. {3:16} Yet truly, whatever point we reach, let us be of the same mind, and let us remain in the same rule. {3:17} Be imitators of me, brothers, and observe those who are walking similarly, just as you have seen by our example. {3:18} For many persons, about whom I have often told you (and now tell you, weeping,) are walking as enemies of the cross of Christ. {3:19} Their end is destruction; their god is their belly; and their glory is in their shame: for they are immersed in earthly things. {3:20} But our way of life is in heaven. And from heaven, too, we await the Savior, our Lord Jesus Christ, {3:21} who will transform the body of our lowliness, according to the form of the body of his glory, by means of that power by which he is even able to subject all things to himself.
The Letter to the Colossians

Colossians 1 1:1 Paul, an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the will of God, and Timothy, a brother, to the saints and faithful brothers in Christ Jesus who are at Colossae.

1:3 Grace and peace to you, from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ. We give thanks to God, the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, praying for you always.

1:4 For we have heard of your faith in Christ Jesus, and of the love that you have toward all the saints, because of the hope that has been stored up for you in heaven, which you have heard through the Word of Truth in the Gospel.

1:6 This has reached you, just as it is present in the whole world, where it grows and bears fruit, as it has also done in you, since the day when you first heard and knew the grace of God in truth.

1:7 just as you learned it from Epaphras, our most beloved fellow servant, who is for you a faithful minister of Christ Jesus.

1:8 And he has also manifested to us your love in the Spirit. Then, too, from the day when we first heard it, we have not ceased praying for you and requesting that you be filled with the knowledge of his will, with all wisdom and spiritual understanding, so that you may walk in a manner worthy of God, being pleasing in all things, being fruitful in every good work, and increasing in the knowledge of God.

1:11 being strengthened in every virtue, in accord with the power of his glory, with all patience and longsuffering, with joy.

1:12 giving thanks to God the Father, who has made us worthy to have a share in the portion of the saints, in the light.

1:13 For he has rescued us from the power of darkness, and he has transferred us into the kingdom of the Son of his love, in whom we have redemption through his blood, the remission of sins.

1:14 He is the image of the invisible God, the first-born of every creature.

1:16 For in him was created everything in heaven and on earth, visible and invisible, whether thrones, dominations, or principalities, or powers. All things were created through him and in him.

1:17 And he is before all, and in him all things continue.

1:18 And he is the head of the body, the Church. He is the beginning, the first-born from the dead, so that in all things he may hold primacy.

1:19 For the Father is well-pleased that all fullness reside in him, and that, through him, all things be reconciled to himself, making peace through the blood of his cross, for the things that are on earth, as well as the things that are in heaven.

1:21 And you, though you had been, in times past, understood to be foreigners and enemies, with works of evil, yet now he has reconciled you, by his body of flesh, through death, so as to offer you, holy and immaculate and blameless, before him.

1:23 So then, continue in the faith: well-founded and steadfast and immovable, by the hope of the Gospel that you have heard, which has been preached throughout all creation under heaven, the Gospel of which I, Paul, have become a minister.

1:24 For now I rejoice in my passion on your behalf, and I complete in my flesh the things that are lacking in the Passion of Christ, for the sake of his body, which is the Church.

1:25 For I have become a minister of the Church, according to the dispensation of God which has been given to me, to announce to the Gentiles, which is Christ and the hope of his glory among the Gentiles, which is Christ and the hope of his glory within you.

1:28 We are announcing him, correcting every man and teaching every man, with all wisdom, so that we may offer every man perfect in Christ Jesus.

1:29 In him, too, I labor, striving according to his action within me, which he works in virtue.

Colossians 2 2:1 For I want you to know the kind of solicitude that I have for you, and for those who are at Laodicea, as well as for those who have not seen my face in the flesh.

2:2 May their hearts be consoled and instructed.
in charity, with all the riches of a plenitude of understanding, with knowledge of the mystery of God the Father and of Christ Jesus. {2:3} For in him are hidden all treasures of wisdom and knowledge. {2:4} Now I say this, so that no one may deceive you with grandiose words. {2:5} For though I may be absent in body, yet I am with you in spirit. And I rejoice as I gaze upon your order and its foundation, which is in Christ, your faith. {2:6} Therefore, just as you have received the Lord Jesus Christ, walk in him. {2:7} Be rooted and continually built up in Christ. And be confirmed in the faith, just as you have also learned it, increasing in him with acts of thanksgiving. {2:8} See to it that no one deceives you through philosophy and empty falsehoods, as found in the traditions of men, in accord with the influences of the world, and not in accord with Christ. {2:9} For in him, all the fullness of the Divine Nature dwells bodily. {2:10} And in him, you have been filled; for he is the head of all principality and power. {2:11} In him also, you have been circumcised with a circumcision not made by hand, not by the despoothing of the body of flesh, but by the circumcision of Christ. {2:12} You have been buried with him in baptism. In him also, you have risen again through faith, by the work of God, who raised him up from the dead. {2:13} And when you were dead in your transgressions and in the uncircumcision of your flesh, he enlivened you, together with him, forgiving you of all transgressions, {2:14} and wiping away the handwriting of the decree which was against us, which was contrary to us. And he has taken this away from your midst, affixing it to the Cross. {2:15} And so, despoothing principalities and powers, he has led them away confidently and openly, triumphing over them in himself. {2:16} Therefore, let no one judge you as concerns food or drink, or a particular feast day, or feast days of new moons, or of Sabbaths. {2:17} For these are a shadow of the future, but the body is of Christ. {2:18} Let no one seduce you, preferring base things and a religion of Angels, walking according to what he has not seen, being vainly inflated by the sensations of his flesh, {2:19} and not holding up the head, with which the whole body, by its underlying joints and ligaments, is joined together and grows with an increase that is of God. {2:20} So then, if you have died with Christ to the influences of this world, why do you still make decisions as if you were living in the world? {2:21} Do not touch, do not taste, do not handle these things, {2:22} which all lead to destruction by their very use, in accord with the precepts and doctrines of men. {2:23} Such ideas have at least an intention to attain to wisdom, but through superstition and debasement, not sparing the body, and they are without any honor in satiating the flesh.

[Colossians 3] {3:1} Therefore, if you have risen together with Christ, seek the things that are above, where Christ is seated at the right hand of God. {3:2} Consider the things that are above, not the things that are upon the earth. {3:3} For you have died, and so your life is hidden with Christ in God. {3:4} When Christ, your life, appears, then you also will appear with him in glory. {3:5} Therefore, mortify your body, while it is upon the earth. For because of fornication, impurity, lust, evil desires, and avarice, which are a kind of service to idols, {3:6} the wrath of God has overwhelmed the sons of unbeliev. {3:7} You, too, walked in these things, in times past, when you were living among them. {3:8} But now you must set aside all these things: anger, indignation, malice, blasphemy, and indecent speech from your mouth. {3:9} Do not lie to one another. Strip yourselves of the old man, with his deeds, {3:10} and clothe yourself with the new man, who has been renewed by knowledge, in accord with the image of the One who created him, {3:11} where there is neither Gentile nor Jew, circumcision nor uncircumcision, Barbarian nor Scythian, servant nor free. Instead, Christ is everything, in everyone. {3:12} Therefore, clothe yourselves like the elect of God: holy and beloved, with hearts of mercy, kindness, humility, modesty, and patience. {3:13} Support one another, and, if anyone has a complaint against another, forgive one another. For just as the Lord has forgiven you, so also must you do. {3:14} And above all these things have charity, which is the bond of perfection. {3:15} And let the peace of Christ lift up your hearts. For in this peace, you have been called, as one body. And be thankful. {3:16} Let the word of Christ live in you in abundance, with all wisdom, teaching and correcting one another, with psalms, hymns, and spiritual canticles, singing to God with the grace in your hearts. {3:17} Let everything whatsoever that you do, whether in word or in deed, be done all in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, giving thanks to God the Father through him. {3:18} Wives, be submissive to your husbands, as is proper in the Lord. {3:19} Husbands, love your wives, and do not be bitter toward them. {3:20} Children, obey your parents in all things. For this is well-pleasing to the Lord. {3:21} Fathers, do not provoke your children to indignation, lest they lose heart. {3:22} Servants, obey, in all things, your lords according to the flesh, not serving only when seen, as if to please men, but serving in simplicity of heart, fearing God. {3:23} Whatever you do, do it from the heart, as for the Lord, and not for men. {3:24} For you know that you will receive from the Lord the repayment of an inheritance. Serve Christ the Lord. {3:25} For whoever causes injury shall be repaid for what he has wrongfully done. And there no favoritism with God.

[Colossians 4] {4:1} You masters, supply your servants with what is just and equitable, knowing that you, too, have a Master in heaven. {4:2} Pursue prayer. Be watchful in prayer with acts of thanksgiving. {4:3} Pray together, for us also, so that God may open a door of speech to us, so as to speak the mystery of Christ, (because of which, even now, I am in chains) {4:4} so that I may manifest it in the manner that I ought to speak. {4:5} Walk in wisdom toward those who are outside, redeeming this age. {4:6} Let your speech be ever graceful, seasoned with salt, so that you may know how you ought to respond to each person. {4:7} As for the things that concern me, Tychicus, a most beloved brother and faithful minister and fellow servant in the Lord, will make everything known to you. {4:8} I have sent him to you for this very purpose, so that he may know the things that concern you, and may console your hearts, {4:9} with Onesimus, a most beloved and faithful brother, who is from among you. They shall make known to you everything that is happening here. {4:10} Aristarchus, my fellow prisoner, greets you, as does Mark, the near cousin of Barnabas, about whom you have received instructions, (if he comes to you, receive him) {4:11} and Jesus, who is called Justus, and those who are of the circumcision. These alone are my assistants, unto the kingdom of God; they have been a consolation to me.
{4:12} Epaphras greets you, who is from among you, a servant of Christ Jesus, ever solicitous for you in prayer, so that you may stand, perfect and complete, in the entire will of God. {4:13} For I offer testimony to him, that he has labored greatly for you, and for those who are at Laodicea, and for those at Hierapolis. {4:14} Luke, a most beloved physician, greets you, as does Demas. {4:15} Greet the brothers who are at Laodicea, and Nymphas, and those who are at his house, a church. {4:16} And when this epistle is read among you, cause it to be read also in the church of the Laodiceans, and you should read that which is from the Laodiceans. {4:17} And tell Archippus: “See to the ministry that you have received in the Lord, in order to fulfill it.” {4:18} The greeting of Paul by my own hand. Remember my chains. May grace be with you. Amen.

 The First Letter to the Thessalonians **

[1 Thessalonians 1] {1:1} Paul and Sylvanus and Timothy, to the church of the Thessalonians, in God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. {1:2} Grace and peace to you. We give thanks to God always for all of you, keeping the memory of you in our prayers without ceasing, {1:3} remembering your work of faith, and hardship, and charity, and enduring hope, in our Lord Jesus Christ, before God our Father. {1:4} For we know, brothers, beloved of God, of your election. {1:5} For our Gospel has not been among you in word alone, but also in virtue, and in the Holy Spirit, and with a great fullness, in the same manner as you know we have acted among you for your sake. {1:6} And so, you became imitators of us and of the Lord, accepting the Word in the midst of great tribulation, but with the joy of the Holy Spirit. {1:7} So have you become a pattern for all who believe in Macedonia and in Achaia. {1:8} For from you, the Word of the Lord was spread, not only in Macedonia and in Achaia, but also in every place. Your faith, which is toward God, has advanced so much so that we do not need to speak to you about anything. {1:9} For others are reporting among us of the kind of acceptance we had among you, and how you were converted from idols to God, to the service of the living and true God, {1:10} and to the expectation of his Son from heaven (whom he raised up from the dead), Jesus, who has rescued us from the approaching wrath.

[1 Thessalonians 2] {2:1} For you yourselves know, brothers, that our acceptance among you was not empty. {2:2} Instead, having previously suffered and been treated shamefully, as you know, at Philippi, we had confidence in our God, so as to speak the Gospel of God to you with much solicitude. {2:3} For our exhortation was not in error, nor from impurity, nor with deception. {2:4} But, just as we have been tested by God, so that the Gospel would be entrusted to us, so also did we speak, not so as to please men, but rather to please God, who tests our hearts. {2:5} And neither did we, at any time, become flattering in speech, as you know, nor did we seek an opportunity for avarice, as God is witness. {2:6} Nor did we seek the glory of men, neither from you, nor from others. {2:7} And although we could have been a burden to you, as Apostles of Christ, instead we became like little ones in your midst, like a nurse cherishing her children. {2:8} So desirous were we for you that we were willing to hand over to you, not only the Gospel of God, but even our own souls. For you have become most beloved to us. {2:9} For you remember, brothers, our hardship and weariness. We preached the Gospel of God among you, working night and day, so that we would not be burdensome to any of you. {2:10} You are witnesses, as is God, of how holy and just and blameless we were with you who have believed. {2:11} And you know the manner, with each one of you, like a father with his sons, {2:12} in which we were pleading with you and consoling you, bearing witness, so that you would walk in a manner worthy of God, who has called you into his kingdom and glory. {2:13} For this reason also, we give thanks to God without ceasing: because, when you had accepted from us the Word of the hearing of God, you accepted it not as the word of men, but (as it truly is) as the Word of God, who is working in you who have believed. {2:14} For you, brothers, have become imitators of the churches of God which are at Judea, in Christ Jesus. For you, too, have suffered the same things from your fellow countrymen as they have suffered from the Jews, {2:15} who also killed both the Lord Jesus, and the Prophets, and who have persecuted us. But they do not please God, and so they are adversaries to all men. {2:16} They prohibit us to speak to the Gentiles, so that they may be saved, and thus do they continually add to their own sins. But the wrath of God will overtake them in the very end. {2:17} And we, brothers, having been deprived of you for a short time, in sight, but not in heart, have hurried all the more to see your face, with a great desire. {2:18} For we wanted to come to you, (indeed, I, Paul, attempted to do so once, and then again,) but Satan impeded us. {2:19} For what is our hope, and our joy, and our crown of glory? Is it not you, before our Lord Jesus Christ at his return? {2:20} For you are our glory and our joy.

[1 Thessalonians 3] {3:1} Because of this, willing to wait no longer, it was pleasing to us to remain at Athens, alone. {3:2} And we sent Timothy, our brother and a minister of God in the Gospel of Christ, to confirm you and to exhort you, on behalf of your faith, {3:3} so that no one would be disturbed during these tribulations. For you yourselves know that we have been appointed to this. {3:4} For even while we were with you, we predicted to you that we would suffer tribulations, even as it has happened, and as you know. {3:5} For this reason also, I was not willing to wait any longer, and I sent to find out about your faith, lest perhaps he who tempts may have tempted you, and our labor might have been in vain. {3:6} But then, when Timothy arrived to us from you, he reported to us your faith and charity, and that you keep a good remembrance of us always, desiring to see us, just as we likewise desire to see you. {3:7} As a result, we were consoled in you, brothers, in the midst of all our difficulties and tribulations, through your faith. {3:8} For we now live so that you may stand firm in the Lord. {3:9} For what thanks would we be able to repay to God because of you, for all the joy with which we rejoice over you before our God? {3:10} For night and day, ever more abundantly, we are praying that we may see your face, and that we may complete those things that are lacking in your faith. {3:11} But may God our Father himself, and our Lord Jesus Christ, direct our way to you. {3:12} And may the Lord multiply you, and make you abound in your charity toward one another and toward all, just as we also do toward you,
In order to confirm your hearts without blame, in sanctity, before God our Father, unto the return of our Lord Jesus Christ, with all his saints. Amen.

[1 Thessalonians 4] {4:1} Therefore, concerning other things, brothers, we ask and beg you, in the Lord Jesus, that, just as you have received from us the way in which you ought to walk and to please God, so also may you walk, in order that you may abound all the more. {4:2} For you know what precepts I have given to you through the Lord Jesus. {4:3} For this is the will of God, your sanctification: that you should abstain from fornication, {4:4} that each one of you should know how to possess his vessel in sanctification and honor, {4:5} not in passions of lust, like the Gentiles who do not know God, {4:6} and that no one should overwhelm or circumvent his brother in business. For the Lord is the vindicator of all these things, just as we have preached and testified to you. {4:7} For God has not called us to impurity, but to sanctification. {4:8} And so, whoever despises these teachings, does not despise man, but God, who has even provided his Holy Spirit within us. {4:9} But concerning the charity of brotherhood, we have no need to write to you. For you yourselves have learned from God that you should love one another. {4:10} For indeed, you act in this way with all the brothers in all of Macedonia. But we petition you, brothers, so that you may abound all the more, {4:11} to choose work that allows you to be tranquil, and to carry out your business and to do your work with your own hands, just as we have instructed you, {4:12} and to walk honestly with those who are outside, and to desire nothing belonging to another. {4:13} And we do not want you to be ignorant, brothers, concerning those who are sleeping, so as not to be sorrowful, like these others who do not have hope. {4:14} For if we believe that Jesus has died and risen again, so also will God bring back with Jesus those who sleep in him. {4:15} For we say this to you, in the Word of the Lord: that we who are alive, who remain until the return of the Lord, will not precede those who have fallen asleep. {4:16} For the Lord himself, with a command and with the voice of an Archangel and with a trumpet of God, shall descend from heaven. And the dead, who are in Christ, shall rise up first. {4:17} Next, we who are alive, who are remaining, shall be taken up quickly together with them into the clouds to meet Christ in the air. And in this way, we shall be with the Lord always. {4:18} Therefore, console one another with these words.

[1 Thessalonians 5] {5:1} But concerning dates and times, brothers, you do not need us to write to you. {5:2} For you yourselves thoroughly understand that the day of the Lord shall arrive much like a thief in the night. {5:3} For when they will say, “Peace and security!” then destruction will suddenly overwhelm them, like the labor pains of a woman with child, and they will not escape. {5:4} But you, brothers, are not in darkness, so that you would be overtaken by that day as by a thief. {5:5} For all of you are sons of light and sons of daytime; we are not of nighttime, nor of darkness. {5:6} Therefore, let us not sleep, as the rest do. Instead, we should be vigilant and sober. {5:7} For those who sleep, sleep in the night; and those who are inebriated, are inebriated in the night. {5:8} But we, who are of the daylight, should be sober, being clothed with the breastplate of faith and of charity and having, as a helmet, the hope of salvation. {5:9} For God has not appointed us for wrath, but for the acquisition of salvation through our Lord Jesus Christ, {5:10} who died for us, so that, whether we watch, or whether we sleep, we may live in union with him. {5:11} Because of this, console one another and build up one another, just as you are doing. {5:12} And we ask you, brothers, to recognize those who labor among you, and who preside over you in the Lord, and who admonish you, {5:13} so that you may consider them with an abundance of charity, for the sake of their work. Be at peace with them. {5:14} And we ask you, brothers: correct the disruptive, console the weak-minded, support the sick, be patient with everyone. {5:15} See to it that no one repays evil for evil to anyone. Instead, always pursue whatever is good, with one another and with all. {5:16} Rejoice always. {5:17} Pray without ceasing. {5:18} Give thanks in everything. For this is the will of God in Christ Jesus for all of you. {5:19} Do not choose to extinguish the Spirit. {5:20} Do not spurn prophecies. {5:21} But test all things. Hold on to whatever is good. {5:22} Abstain from every kind of evil. {5:23} And may the God of peace himself sanctify you through all things, so that your whole spirit and soul and body may be preserved without blame unto the return of our Lord Jesus Christ. {5:24} He who has called you is faithful. He shall act even now. {5:25} Brothers, pray for us. {5:26} Greet all the brothers with a holy kiss. {5:27} I bind you, through the Lord, that this epistle is to be read to all the holy brothers. {5:28} May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you. Amen.

 The Second Letter to the Thessalonians **

[2 Thessalonians 1] {1:1} Paul and Sylvanus and Timothy, to the church of the Thessalonians, in God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ. {1:2} Grace and peace to you, from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ. {1:3} We ought to give thanks always to God for you, brothers, in a fitting manner, because your faith is increasing greatly, and because the charity of each of you toward one another is abundant, {1:4} so much so that we ourselves even glory in you among the churches of God, because of your patience and faith in all of your persecutions and tribulations that you endure, {1:5} which are a sign of the just judgment of God, so that you may be held worthy of the kingdom of God, for which you also suffer. {1:6} For certainly, it is just for God to repay trouble to those who trouble you, {1:7} and to repay you, who are being troubled, with a reprove with us, when the Lord Jesus is revealed from heaven with the Angels of his virtue, {1:8} granting vindication, by a flame of fire, against those who do not know God and who are not obedient to the Gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ. {1:9} These shall be given the eternal punishment of destruction, apart from the face of the Lord and apart from the glory of his virtue, {1:10} when he arrives to be glorified in his saints, and to become a wonder in all those who have believed, in that day, because our testimony has been believed by you. {1:11} Because of this, too, we pray always for you, so that our God may make you worthy of his calling and may complete every act of his goodness, as well as his work of faith in virtue, {1:12} in order that the name of our Lord Jesus may be glorified in you, and you in him, in accord with the grace of our God and of the Lord Jesus Christ.

[2 Thessalonians 2]  {2:1} But we ask you, brothers, concerning the advent of our Lord Jesus Christ and of our gathering to him, {2:2} that you not be readily disturbed or terrified in your minds, by any spirit, or word, or epistle, supposedly sent from us, claiming that the day of the Lord is close by.  {2:3} Let no one deceive you in any way. For this cannot be, unless the apostasy will have arrived first, and the man of sin will have been revealed, the son of perdition, {2:4} who is an adversary to, and who is lifted up above, all that is called God or that is worshipped, so much so that he sits in the temple of God, presenting himself as if he were God.  {2:5} Do you not recall that, when I was still with you, I told you these things?  {2:6} And now you know what it is that holds him back, so that he may be revealed in his own time.  {2:7} For the mystery of iniquity is already at work. And only one now holds back, and will continue to hold back, until he is taken from our midst.  {2:8} And then that iniquitous one shall be revealed, the one whom the Lord Jesus shall bring to ruin with the spirit of his mouth, and shall destroy at the brightness of his return:  {2:9} him whose advent is accompanied by the works of Satan, with every kind of power and signs and false miracles, {2:10} and with every seduction of iniquity, toward those who are perishing because they have not accepted the love of truth, so that they may be saved. For this reason, God will send to them works of deception, so that they may believe in lies, {2:11} in order that all those who have not believed in the truth, but who have consented to iniquity, may be judged.  {2:12} Yet we must always give thanks to God for you, brothers, beloved of God, because God has chosen you as first-fruits for salvation, by the sanctification of the Spirit and by faith in the truth.  {2:13} He has also called you into truth through our Gospel, unto the acquisition of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ.  {2:14} And so, brothers, stand firm, and hold to the traditions that you have learned, whether by word or by our epistle.  {2:15} So may our Lord Jesus Christ himself, and God our Father, who has loved us and who has given us an everlasting consolation and good hope in grace, {2:16} exhort your hearts and confirm you in every good word and deed.

[2 Thessalonians 3]  {3:1} Concerning other things, brothers, pray for us, so that the Word of God may advance and be glorified, just as it is among you, {3:2} and so that we may be freed from pertinacious and evil men. For not everyone is faithful.  {3:3} But God is faithful. He will strengthen you, and he will guard you from evil.  {3:4} And we have confidence about you in the Lord, that you are doing, and will continue to do, just as we have instructed.  {3:5} And may the Lord direct your hearts, in the charity of God and with the patience of Christ.  {3:6} But we strongly caution you, brothers, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, to draw yourselves away from every brother who is walking in disorder and not according to the tradition that they received from us.  {3:7} For you yourselves know the manner in which you ought to imitate us. For we were not disorderly among you.  {3:8} Nor did we eat bread from anyone for free, but rather, we worked night and day, in hardship and weariness, so as not to be burdensome to you.  {3:9} It was not as if we had no authority, but this was so that we might present ourselves as an example to you, in order to imitate us.  {3:10} Then, too, while we were with you, we insisted on this to you: that if anyone was not willing to work, neither should he eat.  {3:11} For we have heard that there are some among you who act disruptively, not working at all, but eagerly meddling.  {3:12} Now we charge those who act in this way, and we beg them in the Lord Jesus Christ, that they work in silence and eat their own bread.  {3:13} And you, brothers, do not grow weak in doing good.  {3:14} But if anyone does not obey our word by this epistle, take note of him and do not keep company with him, so that he may be ashamed.  {3:15} But do not be willing to consider him as an enemy; instead, correct him as a brother.  {3:16} Then may the Lord of peace himself give you an everlasting peace, in every place. May the Lord be with all of you.  {3:17} The greeting of Paul with my own hand, which is the seal in every epistle. So do I write.  {3:18} May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.

 The First Letter to Timothy **

[1 Timothy 1]  {1:1} Paul, an Apostle of Jesus Christ by the authority of God our Savior and Christ Jesus our hope,  {1:2} to Timothy, beloved son in the faith. Grace, mercy, and peace, from God the Father and from Christ Jesus our Lord.  {1:3} Now I asked you to remain at Ephesus, while I went into Macedonia, so that you would speak strongly against certain ones who have been teaching a different way, {1:4} against those who have been paying attention to fables and endless genealogies. These things present questions as if they were greater than the edification that is of God, which is in faith.  {1:5} Now the goal of instruction is charity from a pure heart, and a good conscience, and an unfeigned faith.  {1:6} Certain persons, wandering away from these things, have been turned aside to empty babbling, {1:7} desiring to be teachers of the law, but understanding neither the things that they themselves are saying, nor what they are affirming about these things.  {1:8} But we know that the law is good, if one makes use of it properly.  {1:9} Knowing this, that the law was not set in place for the just, but for the unjust and the insubordinate, for the impious and sinners, for the wicked and the defiled, for those who commit patricide, matricide, or homicide,  {1:10} for fornicators, for males who sleep with males, for kidnappers, for liars, for perjurers, and whatever else is contrary to sound doctrine, {1:11} which is in accord with the Gospel of the glory of the blessed God, the Gospel which has been entrusted to me.  {1:12} I give thanks to him who has strengthened me, Christ Jesus our Lord, because he has considered me faithful, placing me in the ministry, {1:13} though previously I was a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and contemptuous. But then I obtained the mercy of God. For I had been acting ignorantly, in unbelief.  {1:14} And so the grace of our Lord has abounded greatly, with the faith and love that is in Christ Jesus.  {1:15} It is a faithful saying, and worthy of acceptance by everyone, that Christ Jesus came into this world to bring salvation to sinners, among whom I am first.  {1:16} But it was for this reason that I obtained mercy, so that in me as first, Christ Jesus would display all patience, for the instruction of those who would believe in him unto eternal life.  {1:17} So then, to the King of ages, to the immortal, invisible, solitary God, be honor and glory forever and ever. Amen. {1:18} This precept I commend to you, my son Timothy, in accord with the prophets who preceded you: that you serve among them like a soldier in a good war, {1:19} holding to faith and good conscience, against those who, by rejecting these things, have made a shipwreck of the faith. {1:20} Among these are Hymenaeus and Alexander, whom I have handed over to Satan, so that they may learn not to blaspheme.

[1 Timothy 2] {2:1} And so I beg you, first of all, to make supplications, prayers, petitions, and thanksgivings for all men, {2:2} for kings, and for all who are in high places, so that we may lead a quiet and tranquil life in all piety and chastity. {2:3} For this is good and acceptable in the sight of God our Savior, {2:4} who wants all men to be saved and to arrive at an acknowledgment of the truth. {2:5} For there is one God, and one mediator of God and of men, the man Christ Jesus, {2:6} who gave himself as a redemption for all, as a testimony in its proper time. {2:7} Of this testimony, I have been appointed a preacher and an Apostle, (I speak the truth, I do not lie) as a teacher of the Gentiles, in faith and in truth. {2:8} Therefore, I want men to pray in every place, lifting up pure hands, without anger or dissension. {2:9} Similarly also, women should be dressed fittingly, adorning themselves with compunction and restraint, and not with plaided hair, nor gold, nor pearls, nor costly attire, {2:10} but in a manner proper for women who are professing piety by means of good works. {2:11} Let a woman learn in silence with all subjection. {2:12} For I do not permit a woman to teach, nor to be in authority over a man, but to be in silence. {2:13} For Adam was formed first, then Eve. {2:14} And Adam was not seduced, but the woman, having been seduced, was in transgression. {2:15} Yet she will be saved by bearing children, if she has continued in faith and love, and in sanctification accompanied by self-restraint.

[1 Timothy 3] {3:1} It is a faithful saying: if a man desires the episcopate, he desires a good work. {3:2} Therefore, it is necessary for a bishop to be beyond reproach, the husband of one wife, sober, prudent, gracious, chaste, hospitable, a teacher, {3:3} not a drunkard, not combative but restrained, not quarrelsome, not covetous; {3:4} but a man who leads his own house well, having children who are subordinate with all chastity. {3:5} For if a man does not know how to lead his own house, how will he take care of the Church of God? {3:6} He must not be a new convert, lest, being elated by pride, he may fall under the sentence of the devil. {3:7} And it is necessary for him also to have good testimony from those who are outside, so that he may not fall into disrepute and the snare of the devil. {3:8} Similarly, deacons must be chaste, not double-tongued, not given to much wine, not pursuing tainted profit, {3:9} holding to the mystery of the faith with a pure conscience. {3:10} And these things should be proven first, and then they may minister, being without offense. {3:11} Similarly, the women must be chaste, not slanderers, sober, faithful in all things. {3:12} Deacons should be the husband of one wife, men who lead their own children and their own houses well. {3:13} For those who have ministered well will acquire for themselves a good position, and much confidence in the faith which is in Christ Jesus. {3:14} I am writing these things to you, with the hope that I will come to you soon. {3:15} But, if I am delayed, you should know the manner in which it is necessary to conduct yourself in the house of God, which is the Church of the living God, the pillar and the foundation of truth. {3:16} And it is clearly great, this mystery of piety, which was manifested in the flesh, which was justified in the Spirit, which has appeared to Angels, which has been preached to the Gentiles, which is believed in the world, which has been taken up in glory.

[1 Timothy 4] {4:1} Now the Spirit has clearly said that, in the end times, some persons will depart from the faith, paying attention to spirits of error and the doctrines of devils, {4:2} speaking lies in hypocrisy, and having their consciences seared, {4:3} prohibiting marriage, abstaining from foods, which God has created to be accepted with thanksgiving by the piety and by those who have understood the truth. {4:4} For every creature of God is good, and nothing is to be rejected which is received with thanksgiving; {4:5} for it has been sanctified by the Word of God and by prayer. {4:6} By proposing these things to the brothers, you will be a good minister of Christ Jesus, nourished by words of faith, and by the good doctrine that you have secured. {4:7} But avoid the silly fables of old women. And exercise yourself so as to advance in piety. {4:8} For the exercise of the body is somewhat useful. But piety is useful in all things, holding the promise of life, in the present and in the future. {4:9} This is a faithful saying and worthy of full acceptance. {4:10} For this reason we labor and are maltreated: because we hope in the living God, who is the Savior of all men, most especially of the faithful. {4:11} Instruct and teach these things. {4:12} Let no one despise your youth, but be an example among the faithful in word, in behavior, in charity, in faith, in chastity. {4:13} Until I arrive, attend to reading, to exhortation, and to doctrine. {4:14} Do not be willing to neglect the grace that is within you, which was given to you through prophecy, with the imposition of the hands of the priesthood. {4:15} Meditate on these things, so that your progress may be manifest to all. {4:16} Pay attention to yourself and to doctrine. Pursue these things. For in doing so, you will save both yourself and those who listen to you.

[1 Timothy 5] {5:1} You should not rebuke an old man, but rather plead with him, as if he were your father; with young men, like brothers; {5:2} with old women, like mothers; with young women, in all chastity, like sisters. {5:3} Honor those widows who are true widows. {5:4} But if any widow has children or grandchildren, let her first learn to manage her own household, and to fulfill, in turn, her own obligation to her parents; for this is acceptable before God. {5:5} But she who is truly a widow and is destitute, let her hope in God, and let her be urgent in supplications and prayers, night and day. {5:6} For she who is living in pleasures is dead, while living. {5:7} And give instruction in this, so that they may be beyond reproach. {5:8} But if anyone has no concern for his own, and especially for those of his own household, he has denied the faith, and he is worse than an unbeliever. {5:9} Let a widow be chosen who is no less than sixty years of age, who was the wife of one husband, {5:10} who has testimony of her good works: whether she has educated children, or has provided hospitality, or has washed the feet of the saints, or has ministered to those suffering tribulation, or has pursued any kind of good work. {5:11} But avoid the
the good fight of faith. Take hold of the eternal life to which justice, piety, faith, charity, patience, meekness. {6:12} Fight you, O man of God, flee from these things, and truly pursue and have entangled themselves in many sorrows. {6:11} But persons, hungering in this way, have strayed from the faith perdition. {6:10} For desire is the root of all evils. Some harmful desires, which submerge men in destruction and in and into the snare of the devil and into many useless and {6:9} For those who want to become rich fall into temptation of some kind of covering, we should be content with these. {6:5} the conflicts of men who have been corrupted in mind From these arise envy, contention, blasphemy, evil suspicions: {6:4} then he is arrogant, knowing nothing, of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to that doctrine which is in accord with piety, {6:3} If anyone teaches otherwise, and does not consent to the sound words of our Lord Jesus Christ, and the elect Angels, that you should observe these things without prejudice, doing nothing which shows favoritism to either side. {5:22} You should not be quick to impose hands on anyone, nor should you take part in the sins of outsiders. Keep yourself chaste. {5:23} Do not continue to drink only water, but make use of a little wine, for the sake of your stomach and your frequent infirmities. {5:24} The sins of some men have been made manifest, preceding them to judgment, but those of others are manifested later. {5:25} Similarly, too, good deeds have been made manifest, but even when they are not, they cannot remain hidden.

The Second Letter to Timothy

[2 Timothy 1] {1:1} Paul, an Apostle of Jesus Christ through the will of God, in accord with the promise of the life which is in Christ Jesus, {1:2} to Timothy, most beloved son. Grace, mercy, peace, from God the Father and from Christ Jesus our Lord. {1:3} I give thanks to God, whom I serve, as my forefathers did, with a pure conscience. For without ceasing I hold the remembrance of you in my prayers, night and day, {1:4} desiring to see you, recalling your tears so as to be filled with joy, {1:5} calling to mind the same faith, which is in you unfeigned, which also first dwelt in your grandmother, Lois, and in your mother, Eunice, and also, I am certain, in you. {1:6} Because of this, I admonish you to revive the grace of God, which is in you by the imposition of my hands. {1:7} For God has not given us a spirit of fear, but of virtue, and of love, and of self-restraint. {1:8} And so, do not be ashamed of the testimony of our Lord, nor of me, his prisoner. Instead, collaborate with the Gospel in accord with the virtue of God, {1:9} who has freed us and has called us to his holy vocation, not according to our works, but according to his own purpose and grace, which was given to us in Christ Jesus, before the ages of time. {1:10} And this has now been made manifest by the illumination of our Savior Jesus Christ, who certainly has destroyed death, and who has also illuminated life and incorruption through the Gospel. {1:11} Of this Gospel, I have been appointed a preacher, and an Apostle, and a teacher of the Gentiles. {1:12} For this reason, I also suffer these things. But I am not confounded. For I know in whom I have believed, and I am certain that he has the power to preserve what was entrusted to me, unto that day. {1:13} Hold to the kind of sound words that you have heard from me in the faith and love which is in Christ Jesus. {1:14} Guard the good entrusted to you through the Holy Spirit, who lives within us. {1:15} Know this: that all those who are in Asia have turned away from me, among whom are Phigellus and Hermogenes. {1:16} May the Lord have mercy on the house of Onesiphorus, because he has often refreshed me, and he has not been ashamed of my chains. {1:17} Instead, when he had arrived in Rome, he also, whoever strives in a competition is not crowned, unless he entangles himself in worldly matters, so that he may be of Christ Jesus. {2:4} No man, acting as a soldier for God, will press near. {3:2} Men will be lovers of evil, and know this: that in the last days perilous times will press near. {3:26} and then they may recover from the seductive exercise of the devil, whom they are held captive at his will.

[2 Timothy 2] {2:1} And as for you, my son, be strengthened by the grace which is in Christ Jesus, {2:2} and by the things which you have heard from me through many witnesses. These things encourage faithful men, who shall then be suitable to teach others also. {2:3} Labor like a good soldier of Christ Jesus. {2:4} No man, acting as a soldier for God, entangles himself in worldly matters, so that he may be pleasing to him for whom he has proven himself. {2:5} Then, too, whoever strives in a competition is not crowned, unless he has competed lawfully. {2:6} The farmer who labors ought to be the first to share in the produce. {2:7} Understand what I am saying. For the Lord will give you understanding in all things. {2:8} Be mindful that the Lord Jesus Christ, who is the offspring of David, has risen again from the dead, according to my Gospel. {2:9} I labor in this Gospel, even while chained like an evildoer. But the Word of God is not bound. {2:10} I endure all things for this reason: for the sake of the elect, so that they, too, may obtain the salvation which is in Christ Jesus, with heavenly glory. {2:11} It is a faithful saying: that if we have died with him, we will also live with him. {2:12} If we suffer, we will also reign with him. If we deny him, he will also deny us. {2:13} If we are unfaithful, he remains faithful: he is not able to deny himself. {2:14} Insist on these things, testing before the Lord. Do not be contentious about words, for this is useful for nothing but the subversion of listeners. {2:15} Be solicitous in the task of presenting yourself before God as a proven and unashamed worker who has handled the Word of Truth correctly. {2:16} But avoid profane or empty talk. For these things advance one greatly in impiety. {2:17} And their word spreads like a cancer: among these are Hymenaeus and Philetus, {2:18} who have fallen away from the truth by saying that the resurrection is already complete. And so they have subverted the faith of certain persons. {2:19} But the firm foundation of God remains standing, having this seal: the Lord knows those who are his own, and all who know the name of the Lord depart from iniquity. {2:20} But, in a large house, there are not only vessels of gold and of silver, but also those of wood and of clay; and certainly some are held in honor, but others in dishonor. {2:21} If anyone, then, will have cleansed himself from these things, he shall be a vessel held in honor, sanctified and useful to the Lord, prepared for every good work. {2:22} So then, flee from the desires of your youth, yet truly, pursue justice, faith, hope, charity, and peace, along with those who call upon the Lord from a pure heart. {2:23} But avoid foolish and undisciplined questions, for you know that these produce strife. {2:24} For the servant of the Lord must not be contentious, but instead he must be meek toward everyone, teachable, patient, {2:25} correcting with self-restraint those who resist the truth. For at any time God may give them repentance, so as to recognize the truth, {2:26} and then they may recover from the snares of the devil, by whom they are held captive at his will.

[2 Timothy 3] {3:1} And know this: that in the last days perilous times will press near. {3:2} Men will be lovers of themselves, greedy, self-exalting, arrogant, blasphemers, disobedient to parents, ungrateful, wicked, {3:3} without affection, without peace, false accusers, unchaste, cruel, without kindness, {3:4} traitorous, reckless, self-important, loving pleasure more than God, {3:5} even having the appearance of piety while rejecting its virtue. And so, avoid them. {3:6} For among these are ones who penetrate houses and lead away, like captives, foolish women burdened with sins, who are led away by means of various desires, {3:7} always learning, yet never achieving knowledge of the truth. {3:8} And in the same manner that Jannes and Jambres resisted Moses, so also will these resist the truth, men corrupted in mind, reprobrates from the faith. {3:9} But they will not advance beyond a certain point. For the folly of the latter shall be made manifest to all, just as that of the former. {3:10} But you have fully comprehended my doctrine, instruction, purpose, faith, longsuffering, love, patience, {3:11} persecutions, affictions; such things as happened to me at Antioch, at Iconium, and at Lystra; how I endured persecutions, and how the Lord rescued me from everything. {3:12} And all those who willingly live the piety in Christ Jesus will suffer persecution. {3:13} But evil men and deceivers will advance in evil, erring and sending into error. {3:14} Yet truly, you should remain in those things which you have learned and which have been entrusted to you. For you know from whom you have learned them. {3:15} And, from your infancy, you have known the Sacred Scriptures, which are able to instruct you toward salvation, through the faith which is in Christ Jesus. {3:16} All Scripture, having been divinely inspired, is useful for teaching, for reproof, for correction, and for instruction in justice, {3:17} so that the man of God may be perfect, having been trained for every good work.

[2 Timothy 4] {4:1} I testify before God, and before Jesus Christ, who shall judge the living and the dead through his return and his kingdom: {4:2} that you should preach the word urgently, in season and out of season: reprove, entreat, rebuke, with all patience and doctrine. {4:3} For there shall be a time when they will not endure sound doctrine, but instead, according to their own desires, they will gather to themselves teachers, with itching ears, {4:4} and certainly, they will turn their hearing away from the truth, and they will be turned toward fables. {4:5} But as for you, truly, be vigilant, laboring in all things. Do the work of an Evangelist, fulfilling your ministry. Show self-restraint. {4:6} For I am already being worn away, and the time of my dissolution presses close. {4:7} I have fought the good fight. I have completed the course. I have preserved the faith. {4:8} As for the remainder, a crown of justice has been reserved for me, one which the Lord, the just judge, will render to me in that day, and not only to me, but also to those who look forward to his return. Hurry to return to me soon. {4:9} For Demas has abandoned me, out of love for this age, and he has departed for Thessalonica. {4:10} Crescens has gone to Galatia; Titus to Dalmatia. {4:11} Luke alone is with me. Take Mark and bring him with you; for he is useful to me in the ministry. {4:12} But Tychicus I have sent to Ephesus. {4:13} When you return, bring with you the supplies that I left with Carpus at Troas, and the books, but especially the parchments. {4:14} Alexander the coppersmith has shown me much evil; the Lord will repay him according to his works.
And you should also avoid him; for he has strongly resisted our words. At my first defense, no one stood by me, but everyone abandoned me. May it not be counted against them! But the Lord stood with me and strengthened me, so that through me the preaching would be accomplished, and so that all the Gentiles would hear. And I was freed from the mouth of the lion. The Lord has freed me from every evil work, and he will accomplish salvation by his heavenly kingdom. To him be glory forever and ever. Amen. Greet Priscas, and Aquilas, and the household of Onesiphorus. Erastus remained at Corinth. And Trophimus I left sick at Mileus. Hurry to arrive before winter. Eubulus, and Pudens, and Linus, and Claudia, and all the brothers greet you. May the Lord Jesus Christ be with you. May grace be with you. Amen.

The Letter to Titus

[Titus 1] 1:1 Paul, a servant of God and an Apostle of Jesus Christ, in accord with the faith of God’s elect and in acknowledgment of the truth which is accompanied by piety, in the hope of the eternal life that God, who does not lie, promised before the ages of time, which, at the proper time, he has manifested by his Word, in the preaching that has been entrusted to me by the command of God our Savior; to Titus, beloved son according to the common faith. Grace and peace, from God the Father and from Christ Jesus our Savior.

1:2 For this reason, I left you behind in Crete: so that those things which are lacking, you would correct, and so that you would ordain, throughout the communities, priests, (just as I also ordained you) if such a man is without offense, the husband of one wife, having faithful children, not accused of self-indulgence, nor of insubordination. And a bishop, as a steward of God, must be without offense: not arrogant, not short-tempered, not a drunkard, not violent, not desiring tainted profit, but instead: hospitable, kind, sober, just, holy, chaste, not given to much wine, teaching well, prudent, sound in faith, in love, in patience. Old women, similarly, should be in holy attire, not false accusers, not given to much wine, teaching well, so that they may teach prudence to the young women, so that they may love their husbands, love their children, be sensible, chaste, restrained, have concern for the household, be kind, be subordinate to their husbands: so that the Word of God may be not blasphemed.

1:3 Exhort young men similarly, so that they may show self-restraint. In all things, present yourself as an example of good works: in doctrine, with integrity, with seriousness, with sound words, irreprouchably, so that he who is an opponent may dread that he has nothing evil to say about us.

1:4 Exhort servants to be submissive to their masters, in all things pleasing, not contradicting, not cheating, but in all things showing good fidelity, so that they may adorn the doctrine of God our Savior in all things. For the grace of God our Savior has appeared to all men, instructing us to reject impiety and worldly desires, so that we may live soberly and justly and piously in this age, looking forward to the blessed hope and the advent of the glory of the great God and of our Savior Jesus Christ.

1:5 He gave himself for our sake, so that he might redeem us from all iniquity, and might cleanse for himself an acceptable people, pursuers of good works.

1:6 Speak and exhort and argue these things with all authority. Let no one despise you.

[Titus 3] 3:1 Admonish them to be subordinate to the rulers and authorities, to obey their dictates, to be prepared for every good work, to speak evil of no one, not to be litigious, but to be reserved, displaying all meekness toward all men.

3:2 For, in times past, we ourselves were also unwise, unbelieving, erring, servants of various desires and pleasures, acting with malice and envy, being hateful and hating one another. But then the kindness and humanity of God our Savior appeared. And he saved us, not by works of justice that we had done, but, in accord with his mercy, by the washing of regeneration and by the renovation of the Holy Spirit, whom he has poured out upon us in abundance, through Jesus Christ our Savior.

3:3 So that, having been justified by his grace, we may become heirs according to the hope of eternal life. This is a faithful saying. And I want you to confirm these things, so that those who believe in God may take care to excelt in good works. These things are good and useful to men.

3:4 But avoid foolish questions, and genealogies, and contentions, as well as arguments against the law. For these are useless and empty. Avoid a man who is a heretic, after the first and second correction, knowing that one who is like this has been subverted, and that he offends; for he has been condemned by his own judgment.

3:5 When I send Artemas or Tychicus to you, hurry to return to me at Nicopolis. For I have decided to winter there. Send Zenas the lawyer and Apollo ahead with care, and let nothing be lacking to them. But let our men also learn to excel in good works pertaining to the necessities of life, so that they may not be unfruitful.

3:6 All those who are with me greet you. Greet those who love us in the faith. May the grace of God be with you all. Amen.
The Letter to Philemon

[Philemon 1] 1:1 Paul, a prisoner of Christ Jesus, and Timothy, a brother, to Philemon, our beloved fellow laborer, 1:2 and to Apphia, most beloved sister, and to Archippus, our fellow soldier, and to the church which is in your house. 1:3 Grace and peace to you, from God our Father and from the Lord Jesus Christ. 1:4 I give thanks to my God always keeping remembrance of you in my prayers, 1:5 (for I am hearing of your charity and faith, which you have in the Lord Jesus and with all the saints) 1:6 so that the participation of your faith may become evident by the recognition of every good work which is in you in Christ Jesus. 1:7 For I have found great joy and consolation in your charity, because the hearts of the saints have been refreshed by you, brother. 1:8 Because of this, I have enough confidence in Christ Jesus to command you concerning certain things, 1:9 but I beg you instead, for the sake of charity, since you are so much like Paul: an old man and now also a prisoner of Jesus Christ. 1:10 I beg you, on behalf of my son, whom I have begotten in my chains, Onesimus. 1:11 In times past, he was useless to you, but now he is useful both to me and to you. 1:12 So I have sent him back to you. And may you receive him like my own brother. 1:13 I myself wanted to retain him with me, so that he might minister to me, on your behalf, while I am in the chains of the Gospel. 1:14 But I was willing to do nothing without your counsel, so as not to make use of your good deed as if out of necessity, but only willingly. 1:15 So perhaps, then, he departed from you for a time, so that you might receive him again for eternity. 1:16 no longer as a servant, but, in place of a servant, a most beloved brother, especially to me: but how much so more to you, both in the flesh and in the Lord! 1:17 Therefore, if you hold me to be a companion, receive him as you would me. 1:18 But if he has harmed you in any way, or if he is in your debt, charge it to me. 1:19 I, Paul, have written this with my own hand: I will repay. And I need not tell you, that you are also in debt to me. 1:20 So it is, brother. May I delight with you in the Lord! Refresh my heart in Christ. 1:21 I have written to you, trusting in your obedience, knowing, too, that you will do even more than what I say. 1:22 But also, at once, prepare a lodging for me. For I am hoping, through your prayers, to present myself to you. 1:23 Greet Epaphras, my fellow captive in Christ Jesus, 1:24 and Mark, Aristarchus, Demas, and Luke, my helpers. 1:25 May the grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with your spirit. Amen.

The Letter to the Hebrews

[Hebrews 1] 1:1 In many places and in many ways, in past times, God spoke to the fathers through the Prophets; 1:2 lastly, in these days, he has spoken to us through the Son, whom he appointed as the heir of all things, and through whom he made the world. 1:3 And since the Son is the brightness of his glory, and the figure of his substance, and is carrying all things by the Word of his virtue, thereby accomplishing a purging of sins, he sits at the right hand of Majesty on high. 1:4 And having been made so much better than the Angels, he has inherited a name so much greater than theirs. 1:5 For to which of the Angels has he ever said: “You are my Son; today I have begotten you?” Or again: “I will be a Father to him, and he shall be a Son to me?” 1:6 And again, when he brings the only-begotten Son into the world, he says: “And let all the Angels of God adore him.” 1:7 And about the Angels, certainly, he says: “He makes his Angels spirits, and his ministers a flame of fire.” 1:8 But about the Son: “Your throne, O God, is forever and ever. The scepter of your kingdom is a scepter of equity.” 1:9 You have loved justice, and you have hated iniquity. Because of this, God, your God, has anointed you with the oil of exultation, above your companions.” 1:10 And: “In the beginning, O Lord, you founded the earth. And the heavens are the work of your hands. 1:11 These shall pass away, but you will remain. And all will grow old like a garment. 1:12 And you will change them like a cloak, and they shall be changed. Yet you are ever the same, and your years will not diminish.” 1:13 But to which of the Angels has he ever said: “Sit at my right hand, until I make your enemies your footstool?” 1:14 Are they not all spirits of ministration, sent to minister for the sake of those who shall receive the inheritance of salvation?

[Hebrews 2] 2:1 For this reason, it is necessary for us to observe more thoroughly the things that we have heard, lest we let them slip away. 2:2 For if a word that was spoken through the Angels has been made firm, and every transgression and disobedience has received the recompense of a just retribution, 2:3 in what way might we escape, if we neglect such a great salvation? For though initially it had begun to be described by the Lord, it was confirmed among us by those who heard him, 2:4 with God testifying to it by signs and wonders, and by various miracles, and by the pouring out of the Holy Spirit, in accord with his own will. 2:5 For God did not subject the future world, about which we are speaking, to the Angels. 2:6 But someone, in a certain place, has testified, saying: “What is man, that you are mindful of him, or the Son of man, that you visit him? 2:7 You have reduced him to a little less than the Angels. You have crowned him with glory and honor, and you have set him over the works of your hands. 2:8 You have subjected all things under his feet.” For in as much as he has subjected all things to him, he has left nothing not subject to him. But in the present time, we do not yet perceive that all things have been made subject to him. 2:9 Yet we understand that Jesus, who was reduced to a little less than the Angels, was crowned with glory and honor because of his Passion and death, in order that, by the grace of God, he might taste death for all. 2:10 For it was fitting for him, because of whom and through whom all things exist, who had led many children into glory, to complete the authorship of their salvation through his Passion. 2:11 For he who sanctifies, and those who are sanctified, are all from One. For this reason, he is not ashamed to call them brothers, saying: 2:12 “I will announce your name to my brothers. In the midst of the Church, I will praise you.” 2:13 And again: “I will be faithful in him.” And again: “Behold, I and my children, whom God has given to me.” 2:14 Therefore, because children have a common flesh and blood, he himself also, in like manner, has shared in the same, so that through death, he might destroy him who held the dominion of death, that is, the devil, 2:15 and so that he might free those who, through the fear of death, had been condemned to servitude throughout their entire life. {2:16} For at no time did he take hold of the Angels, but instead he took hold of the offspring of Abraham. {2:17} Therefore, it is fitting for him to be made similar to his brothers in all things, so that he might become a merciful and faithful High Priest before God, in order that he might bring forgiveness to the offenses of the people. {2:18} For in as much as he himself has suffered and has been tempted, he also is able to assist those who are tempted.

[Hebrews 3] {3:1} Therefore, holy brothers, sharers in the heavenly calling, consider the Apostle and High Priest of our confession: Jesus. {3:2} He is faithful to the One who made him, just as Moses also was, with his entire house. {3:3} For this Jesus was considered worthy of greater glory than Moses, so much so that the house which he has built holds a greater honor than the former one. {3:4} For every house is built by someone, but God is the One who has created all things. {3:5} And certainly Moses was faithful, with his entire house, like any servant, as a testimony to those things that would soon be said. {3:6} Yet truly, Christ is like a Son in his own house. We are that house, if we firmly retain the faithfulness and the glory of hope, even unto the end. {3:7} Because of this, it is just as the Holy Spirit says: “If today you hear his voice, {3:8} harden not your hearts, as in the provocation, the very day of temptation, in the desert, {3:9} where your fathers tested me, even though they had seen and examined my works for forty years. {3:10} For this reason, I was enraged against this generation, and I said: They always wander astray in heart. For they have not known my ways. {3:11} So it is as I swore in my wrath: They shall not enter into my rest!” {3:12} Be cautious, brothers, lest perhaps there may be, in any of you, an evil heart of unbelief, turning aside from the living God. {3:13} Instead, exhort one another every day, while it is still called ‘today,’ so that none of you perish in the heat of wrath: They shall not enter into my rest!” And certainly, this is the same manner as he said: “So it is as I have sworn in my wrath: They shall not enter into my rest!” And certainly, this is the same manner as he said: “So it is as I have sworn in my wrath: They shall not enter into my rest!” {4:6} Therefore, this is because certain ones remain who are to enter into it, and those to whom it was announced first did not enter into it, because of unbelief. {4:7} Again, he defines a certain day, after so much time, saying in David, “Today,” just as it was stated above, “If today you hear his voice, harden not your hearts.” {4:8} For if Jesus had offered them rest, he would never have spoken, afterward, about another day. {4:9} And so, there remains a Sabbath of rest for the people of God. {4:10} For whoever has entered into his rest, the same has also rested from his works, just as God did from his. {4:11} Therefore, let us hasten to enter into that rest, so that no one may fall into the same example of unbelief. {4:12} For the Word of God is living and effective: more piercing than any two-edged sword, reaching to the division even between the soul and the spirit, even between the joints and the marrow, and so it discerns the thoughts and intentions of the heart. {4:13} And there is no created thing that is invisible to his sight. For all things are naked and open to the eyes of him, about whom we are speaking. {4:14} Therefore, since we have a great High Priest, who has pierced the heavens, Jesus the Son of God, we should hold to our confession. {4:15} For we do not have a high priest who is unable to have compassion on our infirmities, but rather one who was tempted in all things, just as we are, yet without sin. {4:16} Therefore, let us go forth with confidence toward the throne of grace, so that we may obtain mercy, and find grace, in a helpful time.

[Hebrews 5] {5:1} For every high priest, having been taken from among men, is appointed on behalf of men toward the things which pertain to God, so that he may offer gifts and sacrifices on behalf of sins; {5:2} he is able to commiserate with those who are ignorant and who wander astray, because he himself is also encompassed by infirmity. {5:3} And because of this, he also must make such offerings for sins even for himself, in the same manner as for the people. {5:4} Neither does anyone take up this honor himself, but rather he who is called by God, just as Aaron was. {5:5} Thus, even Christ did not glorify himself, so as to become High Priest, but instead, it was God who said to him: “You are my Son. Today I have begotten you.” {5:6} And similarly, he says in another place: “You are a priest forever, according to the order of Melchizedek.” {5:7} It is Christ who, in the days of his flesh, with a strong cry and tears, offered prayers and supplications to the One who was able to save him from death, and who was heard because of his reverence. {5:8} And although, certainly, he is the Son of God, he learned obedience by the things that he suffered. {5:9} And having reached his consummation, he was made, for all who are obedient to him, the cause of eternal salvation, {5:10} having been called by God to be the High Priest, according to the order of Melchizedek. {5:11} Our message about him is great, and difficult to explain when speaking, because you have been made feeble when listening. {5:12} For even though it is the time when you ought to be teachers, you are still lacking, so that you must be taught the things that are the basic elements of the Word of God, and so you have been made like those who are in need of milk, and not of solid food. {5:13} For anyone who is still feeding on milk is still unskillful in the Word of Justice; for he is like an infant. {5:14} But solid food is for those who are mature, for those who, by practice, have sharpened their mind, so as to discern good from evil.

[Hebrews 6] {6:1} Therefore, interrupting an explanation of the basics of Christ, let us consider what is more advanced, not presenting again the fundamentals of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God, {6:2} of the doctrine of baptism, and also of the imposition of hands, and of the resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment. {6:3} And we shall do this, if indeed God permits it. {6:4} For it is impossible for those who were once illuminated, and have even tasted of the heavenly gift, and have become sharers in the Holy Spirit, {6:5} who, despite having tasted the good Word of God and the virtues of the future age, have yet fallen away, {6:6} to be renewed again to penance, since they are crucifying again in themselves the Son of God and are still maintaining pretenses. {6:7} For the earth accepts a blessing from God, by drinking in the rain that often falls upon it, and by producing plants that are useful to those by whom it is cultivated. {6:8} But whatever brings forth thorns and briers is rejected, and is closest to what is accursed; their consummation is in combustion. {6:9} But from you, most beloved, we are confident that there will be things better and closer to salvation; even though we speak in this way. {6:10} For God is not unjust, such that he would forget your work and the love that you have shown in his name. For you have ministered, and you continue to minister, to the saints. {6:11} Yet we desire that each one of you display the same solicitude toward the fulfillment of hope, even unto the end, {6:12} so that you may not be slow to act, but instead may be imitators of those who, through faith and patience, shall inherit the promises. {6:13} For God, in making promises to Abraham, swore by himself, (because he had no one greater by whom he might swear), {6:14} saying: “Blessing, I shall bless you, and multiplying, I shall multiply you.” {6:15} And in this way, by enduring patiently, he secured the promise. {6:16} For men swear by what is greater than themselves, and an oath as confirmation is the end of all their controversy. {6:17} In this matter, God, wanting to reveal more thoroughly the immutability of his counsel to the heirs of the promise, interposed an oath, {6:18} so that by two immutable things, in which it is impossible for God to lie, we may have the strongest solace: we who have fled together so as to hold fast to the hope set before us. {6:19} This we have as an anchor of the soul, safe and sound, which advances even to the interior of the veil, {6:20} to the place where the forerunner Jesus has entered on our behalf, so as to become the High Priest for eternity, according to the order of Melchizedek.

[Hebrews 7] {7:1} For this Melchizedek, king of Salem, priest of the Most High God, met Abraham, as he was returning from the slaughter of the kings, and blessed him. {7:2} And Abraham divided to him a tenth part of everything. And in translation his name is first, indeed, king of justice, and next also king of Salem, that is, king of peace. {7:3} Without father, without mother, without genealogy, having neither beginning of days, nor end of life, he is thereby likened to the Son of God, who remains a priest continuously. {7:4} Next, consider how great this man is, since the Patriarch Abraham even gave tithes to him from the principal things. {7:5} And indeed, those who are from the sons of Levi, having received the priesthood, hold a commandment to take tithes from the people in accord with the law, that is, from their brothers, even though they also went forth from the loins of Abraham. {7:6} But this man, whose lineage is not enumerated with them, received tithes from Abraham, and he blessed even the one who held the promises. {7:7} Yet this is without any contradiction, for what is less should be blessed by what is better. {7:8} And certainly, here, men who receive tithes still die; but there, he bears witness that he lives. {7:9} And so it may be said that even Levi, who received tithes, was himself a tithe through Abraham. {7:10} For he was still in the loins of his father, when Melchizedek met him. {7:11} Therefore, if consummation had occurred through the Levitical priesthood (for under it the people received the law), then what further need would there be for another Priest to rise up according to the order of Melchizedek, one who was not called according to the order of Aaron? {7:12} For since the priesthood has been transferred, it is necessary that the law also be transferred. {7:13} For he about whom these things have been spoken is from another tribe, in which no one attends before the altar. {7:14} For it is evident that our Lord arose out of Judah, a tribe about which Moses said nothing concerning priests. {7:15} And yet it is far more evident that, according to the likeness of Melchizedek, there rises up another priest, {7:16} who was made, not according to the law of a carnal commandment, but according to the virtue of an indissoluble life. {7:17} For he testifies: “You are a priest forever, according to the order of Melchizedek.” {7:18} Certainly, there is a setting aside of the former commandment, because of its weakness and lack of usefulness. {7:19} For the law led no one to perfection, yet truly it introduced a better hope, through which we draw near to God. {7:20} Moreover, it is not without an oath. For certainly, the others were made priests without an oath. {7:21} But this man was made a priest with an oath, by the One who said to him: “The Lord has sworn and he will not repent. You are a priest forever.” {7:22} By so much, Jesus has been made the sponsor of a better testament. {7:23} And certainly, so many of the others became priests because, due to death, they were prohibited from continuing. {7:24} But this man, because he continues forever, has an everlasting priesthood. {7:25} And for this reason, he is able, continuously, to save those who approach God through him, since he is ever alive to make intercession on our behalf. {7:26} For it was fitting that we should have such a High Priest: holy, innocent, undefiled, set apart from sinners, and exalted higher than the heavens. {7:27} And he has no need, daily, in the manner of other priests, to offer sacrifices, first for his own sins, and then for those of the people. For he has done this once, by offering himself. {7:28} For the law appoints men as priests, though they have infirmities. But, by the word of the oath that is after the law, the Son has been perfected for eternity.

[Hebrews 8] {8:1} Now the main point in the things that have been stated is this: that we have so great a High Priest, who is seated at the right hand of the throne of Majesty in the heavens, {8:2} who is the minister of holy things, and of the true tabernacle, which was established by the Lord, not by man. {8:3} For every high priest is appointed to offer gifts and sacrifices. Therefore, it is necessary for him also to have something to offer. {8:4} And so, if he were upon the earth, he would not be a priest, since there would be others to offer gifts according to the law, {8:5} gifts which serve as mere examples and shadows of the heavenly things. And so it was answered to Moses, when he was about to complete the tabernacle: “See to it,” he said, “that you make everything according to the example which was revealed to you on the mountain.” {8:6} But now he has been granted a better ministry, so much so that he is also the Mediator of a better testament, which has been confirmed by better promises. {8:7} For if the former one had been entirely without fault, then a place certainly would not have been sought for a subsequent one. {8:8} For, finding fault with them, he says: “Behold, the days shall arrive, says the Lord, when I will consummate a New Testament over the house of Israel and the house of Judah, {8:9} not according to the testament which I made with their fathers, on the day when I took them by the hand, so that I might lead them away from the land of Egypt. For they did not remain in my testament, and so I disregarded them, says the Lord. {8:10} For this is the testament which I will set before the house of Israel, after those days, says the Lord. I will instill my laws in their minds, and I will inscribe my laws on their hearts. And so, I will be their God, and they shall be my people. {8:11} And they will not teach, each one his neighbor, and each one his brother, saying: ‘Know the Lord.’ For all shall know me, from the least, even to the greatest of them. {8:12} For I will forgive their iniquities, and I will no longer remember their sins.” {8:13} Now in saying something new, he has made the former old. But that which decays and grows old is close to passing away.

[Hebrews 9] {9:1} Certainly, the former also had the justifications of worship and a holy place for that age. {9:2} For a tabernacle was made at first, in which were the lampstand, and the table, and the bread of the Presence, which is called Holy. {9:3} Then, beyond the second veil, was the tabernacle, which is called the Holy of Holies, {9:4} having a golden censer, and the ark of the testament, covered all around and on every part with gold, in which was a golden urn containing manna, and the rod of Aaron which had blossomed, and the tablets of the testament. {9:5} And over the ark were the Cherubim of glory, overshadowing the propitiatory. There is not enough time to speak about each of these things. {9:6} Yet truly, once such things were placed together, in the first part of the tabernacle, the priests were, indeed, continually entering, so as to carry out the duties of the sacrifices. {9:7} But into the second part, once a year, the high priest alone entered, not without blood, which he offered on behalf of the neglectful offenses of himself and of the people. {9:8} In this way, the Holy Spirit is signifying that the way to what is most holy was not yet made manifest, not while the first tabernacle was still standing. {9:9} And this is a parable for the present time. Accordingly, those gifts and sacrifices that are offered are not able, as concerns the conscience, to make perfect those things that serve only as food and drink, {9:10} as well as the various washings and justices of the flesh, which were imposed upon them until the time of correction. {9:11} But Christ, standing as the High Priest of future good things, through a greater and more perfect tabernacle, one not made by hand, that is, not of this creation, {9:12} entered once into the Holy of Holies, having obtained eternal redemption, neither by the blood of goats, nor of calves, but by his own blood. {9:13} For if the blood of goats and oxen, and the ashes of a calf, when these are sprinkled, sanctify those who have been defiled, in order to cleanse the flesh, {9:14} how much more will the blood of Christ, who through the Holy Spirit has offered himself, immaculate, to God, cleanse our conscience from dead works, in order to serve the living God? {9:15} And thus he is the Mediator of the new testament, so that, by his death, he intercedes for the redemption of those transgressions which were under the former testament, so that those who have been called may receive the promise of an eternal inheritance. {9:16} For where there is a testament, it is necessary for the death of the one who testifies to intervene. {9:17} For a testament is confirmed by death. Otherwise, it as yet has no force, as long as the one who testifies lives. {9:18} Therefore, indeed, the first was not dedicated without blood. {9:19} For when every commandment of the law had been read by Moses to the entire people, he took up the blood of calves and goats, with water and with scarlet wool and hyssop, and he sprinkled both the book itself and the entire people, {9:20} saying: “This is the blood of the testament which God has commanded for you.” {9:21} And even the tabernacle, and all the vessels for the ministry, he similarly sprinkled with blood. {9:22} And nearly everything, according to the law, is to be cleansed with blood. And without the shedding of blood, there is no remission. {9:23} Therefore, it is necessary for the examples of heavenly things to be cleansed, just as, indeed, these things were. Yet the heavenly things are themselves better sacrifices than these. {9:24} For Jesus did not enter by means of holy things made with hands, mere examples of the true things, but he entered into Heaven itself, so that he may appear now before the face of God for us. {9:25} And he did not enter so as to offer himself repeatedly, as the high priest enters into the Holy of Holies each year, with the blood of another. {9:26} Otherwise, he would need to have suffered repeatedly since the beginning of the world. But now, one time, at the consummation of the ages, he has appeared in order to destroy sin though his own sacrifice. {9:27} And in the same manner as it has been appointed for men to die one time, and after this, to be judged, {9:28} so also Christ was offered, one time, in order to empty the sins of so many. He shall appear a second time without sin, for those who await him, unto salvation.

[Hebrews 10] {10:1} For the law contains the shadow of future good things, not the very image of these things. So, by the very same sacrifices which they offer ceaselessly each year, they can never cause these to approach perfection. {10:2} Otherwise, they would have ceased to be offered, because the worshippers, once cleansed, would no longer be conscious of any sin. {10:3} Instead, in these things, a commemoration of sins is made every year. {10:4} For it is impossible for sins to be taken away by the blood of oxen and goats. {10:5} For this reason, as Christ enters into the world, he says: “Sacrifice and oblation, you did not want. But you have fashioned a body for me. {10:6} Holocausts for sin were not pleasing to you. {10:7} Then I said, ‘Behold, I draw near.’ At the head of the book, it has been written of me that I should do your will, O God.” {10:8} In the above, by saying, “Sacrifices, and oblations, and holocausts for sin, you did not want, nor are those things pleasing to you, which are offered according to the law; {10:9} then I said, ‘Behold, I have come to do your will, O God,' " he takes away the first, so that he may establish what follows. {10:10} For by this will, we have been sanctified, through the one time oblation of the body of Jesus Christ. {10:11} And certainly, every priest stands by, ministering daily, and frequently offering the same sacrifices, which are never able to take away sins. {10:12} But this man, offering one sacrifice for sins, sits at the right hand of God forever, {10:13} awaiting that time when his enemies will be made his footstool. {10:14} For, by one oblation, he has brought to fulfillment, for all time, those who are sanctified. {10:15} Now the Holy Spirit also testifies for us about this. For afterward, he said: {10:16} "And this is the testament which I will commit to them after those days, says the Lord. I will instill my laws in their hearts, and I will inscribe my laws on their minds. {10:17} And I will no longer remember their sins and iniquities." {10:18} Now, when there is a remission of these things, there is no longer an oblation for sin. {10:19} And so, brothers, have faith in the entrance into the Holy of Holies by the blood of Christ, {10:20} and in the new and living Way, which he has initiated for us by the veil, that is, by his flesh, {10:21} and in the Great Priest over the house of God. {10:22} So, let us draw near with a true heart, in the fullness of faith, having hearts cleansed from an evil conscience, and bodies absolved with clean water. {10:23} Let us hold fast to the confession of our hope, without wavering, for he who has promised is faithful. {10:24} And let us be considerate of one another, so as to prompt ourselves to charity and to good works, {10:25} not deserting our assembly, as some are accustomed to do, but consoling one another, and even more so as you see that the day is approaching. {10:26} For if we sin willingly, after receiving knowledge of the truth, there is no sacrifice remaining for sins, {10:27} but instead, a certain terrible expectation of judgment, and the rage of a fire that shall consume its adversaries. {10:28} If someone dies for acting against the law of Moses, and is shown no compassion because of two or three witnesses, {10:29} how much more, do you think, someone would deserve worse punishments, if he has tread upon the Son of God, and has treated the blood of the testament, by which he was sanctified, as unclean, and has acted with disgrace toward the Spirit of grace? {10:30} For we know that he has said: "Vengeance is mine, and I will repay," and again, "The Lord will judge his people." {10:31} It is dreadful to fall into the hands of the living God. {10:32} But call to mind the former days, in which, after being enlightened, you endured a great struggle of afflictions. {10:33} And certainly, in one way, by insults and tribulations, you were made a spectacle, but in another way, you became the companions of those who were the object of such behavior. {10:34} For you even had compassion on those who were imprisoned, and you accepted with gladness being deprived of your goods, knowing that you have a better and more lasting substance. {10:35} And so, do not lose your confidence, which has a great reward. {10:36} For it is necessary for you to be patient, so that, by doing the will of God, you may receive the promise. {10:37} "For, in a little while, and somewhat longer, he who is to come will return, and he will not delay. {10:38} For my just man lives by faith. But if he were to draw himself back, he would not please my soul." {10:39} So then, we are not sons who are drawn away to perdition, but we are sons of faith toward the securing of the soul.

[Hebrews 11] {11:1} Now, faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not apparent. {11:2} For this reason, the ancients were given testimony. {11:3} By faith, we understand the world to be fashioned by the Word of God, so that the visible might be made by the invisible. {11:4} By faith, Abel offered to God a much better sacrifice than that of Cain, through which he obtained testimony that he was just, in that God offered testimony to his gifts. And through that sacrifice, he still speaks to us, though he is dead. {11:5} By faith, Enoch was transferred, so that he would not see death, and he was not found because God had transferred him. For before he was transferred, he had testimony that he pleased God. {11:6} But without faith, it is impossible to please God. For whoever approaches God must believe that he exists, and that he rewards those who seek him. {11:7} By faith, Noah, having accepted an answer about those things which were not yet seen, being afraid, fashioned an ark for the salvation of his house. Through the ark, he condemned the world, and was established as the heir of the justice that occurs through faith. {11:8} By faith, the one called Abraham obeyed, going out to the place that he was to receive as an inheritance. And he went out, not knowing where he was going. {11:9} By faith, he stayed in the Land of the Promise as if in a foreign land, dwelling in cottages, with Isaac and Jacob, co-heirs of the same promise. {11:10} For he was awaiting a city having firm foundations, whose designer and builder is God. {11:11} By faith also, Sarah herself, being barren, received the ability to conceive offspring, even though she was past that age in life. For she believed him to be faithful, who had promised. {11:12} Because of this, there were also born, from one who himself was as if dead, a multitude like the stars of heaven, who are, like the sand of the seashore, innumerable. {11:13} All of these passed away, adhering to faith, not having received the promises, yet beholding them from afar and saluting them, and confessing themselves to be sojourners and guests upon the earth. {11:14} For those who speak in this way are themselves indicating that they seek a homeland. {11:15} And if, indeed, they had been mindful of the very place from which they departed, they certainly would have returned in time. {11:16} But now they hunger for a better place, that is, Heaven. For this reason, God is not ashamed to be called their God. For he has prepared a city for them. {11:17} By faith, Abraham, when he was tested, offered Isaac, so that he who had received the promises was offering up his only son. {11:18} To him, it was said, "Through Isaac, shall your offspring be summoned." {11:19} indicating that God is even able to raise up from the dead. And thus, he also established him as a parable. {11:20} By faith, also, Isaac blessed Jacob and Esau, concerning future events. {11:21} By faith, Jacob, as he was dying, blessed each of the sons of Joseph; and he reverenced the summit of his rod. {11:22} By faith, Joseph, as he was dying, recalled the departure of the sons of Israel, and gave a commandment concerning his bones. {11:23} By faith, Moses, after being born, was hidden for three months by his parents, because they had seen that he was a graceful infant, and they did not fear the king's edict. {11:24} By faith, Moses, after growing up, denied himself a place as the son of Pharaoh's daughter, {11:25} choosing to be afflicted with the people of God, rather than to have the pleasantness of sin for a time, {11:26} valuing the reproach of Christ to be a greater wealth than the treasures of the Egyptians. For he looked forward to his reward. [11:27] By faith, he abandoned Egypt, not dreading the animosity of the king. For he pressed on, as if seeing him who is unseen. [11:28] By faith, he celebrated the Passover and the shedding of the blood, so that he who destroyed the firstborn might not touch them. [11:29] By faith, they crossed the Red Sea, as if on dry land, yet when the Egyptians attempted it, they were swallowed up. [11:30] By faith, the walls of Jericho collapsed, after being encircled for seven days. [11:31] By faith, Rahab, the harlot, did not perish with the unbelievers, after receiving the spies with peace. [11:32] And what should I say next? For time is not sufficient for me to give an account of Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah, David, Samuel, and the Prophets: [11:33] those who, by faith, conquered kingdoms, accomplished justice, obtained promises, closed the mouths of lions, [11:34] extinguished the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, recovered from infirmities, showed strength in battle, turned back the armies of foreigners. [11:35] Women received their dead by means of resurrection. But others suffered severe punishment, not yet receiving redemption, so that they would find a better resurrection. [11:36] Truly, others were tested by mocking and lashes, and moreover by chains and imprisonment. [11:37] They were stoned; they were cut; they were tempted. With the slaughter of the sword, they were killed. They wandered about in sheepskin and in goatskin, in dire need, in anguish afflicted. [11:38] Of them, the world was not worthy, wandering in solitude on mountains, in the caves and caverns of the earth. [11:39] And all these, having been proven by the testimony of faith, did not receive the Promise. [11:40] God's Providence holds something better for us, so that not without us would they be perfected.

[Hebrews 12] [12:1] Furthermore, since we also have so great a cloud of witnesses over us, let us set aside every burden and sin which may surround us, and advance, through patience, to the struggle offered to us. [12:2] Let us gaze upon Jesus, as the Author and the completion of our faith, who, having joy laid out before him, endured the cross, disregarding the shame, and who now sits at the right hand of the throne of God. [12:3] So then, meditate upon him who endured such adversity from sinners against himself, so that you may not become weary, failing in your souls. [12:4] For you have not yet resisted unto blood, while striving against sin. [12:5] And you have forgot the consolation which you may not become weary, failing in your souls. [12:6] For whomever the Lord loves, he chastises. And every son whom he accepts.

[Hebrews 13] [13:1] May fraternal charity remain in you. [13:2] And do not be willing to forget hospitality. For by it, certain persons, without realizing it, have received Angels as guests. [13:3] Remember those who are prisoners, just as if you were imprisoned with them, and those who endure hardships, just as if you were in their place. [13:4] May marriage be honorable in every way, and may the marriage bed be immaculate. For God will judge fornicators and adulterers. [13:5] Let your behavior be without avarice; be content with what you are offered. For he himself has said, “I will not abandon you, and I will not neglect you.” [13:6] So then, we may confidently say, “The Lord is my helper. I will not fear what man can do to me.” [13:7] Remember your leaders, who have spoken the Word of God to you, whose faith you imitate, by observing the goal of their way of life: [13:8] Jesus Christ, yesterday and today; Jesus Christ forever. [13:9] Do not be led away by changing or strange doctrines. And it is best for the heart to be sustained by grace, not by
No one should say, when he is tempted, that he was tempted by God. For God does not entice toward evils, and he himself tempts no one. {1:14} Yet truly, each one is tempted by his own desires, having been enticed and drawn away. {1:15} Thereafter, when desire has conceived, it gives birth to sin. Yet truly sin, when it has been consummated, produces death. {1:16} And so, do not choose to go astray, my most beloved brothers. {1:17} Every excellent gift and every perfect gift is from above, descending from the Father of lights, with whom there is no change, nor any shadow of alteration. {1:18} For by his own will he produced us through the Word of truth, so that we might be a kind of beginning among his creatures. {1:19} You know this, my most beloved brothers. So let every man be quick to listen, but slow to speak and slow to anger. {1:20} For the anger of man does not accomplish the justice of God. {1:21} Because of this, having cast away all uncleanness and an abundance of malice, receive with meekness the newly-grafted Word, which is able to save your souls. {1:22} So be doers of the Word, and not listeners only, deceiving yourselves. {1:23} For if anyone is a listener of the Word, but not also a doer, he is comparable to a man gazing into a mirror upon the face that he was born with; {1:24} and after considering himself, he went away and promptly forgot what he had seen. {1:25} But he who gazes upon the perfect law of liberty, and who remains in it, is not a forgetful hearer, but instead a doer of the work. He shall be blessed in what he does. {1:26} But if anyone considers himself to be religious, but he does not restrain his tongue, but instead seduces his own heart: such a one's religion is vanity. {1:27} This is religion, clean and undefiled before God the Father: to visit orphans and widows in their tribulations, and to keep yourself immaculate, apart from this age.

The Letter of James

James, servant of God and of our Lord Jesus Christ, to the twelve tribes of the dispersion, greetings. {1:2} My brothers, when you have fallen into various trials, consider everything a joy, {1:3} knowing that the proving of your faith exercises patience, {1:4} and patience brings a perfect man, who leads back from the dead that great Pastor of sheep, our Lord Jesus Christ, with the blood of the eternal testament, {1:5} But if anyone among you is in need of wisdom, let him petition God, who gives abundantly to all without reproach, and it shall be given to him. {1:6} But he should ask with faith, doubting nothing. For he who doubts is like a wave on the ocean, which is moved about by the wind and carried away; {1:7} then a man should not consider that he would receive anything from the Lord. {1:8} For a man who is of two minds is inconsistent in all his ways. {1:9} Now a humble brother should glory in his exaltation, {1:10} and a rich one, in his humiliation, for he will pass away like the flower of the grass. {1:11} For the sun has risen with a scorching heat, and has dried the grass, and its flower has fallen off, and the appearance of its beauty has perished. So also will the rich one wither away, according to his paths. {1:12} Blessed is the man who suffers temptation. For when he has been proven, he shall receive the crown of life which God has promised to those who love him. {1:13} No one should say, when he is tempted, that he was tempted by God.
mercy. But mercy exalts itself above judgment. {2:14} My brothers, what benefit is there if someone claims to have faith, but he does not have works? How would faith be able to save him? {2:15} So if a brother or sister is naked and daily in need of food, {2:16} and if anyone of you were to say to them: “Go in peace, keep warm and nourished,” and yet not give them the things that are necessary for the body, of what benefit is this? {2:17} Thus even faith, if it does not have works, is dead, in and of itself. {2:18} Now someone may say: “You have faith, and I have works.” Show me your faith without works! But I will show you my faith by means of works. {2:19} You believe that there is one God. You do well. But the demons also believe, and they tremble greatly. {2:20} So then, are you willing to understand, O foolish man, that faith without works is dead? {2:21} Was not our father Abraham justified by means of works, by offering his son Isaac upon the altar? {2:22} Do you see that faith was cooperating with his works, and that by means of works faith was brought to fulfillment? {2:23} And so the Scripture was fulfilled which says: “Abraham believed God, and it was credited to him as righteousness.” And so he was called the friend of God. {2:24} Do you see that a man is justified by means of works, and not by faith alone? {2:25} Similarly also, Rahab, the harlot, was she not justified by works, by receiving the messengers and sending them out through another way? {2:26} For just as the body without the spirit is dead, so also faith without works is dead.

[James 3] {3:1} My brothers, not many of you should choose to become teachers, knowing that you shall receive a stricter judgment. {3:2} For we all offend in many ways. If anyone does not offend in word, he is a perfect man. And he is then able, as if with a bridle, to lead the whole body around. {3:3} For so we put bridles into the mouths of horses, in order to submit them to our will, and so we turn their whole body around. {3:4} Consider also the ships, which, though they are great and may be driven by strong winds, yet they are turned around with a small rudder, to be directed to wherever the strength of the pilot might will. {3:5} So also the tongue certainly is a small part, but it moves great things. Consider that a small fire can set ablaze a great forest. {3:6} And so the tongue is like a fire, comprising all iniquity. The tongue, stationed in the midst of our body, can defile the entire body and inflame the wheel of our nativity, setting a fire from Hell. {3:7} For the nature of all beasts and birds and serpents and others is ruled over, and has been ruled over, by human nature. {3:8} But no man is able to rule over the tongue, a restless evil, full of deadly poison. {3:9} By it we bless God the Father, and by it we speak evil of men, who have been made in the likeness of God. {3:10} From the same mouth proceeds blessing and cursing. My brothers, these things ought not to be so! {3:11} Does a fountain emit, out of the same opening, both sweet and bitter water? {3:12} My brothers, can the fig tree yield grapes? Or the vine, figs? Then neither is salt water able to produce fresh water. {3:13} Who is wise and well-taught among you? Let him show, by means of good conversation, his work in the meekness of wisdom. {3:14} But if you hold a bitter zeal, and if there is contention in your hearts, then do not boast and do not be liars against the truth. {3:15} For this is not wisdom, descending from above, but rather it is earthly, beastly, and diabolical. {3:16} For wherever envy and contention is, there too is inconstancy and every depraved work. {3:17} But within the wisdom that is from above, certainly, chastity is first, and next peacefulness, meekness, openness, consenting to what is good, a plenteous of mercy and good fruits, not judging, without falseness. {3:18} And so the fruit of justice is sown in peace by those who make peace.

[James 4] {4:1} Where do wars and contentions among you come from? Is it not from this: from your own desires, which battle within your members? {4:2} You desire, and you do not have. You envy and you kill, and you are unable to obtain. You argue and you fight, and you do not have, because you do not ask. {4:3} You ask and you do not receive, because you ask badly, so that you may use it toward your own desires. {4:4} You adulterers! Do you not know that the friendship of this world is hostile to God? Therefore, whoever has chosen to be a friend of this world has been made into an enemy of God. {4:5} Or do you think that Scripture says in vain: “The spirit which lives within you desires unto envy?” {4:6} But he gives a greater grace. Therefore he says: “God resists the arrogant, but he gives grace to the humble.” {4:7} Therefore, be subject to God. But resist the devil, and he will flee from you. {4:8} Draw near to God, and he will draw near to you. Cleanse your hands, you sinners! And purify your hearts, you duplicitous souls! {4:9} Be afflicted: mourn and weep. Let your laughter be turned into mourning, and your gladness into sorrow. {4:10} Be humbled in the sight of the Lord, and he will exalt you. {4:11} Brothers, do not choose to slander one another. Whoever slanders his brother, or whoever judges his brother, slanders the law and judges the law. But if you judge the law, you are not a doer of the law, but a judge. {4:12} There is one lawgiver and one judge. He is able to destroy, and he is able to set free. {4:13} But who are you to judge your neighbor? Consider this, you who say, “Today or tomorrow we will go into that city, and certainly we will spend a year there, and we will do business, and we will make our profit.” {4:14} Consider that you do not know what will be tomorrow. {4:15} For what is your life? It is a mist that appears for a brief time, and afterwards will vanish away. So what you ought to say is: “If the Lord wills,” or, “If we live,” we will go into that city, and we will do business, and we will make our profit.” {4:16} But now you exult in your arrogance. All such exultation is wicked. {4:17} Therefore, he who knows that he ought to do a good thing, and does not do it, for him it is a sin.

[James 5] {5:1} Act now, you who are wealthy! Weep and wail in your miseries, which will soon come upon you! {5:2} Your riches have been corrupted, and your garments have been eaten by moths. {5:3} Your gold and silver have rusted, and their rust will be a testimony against you, and it will eat away at your flesh like fire. You have stored up wrath for yourselves unto the last days. {5:4} Consider the pay of the workers who reaped your fields: it has been misappropriated by you; it cries out. And their cry has entered into the ears of the Lord of hosts. {5:5} You have feasted upon the earth, and you have nourished your hearts with luxuries, unto the day of slaughter. {5:6} You led away and killed the Just One, and he did not resist you. {5:7} Therefore, be patient, brothers, until the advent of the Lord. Consider that the farmer anticipates the precious fruit of the earth, waiting patiently, until he receives the early and the late rains. {5:8} Therefore, you too should be patient and should strengthen your hearts. For the advent of the Lord draws near. {5:9} Brothers, do not complain against one another, so that you may not be judged. Behold, the judge stands before the door. {5:10} My brothers, consider the Prophets, who spoke in the name of the Lord, as an example of departing from evil, of labor, and of patience. {5:11} Consider that we beatify those who have endured. You have heard of the patient suffering of Job. And you have seen the end of the Lord, that the Lord is merciful and compassionate. {5:12} But before all things, my brothers, do not choose to swear, neither by heaven, nor by the earth, nor in any other oath. But let your word ‘Yes’ be yes, and your word ‘No’ be no, so that you may not fall under judgment. {5:13} Is any of you sad? Let him pray. Is he even-tempered? Let him sing psalms. {5:14} Is anyone ill among you? Let him bring in the priests of the Church, and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord. {5:15} And a prayer of faith will save the infirm, and the Lord will alleviate him. And if he has sins, these will be forgiven him. {5:16} Therefore, confess your sins to one another, and pray for one another, so that you may be saved. For the unremitting prayer of a just person prevails over many things. {5:17} Elijah was a mortal man like us, and in prayer he prayed that it would not rain upon the earth. And it did not rain for three years and six months. {5:18} And he prayed again. And the heavens gave rain, and the earth brought forth her fruit. {5:19} My brothers, if anyone of you strays from the truth, and if someone converts him, {5:20} he ought to know that whoever causes a sinner to be converted from the error of his ways will save his soul from death and will cover a multitude of sins.

 The First Letter of Peter **

[1 Peter 1] {1:1} Peter, Apostle of Jesus Christ, to the newly-arrived elect of the dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia, {1:2} in accord with the foreknowledge of God the Father, in the sanctification of the Spirit, with the goal of your faith, the salvation of souls. {1:3} For this reason, gird the waist of your mind, be sober, and hope perfectly in the grace that is offered to you in the revelation of Jesus Christ. {1:4} Be like sons of obedience, not conforming to the desires of your former ignorance, {1:5} but in accord with him who has called you: the Holy One. And in every behavior, you yourself must be holy, {1:6} for it is written: “You shall be holy, for I am Holy.” {1:7} And if you invoke as Father him who, without showing favoritism to persons, judges according to each one’s work, then act in fear during the time of your sojourning here. {1:8} For you know that it was not with corruptible gold or silver that you were redeemed away from your useless behavior in the traditions of your fathers, {1:9} but it was with the precious blood of Christ, an immaculate and undefiled lamb, {1:10} foreknown, certainly, before the foundation of the world, and made manifest in these latter times for your sake. {1:11} Through him, you have been faithful to God, who raised him up from the dead and gave him glory, so that your faith and hope would be in God. {1:12} So chastise your souls with the obedience of charity, in fraternal love, and love one another from a simple heart, attentively. {1:13} For you have been born again, not from corruptible seed, but from what is incorruptible, from the Word of God, living and remaining for all eternity. {1:14} For all flesh is like the grass and all its glory is like the flower of the grass. The grass withers and its flower falls away. {1:15} But the Word of the Lord endures for eternity. And this is the Word that has been evangelized to you.

[1 Peter 2] {2:1} Therefore, set aside all malice and all deceitfulness, as well as falseness and envy and every detraction. {2:2} Like newborn infants, desire the milk of reasonableness without guile, so that by this you may increase unto salvation, {2:3} if it is true that you have tasted that the Lord is sweet. {2:4} And approaching him as if he were a living stone, rejected by men, certainly, but elect and honored by God, {2:5} be also yourselves like living stones, built upon him, a spiritual house, a holy priesthood, so as to offer up spiritual sacrifices, acceptable to God through Jesus Christ. {2:6} Because of this, Scripture asserts: “Behold, I am setting in Zion a chief cornerstone, elect, precious. And whoever will have believed in him will not be confounded.” {2:7} Therefore, to you who believe, he is honor. But to those who do not believe, the stone which the builders have rejected, the same has been made into the head of the corner, {2:8} and a stone of offense, and a rock of scandal, to those who are offended by the Word; neither do they believe, though they also have been built upon him. {2:9} But you are a chosen generation, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, an acquired people, so that you may announce the virtues of him who has called you out of darkness into his marvelous light. {2:10} Though in past times you were not a people, yet now you are the people of God. Though you had not obtained mercy, yet now you have obtained mercy. {2:11} Most beloved, I beg you, as new arrivals and sojourners, to abstain from carnal desires, which battle against the soul.
[2:12] Keep your behavior among the Gentiles to what is good, so that, when they slander you as if you were evildoers, they may, by the good works that are seen in you, glorify God on the day of visitation. [2:13] Therefore, be subject to every human creature because of God, whether it is to the king as preeminent, [2:14] or to leaders as having been sent from him for vindication over evildoers, it is truly for the praise of what is good. [2:15] For such is the will of God, that by doing good you may bring about the silence of ignorant and ignorant men, [2:16] in an open manner, and not as if cloaking malice with liberty, but like servants of God. [2:17] Honor everyone. Love brotherhood. Fear God. Honor the king. [2:18] Servants, be subject to your masters with all fear, not only to the good and meek, but also to the unruly. [2:19] For this is grace: when, because of God, a man willingly endures sorrows, suffering injustice. [2:20] For what glory is there, if you sin and then suffer a beating? But if you do well and suffer patiently, this is grace with God. [2:21] For you have been called to this because Christ also suffered for us, leaving you an example, so that you would follow in his footsteps. [2:22] He committed no sin, neither was deceit found in his mouth. [2:23] And when evil was spoken against him, he did not speak evil. When he suffered, he did not threaten. Then he handed himself over to him who judged him unjustly. [2:24] He himself bore our sins in his body upon the tree, so that we, having died to sin, would live for justice. By his wounds, you have been healed. [2:25] For you were like wandering sheep. But now you have been turned back toward the Pastor and the Bishop of your souls.

[1 Peter 3] [3:1] Similarly also, wives should be subject to their husbands, so that, even if some do not believe the Word, they may benefit without the Word, through the behavior of these wives, [3:2] as they consider with fear your chaste behavior. [3:3] For you, there should be no unnecessary adornment of the hair, or surrounding with gold, or the wearing of ornate clothing. [3:4] Instead, you should be a hidden person of the heart, with the incorruptibility of a quiet and a meek spirit, rich in the sight of God. [3:5] For in this way, in past times also, holy women adorned themselves, hoping in God, being subject to their own husbands. [3:6] For so Sarah obeyed Abraham, calling him lord. You are her daughters, well-behaved and unafraid of any disturbance. [3:7] Similarly, you husbands should live with them in accord with knowledge, bestowing honor on the female as the weaker vessel and as co-heirs of the life of grace, so that your prayers may not be hindered. [3:8] And finally, may you all be of one mind: compassionate, loving brotherhood, merciful, meek, humble. [3:9] not repaying evil with evil, nor slander with slander, but, to the contrary, repaying with blessings. For to this you have been called, so that you may possess the inheritance of a blessing. [3:10] For whoever wants to love life and to see good days should restrain his tongue from evil, and his lips, so that they utter no deceit. [3:11] Let him turn away from evil, and do good. Let him seek peace, and pursue it. [3:12] For the eyes of the Lord are upon the just, and his ears are with their prayers, but the countenance of the Lord is upon those who do evil. [3:13] And who is it who can harm you, if you are zealous in what is good? [3:14] And yet, even when you suffer something for the sake of justice, you are blessed. So then, do not be afraid with their fear, and do not be disturbed. [3:15] But sanctify Christ the Lord in your hearts, being always ready to give an explanation to all who ask you the reason for that hope which is in you. [3:16] But do so with meekness and fear, having a good conscience, so that, in whatever matter they may slander you, they shall be confounded, since they falsely accuse your good behavior in Christ. [3:17] For it is better to suffer for doing good, if it is the will of God, than for doing evil. [3:18] For Christ also died once for our sins, the Just One on behalf of the unjust, so that he might offer us to God, having died, certainly, in the flesh, but having been enlivened by the Spirit. [3:19] And in the Spirit, he preached to those who were in prison, going to those souls [3:20] who had been unbelieving in past times, while they waited for the patience of God, as in the days of Noah, when the ark was being built. In that ark, a few, that is, eight souls, were saved by water. [3:21] And now you also are saved, in a similar manner, by baptism, not by the testimony of sordid flesh, but by the examination of a good conscience in God, through the resurrection of Jesus Christ. [3:22] He is at the right hand of God, devouring death, so that we may be made heirs to eternal life. And since he has journeyed to heaven, the Angels and powers and virtues are subject to him.

[1 Peter 4] [4:1] Since Christ has suffered in the flesh, you also should be armed with the same intention. For he who suffers in the flesh desists from sin, [4:2] so that now he may live, for the remainder of his time in the flesh, not by the desires of men, but by the will of God. [4:3] For the time that has passed is sufficient to have fulfilled the will of the Gentiles, those who have walked in luxuries, lusts, intoxication, feasting, drinking, and the illicit worship of idols. [4:4] About this, they wonder why you do not rush with them into the same confusion of indulgences, blaspheming. [4:5] But they must render an account to him who is prepared to judge the living and the dead. [4:6] For because of this, the Gospel was also preached to the dead, so that they might be judged, certainly, just like men in the flesh, yet also, so that they might live according to God, in the Spirit. [4:7] But the end of everything draws near. And so, be prudent, and be vigilant in your prayers. [4:8] But, before all things, have a constant mutual charity among yourselves. For love covers a multitude of sins. [4:9] Show hospitality to one another without complaining. [4:10] Just as each of you has received grace, minister in the same way to one another, as good stewards of the manifold grace of God. [4:11] When anyone speaks, it should be like words of God. When anyone ministers, it should be from the virtue that God provides, so that in all things God may be honored through Jesus Christ. To him is glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen. [4:12] Most beloved, do not choose to sojourn in the passion which is a temptation to you, as if something new might happen to you. [4:13] But instead, commune in the Passion of Christ, and be glad that, when his glory will be revealed, you too may rejoice with exultation. [4:14] If you are reproached for the name of Christ, you will be blessed, because that which is of the honor, glory, and power of God, and that which is of his Spirit, rests upon you. [4:15] But let none of you suffer for being a murderer, or a thief, or a slanderer, or one who covets what belongs to another. [4:16] But if one of you suffers for being a Christian, he should not be ashamed. Instead, he should glorify God in that name. {4:17} For it is time that judgment begin at the	house of God. And if it is first from us, what shall be the end of those who do not believe the Gospel of God? {4:18} And if the just man will scarcely be saved, where will the impious and the sinner appear? {4:19} Therefore, too, let those who suffer according to the will of God commend their souls by good deeds to the faithful Creator.

[1 Peter 5] {5:1} Therefore, I beg the elders who are among you, as one who is also an elder and a witness of the Passion of Christ, who also shares in that glory which is to be revealed in the future: {5:2} pasture the flock of God that is among you, providing for it, not as a requirement, but willingly, in accord with God, and not for the sake of tainted profit, but freely, {5:3} not so as to dominate by means of the clerical state, but so as to be formed into a flock from the heart. {5:4} And when the Leader of pastors will have appeared, you shall secure an un fading crown of glory.

 The Second Letter of Peter **

[2 Peter 1] {1:1} Simon Peter, servant and Apostle of Jesus Christ, to those who have been allotted an equal faith with us in the justice of our God and in our Savior Jesus Christ.

The Second Letter of Peter
themselves such a deplorable judgment. (2:12) Yet truly, these others, like irrational beasts, naturally fall into traps and into ruin by blasphemy whatever they do not understand, and so they shall perish in their corruption, (2:13) receiving the reward of injustice, the fruition of valuing the delights of the day: defilements and stains, overflowing with self-indulgences, taking pleasure in their feasts with you, (2:14) having eyes full of adultery and of incessant offenses, luring unstable souls, having a heart well-trained in avarice, sons of curses! (2:15) Abandoning the straight path, they wandered astray, having followed the way of Balaam, the son of Beor, who loved the wages of iniquity. (2:16) Yet truly, he had a correction of his madness: the mute animal under the yoke, which, by speaking with a human voice, forbid the folly of the prophet. (2:17) These ones are like fountains without water, and like clouds stirred up by whirlwinds. For them, the mist of darkness is reserved. (2:18) For, speaking with the arrogance of vanity, they lure, by the desires of fleshly pleasures, those who are fleeing to some extent, who are being turned from error, (2:19) promising them freedoms, while they themselves are the servants of corruption. For by whatever a man is overcome, of this also is he the servant. (2:20) For if, after taking refuge from the defilements of the world in the understanding of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, they again become entangled and overcome by these things, then the latter state becomes worse than the former. (2:21) For it would have been better for them not to have known the way of justice than, after acknowledging it, to turn away from that holy commandment which was handed on to them. (2:22) For the truth of the proverb has happened to them: The dog has returned to his own vomit, and the washed sow has returned to her wallowing in the mud.

[2 Peter 3] (3:1) Consider, most beloved, this second epistle which I am writing to you, in which I stir up, by admonition, your sincere mind, (3:2) so that you may be mindful of those words that I preached to you from the holy prophets, and of the precepts of the Apostles of your Lord and Savior. (3:3) Know this first: that in the last days there will arrive deceitful mockers, walking according to their own desires, (3:4) saying: “Where is his promise or his advent? For from the time that the fathers have slept, all things have continued just as they were from the beginning of creation.” (3:5) But they willfully ignore this: that the heavens existed first, and that the earth, from water and through water, was established by the Word of God. (3:6) By water, the former world then, having been inundated with water, perished. (3:7) But the heavens and the earth that exist now were restored by the same Word, being reserved unto fire on the day of judgment, and unto the perdition of impious men. (3:8) Yet truly, let this one thing not escape notice, most beloved, that with the Lord one day is like a thousand years, and a thousand years is like one day. (3:9) The Lord is not delaying his promise, as some imagine, but he does act patiently for your sake, not wanting anyone to perish, but wanting all to be turned back to penance. (3:10) Then the day of the Lord shall arrive like a thief. On that day, the heavens shall pass away with great violence, and truly the elements shall be dissolved with heat; then the earth, and the works that are within it, shall be completely burned up. (3:11) Therefore, since all these things will be dissolved, what kind of people ought you to be? In behavior and in piety, be holy, (3:12) waiting for, and hurrying toward, the advent of the day of the Lord, by which the burning heavens shall be dissolved, and the elements shall melt from the heat of the fire. (3:13) Yet truly, in accord with his promises, we are looking forward to the new heavens and the new earth, in which justice lives. (3:14) Therefore, most beloved, while awaiting these things, be diligent, so that you may be found to be immaculate and unassailable before him, in peace. (3:15) And let the longsuffering of our Lord be considered salvation, as also our most beloved brother Paul, according to the wisdom given to him, has written to you, (3:16) just as he also spoke in all of his epistles about these things. In these, there are certain things which are difficult to understand, which the unlearned and the unsteady distort, as they also do the other Scriptures, to their own destruction. (3:17) But since you, brothers, know these things beforehand, be cautious, lest by being drawn into the error of the foolish, you may fall away from your own steadfastness. (3:18) Yet truly, increase in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. To him be glory, both now and in the day of eternity. Amen.

 The First Letter of John **

[1 John 1] (1:1) He who was from the beginning, whom we have heard, whom we have seen with our eyes, upon whom we have gazed, and whom our hands have certainly touched: He is the Word of Life. (1:2) And that Life has been made manifest. And we have seen, and we testify, and we announce to you: the Eternal Life, who was with the Father, and who appeared to us. (1:3) He whom we have seen and heard, we announce to you, so that you too, may have fellowship with us, and so that our fellowship may be with the Father and with his Son Jesus Christ. (1:4) And this we write to you, so that you may rejoice, and so that your joy may be full. (1:5) And this is the announcement which we have heard from him, and which we announce to you: that God is light, and in him there is no darkness. (1:6) If we claim that we have fellowship with him, and yet we walk in darkness, then we are lying and not telling the truth. (1:7) But if we walk in the light, just as he also is in the light, then we have fellowship with one another, and the blood of Jesus Christ, his Son, cleanses us from all sin. (1:8) If we claim that we have no sin, then we are deceiving ourselves and the truth is not in us. (1:9) If we confess our sins, then he is faithful and just, so as to forgive us our sins and to cleanse us from all iniquity. (1:10) If we claim that we have not sinned, then we make him a liar, and his Word is not in us.

[1 John 2] (2:1) My little sons, this I write to you, so that you may not sin. But if anyone has sinned, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ, the Just One. (2:2) And he is the propitiation for our sins. And not only for our sins, but also for those of the whole world. (2:3) And we can be sure that we have known him by this: if we observe his commandments. (2:4) Whoever claims that he knows him, and yet does not keep his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. (2:5) But whoever keeps his word, truly in him the charity of God is perfected. And by this we know that we are in him. (2:6) Whoever declares himself to remain in him, ought to walk just as he himself walked. (2:7) Most beloved, I am not writing to you a new commandment, but the old commandment, which you had from the beginning. The old commandment is the Word, which you have heard. {2:8} Then too, I am writing to you a new commandment, which is the Truth in him and in you. For the darkness has passed away, and the true Light is now shining. {2:9} Whoever declares himself to be in the light, and yet hates his brother, is in the darkness even now. {2:10} Whoever loves his brother abides in the light, and there is no cause of offense in him. {2:11} But whoever hates his brother is in the darkness, and in darkness he walks, and he does not know where he is going. For the darkness has blinded his eyes. {2:12} I am writing to you, little sons, because your sins are forgiven for the sake of his name. {2:13} I am writing to you, fathers, because you have known him who is from the beginning. I am writing to you, adolescents, because you have overcome the evil one. {2:14} I am writing to you, little children, because you have known the Father. I am writing to you, young men, because you are strong, and the Word of God abides in you, and you have overcome the evil one. {2:15} Do not choose to love the world, nor the things that are in the world. If anyone loves the world, the charity of the Father is not in him. {2:16} For all that is in the world is the desire of the flesh, and the desire of the eyes, and the arrogance of a life which is not of the Father, but is of the world. {2:17} And the world is passing away, with its desire. But whoever does the will of God abides unto eternity. {2:18} Little sons, it is the last hour. And, as you have heard that the Antichrist is coming, so now many antichrists have arrived. By this, we know that it is the last hour. {2:19} They went out from among us, but they were not of us. For, if they had been of us, certainly they would have remained with us. But in this way, it is made manifest that none of them are of us. {2:20} Yet you have the anointing of the Holy One, and you know everything. {2:21} I have not written to you as to ones who are ignorant of the truth, but as to ones who know the truth. For no lie is of the truth. {2:22} Who is a liar, other than he who denies that Jesus is the Christ? This one is the Antichrist, who denies the Father and the Son. {2:23} No one who denies the Son also has the Father. Whoever confesses the Son, also has the Father. {2:24} As for you, let what you have heard from the beginning remain in you. If what you have heard from the beginning remains in you, then you, too, shall abide in the Son and in the Father. {2:25} And this is the Promise, which he himself has promised to us: Eternal Life. {2:26} I have written these things to you, because of those who would seduce you. {2:27} But as for you, let the Anointing that you have received from him abide in you. And so, you have no need of anyone to teach you. For his Anointing teaches you about everything, and it is the truth, and it is not a lie. And just as his Anointing has taught you, abide in him. {2:28} And now, little sons, abide in him, so that when he appears, we may have faith, and we may not be confounded by him at his advent. {2:29} If you know that he is just, then know, too, that all who do what is just are born of him. {3:1} See what kind of love the Father has given to us, that we would be called, and would become, the sons of God. Because of this, the world does not know us, for it did not know him. {3:2} Most beloved, we are now the sons of God. But what we shall be then has not yet appeared. We know that when he does appear, we shall be like him, for we shall see him as he is. {3:3} And everyone who holds this hope in him, keeps himself holy, just as he also is holy. {3:4} Everyone who commits a sin, also commits iniquity. For sin is iniquity. {3:5} And you know that he appeared in order that he might take away our sins. For in him there is no sin. {3:6} Everyone who abides in him does not sin. For whoever sins has not seen him, and has not known him. {3:7} Little sons, let no one deceive you. Whoever does justice is just, even as he also is just. {3:8} Whoever commits sin is of the devil. For the devil sins from the beginning. For this reason, the Son of God appeared, so that he might eradicate the works of the devil. {3:9} All those who have been born of God do not commit sin. For the offspring of God abides in them, and he is not able to sin, because he was born of God. {3:10} In this way, the sons of God are made manifest, and also the sons of the devil. Everyone who is not just, is not of God, as also anyone who does not love his brother. {3:11} For this is the announcement that you heard from the beginning: that you should love one another. {3:12} Do not be like Cain, who was of the evil one, and who killed his brother. And why did he kill him? Because his own works were wicked, but his brother’s works were just. {3:13} If the world hates you, brothers, do not be surprised. {3:14} We know that we have passed from death to life. For we love as brothers. Whoever does not love, abides in death. {3:15} Everyone who hates his brother is a murderer. And you know that no murderer has eternal life abiding within him. {3:16} We know the love of God in this way: because he laid down his life for us. And so, we must lay down our lives for our brothers. {3:17} Whoever possesses the goods of this world, and sees his brother to be in need, and yet closes his heart to him: in what way does the love of God abide in him? {3:18} My little sons, let us not love in words only, but in works and in truth. {3:19} In this way, we will know that we are of the truth, and we will commend our hearts in his sight. {3:20} For even if our heart reproaches us, God is greater than our heart, and he knows all things. {3:21} Most beloved, if our heart does not reproach us, we can have confidence toward God; {3:22} and whatever we shall request of him, we shall receive from him. For we keep his commandments, and we do the things that are pleasing in his sight. {3:23} And this is his commandment: that we should believe in the name of his Son, Jesus Christ, and love one another, just as he has commanded us. {3:24} And those who keep his commandments abide in him, and he in them. And we know that he abides in us by this: by the Spirit, whom he has given to us.

[1 John 4] {4:1} Most beloved, do not be willing to believe every spirit, but test the spirits to see if they are of God. For many false prophets have gone out into the world. {4:2} The Spirit of God may be known in this way. Every spirit who confesses that Jesus Christ has arrived in the flesh is of God; {4:3} and every spirit who contradicts Jesus is not of God. And this one is the Antichrist, the one that you have heard is coming, and even now he is in the world. {4:4} Little sons, you are of God, and so you have overcome him. For he who is in you is greater than he who is in the world. {4:5} They are of the world. Therefore, they speak about the world, and the world listens to them. {4:6} We are of God. Whoever knows God, listens to us. Whoever is not of God, does not listen to us. In this way, we know the Spirit of truth from the spirit of error. {4:7} Most beloved, let us love one another. For love is of God. And everyone who loves is born of God and knows God. {4:8} Whoever does not love, does not know God. For God is love. {4:9} The love of God was made apparent to us in this way: that God sent his only-begotten Son into the world, that we might live through him. {4:10} In this is love: not as if we had loved God, but that he first loved us, and so he sent his Son as a propitiation for our sins. {4:11} Most beloved, if God has so loved us, we also ought to love one another. {4:12} No one has ever seen God. But if we love one another, God abides in us, and his love is perfected in us. {4:13} In this way, we know that we abide in him, and he in us: because he has given to us from his Spirit. {4:14} And we have seen, and we testify, that the Father has sent his Son to be the Savior of the world. {4:15} Whoever has confessed that Jesus is the Son of God, God abides in him, and he in God. {4:16} And we have known and believed the love that God has for us. God is love. And he who abides in love, abides in God, and God in him. {4:17} In this way, the love of God is perfected with us, so that we may have confidence on the day of judgment. For as he is, so also are we, in this world. {4:18} Fear is not in love. Instead, perfect love casts out fear, for fear pertains to punishment. And whoever fears is not perfected in love. {4:19} Therefore, let us love God, for God first loved us. {4:20} If anyone says that he loves God, but hates his brother, then he is a liar. For he who does not love his brother, whom he does see, in what way can he love God, whom he does not see? {4:21} And this is the commandment that we have from God, that he who loves God must also love his brother.

[1 John 5] {5:1} Everyone who believes that Jesus is the Christ, is born of God. And everyone who loves God, who provides that birth, also loves him who has been born of God. {5:2} In this way, we know, that we love those born of God: when we love God and do his commandments. {5:3} For this is the love of God: that we keep his commandments. And his commandments are not heavy. {5:4} For all that is born of God overcomes the world. And this is the victory that overcomes the world: our faith. {5:5} Who is it that overcomes the world? Only he who believes that Jesus is the Son of God! {5:6} This is the One who came by water and blood: Jesus Christ. Not by water only, but by water and blood. And the Spirit is the One who testifies that the Christ is the Truth. {5:7} For there are Three who give testimony in heaven: the Father, the Word, and the Holy Spirit. And these Three are One. {5:8} And there are three who give testimony on earth: the Spirit, and the water, and the blood. And these three are one. {5:9} If we accept the testimony of men, then the testimony of God is greater. For this is the testimony of God, which is greater: that he has testified about his Son. {5:10} Whoever believes in the Son of God, holds the testimony of God within himself. Whoever does not believe in the Son, makes him a liar, because he does not believe in the testimony which God has testified about his Son. {5:11} And this is the testimony which God has given to us: Eternal Life. And this Life is in his Son. {5:12} Whoever has the Son, has Life. Whoever does not have the Son, does not have Life. {5:13} I am writing this to you, so that you may know that you have Eternal Life: you who believe in the name of the Son of God. {5:14} And this is the confidence which we have toward God: that no matter what we shall request, in accord with his will, he hears us. {5:15} And we know that he hears us, no matter what we request; so we know that we can obtain the things that we request of him. {5:16} Anyone who realizes that his brother has sinned, with a sin that is not unto death, let him pray, and life shall be given to him who has sinned not unto death. There is a sin which is unto death. I am not saying that anyone should ask on behalf of that sin. {5:17} All that is iniquity is sin. But there is a sin unto death. {5:18} We know that everyone who is born of God does not sin. Instead, rebirth in God preserves him, and the evil one cannot touch him. {5:19} We know that we are of God, and that the entire world is established in wickedness. {5:20} And we know that the Son of God has arrived, and that he has given us understanding, so that we may know the true God, and so that we may remain in his true Son. This is the true God, and this is Eternal Life. {5:21} Little sons, keep yourselves from false worship. Amen.

 The Second Letter of John **

[2 John 1] {1:1} The Elder to the Elect Lady, and those born of her, whom I love in the truth: and not I alone, but also all those who have known the truth, {1:2} because the truth which dwells in us shall be with us for eternity. {1:3} May grace, mercy, and peace be with you from God the Father, and from Christ Jesus, the Son of the Father, in truth and in love. {1:4} I was very glad because I discovered some of your sons walking in the truth, just as we received the commandment from the Father. {1:5} And now I petition you, Lady, not as if writing a new commandment to you, but instead that commandment which we have had from the beginning: that we love one another. {1:6} And this is love: that we walk according to his commandments. For this is the commandment that you have heard in the same way from the beginning, and in which you should walk. {1:7} For many deceivers have gone out into the world, those who do not confess that Jesus Christ has arrived in the flesh. Such a one as this is a deceiver and an antichrist. {1:8} Be cautious for yourselves, lest you lose what you have accomplished, and so that, instead, you may receive a full reward. {1:9} Everyone who withdraws and does not remain in the doctrine of Christ, does not have God. Whoever remains in the doctrine, such a one as this has both the Father and the Son. {1:10} If anyone comes to you, and does not bring this doctrine, do not be willing to receive him into the house, and do not speak a greeting to him. {1:11} For whoever speaks a greeting to him, is speaking with his evil works. {1:12} I have much more to write to you, but I am not willing to do so through paper and ink. For I hope that I may be with you in the future, and that I may speak face to face, so that your joy may be full. {1:13} The sons of your Elect Sister greet you.

 The Third Letter of John **

[3 John 1] {1:1} The Elder, to Gaius, most beloved, whom I love in the truth. {1:2} Most beloved, concerning everything, I make it my prayer that you may benefit by advancing and succeeding in whatever may be to the benefit of your soul. {1:3} I was very glad when the brothers arrived, and when they offered testimony to the truth in you, that you are walking in the truth. {1:4} I have no greater grace than this, when I hear that my sons are walking in the truth. {1:5} Most beloved, you should act faithfully in whatever you do for the brothers, and those who are sojourners; {1:6} they have given testimony to your charity in the sight of the Church. You would to well to lead these ones worthy to God. {1:7} For they set out, on behalf of his name, accepting nothing from the unbelievers. {1:8} Therefore, we must accept such as these, in order that we may cooperate with the truth. {1:9} As it happens, I had written to the church. But Diotrephes, who loves to bear the highest rank among them, would not accept us. {1:10} Because of this, when I come, I will admonish his works which he does, babbling against us with malicious words. And as if this were not sufficient for him, he himself does not receive the brothers. And those who do receive them, he hinders, and he ejects them from the church. {1:11} Most beloved, do not be willing to imitate what is evil; instead imitate what is good. Whoever does good is of God. Whoever does evil has not seen God. {1:12} Testimony is being given for Demetrius by everyone, and by the truth itself. And we also offer testimony. And you know that our testimony is true. {1:13} I had many things to write to you, but I am not willing, through ink and pen, to write to you. {1:14} Yet I hope to see you soon, and then we will speak face to face. Peace to you. The friends greet you. Greet the friends by name.

 The Letter of Jude **

[Jude 1] {1:1} Jude, a servant of Jesus Christ, and brother of James, to those who are beloved in God the Father, and who are guarded and called in Jesus Christ: {1:2} May mercy, and peace, and love be fulfilled in you. {1:3} Most beloved, taking all care to write to you about your common salvation, I found it necessary to write to you in order to beg you to contend earnestly for the faith that was handed down once to the saints. {1:4} For certain men entered unnoticed, who were written of beforehand unto this judgment: impious persons who are transforming the grace of our God into self-indulgence, and who are denying both the sole Ruler and our God gave to him, in order to make known to his servants the things that must soon occur, and which he signified by sending his Angel to his servant John; {1:5} So I want to caution you. Those who once knew everything that Jesus did, in saving the people from the land of Egypt, afterwards perished because they did not believe. {1:6} And truly, the Angels, who did not keep to their first place, but instead abandoned their own domiciles, he has reserved with perpetual chains under darkness, unto the great day of judgment. {1:7} And also Sodom and Gomorrah, and the adjoining cities, in similar ways, having given themselves over to fornication and to the pursuing of other flesh, were made an example, suffering the punishment of eternal fire. {1:8} Similarly also, these ones certainly defile the flesh, and they despise proper authority, and they blaspheme against majesty. {1:9} When Michael the Archangel, disputing with the devil, contended about the body of Moses, he did not dare to bring against him a judgment of blasphemy, so instead he said: “The Lord commands you.” {1:10} But these men certainly blaspheme against whatever they do not understand. And yet, whatever they, like mute animals, know from nature, in these things they are corrupted. {1:11} Woe to them! For they have gone after the way of Cain, and they have poured out the error of Balaam for profit, and they have perished in the sedition of Korah. {1:12} These ones are defiled within their banquets, enjoying themselves and feeding themselves without fear; waterless clouds, which are tossed about by winds; autumn trees, unfruitful, twice dead, uprooted; {1:13} raging waves of the sea, foaming from their own confusion; wandering stars, for whom the whirlwind of darkness has been reserved forever! {1:14} And about these, Enoch, also prophesied, saying: “Behold, the Lord is arriving with thousands of his saints, {1:15} to execute judgment against everyone, and to reprove all the impious concerning all the works of their impiety, by which they have acted impiously, and concerning all the harsh things that impious sinners have spoken against God.” {1:16} These ones are complaining murmurers, walking according to their own desires. And their mouth is speaking arrogance, admiring persons for the sake of gain. {1:17} But as for you, most beloved, be mindful of the words which have been foretold by the Apostles of our Lord Jesus Christ, {1:18} who declared to you that, in the end time, there would arrive mockers, walking according to their own desires, in impieties. {1:19} These are the ones who segregate themselves; they are animals, not having the Spirit. {1:20} But you, most beloved, are building yourselves up by your most holy faith, praying in the Holy Spirit, {1:21} keeping yourselves in the love of God, and anticipating the mercy of our Lord Jesus Christ unto eternal life. {1:22} So certainly, reprove them, after they have been judged. {1:23} Yet truly, save them, seizing them from the fire. And have mercy on others: in fear, hating even that which is of the flesh, the defiled garment. {1:24} Then, to him who has the power to keep you free from sin and to present you, immaculate, with exultation, before the presence of his glory at the advent of our Lord Jesus Christ, {1:25} to the only God, our Savior, through Jesus Christ our Lord: to him be glory and magnificence, dominion and power, before all ages, and now, and in every age, forever. Amen.

 The Revelation of Jesus Christ **

[Revelation 1] {1:1} The Revelation of Jesus Christ, which God gave to him, in order to make known to his servants the things that must soon occur, and which he signified by sending his Angel to his servant John; {1:2} he has offered testimony to the Word of God, and whatever he saw is the testimony of Jesus Christ. {1:3} Blessed is he who reads or hears the words of this Prophecy, and who keeps the things that have been written in it. For the time is near. {1:4} John, to the seven Churches, which are in Asia. Grace and peace to you, from him who is, and who was, and who is to come, and from the seven spirits who are in the sight of his throne, {1:5} and from Jesus Christ, who is the faithful witness, the first-born of the dead, and the leader over the kings of the earth, who has loved us and has washed us from our sins with his blood, {1:6} and who has made us into a kingdom and into priests for God and for his Father. To him be glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen. {1:7} Behold, he arrives with the clouds, and every eye shall see him, even those who pierced him. And all the tribes of the earth shall lament for themselves over him. Even so. Amen. {1:8} “I am the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the End,” says the Lord God, who is, and who was, and who is to come, the Almighty. {1:9} I, John, your brother, and a sharer in the tribulation and in the kingdom and in patient endurance for Christ Jesus, was on the island which is called Patmos, because of the Word of God and the testimony to Jesus. {1:10} I was in the Spirit on the Lord’s day, and I heard behind me a great voice, like that of a trumpet, {1:11} saying, “What you see, write in a book, and send it to the seven Churches, which are in Asia: to Ephesus, and to Smyrna, and to Pergamos, and to Thyatira, and to Sardis, and to Philadelphia, and to Laodicea.” {1:12} And I turned around, so as to see the voice which was speaking with me. And having turned around, I saw seven golden lampstands. {1:13} And in the midst of the seven golden lampstands was one resembling the Son of man, clothed to the feet with a vestment, and wrapped to the breast with a wide belt of gold. {1:14} But his head and hair were bright, like white wool, or like snow; and his eyes were like a flame of fire; {1:15} and his feet resembled shining brass, just as in a burning furnace; and his voice was like the voice of many waters. {1:16} And in his right hand, he held the seven stars; and from his mouth went out a sharp two-edged sword; and his face was like the sun, shining with all its might. {1:17} And when I had seen him, I fell at his feet, like one who is dead. And he laid his right hand upon me, saying: “Do not be afraid. I am the First and the Last. {1:18} And I am alive forever and ever. And I hold the keys of death and of Hell. {1:19} Therefore, write the things which you have seen, and which are, and which must occur afterward: {1:20} the mystery of the seven stars, which you have seen in my right hand, and of the seven golden lampstands. The seven stars are the Angels of the seven Churches, and the seven lampstands are the seven Churches.”

[Revelation 2] {2:1} “And to the Angel of the Church of Ephesus write: Thus says the One who holds the seven stars in his right hand, who walks in the midst of the seven golden lampstands: {2:2} I know your works, and your hardship and patient endurance, and that you cannot stand those who are evil. And so, you have tested those who declare themselves to be Apostles and are not, and you have found them to be liars. {2:3} And you have patient endurance for the sake of my name, and you have not fallen away. {2:4} But I have this against you: that you have relinquished your first charity. {2:5} And so, call to mind the place from which you have fallen, and do penance, and do the first works. Otherwise, I will come to you and remove your lampstand from its place, unless you repent. {2:6} But this you have, that you hate the deeds of the Nicolaitans, which I also hate. {2:7} Whoever has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the Churches. To him who prevails, I will give to eat from the Tree of Life, and you shall be clothed in white, because you are worthy. {2:8} But I have a few things against you. For you permit the woman Jezabel, who calls herself a prophetess, to teach and to seduce my servants, to commit fornication and to eat the food of idolatry. {2:9} And I gave her a time, so that she might do penance, but she is not willing to repent from her fornication. {2:10} Behold, I will cast her onto a bed, and those who commit adultery with her shall be in a very great tribulation, unless they repent from their works. {2:11} And I will put her sons to death, and all the Churches shall know that I am the one who examines temperaments and hearts. And I will give to each one of you according to your works. But I say to you, {2:12} and to the others who are at Thyatira: Whoever does not hold to this doctrine, and who has not ‘known the depths of Satan,’ as they say, I will not set any other weight upon you. {2:13} I know your works, and your faith and charity, and your ministry and patient endurance, and that your more recent works are greater than the earlier ones. {2:14} But I have a few things against you. For you permit the woman Jezabel, who calls herself a prophetess, to teach and to seduce my servants, to commit fornication and to eat the food of idolatry. {2:15} And I gave her a time, so that she might do penance, but she is not willing to repent from her fornication. {2:16} Behold, I will cast her onto a bed, and those who commit adultery with her shall be in a very great tribulation, unless they repent from their works. {2:17} And I will put her sons to death, and all the Churches shall know that I am the one who examines temperaments and hearts. And I will give to each one of you according to your works. But I say to you, {2:18} and to the others who are at Thyatira: Whoever does not hold to this doctrine, and who has not ‘known the depths of Satan,’ as they say, I will not set any other weight upon you. {2:19} I know your works, and your faith and charity, and your ministry and patient endurance, and that your more recent works are greater than the earlier ones. {2:20} But I have a few things against you. For you permit the woman Jezabel, who calls herself a prophetess, to teach and to seduce my servants, to commit fornication and to eat the food of idolatry. {2:21} And I gave her a time, so that she might do penance, but she is not willing to repent from her fornication. {2:22} Behold, I will cast her onto a bed, and those who commit adultery with her shall be in a very great tribulation, unless they repent from their works. {2:23} And I will put her sons to death, and all the Churches shall know that I am the one who examines temperaments and hearts. And I will give to each one of you according to your works. But I say to you, {2:24} and to the others who are at Thyatira: Whoever does not hold to this doctrine, and who has not ‘known the depths of Satan,’ as they say, I will not set any other weight upon you. {2:25} Even so, that which you have, hold on to it until I return. {2:26} And whoever will prevail and will observe my works even unto the end, I will give him the morning star. {2:27} The same I also have received from my Father. And I will give to him the morning star. {2:28} Whoever has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the Churches.”

[Revelation 3] {3:1} “And to the Angel of the Church of Philadelphia write: Thus says he who has the seven spirits of God and the seven stars: I know your works, that you have a name which is alive, but you are dead. {3:2} Be vigilant, and confirm the things that remain, lest they soon die out. For I do not find your works to be full in the sight of my God. {3:3} Therefore, keep in mind the way that you have received and heard, and then observe it and repent. But if you will not be vigilant, I will come to you like a thief, and you will not know at what hour I will come to you. {3:4} But you have a few names in Sardis who have not defiled their garments. And these shall walk with me in white, because they are worthy. {3:5} Whoever prevails, so shall he be clothed in white vestments. And I will not delete his name from the Book of Life. And I will confess his name in the presence of my Father and in the presence of his Angels. {3:6} Whoever has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the Churches.

And to the Angel of the Church of Philadelphia write: Thus says the Holy One, the True One, who holds the key of David. He opens and no one closes. He closes and no one opens. (3:7) And I know your works. Behold, I have set an open door before you, which no one is able to close. For you have little power, and you have observed my word, and you have not denied my name. (3:8) I know where you live. Behold, I am coming quickly. Hold on to what you have, so that no one may take your crown. (3:9) Whoever prevails, I will grant to him to sit with me on my throne, as I also prevail. (3:10) Whoever has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the Churches.

And to the Angel of the Church of Laodicea write: Thus says the Amen, the faithful and true Witness, who is the Beginning of the creation of God: (3:14) Whoever has an ear, let him hear what the Spirit says to the Churches.

And to the Angel of the Church of Philadelphia write: Thus says the Holy One, the True One, who holds the key of David. He opens and no one closes. He closes and no one opens. (4:1) After these things, I saw, and behold, a door was opened in heaven, and the voice that I heard speaking with me first was like a trumpet, saying: "Ascend here, and I will reveal to you what must occur after these things." (4:2) And immediately I was in the Spirit. And behold, a throne had been placed in heaven, and there was One sitting upon the throne.

And the first living creature resembled a lion, and the second living creature resembled a calf, and the third living creature had a face like a man, and the fourth living creature resembled a flying eagle. (4:7) And the first living creature resembled a lion, and the second living creature resembled a calf, and the third living creature had a face like a man, and the fourth living creature resembled a flying eagle. (4:8) And each of the four living creatures had upon them six wings, and all around and within they are full of eyes. And they took no rest, day or night, from saying: "Holy, Holy, Holy is the Lord God Almighty, who was, and who is, and who is to come." (4:9) And while those living creatures were giving glory and honor and blessings to the One sitting upon the throne, who lives forever and ever, (4:10) the twenty-four elders fell prostrate before the One sitting upon the throne, and they adored him who lives forever and ever, and they cast their crowns before the throne, saying: (4:11) "You are worthy, O Lord our God, to receive glory and honor and power. For you have created all things, and they became and were created because of your will."
[Revelation 6] {6:1} And I saw that the Lamb had opened one of the seven seals. And I heard one of the four living creatures saying, in a voice like thunder: “Draw near and see.” {6:2} And I saw, and behold, a white horse. And he who was sitting upon it was holding a bow, and a crown was given to him, and he went forth conquering, so that he might prevail. {6:3} And when he had opened the second seal, I heard the second living creature saying: “Draw near and see.” {6:4} And another horse went forth, which was red. And it was granted to him who was sitting upon it that he would take peace from the earth, and that they would kill one another. And a great sword was given to him. {6:5} And when he had opened the third seal, I heard the third living creature saying: “Draw near and see.” And behold, a black horse. And he who was sitting upon it was holding a balance in his hand. {6:6} And I heard something like a voice in the midst of the four living creatures saying, “A double measure of wheat for a denarius, and three double measures of barley for a denarius, but do no harm to wine and oil.” {6:7} And when he had opened the fourth seal, I heard the voice of the fourth living creature saying: “Draw near and see.” {6:8} And behold, a pale horse. And he who was sitting upon it, his name was Death, and Hell was following him. And authority was given to him over the four parts of the earth, to destroy by the sword, by famine, and by death, and by the creatures of the earth. {6:9} And when he had opened the fifth seal, I saw, under the altar, the souls of those who had been slain because of the Word of God and because of the testimony that they held. {6:10} And they were crying out with a loud voice, saying: “How long, O Holy and True Lord, until you shall judge and give recompense to them who dwell upon the earth?” {6:11} And white robes were given to each of them. And they were told that they should rest for a brief time, until their fellow servants and their brothers, who were to be slain even as they were slain, would be completed. {6:12} And when he had opened the sixth seal, I saw, and behold, a great earthquake occurred. And the sun became black, like a haircloth sack, and the entire moon became like blood. {6:13} And the stars from heaven fell upon the earth, just as when a fig tree, shaken by a great wind, drops its immature figs. {6:14} And heaven receded, like a haircloth sack, and the entire moon became black, like a haircloth sack, and the entire moon became like blood. {6:15} And the kings of the earth, and the rulers, and the military leaders, and the rich, and the controllers of the earth were moved from their places. {6:16} And an Angel approached, and he stood before the altar, holding a golden censer. And much incense was given to him, so that he might offer upon the golden altar, which is before the throne of God, the prayers of all the saints. {6:17} For the Lamb, who is in the midst of the throne, shall dwell over them. {7:1} After these things, I saw four Angels standing in the sight of God. And seven trumpets were given to them. {8:2} And I saw seven Angels standing in the sight of God. And seven trumpets were given to them. {8:3} And another Angel approached, and he stood before the altar, holding a golden censer. And much incense was given to him, so that he might offer upon the golden altar, which is before the throne of God, the prayers of all the saints. {8:4} And the smoke of the incense of the prayers of the saints ascended, in the presence of God, from the hand of the Angel. {8:5} And the Angel received the golden censer, and he filled it from the fire of the altar, and he cast it down upon the earth, and there were thunders and voices and lightnings and a great earthquake. {8:6} And the seven Angels who hold the seven trumpets prepared themselves, in order to sound the trumpet. {8:7} And the first Angel sounded the trumpet. And there came hail and fire, mixed with blood; and it was cast down upon the earth. And a third part of the earth was burned, and a third part of the trees was entirely burned up, and all the green plants were burned. {8:8} And the second Angel on their foreheads.” {7:4} And I heard the number of those who were sealed: one hundred and forty-four thousand sealed, out of every tribe of the sons of Israel. {7:5} From the tribe of Judah, twelve thousand were sealed. From the tribe of Ruben, twelve thousand were sealed. From the tribe of Gad, twelve thousand were sealed. {7:6} From the tribe of Asher, twelve thousand were sealed. From the tribe of Naathali, twelve thousand were sealed. From the tribe of Manasseh, twelve thousand were sealed. {7:7} From the tribe of Simeon, twelve thousand were sealed. From the tribe of Levi, twelve thousand were sealed. From the tribe of Issachar, twelve thousand were sealed. {7:8} From the tribe of Zebulun, twelve thousand were sealed. From the tribe of Benjamin, twelve thousand were sealed. {7:9} After these things, I saw a great crowd, which no one could number, from all the nations and tribes and peoples and languages, standing before the throne and in sight of the Lamb, clothed in white robes, with palm branches in their hands. {7:10} And they cried out, with a great voice, saying: “Salvation is from our God, who sits upon the throne, and from the Lamb.” {7:11} And all the Angels were standing around the throne, with the elders and the four living creatures. And they fell upon their faces in view of the throne, and they worshipped God, {7:12} saying: “Amen. Blessing and glory and wisdom and thanksgiving, honor and power and strength to our God, forever and ever. Amen.” {7:13} And one of the elders responded and said to me: “These ones who are clothed in white robes, who are they? And where did they come from?” {7:14} And I said to him, “My lord, you know.” And he said to me: “These are the ones who have come out of the great tribulation, and they have washed their robes and have made them white by the blood of the Lamb. {7:15} Therefore, they are before the throne of God, and they serve him, day and night, in his temple. And the One who sits upon the throne shall dwell over them. {7:16} They shall not hunger, nor shall they thirst, anymore. Neither shall the sun beat down upon them, nor any heat. {7:17} For the Lamb, who is in the midst of the throne, will rule over them, and he will lead them to the fountains of the waters of life. And God will wipe away every tear from their eyes.”
sounded the trumpet. And something like a great mountain, burning with fire, was cast down into the sea. And a third part of the sea became like blood. {8:9} And a third part of the creatures that were living in the sea died. And a third part of the ships were destroyed. {8:10} And the third Angel sounded the trumpet. And a great star fell from heaven, burning like a torch. And it fell upon a third part of the rivers and upon the sources of water. {8:11} And the name of the star is called Wormwood. And a third part of the waters were turned into wormwood. And many men died from the waters, because they were made bitter. {8:12} And the fourth Angel sounded the trumpet. And a third part of the sun, and a third part of the moon, and a third part of the stars were struck, in such a way that a third part of them was obscured. And a third part of the day did not shine, and similarly the night. {8:13} And I saw, and I heard the voice of a lone eagle flying through the midst of heaven, calling with a great voice: “Woe, Woe, Woe, to the inhabitants of the earth, from the remaining voices of the three Angels, who will soon sound the trumpet!”

[Revelation 9] {9:1} And the fifth Angel sounded the trumpet. And I saw upon the earth, a star that had fallen from heaven, and the key to the well of the abyss was given to him. {9:2} And he opened the well of the abyss. And the smoke of the well ascended, like the smoke of a great furnace. And the sun and the air were obscured by the smoke of the well. {9:3} And locusts went forth from the smoke of the well into the earth. And power was given to them, like the power that the scorpions of the earth have. {9:4} And it was commanded of them that they must not harm the plants of the earth, nor anything green, nor any tree, but only those men who do not have the Seal of God upon their foreheads. {9:5} And it was given to them that they would not kill them, but that they would torture them for five months. And their torture was like the torture of a scorpion, when he strikes a man. {9:6} And in those days, men will seek death and they will not find it. And they will desire to die, and death will flee from them. {9:7} And the likenesses of the locusts resembled horses prepared for battle. And upon their heads were something like crowns similar to gold. And their faces were like the faces of men. {9:8} And they had hair like the hair of women. And their teeth were like the teeth of lions. {9:9} And they had breastplates like iron breastplates. And the noise of their wings was like the noise of many running horses, rushing to battle. {9:10} And they had tails similar to scorpions. And there were stingers in their tails, and these had the power to harm men for five months. {9:11} And they had over them a king, the Angel of the abyss, whose name in Hebrew is Dooim; in Greek, Destroyer; in Latin, Exterminator. {9:12} One woe has gone out, but behold, there are still two woes approaching afterward. {9:13} And I heard a lone voice from the four horns of the golden altar, which is before the eyes of God, {9:14} saying to the sixth Angel who had the trumpet: “Release the four Angels who were bound at the great river Euphrates.” {9:15} And the four Angels were released, who had been prepared for that hour, and day, and month, and year, in order to kill one third part of men. {9:16} And the number of the army of horsemen was two hundred million. For I heard their number. {9:17} And I also saw the horses in the vision. And those who were sitting upon them had breastplates of fire and hyacinth and sulphur. And the heads of the horses were like the heads of lions. And from their mouths proceeded fire and smoke and sulphur. {9:18} And one third part of men were slain by these three afflictions: by the fire and by the smoke and by the sulphur, which proceeded from their mouths. {9:19} For the power of these horses is in their mouths and in their tails. For their tails resemble serpents, having heads; and it is with these that they cause harm. {9:20} And the rest of men, who were not slain by these afflictions, did not repent from the works of their hands, so that they would not worship demons, or idols of gold and silver and brass and stone and wood, which can neither see, nor hear, nor walk. {9:21} And they did not repent from their murders, nor from their drugs, nor from their fornication, nor from their thefts.

[Revelation 10] {10:1} And I saw another strong Angel, descending from heaven, clothed with a cloud. And a rainbow was upon his head, and his face was like the sun, and his feet were like columns of fire. {10:2} And he held in his hand a small open book. And he stationed his right foot upon the sea, and his left foot upon the land. {10:3} And he cried out with a great voice, in the manner of a lion roaring. And when he had cried out, seven thunders uttered their voices. {10:4} And when the seven thunders had uttered their voices, I was about to write. But I heard a voice from heaven, saying to me: “Seal the things that the seven thunders have spoken, and do not write them.” {10:5} And the Angel, whom I saw standing upon the sea and upon the land, lifted up his hand toward heaven. {10:6} And he swore by the One who lives forever and ever, who created heaven, and the things that are in it; and the earth, and the things that are in it; and the sea, and the things that are in it: that the time will not be any longer, {10:7} but in the days of the voice of the seventh Angel, when he shall begin to sound the trumpet, the mystery of God will be completed, just as he has proclaimed in the Gospel, through his servants the Prophets. {10:8} And again, I heard a voice from heaven speaking with me and saying: “Go and receive the open book from the hand of the Angel who stands upon the sea and upon the land.” {10:9} And I went to the Angel, saying to him that he should give the book to me. And he said to me: “Receive the book and consume it. And it shall cause bitterness in your stomach, but in your mouth it shall be sweet like honey.” {10:10} And I received the book from the hand of the Angel, and I consumed it. And it was sweet like honey in my mouth. And when I had consumed it, my stomach was made bitter. {10:11} And he said to me, “It is necessary for you to prophesy again about many nations and peoples and languages and kings.”

[Revelation 11] {11:1} And a reed, similar to a staff, was given to me. And it was said to me: “Rise up and measure the temple of God, and those who are worshiping in it, and the altar. {11:2} But the atrium, which is outside of the temple, set it aside and do not measure it, because it has been given over to the Gentiles. And they shall trample upon the Holy City for forty-two months. {11:3} And I will present my two witnesses, and they shall prophesy for one thousand two hundred and sixty days, clothed in sackcloth. {11:4} These are the two olive trees and the two lampstands, standing in the sight of the lord of the earth. {11:5} And if anyone will want to harm them, fire shall go forth from their mouths, and it shall devour their enemies. And if anyone will want to wound them, so must he be slain. {11:6} These have the power to close up the heavens, so that it may not rain during the days of their prophesying. And they have power over the waters, to convert them into blood, and to strike the earth with every kind of affliction as often as they will. {11:7} And when they will have finished their testimony, the beast that ascended from the abyss will make war against them, and will overcome them, and will kill them. {11:8} And their bodies shall lie in the streets of the Great City, which is figuratively called ‘Sodom’ and ‘Egypt,’ the place where their Lord also was crucified. {11:9} And those from the tribes and peoples and languages and nations shall be watching their bodies for three and one half days. And they shall not permit their bodies to be placed in tombs. {11:10} And the inhabitants of the earth will rejoice over them, and they will celebrate, and they will send gifts to one another, because these two prophets tortured those who were living upon the earth. {11:11} And after three and one half days, the spirit of life from God entered into them. And they stood upright on their feet. And a great fear fell over those who saw them. {11:12} And they heard a great voice from heaven, saying to them, “Ascend to here!” And they ascended into heaven on a cloud. And their enemies saw them. {11:13} And at that hour, a great earthquake occurred. And one tenth part of the City fell. And the names of the men slain in the earthquake were seven thousand. And the remainder were thrown into fear, and they gave glory to the God of heaven. {11:14} The second woe has gone out, but behold, the third woe approaches quickly. {11:15} And the seventh Angel sounded the trumpet. And there were great voices in heaven, saying: “The kingdom of this world has become our Lord’s and his Christ’s, and he shall reign forever and ever. Amen.” {11:16} And the twenty-four elders, who sit on their thrones in the sight of God, fell upon their faces, and they adored God, saying: {11:17} “We give thanks to you, Lord God Almighty, who is, and who was, and who is to come. For you have taken your great power, and you have reigned. {11:18} And the nations became angry, but your wrath arrived, and the time for the dead to be judged, and to render a reward to your servants the prophets, and to the saints, and to those who fear your name, small and great, and to exterminate those who have corrupted the earth.” {11:19} And the temple of God was opened in heaven. And the Ark of his Testament was seen in his temple. And there were lightnings and voices and thunders, and an earthquake, and great hail.

[Revelation 12] {12:1} And a great sign appeared in heaven: a woman clothed with the sun, and the moon was under her feet, and on her head was a crown of twelve stars. {12:2} And being with child, she cried out while giving birth, and she was suffering in order to give birth. {12:3} And another sign was seen in heaven. And behold, a great red dragon, having seven heads and ten horns, and on his heads were seven diadems. {12:4} And his tail drew down a third part of the stars of heaven and cast them to the earth. And the dragon stood before the woman, who was about to give birth, so that, when she had brought forth, he might devour her son. {12:5} And she brought forth a male child, who was soon to rule all the nations with an iron rod. And her son was taken up to God and to his throne. {12:6} And the woman fled into solitude, where a place was being held ready by God, so that they might pasturc her in that place for one thousand two hundred and sixty days. {12:7} And there was a great battle in heaven. Michael and his Angels were battling with the dragon, and the dragon was fighting, and so were his angels. {12:8} But they did not prevail, and a place for them was no longer found in heaven. {12:9} And he was thrown out, that great dragon, that ancient serpent, who is called the devil and Satan, who seduces the whole world. And he was thrown down to the earth, and his angels were cast down with him. {12:10} And I heard a great voice in heaven, saying: “Now have arrived salvation and virtue and the kingdom of our God and the power of his Christ. For the accuser of our brothers has been cast down, he who accused them before our God day and night. {12:11} And they overcame him by the blood of the Lamb and by the word of his testimony. And they loved not their own lives, even unto death. {12:12} Because of this, rejoice, O heavens, and all who dwell within it. Woe to the earth and to the sea! For the devil has descended to you, holding great anger, knowing that he has little time.” {12:13} And after the dragon saw that he had been thrown down to the earth, he pursued the woman who brought forth the male child. {12:14} And the two wings of a great eagle were given to the woman, so that she might fly away, into the desert, to her place, where she is being nourished for a time, and times, and half a time, from the face of the serpent. {12:15} And the serpent sent out from his mouth, after the woman, water like a river, so that he might cause her to be carried away by the river. {12:16} But the earth assisted the woman. And the earth opened her mouth and absorbed the river, which the dragon sent out from his mouth. {12:17} And the dragon was angry at the woman. And so he went away to do battle with the remainder of her offspring, those who keep the commandments of God and who hold to the testimony of Jesus Christ. {12:18} And he stood upon the sand of the sea.
captivity he goes. Whoever will kill with the sword, with the sword he must be killed. Here is the patient endurance and faith of the Saints. {14:11} And I saw another sign in heaven, and the Lamb was standing above mount Zion, and with him were one hundred and forty-four thousand, having his name and the name of his Father written on their foreheads. {14:12} And he caused the earth, and those dwelling in it, to worship the first beast, whose deadly wound was healed. {14:13} And she accomplished great signs, even so that she would cause fire to descend from the sky to the earth in the sight of men. {14:14} And she seduced those living on the earth, by means of the signs that were given to her to perform in the sight of the beast, saying to those dwelling on the earth that they should make an image of the beast who had a wound of the sword and yet lived. {14:15} And it was given to her to give a spirit to the image of the beast, so that the image of the beast would speak. And she acted so that whoever would not worship the image of the beast would be slain. {14:16} And she will cause everyone, small and great, wealthy and poor, free and servant, to have a character on their right hand or on their foreheads, {14:17} so that no one may buy or sell, unless he has the character, or the name of the beast, or the number of his name. {14:18} Here is wisdom. Whoever has intelligence, let him determine the number of the beast. For it is the number of a man, and his number is six hundred and sixty-six.

[Revelation 14] {14:1} And I saw, and behold, the Lamb was standing above mount Zion, and with him were one hundred and forty-four thousand, having his name and the name of his Father written on their foreheads. {14:2} And I heard a voice from heaven, like the voice of many waters, and like the voice of a great thunder. And the voice that I heard was like that of singers, while playing on their stringed instruments. {14:3} And they were singing what seemed like a new canticle before the throne and before the four living creatures and the elders. And no one was able to recite the canticle, except those one hundred and forty-four thousand, who were redeemed from the earth. {14:4} These are the ones who were not defiled with women, for they are Virgins. These follow the Lamb wherever he will go. These were redeemed from men as the first-fruits for God and for the Lamb. {14:5} And in their mouth, no lie was found, for they are without flaw before the throne of God. {14:6} And I saw another Angel, flying through the midst of heaven, holding the eternal Gospel, so as to evangelize those sitting upon the earth and those of every nation and tribe and language and people, {14:7} saying with a loud voice: “Fear the Lord, and give honor to him, for the hour of his judgment has arrived. And worship him who made heavy and earth, the sea and the sources of water.” {14:8} And another Angel followed, saying: “Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great, which inebriated all the sources of water.” {14:9} And the third Angel followed them, saying with a great voice: “If anyone has worshiped the beast, or his image, or has received his character on his forehead or on his hand, {14:10} he shall drink also from the wine of the wrath of God, which has been mixed with strong wine in the cup of his wrath, and he shall be tortured with fire and sulphur in the sight of the holy Angels and before the sight of the Lamb. {14:11} And the smoke of their torments shall ascend forever and ever. And they shall have no rest, day or night, those who have worshiped the beast or his image, or who have received the character of his name.” {14:12} Here is the patient endurance of the Saints, those who keep the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus. {14:13} And I heard a voice from heaven, saying to me: “Write: Blessed are the dead, who die in the Lord, now and hereafter, says the Spirit, so that they may find rest from their labors. For their works follow them.” {14:14} And I saw, and behold, a white cloud. And upon the cloud was one sitting, resembling a son of man, having a crown of gold on his head, and a sharp sickle in his hand. {14:15} And another Angel went forth from the temple, crying out in a great voice to the one sitting upon the cloud: “Send out your sickle and reap! For the hour of reaping has arrived, because the harvest of the earth has ripened.” {14:16} And the one who was sitting upon the cloud sent out his sickle to the earth, and the earth was reaped. {14:17} And another Angel went forth from the temple that is in heaven; he also had a sharp sickle. {14:18} And another Angel went forth from the altar, who held power over fire. And he cried out in a great voice to him who held the sharp sickle, saying: “Send out your sharp sickle, and harvest the clusters of grapes from the vineyard of the earth, because its grapes have matured.” {14:19} And the Angel sent out his sharp sickle to the earth, and he harvested the vineyard of the earth, and he cast it into the great basin of the wrath of God. {14:20} And the basin was trodden beyond the city, and blood went forth from the basin, even as high as the harnesses of horses, out to one thousand six hundred stadia.

[Revelation 15] {15:1} And I saw another sign in heaven, great and wondrous: seven Angels, holding the seven last plagues. For with them, the wrath of God is completed. {15:2} And I saw something like a sea of glass mixed with fire. And those who had overcome the beast and his image and the number of his name, were standing upon the sea of glass, holding the harps of God, {15:3} and singing the canticle of Moses, the servant of God, and the canticle of the Lamb, saying: “Great and wondrous are your works, Lord God Almighty. Just and true are your ways, King of all ages. {15:4} Who shall not fear you, O Lord, and magnify your name? For you alone are blessed. For all nations shall approach and adore in your sight, because your judgments are manifest.” {15:5} And after these things, I saw, and behold, the temple of the tabernacle of the testimony in heaven was opened. {15:6} And the seven Angels went forth from the temple, holding the seven plagues, clothed with clean white linen, and girded around the chest with golden belts. {15:7} And one of the four living creatures gave the seven plagues to the seven Angels, saying: “Go forth and pour out the seven plagues of the wrath of God upon the earth.” {15:8} And the first Angel went forth and poured out his bowl upon the earth. And a severe and most grievous wound occurred upon the men who had the character of the beast, and upon those who adored the beast or its image. {16:3} And the second Angel poured out his bowl upon the sea. And it became like the blood of the dead, and every living creature in the sea died. {16:4} And the third Angel poured out his bowl upon the rivers and the sources of water, and these became blood. {16:5} And I heard the Angel of the waters saying: “You are just, O Lord, who is and who was: the Holy One who has judged these things. {16:6} For they have shed the blood of the Saints and the Prophets, and so you have given them blood to drink. For they deserve this.” {16:7} And from the altar, I heard another one, saying, “Even now, O Lord God Almighty, your judgments are true and just.” {16:8} And the fourth Angel poured out his bowl upon the sun. And it was given to him to afflict men with heat and fire. {16:9} And men were scorched by the great heat, and they blasphemed the name of God, who holds power over these afflictions, but they did not repent, so as to give him glory. {16:10} And the fifth Angel poured out his bowl upon the throne of the beast. And his kingdom became darkened, and they gnawed at their tongues out of anguish. {16:11} And they blasphemed the God of heaven, because of their anguish and wounds, but they did not repent from their works. {16:12} And the sixth Angel poured out his bowl upon that great river Euphrates. And its water dried up, so that a way might be prepared for the kings from the rising of the sun. {16:13} And I saw, from the mouth of the dragon, and from the mouth of the beast, and from the mouth of the false prophetess, three unclean spirits go out in the manner of frogs. {16:14} For these are the spirits of the demons that were causing the signs. And they advance to the kings of the entire earth, to gather them for battle on the great day of Almighty God. {16:15} “Behold, I arrive like a thief. Blessed is he who is vigilant and who preserves his vestment, lest he walk naked and they see his disgrace.” {16:16} And he shall gather them together at a place which is called, in Hebrew, Armageddon. {16:17} And the seventh Angel poured out his bowl upon the air. And a great voice went out of the temple from the throne, saying: “It is done.” {16:18} And there were lightnings and voices and thunders. And a great earthquake occurred, of a kind such as has never happened since men have been upon the earth, so great was this kind of earthquake. {16:19} And the Great City became divided into three parts. And the cities of the Gentiles fell. And Babylon the great came to mind before God, to give her the cup of the affliction of the hail, for it was exceedingly great. {16:20} And every island fled away, and the mountains were not found. {16:21} And hail as heavy as a talent descended from the sky upon men. And men blasphemed God, because of the affliction of the hail, for it was exceedingly great.

[Revelation 17] {17:1} And one of the seven Angels, those who hold the seven bowls, approached and spoke with me, saying: “Come, I will show you the condemnation of the great harlot, who sits upon many waters. {17:2} With her, the kings of the earth have fornicated. And those who inhabit the earth have been inebriated from the blood of the saints and from the blood of the martyrs of Jesus. And I was amazed, when I had seen her, with a great wonder. {17:7} And the Angel said to me: “Why do you wonder? I will tell you the mystery of the woman, and of the beast that carries her, which has seven heads and ten horns. {17:8} The beast that you saw, was, and is not, and is soon to ascend from the abyss. And he goes forth unto destruction. And the inhabitants upon the earth (those whose names have not been written in the Book of Life from the foundation of the world) shall be amazed upon seeing the beast who was and is not. {17:9} And this is for one who understands, who has wisdom: the seven heads are seven mountains, upon which the woman sits, and they are seven kings. {17:10} Five have fallen, one is, and the other has not yet arrived. And when he arrives, he must remain for a brief time. {17:11} And the beast who was, and is not, the same is also the eighth, and he is of the seven, and he goes forth unto destruction. {17:12} And the ten horns that you saw are ten kings; these have not yet received a kingdom, but they shall receive authority, as if they were kings, for one hour, after the beast. {17:13} These hold to one plan, and they shall hand over their power and authority to the beast. {17:14} These shall fight against the Lamb, and the Lamb shall conquer them. For he is the Lord of lords and the King of kings. And those who are with him are called, and chosen, and faithful.” {17:15} And he said to me: “The waters that you saw, where the harlot sits, are peoples and nations and languages. {17:16} And the ten horns that you saw on the beast, these shall hate the woman who fornicates, and they shall make her desolate and naked, and they shall chew her flesh, and they shall hate the woman who fornicates, and they shall make her desolate and naked, and they shall chew her flesh, and they shall burn her completely with fire. {17:17} For God has granted to their hearts that they may do to her whatever is pleasing, so that they may give their kingdom to the beast, until the words of God may be completed. {17:18} And the woman that you saw is the great City, which holds a kingdom above that of the kings of the earth.”

[Revelation 18] {18:1} And after these things, I saw another Angel, descending from heaven, having great authority. And the earth was illuminated by his glory. {18:2} And he cried out with strength, saying: “Fallen, fallen is Babylon the great. And she has become the habitation of demons, and the keepsake of every unclean spirit, and the possession of every unclean and hateful flying thing. {18:3} For all the nations have imbibed the wine of the wrath of her fornication. And the kings of the earth have fornicated with her. And the merchants of the earth have become wealthy by the power of her pleasures.” {18:4} And I heard another voice from heaven, saying: “Go away from her, my people, so that you may not be participants in her pleasures, and so that you may not be recipients of her afflictions. {18:5} For her sins have pierced through even to heaven, and the Lord has remembered her iniquities. {18:6} Render to her, as she has also rendered to you. And repay her doubly, according to her works. Mix for her a double portion, in the cup with which she mixed. {18:7} As much as she has glorified herself and lived in pleasure, so much so give to her torment and grief. For in her heart, she has said: ‘I am enthroned as queen,’ and,
For this reason, her affections shall arrive in one day: death and grief and famine. And she shall be burned with fire. For God, who will judge her, is strong. And the kings of the earth, who have fornicated with her and lived in luxury, shall weep and mourn for themselves over her, when they see the smoke of her conflagration. Standing far away, out of fear of her torments, saying: 'Woe! Woe to Babylon, that great city, that strong city. For in one hour, your judgment has arrived.' And the businessmen of the earth shall weep and mourn over her, because no one will buy their merchandise anymore: Merchandise of gold and silver and precious stones and pearls, and of fine linen and purple and silk and scarlet, and of every citrus tree wood, and of every tool of ivory, and of every tool from precious stone and brass and iron and marble, and of cinnamon and black cardamom, and of fragrances and ointments and incense, and of wine and oil and fine flour and wheat, and of beasts of burden and sheep and horses and four-wheeled wagons, and of slaves and the souls of men. And the fruits of the desires of your soul have gone away from you. And all things fat and splendid have perished from you. And they shall never find these things again. The merchants of these things, who were made wealthy, shall stand far away from her, out of fear of her torments, weeping and mourning. And saying: 'Woe! Woe! to that great city, which was clothed with fine linen and purple and scarlet, and which was adorned with gold and precious stones and pearls. For such great wealth was brought to destitution in one hour. And every shipmaster, and all who navigate on lakes, and mariners, and those who work at sea, stood far away. And they cried out, seeing the place of her conflagration, saying: 'What city resembles this great city?' And they cast dust upon their heads. And they cried out, weeping and mourning, saying: 'Woe! Woe! to that great city, by which all who had ships at sea were made rich from her treasures. For she has been made desolate in one hour. Exult over her, O heaven, O holy Apostles and Prophets. For God has judged your judgment upon her." And a certain strong Angel took up a stone, similar to a great millstone, and he cast it into the sea, saying: 'With this force shall Babylon, that great city, be cast down. And she shall never be found again. And every artisan of every art shall not be found in you again. And the sound of the mill shall not be heard in you again. And the light of the lamp shall not shine in you again. And the voice of the groom and of the bride shall not be heard in you anymore. For your merchants were the leaders of the earth. For all the nations were led astray by your drugs. And in her was found the blood of the Prophets and of the Saints, and of all who were slain upon the earth.' And I heard something like the voice of a great multitude, and like the voice of many waters, and like the voice of great thunders, saying: "Alleluia! For the Lord our God, the Almighty, has reigned." Let us be glad and exult. And let us give glory to him. For the marriage feast of the Lamb has arrived, and his wife has prepared herself." And it was granted to her that she should cover herself with fine linen, splendid and white. For the fine linen is the justifications of the Saints. And he said to me: "Write: Blessed are those who have been called to the wedding feast of the Lamb." And he said to me, "These words of God are true." And I fell down before his feet, to adore him. And he said to me: "Be careful not to do so. I am your fellow servant, and I am among your brothers, who hold to the testimony of Jesus. Adore God. For the testimony of Jesus is a spirit of prophecy." And I saw heaven opened, and behold, a white horse. And he who was sitting upon it was called Faithful and True. And with justice does he judge and fight. And his eyes are like a flame of fire, and on his head are many diadems, having a name written, which no one knows except himself. And he was clothed with a vestment sprinkled with blood. And his name is called: THE WORD OF GOD. And the armies that are in heaven were following him on white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and clean. And from his mouth proceeded a sharp two-edged sword, so that with it he may strike the nations. And he shall rule them with an iron rod. And he treads the winepress of the fury of the wrath of God Almighty. And he has on his garment and on his thigh written: KING OF KINGS AND LORD OF LORDS. And I saw a certain Angel, standing in the sun. And he cried out with a great voice, saying to all the birds that were flying through the midst of the sky, "Come and gather together for the great supper of God," so that you may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of tribunes, and the flesh of the great supper of God, so that you may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of tribunes, and the flesh of the nations, until the thousand years are completed. And after these things, he must be released for a brief time. And a voice went out from the throne, saying: "Express praise to our God, all you his servants, and you who fear him, small and great." And I heard something like the voice of a great multitude, and like the voice of many waters, and like the voice of great thunders, saying: "Alleluia! For the Lord our God, the Almighty, has reigned." Let us be glad and exult. And let us give glory to him. For the marriage feast of the Lamb has arrived, and his wife has prepared herself." And it was granted to her that she should cover herself with fine linen, splendid and white. For the fine linen is the justifications of the Saints. And he said to me: "Write: Blessed are those who have been called to the wedding feast of the Lamb." And he said to me, "These words of God are true." And I fell down before his feet, to adore him. And he said to me: "Be careful not to do so. I am your fellow servant, and I am among your brothers, who hold to the testimony of Jesus. Adore God. For the testimony of Jesus is a spirit of prophecy." And I saw heaven opened, and behold, a white horse. And he who was sitting upon it was called Faithful and True. And with justice does he judge and fight. And his eyes are like a flame of fire, and on his head are many diadems, having a name written, which no one knows except himself. And he was clothed with a vestment sprinkled with blood. And his name is called: THE WORD OF GOD. And the armies that are in heaven were following him on white horses, clothed in fine linen, white and clean. And from his mouth proceeded a sharp two-edged sword, so that with it he may strike the nations. And he shall rule them with an iron rod. And he treads the winepress of the fury of the wrath of God Almighty. And he has on his garment and on his thigh written: KING OF KINGS AND LORD OF LORDS. And I saw a certain Angel, standing in the sun. And he cried out with a great voice, saying to all the birds that were flying through the midst of the sky, "Come and gather together for the great supper of God," so that you may eat the flesh of kings, and the flesh of tribunes, and the flesh of the strong, and the flesh of horses and those sitting on them, and the flesh of all: free and servant, small and great." And I saw the beast and the kings of the earth and their armies, having been gathered together to do battle against him who was sitting upon the horse, and against his army. And the beast was apprehended, and with him the false prophets, who in his presence caused the signs, by which she seduced those who accepted the character of the beast and who worshiped his image. These two were cast alive into the pool of fire burning with sulphur. And the others were slain by the sword that proceeds from the mouth of him who was sitting upon the horse. And all the birds were sated with their flesh.
I saw thrones. And they sat upon them. And judgment was given to them. And the souls of those beheaded because of the testimony of Jesus and because of the Word of God, and who did not adore the beast, nor his image, nor accept his character on their foreheads or on their hands: they lived and they reigned with Christ for a thousand years. (20:5) The rest of the dead did not live, until the thousand years are completed. This is the First Resurrection. (20:6) Blessed and holy is he who takes part in the First Resurrection. Over these the second death has no power. But they shall be priests of God and of Christ, and they shall reign with him for a thousand years. (20:7) And when the thousand years will have been completed, Satan shall be released from his prison, and he will go out and seduce the nations which are upon the four quarters of the earth, Gog and Magog. And he will gather them together for battle, those whose number is like the sand of the sea. (20:8) And they climbed across the breadth of the earth, and they encompassed the camp of the Saints and the Beloved City. (20:9) And fire from God descended from heaven and devoured them. And the devil, who seduced them, was cast into the pool of fire and sulphur, (20:10) where both the beast and the false prophetess shall be tortured, day and night, forever and ever. (20:11) And I saw a great white throne, and One sitting upon it, from whose sight earth and heaven fled, and no place was found for them. (20:12) And I saw the dead, great and small, standing in view of the throne. And books were opened. And another Book was opened, which is the Book of Life. And the dead were judged by those things that had been written in the books, according to their works. (20:13) And the sea gave up the dead who were in it. And death and Hell gave up their dead who were in them. And they were judged, each one according to his works. (20:14) And Hell and death were cast into the pool of fire. This is the second death. (20:15) And whoever was not found written in the Book of Life was cast into the pool of fire.

[Revelation 21] (21:1) I saw the new heaven and the new earth. For the first heaven and the first earth passed away, and the sea is no more. (21:2) And I, John, saw the Holy City, the New Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God, prepared like a bride adorned for her husband. (21:3) And I heard a great voice from the throne, saying: “Behold the tabernacle of God with men. And he will dwell with them, and they will be his people. And God himself will be their God with them.” (21:4) And God will wipe away every tear from their eyes. And death shall be no more. And neither mourning, nor crying out, nor grief shall be anymore. For the first things have passed away.” (21:5) And the One who was sitting upon the throne, said, “Behold, I make all things new.” And he said to me, “Write, for these words are entirely faithful and true.” (21:6) And he said to me: “It is done. I am the Alpha and the Omega, the Beginning and the End. To those who thirst, I will give freely from the fountain of the water of life.” (21:7) Whoever prevails shall possess these things. And I will be his God, and he shall be my son. (21:8) But the fearful, and the unbelieving, and the abominable, and murderers, and fornicators, and drug users, and idolaters, and all liars, these shall be a part of the pool burning with fire and sulphur, which is the second death.” (21:9) And one of the seven Angels, those holding the bowls filled with the seven last afflictions, approached and spoke with me, saying: “Come, and I will show you the bride, the wife of the Lamb.” (21:10) And he took me up in spirit to a great and high mountain. And he showed me the Holy City Jerusalem, descending out of heaven from God, (21:11) having the glory of God. And its light was like that of a precious stone, even like that of the jasper stone or like crystal. (21:12) And it had a wall, great and high, having twelve gates. And at the gates were twelve Angels. And names were written upon them, which are the names of the twelve tribes of the sons of Israel. (21:13) On the East were three gates, and on the North were three gates, and on the South were three gates, and on the West were three gates. (21:14) And the wall of the City had twelve foundations. And upon them were the twelve names of the twelve Apostles of the Lamb. (21:15) And he who was speaking with me was holding a golden measuring reed, in order to measure the City, and its gates and wall. (21:16) And the city is laid out as a square, and so its length is as great as the width. And he measured the city with the golden reed for twelve thousand stadia, and its length and height and breadth were equal. (21:17) And he measured its wall as one hundred and forty-four cubits, the measure of a man, which is of an Angel. (21:18) And the structure of its wall was of jasper stone. Yet truly, the city itself was of pure gold, similar to pure glass. (21:19) And the foundations of the wall of the city were adorned with every kind of precious stone. The first foundation was of jasper, the second was of sapphire, the third was of chalcedony, the fourth was of emerald, (21:20) the fifth was of sardonyx, the sixth was of sardius, the seventh was of chrysolite, the eighth was of beryl, the ninth was of topaz, the tenth was of chrysoprasus, the eleventh was of jacinth, the twelfth was of amethyst. (21:21) And the twelve gates are twelve pearls, one for each, so that each gate was made from a single pearl. And the main street of the city was of pure gold, similar to transparent glass. (21:22) And I saw no temple in it. For the Lord God Almighty is its temple, and the Lamb. (21:23) And the city has no need of sun or moon to shine in it. For the glory of God has illuminated it, and the Lamb is its lamp. (21:24) And the nations shall walk by its light. And the kings of the earth shall bring their glory and honor into it. (21:25) And its gates shall not be closed throughout the day, for there shall be no night in that place. (21:26) And they shall bring the glory and honor of the nations into it. (21:27) There shall not enter into it anything defiled, nor anything causing an abomination, nor anything false, but only those who have been written in the Book of Life of the Lamb.

[Revelation 22] (22:1) And he showed me the river of the water of life, shining like crystal, proceeding from the throne of God and of the Lamb. (22:2) In the midst of its main street, and on both sides of the river, was the Tree of Life, bearing twelve fruits, offering one fruit for each month, and the leaves of the tree are for the health of the nations. (22:3) And every curse shall be no more. But the throne of God and of the Lamb will be in it, and his servants shall serve him. (22:4) And they shall see his face. And his name shall be on their foreheads. (22:5) And night shall be no more. And they will not need the light of a lamp, nor the light of the sun, because the Lord God will illuminate them. And they shall reign forever and ever. (22:6) And he said to me:
“These words are entirely faithful and true.” And the Lord, the God of the spirits of the prophets, sent his Angel to reveal to his servant what must occur soon: {22:7} “For behold, I am approaching quickly! Blessed is he who keeps the words of the prophecy of this book.” {22:8} And I, John, heard and saw these things. And, after I had heard and seen, I fell down, so as to adore before the feet of the Angel, who was revealing these things to me. {22:9} And he said to me: “Be careful not to do so. For I am your fellow servant, and I am among your brothers the prophets, and among those who keep the words of the prophecy of this book. Adore God.” {22:10} And he said to me: “Do not seal the words of the prophecy of this book. For the time is near. {22:11} Whoever does harm, he might still do harm. And whoever is filthy, he might still be filthy. And whoever is just, he may still be just. And one who is holy, he may still be holy.” {22:12} “Behold, I am approaching quickly! And my repayment is with me, to render to each one according to his works. {22:13} I am the Alpha and the Omega, the First and the Last, the Beginning and the End.” {22:14} Blessed are those who wash their robes in the blood of the Lamb. So may they have a right to the tree of life; so may they enter through the gates into the City. {22:15} Outside are dogs, and drug users, and homosexuals, and murderers, and those who serve idols, and all who love and do what is false. {22:16} “I, Jesus, have sent my Angel, to testify to these things for you among the Churches. I am the Root and the Origin of David, the bright morning Star.” {22:17} And the Spirit and the Bride say: “Draw near.” And whoever hears, let him say: “Draw near.” And whoever thirsts, let him draw near. And whoever is willing, let him accept the water of life, freely. {22:18} For I call as witnesses all listeners of the words of the prophecy of this book. If anyone will have added to these, God will add upon him the afflictions written in this book. {22:19} And if anyone will have taken away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God will take away his portion from the Book of Life, and from the Holy City, and from these things which have been written in this book. {22:20} He who offers testimony to these things, says: “Even now, I am approaching quickly.” Amen. Come, Lord Jesus. {22:21} The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ be with you all. Amen.
Seven Words on the Inerrancy of Sacred Scripture

1. Pope St. Clement I: “Look carefully into the Scriptures, which are the true utterances of the Holy Spirit. Observe that nothing of an unjust or counterfeit character is written in them.” (Letter to the Corinthians, chap. 45).

2. Pope Leo XIII: “But it is absolutely wrong and forbidden, either to narrow inspiration to certain parts only of Holy Scripture, or to admit that the sacred writer has erred…. For all the books which the Church receives as sacred and canonical, are written wholly and entirely, with all their parts, at the dictation of the Holy Spirit; and so far is it from being possible that any error can co-exist with inspiration, that inspiration not only is essentially incompatible with error, but excludes and rejects it as absolutely and necessarily as it is impossible that God Himself, the supreme Truth, can utter that which is not true. This is the ancient and unchanging faith of the Church, solemnly defined in the Councils of Florence and of Trent, and finally confirmed and more expressly formulated by the Council of the Vatican.” (Providentissimus Deus, n. 20).

3. Pope St. Pius X condemned the idea that “Divine inspiration does not extend to all of Sacred Scriptures so that it renders its parts, each and every one, free from every error.” (Lamentabili Sane, ‘Syllabus of Errors,’ n. 11).

4. Pope Benedict XV: “St. Jerome's teaching on this point serves to confirm and illustrate what our predecessor of happy memory, Leo XIII, declared to be the ancient and traditional belief of the Church touching the absolute immunity of Scripture from error: So far is it from being the case that error can be compatible with inspiration, that, on the contrary, it not only of its very nature precludes the presence of error, but as necessarily excludes it and forbids it as God, the Supreme Truth, necessarily cannot be the Author of error…. But although these words of our predecessor leave no room for doubt or dispute, it grieves us to find that not only men outside, but even children of the Catholic Church -- nay, what is a peculiar sorrow to us, even clerics and professors of sacred learning -- who in their own conceit either openly repudiate or at least attack in secret the Church's teaching on this point…. Divine inspiration extends to every part of the Bible without the slightest exception, and that no error can occur in the inspired text....” (Spiritus Paraclitus, n. 16, 18, 21).

5. Pope Pius XII: “they put forward again the opinion, already often condemned, which asserts that immunity from error extends only to those parts of the Bible that treat of God or of moral and religious matters.” (Humani Generis, n. 22).

6. Pope Pius XII: “The sacred Council of Trent ordained by solemn decree that ‘the entire books with all their parts, as they have been wont to be read in the Catholic Church and are contained in the old vulgate Latin edition, are to be held sacred and canonical.’ In our own time the Vatican Council, with the object of condemning false doctrines regarding inspiration, declared that these same books were to be regarded by the Church as sacred and canonical 'not because, having been composed by human industry, they were afterwards approved by her authority, nor merely because they contain revelation without error, but because, having been written under the inspiration of the Holy Spirit, they have God for their author, and as such were handed down to the Church herself.' When, subsequently, some Catholic writers, in spite of this solemn definition of Catholic doctrine, by which such divine authority is claimed for the 'entire books with all their parts' as to secure freedom from any error whatsoever, ventured to restrict the truth of Sacred Scripture solely to matters of faith and morals, and to regard other matters, whether in the domain of physical science or history, as 'obiter dicta' and -- as they contended -- in no wise connected with faith, Our Predecessor of immortal memory, Leo XIII in the Encyclical Letter Providentissimus Deus, published on November 18 in the year 1893, justly and rightly condemned these errors and safe-guarded the studies of the Divine Books by most wise precepts and rules.” (Divino Afflante Spiritu, n. 1).

7. Second Vatican Council: “everything asserted by the inspired authors or sacred writers must be held to be asserted by the Holy Spirit....” (Dei Verbum, n. 11).
